3 He hath cut off in his fierce wrath all the horn of Israel: he hath drawn back his right hand from before the enemy, and there was kindled in Jacob like a flame of fire, which devoured round about.

4 He hath bent his bow like an enemy:

his right hand was stretched up ^{adversary}, and slew all that was pleasant to the eye in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion: he poured out his wrath like fire. Ref. Chr. 588.

5 The Lord was an enemy: he hath devoured Israel, and consumed all his palaces: he hath destroyed his strong holds, and hath increased in the daughter of Judah lamentation and mourning.

6 For he hath destroyed his tabernacle as a garden, he hath destroyed his congregation: the Lord hath caused the feasts and sabbaths to be forgotten in Zion, and hath despised in the indignation of his wrath the king and the priest.

7 The Lord hath forsaken his altar: he hath abhorred his sanctuary: he hath given into the hand of the enemy the walls of her palaces: they have made a noise in the house of the Lord, as in the day of solemnity.

8 The Lord hath determined to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion: he stretched out a line, he hath not withdrawn his hand from destroying: therefore he made the rampart and the wall to lament: they were destroyed together.

9 Her gates are sunk to the ground: he hath destroyed and broken her bars: the king and her princes are among the Gentiles: the law is no more, neither can her prophets receive any vision from the Lord. Or, find.

10 The elders of the daughter of Zion sit upon the ground and keep silence: they have cast up dust upon their heads: they have girded themselves with sackcloth: the virgins of Jerusalem hang down their heads to the ground.

11 Mine eyes do fail with tears: my bowels swell: my liver is poured upon the earth, for the destruction of the daughter of my people, because the children and sucklings swoon in the streets of the city. Or, faint.

12 They have said to their mothers, Where is bread and drink? when they swooned as the wounded in the streets of the city, and when they gave up the ghost in their mothers bosom. Or, beat and wince. Or, poured out the soul.

13 What thing shall I take to witness for thee? what thing shall I compare to thee, O daughter Jerusalem? what shall I liken to thee that I may comfort thee, O virgin daughter Zion? for thy breach is great like the sea: who can heal thee?

14 Thy prophets have looked out vain and foolish things for thee, and they have not discovered thine iniquity to turn away thy captivity, and have looked out for thee false prophecies, and causes of banishment. Or, burden.

The prayer of Jeremiab.

REMEMBER, O Lord, what is come upon us: ° consider, and behold our reproach.

2 Our inheritance is turned to the strangers, our houses to the aliens.

3 We are fatherless, even without father, and our mothers are widows.

4 We have drunken our ° water for money, and our wood is sold unto us.

° That is, the enemies.

■ He sheweth two principal causes of their destruction: their cruelty, and their vain confidence in man: for they trusted in the help of the Egyptians.

° Our king Josiah, in whom stood our hope of God's favour, and on whom depended our state and life, was slain, whom he calleth anointed, because he was a figure of Christ.

† This is spoken by derision.

° He comforteth the church by that, after seventy years their sorrows shall have an end, whereas the wicked should be tormented for ever.

† This prayer, as is thought, was made when some of the people were carried away captive, others, as the poorest remained, and some went into Egypt and other places for succour: albeit it seemeth that the prophet foreseeing their miseries to come, thus prayed.

5 Our necks under persecution, we are weary and have no rest.

6 We have given our ° hands to the Egyptians, and to Asshur, to be satisfied with bread.

7 Our fathers have sinned, and are not, and we have borne their ° iniquities.

8 Servants have ruled over us, none would deliver us out of their hands.

9 We gat our bread with the peril of our lives, because of the sword ° of the wilderness.

10 Our skin was black like as an oven, because of the terrible famine.

11 They defiled the women in Zion, and the maids in the cities of Judah.

12 The princes are hanged up by ° their hand: the faces of the elders were not had in honour.

13 They took the young men to grind, and the children fell under ° the wood.

14 The elders have ceased from the ° gate, and the young men from their songs.

15 The joy of our heart is gone, our dance is turned into mourning.

16 The crown of our head is fallen: woe now unto us, that we have sinned.

17 Therefore our heart is heavy for these things, our ° eyes are dim.

18 Because of the mountain of Zion, which is desolate: the foxes run upon it.

19 But thou, O Lord, remainest for ° ever: thy throne from generation to generation.

20 Wherefore dost thou forget us for ever, and forsake so long time?

21 ° Turn thou us unto thee, O Lord, and we shall be turned: renew our days of old.

22 But thou hast utterly rejected us: thou art exceedingly angry against us.

° Meaning their extreme servitude and bondage.

° We are joined in league and amity with them, or have submitted ourselves unto them.

■ As our fathers have been punished for their sins, so we that are culpable of the same sins, are punished.

† Because of the enemy that came from the wilderness, and would not suffer us to go and seek our necessary food.

■ That is, by the enemies hand.

° Their slavery was so great, that they were not able to abide it.

° There were no laws, nor form of commonwealth.

■ With weeping.

° And therefore thy promises and mercies never fail.

° Whereby is declared, that it is in man's power to turn to God, but is only his work to convert us, and thus God worketh in us before we turn to him, Jer. 31. 18.

THE ARGUMENT.

After that Jeboiachin, by the counsel of Jeremiab and Ezekiel, had yielded himself to Nebuchadnezzar, and so went to captivity with his mother, and divers of his princes, and of the people, certain began to repent and murmur that they had obeyed the prophet's counsel, as though the thing which they had prophesied should not come to pass, and therefore their estate should be still miserable under the Chaldeans: by reason whereof he confirmeth his former prophecies, declaring by new visions and revelations shewed unto him, that the city should most certainly be destroyed, and the people grievously tormented by God's plagues, insomuch that they that remained should be brought into cruel bondage. And lest the godly should despair in these great troubles, he assureth them that God will deliver his church at his time appointed, and also destroy their enemies, which either afflicted them, or rejoiced in their miseries. The effect of the one and the other should chiefly be performed under Christ, of whom in this book are many notable promises, and in whom the glory of the new temple should perfectly be restored. He prophesied these things in Chaldea, at the same time that Jeremiab prophesied in Judah, and there began in the fifth year of Jeboiachin's captivity.

■ The time wherein Ezekiel prophesied, and in what place. 3 His kindred. 5 The vision of the four beasts. 26 The vision of the throne.

IT came to pass in the ^a thirtieth year, in the fourth month, and in the fifth day of the month (as I was among the captives by the river ^b Chebar) that the heavens were opened, and I saw the visions of ^c God.

2 In the fifth day of the month (which was the fifth year of king Jehoiachin's captivity)

3 The word of the Lord came unto Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the river Chebar, where the ^d hand of the Lord was upon him.

4 And I looked, and behold, ^e a whirlwind came out of the North, ^f a great cloud and a fire wrapped about it, and ^g brightness was about it, and in the midst thereof, to wit, in the midst of the fire, came out as the likeness of ^h amber.

5 Also out of the midst thereof came the likeness of four ⁱ beasts, and this was their form: they had the appearance of ^j man.

6 And every one had four faces, and every one had four wings.

7 And their feet were straight feet, and the sole of their feet was like the sole of ^k calf's foot, and they sparkled like the appearance of bright brass.

8 And the hands of a ^l man came out from under their wings in the four parts of them, and they four had their faces and their wings.

9 They were ^m joined by their wings one to another, and when they went forth, they returned not, but every one went straight forward.

10 And the similitude of their faces was ⁿ the face of ^o man: and they four had the face of a lion on the right side, and they four had the face of a bullock on the left side: they four also had the face of ^p eagle.

11 Thus were their faces: but their wings were spread out above: two wings of every one were joined one to another, and two covered their bodies.

12 And every ^q went straight forward: they went whither their ^r spirit led them, and they returned not when they went forth.

13 The similitude also of the beasts, and their appearance, ^s like burning coals of fire, and like the appearance of lamps: for the fire ^t among the beasts, and the fire gave a glitter, and out of the fire there went lightning.

14 And the beasts ran, and ^u returned like unto lightning.

15 ¶ Now as I beheld the beasts, behold, ^v a wheel appeared upon the earth by the beasts, having four faces.

19 And when the beasts went, the wheels went with them: and when the beasts ^s lift up from the earth, the wheels were lift up.

20 Whither their spirit led them, they went, and thither did the spirit of the wheels lead them, and the wheels were lifted up besides them: for the spirit of the beasts was in the wheels.

21 When the beasts went, they went: and when they stood, they stood: and when they were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up besides them: for the spirit of the beasts was in the wheels.

22 And the similitude of the firmament upon the heads of the beasts was wonderful, like unto chrysal, spread over their heads above.

23 And under the firmament were their wings straight, the one toward another: every one had two, which covered them: and every one had two, which covered their bodies.

24 And when they went forth, I heard the noise of their ^t wings like the noise of great waters, and ^u the voice of the Almighty, even the voice of speech, as the noise of an host: and when they stood, they ^v let down their wings.

25 And there was a voice from the firmament, that was over their heads, when they stood, and had let down their wings.

26 And above the firmament that was over their heads, was the fashion of a throne like unto a sapphire stone, and upon the similitude of the throne was, by appearance, ^w the similitude of ^x man above upon it.

27 And I saw as the appearance of amber, and as the similitude of fire ^y round about within it to look to, even from his loins upward: and to look to, even from his loins downward, I saw as ^z likeness of fire, and brightness round about it.

28 As the likeness of the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain, so ^a the appearance of the light round about.

29 This was the appearance of the similitude of the glory of the Lord: and when I saw it, I fell ^b upon my face, and I heard ^c a voice of ^d that spake.

⁵ Read Jer. 1. 17. He sheweth, that for no afflictions they should cease to do their duties.

⁴ And he said unto me, Son of man, go, and enter into the house of Israel, and declare them my words.

⁵ For thou art not sent to a people of an [†] unknown tongue, or of an hard language, but ^{† Heb. deep} to the house of Israel:

⁶ Not to many people of an unknown tongue, or of an hard language, whose words thou canst not understand: yet if I should send thee to them, they would obey thee.

⁷ But the house of Israel will not obey thee: for they will not obey me: yea, all the house of Israel are impudent and stiff-hearted.

⁸ Behold, I have made thy face ³ strong against their faces, and thy forehead hard against their foreheads.

¹⁰ He said moreover unto me, Son of man, ² receive in thine heart all my words that I speak unto thee, and hear them with thine ears.

¹¹ And go, and enter to them that are led away captives unto the children of thy people, and speak unto them, and tell them, Thus saith the Lord God: but surely they will not hear, neither will they indeed cease.

¹² Then the Spirit took me up, and I heard behind me a noise of a great rushing, saying, ² Blessed be the glory of the Lord out of his place.

¹³ I heard also the noise of the wings of the beasts, that touched one another, and the rattling of the wheels that were by them, even a noise of ■ great rushing.

¹⁴ So the Spirit lift me up, and took me away, and I ^b went in bitterness, and indignation of my spirit, but the hand of the Lord was strong upon me.

¹⁵ Then I came to them that were led away captives, to ^c Tel-abib, that dwelt by the river Chebar, and I sat where they sat, and remained there astonished among them ^d seven days.

¹⁶ And at the end of seven days, the word of the Lord came again unto me, saying,

¹⁸ When I shall say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die, and thou givest not him warning, nor

⁸ He sheweth what is meant by the eating of the book, which is, that the ministers of God may speak nothing as of themselves, but that only which they have received of the Lord.

⁹ Whereby he signifieth that God's glory should not be diminished, although he departed out of his temple: for this declared, that the city and temple should be destroyed.

¹⁰ This sheweth, that there is ever an infirmity of the flesh which ■ never be ready ■ render full obedience to God, and also God's grace, who ever assisteth his, and overcometh their rebellious affections.

595. Bet. Chr. nor speak it to admonish the wicked of his wicked way, that he may live, the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity: but his blood will I require at thine hand.

19 Yet if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, nor from his wicked way, he shall die in his iniquity, but thou hast delivered thy soul.

20 Likewise if a righteous man turn from his righteousness, and commit iniquity, I will lay a stumbling block before him, and he shall die, because thou hast not given him warning: he shall die in his sin, and his righteous deeds, which he hath done, shall not be remembered: but his blood will I require at thine hand.

21 Nevertheless, if thou admonish that righteous man, that the righteous sin not, and that he doth not sin, he shall live because he is admonished: also thou hast delivered thy soul.

22 And the hand of the Lord was there upon me, and he said unto me, Arise, and go into the field, and I will there talk with thee.

23 So when I had risen up, and gone forth into the field, behold, the glory of the Lord stood there, as the glory which I saw by the river Chebar, and I fell down upon my face.

24 Then the Spirit entered into me, which set me up upon my feet, and spake unto me, and said to me, Come and shut thyself within thine house.

25 But thou, O son of man, behold, they shall put bands upon thee, and shall bind thee with them, and thou shalt not go out among them.

26 And I will make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, that thou shalt be dumb, and shalt not be to them as a man that rebuketh: for they are a rebellious house.

27 But when I shall have spoken unto thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, He that heareth, let him hear: and he that leaveth off, let him leave: for they are a rebellious house.

C H A P. IV.

i The besieging of the city of Jerusalem is signified.

9 The long continuance of the captivity of Israel.

16 An hunger is prophesied to come.

THOU also, son of man, take thee a brick, and lay it before thee, and pourtray upon it the city, even Jerusalem,

2 And lay siege against it, and build a fort against it, and cast a mount against it: set the camp also against it, and lay engines of war against it round about.

3 Moreover, take an iron pan, and set it for a wall of iron between thee and the city, and direct thy face toward it, and it shall be besieged, and thou shalt lay siege against it: this shall be a sign unto the house of Israel. 595. Bef. Chr.

4 Sleep thou also upon thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it: according to the number of the days that thou shalt sleep upon it, thou shalt bear their iniquity.

5 For I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, even three hundred and ninety days: so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

6 And when thou hast accomplished them, sleep again upon thy right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days: I have appointed thee a day for a year, even a day for a year.

7 Therefore thou shalt direct thy face toward the siege of Jerusalem, and thine arm shall be uncovered, and thou shalt prophesy against it.

8 And behold, I will lay bands upon thee, and thou shalt not turn thee from one side to another, till thou hast ended the days of thy siege.

9 Thou shalt take also unto thee wheat and barley, and beans, and lentils, and millet, and fitches, and put them in one vessel, and make thee bread thereof, according to the number of the days that thou shalt sleep upon thy side: even three hundred and ninety days shalt thou eat thereof.

10 And the meat, whereof thou shalt eat, shall be by weight, even twenty shekels a day: and from time to time shalt thou eat thereof.

11 Thou shalt drink also water by measure, even the sixth part of an hin: from time to time shalt thou drink.

12 And thou shalt eat it as barley cakes, and thou shalt bake it in the dung that cometh out of man, in their sight.

13 And the Lord said, So shall the children of Israel eat their defiled bread among the Gentiles, whither I will cast them.

14 Then said I, Ah, Lord God, behold, my soul hath not been polluted: for from my youth up, even unto this hour, I have not eaten of any thing dead, or torn in pieces, neither came there any unclean flesh in my mouth.

15 Then he said unto me, Lo, I have given thee bullocks dung for man's dung, and thou shalt prepare thy bread therewith.

16 Moreover, He said unto me, Son of man, behold, I will break the staff of bread in Jerusalem, and they shall eat bread by weight, and with care, and they shall drink water by measure, and with astonishment.

17 Because that bread and water shall fail, they

The sign of the hairs, whereby is signified the destruction of the people.

AND thou son of man, take thee a sharp knife, or take thee a barber's razor, and cause it to pass upon thine head, and upon thy beard: then take thee balances to weigh, and divide the hair.

2 Thou shalt burn with fire the third part in the midst of the city, when the days of the siege are fulfilled, and thou shalt take the other third part, and smite about it with a knife, and the last third part thou shalt scatter in the wind, and I will draw out a sword after them.

3 Thou shalt also take thereof a few in number, and bind them in thy lap.

4 Then take of them again and cast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire: for thereof shall a fire come forth into all the house of Israel.

5 Thus saith the Lord God, This is Jerusalem: I have set it in the midst of the nations and countries that are round about her.

6 And she hath changed my judgments into wickedness more than the nations, and my statutes more than the countries that are round about her, for they have refused my judgments and my statutes, and they have not walked in them.

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Because your multitude is greater than the nations that are round about you, and ye have not walked in my statutes, neither have ye kept my judgments: no, ye have not done according to the judgments of the nations that are round about you.

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I, even I come against thee, and will execute judgment in the midst of thee, even in the sight of the nations.

9 And I will do in thee that I never did before, neither will do any more the like, because of all thine abominations.

10 For in the midst of thee, the fathers shall eat their sons, and the sons shall eat their fathers, and I will execute judgment in thee, and the whole remnant of thee will I scatter into all the winds.

11 Wherefore, I live, saith the Lord God, Surely, because thou hast defiled my sanctuary with all thy filthiness, and with all thine abominations, therefore will I also destroy thee, neither shall mine eye spare thee, neither will I have any pity.

12 The third part of thee shall die with the pestilence, and with famine shall they be consumed in the midst of thee: and another third part shall fall by the sword round about thee: and I will scatter the last third part into all winds, and I will draw out a sword after them.

13 Thus shall mine anger be accomplished, and I will cause my wrath to cease in them, and I will be comforted: and they shall know, that I the Lord have spoken it in my zeal, when I have accomplished my wrath in them.

14 Moreover, I will make thee waste, and abhorred among the nations that are round about thee, and in the sight of all that pass by.

15 So thou shalt be a reproach and shame, a chastisement and an astonishment unto the nations that are round about thee, when I shall execute judgments in thee, in anger and in wrath, and in sharp rebukes: I the Lord have spoken it.

16 When I shall send upon them the evil arrows of famine, which shall be for their destruction, and which I will send to destroy you: and I will increase the famine upon you, and will break your staff of bread.

17 So will I send upon you famine, and evil beasts, and they shall spoil thee, and pestilence and blood shall pass through thee, and I will bring the sword upon thee: I the Lord have spoken it.

C H A P. VI.

He sheweth that Jerusalem shall be destroyed for their idolatry. 8 He prophesieth the repentance of the remnant of the people, and their deliverance.

AGAIN the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, set thy face towards the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them,

3 And say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God: thus saith the Lord God to the mountains and to the hills, to the rivers and to the vallies, Behold, I, even I will bring a sword upon you, and I will destroy your high places:

4 And your altars shall be desolate, and your images of the sun shall be broken: and I will cast down your slain men before your idols.

5 And I will lay the dead carcases of the children of Israel before their idols, and I will scatter your bones round about your altars.

6 In all your dwelling-places the cities shall be desolate, and the high places shall be laid waste, so that your altars shall be made waste and desolate, and your idols shall be broken, and cease, and your images of the sun shall be cut in pieces, and your works shall be abolished.

And by the scattering into the wind those that fled into Egypt, and into other parts, after the city was taken.

10 And they shall know that I am the Lord, and that I have not said in vain that I would do this evil unto them.

11 Thus saith the Lord God, ^a Smite with thine hand, and stretch forth with thy foot, and say, Alas, for all the wicked abominations of the house of Israel: for they shall fall by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence.

The end of all the land of Israel shall suddenly come.

Moreover, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Also thou son of man, thus saith the Lord God, An end is come unto the land of Israel: the end is come upon the four corners of the land.

3 Now is the end come upon thee, and I will send my wrath upon thee, and will judge thee according to thy ways, and will lay upon thee all thine abominations.

9 Neither shall mine eye spare thee, neither will I have pity, but I will lay upon thee according to thy ways, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee, and ye shall know that I am the Lord that smiteth.

10 Behold, the day, behold, it is come: the morning is gone forth, the rod nourisheth: pride hath budded.

11 Cruelty is risen up, into a rod of wickedness: none of them shall remain, nor of their riches, nor of any of theirs, neither shall there be lamentation for them.

12 The time is come, the day draweth near: let not the buyer rejoice, nor let him that selleth, mourn: for the wrath is upon all the multitude thereof.

13 For he that selleth, shall not return to that which is sold, although they were yet alive: for the vision was unto all the multitude thereof, and they returned not, neither doth any encourage himself in the punishment of his life.

14 They have blown the trumpet, and prepared all, but none goeth to the battle: for my wrath is upon all the multitude thereof.

15 The sword is without, and the pestilence, and the famine within: he that is in the field, shall die with the sword: and he that is in the city, famine and pestilence shall devour him.

16 But they that flee away from them, shall escape, and shall be in the mountains, like the doves of the vallies: all they shall mourn, every one for his iniquity.

25 When destruction cometh, they shall seek peace, and shall not have it.

26 Calamity shall come upon calamity, and rumour shall be upon rumour: then shall they seek a vision of the prophet: but the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancient.

1 The destruction of the city. 4 They that shall be saved, are marked. ■ A complaint of the prophet for the destruction of the people.

HE cried also with ■ loud voice in mine ears, saying, The visitations of ^f the city draw near, and every man hath a weapon in his hand to destroy it.

2 And behold, six ■ men came by the way of the high gate, which lieth toward the ^h North, and every man ■ weapon in his hand, to destroy it: and one man among them was clothed with linen, with a writer's ⁱ inkhorn by his side, and they went in and stood beside the brasen altar.

didst commit whoredom with them:

18 And tookest thy broidered garments, and

Bef. Chr. 22 And in all thine abominations and whoredoms thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked and bare, and wast polluted in thy blood.

23 And beside all thy wickedness (woe, woe unto thee, saith the Lord God)

24 Thou hast also built unto thee an high place, and hast made thee an high place in every street.

25 Thou hast built thine high place at every [†] corner of the way, and hast made thy beauty to be abhorred: thou hast opened thy feet to every one that passed by, and multiplied thy whoredom.

26 Thou hast also committed fornication with the ^k Egyptians thy neighbours, which have great members, and hast increased thy whoredom, to provoke me.

27 Behold, therefore I did stretch out mine hand over thee, and will diminish thine ordinary, and deliver thee unto the will of them that hate thee, even to the [‡] daughters of the Philistines, which are ashamed of thy wicked way.

28 Thou hast played the whore also with the Assyrians, because thou wast insatiable: yea, thou hast played the harlot with them, and yet couldest not be satisfied.

29 Thou hast moreover multiplied thy fornication from the land of Canaan unto Chaldea, and yet thou wast not satisfied herewith.

30 How weak is thine heart, saith the Lord God, seeing thou dost all these things, even the work of a [‡] presumptuous whorish woman?

31 In that thou buildest thine high place in the corner of every way, and makest thine high place in every street, and hast not been as an harlot ¹ that hath despised a reward,

33 They give gifts to all other whores, but thou givest gifts unto all thy lovers, and rewardest them that they may come unto thee on every side for thy fornication.

34 And the contrary is in thee from other women in thy fornications, neither the like fornication shall be after thee: for in that thou givest a reward, and no reward is given unto thee, therefore thou art contrary.

35 Wherefore, O harlot, hear the word of the Lord.

36 Thus saith the Lord God, Because thy [‡] shame was poured out, and thy filthiness discovered through thy fornications with thy lovers, and with all the idols of thine abominations, and by the blood of thy children, which thou didst offer unto them;

37 Behold, therefore I will gather all ^m thy lovers, with whom thou hast taken pleasure, and all them that thou hast loved, with all them that thou hast hated: I will even gather them round about against thee, and will discover thy filthiness unto them, that they may see all thy filthiness.

38 And I will judge thee after the manner of them that are ⁿ harlots, and of them that shed blood, and I will give thee the blood of wrath and jealousy.

39 I will also give thee into their hands, and they shall destroy thine high place, and shall break down thine high places: they shall strip thee also out of thy cloaths, and shall take thy fair jewels, and leave thee naked and bare.

40 They shall also bring up ⁿ company against thee, and they shall stone thee with stones; and thrust thee through with their swords.

41 And they ^{} shall burn up thine houses ^{ a Kings 25. 9.} with fire, and execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women: and I will cause thee to cease from playing the harlot, and thou shalt give no reward any more.

42 So will I make my wrath toward thee to rest, and my ^o jealousy shall depart from thee, and I will cease and be no more angry.

43 Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, but hast provoked me with all these things, behold, therefore I also have ^p brought thy way upon thine head, saith the Lord God: yet hast not thou had consideration of all thine abominations.

44 Behold, all that use proverbs, shall use this proverb against thee, saying, As is the mother, ⁿ so is her daughter.

45 Thou art thy mother's daughter, that hath cast off her husband and her children, and thou art the sister of thy ^r sisters, which forsook their husbands and their children: your mother is an Hittite, and your father an Amorite.

47 Yet hast thou ^r not walked after their ways, nor done after their abominations: but as it had been a very little thing, thou wast corrupted more than they in all thy ways.

48 As I live, saith the Lord God, Sodom thy sister hath not done, neither she nor her daughters, as thou hast done, and thy daughters.

49 Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom, ⁿ Pride, fulness of bread, and abundance of idleness was in her, and in her daughters: neither did she strengthen the hand of the poor and needy.

CHAP. XVIII.

2 He sheweth that every[^] shall bear his own sin.

21 To him that amendeth, is salvation promised.

24 Death is prophesied to the righteous, which turneth back from the right way.

THE word of the Lord came unto[^] again, saying,

2 What mean ye that ye speak this proverb, concerning the land of Israel, saying, ^bThe fathers have eaten four grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?

3 As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall use this proverb no more in Israel.

4 Behold, all souls are mine, both the soul of the father, and also the soul of the son, are mine: the soul that sinneth, it shall die.

5 But if a[^] be just, and do that which is lawful and right,

6 And hath not eaten^c upon the mountains, neither hath lift up his eyes[^] the idols of the house of Israel, neither^{*} hath defiled his neighbour's wife, neither hath[^] lien with[^] menstruous woman.

7 Neither hath oppressed any, but hath restored the pledge to his debtor: he that hath spoiled[^] by violence, [^] but hath given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment:

[^] And hath not given forth upon^{*} usury, neither hath taken any increase, but hath withdrawn his hand from iniquity, and hath executed true judgment between man and man;

9 And hath walked in my statutes, and hath kept my judgments to deal truly: he is just, he shall surely live, saith the Lord God.

10 ¶ If he beget[^] son that is[^] a thief, or a shedder of blood, if he do any one of these things:

11 Though he do not all these things, but either hath eaten upon the mountains, or defiled his neighbour's wife;

12 Or hath oppressed the poor and needy, or hath spoiled by violence, or hath not restored the pledge, or hath lift up his eyes unto the idols; or hath committed abomination,

13 Or hath given forth upon usury, or hath taken increase; shall he live? he shall not live: seeing he hath done these abominations, [^] he shall die the death, and his blood shall be upon him.

14 ¶ But if he beget[^] son that seeth all his father's sins which he hath done, and feareth; neither doth such like;

15 That hath not eaten upon the mountains, neither hath lift up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, nor hath defiled his neighbour's wife,

16 Neither hath oppressed any, nor hath withholden the pledge, neither hath spoiled by violence, but hath given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment,

17 Neither hath withdrawn his hand from the afflicted; nor received usury nor increase, but hath executed my judgments, and hath walked in my statutes, he shall not die in the iniquity of his father: but he shall surely live.

18 His father, because he cruelly oppressed and spoiled his brother by violence, and hath not done good among his people, lo, even he dieth in his iniquity.

19 Yet say ye, Wherefore shall not the son bear the iniquity of the father? Because the son hath executed judgment and justice, and hath kept all my statutes, and done them, he shall surely live.

20 ^{*}The same soul that sinneth, shall die: the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the iniquity of the son: but the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon[^] him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon himself.

21 But if the wicked will return from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my^e statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, and shall[^] die.

24 But if the righteous turn away from his righteousness, and commit iniquity, and do according to all the abominations that the wicked man doth, shall he live? All his ^h righteousness that he hath done, shall not be mentioned: but in his transgression that he hath committed, and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die.

25 Yet ye say, The way of the Lord is not equal: hear now, O house of Israel, Is not my way equal? ^{or} are not your ways unequal?

26 ^{For} when a righteous man turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, he shall even die for the same, he shall even die for his iniquity that he hath done.

27 Again, when the wicked turneth away from his wickedness that he hath committed, and doth that which is lawful and right, he shall save his soul alive.

28 Because he considereth, and turneth away from all his transgressions that he hath committed, he shall surely live, and shall not die.

29 Yet saith the house of Israel, The way of the Lord is not equal. O house of Israel, are not my ways equal? ^{or} are not your ways unequal?

30 Therefore I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one according to his ways, saith the Lord God: return ^{therefore} and cause others to turn away from all your transgressions: so iniquity shall not be your destruction.

31 Cast away from you all your transgressions whereby ye have transgressed, and make ^h you a new heart, and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel?

7 Then said I unto them, Let every man cast away the abominations of his eyes, and defile not yourselves with the idols of Egypt: for I am the Lord your God.

8 But they rebelled against me, and would not hear me: for none cast away the abominations of their eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt: then I thought to pour out mine indignation upon them, and to accomplish my wrath against them in the midst of the land of Egypt.

9 But I had respect to my name, that it should not be polluted before the heathen among whom they were, and in whose sight I made myself known unto them, in bringing them forth of the land of Egypt.

10 Now I carried them out of the land of Egypt, and brought them into the wilderness.

11 And I gave them my statutes, and declared my judgments unto them, which if a man do, he shall live in them.

12 Moreover, I gave them also my sabbaths to be a sign between me and them, that they might know that I am the Lord, that sanctify them.

13 But the house of Israel rebelled against me in the wilderness: they walked not in my statutes, and they cast away my judgments, which if a man do, he shall live in them, and my sabbaths have they greatly polluted: then I thought to pour out mine indignation upon them in the wilderness to consume them.

14 But I had respect to my name, that it should not be polluted before the heathen, in whose sight I brought them out.

15 Yet nevertheless, I lift up mine hand unto them in the wilderness, that I would not bring them into the land which I had given them, flowing with milk and honey, which was pleasant above all lands.

16 Because they cast away my judgments, and walked not in my statutes, but have polluted my sabbaths: for their heart went after their idols: 593.

17 Nevertheless mine eye spared them, that I would not destroy them, neither would I consume them in the wilderness.

18 But I said unto their children in the wilderness, walk ye not in the ordinances of your fathers, neither observe their manners, nor defile yourselves with their idols.

19 I am the Lord your God: walk in my statutes, and keep my judgments and do them, 20 And sanctify my sabbaths; and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the Lord your God.

21 Notwithstanding the children rebelled against me: they walked not in my statutes, nor kept my judgments to do them, which if a man do, he shall live in them, but they polluted my sabbaths: then I thought to pour out mine indignation upon them, and to accomplish my wrath against them in the wilderness.

22 Nevertheless I withdrew mine hand, and had respect to my name, that it should not be polluted before the heathen, in whose sight I brought them forth.

23 Yet I lift up mine hand unto them in the wilderness, that I would scatter them among the heathen, and disperse them through the countries, 24 Because they had not executed my judgments, but had cast away my statutes, and had polluted my sabbaths, and their eyes were after their fathers idols.

25 Wherefore I gave them also statutes that were not good, and judgments wherein they should not live.

26 And I polluted them in their own gifts, in that they caused to pass by the fire all that first openeth the womb, that I might destroy them, to the end that they might know that I am the Lord.

27 Therefore, son of man, speak unto the house of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, Yet in this your fathers have blasphemed me, though they had before grievously transgressed against me.

28 For when I had brought them into the land, for the which I lifted up mine hand to give it to them; then they saw every high hill, and all the thick trees, and they offered there their sacrifices, and there they presented their offering of provocation: there also they made their sweet savour, and poured out there their drink-offerings.

29 Then I said unto them, What is the high place

This declareth the great lenity and patience of God, which calleth sinners to repentance before he condemneth them.

I swear that I would be their God, which of oath was observed from all antiquity, where they used to lift up their hands toward the heaven, acknowledging God to be the author of truth, and the defender thereof; and also the judge of the heart, wishing that he should take vengeance, if they concealed any thing which they knew to be truth.

God had forbidden them to make mention of the idols, Exod. 23. 13. Psalm 16. 4.

Which thing declareth the wickedness of man's heart, which judge God's service by their eyes and outward senses.

God had this respect to his glory, that he would not have his name evil spoken of among the Gentiles for the punishment that his people deserved, in confidence whereof the godly ever prayed, as Exod. 32. 12. Numb. 14. 13.

Who might thereby take an occasion to blaspheme my name, and to accuse me of lack of ability, or else that I had sought to destroy them more commodiously.

That is, my true religion, which I had commanded them, and gave themselves to serve according to their own fancies.

Whereby the Holy Ghost confuteth them that say, that they will follow the religion and example of their fathers, and not measure their doings by God's word, whether they be approvable thereby or no.

Meaning, that they set their delight upon them.

Because they would not obey my laws, I gave them up to themselves, that they should obey their own fancies, as verse 30. Rom. 1. 21, 24.

I condemned those things, and counted them abominable which they thought had been excellent, and have declared most zeal, Luke 15. 16. for that which God required as most excellent, that gave they their idols.

Not only in the wilderness when I brought thee out of Egypt, but since I placed them in this land: which declareth how prompt man's heart is to idolatry, seeing that by no admonition he can be drawn back.

¶ Again, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

9 Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord God, say, A sword, a sword, both sharp and furbished.

10 It is sharpened to make a sore slaughter, and it is furbished that it may glitter: how shall we rejoice? for it contemneth the rod of my son, all other trees.

11 And he hath given it to be furbished, that he may handle it: this sword is sharp; and is furbished, that he may give it into the hand of the slayer.

12 Cry, and howl, son of man: for this shall come to my people, and it shall come unto all the princes of Israel: the terrors of the sword shall be upon my people: smite therefore upon thy thigh.

13 For it is a trial, and what shall this be, if the sword contemn even the rod? It shall be more, saith the Lord God.

14 Thou therefore, son of man, prophesy, and smite hand to hand, and let the sword be doubled: let the sword that hath killed, return the third time: it is the sword of the great slaughter entering into their privy chambers.

15 I have brought the fear of the sword into all their gates, make their heart faint, and to multiply their ruins. Ah, it is made bright, and it is dressed for the slaughter.

16 Get thee alone: go to the right hand, or get thyself to the left hand, whithersoever thy face turneth.

17 I will also smite mine hands together; and will cause my wrath to cease. I the Lord have said it.

18 ¶ The word of the Lord came unto me again, saying,

19 Also, thou son of man, appoint thee two ways, that the sword of the king of Babel may come: both twain shall come out of one land, and chuse place, and chuse it in the corner of the way of the city.

20 Appoint a way, that the sword may come to Rabbath of the Ammonites, and to Judah in Jerusalem the strong city.

At his right hand was the divination for Bef. Chr. Jerusalem to appoint captains, open their 593: mouth in the slaughter, and to lift up their voice with shouting; to lay engines of war against the gates, cast a mount; and to build a fortress.

23 And it shall be unto them as a false divination in their fight; for the oaths made unto them: but he will call to remembrance their iniquity, to the intent they should be taken.

24 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Because ye have made your iniquity to be remembered; in discovering their rebellion; that in all your works your sins might appear: because, I say, that ye come to remembrance, ye shall be taken with the hand.

25 And thou prince of Israel polluted, and wicked; whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end;

26 Thus saith the Lord God; I will take away the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall be no more the same: I will exalt the humble; and will abase him that is high.

27 I will overturn, overturn, overturn it, and it shall be no more until he come, whose right it is, and I will give it him.

28 ¶ And thou son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus saith the Lord God to the children of Ammon, and to their blasphemy: say thou, I say, The sword, the sword is drawn forth and furbished in the slaughter, to consume, because of the glittering:

29 While they see vanity unto thee, and prophesied a lye unto thee to bring thee upon the necks of the wicked that are slain, whose day is when their iniquity shall have an end.

30 Shall I cause it to return into his sheath? I will judge thee in the place where thou wast created, even in the land of thine habitation.

2 Son of man, there were two woman, the daughters of one ^k mother.

3 And they committed fornication ^l in Egypt, they committed fornication in their youth: there were their breasts pressed, and there they bruised the teats of their virginity.

4 And the names of ^m them were Aholah the elder, and Aholibah her sister: and they were mine, and they bare sons and daughters: thus were their names, Samaria is Aholah, and Jerusalem Aholibah.

7 Thus she committed her whoredom with them, even with all them that ^o the chosen men of Asshur, and with all on whom she doted, and defiled herself with all their idols.

8 Neither left she her fornications, learned of the Egyptians: for in her youth they ^p lay with her, and they bruised the breasts of her virginity, and poured their whoredom upon her.

9 Wherefore I delivered her into the hands of her lovers, even into the hands of the Assyrians, upon whom she doted.

10 These discovered her shame: they took away her sons and her daughters, and slew her with the sword, and she had an evil name among women: for ^q they had executed judgment upon her.

11 And when her sister Aholibah saw this, she marred herself with inordinate love more than she, and with her fornications more than her sister with her fornications.

12 She doted upon the Assyrians her neighbours, both captains and princes clothed with divers suits, horsemen riding upon horses: they were all pleasant young men.

13 Then I saw that she was defiled, and that they were both after one sort,

14 And that she increased her fornications: for when she saw men ^r painted upon the wall, the images of the Chaldeans painted with vermilion,

15 And girded with girdles upon their loins, and with dyed attire upon their heads (looking all like princes after the manner of the Babylonians in Chaldea, the land of their nativity)

17 Now when the Babylonians came to her into the bed of love, they defiled her with their fornication, and she was polluted with them, and her lust departed from them. Bef. Chr. 593.

18 So she discovered her fornication, and disclosed her shame: then mine heart forsook her, like ^s mine heart had forsaken her sister.

19 Yet she increased her whoredom more, and called to remembrance the days of her youth, wherein she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt.

26 They shall also strip thee out of thy clothes, and take away thy fair jewels.

27 Thus will I make thy wickedness to cease from thee, and thy fornication out of the land of Egypt: so that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, nor remember Egypt any more.

28 For thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will deliver thee into the hand of them whom thou hatest: ^w into the hands of them from whom thine heart is departed.

29 And they shall handle thee despitefully, and shall take away all thy ^x labour, and shall leave thee naked and bare, and the shame of thy fornications ^y shall be discovered, both thy wickedness, and thy whoredom.

34 Thou shalt even drink it, and wring it out to the dregs, and thou shalt break the sherds thereof, and tear thine own breasts: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord God.

35 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Because thou hast forgotten me, and cast me behind thy back, therefore thou shalt also bear thy wickedness and thy whoredom.

36 ¶ The Lord said moreover unto me, Son of man, Wilt thou judge Aholah and Aholibah? and wilt thou declare them their abominations?

37 For they have played the whores, and blood is in their hands, and with their idols have they committed adultery, and have also caused their sons, whom they bare unto me, to pass by the fire to be their meat.

38 Moreover, thus have they done unto me: they have defiled my sanctuary in the same day, and have profaned my sabbaths.

39 For when they had slain their children to their idols, they came the same day into my sanctuary to defile it: and lo, thus have they done in the midst of mine house.

40 And how much more is it that they sent for men to come from far, unto whom messenger was sent, and lo, they came? for whom thou didst wash thyself, and paintedst thine eyes, and deckedst thee with ornaments,

41 And satest upon costly bed, and table prepared before it, whereupon thou hast set mine incense and mine oil.

42 And voice of multitude being at ease, was with her: and with the men to make the company great were brought men of Saba from the wilderness, which put bracelets upon their hands, and beautiful crowns upon their heads.

43 Then I said unto her, that was old in adulteries, Now shall she and her fornications come to an end.

44 And they went in unto her as they go to a common harlot: so went they Aholah and Aholibah the wicked women.

45 And the righteous men they shall judge them, after the manner of harlots, and after the manner of murderers: for they are harlots, and blood is in their hands.

46 Wherefore thus saith the Lord God, I will bring multitude upon them, and will give them unto the tumult, and the spoil, 47 And the multitude shall stone them with stones, and cut them with their swords: they shall slay their sons and their daughters, and burn up their houses with fire.

48 Thus will I cause wickedness to cease out of the land, that all women may be taught not to do after your wickedness.

49 And they shall lay your wickedness upon you, and ye shall bear the sins of your idols, and ye shall know that I am the Lord God.

C H A P. XXIV.

1 He sheweth the destruction of Jerusalem by a parable of a seething-pot. 16 The parable of Ezekiel's wife being dead.

AGAIN in the ninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, came the word of the Lord unto me, saying,

1 Son of man, write thee the name of the day, even of this same day: for the king of Babel set himself against Jerusalem this same day.

2 Therefore speak a parable unto the rebellious house, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, Prepare a pot, prepare it, and also pour water into it.

3 Gather the pieces thereof into it, even every good piece, as the thigh and the shoulder, and fill it with the chief bones.

4 Take one of the best sheep, and turn also the bones under it, and make it boil well, and seethe the bones of it therein, † Or, heap.

5 Because the Lord God saith thus, Wo to the bloody city, even to the pot whose scum is therein, and whose scum is not gone out of it: bring it out piece by piece: let no lot fall upon it.

6 For her blood is in the midst of her: she set it upon an high rock, and poured it not upon the ground to cover it with dust,

7 That it might cause wrath to arise and take vengeance: even I have set her blood upon high rock, that it should not be covered.

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Wo to the bloody city, for I will make the burning great. † Nahum 3. 1. Hab. 2. 12. † Or, an heap of wood.

9 Heap on much wood: kindle the fire, consume the flesh, and cast in spice, and let the bones be burnt.

10 Then set it empty upon the coals thereof, that the bras of it may be hot, and may burn, and that the filthiness of it may be molten in it, and that the scum of it may be consumed. † Or, bottom.

11 She hath wearied herself with lyes, and her great scum is not out of her: therefore her scum shall be consumed with fire.

12 Thou remainest in thy filthiness and wickedness: because I would have purged thee, and thou wast not purged, thou shalt not be purged from 14 I the Lord have spoken it: it shall come to pass, and I will do it: I will not go back, neither will I spare, neither will I repent: according to thy ways, and according to thy works shall they judge thee, saith the Lord God.

15 ¶ Also the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

16 Son of man, behold, I take away from thee the pleasure of thine eyes with a plague: yet shalt thou neither mourn nor weep, neither shall thy tears run down.

17 Cease from sighing: make no mourning for the dead, and bind the tire of thine head upon thee, and put on thy shoes upon thy feet, and cover not thy lips, and eat not the bread of men.

18 So I spake unto the people in the morning, and at even my wife died: and I did in the morning I was commanded.

19 And the people said unto me, Wilt thou not tell us what these things mean toward us, that thou dost so?

20 Then I answered them, The word of the Lord came unto me, saying, 21 Speak unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will pollute my sanctuary, even the pride of your power, the pleasure of your eyes, and your hearts desire, and your sons and your daughters whom ye have left shall fall by the sword.

22 And ye shall do as I have done: ye shall not cover your lips, neither shall ye eat the bread of men.

23 And your tire shall be upon your heads, and your shoes upon your feet: ye shall not mourn nor weep, but ye shall pine away for your iniquities, and mourn one toward another.

24 Thus Ezekiel is unto you a sign: according to all that he hath done, ye shall do: and when this cometh, ye shall know that I the Lord God.

25 Also, thou son of man, shall it not be in the day when I take from them their power, the joy of their honour, the pleasure of their eyes, and the desire of their heart, their sons and their daughters;

26 That he that escapeth in that day, shall come unto thee to tell thee that which he hath heard with his ears?

27 In that day shall thy mouth be opened to him which is escaped, and thou shalt speak, and be no more dumb, and thou shalt be a sign unto them; and they shall know that I am the Lord.

1 The word of the Lord against Ammon, which rejoiced at the fall of Jerusalem. 8 Against Moab and Seir, Idumea, and the Philistines.

THE word of the Lord came again unto me, saying,

^r That is, the Babylonians.

^s Meaning, his wife, in whom he delighted, as ver. 18.

^t For in mourning they went bare headed and bare footed, and also covered their lips.

^u That is, which the neighbours sent them that mourned.

^v Meaning, the morning following.

^w By sending the Chaldeans to destroy it, as chap. 7. 12.

^x Wherein you boast and delight.

^y Because ye rejoiced when the enemy destroyed my city and temple.

2 Son of man, set thy face against the Ammonites, and prophesy against them, Bef. Chr: 590:

3 And say unto the Ammonites, Hear the word of the Lord God, Thus saith the Lord God, Because thou saidst, Ha, ha, against my sanctuary, when it was polluted, and against the land of Israel when it was desolate, and against the house of Judah when they went into captivity,

4 Behold; therefore I will deliver thee to the men of the East for possession, and they shall set their palaces in thee, and make their dwellings in thee: they shall eat thy fruit, and they shall drink thy milk.

5 And I will make Rabbah dwelling-place for camels, and the Ammonites sheepcote, and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

6 For thus saith the Lord God, Because thou hast clapped thy hands, and stamped with the feet, and rejoicest in heart with all thy despite against the land of Israel:

7 Behold, therefore, I will stretch out mine hand upon thee, and will deliver thee to be spoiled of the heathen, and I will root thee out from the people, and I will cause thee to be destroyed out of the countries, and I will destroy thee, and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

¶ Thus saith the Lord God, because that Moab and Seir do say, Behold, the house of Judah is like unto all the heathen, 9 Therefore behold, I will open the side of Moab, even of the cities of his cities, I say, in his frontiers with the pleasant country, Bethjeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim.

10 I will call the men of the East against the Ammonites, and will give them in possession, so that the Ammonites shall no more be remembered among the nations.

11 And I will exercise judgment upon Moab, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

12 ¶ Thus saith the Lord God, Because that Edom hath done evil by taking vengeance upon the house of Judah, and hath committed great offence, and revenged himself upon them, 13 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, I will also stretch out mine hand upon Edom, and destroy man and beast out of it, and I will make it desolate from Teman, and they of Dedan shall fall by the sword.

14 And I will execute my vengeance upon Edom by the hand of my people Israel, and they shall do in Edom according to mine anger, and according to mine indignation, and they shall know my vengeance, saith the Lord God.

15 Thus saith the Lord God, Because the Philistines have executed vengeance, and revenged themselves with a spiteful heart, to destroy it for the old hatred, 16 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will stretch out mine hand upon the Philistines, and I will cut off the Cherethims, and destroy the remnant of the sea-coast.

17 And

^a That is, to the Babylonians.

^b They shall chase thee away, and take thy gorgeous houses to dwell in.

^c Called also Philadelphia, which was the chief city of the Ammonites, and full of conduits, 2 Sam. 12. 27.

^d So that no power or strength should be able to resist the Babylonians.

^e Which were certain garrisons of Philistines, whereby they oft-times molested the Jews: of the Cherethims, David also had a guard, 2 Sam. 8. 18.

17 And I will execute great vengeance upon them with rebukes of my indignation, and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall lay my vengeance upon them.

C H A P. XXVI.

¶ He prophesies that Tyrus shall be overthrown, because it rejoiced at the destruction of Jerusalem.
15 The wondering and astonishment of the merchants for the destruction of Tyrus.

AND in the ^f eleventh year, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, because that Tyrus hath said against Jerusalem, Aha, the ^g gate of the people is broken: it is turned unto me: for seeing she is desolate, I shall be ^h replenished:

3 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I come against thee, O Tyrus, and I will bring up many nations against thee, ⁱ the sea mounteth up with his waves.

4 And they shall destroy the walls of Tyrus, and break down her towers: I will also scrape her dust from her, and make her like the top of a rock.

5 Thou shalt be for the spreading of nets in the midst of the sea: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord God, and it shall be ^j spoil to the nations.

6 And her ^k daughters which are in the fields, shall be slain by the sword, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

7 For thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will bring upon Tyrus Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel, a king of kings from the North, with horses, and with chariots, and with horsemen, with a multitude, and much people.

8 He shall slay with the sword thy daughters in the field, and he shall make ^l fort against thee, and lift up the buckler against thee.

9 He shall set engines of war before him against thy walls, and with his weapons break down thy towers.

10 The dust of his horses shall cover thee, for their multitude: thy walls shall shake at the noise of the horsemen, and of the wheels, and of the chariots, when he shall enter into thy gates, as into the entry of a city that is broken down.

11 With the hoofs of his horses shall he tread down all thy streets: he shall slay thy people by the sword, and the ^m pillars of thy strength shall fall down to the ground.

12 And they shall rob thy riches, and spoil thy merchandize, and they shall break down thy walls, and destroy thy pleasant houses, and they shall cast thy stones, and thy timber, and thy dust into the midst of the water.

13 ⁿ Thus will I cause the sound of thy songs to cease, and the sound of thine harps shall be no more heard.

^f Either of the captivity of Jeconiah, or of the reign of Zedekiah.

^g That is, the famous city of Jerusalem, whereunto all people resorted.

^h My riches and fame shall increase: thus the wicked rejoice at their fall, by whom they may have any profit ⁱ advantage.

ⁱ The towns that belonged unto her.

^j For Tyrus was much built by art, and by labour of men was won out of the sea. Some refer this ^k the images of the noble men, which they had erected up for their glory and renown.

^k I will make thee so bare, that thou shalt have nothing

14 I will lay thee like the top of ^o rock: ^l thou shalt be for ^p spreading of nets: thou shalt be built no more: for I the Lord have spoken it, saith the Lord God.

15 Thus saith the Lord God to Tyrus, Shall not the isles tremble at the sound of thy fall: and at the cry of thy wounded, when they shall be slain and murdered in the midst of thee?

16 Then all the princes of the ^q sea shall come down from their thrones: they shall lay away their robes, and put off their brodered garments, and shall cloath themselves with astonishment: they shall sit upon the ground, and be astonished at ^r every moment, and be amazed at thee.

17 And they shall take up ^s lamentation for thee, and say to thee, How art thou destroyed; that wast inhabited ^t of the sea men, the renowned city, which was strong in the sea, ^u both she and her inhabitants, which cause their fear to be on all that haunt therein!

18 Now shall the isles be astonished in the day of thy fall: yea, the isles that are in the sea shall be troubled at thy departure.

19 For thus saith the Lord God, When I shall make thee ^v desolate city, like the cities that are not inhabited, and when I shall bring the deep upon thee, and great waters shall cover thee,

20 When I shall cast thee down with them that descend into the pit, with the people ^w of old time, and shall set thee in the low parts of the earth, like the old ruins, with them, ^x I say, which go down to the pit, so that thou shalt not be inhabited, and I shall shew my glory in the land of the ^y living:

21 I will ^z bring thee to nothing, and thou shalt be no ^{aa} more: though thou be sought for, yet shalt thou never be found again, saith the Lord God.

C H A P. XXVII.

The prophet bewaileth the desolation of Tyrus, shewing what were the riches, power and authority thereof in time past.

THE word of the Lord came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, take up ^{ab} lamentation for Tyrus,

3 And say unto Tyrus that is situate at the entry of the sea, which is the mart ^{ac} of the people for many isles, Thus saith the Lord God, O Tyrus, thou hast said, I am of perfect beauty.

^{ae} Which ^{af} dead long ago.

^{ag} Meaning, in Judea, when it shall be restored.

^{ah} Which serveth all the world with thy merchandize.

^{ai} This mountain was called Hermon: but the Amorites called it Shenir, Deut. 3. 9.

6 Of the oaks of Bashan have they made thine oars: the company of the Assyrians have made thy banks of ivory, brought out of the isles of Chittim.

7 Fine linen with broidered work, brought from Egypt, was spread over thee to be thy sail, blue silk and purple, brought from the isles of Eliphah, was thy covering.

8 The inhabitants of Zidon and Arvad were thy mariners, O Tyrus: thy wise men that were in thee, they were thy pilots.

9 The ancients of Gebal, and the wise men thereof were in thee thy caulkers, all the ships of the sea with their mariners were in thee to occupy thy merchandize.

10 They of Persia, and of Lud, and of Phut were in thine army: thy men of war they hanged the shield and helmet in thee: they set forth thy beauty.

11 The men of Arvad with thine army were upon thy walls round about, and the Gammadims were in thy towers: they hanged their shields upon thy walls round about: they have made thy beauty perfect.

12 They of Tarshish were thy merchants for the multitude of all riches, for silver, iron, tin, and lead, which they brought to thy fairs.

13 They of Javan, Tubal, and Meshech were thy merchants, concerning the lives of men, and they brought vessels of brass for thy merchandize.

14 They of the house of Togarmah brought to thy fairs, horses, and horsemen, and mules.

15 The men of Dedan were thy merchants: and the merchandize of many isles were in thine hands: they brought thee for a present horns, teeth, and peacocks.

16 And they of Aram were thy merchants for the multitude of thy wares: they occupied in thy fairs with emeralds, purple and broidered work, and fine linen, and coral, and pearl.

17 They of Judah and of the land of Israel were thy merchants: they brought for thy merchandize wheat of Minnith, and Pannag, and honey, and oil, and balm.

18 They of Damascus were thy merchants in the multitude of thy wares, for the multitude of all riches, as in the wine of Helbon and white wool.

19 They of Dan also and of Javan, going to and fro, occupied in thy fairs: iron work, cassia and calamus were among thy merchandize.

20 They of Dedan were thy merchants in precious cloths for the chariots, 21 They of Arabia, and all the princes of Kedar, occupied with thee, in lambs, and rams, and goats: in these were they thy merchants.

22 The merchants of Sheba and Raamah were thy merchants: they occupied in thy fairs with the chief of all spices, and with all precious stones and gold.

23 They of Haram and Canneh and Eden, the merchants of Sheba, Ashur, and Chilmad thy merchants.

24 These were thy merchants in all sorts of things, in raiment of blue silk, and of broidered work, and in coffers for the rich apparel, which were bound with cords: chains also were among thy merchandize.

25 The ships of Tarshish were thy chief in thy merchandize, and thou wast replenished and made very glorious in the midst of the sea.

26 Thy robbers have brought thee into great waters: the East wind hath broken thee in the midst of the sea.

27 Thy riches and thy fairs, thy merchandize, thy mariners and pilots, thy caulkers and the occupiers of thy merchandize, and all the men of war that are in thee, and all thy multitude which is in the midst of thee, shall fall in the midst of the sea in the day of thy ruin.

28 The suburbs shall shake at the sound of the cry of thy pilots.

29 And all that handle the oar, the mariners, and all the pilots of the sea, shall come down from their ships, and shall stand upon the land,

30 And shall cause their voice to be heard against thee, and shall cry bitterly, and shall cast dust upon their heads, and wallow themselves in the ashes.

31 They shall pluck off their hair for thee, and gird them with sackcloth, and they shall weep for thee with sorrow of heart, and bitter mourning.

32 And in their mourning they shall take up lamentation for thee, saying, What city is like Tyrus, so destroyed in the midst of the sea!

33 When thy wares went forth of the seas, thou filledst many people, and thou didst enrich the kings of the earth with the multitude of thy riches, and of thy merchandize.

34 When thou shalt be broken by the seas, in the depths of the waters, thy merchandize and all thy multitude, which was in the midst of thee, shall fall.

35 All the inhabitants of the isles shall be astonished at thee, and all their kings shall be fore afraid, and troubled in their countenance.

36 The merchants among the people shall hiss at thee: thou shalt be terror, and never shalt be any more.

9 And the land of Egypt shall be desolate and waste, and they shall know that I am the Lord: because he hath said, ^a The river is mine, and I have made it.

10 Behold, therefore, I ^{come} unto thee, and upon thy rivers, and I will make the land of Egypt utterly waste and desolate, from the tower of Sevech, even unto the borders of the [†] black-moors.

11 No foot of man shall pass by it, nor foot of beast shall pass by it, neither shall it be inhabited forty years.

12 And I will make the land of Egypt desolate in the midst of the countries that ^{are} desolate, and her cities shall be desolate among the cities that ^{are} desolate, for forty years: and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

13 Yet thus saith the Lord God, ^a At the end of forty years will I gather the Egyptians from the people where they were scattered.

14 And I will bring again the captivity of Egypt, and will cause them to return into the land of Pathros, into the land of their habitation, and they shall be there ^a small kingdom.

15 It shall be the smallest of the kingdoms, neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations: for I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule the nations.

16 And it shall be no ^{more} the confidence of the house of Israel, to bring ^{their} iniquity to remembrance by looking after them; so shall they know that I ^{am} the Lord God.

17 ¶ In the ^a seven and twentieth year also, in the first ^{month}, and in the first ^{day} of the month, ^{shall} the word of the Lord ^{come} unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel caused his army ^{to} serve a great ^{service} against Tyrus: every head was made bald, and every shoulder was made bare: yet had he no wages, nor his ^a army for Tyrus, for the service that he served against it.

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will give the land of Egypt unto Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babel: and he shall take her multitude, and spoil her spoil, and take her prey, and it shall be the wages of his army.

20 I have given him the land of Egypt for his labour, that he served [†] against it, because they wrought [†] for me, saith the Lord God.

21 In that day will I cause the horn of the house of Israel ^{to} grow, and I will give thee an open mouth in the midst of them, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

C H A P. XXX.

The destruction of Egypt, and the cities thereof.

THE word of the Lord came again unto me, saying;

2 Son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus saith the Lord God, Howl and cry, Wo be unto this day.

3 For the day is near, and the day of the Lord is at hand, ^a cloudy day, and it shall be the time of the heathen.

4 And the sword shall come upon Egypt, and fear shall be in Ethiopia, when the slain shall fall in Egypt, when they shall take away her multitude, and ^{when} her foundations shall be broken down.

5 ^a Ethiopia, and Phut, and Lud, and all the common people, and Cub, and the men of the land that is in league, shall fall with them by the sword.

6 Thus saith the Lord, They also that maintain Egypt, shall fall, and the pride of her power shall come down: from the tower of ^a Sevech shall they fall by the sword, saith the Lord God.

7 And they shall be desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate, and her cities shall be in the midst of the cities that are wasted.

8 And they shall know that ^I am the Lord, when I have set a fire in Egypt, and ^{when} all her helpers shall be destroyed.

¶ And that day shall there messengers go forth from me in ships, to make the careless Moors afraid, and fear shall come upon them, as in the day of Egypt: for lo, it cometh.

10 Thus saith the Lord God, I will also make the multitude of Egypt to cease by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel.

11 For he, and his people with him, ^{even} the terrible nations, shall be brought ^{to} destroy the land: and they shall draw their swords against Egypt, and fill the land with the slain.

12 And I will make the rivers dry, and sell the land into the hands of the wicked, and I

8 T. will

^a I will send enemies against thee, which shall pluck thee and thy people, which trust in thee; ^{and} of thy sure places.

^b Read ^a Kings 8. 21: Isa. 36. 6:

^c When they felt their hurt, they would stay no more upon thee, but stood upon their feet, and put their trust in others.

^d Thus God cannot suffer that man should arrogate any thing to himself, ^{and} put his trust in any thing save in him alone.

^e Meaning, that they should not have full dominion, but be under the Persians, Grecians and Romans, and the cause is, that the Israelites should no more put their trust in them; but learn ^{to} depend ^{on} God.

^f Lest I should by ^{them} means punish their sins.

^g Counting from the captivity of Jeconiah:

^h ^{He} took great pains at ^{the} siege of Tyrus; and his army was sorely handled.

ⁱ Signifying, that Nebuchadnezzar ^{had} more pains than profit by the taking of Tyrus.

^k By Phut and Lud ate ^{the} Africa and Lybia.

^l Which ^{is} a strong city of Egypt, chap. 29. 10

Def. Chr. will make the land waste, and all that therein 572 is, by the hands of strangers: I the Lord have spoken it.

13 Thus saith the Lord God, I will also destroy the idols, and I will cause their idols ■ cease out of † Noph, and there shall be no more a prince of the land of Egypt, and I will send a fear **■
the land of Egypt:

14 And I will make Pathros desolate, and will set fire in † Zoan, and I will execute judgment in No.

15 And I will pour my wrath upon † Sin, which is the strength of Egypt: and I will destroy the multitude of † No.

16 And I will set fire in Egypt: Sin shall have great sorrow, and No shall be destroyed, and Noph shall have sorrows daily.

17 The young men of † Aven, and of † Phi-beseh shall fall by the sword: and these cities shall go into captivity.

18 At Tehaphnehes the day ² shall restrain his light, when I shall break there the ^h bars ■ Egypt: and when the pomp of her power shall cease in her, the cloud shall cover her, and her daughters shall go into captivity,

19 Thus will I execute judgments in Egypt, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

20 ¶ And in the ¹ eleventh year, in the first month, and in the seventh day of the month, the word of the Lord ■ me, saying,

21 Son of man, ^h I have broken the arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt: and lo, it shall not be bound up to be healed, neither shall they put a roll to bind it, and so make it strong, to hold the sword.

22 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I come against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and will break his ¹ arm, that was strong, but it is broken, and I will cause the sword to fall out of his hand.

23 And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

24 And I will strengthen the arm of the king of Babel, and put my sword in his hand, but I will break Pharaoh's arms, and he shall cast out sighings, ■ the sighings of him that is wounded before him.

25 But I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babel, and the arms of Pharaoh shall fall down, and they shall know that I ■ the Lord ² when I shall put my sword into the hand of the king of Babel, and he shall stretch it out upon the land of Egypt.

26 And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them among the countries, and they shall know that I ■ the Lord.

C H A P. XXXI.

A comparison of the prosperity of Pharaoh, with the prosperity of the Assyrians. 10 He prophesied ■ like destruction ■ them both.

² Meaning, that there shall ■ great sorrow and afflic-tion.

■ That is, the strength and force.

¹ Of the captivity of Jeconiah, or of Zedekiah's reign.

chemish, Jer. 46. 26.

² Whereby we see that tyrants have no power of themselves, neither ■ do any ■ harm than God appoint-eth, and when he will they must cease.

AND in the ^h eleventh year, in the third ¹ month, and in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, and to his multitude, Whom art thou ^o like in thy greatness?

3 Behold, Ashur was like ■ cedar in Lebanon with fair branches, and with thick shadowing boughs, and shot up very high, and his top was among the thick boughs:

4 The waters nourished him, and the deep exalted him ■ high with her rivers running round about his plants, and sent out her ^p little rivers unto all the trees of the † field.

5 Therefore his height was exalted above all the trees of the field, and his boughs were multiplied, and his branches were long, because of the multitude of the waters which the deep sent out.

6 All the fowls of the heaven made their nests in his boughs, and under his branches did all the beasts of the field bring forth their young, and under his shadow dwelt all mighty nations.

7 Thus was he fair in his greatness, and in the length of his branches: for his root was near great waters.

8 The cedars in the garden ^h of God could not hide him: no fir-tree was like his branches, and the chesnut-tree ■ not like his boughs: all the trees in the garden of God were not like unto him in his beauty.

9 I made him fair by the multitude of his branches: so that all the trees of Eden, that were in the garden of God, envied him.

10 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Because † he is lifted up on high, and hath shot up his top among the thick boughs, and his heart is lift up in his height:

11 I have therefore delivered him into the hands of the ^o mightiest among the heathen: he shall handle him, for I have cast him away for his wickedness.

12 And the strangers have destroyed him, even the terrible nations, and they have left him upon the mountain, and in all the vallies his branches are fallen, and his boughs are ^o broken by all the rivers of the land: and all the people of the earth are departed from his shadow, and have forsaken him.

13 Upon his ruin shall all the fowls of the heaven remain, and all the beasts of the field shall be upon his branches,

14 So that none of all the trees by the waters shall be exalted by their height, neither shall shoot up their top among the thick boughs, neither shall their leaves stand up in their height which drink so much water: for they are all delivered unto death in the nether parts of the earth, in the midst of the children of men, among them that go down to the pit.

15 Thus saith the Lord God, In the day when he went down to hell, I caused them to mourn,

^h Of Zedekiah's reign, or of Jeconiah's captivity.

^o Meaning, that he was not like in strength ■ the king of the Assyrians, whom the Babylonians overcame.

■ Many other nations were under their dominion.

^o Signifying, that there was no greater power in the world than his was.

^o That is, of Nebuchadnezzar, who afterwards was the monarch and only ruler of the world.

^o Hereby is signified the destruction of the power of the Assyrians by the Babylonians.

588. Bef. Chr. mourn, and I covered the deep for him, and I did restrain the floods thereof, and the great waters were stayed: I caused Lebanon to mourn for him, and all the trees of the field fainted.

16 I made the nations to shake at the sound of his fall, when I cast him down to hell, with them that descend into the pit, and all the excellent trees of Eden, and the best of Lebanon: even all that were nourished with waters, shall be comforted in the nether parts of the earth.

17 They also went down to hell with him, unto them that be slain with the sword, and his arm, and they that dwell under his shadow in the midst of the heathen.

18 To whom art thou thus like in glory and in greatness among the trees of Eden? yet thou shalt be cast down with the trees of Eden, unto the nether parts of the earth: thou shalt sleep in the midst of the uncircumcised, with them that be slain by the sword: this is Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord God.

C H A P. XXXII.

2 The prophet is commanded to bewail Pharaoh king of Egypt. 12 He prophesieth that destruction shall come unto Egypt through the king of Babylon.

AND in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, and in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, take up a lamentation for Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say unto him, Thou art like a lion of the nations, and art as a dragon in the sea: thou castedst out thy rivers, and troubledst the waters with thy feet, and stampedst in their rivers.

3 Thus saith the Lord God, I will therefore spread my net over thee with a great multitude of people, and they shall make thee to come up into my net.

4 Then will I leave thee upon the land, and I will cast thee upon the open field, and I will cause all the fowls of the heaven to remain upon thee, and I will fill all the beasts of the field with thee.

5 And I will lay thy flesh upon the mountains, and fill the vallies with thine height.

6 I will also water with thy blood the land wherein thou swimmest, even to the mountains, and the rivers shall be full of thee.

7 And when I shall put thee out, I will cover the heaven, and make the stars thereof dark: I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light.

8 All the lights of heaven will I make dark for thee, and bring darkness upon thy land, saith the Lord God.

9 I will also trouble the hearts of many people, when I shall bring thy destruction among the nations, and upon the countries which thou hast known. Bef. Chr. 588.

10 Yea, I will make many people amazed at thee, and their kings shall be astonished with fear for thee, when I shall make my sword to glitter against their faces, and they shall be afraid every moment: every man for his own life in the day of thy fall.

11 For thus saith the Lord God, The sword of the king of Babel shall come upon thee.

12 By the swords of the mighty will I cause thy multitude to fall: they all shall be terrible nations, and they shall destroy the pomp of Egypt, and all the multitude thereof shall be consumed.

13 I will destroy also all the beasts thereof from the great water sides, neither shall the foot of man trouble them any more, the hoofs of beasts trouble them.

14 Then will I make their waters deep, and cause their rivers to run like oil, saith the Lord God.

15 When I shall make the land of Egypt desolate, and the country, with all that is therein, shall be laid waste: when I shall smite all them which dwell therein, then shall they know that I am the Lord.

16 This is the mourning wherewith they shall lament her: the daughters of the nations shall lament her: they shall lament for Egypt, and for all her multitude, saith the Lord God.

17 In the twelfth year also, in the fifteenth day of the month, came the word of the Lord unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, lament for the multitude of Egypt, and cast them down, them and the daughters of the mighty nations, unto the nether parts of the earth, with them that go down into the pit.

19 Whom dost thou pass in beauty? go down and sleep with the uncircumcised.

20 They shall fall in the midst of them that are slain by the sword: she is delivered to the sword: draw her down, and all her multitude.

21 The most mighty and strong shall speak to him out of the midst of hell with them that help her: they are gone down and sleep with the uncircumcised that be slain with the sword.

22 Ashur is there and all her company: their graves are about him: all they are slain and fallen by the sword.

23 Whose graves are made in the side of the pit, and his multitude are round about his grave: all they are slain and fallen by the sword, which caused fear to be in the land of the living.

24 There

¹ The deep waters that caused him to be so high (meaning his great abundance and pomp) shall lament as though they were covered with sackcloth.

² To cause this destruction of the king of Assyria seem more horrible, he setteth forth other kings and princes which are dead, as though they rejoiced in the fall of such a tyrant.

³ Meaning, that Pharaoh's power was nothing so great as his was.

24 There is ² Elam and all his multitude round about his grave: all they are slain and fallen by the sword which are gone down with the uncircumcised into the nether parts of the earth, which caused themselves to be feared in the land of the ³ living, yet have they borne their shame with them that are gone down to the pit.

25 They have made his bed in the midst of the slain with all his multitude: their graves are round about him: all these uncircumcised are slain by the sword: though they have caused their fear in the land of the living, yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit: they are laid in the midst of them that be slain.

26 There is ⁴ Meshech, Tubal, and all their multitude, their graves are round about them: all these uncircumcised were slain by the sword, though they caused their fear to be in the land of the living.

27 And they shall not lie with the valiant ⁵ of the uncircumcised that are fallen, which are gone down to the grave, with their weapons of war, and have laid their swords under their heads, but their iniquity shall be upon their bones: because they were the fear of the mighty in the land of the living.

28 Yea, thou shalt be broken in the midst of the uncircumcised, and lie with them that are slain with the sword.

29 There is Edom, his kings, and all his princes, which with their strength are laid by them that were slain by the swords: they shall sleep with the uncircumcised, and with them that go down to the pit.

30 There be all the princes of the ⁶ North, with all the Zidonians, which are gone down with the slain, with their fear: they are ashamed of their strength, and the uncircumcised sleep with them that be slain by the sword, and bear their shame with them that go down to the pit.

31 Pharaoh shall see them, and he shall be comforted over all his multitude: Pharaoh, and all his army shall be slain by the sword, saith the Lord God.

32 For I have caused my ⁷ fear to be in the land of the living: and he shall be laid in the midst of the uncircumcised, with them that are slain by the sword, even Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord God.

C H A P. XXXIII.

2 The office of the governors and ministers. 14 He strengtheneth them that despair, and boldeneth them with the promise of mercy. 30 The word of the Lord against the mockers of the prophet.

A GAIN, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

- ¹ Meaning, the Persians.
- ² Whom in this life all the world feared.
- ³ That is, the Cappadocians and Italians, or Spaniards, as Josephus writeth.
- ⁴ Which died not by cruel death, but by the course of nature, and are honourably buried with their coat-armour, and signs of honour.
- ⁵ The kings of Babylon.
- ⁶ As the wicked rejoice when they see others partakers of their miseries.
- ⁷ I will make the Egyptians afraid of me, and they caused others to fear them.
- ⁸ He sheweth, that the people ought not have continually governors and teachers which may have a care of them,

■ Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and say unto them, When I bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man ¹ from among them, and make him their watchman,

3 If when he seeth the sword come upon the land, he blow the trumpet, and warn the people,

4 Then he that heareth the sound of the trumpet, and will not be warned, if the sword come, and take him away, his blood shall be upon his own head.

5 For he heard the sound of the trumpet, and would not be admonished: therefore his blood shall be upon him: but he that receiveth warning, shall save his life.

6 But if the watchman see the sword come, and blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned: if the sword come, and take any person from among them, he is taken away for his ² iniquity, but his blood will I require of the watchman's hand.

7 ³ So thou, O son of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel: therefore thou shalt hear the word at my ⁴ mouth, and admonish them from me. Ch. 3. 17.

■ When I shall say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt die the death: if thou doest not speak, and admonish the wicked of his way, that wicked man shall die for his iniquity, but his blood will I ⁵ require of thine hand.

9 Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way, to turn from it, if he do not turn from his way, he shall die for his iniquity, but thou shalt delivered thy soul.

10 Therefore, O thou son of man, speak unto the house of Israel, Thus ye speak and say, If our transgressions and our sins be upon us, and we are consumed because of them, ⁶ how should we then live?

11 Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord God, ⁷ I desire not the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live: turn you, turn you, from your evil ways, for why will ye die, O ye house of Israel?

12 Therefore thou son of man, say unto the children of thy people, ⁸ The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression, and the wickedness of the wicked shall cause him to fall therein, in the day that he returneth from his wickedness, neither shall the righteous live for his righteousness in the day that he sinneth.

13 When I shall say unto the righteous, that he shall surely live, if he trust to his own righteousness, and commit iniquity, all his righteousness shall be no more remembered, but for his iniquity that he hath committed, he shall die for the same.

14 Again, when I shall say unto the wicked, Thou shalt and to warn them ever of the dangers which are at hand.

¹ Signifying, that the wicked shall not escape punishment, though the watchmen be negligent; but if the watchman blow the trumpet, and then he will not obey, he shall deserve double punishment.

² Which teacheth that he that receiveth not his charge at the Lord's mouth, is not spv, and not not true watchman.

³ The watchman must answer for the blood of all that perish through his negligence.

⁴ Thus the wicked, when they hear God's judgments for their sins, despair of his mercies, and murmur.

⁵ Read chap. 18. 23.

⁶ Read of this righteousness, chap. 18. 22, 24.

Bef. Chr. shalt die the death, if he turn from his sin and 587. do that which is lawful and ^b right.

15 To wit, if the wicked restore the pledge, and give again that he had robbed, and walk in the statutes of life, without committing iniquity, he shall surely live, and not die.

16 None of his sins that he hath committed, shall be mentioned unto him: because he hath done that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live.

• Ch. 18. 25. 17 Yet the children of thy people say, [■] The way of the Lord is not equal: but their own way is equal.

18 When the righteous turneth from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, he shall even die thereby.

19 But if the wicked return from his wickedness, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall live thereby.

20 Yet ye say, The word of the Lord is not equal. O ye house of Israel, I will judge you every one after his ways.

21 Also in the twelfth year of ^c our captivity, in the tenth month, and in the fifth day of the month, one that had escaped out of Jerusalem came unto me, and said, The city is smitten.

22 Now the ^d hand of Lord had been upon me in the evening afore he that had escaped came, and had opened my mouth, until he came to me in the morning, and when he had opened my ^e mouth, I was no more dumb.

23 Again, the word of the Lord came unto me, and said,

24 Son of man, these that dwell in the desolate places of the land of Israel, talk and say, ^f Abraham was but one, and he possessed the land: but we are many, therefore the land shall be given us in possession.

25 Wherefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, Ye eat with the ^g blood, and lift up your eyes toward your idols, and shed blood:
should ye then possess the land?

26 Ye lean upon your ^h swords: ye work abomination, and ye defile every one his neighbour's wife: should ye then possess the land?

27 Say thus unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, As I live, so surely they that are in the desolate places shall fall by the sword: and him that is in the open field, will I give unto the beasts to be devoured: and they that be in the forts and in the caves, shall die of the pestilence.

28 For I will lay the land desolate and waste, and the ⁱ pomp of her strength shall cease: and the mountains of Israel shall be desolate, and none shall pass through.

29 Then shall they know that I am the Lord, when I have laid the land desolate and waste, because of all their abominations that they have committed.

• Ch. 7. 24.
and 24. 21.
and 30. 6, 7.

^b Hereby he condemneth all them of hypocrisy, which pretend to forsake wickedness, and yet declare not themselves such by their fruits, that is, in obeying God's commandments, and by godly life.

^c When the prophet was led away captive with Jeconiah.

^f Thus the wicked think themselves more worthy [■] enjoy God's promise than the saints of God, to whom they were made: and would bind God to be subject to them, though they would not be bound to him.

you, and hear what is the word that cometh from the Lord.

31 For they come unto thee, as the people ^{usetb} [■] come: and my people sit before thee and hear thy words, but they will not do them: for with their mouths they make ^k jests, and their

2 Against the shepherds that despise the flock of Christ, and seek their [■] gain. 7 The Lord saith that he will visit his dispersed flock, and 2 Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel, prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God unto the shepherds, ^{} Wo be [■] Jer. 23. 1. unto the ¹ shepherds of Israel, that feed them-not the sheep.

4 The ⁿ weak have ye not strengthened, the sick have ye not healed, neither have ye bound up the broken, nor brought again that which was driven away, neither have ye sought that which was lost: but with cruelty, and with rigour have ye ruled them.

5 And they were scattered without a shepherd:
and when they were dispersed, they were [■] devour-

10 Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I come against the shepherds, and will require my sheep at their hands, and cause them to cease from feeding the sheep: neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more: for I will deliver my sheep from their mouths, and they shall no more devour them.

11 For thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will search my sheep and seek them out.

12 As a shepherd searcheth out his flock, when he hath been among his sheep that are scattered, so will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered in the cloudy and dark day.

13 And I will bring them out from the people, and gather them from the countries, and will bring them to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel, by the rivers, and in all the inhabited places of the country.

14 I will feed them in a good pasture, and upon the high mountains of Israel shall their fold be: there shall they lie in a good fold, and in fat pasture shall they feed upon the mountains of Israel.

15 I will feed my sheep, and bring them to their rest, saith the Lord God.

16 I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen the weak: but I will destroy the fat and the strong, and I will feed them with judgment.

17 Also you my sheep, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I judge between sheep and sheep, between the rams and the goats.

18 Seemeth it a small thing unto you to have eaten up the good pasture, but ye must tread down with your feet the residue of your pasture? and to have drunk of the great waters, but ye must trouble the residue with your feet?

19 And my sheep eat that which ye have trodden with your feet: and drink that which ye have troubled with your feet.

20 Therefore thus saith the Lord God unto them, Behold, I, even I will judge between the fat sheep and the lean sheep.

21 Because ye have thrust with side and with shoulder, and pushed all the weak with your horns, till ye have scattered them abroad, 22 Therefore will I help my sheep, and they shall no more be spoiled, and I will judge between sheep and sheep.

23 And I will set up a shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant David, he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.

24 And I the Lord will be their God, and my servant David shall be the prince among them. I the Lord have spoken it.

25 And I will make with them a covenant of peace, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land: and they shall dwell safely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods.

26 And I will set them as a blessing even round about my mountain: and I will cause rain to come down in due season, and there shall be rain of blessing.

27 And the tree of the field shall yield her fruit, and the earth shall give her fruit, and they shall be safe in the land, and shall know that I am the Lord, when I have broken the cords of their yoke, and delivered them out of the hands of those that served themselves of them.

28 And they shall no more be spoiled of the heathen, neither shall the beasts of the land devour them, but they shall dwell safely, and none shall make them afraid.

29 And I will raise up for them a plant of renown: and they shall be no more consumed with hunger in the land, neither bear the reproach of the heathen any more.

30 Thus shall they understand that I the Lord their God am with them, and that they, even the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord God.

¹ He propheseth the bringing again of the people, being in captivity. ¹⁶ He sheweth the union of the ten tribes with the two.

THE hand of the Lord was upon me, and carried me out in the Spirit of the Lord, and set me down in the midst of the field, which was full of bones.

2 And he led me round about by them, and behold, there were very many in the open field, and lo, they were very dry.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord God, thou knowest.

4 Again he said unto me, Prophecy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord.

5 Thus saith the Lord God unto these bones, Behold, I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live.

6 And I will lay sinews upon you, and make flesh grow upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, that ye may live, and ye shall know that I am the Lord.

7 So I prophesied, as I was commanded: and I prophesied, there was a noise, and behold, there was a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to his bone.

8 And when I beheld, lo, the sinews and the flesh grew upon them, and above, the skin covered them, but there was no breath in them.

9 Then said he unto me, Prophecy, unto the wind: prophecy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord God, Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live.

10 So I prophesied, as he had commanded me:
and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, exceeding great army.

11 Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel. Behold, they say, Our bones are dried, and our hope is gone away, and we are clean cut off.

12 Therefore prophecy, and say unto them,
Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, my people,
I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your sepulchres, and bring you into the land of Israel.

12 And seven months long shall the house of Israel be burying of them, that they may cleanse the land.

13 Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them, and they shall have a name when I shall be glorified, saith the Lord God, 14 And they shall chuse men to go continually through the land with them that travel, to bury those that remain upon the ground to cleanse it: they shall search to the end of seven months.

15 And the travellers that pass through the land, if any see a man's bone, then shall he set up a sign by it, till the buriers have buried it in the valley of Hamon-Gog. 16 And Shall not thou spy thine occasions come against my church when they suspect nothing?

Meaning, in the last age, and from the coming of Christ unto the end of the world.

Signifying, that God will be sanctified by maintaining his church, and destroying his enemies, as ch. 36. 23. and 37. 26.

Hereby he declareth that affliction can come to the church, whereof they have not been advertised aforetime, to teach them to endure all things with more patience when they know that God hath so ordained.

All means whereby man should think to save himself shall fail, the affliction in those days shall be so great, and the destruction shall be so terrible.

Against the people of Gog and Magog.

Or destroy thee with six plagues, as chap. 38. 22.

Meaning, that by the virtue of God's word, the enemy shall be destroyed wheresoever he assaileth his church.

That is, among all nations where the enemies of my people dwell, seem they never so far separate.

That is, this plague is fully determined in my counsel, and cannot be changed.

After this destruction the church shall have great peace and tranquillity, and burn all their weapons, because they shall no more fear the enemy: and this is chiefly meant of the accomplishment of Christ's kingdom, when by their head Christ all enemies shall be overcome.

Which declareth, that the enemies shall have horrible fall.

For the stink of the carcases.

Meaning, a long time.

Partly, that the holy land should not be polluted, and partly, for the compassion that the children of God have, even on their enemies.

The restoring of the city and the temple.

IN the five and twentieth year of our being in captivity, in the ^h beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten, in the self-same day the hand of the Lord was upon me, and brought me thither.

■ Into the land of Israel brought he ■ by † a divine vision, and set ■ upon a very high mountain, whereupon was as the building of ■ city toward the South.

3 And he brought me thither, and behold, there was a ¹ man, whose similitude was to look to like brass, with ■ linen thread in his hand, and ■ reed to measure with: and he stood at the gate.

4 And the man said unto me, Son of man, behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, and set thine heart upon all that I shall shew thee: for to the intent that they might be shewed thee, art thou brought hither: declare all that thou seest unto the house of Israel.

5 And behold, I saw ■ wall on the outside of the house round about: and in the man's hand was ■ reed to measure with, of six cubits long, by the cubit, and an hand breadth: so he measured the breadth of the building with one reed, and the height with one reed.

6 Then came he unto the gate which looketh toward the East, and went up the stairs thereof, and measured the † post of the gate, which was one reed broad, and † the other post of the gate, which ■ one reed broad.

7 And every chamber was one reed long, and ■ reed broad, and between the chambers were five cubits: and the post of the gate by the porch of the gate within was one reed.

8 He measured also the porch of the gate within, with one reed.

9 Then measured he the porch of the gate of eight cubits, and the † posts thereof, of two cubits, and the porch of the gate was inward.

10 And the chambers of the gate eastward were three on this side, and three ■ that side: they three were of one measure, and the posts had one measure on this side, and one on that side.

11 And he measured the breadth of the entry of the gate ten cubits, and the height of the gate thirteen cubits.

12 The space also before the chambers was one cubit on this side, and the space was one cubit on that side, and the chambers were six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side.

13 He measured then the gate from the roof of ■ chamber to the top of the gate: the breadth was five and twenty cubits, door against door.

14 He made also posts of threescore cubits, and the posts of the court and of the gate had one measure round about.

15 And upon the fore-front of the entry of the gate unto the fore-front of the porch of the gate within, were fifty cubits.

16 And there were narrow windows in the chambers, and in their posts within the gate round about, and likewise to the arches: and the windows went round about within: and upon the posts were palm-trees.

19 Then he measured the breadth from the fore-front of the lower gate without, unto the fore-front of the court within, an hundred cubits Eastward and Northward.

20 And the gate of the outward court, that looked toward the North, measured he after the length and breadth thereof.

21 And the chambers thereof were three on this side, and three on that side, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, were after the measure of the first gate: the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

22 And their windows and their arches, with their palm-trees, were after the measure of the gate that looketh toward the East, and the going up unto it had seven steps, and the arches thereof were before them.

23 And the gate of the inner-court stood over-against the gate toward the North, and toward the East, and he measured from gate to gate an hundred cubits.

24 After that, he brought me toward the South, and lo, there was a gate toward the South, and he measured the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, according to these measures.

25 And there were windows in it, and in the arches thereof round about like those windows: the height was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

26 And there were seven steps to go up to it, and the arches thereof were before them: and it had palm-trees, one on this side, and another on that side, upon the posts thereof.

27 ¶ And there was a gate in the inner court toward the South, and he measured from gate to gate toward the South an hundred cubits.

28 And he brought me into the inner court by the south-gate, and he measured the south-gate, according to these measures.

29 And the chambers thereof, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, according to these measures, and there were windows in it, and the arches thereof round about, it was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

30 And the arches round about were five and twenty cubits long, and five cubits broad.

31 And the arches thereof were toward the outer court, and palm-trees were upon the posts thereof, and the going up to it had eight steps.

32 ¶ Again, he brought me into the inner court toward the East, and he measured the gate according to these measures.

33 And the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, were according to these measures, and there were windows therein, and in the arches thereof round about: it was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

34 And the arches thereof were toward the outer court, and palm-trees were upon the posts thereof, on this side and on that side, and the going up to it had eight steps.

35 ¶ After he brought me to the North-gate, and measured it, according to these measures,

36 The chambers thereof, the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, and there were windows therein round about: the height was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits. 574.

37 And the posts thereof were toward the outer court, and palm-trees were upon the posts thereof on this side, and on that side, and the going up to it had eight steps.

38 And every¹ chamber, and the entry thereof, was under the posts of the gates: there they washed the burnt-offering.

39 And in the porch of the gate stood two tables on this side, and two tables on that side, upon the which they slew the burnt-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering.

40 And at the side beyond the steps, at the entry of the North-gate, stood two tables, and on the other side, which was at the porch of the gate, were two tables.

41 Four tables were on this side, and four tables on that side, by the side of the gate, even eight tables whereupon they slew their sacrifice.

42 And the four tables were of hewn stone for the burnt-offering, of ■ cubit and ■ half long, and ■ cubit and ■ half broad, and one cubit high: whereupon also they laid the instruments wherewith they slew the burnt-offering and the sacrifice.

43 And within were boards an hand broad fastened round about, and upon the tables lay the flesh of the offering.

44 And without the inner-gate were the chambers of the singers in the inner-court, which was at the side of the North-gate: and their prospect was toward the South, and one was at the side of the East gate, having the prospect toward the North.

45 And he said unto me, This chamber, whose prospect is toward the South, is for the priests that have the charge to keep the house.

46 And the chamber whose prospect is toward the North, is for the priests that have the charge to keep the altar: these are the sons of Zadok among the sons of Levi, which may come near to the Lord to minister unto him.

47 So he measured the court, an hundred cubits long, and ■ hundred cubits broad, even four square: likewise the altar that was before the house.

48 And he brought me to the porch of the house, and measured the^m posts of the porch, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and the breadth of the gate was three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side.

49 The length of the porch was twenty cubits, and the breadth eleven cubits, and he brought ■ by the steps whereby they went up to it, and there were pillars by the posts, one on this side, and another on that side.

■ And the breadth of the entry was ten cubits,

3 Then went^a he in, and measured the posts of the entry two cubits, and the entry six cubits, and the breadth of the entry seven cubits.

4 So he measured the length thereof twenty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits before the temple. And he said unto me, This is the most holy place.

5 After, he measured the wall of the house six cubits, and the breadth of every chamber four cubits round about the house, on every side.

6 And the chambers were chamber upon chamber, three and thirty foot high, and they entered into the wall made for the chambers which was round about the house, that the posts might be fastened therein, and not be fastened in the wall of the house.

7 And it was large, and went round, mounting upward to the chambers: for the stair of the house was mounting upward round about the house: therefore the house was larger upward: so they went up from the lowest chamber to the highest by the midst.

8 I saw also the house high round about: the foundations of the chambers were a full reed of six great cubits.

9 The thickness of the wall which was for the chamber without was five cubits, and that which remained was the place of the chambers that were within.

10 And between the chambers was the wideness of twenty cubits round about the house on every side.

11 And the doors of the chambers were toward the place that remained, one door toward the North, and another door toward the South, and the breadth of the place that remained was five cubits round about.

12 Now the building that was before the separate place toward the west corner was seventy cubits broad, and the wall of the building was five cubits thick, round about, and the length ninety cubits.

13 So he measured the house an hundred cubits long, and the separate place and the building with the walls thereof were an hundred cubits long.

14 Also the breadth of the forefront of the house, and of the separate place toward the East, was an hundred cubits.

15 And he measured the length of the building, over-against the separate place which was behind it, and the chambers on the one side and on the other side an hundred cubits with the temple within, and the arches of the court.

16 The posts and the narrow windows, and the chambers round about, on^b three sides over-against the posts, cieled with cedar wood round about, and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows were cieled.

17 And from above the door unto the inner house and without, and by all the wall round about within and without, it was cieled according to the measure.

18 And it was made with cherubims and palm-trees, so that a palm-tree was between cherub and cherub: and every cherub had two faces.

19 So that the face of a man was toward the palm-tree on the one side, and the face of a lion toward the palm-tree on the other side: thus was it made through all the house round about.

20 From the ground unto above the door were cherubims and palm-trees made as in the wall of the temple.

21 The posts of the temple were squared, and thus to look unto was the similitude and form of the sanctuary.

22 The altar of wood was three cubits high, and the length thereof two cubits, and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the sides thereof were of wood. And he said unto me, This is the table that shall be before the Lord.

23 And the temple and the sanctuary had two doors.

24 And the doors had two wickets, even two turning wickets, two wickets for one door, and two wickets for another door.

25 And upon the doors of the temple there were made cherubims and palm-trees, like as was made upon the walls, and there were thick planks upon the forefront of the porch without.

26 And there were narrow windows and palm-trees on the one side, and on the other side, by the sides of the porch, and upon the sides of the house, and thick planks.

Of the chambers of the temple for the priests, and the holy things.

THEN brought he me into the outer court by the way toward the North, and he brought me into the chamber that was over-against the separate place, and which was before the building, toward the North.

1 Before the length of an hundred cubits was the north door, and it was fifty cubits broad.

2 Over-against the twenty cubits which were for the inner court, and over-against the pavement which was for the outer court, was chamber against chamber in three rows.

3 And before the chambers was a gallery of ten cubits wide, and within was a way of one cubit, and their doors toward the North.

4 Now the chambers above were narrower: for those chambers seemed to eat up these, to wit, the lower, and those that were in the midst of the building:

5 For they were in three rows, but had not pillars the pillars of the court: therefore there was difference from them beneath and from the middlemost, even from the ground.

6 And the wall that was without, over-against the chambers, toward the outer court on the forefront of the chambers, was fifty cubits long.

10 The chambers were in the thickness of the wall of the court toward the East, over-against the separate place, and over-against the building.

11 And the way before them was after the manner of the chambers, which were toward the North, as long as they, and as broad as they: and all their entries were like, both according to their fashions, and according to their doors.

12 And according to the doors of the chambers, that were toward the South, was a door in the corner of the way, even the way directly before the wall toward the East, as one entereth.

13 Then said he unto me, The North chambers and the South chambers, which are before the separate place, they be holy chambers, wherein the priests that approach unto the Lord shall eat the most holy things: there shall they lay the most holy things, and the meat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering: for the place is holy.

14 When the priests enter therein, they shall not go out of the holy place into the outer court, but there they shall lay their garments wherein they minister: for they are holy, and shall put on other garments, and so shall approach to those things which are for the people.

15 Now when he had made an end of measuring the inner-house, he brought me forth toward the gate whose prospect is toward the East, and measured it round about.

16 He measured the east side with the measuring rod, five hundred reeds, even with the measuring reed round about.

17 He measured also the north side, five hundred reeds, even with the measuring reed round about.

18 And he measured the south side, five hundred reeds with the measuring reed.

19 He turned about also to the west side, and measured five hundred reeds with the measuring reed.

20 He measured it by the four sides: it had a wall round about, five hundred reeds long, and five hundred broad, to make a separation between the sanctuary and the profane place.

2 He seeth the glory of God going into the temple, from whence it had before departed. 7 He mentioneth the idolatry of the children of Israel, for the which they were consumed and brought to naught. 9 He is commanded to call them again to repentance.

Afterward he brought me to the gate, even the gate that turneth toward the East.

2 And behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from out of the East, whose voice was like a noise of great waters, and the earth was made light with his glory.

3 And the vision which I saw was like the vision, even the vision that I saw when I came to destroy the city: and the visions were like the vision that I saw by the river Chebar: and I fell upon my face.

5 So the Spirit took me up and brought me into the inner-court, and behold, the glory of the Lord filled the house.

6 And I heard one speaking unto me out of the house: and there stood a man by me,

7 Which said unto me, Son of man, this place is my throne; and the place of the soles of my feet, whereas I will dwell among the children of Israel for ever, and the house of Israel shall no more defile mine holy name, neither they, nor their kings, by their fornication, nor by the carcases of their kings in their high places.

8 Albeit they set their thresholds by my thresholds, and their posts by my posts (for there was but a wall between me and them) yet have they defiled mine holy name with their abominations that they have committed: wherefore I have consumed them in my wrath.

9 Now therefore let them put away their fornication, and the carcases of their kings far from me, and I will dwell among them for ever.

10 ¶ Thou son of man, shew this house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their wickedness, and let them measure the pattern.

12 This is the description of the house, It shall be upon the top of the mount: all the limits thereof round about shall be most holy. Behold, this is the description of the house: ^{† H. 1. 12.}

13 And these are the measures of the altar, after the cubits, the cubit is a cubit and an handbreadth, even the bottom shall be a cubit, and the breadth a cubit, and the border thereof by the edge thereof round about shall be a span: and this shall be the height of the altar.

14 And from the bottom which toucheth the ground to the lower piece shall be two cubits: and the breadth one cubit, and from the little piece to the great piece shall be four cubits, and the breadth one cubit.

15 So the altar shall be four cubits, and from the altar upwards shall be four horns.

16 And the altar shall be twelve cubits long, and twelve broad, and four-square in the four corners thereof.

17 And the frame shall be fourteen cubits long, and fourteen broad in the four-square corners thereof, and the border about it shall be half a cubit, and the bottom thereof shall be a cubit about, and the steps thereof shall be turned toward the East.

He reproveth the people for their offence. 7 The uncircumcised in heart, and in the flesh. 9 Who are to be admitted to the service of the temple, and who to be refused.

THEN he brought me toward the gate of the outward sanctuary, which turneth toward the East, and it was shut.

Then said the Lord unto me, This gate shall be shut, and shall not be opened, and no man shall enter by it, because the Lord God of Israel hath entered by it, and it shall be shut.

3 It appertaineth to the prince: the prince himself shall sit in it to eat bread before the Lord: he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same.

4 Then brought he me toward the north gate before the house: and when I looked, behold, the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord, and I fell upon my face.

5 And the Lord said unto me, Son of man, mark well, and behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, all that I say unto thee, concerning all the ordinances of the house of the Lord, and all the laws thereof, and mark well the entering in of the house, with every going forth of the sanctuary.

6 And thou shalt say to the rebellious, even to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord God, O house of Israel, ye have enough of all your abominations,

7 Seeing that ye have brought into my sanctuary strangers, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary, to pollute mine house, when ye offer my bread, even fat and blood: and they have broken my covenant, because of all your abominations.

For ye have not kept the ordinances of mine holy things: but you yourselves have set other to take the charge of my sanctuary.

9 Thus saith the Lord God, No stranger uncircumcised in heart, nor uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any stranger that is among the children of Israel:

10 Neither yet the Levites that are gone back from me, when Israel went astray, which went astray from me after their idols, but they shall bear their iniquity.

11 And they shall serve in my sanctuary, and keep the gates of the house, and minister in the house: they shall slay the burnt-offering, and the sacrifice for the people: and they shall stand before them to serve them.

12 Because they served before their idols, and caused the house of Israel to fall into iniquity, therefore have I lifted up mine hand against them, saith the Lord God, and they shall bear their iniquity, 13 And they shall not come near unto me to do the office of the priest unto me, neither shall they come near unto any of mine holy things in the most holy place, but they shall bear their shame and their abominations, which they have committed.

14 And I will make them keepers of the watch of the house, for all the service thereof, and for all that shall be done therein.

15 But the priests of the Levites, the sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary, when the children of Israel went astray from me, they shall come near to me to serve me, and they shall stand before me to offer me the fat and the blood, saith the Lord God.

16 They shall enter into my sanctuary, and shall come near to my table to serve me, and they shall keep my charge.

17 And when they shall enter in at the gates of the inner court, they shall be clothed with linen garments, and no wool shall come upon them while they serve in the gates of the inner court, and within.

18 They shall have linen bonnets upon their heads, and shall have linen breeches upon their loins: they shall not gird themselves in the sweating places.

19 But when they go forth into the outer court, even to the outer court to the people, they shall put off their garments wherein they ministered, and lay them in the holy chambers, and they shall put on other garments: for they shall not sanctify the people with their garments.

22 Neither shall they take for their wives a widow, or her that is divorced: but they shall take maidens of the seed of the house of Israel, or a widow that hath been the widow of a priest.

23 And they shall teach my people the difference between the holy and profane, and cause them to discern between the unclean and the clean.

24 And in controversy they shall stand to judge, and they shall judge it according to my judgments: and they shall keep my laws and my statutes in all mine assemblies, and they shall sanctify my sabbaths.

25 And they shall come at no dead person to deale themselves, except at their father, or mother, or son, or daughter, brother or sister, that hath had yet no husband: in these may they be defiled.

26 And when he is cleansed; they shall reckon unto him seven days.

27 And when he goeth into the sanctuary unto the inner court to minister in the sanctuary, he shall offer his sin-offering, saith the Lord God.

28 And the priests shall be their inheritance, yea, I am their inheritance: therefore shall ye give them no possession in Israel, for I am their possession.

29 They shall eat the meat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering, and every dedicate thing in Israel shall be theirs.

30 And all the first of all the first-born, and every oblation, even all of every sort of your oblations, shall be the priests. Ye shall also give unto the priests the first of your dough, that he may cause the blessing to rest in thine house.

31 The priests shall not eat of any thing that is dead, or torn, whether it be fowl or beast.

C H A P. XLV.

1 Out of the land of promise are there separated four portions, of which the first is given to the priests and to the temple, the second to the Levites, the third to the city, the fourth to the prince. 9 An exhortation unto the heads of Israel. 10 Of just weights and measures. 13 Of the first-fruits, &c.

Moreover, when ye shall divide the land for inheritance, ye shall offer an oblation unto the Lord, an holy portion of the land, five and twenty thousand reeds long, and ten thousand broad: this shall be holy in all the borders thereof round about.

2 Of this there shall be for the sanctuary five hundred in length, with five hundred in breadth, all square round about, and fifty cubits round about for the suburbs thereof.

3 And of this measure shalt thou measure the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand: and it shall be the sanctuary, and the most holy place.

4 The holy portion of the land shall be the priests, which minister in the sanctuary, which come near to serve the Lord: and it shall be a place for their houses, and an holy place for the sanctuary.

5 And in the five and twenty thousand of length, and the ten thousand of breadth, shall the Levites that minister in the house have their possession for twenty chambers. 574.

6 Also ye shall appoint the possession of the city five thousand broad, and five and twenty thousand long, over-against the oblation of the holy portion: it shall be for the whole house of Israel.

7 And a portion shall be for the prince on the one side, and on that side of the oblation of the holy portion, and of the possession of the city, even before the oblation of the holy portion, and before the possession of the city from the west corner westward, and from the east corner eastward, and the length shall be by one of the portions from the west border unto the east border.

8 In this land shall be his possession in Israel: and my princes shall no more oppress my people, and the rest of the land shall they give to the house of Israel, according to their tribes.

9 Thus saith the Lord God, Let it suffice you, O princes of Israel: leave off cruelty and oppression, and execute judgment and justice: take away your exactions from my people, saith the Lord God.

10 Ye shall have just balances, and true ephah, and true bath.

11 The ephah and the bath shall be equal: a bath shall contain the tenth part of an homer, and an ephah the tenth part of an homer: the equality thereof shall be after the homer.

12 And the shekel shall be twenty gerahs, and twenty shekels, and five and twenty shekels and fifteen shekels shall be your maneh. Exod. 29. 17. Lev. 27. 25. Num. 3. 49.

13 This is the oblation that ye shall offer, the sixth part of an ephah of an homer of wheat, and ye shall give the sixth part of an ephah of an homer of barley.

14 Concerning the ordinance of the oil, even of the bath of oil, ye shall offer the tenth part of a bath out of the Cor (ten baths are an homer: for ten baths fill an homer.)

15 And one lamb of two hundred sheep out of the fat pastures of Israel for a meat-offering, and for a burnt-offering and for peace-offerings, to make reconciliation for them, saith the Lord God.

16 All the people of the land shall give this oblation for the prince in Israel.

17 And it shall be the prince's part to give burnt-offerings, and meat-offerings, and drink-offerings, in the solemn feasts and in the new moons, and in the sabbaths, and in all the high feasts of the house of Israel: he shall prepare the sin-offering, and the meat-offering, and the burnt-offering, and the peace-offerings to make reconciliation for the house of Israel.

18 Thus saith the Lord God, In the first month, in the first day of the month, thou shalt take a young bullock without blemish, and cleanse the sanctuary.

19 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering, and put it upon the posts of the house, and upon the four corners of the frame of the altar, and upon the posts of the gate of the inner-court. Or, walls.

20 And

They may be at their burial, which was a defiling.
Of all the land of Israel the Lord only requireth this portion for the temple, and for the priests, for the city, and for the prince.
The prophet sheweth that the heads must be first reformed afore any good order can be established among the people.

Ephah and bath were both of one quantity, save that ephah contained in dry things that which bath did in liquor, Lev. 5. 11. 1 Kings 5. 11.
That is, threescore shekels make a weight called Mina: for he joineth these three parts to a mina.
Which was Nisan, containing part of March, and part of April.

20 And so shalt thou do the seventh day of the month, for every one that hath erred, and for him that is deceived: so shall you reconcile the house.

21 In the first month, in the fourteenth day of the month, ye shall have the passover, a feast of seven days, and ye shall eat unleavened bread.

22 And upon that day shall the prince prepare for himself, and for all the people of the land, a bullock for a sin-offering.

23 And in the seven days of the feast he shall make a burnt-offering to the Lord, even of seven bullocks, and seven rams without blemish daily for seven days, and a he-goat daily for a sin-offering.

24 And he shall prepare a meat-offering of an ephah for a bullock, an ephah for a ram, and a hin of oil for an ephah.

25 In the seventh month, in the fifteenth day of the month, shall he do the like in the feast for seven days, according to the sin-offering, according to the burnt-offering, and according to the meat-offering, and according to the oil.

C H A P. XLVI.

The sacrifices of the sabbath, and of the moons. Through which doors they must go in, or come out of the temple, &c.

THUS saith the Lord God, The gate of the inner court, that turneth toward the East, shall be shut the six working days: but on the sabbath it shall be opened, and in the day of the new moon it shall be opened.

And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate without, and shall stand by the post of the gate, and the priest shall make his burnt-offering, and his peace-offerings; and he shall worship at the threshold of the gate: after, he shall go forth, but the gate shall not be shut till the evening.

3 Likewise, the people of the land shall worship at the entry of this gate before the Lord on the sabbaths, and in the new moons.

4 And the burnt-offering that the prince shall offer unto the Lord on the sabbath day, shall be six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish.

5 And the meat-offering shall be an ephah for a ram: and the meat-offering for the lambs a gift of his hand, and an hin of oil to an ephah.

6 And in the day of the new moon it shall be a young bullock without blemish, and six lambs and a ram: they shall be without blemish.

7 And he shall prepare a meat-offering, even an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and for the lambs according as his hand shall bring, and an hin of oil to an ephah.

8 And when the prince shall enter, he shall go in by the way of the porch of that gate, and he shall go forth by the way thereof.

9 But when the people of the land shall come before the Lord in the solemn feasts, he that entereth in by the way of the north gate to worship, shall go out by the way of the south gate: and he that entereth by the way of the south gate, shall go forth by the way of the north gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate whereby he came in, but they shall go forth over-against it.

10 And the prince shall be in the midst of them: he shall go in when they go in, and when they go forth, they shall go forth together.

11 And in the feasts, and in the solemnities, the meat-offering shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, and to the lambs the gift of his hand, and an hin of oil to an ephah.

12 Now when the prince shall make a free burnt-offering, or peace-offerings freely unto the Lord, one shall then open him the gate that turneth toward the East, and he shall make his burnt-offering and his peace-offerings as he did on the sabbath day: after he shall go forth, and when he is gone forth, one shall shut the gate.

13 Thou shalt daily make a burnt-offering unto the Lord of a lamb of one year without blemish: thou shalt do it every morning.

14 And thou shalt prepare a meat-offering for it every morning, the sixth part of an ephah, and the third part of a hin of oil, to mingle with the fine flour: this meat-offering shall be continually by a perpetual ordinance unto the Lord.

15 Thus shall they prepare the lamb, and the meat-offering, and the oil every morning, for a continual burnt-offering.

16 Thus saith the Lord God, If the prince give a gift of his inheritance unto any of his sons, it shall be his sons, and it shall be their possession by inheritance.

17 But if he give a gift of his inheritance to one of his servants, then it shall be his to the year of liberty: after, it shall return to the prince, but his inheritance shall remain to his sons for them.

18 Moreover, the prince shall not take of the people's inheritance, nor thrust them out of their possession: but he shall cause his sons to inherit of his own possession, that my people be not scattered every man from his possession.

19 After, he brought me through the entry, which was at the side of the gate, into the holy chambers of the priests, which stood toward the North: and behold, there was a place at the west side of them.

20 Then said he unto me, This is the place where the priests shall see the trespass-offering, and the sin-offering, where they shall bake the meat-offering, that they should not bear them into the outer court, to sanctify the people.

21 Then he brought me forth into the outer court, and caused me to go by the four corners of the court: and behold, in every corner of the court there was a court.

22 In the four corners of the court there were courts joined of forty cubits long, and thirty broad: these four corners were of one measure.

23 And there went a wall about them, even about those four, and kitchens were made under the walls round about.

24 Then said he unto me, This is the kitchen where the ministers of the house shall see the sacrifice of the people.

¶ The vision of the waters that came out of the temple. 13 The coasts of the land of promise, and the division thereof by tribes.

Afterward he brought me unto the door of the house: and behold, waters issued out from the threshold of the house eastward: for the forefront of the house stood toward the East, and the waters ran down from under the right side of the house, at the south side of the altar.

2 Then brought he me out toward the north gate, and led me about by the way without unto the outer gate, by the way that turneth eastward: and behold, there came forth waters on the right side.

3 And when the man that had the line in his hand went forth eastward, he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me through the waters: the waters were to the ancles.

4 Again, he measured a thousand, and brought me through the waters: the waters were to the knees: again, he measured a thousand, and brought me through: the waters were to the loins.

5 Afterward he measured a thousand, and it was a river that I could not pass over: for the waters were risen, and the waters did flow as a river that could not be passed over.

6 And he said unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen this? Then he brought me, and caused me to return to the brink of the river.

7 Now when I returned, behold, at the brink of the river were very many trees on the one side, and on the other.

8 Then said he unto me, These waters issue out toward the east country, and run down into the plain, and shall go into one sea: they shall run into another sea, and the waters shall be wholesome.

9 And every thing that liveth, which moveth, whithersoever the rivers shall come, shall live, and there shall be very great multitude of fish, because these waters shall come thither: for they shall be wholesome, and every thing shall live whither the river cometh.

10 And then the fishers shall stand upon it, and from En-gedi even unto Eneglaim, they shall spread out their nets: for their fish shall be according to their kinds, the fish of the main sea, exceeding many.

11 But the miry places thereof, and the marshes thereof shall not be wholesome: they shall be made salt pits.

DANIEL.

THE ARGUMENT.

The great providence of God, and his singular mercy toward his church, are most lively here set forth, who never leaveth his desolate, but now in their greatest miseries and afflictions giveth them prophets, as Ezekiel and Daniel, whom he adorned with such graces of his holy Spirit, that Daniel above all other had most special revelations of such things as should come to the church, even from the time that they were in captivity, to the last end of the world, and to the general resurrection, as of the four monarchies and empires of the world, to wit, of the Babylonians, Persians, Grecians, and Romans. Also of the certain number of the times even unto Christ, when all ceremonies and sacrifices should cease, because he should be the accomplishment thereof: moreover, he sheweth Christ's office, and the cause of his death, which was by his sacrifice to take away sins, and to bring everlasting life. And as from the beginning, God ever exercised his people under the cross, so he teacheth here, that after that Christ is offered, he will still leave this exercise to his church until the dead rise again, and Christ gather his into his kingdom in the heavens.

1 The captivity of Jehoiakim king of Judah. 4 The king chooseth certain young men of the Jews to learn his law. 5 They have the king's ordinary appointed, but they abstain from it.

IN the ^a third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah, came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel unto Jerusalem, and besieged it.

2 And the Lord gave Jehoiakim king of Judah into his hand, with part of the vessels of the house of God, which he carried into the land of ^b Shinar, to the house of his god, and he brought the vessels into his god's treasury.

3 And the king spake unto ^c Ashpenaz the master of his ^d eunuchs, that he should bring certain of the children of Israel, of the ^e king's seed, of the princes:

4 Children in whom was no blemish, but ^f well-favoured, and instructed in all wisdom, and well seen in knowledge, and able to utter knowledge, and such as were able to stand in the king's palace, and whom they might teach the ^g learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans.

5 And the king appointed them provision every day of a ^h portion of the king's meat, and of the wine which he drank, so nourishing them ⁱ three years, that at the end thereof they might ^j stand before the king.

6 Now among these were certain of the chil-

^f The king required three things, that they should be of noble birth, that they should be witty and learned, and that they should be of ■ strong and comely nature, that they might do him better service: this did he for his own commodity, therefore it is not to praise his liberality: yet in this he is worthy praise, that he esteemed learning, ■ knew that it was a necessary mean to govern by.

7 Unto whom the chief of the eunuchs ¹ gave other names: for he called Daniel, Belteshazzar, and Hananiah, Shadrach, and Mishael, Meshach, and Azariah, Abednego.

8 ¶ But Daniel had determined in his heart, that he would not ² defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he required the chief of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.

9 (Now God had brought Daniel into favour and tender love with the chief of the eunuchs)

10 And the chief of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, ³ I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink: therefore if he see your faces worse liking than the other children which are of your sort, then shall ye make me lose mine head unto the king.

11 Then said Daniel to Melzar, whom the chief of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, 12 Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ⁴ ten days, and let them give us ⁵ pulse to eat, and water to drink.

13 Then let our countenances be looked upon ⁶ before thee, and the countenances of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest, deal with thy servants.

⁴ Not that he thought any religion to be in the meat or drink (for afterward he did eat) but because the king should not entice him by this sweet poison to forget his religion and accustomed sobriety, and that in his meat and drink he might daily remember of what people he was: and Daniel bringeth this in, to shew how God from the beginning assisted him with his Spirit, and ■ length called him to be ■ prophet.

⁶ Meaning, that within this space he might have the trial, and that no man shall be able to discern it: and thus he spake, being moved by the Spirit of God.

⁷ Not that it was a thing abominable ■ eat dainty meats, and to drink wine, as both before and after they did; but if they should have hereby been won to the king, and have refused their own religion, that meat and drink had been accursed.

Bef. Chr. 603.

† Heb. re. dicitur.

† Or, the captain of the guard.

Es. Chr. 603. 19 Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel in a vision by night: therefore Daniel praised the God of heaven.

20 And Daniel answered, and said, * The name of God be praised for ever and ever: for wisdom and strength are his,

21 And he changeth the times and seasons: he taketh away kings: he setteth up kings: he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and understanding to those that understand.

22 He discovereth the deep and secret things: he knoweth what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with him.

23 I thank thee, and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers, that thou hast given me wisdom and strength, and hast shewed me now the thing that we desired of thee: for thou hast declared unto us the king's matter.

24 ¶ Therefore Daniel went unto Arioch, whom the king had ordained to destroy the wise men of Babel: he went and said thus unto him, Destroy not the wise men of Babel, but bring me before the king, and I will declare unto the king the interpretation.

25 Then Arioch brought Daniel before the king in haste, and said thus unto him, I have found a man of the children of Judah that were brought captives, that will declare unto the king the interpretation.

26 Then answered the king, and said unto Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, Art thou able to shew me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof?

27 Daniel answered in the presence of the king, and said, The secret which the king hath demanded, can neither the wise, the astrologers, the enchanters, nor the soothsayers declare unto the king:

28 But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and sheweth the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days. Thy dream, and the things which thou hast seen in thine head upon thy bed, is this.

29 O king, when thou wast in thy bed, thoughts came into thy mind, what should come to pass hereafter, and he that revealeth secrets, telleth thee what shall come.

30 As for me, this secret is not shewed me for any wisdom that I have, more than any other living, but only to shew the interpretation, and that thou mightest know the thoughts of thine heart.

† He sheweth that he hath neither wisdom nor knowledge, but very dark blindness and ignorance of himself: for it cometh only of God that man understandeth any thing.

* To whom thou madest thy promise, and who lived in thy fear: whereby he excludeth all other gods.

¶ Meaning, power to interpret it.

¶ Whereby appeareth that many were slain, ver. 13. and the rest at Daniel's offer, were preserved on condition: not that Daniel favoured their wicked profession, but that he had respect to equity, because the king proceeded according to his wicked affection, and not considering if their sentence were lawful or no.

¶ He affirmeth that man by reason and art is not able to attain to the cause of God's secrets, but the understanding only thereof must come of God: whereby he smiteth the king with a certain fear and reverence of God, that he might be the more apt to receive the high mysteries that should be revealed.

† Because he had said, that God only must reveal: the signification of this dream, the king might have asked why Daniel did enterprise to interpret it, and therefore he sheweth, that he was but God's minister, and had no gifts but such as God had given him to set forth his glory.

¶ By gold, silver, brass and iron, meant the Chaldean, Persian, Macedonian and Roman kingdom, which should successively rule all the world, till Christ (which is here called the stone) come himself, and destroy the last 31 O king, thou sawest, and behold, there was a great image: this great image, whose glory was so excellent, stood before thee, and the form thereof was terrible.

32 This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his thighs of brass, 33 His legs of iron, and his feet were part of iron, and part of clay.

34 Thou beheldest it till a stone was cut without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces.

35 Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold broken all together, and became like the chaff of the summer flowers, and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth.

36 This is the dream, and we will declare before the king the interpretation thereof.

37 ¶ O king, thou art a king of kings: for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory.

38 And in all places where the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field, and the fowls of the heaven hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all: thou art this head of gold.

39 And after thee shall arise another kingdom, inferior to thee, of silver, and another third kingdom shall be of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth.

40 And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron: for iron breaketh in pieces, and subdueth all things, and as iron bruise all these things, so shall it break in pieces, and bruise all.

41 Whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potters clay, and part of iron: the kingdom shall be divided, but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, thou sawest the iron mixed with the clay and earth.

42 And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so shall the kingdom be partly strong, and partly broken.

43 And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with clay and earth, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not join one and this to assure the Jews that their afflictions should not end with the empire of the Chaldeans, but that they should patiently abide the coming of Messiah, which should be at the end of this fourth monarchy.

¶ Daniel leaveth out the kingdom of the Assyrians, which was before the Babylonians, both because it was not a monarchy and general empire, and also because he would declare the things that were to come, the coming of Christ, for the comfort of the elect among these wonderful alterations: and he calleth the Babylonian kingdom the golden head, because in respect of the other three, it was the best, and yet was of itself wicked and cruel.

¶ Meaning, the Persians, which were inferior in dignity, power and riches, but worse touching ambition, cruelty, and all kinds of vice; shewing, that the world should grow worse and worse, till it be restored by Christ.

¶ That is, of the Macedonians shall be of brass, not alluding to the hardness thereof, but to the vileness, in respect of silver.

¶ That is, the Roman empire shall subdue all these other aforesaid, which after Alexander divided into the Macedonians, Grecians, Syrians and Egyptians.

¶ They shall have civil wars and continual discords among themselves.

¶ They shall by marriages and affinities think to make themselves strong: yet shall they never be joined in hearts.

Bef. Chr. 603. one with another, as iron cannot be mixed with clay.

44 And in the days of these kings, shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and this kingdom shall not be given to another people, but it shall break and destroy all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever.

45 Whereas thou sawest, that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold: so the great God hath shewed the king what shall come to pass hereafter, and the dream is true, and the interpretation thereof is sure.

46 ¶ Then the king Nebuchadnezzar fell upon his face, and bowed himself unto Daniel, and commanded that they should offer meat-offerings, and sweet odours unto him.

47 Also the king answered unto Daniel, and said, I know of a truth that your God is God of gods, and the Lord of kings, and the revealer of secrets, seeing thou couldest open this secret.

48 So the king made Daniel a great man, and gave him many and great gifts. He made him governor over the whole province of Babel, and chief of the rulers, and above all the wise men of Babel.

49 Then Daniel made request to the king, and he set Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, over the charge of the province of Babel: but Daniel sat in the gate of the king.

C H A P. III.

1 The king setteth up a golden image. 8 Certain are accused because they despised the king's commandment, and are put into a burning oven. 25 By belief in God they are delivered from the fire. 26 Nebuchadnezzar confesseth the power of God after the sight of the miracle.

NEbuchadnezzar the king made an image of gold, whose height was threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof six cubits: he set it up in the plain of Dura, in the province of Babel.

² Meaning Christ, who was sent of God, and not set up by man, whose kingdom at the beginning should be small, and without beauty to man's judgment, but should at length grow and fill the whole earth, which he calleth a great mountain, ver. 35. And this kingdom, which is not only referred to the person of Christ, but also the whole body of his church, and to every member thereof, shall be eternal: for the Spirit that is in them, is life eternal, Rom. 8. 10.

⁴ This confession was but a sudden motion, as it was also in Pharaoh, Exod. 9. 27, 28. but his heart was not touched, and appeared soon afterward.

⁵ Not that the prophet was desirous of gifts or honour, but because by this means he might relieve his poor brethren which were grievously oppressed in this their captivity, and also he received them, lest he should offend this cruel king, which willingly gave them.

⁶ He did this for their private profit, but that the whole church, which was then there in affliction, might have some release and ease by this benefit.

⁷ Meaning, that either he was a judge, or that he had the whole authority, so that none could be admitted to the king's presence but by him.

⁸ Under pretence of religion and holiness, in making an

Then Nebuchadnezzar the king sent forth to gather together the nobles, the princes, and the dukes, the judges, the receivers, the counsellors, the officers, and all the governors of the provinces, that they should come to the dedication of the image which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

3 So the nobles, princes and dukes, the judges, the receivers, the counsellors, the officers, and all the governors of the provinces, were assembled unto the dedicating of the image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up: and they stood before the image which Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

4 Then a herald cried aloud, Be it known to you, O people, nations, and languages,

5 That when you hear the sound of the cornet, trumpet, harp, sackbut, psaltery, dulcimer, and all instruments of musick, ye fall down and worship the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up:

6 And whosoever falleth not down and worshippeth, shall the same hour be cast into the midst of an hot fiery furnace.

7 Therefore soon all the people heard the sound of the cornet, trumpet, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and all instruments of musick, all the people, nations, and languages fell down, and worshipped the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

8 ¶ By reason whereof at that same time came men of the Chaldeans, and grievously accused the Jews:

9 For they spake and said to the king Nebuchadnezzar, O king, live for ever:

10 Thou, O King, hast made a decree, that every man that shall hear the sound of the cornet, trumpet, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all instruments of musick, shall fall down and worship the golden image:

11 And whosoever falleth not down, and worshippeth, that he should be cast into the midst of an hot fiery furnace:

12 There are certain Jews whom thou hast set over the charge of the province of Babel, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego: these men, image to his idol Bel, he sought his own ambition and vain glory: and this declareth that he was not touched with the true fear of God before, but that he confessed him on a sudden motion, as the wicked when they are overcome with the greatness of his works. The Greek interpreters write, that this was done eighteen years after the dream, and may appear the king feared lest the Jews by their religion should have altered the state of his commonwealth, and therefore he meant to bring all to one kind of religion, and so rather sought his own greatness than God's glory.

⁹ Shewing, that the idol is not known for an idol so long as he is with the workman: but when the ceremonies and customs are received and used, and the consent of the people is there, then of a block they think they have made a god.

¹⁰ This was sufficient with the wicked at all times to approve their religion, if the king's authority were alledged for the establishing thereof, not considering in the mean season what God's word did permit.

¹² It seemeth that they named not Daniel, because he was greatly in the king's favour, thinking if these three had been destroyed, they might have had better occasion to accuse Daniel: and this declareth that this policy of erecting this image was invented by the malicious flatterers, which sought nothing but the destruction of the Jews, whom they accused of rebellion and ingratitude.

20. O men, O king, have not regarded thy commandment, neither will they serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image that thou hast set up.

13 ¶ Then Nebuchadnezzar, in his anger and wrath, commanded that they should bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego: so these men were brought before the king.

14 ¶ And Nebuchadnezzar spake, and said unto them, What disorder? will not you, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, serve my god, nor worship the golden image that I have set up?

15 ¶ Now therefore, are ye ready, when ye hear the sound of the cornet, trumpet, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all instruments of musick, to fall down, and worship the image which I have made? for if ye worship it not, ye shall be cast immediately into the midst of an hot fiery furnace: for who is that God that can deliver you out of mine hands?

16 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego answered, and said to the king, O Nebuchadnezzar, we are not careful to answer thee in this matter.

17 Behold, our God whom we serve, is able to deliver us from the hot fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand, O king.

18 But if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.

19 ¶ Then was Nebuchadnezzar full of rage, and the form of his visage was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego: therefore he charged and commanded that they should heat the furnace at once seven times more than it was wont to be heated.

20 And he charged the most valiant men of war that were in his army, to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, and to cast them into the hot fiery furnace.

21 So these men were bound in their coats, their hose, and their cloaks, with their other garments, and cast into the midst of the hot fiery furnace.

22 Therefore, because the king's commandment was strait, that the furnace should be exceeding hot, the flame of the fire slew those men that brought forth Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego.

23 And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego fell down bound into the midst of the hot fiery furnace,

24 ¶ Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonished, and rose up in haste, and spake, and said unto his counsellors, Did not we cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? Who answered, and said unto the king, It is true, O king.

25 And he answered, and said, Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt, and the form of the fourth is like the son of God.

26 Then the king Nebuchadnezzar came near to the mouth of the hot fiery furnace, and spake and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, the servants of the high God, go forth, and come hither: so Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego came forth of the midst of the fire.

27 Then the nobles, princes, and dukes, and the king's counsellors came together to see these men, because the fire had no power over their bodies: for not an hair of their head was burnt, neither were their coats changed, nor any smell of fire come upon them.

28 ¶ Wherefore Nebuchadnezzar spake and said, Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, who hath sent his angel, and delivered his servants, that put their trust in him, and have changed the king's commandment, and yielded their bodies rather than they would serve or worship any god, save their own God.

29 Therefore I make a decree, that every people, nation and language, which speak any blasphemy against the God of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, shall be drawn in pieces, and their houses shall be made jakes, because there is no god that can deliver after this sort.

30 Then the king promoted Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, in the province of Babel.

31 Nebuchadnezzar king, unto all people, nations and languages, that dwell in all the world, Peace be multiplied unto you:

32 I thought it good to declare the signs and wonders that the high God hath wrought toward me.

33 How great are his signs, and how mighty are his wonders! his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his dominion is from generation to generation.

C H A P. IV.

2 Another dream of Nebuchadnezzar, which Daniel declareth. 29 The prophet declareth how of a proud king he should become as a beast. 31 After he confesseth the power of God, and is restored to his former dignity.

Nebuchadnezzar being at rest in mine house, and flourishing in my palace,

2 Saw a dream, which made me afraid, and the ¶ Signifying, that he would receive them to grace, if they would now at the length obey his decree.

¶ For they should have done injury to God, if they should have doubted in this holy cause, and therefore they say, that they are resolved to die for God's cause.

¶ They ground on two points, first, on the power and providence of God over them, and secondly, on their cause, which was God's glory, and the testifying of his true religion with their blood, and so make open confession, that they will not so much as outwardly consent to idolatry.

¶ This declareth that the more that tyrants rage, and the more witty they shew themselves in inventing strange and cruel punishments, the more is God glorified by his servants, to whom he giveth patience and constancy to abide the cruelty of their punishment, for either he delivereth them from death, or else for this life giveth them a better.

¶ For the angels were called the sons of God, because of their excellency: therefore the king called this angel, whom God sent to comfort his in these great torments, the son of God.

¶ This commendeth their obedience unto God, that they would not for any fear depart out of this furnace till the time appointed, as Noah remained in the ark till the Lord called him forth.

¶ He was moved by the greatness of the miracle to praise God, but his heart was not touched. And here we see that miracles are not sufficient to convert men to God, but that doctrine must chiefly be adjoined, without the which there can be no faith.

¶ If this heathen king, moved by God's Spirit, would not see blasphemy unpunished, but made law and set a punishment to such transgressors, much ought all they that profess religion, take order that such impiety reign not, lest according as their knowledge and charge is greater, so they suffer double punishment.

¶ Meaning, so far as his dominion extended.

¶ Read chap. 2. 44.

¶ There was no trouble that might cause him to dream, and therefore it was only of God.

¶ This is another dream besides that which he saw of the four empires: for Daniel both declared what that dream was, and what it meant: and here he only expoundeth the dream.

the thoughts upon my bed, and the visions of mine head troubled me.

3 Therefore made I a decree, that they should bring all the wise men of Babel before me, that they might declare unto me the interpretation of the dream.

4 So came the enchanters, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers, to whom I told the dream, but they could not shew me the interpretation thereof.

5 Till at the last Daniel came before me, (whose name was Belteshazzar, according to the name of my god, which hath the spirit of the holy gods in him) and before him I told the dream, saying,

6 O Belteshazzar, chief of the enchanters, because I know that the spirit of the holy gods is in thee, and no secret troubleth thee, tell me the vision of my dream that I have seen, and the interpretation thereof.

7 Thus were the visions of mine head in my bed. And behold, I saw a tree in the midst of the earth, and the height thereof was great:

A great tree and strong, and the height thereof reached unto heaven, and the sight thereof to the ends of all the earth.

9 The boughs thereof were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all: it made a shadow under it for the beasts of the field; and the fowls of the heaven dwelt in the boughs thereof, and all flesh fed of it.

10 I saw in the visions of mine head upon my bed, and behold, a watchman and an holy one came down from heaven, 11 And cried aloud, and said thus, Hew down the tree, and break off his branches: shake off his leaves, and scatter his fruit, that the beasts may flee from under it, and the fowls from his branches.

12 Nevertheless, leave the stump of his roots in the earth, and with a band of iron and brass bind it among the grass of the field, and let it be wet with the dew of heaven, and let his portion be with the beasts among the grass of the field.

13 Let his heart be changed from man's nature, and let a beast's heart be given unto him, and let seven times be passed over him.

14 The sentence is according to the decree of the watchmen, and according to the word of the holy ones: the demand was answered, to the intent that living men may know that the most High hath power over the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and appointeth over it the most abject among men.

² This no doubt was a great grief to Daniel, not only to have his name changed, but to be called by the name of a vile idol, which thing Nebuchadnezzar did, to make him forget the true religion of God.

³ Which also was a great grief to the prophet, to be numbered among the forcerers, and men whose practices were wicked, and contrary to God's word.

⁵ Meaning, the angel of God, which neither eateth nor sleepeth, but is ever ready to do God's will, and is not infected with man's corruption, but is ever holy: and in that that he commandeth to cut down this tree, he knew that it should not be cut down by man, but by God.

⁶ Hereby he meaneth that Nebuchadnezzar should only for a time lose his kingdom, but be like a beast.

⁷ God hath decreed this judgment, and the whole army

15 This is the dream, that I king Nebuchadnezzar have seen: therefore thou, O Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation thereof: for all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to shew me the interpretation: but thou art able, for the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.

16 ¶ Then Daniel (whose name was Belteshazzar) held his peace by the space of one hour, and his thoughts troubled him, and the king spake, and said, Belteshazzar, let neither the dream, nor the interpretation thereof, trouble thee. Belteshazzar answered, and said, My lord, the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof to thine enemies.

17 The tree that thou sawest, which was great and mighty, whose height reached unto the heaven, and the sight thereof through all the world,

18 Whose leaves were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all, under the which the beasts of the field dwelt; and upon whose branches the fowls of the heaven did sit,

19 It is thou, O king, that art great and mighty: for thy greatness is grown, and reacheth unto heaven, and thy dominions to the ends of the earth.

20 Whereas the king saw a watchman, and an holy one, that came down from heaven, and said, Hew down the tree and destroy it, yet leave the stump of the roots thereof in the earth, and with a band of iron and brass bind it among the grass of the field, and let it be wet with the dew of heaven, and let his portion be with the beasts of the field, till seven times pass over him.

21 This is the interpretation, O king, and it is the decree of the most High, which is come upon my lord the king:

22 That they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field: they shall make thee eat grass as the oxen, and they shall wet thee with the dew of heaven: and seven times shall pass over thee, till thou know that the most High beareth rule over the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

23 Whereas they said, that one should leave the stump of the tree roots, thy kingdom shall remain unto thee: after that, thou shalt know that the heavens have the rule.

24 Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by mercy toward the poor: so, let there be a healing of thine error.

of heaven have, as it were, subscribed unto it, like as also they desire the execution of his decree against all them that lift up themselves against God.

¹ He was troubled for the great judgment of God which he saw ordained against the king: and so the prophets used, on the one part, to denounce God's judgments for the zeal they bear to his glory: and on the other part, to have compassion upon man, and also to consider, that they should be subject to God's judgments, if they did not regard them with pity.

² Whereby he meaneth a long space, as seven years. Some interpret seven months, and others seven weeks, but it seemeth he meant of years.

³ Not that his shape or form changed into a beast, but that he was either stricken mad, and so avoided man's company, or was cast out for his tyranny, and so wandered among the beasts, and ate herbs and grass.

⁴ Daniel sheweth the cause why God thus punished him.

⁵ Cease from provoking God to anger any longer by thy sins, that he may mitigate his punishment, if thou shew by thine upright life that thou hast true faith and repentance.

⁶ Suffer the errors of thy former life to be redressed.

25 All these things shall come upon the king Nebuchadnezzar.

26 At the end of twelve months, he walked in the royal palace of Babel.

27 And the king spake, and said, Is not this great Babel, that I have built for the house of the kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty?

28 While the word was in the king's mouth; a voice came down from heaven, saying, O king Nebuchadnezzar, to thee be it spoken, Thy kingdom is departed from thee,

29 And they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field:
they shall make thee to eat grass as the oxen, and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou knowest that the most High beareth rule over the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

30 The very same hour was this thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar, and he was driven from men, and did eat grass as the oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, till his hairs were grown as eagles feathers, and his nails like birds claws.

31 And at the end of these days, I Nebuchadnezzar lift up mine eyes unto heaven, and mine understanding was restored unto me, and I gave thanks unto the most High, and I praised and honoured him that liveth for ever, whose power is an everlasting power, and his kingdom is from generation to generation.

32 And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and according to his will he worketh in the army of heaven, and in the inhabitants of the earth, and none can stay his hand, nor say unto him, What doest thou?

33 At the same time was mine understanding restored unto me, and I returned to the honour of my kingdom: my glory and my beauty was restored unto me, and my counsellors and my princes sought unto me, and I was established in my kingdom, and my glory was augmented toward me.

34 Now therefore, I Nebuchadnezzar praise and extol and magnify the King of heaven, whose works are all truth, and his ways judgment; and those that walk in pride, he is able to abase.

CHAPTER V.

1 Belshazzar king of Babylon seeth a band-writing on the wall. The soothsayers called of the king cannot expound the writing. 25 Daniel readeth

After that Daniel had declared this vision: and this his pride declareth that it is in man to convert God, except his Spirit move him, seeing that these terrible threatenings could not move him to repent.

When the term of these seven years was accomplished.

He confesseth God's will be the rule of all justice, and a most perfect law whereby he governeth both man and angel, and devils, so that none ought to murmur, or ask a reason of his doing, but only stand content therewith, and give him the glory.

By whom it seemeth that he had been put from his kingdom before.

He doth not only praise God for his deliverance, but also confesseth his fault, that God may only have the glory, and man the shame, and that he may be exalted, and man cast down.

Daniel reciteth the history of king Belshazzar, Evilmerodach's son, to shew God's judgments against the wicked for the deliverance of his church, and how the prophecy of Jeremiah was true, that they should be delivered after seventy years.

The kings of the east parts then used to sit alone commonly, and disdained that any should sit in their company:

it, and interpreteth it also. 30 The king is slain. Ref. Chr.
31 Darius enjoyeth the kingdom. 538.

KING Belshazzar made a great feast to a thousand of his princes, and drank wine before the thousand.

And Belshazzar, while he tasted the wine, commanded to bring him the golden and silver vessels, which his father Nebuchadnezzar had brought from the temple in Jerusalem, that the king and his princes, his wives and his concubines, might drink therein.

3 Then were brought the golden vessels that were taken out of the temple of the Lord's house at Jerusalem, and the king and his princes, his wives and his concubines, drank in them.

4 They drank wine, and praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone.

5 At the same hour appeared fingers of man's hand, which wrote over-against the candlestick upon the plaister of the wall of the king's palace, and the king saw the palm of the hand that wrote.

6 Then the king's countenance was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the joints of his loins were loosed; and his knees smote one against the other.

7 Wherefore the king cried aloud, that they should bring the astrologers, the Chaldeans and the soothsayers. And the king spake, and said to the wise men of Babel, Whosoever can read this writing, and declare me the interpretation thereof, shall be clothed with purple, and shall have a chain of gold about his neck, and shall be the third ruler in the kingdom.

8 Then came all the king's wise-men, but they could neither read the writing, nor shew the king the interpretation.

9 Then was king Belshazzar greatly troubled, and his countenance was changed in him, and his princes were astonished.

10 Now the queen, by reason of the talk of the king and his princes, came into the banquet-house, and the queen spake, and said, O king, live for ever: let not thy thoughts trouble thee, nor let thy countenance be changed:

11 There is a man in thy kingdom, in whom is the spirit of the holy gods, and in the days of thy father, light and understanding and wisdom, like the wisdom of the gods, was found in him:
whom the king Nebuchadnezzar thy father, the king, I say, thy father, made chief of the inchanters, astrologers, Chaldeans, and sooth-sayers.

12 Because and now to shew his power, and how little he set by his enemy, which then besieged Babylon, he made a solemn banquet, and used excess in their company, which is meant here by drinking wine: thus the wicked are most dissolute and negligent, when their destruction is at hand.

Meaning, his grandfather.

In contempt of the true God, they praised their idols;
not that they thought that the gold or silver were gods, but that there was certain virtue and power in them to do them good, which is also the opinion of all idolaters.

That it might the better be seen.

So he that before contemned God, was moved by this sight to tremble for fear of God's judgments.

Thus the wicked in their troubles seek many means, which draw them from God, because they seek not him who is the only comfort in all afflictions.

To wit, his grandmother; Nebuchadnezzar's wife, which for her age was not before the feast, but came thither when she heard of these strange news.

Read chap. 4. 6. and this declareth, that both this name was odious unto him, and that he did not use these vile practices, because he was not among them when all were called.

Bef. Chr. 538. 12 Because a more excellent spirit, and knowledge, and understanding (for he did expound dreams, and declare hard sentences, and dissolved doubts) were found in him, even in Daniel, whom the king named Belteshazzar: now let Daniel be called, and he will declare the interpretation.

13 ¶ Then was Daniel brought before the king, and the king spake, and said unto Daniel, Art thou that Daniel, which art of the children, of the captivity of Judah, whom my father the king brought out of Jewry?

14 Now, I have heard of thee, that the spirit of the holy gods is in thee, and that light, and understanding, and excellent wisdom is found in thee.

15 Now therefore, wise men, and astrologers have been brought before me, that they should read this writing, and shew me the interpretation thereof: but they could not declare the interpretation of the thing.

16 Then heard I of thee, that thou couldst shew interpretations, and dissolve doubts: now if thou canst read the writing, and shew the interpretation thereof, thou shalt be clothed with purple, and shalt have a chain of gold about thy neck, and shalt be the third ruler in the kingdom.

17 Then Daniel answered, and said before the king, Keep thy rewards thyself, and give thy gifts to another: yet I will read the writing unto the king, and shew him the interpretation.

18 O king, bear thou, The most high God gave unto Nebuchadnezzar thy father a kingdom, and majesty, and honour, and glory.

19 And for the majesty that he gave him, all people, nations, and languages trembled, and feared before him: he put to death whom he would: he smote whom he would: whom he would he set up, and whom he would he put down.

20 But when his heart was puffed up, and his mind hardened in pride, he was deposed from his kingly throne, and they took his honour from him.

21 And he was driven from the sons of men, and his heart was made like the beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild asses: they fed him with grass like oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, till he knew that the most high God bare rule over the kingdom of men, and that he appointeth over it whomsoever he pleaseth.

22 And thou his son, O Belshazzar, hast not humbled thine heart, though thou knewest all these things,

23 But hast lifted thyself up against the Lord of heaven, and they have brought the vessels of his house before thee, and thou and thy princes, thy wives and thy concubines, have drunk wine in them, and thou hast praised the gods of silver and gold, of brass, iron, wood and stone, which neither see, neither hear, nor understand: and the God, in whose hand thy breath is, and all thy ways, him hast thou not glorified.

24 Then was the palm of the hand sent from him, and hath written this writing.

25 And this is the writing that he hath written, MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN.

26 This is the interpretation of the thing, MENE, God hath numbered thy kingdom, and hath finished it.

27 TEKEL, Thou art weighed in the balance, and art found too light.

28 PERES, Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians.

29 Then at the commandment of Belshazzar they clothed Daniel with purple, and put a chain of gold about his neck, and made a proclamation concerning him, that he should be the third ruler in the kingdom.

30 The same night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain.

31 And Darius of the Medes took the kingdom, being threescore and two years old.

C H A P. VI.

Daniel is made ruler over the governors. 5 An act against Daniel. 16 He is put into a den of lions by the commandment of the king. 23 He is delivered by faith in God. 24 Daniel's accusers are put unto the lions. 25 Darius by decree magnifieth the God of Daniel.

¶ It pleased Darius to set over the kingdom an hundred and twenty governors, which should be over the whole kingdom,

2 And over these, three rulers (of whom Daniel was one) that the governors might give accounts unto them, and the king should have no damage.

3 Now this Daniel was preferred above the rulers and governors, because the spirit was excellent in him, and the king thought to set him over the whole realm.

4 ¶ Wherefore the rulers and governors sought an occasion against Daniel concerning the kingdom: but they could find none occasion or fault: for he was so faithful, that there was no blame nor fault found in him.

5 Then said these men, We shall not find occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God.

6 Therefore the rulers and these governors went together to the king, and said thus unto him, King Darius, live for ever.

7 All the rulers of the kingdom, the officers and governors, the countessors and dukes, have consulted together to make a decree for the king, and to establish a statute, that whosoever shall ask

† Or, wast-ind.

† Or, not he troubled.

* For the idolaters thought that the angels had power as God, and therefore had them in like estimation as they had God, thinking that the spirit of prophecy and understanding came of them.

† Before he read the writing, he declareth the king his great ingratitude toward God, who could not be moved to give him the glory, considering his wonderful work toward his grandfather, and so sheweth, that he doth not sin of ignorance, but of malice.

‡ After that God had so long time deferred his anger, and patiently waited for thine amendment.

§ This word is twice written for the certainty of the thing, shewing that God had most surely counted; signify ng also that God hath appointed a term for all kingdoms, and that a miserable end shall come all that raise themselves against him.

¶ Cyrus his son-in-law gave him this title of honour, although Cyrus in effect had the dominion.

‡ Read Esther chap. 1. 1.

§ This heathen king preferred Daniel a stranger to all his nobles and familiars, because the graces of God were excellent in him than in others.

¶ Thus the wicked cannot abide the graces of God in others, but seek by all occasions to deface them: therefore against such assaults there is no better remedy than to walk uprightly in the fear of God, and have a good conscience.

557. 18 ¶ petition of any god or man for thirty days, save of thee, O king, he shall be cast into the den of lions.

8 Now, O king, confirm the decree, and seal the writing, that it be not changed according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

9 Wherefore king Darius sealed the writing and the decree.

10 ¶ Now when Daniel understood that he had sealed the writing, he went into his house, and his window being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and praised his God, as he did aforesaid.

11 Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying, and making supplication unto his God.

12 So they came, and spake unto the king, concerning the king's decree, Hast thou not sealed the decree, that every man that shall make a request to any god or man within thirty days, save to thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The thing is true, according the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

13 Then answered they, and said unto the king, This Daniel, which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not thee, O king, nor the decree that thou hast sealed, but maketh his petition three times a day.

14 When the king heard these words, he was sore displeased with himself, and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him: and he laboured till the sun went down, to deliver him.

15 Then these men assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, Understand, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that no decree nor statute which the king confirmeth may be altered.

16 ¶ Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions: now the king spake, and said unto Daniel, Thy God, whom thou alway servest, even he will deliver thee.

17 And a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den, and the king sealed it with his own signet, and with the signet of his princes, that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.

18 Then the king went unto his palace, and remained fasting, neither were the instruments of musick brought before him, and his sleep went from him.

^f Herein is condemned the wickedness of the king, who would be set up as a god, and passed not what wicked laws he approved for the maintenance of the same.

¶ Because he would not by his silence shew that he consented to this wicked decree, he set open his windows toward Jerusalem, when he prayed: both to stir up himself with the remembrance of God's promises to his people when they should pray toward that temple, and also that others might see that he would neither consent in heart nor deed for these few days, any thing that was contrary to God's glory.

^g Thus the wicked maintain evil laws by constancy and authority, which is oft-times either lightness or stubbornness, whereas the innocents thereby perish: and therefore governors neither ought to fear, nor be ashamed to break such.

ⁱ This declareth that Darius was not touched with the true knowledge of God, because he doubted of his power.

^k My just cause and uprightness is this thing wherein I was charged, is approved of God.

^l For he did disobey the king's commandment to obey God, and so did injury to the king, who ought to command nothing whereby God should be dishonoured.

^m Because he committed himself wholly unto God whose 19 ¶ Then the king rose early in the morning, and went in all haste unto the den of lions. Ref. Chr. 557.

20 And when he came to the den, he cried with a lamentable voice unto Daniel: and the king spake, and said unto Daniel, O Daniel, the servant of the living God, is not thy God, (whom thou alway servest) able to deliver thee from the lions?

21 Then Daniel said unto the king, O king, live for ever.

22 My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths; that they have not hurt me: for my justice was found out before him: and unto thee, O king, I have done no hurt.

23 Then was the king exceedingly glad for him, and commanded that they should take Daniel out of the den: so Daniel was brought out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God.

24 And by the commandment of the king, these men which had accused Daniel, were brought, and were cast into the den of lions, even they, their children, and their wives: and the lions had the mastery of them, and brake all their bones a-pieces or ever they came at the ground of the den.

25 ¶ Afterward king Darius wrote, Unto all people, nations and languages, that dwell in all the world: Peace be multiplied unto you.

26 I make a decree, that in all the dominion of my kingdom, men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel: for he is the living God, and remaineth for ever, and his kingdom shall not perish, and his dominion shall be everlasting:

27 He rescueth and delivereth, and he worketh signs and wonders in heaven and in earth, who hath delivered Daniel from the power of the lions.

28 So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of Cyrus of Persia.

C H A P. VII.

¶ A vision of four beasts is shewed unto Daniel. 8
The ten horns of the fourth beast. 27 Of the everlasting kingdom of Christ.

IN the first year of Belshazzar king of Babel, Daniel saw a dream, and there were visions in his head, upon his bed: then he wrote the dream, and declared the sum of the matter.

2 Daniel,

cause he did defend, he was assured, that nothing but good could come unto him: wherein we see the power of faith, ¶ Heb. 11. 33.

^a This is a terrible example against all the wicked, which do against their conscience make cruel laws to destroy the children of God, and also admonisheth princes how to punish such, when their wickedness is come to light: though not in every point, or with such-like circumstances, yet to execute true justice upon them.

^b This proveth that Darius did worship God aright, or else was converted: for then he would have destroyed all superstition and idolatry, and not only given God the chief place, but also have set him up, and caused him to be honoured according to his word: but this was a certain confession of God's power, whereunto he was compelled by this wonderful miracle.

^c Which hath not only life in himself, but is the only fountain of life, and quickeneth all things, so that without him there is no life.

^d Whereas the people of Israel looked for a continual quietness after these seventy years, as Jeremiah had declared, he sheweth that this rest shall not be a deliverance from all troubles, but a beginning, and therefore encourageth them

Bef. Chr. 555. Daniel spake and said, I saw in my vision by night, and behold, the four winds of heaven strove upon the great sea:

3 And four great beasts came up from the sea, one diverse from another.

4 The first was a lion, and had eagles wings: I beheld, till the wings thereof were pluckt off, and it was lifted up from the earth, and set upon his feet a man, and a man's heart was given him.

5 And behold, another beast which was the second, was like a bear, and stood upon the one side: and he had three ribs in his mouth between his teeth, and they said thus unto him, Arise, and devour much flesh.

6 After this, I beheld, and lo, there was another like a leopard, which had upon his back four wings of fowl: the beast had also four heads, and dominion was given him.

7 After this, I saw in the visions by night, and behold, the fourth beast was fearful and terrible, and very strong. It had great iron teeth: it devoured and brake in pieces and stamped the residue under his feet: and it was unlike to the beasts that were before it: for it had ten horns.

As I considered the horns, behold, there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns pluckt away: and behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking presumptuous things.

them to look for a continual affliction, till the Messiah be uttered and revealed, by whom they should have a spiritual deliverance, and all the promises fulfilled: whereof they should have a certain token in the destruction of the Babylonical kingdom.

Which signified that there should be horrible troubles and afflictions in all the corners of the world, and at sundry times.

Meaning, the Assyrian and Chaldean empire, which was most strong and fierce in power, and must soon come to their authority, though they had wings to fly, yet their wings were pulled by the Persians, and they went on their feet, and were made like other men, which is here meant by man's heart.

Meaning, the Persians, which were barbarous and cruel.

They were small in the beginning, and were shut up in the mountains, and had no bruit.

That is, destroyed many kingdoms, and insatiable.

To wit, the angels by God's commandment, who by this means punished the ingratitude of the world.

Meaning, Alexander king of Macedonia.

That is, his four chief captains, which had the empire among them after his death. Seleucus had Asia the great, Antigonus the less, Cassander, and after him Antipater, was king of Macedonia, and Ptolomæus had Egypt.

It was not of himself, nor of his own power, that he got all these countries: for his armies contained but thirty thousand men, and he overcame in battle Darius, which had ten hundred thousand, when he was so heavy with sleep that his eyes were scarce open, the stories report: therefore this power was given him of God.

That is, the Roman empire, which was a monster, and could not be compared to any beast, because the nature of none was able to express it.

Signifying, the tyranny and greediness of the Romans.

That which the Romans could quietly enjoy in other countries, they would give it to other kings and rulers, that at all times when they would they might take it again: which liberality is here called, the stamping of the rest under the feet.

That is, sundry and divers provinces which were governed by the deputies and proconsuls, whereof every one may be compared to a king:

Which is meant of Julius Cæsar, Augustus, Tiberius, Caligula, Claudius and Nero, &c. who were as kings in effect, but because they could not rule but by the consent of the senate, their power is compared to a little horn. For Mahomet came not of the Roman empire; and the pope hath no vocation of government: therefore this cannot be applied 9 I beheld, till the thrones were set up; and the Ancient of days did sit, whose garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool: his throne was like the fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire.

10 A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him: thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand thousands stood before him: the judgment was set, and the books opened.

11 Then I beheld, because of the voice of the presumptuous words, which the horn spake: I beheld, even till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning fire.

12 As concerning the other beasts, they had taken away their dominion: yet their lives were prolonged for a certain time and season.

13 ¶ As I beheld in visions by night, behold, like the Son of man came in the clouds of heaven, and approached unto the Ancient of days, and they brought him before him.

14 And he gave him dominion and honour, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which never shall be taken away: and his kingdom shall never be destroyed.

15 I Daniel was troubled in my spirit, in the midst of my body, and the visions of mine head made me afraid.

16 Therefore I came unto one of them that stood by, and asked him the truth of all this:

this:

unto them: and also in this prophecy the prophet's purpose is chiefly to comfort the Jews in the revelation of Christ. Some take it for the whole body of Antichrist.

Meaning, a certain portion of the ten horns: that is, a part from the whole estate pluckt away. For Augustus took from the senate the liberty of choosing the deputies to send into the provinces, and took the government of certain countries to himself.

These Roman emperors at the first used a certain humanity and gentleness, and were content that others, the consuls and senates, should bear the burden of dignity, so that they might have the profit, and therefore in elections and counsels would behave themselves according as did other senators: yet against their enemies, and those that would resist them, they were fierce and cruel, which is here meant by the proud mouth.

Meaning, the places where God and his angels should judge these monarchies; which judgment should begin at the first coming of Christ.

That is, God, which was before all times, and is here described as man's nature is able to comprehend some portion of his glory.

That is, an infinite number of angels, which were ready to execute his commandment.

This is meant of the first coming of Christ, when as the will of God was plainly revealed by his gospel.

Meaning, that he was astonished; when he saw these emperors in such dignity and pride, and so suddenly destroyed at the coming of Christ, when this fourth monarchy was subject to other nations.

As the three former monarchies had an end at the time that God appointed, although they flourished for a time, to shall this fourth have, and they that patiently abide God's appointment, shall enjoy the promises.

Which is meant of Christ, who had not yet taken upon him man's nature, neither the son of David according to the flesh, as he was afterward: but appeared then in a figure, and that in the clouds: that is, being separate from the common sort of men by manifest signs of his divinity.

To wit, when he ascended into the heavens, and his divine majesty appeared, and all power was given unto him in respect of that, that he was our Mediator.

This is meant of the beginning of Christ's kingdom, when God the Father gave unto him all dominion, as the Mediator, the intent that he should govern here his church in earth continually, till the time that he brought them to eternal life.

Through the strangeness of the vision.

Meaning, of the angel, ver. 10.

Bef. Chr. 555.

555. Ref. Chr. this: so he told me, and shewed me the interpretation of these things.

17 These great beasts which are four, are four kings which shall arise out of the earth, 18 And they shall take the ^a kingdom of the saints of the ^b Most High, which shall possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever.

19 ¶ After this I would know the truth of the fourth beast, which was so ^c unlike to all the others, very fearful, whose teeth were of iron, and his nails of brass: which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the ^d residue under his feet.

20 Also to know of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which came up, before whom three fell, and of the horn that had eyes, and of the mouth that spake presumptuous things, whose ^e look was more stout than his fellows.

21 I beheld, and the same ^f horn made battle against the saints, yea, and prevailed against them, 22 Until ^g the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High: and the time approached that the saints possessed the kingdom.

23 Then he said, The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom in the earth, which shall be unlike to all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down and break it in pieces.

24 And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall rise: and another shall rise after them, and he shall be unlike to the first, and he shall subdue ^h three kings,

25 And shall speak words against ⁱ the Most High, and shall consume the saints of the Most High, and think that he may ^j change times and laws, and they shall be given into his hand, until a ^k time and times, and the dividing of time.

26 But the ^l judgment shall sit, and they that take away his dominion to consume and destroy it unto the end. Ref. Chr. 555.

27 And the ^m kingdom, and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the holy people of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all ⁿ powers shall serve and obey him.

28 Even this is the end of the matter, I Daniel had many ^o cogitations which troubled me, and my countenance changed in me: but I kept the matter in mine heart.

C H A P. VIII.

A vision of ^p battle between a ram and a goat. 20
The understanding of the vision.

IN the third year of the reign of king Belshazzar, ^q vision appeared unto me, even unto me Daniel, ^r after that which appeared unto me at the first.

2 And I saw in a vision, and when I saw it, I was in the palace of Shushan, which is in the province ^s of Elam, and in a vision methought I was by the river of Ulai.

3 Then I looked up and saw, and behold, there stood before the river a ^t ram, which had two horns: and these two horns were high: but one was ^u higher than another, and the highest came up last.

4 And I saw the ram pushing against the West, and against the North, and against the South: so that no ^v beasts might stand before him, nor could deliver out of his hand, but he did what he listed, and became great.

5 And as I considered, behold, ^w a goat came from the West over the whole earth, and touched not the ground: and this goat had an ^x horn that appeared between his eyes.

6 And he came unto the ram that had the two horns, whom I had seen standing by the river, and ran unto him in his fierce rage.

7 And

^a Because Abraham was appointed heir of all the world, Rom. 4. 13. and in him all the faithful, therefore the kingdom thereof is theirs by right, which these four beasts or tyrants should invade and usurp until the world were restored by Christ: and this was to confirm them that were in troubles, that their afflictions should have an end at length.

^b That is, of the most high things, because God hath chosen them out of this world, that they should look up to the heavens, whereon all their hope dependeth.

^c For the other three monarchies were governed by a king, and the Roman empire by consuls: the Romans changed their governors yearly, and the other monarchies retained them for term of life: also the Romans were the strongest of all the other, and were never quiet among themselves.

^d Read ver 7.

^e This is meant of the fourth beast, which was more terrible than the other.

^f Meaning, the Roman emperors, who were most cruel against the church of God, both of the Jews and of the Gentiles.

^g Till God shewed his power in the person of Christ, and by the preaching of the gospel gave unto his some rest, and so obtained a famous name in the world, and were called the church of God, or the kingdom of God.

^h Read the exposition hereof, ver. 8.

ⁱ That is, shall make wicked decrees and proclamations against God's word, and send throughout all their dominion, to destroy all that did profess it.

^j These emperors shall not consider that they have their power of God, but think it is in their own power ^k change God's laws and man's, and ^l it were the order of nature, as appeareth by Octavius, Tiberius, Caligula, Nero, Domitianus, &c.

^k God shall suffer them thus ^m rage against his saints for a long time, which is meant by the time and times, but at length he will assuage these troubles, and shorten the times for his elect's sake, Matt. 24. 22. which is here meant by the dividing of time.

^l God by his power shall restore things that were out of order, and so destroy this little horn, that it shall never rise up again.

^m He sheweth wherefore the beast should be destroyed, to wit, that his church might have rest and quietness, which though they do not fully enjoy here, yet they have it in hope, and by the preaching of the gospel enjoy the beginning thereof, which is meant, by these words, 'under the heaven:' and therefore he here speaketh of the beginning of Christ's kingdom in this world, which kingdom the faithful have by the participation that they have with Christ their head.

ⁿ That is, some of every sort that bear rule.

^o Tho' he had many motions in his heart, which moved him to and fro to seek out this matter curiously: yet he was content with that which God revealed, and kept it in memory, and wrote it for the use of the church.

^p After the general vision he cometh to certain particular visions: as touching the destruction of the monarchy of the Persians and Macedonians: for the ruin of the Babylonians was at hand, and also he had sufficiently spoken thereof.

^q That is, of Persia.

^r Which representeth the kingdom of the Persians and Medes, which were joined together.

^s Meaning, Cyrus, which after grew greater in power than Darius his uncle and father-in-law.

^t That is, ^u kings or nations.

^u Meaning, Alexander that came from Greece, with great speed and expedition.

^v Though he came in the ^w of all Greece, yet he bare the title and dignity of the general captain, so that the strength was attributed to him which is meant by this horn.

7 And I saw him come unto the ram, and being moved against him, he smote the ram, and brake his two horns: and there was power in the ram to stand against him, but he cast him down to the ground, and stamped upon him, and there was none that could deliver the ram out of his power.

Therefore the goat waxed exceeding great, and when he was at the strongest, his great horn was broken: and for it came up four that appeared toward the four winds of the heaven.

9 And out of one of them came forth a little horn, which waxed very great toward the South, and toward the East, and toward the pleasant land.

10 Yea, it grew up unto the host of heaven, and it cast down some of the host, and of the stars to the ground, and trod upon them,

11 And extolled himself against the Prince of the host, from whom the daily sacrifice was taken away, and the place of his sanctuary was cast down.

12 And a time shall be given him over the daily sacrifice for the iniquity: and it shall cast down the truth to the ground, and thus shall it do, and prosper.

13 Then I heard one of the saints speaking, and one of the saints spake unto a certain one, saying, How long shall I endure the vision of the daily sacrifice, and the iniquity of the desolation to tread both the sanctuary and the army under foot?

14 And he answered me, Unto the evening and the morning, two thousand and three hundred: then shall the sanctuary be cleansed.

15 ¶ Now when I Daniel had seen the vision, and sought for the meaning, behold, there stood before me like the similitude of a man.

16 And I heard a man's voice between the banks of Ulai, which called, and said, Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision.

17 So he came where I stood: and when he came, I was afraid, and fell upon my face: but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man: for in the last time shall be the vision. Bef. Chr. 553.

18 Now as he speaking unto me, I being asleep, fell on my face on the ground: but he touched me, and set me up in my place.

19 And he said, Behold, I will shew thee what shall be in the last wrath: for in the end of the time appointed it shall come.

20 The which thou sawest having two horns, are the kings of the Medes and Persians.

21 And the goat is the king of Greece, and the great horn that is between his eyes is the first king.

22 And that that is broken, and four stood up for it, are four kingdoms, which shall stand up of that nation, but not in his strength.

23 And in the end of their kingdom, when the rebellious shall be consumed, a king of fierce countenance, and understanding dark sentences, shall stand up:

24 And his power shall be mighty, but not in his strength: and he shall destroy wonderfully, and shall prosper, and practise, and shall destroy the mighty, and the holy people.

25 And through his policy also, he shall cause craft to prosper in his hand, and he shall extol himself in his heart, and by peace shall destroy many: he shall also stand up against the Prince of princes, but he shall be broken down without hand.

26 And the vision of the evening and the morning, which is declared, is true: therefore seal thou up the vision, for it shall be after many days.

27 And I Daniel was stricken and sick certain days: but when I rose up, I did the king's business, and I was astonished at the vision, but none understood it.

* Alexander overcame Darius in two sundry battles, and so had the two kingdoms of the Medes and Persians.

* Alexander's great power was broken, for when he had overcome all the East, he thought to return toward Grecia to subdue them that there had rebelled, and so died by the way.

C H A P. X.

There appeareth unto Daniel a man clothed in linen:

11 Which sheweth him wherefore he is sent.

IN the ^d third year of Cyrus king of Persia, a thing was revealed unto Daniel (whose name was called Belteshazzar) and the word was true, but the time appointed was ^c long, and he understood the thing, and had understanding of the vision.

2 At the same time I Daniel was in heaviness for three weeks of days.

3 I ate no pleasant bread, neither came flesh nor wine in my mouth, neither did I anoint myself at all, till three weeks of days were fulfilled.

4 Then in the four and twentieth day of the ^f first month, as I ^z was by the side of that great river, even Hiddekel,

5 And I lift up mine eyes, and looked, and behold, there was ^m man ^b clothed in linen, whose loins were girded with fine gold of ^{*} Uphaz: Bef. Chr. 534+ Jer. 10. 9.

6 His body also was like the chrysolite, and his face (to look upon) like the lightning, and his eyes ^m lamps of fire, and his arms and his feet were like in colour to polished brass, and the voice of his words was like the voice of ^m multitude.

7 And I Daniel alone saw the vision: for the men that were with me saw not the vision: but ^m great fear fell upon them, so that they fled away and hid themselves.

^m Therefore I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me: for ^l my strength was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no power.

9 Yet heard I the voice of his words: and when I heard the voice of his words, I slept on my face: and my face was toward the ground.

10 And behold, an ^k hand touched me, which set me upon my knees, and upon the palms of mine hands.

11 And he said unto me, O Daniel, a man greatly beloved, understand the words that I speak unto thee, and stand in thy place: for unto thee am I now sent. And when he had said this word unto me, I stood trembling.

12 Then said he unto me, Fear not, Daniel: for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to humble thyself before thy God, thy words were heard, and I am come for thy words.

13 But the ^l prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days: but lo, ^m Michael one of the chief princes, came to help me, and I remained there by the kings of Persia.

14 Now I am come to shew thee what shall come to thy people in the latter days: for yet the ^a vision is for many days.

15 And when he spake these words unto me, I set my face toward the ground, and held my tongue.

16 And behold, ^m one like the similitude of the sons of man touched my lips: then I opened

^m He alludeth to Jeremiah's prophecy, who prophesied that their captivity should be seventy years: but now God's mercy should sevenfold exceed his judgment, which should be four hundred and ninety years, even to the coming of Christ, and so then it should continue for ever.

^a Meaning Daniel's nation, over whom he was careful.

^b To shew mercy, and to put sin out of remembrance.

^c That is, from the time that Cyrus gave them leave ^m depart.

^d These weeks make forty-nine years, whereof 46 ^m referred to the time of the building of the temple, and three to the laying of the foundation.

^e Counting from the sixth year of Darius, who gave the second commandment for the building of the temple, ^m sixty-two weeks, which make four hundred and thirty-nine years, which comprehend the time from this building of the temple, unto the baptism of Christ.

^f In this last week of the seventy shall Christ come and preach, and suffer death.

^g He shall seem to have ^m beauty, nor to be of any estimation, as Isa. 53. 2.

^h Meaning Titus, Vespasian's son, who should come and destroy both the temple and the people, without all hope of recovery.

ⁱ By the preaching of the gospel he confirmed his promise, first to the Jews, and after to the Gentiles.

^j Christ accomplished this by his death and resurrection.

^k Meaning, that Jerusalem and the sanctuary should be utterly destroyed for their rebellion against God, and their idolatry: or ^m some read, that the plagues shall be so great, that they shall all be astonished ^m them.

^l He noteth this third year, because at this time the building of the temple began to be hindered by Cambyfes, Cyrus's son, when the father made war in Asia minor against the Scythians, which was ^m discouraging to the godly, and a great fear to Daniel.

^c Which is to declare that the godly should not hasten too much, but patiently abide the issue of God's promise.

^d Called Abib, which containeth part of March and part of April.

^e Being carried by the spirit of prophecy to have the sight of this river Tygris.

^f This was the angel of God, which was sent to assure Daniel in this prophecy that followeth.

^g The word also signifieth, comeliness or beauty, so that for fear he was like ^m dead man for deformity.

^h Which declareth, that when we are stricken down with the majesty of God, we cannot rise, except he also lift us up with his hand, which is his power.

ⁱ Meaning, Cambyfes, who reigned in his father's absence, and did not only for this space hinder the building of the temple, but would have further raged, if God had ^m sent me to resist him, and therefore have I staid for the profit of the church.

^j Though God could by ^m angel destroy all the world, yet to assure his children of his love, he sendeth forth double power, even Michael, that is, Christ Jesus, the head of angels.

^k For though the prophet Daniel should end and cease, yet his doctrine should continue till the coming of Christ, for the comfort of his church.

^l This was the same angel that spake with him before in the similitude of a man.

534 Bes. Chr. my mouth and spake, and said unto him that stood before me, O my lord, ^p by the vision my sorrows are returned upon me, and I have retained no strength.

17 For how can the servant of this my lord talk with my lord, being such one? for ■ for me, straightway there remained no strength in me, neither is there breath left in me.

18 Then there came again and touched me, one like the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me, 19 And said, O man, greatly beloved, fear not: ^q peace be unto thee: be strong and of good courage. And when he had spoken unto me, I ^r was strengthened, and said, Let my Lord speak, for thou hast strengthened me.

20 Then said he, Knowest thou wherefore I am come unto thee? but now will I return to fight with the prince of Persia: and when I am gone forth, lo, the ^s prince of Grecia shall come.

21 But I will shew thee that which is decreed in the scripture of truth: ^t and there is none that holdeth with me in these things, but Michael your prince.

C H A P. XI.

A prophecy of the kingdoms which should be enemies to the church of God, as of Persia, 3 of Grecia, 5 of Egypt, 28 of Syria, 36 and of the Romans.

ALSO I, in the first year of Darius of the Medes, even I ^u stood to encourage and ■ strengthen him.

2 And now will I shew thee the truth, Behold, ■ here shall stand up yet ^v three kings in Persia, ■ and the fourth shall be far richer than they all: and by his strength, and by his riches, he shall stir up ^w all against the realm of Grecia.

3 But a ^x mighty king shall stand up, that shall rule with great dominion, and do according to his pleasure.

^p I was overcome with fear and sorrow, when ■ saw the vision.

^q He declareth hereby, that God would be merciful unto the people of Israel.

^r Which declareth, that when God smiteth down his children, he doth not immediately lift them up at once, (for now the angel had touched him twice) but by little and little.

^s Meaning, that he would not only himself bridle the rage of Cambyses, but also the other kings of Persia, by Alexander the king of Macedonia.

^t For this angel was appointed for the defence of the church under Christ, who is the head thereof.

^u The angel assureth Daniel, that God hath given him power to perform these things, seeing he appointed him ■ assist Darius, when he overcame the Chaldeans.

^v Whereof Cambyses that now reigned, was the first, the second Smerdis, the third Darius the son of Hystaspes, and the fourth Xerxes, which all were enemies to the people of God, and stood against them.

^w For he raised up all the East countries to fight against the Grecians: and albeit he had in his army nine hundred thousand men, yet in four battles he was discomfited and fled away with shame.

^x That is, Alexander the Great.

^y For when his estate was most flourishing, he overcame himself with drink, and so fell into ■ disease, or, as some write, was prisoned by Cassander.

^z For his twelve chief princes first divided his kingdom among themselves.

^{aa} After this his monarchy was divided into four: for Seleucus had Syria, Antigonus Asia minor, Cassander the kingdom of Macedonia, and Ptolomæus Egypt.

^{ab} Thus God revenged Alexander's ambition and cruelty, in causing his posterity to be murdered, partly of the father's chief friends, and partly one of another.

^{ac} Note of these four shall be able to be compared ■ the

4 And when he shall stand up, ^{ad} his kingdom shall be broken, ^{ae} and shall be divided toward ^{af} the four winds of heaven, and not to his ^{ag} posterity, nor according to his ^{ah} dominion which he ruled: for his kingdom shall be pluckt up, even to be for others besides ^{ai} those.

5 And the ^{aj} king of the South shall be mighty, and one of ^{ak} his princes, and shall prevail against him, and bear rule: his dominion shall be ■ great dominion.

6 And in the end of the years they shall be joined together: for the king's ^{al} daughter of the South shall come to the king of the North to make an agreement, but she shall not retain the power of ^{am} the arm, neither shall ^{an} he continue, nor his ^{ao} arm: but she shall be delivered to death, and they that brought her, and he ^{ap} that begat her, and he that comforted her in these times.

7 But out of the bud of her ^{aq} roots shall one stand up in his stead, ^{ar} which shall come with an army, and shall enter into the fortrefs of the king of the North, and do with them as he list, and shall prevail.

8 And shall also carry captives into Egypt, their gods with their molten images, and with their precious vessels of silver and of gold, and he shall continue ^{as} more years than the king of the North.

9 So the king of the South shall come in ■ his kingdom, and shall return into his own land.

10 Wherefore his ^{at} sons shall be stirred up, and shall assemble ■ mighty great army: and one ^{au} shall come, and overflow, and pass through: then shall he ^{av} return, and be stirred up at his fortrefs.

11 And the king of the South shall be angry, and shall come forth, and fight with him, even with the king of the North: for he shall set forth ■ great ^{aw} multitude, and the multitude shall be given into his hand.

12 Then

power of Alexander.

^{ad} That is, his posterity having no part thereof.

^{ae} To wit, Ptolomæus king of Egypt.

^{af} That is, Antiochus, the son of Seleucus, and one of Alexander's princes, shall be more mighty: for he should have both Asia and Syria.

^{ag} That is, Berenice the daughter of Ptolomæus Philadelphus, shall be given in marriage to Antiochus Theos, thinking by this affinity, that Syria and Egypt should have ■ continual peace together.

^{ah} That force and strength shall not continue: for soon after Berenice and her young son, after her husband's death, was slain of her step-son Seleucus Calinicus, the son of Laodice, the lawful wife of Antiochus, but put away for this woman's sake.

^{ai} Neither Ptolomæus nor Antiochus.

^{aj} Some read, seed, meaning the child begotten of Berenice.

^{ak} Some read, she that begat her, and thereby understand her nurse, which brought her up: so that all they that were the occasion of this marriage, were destroyed.

^{al} Meaning, that Ptolomæus Evergetes, after the death of his father Philadelphus, should succeed in the kingdom, being of the same stock that Berenice was.

^{am} To revenge his sister's death against Antiochus Calinicus, king of Syria.

^{an} For this Ptolomæus reigned six and forty years.

^{ao} Meaning, Seleucus, and Antiochus the Great, the sons of Calinicus, shall make war against Ptolomæus Philopater, the son of Philadelphus.

^{ap} For his elder brother Seleucus died, ■ was slain whilst the wars were preparing.

^{aq} That is, Philopater, when he shall see Antiochus to take great dominions from him in Syria, and also ready to invade Egypt.

^{ar} For Antiochus had six thousand horsemen, and three score thousand footmen.

534. 12 Then the multitude shall be proud, and their heart shall be lifted up: for he shall cast down thousands: but he shall not still prevail.

13 For the king of the North shall return, and shall set forth a greater multitude than afore, and shall come forth (after certain years) with a mighty army, and great riches.

14 And at the same time there shall many stand up against the king of the South: also the rebellious children of thy people shall exalt themselves to establish the vision, but they shall fall.

15 So the king of the North shall come, and cast up a mount, and take the strong city: and the arms of the South shall not resist, neither his chosen people, neither shall there be any strength to withstand.

16 But he that shall come, shall do unto him as he list, and none shall stand against him: and he shall stand in the pleasant land, which by his hand shall be consumed.

17 Again he shall set his face to enter with the power of his whole kingdom, and his confederates with him: thus shall he do, and he shall give him the daughter of women; to destroy her: but she shall not stand on his side, neither before him.

18 After this, shall he turn his face unto the isles, and shall take many, but a prince shall cause his shame to light upon him, besides that he shall cause his own shame to turn upon himself.

19 For he shall turn his face towards the forts of his own land: but he shall be overthrown and fall, and be no more found.

20 Then shall stand up in his place, in the glory of the kingdom, one that shall raise taxes: but after few days he shall be destroyed, neither in wrath, nor in battle.

21 And in his place shall stand up a vile person, to whom they shall not give the honour of the kingdom: but he shall come in peaceably, and obtain the kingdom by flatteries.

22 And the arms shall be overthrown with a flood before him, and shall be broken: and also the prince of the covenant.

23 And after the league made with him, he shall work deceitfully: for he shall come up, and overcome with a small people.

24 He shall enter into the quiet and plentiful province, and he shall do that which his fathers have not done, nor his fathers fathers: he shall divide among them the prey and the spoil, and the substance, yea, and he shall forecast his devices against the strong holds, even for a time.

25 Also he shall stir up his power, and his courage against the king of the South, with a great army, and the king of the South shall be stirred up to battle with a very great and mighty army: but he shall not stand: for they shall forecast and practise against him.

26 Yea, they that feed of the portion of his meat, shall destroy him: and his army shall overflow: and many shall fall, and be slain.

27 And both these kings hearts shall be to do mischief, and they shall talk of deceit at one table, but it shall not avail: for yet the end shall be at the time appointed.

28 Then shall he return into his land with great substance: for his heart shall be against the holy covenant: so shall he do and return to his own land.

29 At the time appointed he shall return, and come toward the South: but the last shall not be as the first.

30 For the ships of Chittim shall come against him:

■ After the death of Ptolomæus Philopater, who left Ptolomæus Epiphanes his heir.

* For not only Antiochus came against him, but also Philip king of Macedonia, and these two brought great power with them.

† For under Onias, which falsely alledged that place of Isa. 19. 19. certain of the Jews retired with him into Egypt, to fulfil this prophecy: also the angel sheweth that all these troubles which are in the church, are by the providence and counsel of God.

■ The Egyptians were not able to resist Stopas, Antiochus's captain.

‡ He sheweth that he shall not only afflict the Egyptians, but also the Jews, and shall enter into their country, whereof he admonished them before, that they may know that all these things come by God's providence.

§ This was the second battle that Antiochus fought against Ptolomæus Epiphanes.

¶ To wit, a beautiful woman, which was Cleopatra, Antiochus's daughter.

‡ For he regarded not the life of his daughter, in respect of the kingdom of Egypt.

• She shall not agree ■ his wicked counsel, but shall love her husband ■ her duty requireth, and not seek his destruction.

■ That is, toward Asia, Greece, and those isles which in the sea called Mediterranean: for the Jews called all countries Isles, which were divided from them by sea.

• For whereas Antiochus was wont to contemn the Romans, and put their ambassadors ■ shame in all places, Attilius the consul, or Lucius Scipio, put him to flight, and caused his shame ■ turn ■ his ■ head.

■ By his wicked life, and obeying of foolish counsel.

† For fear of the Romans he shall flee to his holds.

■ For when ■ under the pretence of poverty he would have robbed the temple of Jupiter Dodonæus, the countrymen slew him.

† That is, Seleucus shall succeed his father Antiochus.

• Not by foreign enemies, or battle, but by treason.

• Which was Antiochus Epiphanes, who, as is thought, was the occasion of Seleucus his brother's death, and was of a vile, cruel and flattering nature, and defrauded his brother's son of the kingdom, and usurped the kingdom without the consent of the people.

■ He sheweth that great foreign powers shall come to help the young son of Seleucus, against his uncle Antiochus, and yet shall be overthrown.

† Meaning Ptolomæus Philometor, Philopater's son, who was this child's cousin german, and is here called the prince of the covenant, because he was the chief, and all others followed his conduct.

■ For after the battle, Philometor and his uncle Antiochus made ■ league.

† For he came upon him unawares, and when he suspected his uncle Antiochus nothing.

■ Meaning, in Egypt.

† He will content himself with the small holds for a time, but ever labour by craft to attain to the chiefest.

■ He shall be overcome with treason.

• Signifying his princes, and the chief about him.

■ Declaring, that his soldiers shall burst out, and venture their lives to slay and be slain for the safeguard of their prince.

† The uncle and the nephew shall take truce, and banquet together, yet in their hearts they shall imagine mischief ■ against another.

■ Signifying, that it standeth not in the counsel of men ■ bring things to pass, but in the providence of God, who ruleth the kings by ■ secret bridle, that they cannot do what they list themselves.

• Which he shall take of the Jews in spoiling of Jerusalem and the temple, and this is told them before, to move them to patience, knowing that all things are done by God's providence.

■ That is, the Roman power shall come against him: for P. Popilius the ambassador appointed him to depart in the Romans name, to which thing he obeyed, although with grief, and in revenge his rage, he came against the people of God the second time.

him: therefore he shall be sorry and return, and fight against the holy covenant: so shall he do, he shall even return^c and have intelligence with them that forsake the holy covenant.

31 And arms^e shall stand on his part, and they shall pollute the sanctuary^c of strength, and shall take away the daily sacrifice, and they shall set up the abominable desolation.

32 And such as wickedly^f break the covenant shall he cause to sin by flattery: but the people that do know their God, shall prevail and prosper.

33 And they that understand among^g the people, shall instruct many: yet they shall fall by sword, and by flame, by captivity and by spoil many days.

34 Now when they shall fall, they shall be holpen with a^h little help: but many shall cleave unto themⁱ feignedly.

35 And some of^j them of understanding shall fall to try them, and to purge, and to make them white, till the time be out: for there is a time appointed.

36 And the^k king shall do what him list: he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself against all that is God, and shall speak marvellous things against the God of gods, and shall prosper, till the wrath^l be accomplished: for the determination is made.

37 Neither shall he regard the^m God of his fathers, nor the desiresⁿ of women, nor care for any god: for he shall magnify himself above all.

38 But in his place shall he honour the^o god Mauzzim, and the god whom his fathers knew not shall he honour with^p gold and with silver, and with precious stones, and pleasant things.

39 Thus shall he do in^q the holds of Mauzzim with a strange god whom he shall acknowledge: he shall increase his glory, and shall cause them to rule over many, and shall divide the land for gain.

^e With the Jews which shall forsake the covenant of the Lord: for first he was called against the Jews by Jason the high priest, and this second time by Menelaus.

^f A great faction of the wicked Jews shall hold with Antiochus.

^g So called, because the power of God was nothing diminished, although this tyrant set up in the temple the image of Jupiter Olympius, and so began to corrupt the pure service of God.

^h Meaning, such as bare the name of Jews: but indeed were nothing less: for they sold their souls, and betrayed their brethren for gain.

ⁱ They that remain constant among the people shall teach others by their example, and edify many in the true religion.

^j Whereby he exhorteth the godly to constancy, although they should perish a thousand times, and though their miseries endure never so long.

^k As God will not leave his church destitute, yet will he not deliver it all at once, but so help, as they may still seem to fight under the cross, as he did in the time of the Maccabees, whereof he here prophesieth.

^l That is, there shall be even of this small number, many hypocrites.

^m To wit, of them that fear God, and will lose their life for the defence of true religion, signifying also that the church must continually be tried and purged, and ought to look for one persecution after another: for God hath appointed the time, therefore we must obey.

ⁿ Because the angel's purpose is to shew the whole course of the persecutions of the Jews unto the coming of Christ, he now speaketh of the monarchy of the Romans, which he nameth by the name of a king, who were without all religion, and contemned the true God.

^o So long the tyrants shall prevail as God hath appointed to punish his people, but he sheweth it is but for a time.

^p The Romans shall observe no certain form of religion as other nations, but shall change their gods at their pleasure, yet contemn them, and prefer themselves to their gods.

40 And at the end of time shall the king of the South push at him, and the king of the North shall come against him like a whirlwind with chariots and with horsemen, and with many ships, and he shall enter into the countries, and shall overflow and pass through.

41 He shall enter also into the^r pleasant land, and many countries shall be overflowed: but these shall escape out of his hand, even Edom and Moab, and the chief of the children of Ammon.

42 He shall stretch forth his hands also upon the countries, and the land of Egypt shall not escape.

43 But he shall have power over the treasures of gold and of silver, and over all the precious things of Egypt, and of the Lybians, and of the blackmoors where he shall pass.

44 But the tidings out of the East and the North shall^s trouble him: therefore he shall go forth^t with great wrath to destroy and root out many.

45 And he shall plant the tabernacles^u of his palace between the seas in the glorious and holy mountain, yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him.

C H A P. XII.

Of the deliverance of the church by Christ.

AND at that^v time shall Michael stand up, the great prince, which standeth for the children of thy people, and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there began to be a nation unto that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book.

2 And many^w of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and perpetual contempt.

3 And

^r Signifying that they should be without all humanity: for the love of women is taken for singular or great love, as 2 Sam. 1. 26.

^s That is, the God of power and riches: they shall esteem their own power above all their gods, and worship it.

^t Under pretence of worshipping the gods, they shall enrich their city with the most precious jewels of all the world, because that hereby all men should have them in admiration for their power and riches.

^u Although in their hearts they had no religion, yet they did acknowledge the gods, and worshipped them in their temples, lest they should have been despised as atheists: but this was to increase their fame and riches: and when they got any country, they so made others the rulers thereof, that the profit ever came in the Romans.

^v That is, both the Egyptians and Syrians shall at length fight against the Romans, but they shall be overcome.

^w The angel forewarneth the Jews that when they should see the Romans invade them, and that the wicked should escape their hands, that then they should not think but that all this was done by God's providence, forasmuch as he warned them of it so long before, and therefore he would still preserve them.

^x Hearing that Crasus was slain, and Antonius discomfited.

^y For Augustus overcame the Parthians, and recovered that which Antonius had lost.

^z The Romans after this reigned quietly throughout all countries, and from sea to sea, and in Judea: but at length for their cruelty God shall destroy them.

^{aa} The angel here noteth two things: first, that the church shall be in great affliction and trouble at Christ's coming, and next, that God will send his angel to deliver it, whom here he calleth Michael, meaning Christ, which is published by the preaching of the gospel.

^{bb} Meaning, all shall rise at the general resurrection, which thing he here nameth, because the faithful should have ever their respect to that: for in the earth there shall be no sure comfort.

534. 3 And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament: and they that turn many to righteousness, shall shine as the stars for ever and ever.

4 But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book till the end of the time: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.

5 ¶ Then I Daniel looked, and behold, there stood other two, the one on this side of the brink of the river, and the other on that side of the brink of the river.

6 And one said unto the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, When shall be the end of these wonders?

7 And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand, and his left hand unto heaven, and swore by him that liveth for ever, that it shall tarry for a time, two times and an half: and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished.

¶ Who have kept the true fear of God, and his religion. He chiefly meaneth the ministers of God's word, and next all the faithful which instruct the ignorant, and bring them to the true knowledge of God.

¶ Though the most part despise this prophesy, yet keep thou it sure, and esteem it as a treasure.

¶ Till the time that God hath appointed for the full revelation of these things: and then many shall run to and fro search the knowledge of these mysteries, which things they obtain now by the light of the gospel.

¶ Which was Tygris.

¶ Which was as it were a double oath, and did the more confirm the thing.

¶ Meaning, a long time, a longer time, and at length a short time: signifying, that their troubles should have end.

8 Then I heard it, but I understood it not: then said I, O my lord, what shall be the end of these things? 534. Bef. Chr.

¶ And he said, Go thy way, Daniel: for the words are closed up, and sealed, till the end of the time.

10 Many shall be purified, made white, and tried: but the wicked shall do wickedly, and none of the wicked shall have understanding: but the wise shall understand.

11 And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abominable desolation set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.

12 Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.

13 But go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand up in thy lot at the end of the days.

¶ When the church shall be scattered and diminished in such sort, as it shall seem to have no power.

¶ From the time that Christ by his sacrifice shall take away the sacrifice and ceremonies of the law.

¶ Signifying, that the time shall be long of Christ's second coming, and yet the children of God ought not to be discouraged, though it be deferred.

¶ In this number he addeth a month and half the former number, signifying, that it is in man appointed the time of Christ's coming, but that they be blessed that patiently abide his appearing.

¶ The angel warneth the prophet patiently to abide till the time appointed come, signifying that he should depart this life and rise again with the elect, when God had sufficiently humbled and purged his church.

H O S E A

T H E A R G U M E N T.

After that the ten tribes had fallen away from God by the wicked and subtil counsel of Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, and instead of his true service commanded by his word, worshipped him according to their own fancies and traditions of men, giving themselves to most vile idolatry and superstition, the Lord from time to time sent them prophets to call them to repentance: but they grew ever worse and worse, and still abused God's benefits. Therefore now when their prosperity was at the highest under Jeroboam the son of Joash, God sent Hosea and Amos to the Israelites (as he did at the same time Isaiah and Micah to them of Judah) to condemn them of their ingratitude: and whereas they thought themselves to be greatly in the favour of God, and to be his people, the prophet calleth them bastards and children born in adultery: and therefore sheweth them that God would take away their kingdom, and give them to the Assyrians to be led away captives. Thus Hosea faithfully executed his office for the space of seventy years, though they remained still in their vices and wickedness, and derided the prophets, and contemned God's judgments. And because they should neither be discouraged with threatenings only, nor yet flatter themselves by the sweetness of God's promises, he setteth before them the two principal parts of the law, which is the promise of salvation, and the doctrine of life: for the first part he directeth the faithful to Messiah, by whom only they should have true deliverance: and for the second, he useth threatenings and menaces to bring them from their wicked manners and vices, and this is the chief scope of all the prophets, either by God's promises to allure them to be godly, or else by threatenings of his judgments to fear them from vice: and albeit that the whole law contain these two points, yet the prophets moreover note peculiarly both the time of God's judgments and the manner.

C H A P. I.

- 1 The time wherein Hosea prophesied. 2 The idolatry of the people. 10 The calling of the Gentiles. 11 Christ is the head of all people.

THE word of the Lord that came unto Hosea the son of Beeri, in the days of Uziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel.

2 At the beginning the Lord spake by Hosea, and the Lord said unto Hosea, Go, take unto thee a wife of fornications, and children of fornications: for the land hath committed great whoredom, departing from the Lord.

3 So he went, and took Gomer, the daughter of Diblaim, which conceived and bare him a son.

4 And the Lord said unto him, Call his name Jezreel: for yet a little, and I will visit the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.

5 And at that day will I also break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel.

6 She conceived yet again, and bare a daughter, and God said unto him, Call her name Lo-ruhamah: for I will no more have pity upon the house of Israel: but I will utterly take them away.

7 Yet I will have mercy upon the house of Judah, and will save them by the Lord their God, and will not save them by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, by horses, nor by horsemen.

8 Now when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived and bare a son.

9 Then said God, Call his name Lo-ammi: for ye are not my people: therefore will I not be yours.

10 Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor told: and in the place where it

¹ Called also Azariah, who being a leper was deposed from his kingdom.

² So that it may be gathered by the reign of these four kings, that he preached above sixty years.

³ That is, one that of long time hath accustomed to play the harlot: not that the prophet did this thing in effect, but he saw this in a vision, or else was commanded by God to set forth under this parable or figure the idolatry of the synagogue, and of the people her children.

⁴ Gomer signifieth consumption corruption, and Diblaim clusters of figs, declaring that they were all corrupt like rotten figs.

⁵ Meaning, that they should be no more called Israelites, of the which name they boasted, because Israel did prevail with God: but that they were bastards, and therefore should be called Jezreelites, that is, scattered people, alluding to Jezreel, which was the chief city of the ten tribes under Ahab, where Jehu shed so much blood, 2 Kings 10. 8, 11.

⁶ I will be revenged upon Jehu for the blood that he shed in Israel: for albeit God stirred him up to execute his judgments, yet he did them for his own ambition, and for the glory of God, the end declared: for he built up that idolatry which he had destroyed.

⁸ That is, not obtaining mercy, whereby he signifieth that God's favour departed from them.

⁹ For the Israelites never returned after that they were taken captives by the Assyrians.

¹⁰ For after their captivity he restored them miraculously by the means of Cyrus, Ezra 1. 1.

¹¹ That is, not my people.

¹² Because they thought that God could have been true in his promise except he had preserved them, he declareth that though they were destroyed, yet the Israelites, was said unto them, Ye are not my people, it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. Bef. Chr. 785.

11 Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land: for great is the day of Jezreel.

C H A P. II.

- 1 The people is called to repentance. 5 He sheweth their idolatry, and threateneth them except they repent.

SAY unto your brethren, Ammi, and to your sisters, Ruhamah,

2 Plead with your mother: plead with her, for she is not my wife, neither am I her husband, but let her take away her fornications out of her sight, and her adulteries from between her breasts,

3 Lest I strip her naked, and set her as in the day that she was born, and make her as a wilderness, and leave her like a dry land, and slay her for thirst.

4 And I will have no pity upon her children: for they be the children of fornications.

5 For their mother hath played the harlot: she that conceived them, hath done shamefully: for she said, I will go after my lovers that gave me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, mine oil and my drink.

6 Therefore behold, I will stop thy way with thorns, and make an hedge, that she shall not find her paths.

7 Though she follow after her lovers, yet shall she not come to them: though she seek them, yet shall she not find them: then shall she say, I will go and return to my first husband: for at that time was I better than now.

8 Now she did not know that I gave her corn, and wine, and oil, and multiplied her silver and gold, which they bestowed upon Baal.

9 There-

which are the sons of the promise, should be without number, which stand both of the Jews and the Gentiles, Rom. 9. 26.

¹ To wit, after the captivity of Babylon, when the Jews were restored, but chiefly this is referred to the time of Christ, who should be the head both of the Jews and Gentiles.

² The calamity and destruction of Jezreel shall be so great, that their restore them shall be as a miracle.

³ Seeing, that I have promised you deliverance, it remaineth that you encourage another to embrace the same, considering that ye are my people, on whom I will have mercy.

⁴ God sheweth, that the fault was in them, but in their synagogue, and their idolatries, that he forsook them, Isa. 50. 1.

⁵ Meaning, that their idolatry was so great, that they were not ashamed, but boasted of it, Ezek. 16. 25.

⁶ For though the people were as an harlot for their idolatries, yet he had left them with their apparel and dowry, and certain signs of his favour; but if they continued still, he would utterly destroy them.

⁷ When I brought her out of Egypt, Ezek. 16. 4.

⁸ That is, bastards, and begotten in adultery.

⁹ Meaning, the idols which they served, and by whom they thought they had wealth and abundance.

¹⁰ I will punish thee, that then thou mayest try whether thine idols can help thee, and bring thee unto such straightness, that thou shalt have lust to play the wanton.

¹² This declareth that idolaters defraud God of his honour, when they attribute his benefits to their idols.

Bel. Chr. 785.

9 Therefore will I return, and take away my corn in the time thereof, and my wine in the season thereof, and will recover my wool and my flax lent to cover her shame.
 10 And now will I discover her lewdness in the sight of her lovers, and no man shall deliver her out of mine hand.
 11 I will also cause all her mirth to cease, her feast days, her new moons, and her sabbaths, and all her solemn feasts.
 12 And I will destroy her vines and her fig-trees, whereof she hath said, These are my rewards that my lovers have given me: and I will make them as a forest, and the wild beasts shall eat them.
 13 And I will visit upon her the days of Baalim, wherein she burnt incense to them: and she decked herself with her ear-rings and her jewels, and she followed her lovers, and forgot me, saith the Lord.
 14 Therefore behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak friendly unto her.
 15 And I will give her her vineyards from thence, and the valley of Achor for the door of hope, and she shall sing there as in the days of her youth, and as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt.
 16 And at that day, saith the Lord, thou shalt call me Ishi, and shalt call me no more Baali.
 17 For I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth, and they shall be no more remembered by their names.
 18 And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the wild beasts, and with the fowls of the heaven, and with that that creepeth upon the earth: and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the earth, and will make them to sleep safely.
 19 And I will marry thee unto me for ever: yea, I will marry thee unto me in righteousness, and in judgment, and in mercy, and in compassion.
 20 I will even marry thee unto me in faithfulness, and thou shalt know the Lord.
 21 And in that day I will hear, saith the Lord, I will even hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth.
 22 And the earth shall hear the corn, and the wine, and the oil, and they shall hear Izrael.

▪ Signifying, that God will take away his benefits when man by his ingratitude doth abuse them.
 ▪ That is, all her service, ceremonies, and inventions, whereby she worshipped her idols.
 ▪ I will punish her for her idolatry.
 ▪ By shewing how harlots trim themselves to please others, he declareth how the superstitious idolaters set a great part of their religion in decking themselves their holy days.
 ▪ By my benefits in offering her grace and mercy, even in that place where she shall think herself destitute of help and comfort.
 ▪ Which plentiful valley, and wherein they had great comfort when they came out of the wilderness, Josh. 7. 26. and is called the door of hope, because it was departing from death, and an entry into life.
 ▪ She shall then praise God, as she did when she was delivered out of Egypt.
 ▪ That is, mine husband, knowing that I am joined thee by inviolable covenant.
 ▪ That is, my master: which name was applied their idols.
 ▪ No idolatry shall once come into their mouth, but they shall serve me purely according to my word.
 ▪ Meaning, that he will so bless them, that all creatures shall favour them.
 ▪ With covenant that never shall be broken.

23 And will sow her unto me in the earth, and I will have mercy upon her that was not pitied: and I will say them which were not my people, * Thou art my people: and they shall say, Thou art my God.
 Ref. Chr. 785.
 * Rom. 9. 25. 1 Pet. 10.

CHAP. III.

1 The Jews shall be cast off for their idolatry. 5 Afterward they shall return to the Lord.

THEN said the Lord to me, ° Go yet, and love a woman (beloved of her husband, and was a harlot) according to the love of the Lord toward the children of Israel: yet they looked to other gods, and loved the wine bottles.

2 So I bought her to me for fifteen pieces of silver, and for an homer of barley, and an half homer of barley.
 3 And I said unto her, Thou shalt abide with me many days: thou shalt not play the harlot, and thou shalt be to none other man, and I will be so unto thee.
 4 For the children of Israel shall remain many days without a king, and without a prince, and without an offering, and without an image, and without ephod, and without Teraphim.
 5 Afterward shall the children of Israel convert, and seek the Lord their God, and David their king, and shall fear the Lord, and his goodness in the latter days.

CHAP. IV.

A complaint against the people, and the priests of Israel.

HEAR the word of the Lord, ye children of Israel: for the Lord hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land.

2 By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and whoring they break out, and blood toucheth blood.
 3 Therefore shall the land mourn, and every one that dwelleth therein shall be cut off, with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of the heaven, and also the fishes of the sea shall be taken away.
 4 Yet

▪ Then shall the heaven desire rain for the earth, which shall bring forth for the use of man.
 ▪ Herein the prophet representeth the person of God, which loved his church before he called her, and did not withdraw the same when she gave herself unto idols.
 ▪ That is, gave themselves wholly to pleasures, and could not take up, as they that are given drunkenness.
 ▪ Yet I loved her, and paid a small portion for her, lest she perceiving the greatness of my love, should have abused me, and not been under duty: for fifteen pieces of silver were but half the price of a slave, Exod. 21. 32.
 ▪ I will try thee a long time in thy widowhood, whether thou wilt be mine or no.
 ▪ Meaning, only all the time of their captivity, but also unto Christ.
 ▪ That is, they should neither have policy nor religion, and their idols also wherein they put their confidence, should be destroyed.
 ▪ This is the kingdom of Christ's kingdom, which was promised David to be eternal, Psalm 72. 17.
 ▪ Because the people would not obey the admonitions of the prophet, he citeth them before the judgment-seat of God, against whom they chiefly offended, Isa. 7. 13. Zech. 12. 10. Micah 6. 1, 2.
 ▪ In every place appeareth a liberty most heinous vices, so that one followeth on the neck of another.

Beh. Chr. 4 Yet let none rebuke nor reprove another:
730 for thy people are as they that rebuke the priest.

5 Therefore shalt thou fall in the day, and the prophet shall fall with thee in the night, and I will destroy thy mother.

6 My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast refused knowledge, I will also refuse thee that thou shalt be no priest to me: and seeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I will also forget thy children.

7 As they were increased, so they sinned against me: therefore will I change their glory into shame.

8 They eat up the sins of my people, and lift up their minds in their iniquity.

9 And there shall be like people, like priest:
for I will visit their ways upon them, and reward them their deeds.

10 For they shall eat, and not have enough:
they shall commit adultery, and shall not increase, because they have left off to take heed to the Lord.

11 Whoredom, and wine, and new wine take away their heart.

12 My people ask counsel at their stocks, and their staff teacheth them: for the spirit of fornications hath caused them to err, and they have gone whoring from under their God.

13 They sacrifice upon the tops of the mountains, and burn incense upon the hills under the oaks and the poplar-tree and the elm, because the shadow thereof is good: therefore your daughters shall be harlots, and your spouses shall be whores.

14 I will not visit your daughters when they are harlots, nor your spouses when they are whores: for they themselves are separated with harlots, and sacrifice with whores: therefore the people that doth not understand, shall fall.

15 Though thou, Israel, play the harlot, yet let not Judah sin: come not ye unto Gilgal, neither go ye up to Beth-aven, nor swear, The Lord liveth.

7 As though he would say, that it were in vain to rebuke them: for no man can abide it: yea, they will speak against the prophets and priests, whose office it is chiefly to rebuke them.

8 Ye shall perish all together: the one because he would not obey, and the other, because he would not admonish.

9 That is, the synagogue, wherein thou boastest.

10 That is, the priests shall be cast off, because that for lack of knowledge they are not able to execute their charge, and instruct others, Deut. 33. 3. Mal. 2. 7.

11 Meaning, the whole body of the people, which weary with hearing the word of God.

12 The more I was beneficial unto them.

13 To wit, the priests seek to eat the people's offerings, and flatter them in their sins.

14 Signifying, that as they have sinned together, so shall they be punished together.

15 Shewing, that their wickedness shall be punished on all sorts: for though they think by the multitude of wives to have many children, yet they shall be deceived of their hope.

16 In giving themselves to pleasures, they become like brute beasts.

17 Thus he speaketh by derision in calling them his people, which now for their sins they were not: for they sought help of stocks and sticks.

18 They are carried away with a rage.

19 Because they take away God's honour and give it to idols, therefore he will give them up to their lusts, that they shall dishonour their own bodies, Rom. 1. 28.

20 I will not correct your shame bring you amendment, but let you run headlong to your own damnation.

Now the Lord will feed them a lamb in a large place. 780.

17 Ephraim is joined to idols: let him alone.

18 Their drunkenness stinketh: they have committed whoredom: their rulers love to say with shame, Bring ye.

19 The wind hath bound them up in her wings, and they shall be ashamed of their sacrifices.

CHAP. V.

Against the priests and rulers of Israel. 13 The help of man is in vain.

O Ye priests, hear this, and hearken ye, O house of Israel, and give ye ear, O house of the king: for judgment is toward you, because ye have been a snare on Mizpah, and a net spread upon Tabor.

2 Yet they were profound to decline slaughter, though I have been a rebuker of them all.

3 I know Ephraim, and Israel is not hid from me: for now, O Ephraim, thou art become an harlot, and Israel is defiled.

4 They will not give their minds to turn unto their God: for the spirit of fornication is in the midst of them, and they have not known
the Lord.

5 And the pride of Israel doth testify to his face: therefore shall Israel and Ephraim fall in the iniquity: Judah also shall fall with them.

6 They shall go with their sheep, and with their bullocks to seek the Lord: but they shall not find him, for he hath withdrawn himself from them.

7 They have transgressed against the Lord:
for they have begotten strange children: now shall a month devour them with their portions.

8 Blow ye the trumpet in Gibeah, and the shaum in Ramah: cry out at Beth-aven, after thee, O Benjamin.

9 Ephraim shall be desolate in the day of rebuke

8 God complaineth that Judah is infected, and willet them to learn by their example in return in time.

9 For albeit the Lord had honoured this place in time past by his presence, yet because it was abused by their idolatry, he would not that his people should resort thither.

10 He calleth Bethel, that is, the house of God, Bethaven, that is, the house of iniquity, because of their abomi-nations set up there, signifying, that no place is holy, where God is not purely worshipped.

11 God will so disperse them, that they shall not remain in any certain place.

12 They are so impudent in receiving bribes, that they will command men to bring them unto them.

13 To carry them suddenly away.

14 The priests and princes caught the poor people in their snare, as the fowlers did the birds in these two high mountains.

15 Notwithstanding they seemed to be given altogether holiness and sacrifices, which here he calleth slaughter in contempt.

16 Though I had admonished them continually by my prophets.

17 They boasted themselves not only to be Israelites, but also Ephraimites, because their king Jeroboam came of that tribe.

18 Meaning, their contemning of all admonitions.

19 That is, their children are degenerate, so that there is no hope in them.

20 Their destruction is not far off.

21 That is, all Israel comprehended under this part, signifying, that the Lord's plagues should pursue them from place to place, till they were destroyed.

780. rebuke: among the tribes of Israel have I caused to know the truth.

10 The princes of Judah were like them that remove the bound, therefore will I pour out my wrath upon them like water.

11 Ephraim is oppressed, and broken in judgment, because he willingly walked after the commandment.

12 Therefore will I be unto Ephraim as a moth, and to the house of Judah as a rottenness.

13 When Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judah his wound, then went Ephraim unto Asshur, and sent unto king Jareb: yet could he not heal you, nor cure you of your wound.

14 For I will be unto Ephraim a lion; and as a lion's whelp to the house of Judah: I, even I, will spoil, and go away: I will take away, and none shall rescue it.

15 I will go, and return to my place, till they acknowledge their fault, and seek me: in their affliction they will seek me diligently.

C H A P. VI.

1 Affliction causeth a man to turn to God: 9 The wickedness of the priests.

COME, and let us return to the Lord: for he hath spoiled, and he will heal us: he hath wounded us, and he will bind us up.

2 After two days will he revive us, and in the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight.

3 Then shall we have knowledge, and endeavour ourselves to know the Lord: his going forth is prepared as the morning, and he shall come unto us as the rain, and as the latter rain unto the earth.

4 O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? O Judah, how shall I entreat thee? for your goodness is as a morning cloud, and as the morning dew it goeth away.

5 Therefore have I cut down by the prophets: I have slain them by the words of my mouth, and thy judgments were as the light that goeth forth.

6 For I desired mercy and not sacrifice, and the knowledge of God more than burnt-offerings.

7 But they like men have transgressed the covenant: there have they trespassed against me.

^c By the success they shall know that I have surely determined this.

^d They have turned upside down all political order, and all manner of religion.

^e To wit, after king Jeroboam's commandment, and did not rather follow God.

^f Instead of seeking for remedy at God's hand.

^g Who was king of the Assyrians.

^h He sheweth the people how they ought to turn to the Lord, that he might call back his plagues.

ⁱ Though he correct us from time to time, yet his help will not be far off, if we return to him.

^k You seem to have a certain holiness and repentance, but it is upon the sudden, and as a morning cloud.

^l I have still laboured by my prophets, and as it were framed you to bring you to amendment, but all was in vain: for my word was not meat to feed them, but a sword to slay them.

^m My doctrine which I taught thee, was most evident.

ⁿ He sheweth to what scope his doctrine tended, that they should join the obedience of God, and the love of their neighbour with outward sacrifice.

^o That is, light and weak persons.

^p Which was the place where the priests dwelt, and which

8 ^p Gilcad is a city of them that work iniquity, and is polluted with blood. Bef. Chr. 780.

9 And as thieves wait for a man; so the company of priests murder in the way by consent: for they work mischief.

10 I have seen villany in the house of Israel: there is the whoredom of Ephraim: Israel is defiled.

11 Yea; Judah hath set a plant for thee; while I would return the captivity of my people.

C H A P. VII:

1 Of the vices and wantonness of the people. 12 Of their punishment.

WHEN I would have healed Israel; then the iniquity of Ephraim was discovered, and the wickedness of Samaria: for they have dealt falsely: and the thief cometh in, and the robber spoileth without.

2 And they consider not in their hearts, that I remember all their wickedness: now their own inventions have beset them about: they are in my sight.

3 They make the king glad with their wickedness; and the princes with their lies.

4 They are all adulterers, and very over-heated by the baker, which ceaseth from raising up and from kneading the dough until it be leavened.

5 This is the day of our king: the princes have made him sick with flaggons of wine: he stretcheth out his hand to scorners.

6 For they have made ready their heart like an oven, while they lie in wait: their baker sleepeth all the night: in the morning it burneth as a flame of fire.

7 They are all hot as an oven, and have devoured their judges: all their kings are fallen: there is none among them that calleth unto me.

8 Ephraim hath mixed himself among the people, Ephraim is as a cake on the hearth not turned.

9 Strangers have devoured his strength, and he knoweth it not: yea, grey hairs are here and there upon him, yet he knoweth not.

10 And the pride of Israel testifieth to his face, and they do not return to the Lord their God, nor seek him for all this.

11 Ephraim also is like a dove deceived, without heart: they call to Egypt: they go to Ashur.

12 But

should have been best instructed in my word.

^a That is, doth imitate thine idolatry, and hath taken grafts of thy trees.

^b Meaning, that there was no kind of vice among them, but that they were subject to all wickedness, both secret and open.

^c They esteem their wicked king Jeroboam above God, and seek but how to flatter and please him.

^d He compareth the rage of the people to a burning oven which the baker heateth still, till his dough be leavened and raised.

^e They used all riot and excess in their feasts and solemnities, whereby their king was overcome with surfeit, and brought into diseases, and delighted in flatteries.

^f By their occasion God hath deprived them of all good rulers.

^g That is, he counterfeiteth the religion of the Gentiles, yet is but a cake baked on the one side, and raw on the other, that is, neither thorough hot, nor thorough cold, but partly a Jew, and partly a Gentile.

^h Which are tokens of his manifold afflictions.

ⁱ That is, without all judgment, they that cannot tell whether it is better to cleave only to God, or to seek the help of man.

Def. Chr. 700. 12 But when they shall go, I will spread my net upon them, and draw them down as the fowls of the heaven: I will chastise them as their congregation hath heard.

13 Wo unto them, for they have fled away from me: destruction shall be unto them, because they have transgressed against me: though I have redeemed them, yet they have spoken lyes against me.

14 And they have not cried unto me with their hearts, when they howled upon their beds: they assembled themselves for corn, and wine, and they rebel against me.

15 Though I have bound and strengthened their arm, yet do they imagine mischief against me.

16 They return, but not to the most High: they are like a deceitful bow: their princes shall fall by the sword, for the rage of their tongues: this shall be their derision in the land of Egypt.

C H A P. VIII.

1 The destruction of Judah and Israel, because of their idolatry.

SET the trumpet to thy mouth, be shall come as an eagle against the house of the Lord, because they have transgressed my covenant, and trespassed against my law.

2 Israel shall cry unto me, My God, we know thee.

3 Israel hath cast off the thing that is good: the enemy shall pursue him.

4 They have set up a king, but not by me: they have made princes, and I knew it not: of their silver and their gold have they made them idols: therefore shall they be destroyed.

5 Thy calf, O Samaria, hath cast thee off: mine anger is kindled against them: how long will they be without innocency!

6 For it came even from Israel: the workman made it, therefore it is not God: but the calf of Samaria shall be broken in pieces.

7 For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind, it hath no stalk: the bud shall bring forth no meal: if so be it bring forth, the strangers shall devour it.

8 Israel is devoured, now shall they be among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure.

9 For they are gone up to Asshur: they are as a wild ass alone by himself: Ephraim hath hired lovers.

¹ According to my curses made to the whole congregation of Israel.

² That is, divers times redeemed them, and delivered them from death.

³ When they were in affliction, and cried out for pain, they sought not unto me for help.

⁴ They only seek their own commodity and wealth, and not for me their God.

⁵ Because they boast of their own strength, and pass not when they speak against me and my servants, Psalm 73. 9.

⁶ God encourageth the prophet to signify the speedy coming of the enemy against Israel, which was once the people of God.

⁷ They shall cry like hypocrites, but not from the heart, as their deeds declare.

⁸ That is, Jeroboam, by whom they sought their own liberty, and not to obey my will.

⁹ That is, upright judgment, and godly life.

¹⁰ Meaning, the calf was invented by themselves, and of their fathers in the wilderness.

¹¹ Saying, that their religion hath but a shew, and is itself is but vanity.

¹² They never cease, but run to and fro to seek help.

¹³ That is, the tribute which the king and the princes shall lay upon them: which means the Lord useth to bring them to repentance.

10 Yet though they have hired among the nations, now will I gather them, and they shall sorrow little, for the burden of the king and the princes.

11 Because Ephraim hath made many altars to sin, his altars shall be to sin.

12 I have written to them the great things of my law, but they were counted as strange thing.

13 They sacrifice flesh for the sacrifices of mine offerings, and eat it: but the Lord accepteth them not: now will he remember their iniquity, and visit their sins: they shall return to Egypt.

14 For Israel hath forgotten his Maker; and buildeth temples, and Judah hath increased strong cities: but I will send fire upon his cities, and it shall devour the palaces thereof.

C H A P. IX.

Of the hunger and captivity of Israel.

REJOICE not, O Israel, for joy, as other people: for thou hast gone a whoring from thy God: thou hast loved a reward upon every corn floor.

2 The floor and the wine-press shall not feed them, and the new wine shall fail in her.

3 They shall not dwell in the Lord's land, but Ephraim will return to Egypt, and they will eat unclean things in Asshur.

4 They shall not offer wine to the Lord, neither shall their sacrifices be pleasant unto him: but they shall be unto them as the bread of mourners: all that eat thereof shall be polluted: for their bread for their souls shall not come into the house of the Lord.

5 What will ye do then in the solemn day, and in the day of the feast of the Lord?

6 For lo, they are gone from destruction: but Egypt shall gather them up, and Memphis shall bury them: the nettle shall possess the pleasant places of their silver, and the thorn shall be in their tabernacles.

7 The days of visitation are come: the days of recompence are come: Israel shall know it: the prophet is a fool: the spiritual man is mad, for the multitude of thine iniquity: therefore the hatred is great.

The watchman of Ephraim should be with my God: but the prophet is the snare of a fowler in all his ways, and hatred in the house of his God.

¹ Thus the idolaters count the word of God as strange in respect of their own invention.

² Saying, that they offer it to the Lord, but he accepteth no service which he himself hath not appointed.

³ For though all other people should escape, yet thou shalt be punished.

⁶ Their outward things that thou seekest, shall be taken from thee.

⁷ All these doings both touching policy and religion shall be rejected as things polluted.

⁸ The meat-offering, which they offered for themselves.

⁹ When the Lord shall take away all the occasions of serving him, which shall be the most grievous point of your captivity, when ye shall see yourselves cut off from God.

¹⁰ Though they think to escape by fleeing the destruction that is at hand, yet shall they be destroyed in the place whither they flee for succour.

¹¹ Then they shall know that they were deluded by them who challeng'd themselves to be their prophets and spiritual men.

¹² The prophet's duty is to bring men to God, and not to be a snare to pull them from God.

Bef. Chr. 760. 9 They ^z are deeply fet: they are corrupt as in the days of Gibeah: therefore he will remember their iniquity, he will visit their sins.

10 I found Israel like ^a grapes in the wilderness: I saw your fathers as the first ripe in the fig-tree at her first time, but they went to Baal-Peor, and separated themselves unto that shame, and their abominations were according to ^b their lovers.

11 Ephraim their glory shall flee away like a bird: from the birth ^c and from the womb, and from the conception.

12 Though they bring up their children, yet I will deprive them from being men: yea, woe to them when I depart from them.

13 Ephraim, as I saw, is as a tree ^d in Tyrus planted in a cottage: but Ephraim shall bring forth his children to the murderer.

14 O Lord, give them: what wilt thou give them? give them a ^e barren womb and dry breasts.

15 All their wickedness is in ^f Gilgal, for there do I hate them: for the wickedness of their inventions, I will cast them out of mine house: I will love them no more: all their princes are rebels.

16 Ephraim is smitten, their root is dried up: they can bring no fruit: yea, though they bring forth, yet will I slay even the dearest of their body.

17 My God will cast them away, because they did not obey him: and they shall wander among the nations.

C H A P. X.

1 Against Israel and his idols. 14 His destruction for the same.

ISRAEL is an ^z empty vine, yet hath it brought forth fruit unto itself, and according to the multitude of the fruit thereof, he hath increased the altars: according to the ^a goodness of their land they have made fair images.

2 Their heart is ^b divided: now shall they be found faulty: he shall break down their altars: he shall destroy their images.

3 For now they shall say, We have no ^c king, because we feared not the Lord: and what should ^d king do to us?

^z This people is so rooted in their wickedness, that Gibeah, which was like to Sodom, was never more corrupt, Judges 19. 22.

^a Meaning, that he so esteemed them, and delighted in them.

^b They were ^e abominable unto me, as their lovers, the idols.

^c Signifying, that God would destroy their children by these sundry means, and so consume them by little and little.

^d As they kept tender plants in their houses in Tyrus, ^f preserve them from the cold air of the sea, so was Ephraim at the first unto me, but now I will give him to the slaughter.

^e The prophet seeing the great plagues of God toward Ephraim, prayeth to God to make them barren, rather than that this great slaughter should come upon their children.

^f The chief cause of their destruction is, that they committed idolatry, and corrupt my religion in Gilgal.

^g Whereof though the grapes were gathered, yet ever as it gathered new strength, it increased new wickedness, so that the correction which should have brought them to obedience, did but utter their stubbornness.

^h As they were rich and had abundance.

ⁱ To wit, from God.

^k The day shall come that God shall take away their king, and then they shall feel the fruit of their sins, and

4 They have spoken words, swearing falsely in making a ^l covenant: thus ^m judgment groweth ⁿ wormwood in the furrows of the field.

5 The inhabitants of Samaria shall ^o fear because of the calf of Beth-aven: for the people thereof shall mourn over it, and the ^p Chemarims thereof that rejoiced in it for the glory thereof, because it is departed from it.

6 It shall be also brought to Ashur for ^q present unto king Jareb: Ephraim shall receive shame, and Israel shall be ashamed of his own counsel.

7 Of Samaria, the king thereof is destroyed, as the foam upon the water.

8 The high places also of ^r Aven shall be destroyed: even the sin of Israel: the thorn and thistle shall grow upon their altars, and they shall say to the mountains, ^s Cover us, and to the hills, Fall upon us.

9 O Israel, thou hast ^t sinned from the days of Gibeah: there they ^u stood: the battle in Gibeah against the children of iniquity did not touch them.

10 It is my desire ^v that I should chastise them, and the people shall be gathered against them, when they shall gather themselves in their two ^w furrows.

11 And Ephraim is as an heifer used to delight ^x in threshing: but I will pass by her ^y fair neck: I will make Ephraim to ride: Judah shall plow, and Jacob shall break his clods.

12 Sow to yourselves in righteousness: reap after the measure of mercy: ^z break up your fallow ground: for it is time to seek the Lord, till he come and rain righteousness upon you.

13 But you have plowed wickedness: ye have reaped iniquity: you have eaten the fruit of lyes: because thou didst trust in thine own ways; and in the multitude of thy strong men,

14 Therefore shall a tumult arise among thy people, and all thy munitions shall be destroyed; as ^{aa} Shalman destroyed Beth-arbel in the day of battle: the mother with the children was dashed in pieces:

15 So shall Beth-el do unto you, because of your malicious wickedness: in the morning shall the king of Israel be destroyed.

5 He shall no more return into the land of Egypt: but Asshur shall be his^d king, because they refused to convert.

6 And the sword shall fall on his cities, and shall consume his bars, and devour them, because of their own counsels.

7 And my people are bent to rebellion against me: though^e they called them to the most High: yet none at all would exalt him.

8 ^f How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? how shall I deliver thee, Israel? how shall I make thee as^g Admah? how shall I set thee as Zeboim? mine heart is turned within me: ^h my repentings are rolled together.

9 I will not execute the fierceness of my wrath: I will not return to destroy Ephraim: for I am God, and not man, the holy One in the midst of thee, and I will notⁱ enter into the city.

10 They shall walk after the Lord: he shall roar like a lion: when he shall roar, then the children of the West shall fear.

11 ^j They shall fear as a sparrow out of Egypt: and as a dove out of the land of Asshur, and I will place them in their houses, saith the Lord.

THE ARGUMENT.

The prophet Joel first rebuketh them of Judah, that being now punished with a great plague of famine, remaineth still obstinate. Secondly, he threateneth greater plagues, because they grew daily to more hardness of heart, and rebellion against God, notwithstanding his punishments. Thirdly, he exhorteth them to repentance, shewing that it must be earnest, and proceed from the heart, because they had grievously offended God. And so doing, he promiseth that God will be merciful, and not forget his covenant that he made with their fathers: but will send his Christ, who shall gather the scattered sheep, and restore them to life and liberty, though they seemed to be dead.

Of the judgments of God against the enemies of his people.

FOR behold, in those days and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,

2 I will also gather all nations, and I will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people, and for mine heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land.

3 And they have cast lots for my people, and have given the child for the harlot, and sold the girl for wine, that they might drink.

4 Yea, and what have you to do with me, O Tyrus and Zidon, and all the coasts of Palestina? will ye render me a recompense? and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I render your recompence upon your head:

5 For ye have taken my silver, and have carried into your temples my goodly and pleasant things.

6 The children also of Judah and the children of Jerusalem have you sold unto the Grecians, that ye might send them far from their border.

7 Behold, I will raise them out of the place where ye have sold them, and will render your reward upon your own head.

8 And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the children of Judah: and they shall sell them to the Sabeans, to a people far off: for the Lord hath spoken it.

9 Publish this among the Gentiles: prepare war, wake up the mighty men: let all the men of war draw near and come up.

10 Break your plowshares into swords, and your scythes into spears: let the weak say, I am strong.

11 Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together round about: there shall the Lord cast down thy mighty men.

12 Let the heathen be wakened and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat, for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about.

13 Put in your scythes, for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down, for the wine-press is full: yea, the wine-presses run over, for their wickedness is great.

14 O multitude, O multitude, come into the valley of threshing: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of threshing.

15 The sun and moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their light.

16 The Lord also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem, and the heavens and the earth shall shake, but the Lord will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel.

17 So shall ye know that I am the Lord your God, dwelling in Zion, mine holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers go through her any more.

18 And in that day shall the mountains drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the rivers of Judah shall run with waters, and a fountain shall come forth of the house of the Lord, and shall water the valley of Shittim.

19 Egypt shall be waste, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the injuries of the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land.

20 But Judah shall dwell for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation.

21 For I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed, and the Lord will dwell in Zion.

■ Meaning hereby the Gentiles, Rom. 10. 13.

■ When I shall deliver my church, which standeth of the Jews and of the Gentiles.

1 It appeareth that he alludeth to that great victory of Jehoshaphat, when as God without man's help destroyed the enemies, 2 Chron. 20. 26. also he hath respect to this word Jehoshaphat, which signifieth pleading judgment, because God would judge the church of his church, as he did there:

2 That which the enemy got for the sale of my people, he bestowed upon harlots and drink.

3 He taketh the cause of his church in hand against the enemy, as though the injury done himself.

4 Have I done you wrong, that ye will render me the like?

5 For afterward God sold them by Nebuchadnezzar and Alexander the Great, for the love he bare to his people, and thereby they were comforted though the price had been theirs.

6 When I shall execute my judgments against mine enemies, I will cause every one to be ready, and prepare their weapons to destroy one another, for my church sake.

7 Thus he shall encourage the enemies when their wickedness is full ripe to destroy one another, which he calleth the valley of God's judgments.

8 God assureth his against all troubles, that when he destroyeth his enemies, his children shall be delivered.

9 The strangers shall no more destroy his church: which if they do, it is the people, which by their sins make the breach for the enemy.

10 He promiseth to his church abundance of graces, read Ezek. 47. 1. which should water and comfort the most barren places, Amos 9. 13.

11 The malicious enemies shall have no part of this grace.

12 He had suffered his church hitherto to lie in their filthiness, but now he promiseth to cleanse them, and to make them pure unto him.

THE ARGUMENT.

Among many other prophets that God raised up to admonish the Israelites of his plagues for their wickedness and idolatry, he stirred up Amos, who was an herdsman or shepherd of a poor town, and gave him both knowledge and constancy to reprove all estates and degrees, and to denounce God's horrible judgments against them, except they did in time repent: showing them, that if God spared not the other nations about them, who had lived as it were in ignorance of God in respect of them, but for their sins will punish them, that they could look for nothing, but a horrible destruction, except they turned to the Lord by unfeigned repentance. And finally, he comforteth the godly with hope of the coming of the Messiah, by whom they should have perfect deliverance and salvation.

9 Proclaim in the palaces at Ashdod, and in the palaces in the land of Egypt, and say, Assemble yourselves upon the mountains of Samaria: so behold the great tumults in the midst thereof, and the oppressed in the midst thereof.

10 For they know not to do right, saith the Lord: they store up violence and robbery in their palaces.

11 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, An adversary shall come even round about the country, and shall bring down thy strength from thee, and thy palaces shall be spoiled.

12 Thus saith the Lord, As the shepherd taketh out of the mouth of the lion two legs, or a piece of an ear: so shall the children of Israel be taken out that dwell in Samaria, in the corner of a bed, and in Damascus, as in a couch.

13 Hear, and testify in the house of Jacob, saith the Lord God, the God of hosts.

14 Surely in the day that I shall visit the transgressions of Israel upon him, I will also visit the altars of Beth-el, and the horns of the altar shall be broken off, and fall to the ground.

15 And I will smite the winter-house with the summer-house, and the houses of ivory shall perish, and the great houses shall be consumed, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER IV.

Against the governors of Samaria.

HEAR this word, ye kine of Bashan that are in the mountain of Samaria, which oppress the poor, and destroy the needy, and they say to their master, Bring, and let us drink.

1 The Lord God hath sworn by his holiness, that lo, the days shall come upon you, that he will take you away with thorns, and your posterity with fish-hooks.

2 And ye shall go out at the breaches, every cow forward: and ye shall cast yourselves out of the palace, saith the Lord.

3 Come to Beth-el, and transgress: to Gilgal, and multiply transgression, and bring your sacrifices in the morning, and your tithes after three years,

4 And offer thanksgiving of leaven, publish and proclaim the free offering: for this liketh they did.

¹ He calleth the strangers, as the Philistines and Egyptians, to be witnesses of God's judgments against the Israelites for their cruelty and oppression.

² The fruit of their cruelty and theft appeareth by their great riches which they have in their houses.

³ When the lion hath satiate his hunger, the shepherd findeth a leg, or a tip of an ear, to shew that the sheep have been worried.

⁴ Where they thought to have had a sure hold, and have been in safety.

⁵ Thus he calleth the princes and governors, which being overwhelmed with the great abundance of God's benefits forgot God, and therefore he calleth them by the name of beasts, and not of men.

⁶ They encourage such as have authority over the people, to plunder them, so that they may have profit by it.

⁷ He alludeth to fishers which catch fish by hooks and thorns.

⁸ He speaketh this in contempt of them which resorted to these places, thinking that their great devotion and good intention had been sufficient to have bound God unto them.

⁹ Read Deut. 14. 28.

¹⁰ As Levit. 7. 13.

787. ^{Bef. Chr.} liketh you, O ye children of Israel, saith the Lord God.

6 And therefore have I given you ^w cleanness of teeth in all your cities, and scarceness of bread in all your palaces: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord.

7 And also I have with-holden the rain from you, when there ^{were} yet three ^m months to the harvest, and I caused it to rain upon one city, and have not caused it to rain upon another city: one piece was rained upon, and the piece whereupon it rained not, withered.

8 So two ^{or} three cities wandered unto one city to drink water, but they were ^y not satisfied: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord.

9 I have smitten you with blasting and mill-dew: your great gardens and your vineyards, and your fig-trees, and your olive-trees did the palmer-worm devour: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord.

10 Pestilence have I sent among you, after the manner of ^e Egypt: your young men have I slain with the sword, and have taken away your horses: and I have made the stink of your tents to come up even unto your nostrils: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord.

11 I have overthrown you as God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah: and ye were as a ^r fire-brand pluckt out of the burning: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord.

12 Therefore, thus will I do unto thee, O Israel: and because I will do this unto thee, prepare to ^b meet thy God, O Israel.

13 For lo, he that formeth the mountains and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought: which maketh the morning darkness, and walketh upon the high places of the earth, the Lord God of hosts is his name.

C H A P. V.

A lamentation for the captivity of Israel.

HEAR ye this word, which I lift upon you, ^{even} a lamentation of the house of Israel.

2 The ^e virgin Israel is fallen, and shall no more rise: she is left upon her land, and there is none to raise her up.

3 For thus saith the Lord God, The city which went out by a thousand, shall leave an ^d hundred: and that which went forth by an hundred, shall leave ten to the house of Israel.

4 For thus saith the Lord unto the house of Israel, Seek ye me, and ye shall live.

5 But seek not to Beth-el, nor enter into ^a Gilgal, and go not to Beer-sheba: for Gilgal shall go into captivity, and Beth-el shall come to nought. ^{Bef. Chr.} 787.

6 Seek the Lord, and ye shall live, lest he break out like fire in the house of Joseph, and devour it, and there be none to quench it in Beth-el.

7 They turn ^f judgment to wormwood, and leave off righteousness in the earth.

8 He ^m maketh Pleiades, and Orion, and he turneth the shadow of death into the morning, and he maketh the day dark as night: he calleth the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the open earth: the Lord is his name.

9 He strengtheneth the destroyer against the mighty: and the destroyer shall come against the fortress.

10 They have hated him ^a that rebuked in the gate: and they abhorred him that speaketh uprightly.

11 Forasmuch then as your treading is upon the poor, and ⁱ ye take from him burdens of wheat: ye have built houses of hewn stone, but ye shall not dwell in them: ye have planted pleasant vineyards, but ye shall not drink wine of them.

12 For I know your manifold transgressions, and your mighty sins: they afflict the just, they take rewards, and they oppress the poor in the gate:

13 Therefore ^a the prudent shall keep silence in that time, for it is an evil time.

14 Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and the Lord God of hosts will be with you, as you have spoken.

15 Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate: it may be that the Lord God of hosts will be merciful unto the remnant of Joseph.

16 Therefore the Lord God of hosts, the Lord saith thus, Mourning shall be in all streets: and they shall say in all the high ways, Alas; alas! and they shall call the ⁱ husbandman to lamentation, and such as can mourn, to mourning.

17 And in all the vines shall be lamentation: for I will pass through thee, saith the Lord.

18 Wo unto you that ^m desire the day of the Lord: what have you to do with it? the day of the Lord is darkness and not light.

19 As if ^a man did flee from ^a lion, and a bear met him: or went into the house, and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him.

20 Shall not the day of the Lord be darkness, and not light? even darkness and no light in it?

21 I hate and abhor your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies.

^c He so calleth them, because they so boasted of themselves, or because they were given to wantonness and daintiness.

ⁱ Meaning, that the tenth part should scarcely be saved.

^e In these places they worshipped new idols, which aforetime served for the true honour of God, therefore he saith that these shall not save them.

^f Instead of judgment and equity, they execute cruelty and oppression.

^m He describeth the power of God, Job 9. 9.

^b They hate the prophets, which reprove them in the open assemblies.

ⁱ Ye take both his money and also his food, wherewith he should live.

^a God will so plague them, that they shall not suffer the godly once to open their mouths ^m admonish them of their faults.

^r So that all degrees shall have matter of lamentation for the great plagues

^m Thus he speaketh, because the wicked and hypocrites said they were content to abide God's judgments, whereas the godly tremble and fear, Jer. 30. 7. Joel 2. 24 11. Zeph. 1. 15.

Bef. Chr. 787.

22 Though ye offer me burnt-offerings and meat-offerings, I will not accept them: neither will I regard the peace-offerings of your fat beasts.

23 Take thou away from me the multitude of thy songs (for I will not hear the melody of thy viols)

24 And let judgment run down as waters; and righteousness as a mighty river.

25 Have ye offered unto me sacrifices and offerings in the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel?

26 But you have borne Siccuth your king, and Chiun your images, and the star of your gods, which ye made to yourselves:

27 Therefore will I cause you to go into captivity beyond Damascus, saith the Lord, whose name is the God of hosts.

C H A P. VI.

Against the princes of Israel living in pleasures.

WO to them that are in ease in Zion, and trust in the mountain of Samaria, which were famous at the beginning of the nations: and the house of Israel came to them.

2 Go you unto Calneh, and see: and from thence go you to Hamath the great: then go down to Gath of the Philistines: be they better than these kingdoms? or the border of their land greater than your border?

3 Ye that put far away the evil day, and approach to the seat of iniquity?

4 They lie upon beds of ivory, and stretch themselves upon their beds, and eat the lambs of the flock, and the calves out of the stall.

5 They sing to the sound of the viol: they invent to themselves instruments of music, like David.

6 They drink wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the chief ointments, but no man is sorry for the affliction of Joseph.

7 Therefore now shall they go captive with the first that go captive, and the sorrow of them that stretched themselves is at hand.

8 The Lord God hath sworn by himself, saith the Lord God of hosts, I abhor the excellency of Jacob, and hate his palaces: therefore will I deliver up the city, with all that is therein.

^a Because ye have corrupted my true service, and remain obstinate in your vices, Isa. 1. 11. Jer. 6. 10.

^b Do your duty to God, and to your neighbour, and so ye shall feel his grace plentifully, if you shew your abundant affections according to God's word.

^c That idol which you esteemed your king, and carried about as you did Chiun, in the which images you thought that there was a certain divinity.

^d The prophet threateneith the wealthy, which regarded not God's plagues nor menaces by his prophets.

^e These two cities were famous by their first inhabitants, the Canaanites: and seeing beforetime they did nothing avail them that were there born, why should you look that they should save you which were brought in to dwell in other men's possessions?

^f If God have destroyed these excellent cities in three divers kingdoms, as in Babylon, Syria, and of the Philistines, and hath brought their wide borders into a greater straitness than yours yet are, think you to be better to escape?

^g Ye that continue still in your wickedness, and think that God's plagues are not in hand, but give yourselves to all idleness, wantonness and riot.

^h As he caused divers kinds of instruments to be made to serve God's glory, so these did contend to invent many to serve their wanton affections and lusts.

ⁱ They pitied not their brethren, whereof now many were slain and carried away captive.

Bef. Chr. 787.

9 And if there remain ten men in one house, they shall die.

10 And his uncle shall take him up and burn him to carry out the bones out of the house, and shall say unto him that is by the sides of the house, Is there yet any with thee? And he shall say, None. Then shall he say, Hold thy tongue: for we may not remember the name of the Lord.

11 For behold, the Lord commandeth, and he will smite the great house with breaches, and the little house with clefts.

12 Shall horses run upon the rock? or will one plow there with oxen? for ye have turned judgment into gall, and the fruit of righteousness into wormwood.

13 Ye rejoice in a thing of nought: ye say, Have not we gotten us horns by our own strength?

14 But behold, I will raise up against you a nation, O house of Israel, saith the Lord God of hosts: and they shall afflict you, from the entering in of Hamath unto the river of the wilderness.

God sheweth certain visions, whereby he signifieth the destruction of the people of Israel. 10 The false accusation of Amaziab. 12 His crafty counsel.

THUS hath the Lord God shewed unto me, and behold, he formed grasshoppers in the beginning of the shooting up of the latter growth: and lo, it was in the latter growth: after the king's mowing.

2 And when they had made an end of eating the grass of the land, then I said, O Lord God, spare, I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob? for he is small.

3 So the Lord repented for this. It shall not be, saith the Lord.

4 Thus also hath the Lord God shewed unto me, and behold, the Lord God called to judgment by fire, and it devoured the great deep, and did eat up a part.

5 Then said I, O Lord God, cease, I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob? for he is small.

9 And the high places of Isaac shall be desolate, and the temples of Israel shall be destroyed: and I will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

10 ¶ Then Amaziah the priest of Beth-el sent to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying, Amos hath conspired against thee in the midst of the house of Israel: the land is not able to bear all his words:

11 For thus Amos saith, Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall be led away captive out of their own land.

12 Also ⁿ Amaziah said unto Amos, O thou the Seer, go, flee thou away into the land of Judah, and there eat thy bread, and prophesy there.

13 But prophesy no more at Beth-el: for it is the king's chapel, and it is the king's court.

14 Then answered Amos, and said to Amaziah, I was no ^o prophet, neither was I [■] prophet's son, but I was an herdman, and a gatherer of wild figs.

15 And the Lord took me as I followed the flock, and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel.

16 Now therefore hear thou the word of the Lord, Thou sayest, Prophesy not against Israel, and speak nothing against the house of Isaac.

17 Therefore thus saith the Lord, [■] Thy wife shall be an harlot in the city, and thy sons and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy land shall be divided by line, and thou shalt die in a polluted land, and Israel shall surely go into captivity forth of his land.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Idumeans which came of Esau, were mortal enemies always to the Israelites, which came of Jacob, and therefore did not only vex them continually with sundry kinds of cruelty, but also stirred up others to fight against them. Therefore when they were now in their greatest prosperity, and did most triumph against Israel, which was in great affliction and misery, God raised up his prophet to comfort the Israelites, forasmuch as God had now determined to destroy their adversaries, which did so sore vex them, and to send them such as should deliver them, and set up the kingdom of Messiah, which he had promised.

Beh. Chr. THE vision of Obadiah. Thus saith the Lord God against Edom, We have heard a rumour from the Lord, and an ambassador is sent among the heathen: arise, and let us rise up against her to battle.

2 Behold, I have made thee small among the heathen: thou art utterly despised.

3 The pride of thine heart hath deceived thee: thou that dwellest in the cliffs of the rocks,

^a God hath certainly revealed to his prophets that he will raise up the heathen to destroy the Edomites, whereof the rumour is now published, Jer. 49. 14.

^b Thus the heathen encourage themselves to rise against Edom.

^c Which despiseth all others in respect of thyself, and yet whose habitation is high, that saith in his heart, Who shall bring me down to the ground?

4 Though thou exalt thyself as the eagle, and make thy nest among the stars, thence will I bring thee down, saith the Lord.

5 Came thieves to thee or robbers by night? how wast thou brought to silence? would they not have stolen till they had enough? if the grape-art but an handful in comparison of others, and art shut up among the hills, separate from the rest of the world.

^d God will so destroy them, that he will leave none, though thieves, when they come, take but till they have enough, and they that gather grapes, ever leave some behind them, Jer.

49. 9.

Est. Chr. 587. grape-gatherers came to thee, would they not leave some grapes?

6 How are the things of Esau sought up, and his treasures searched?

7 All the men of thy confederacy^e have driven thee to the borders: the men that were at peace with thee, have deceived thee, and prevailed against thee: they that eat thy^f bread, have laid a wound under thee: there is none understanding in him.

8 Shall not I in that day, saith the Lord, even destroy the wise men out of Edom, and understanding from the mount of Esau?

9 And thy strong men, O Teman, shall be afraid, because every one of the mount of Esau shall be cut off by slaughter.

10 For thy cruelty against thy^g brother Jacob, shame shall cover thee, and thou shalt be cut off for ever.

11 When thou stoodest^h on the other side, in the day that the strangers carried away his substance, and strangers entered into his gates, and cast lots upon Jerusalem, even thou wast as one of them.

12 But thou shouldest not have beholden the day of thy brother, in the day that he was madeⁱ a stranger, neither shouldest thou have rejoiced over the children of Judah, in the day of their destruction: thou shouldest not have spoken proudly in the day of affliction.

13 Thou shouldest not have entered into the gate of my people in the day of their destruction, neither shouldest thou have once looked on their affliction in the day of their destruction, nor have laid hands on their substance in the day of their destruction.

14 Neither shouldest thou have stood in the cross ways to cut off them that should escape, neither shouldest thou have shut up the remnant thereof in the day of affliction.

15 For the day^k of the Lord is near, upon all the heathen: as thou hast done, it shall be done to thee: thy reward shall return upon thine head.

16 For as ye have^l drunk upon mine holy mountain, so shall all the heathen drink continually: yea, they shall drink and swallow up, and they shall be^m as though they had not been.

17 But upon Mount Zion shall be deliverance, and it shall be holy, and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions, 18 And the house of Jacob shall beⁿ fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau as stubble, and they shall kindle in them and devour them: and there shall be no remnant of the house of Esau: for the Lord hath spoken it.

19 And they shall possess the south side of the^o mount of Esau, and the plain of the Philistines: and they shall possess the fields of Ephraim, and the fields of Samaria, and Benjamin shall have Gilead.

20 And the captivity of this host of the children of Israel, which were among the^p Canaanites, shall possess unto Zarephath, and the captivity of Jerusalem, which is in Sepharad, shall possess the cities of the South, 21 And they^q that shall save, shall come up to mount Zion to judge the mount of Esau, and the kingdom shall be the Lord's.

When Jonah had long prophesied in Israel and had little profited, God gave him express charge to go and denounce his judgments against Nineveh the chief city of the Assyrians, because he had appointed, that they which were of the heathen, should convert by the mighty power of his word, and that within three days preaching, that Israel might see how horribly they had provoked God's wrath, which for the space of so many years had not converted to the Lord for so many prophets, and so diligent preaching. He prophesied under Joash and Jeroboam, as 2 Kings 14. 25.

3 Jonah fled when he was sent to preach. 4 A tempest ariseth, and he is cast into the sea for his disobedience.

THE word of the Lord came ^a alio unto Jonah the son of Amittai, saying,

2 Arise, and go to ^b Nineveh, that ^c great city, and cry against it: for their wickedness is come up before me.

3 But Jonah rose up to ^d flee into Tarshish from the presence of the Lord, and went down to ^e Japho: and he found a ship going to Tarshish: so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, that he might go with them unto Tarshish from the ^f presence of the Lord.

4 But the Lord sent out ^g a great wind into the sea, and there was a mighty tempest in the sea, so that the ship was like to be broken.

5 Then the mariners were afraid, and cried every man unto his god, and cast the wares that were in the ship, into the sea, to lighten it of them: but Jonah was gone down ^h into the sides of the ship, and he lay down, and was fast asleep.

6 So the ship-master came to him, and said unto him, What meanest thou, O sleeper? Arise, call upon thy ⁱ God, if so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not.

7 And they said every one to his fellow, Come, and let us cast ^j lots, that we may know for whose cause this evil is upon us. So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

8 Then said they unto him, tell us, for whose cause this evil is upon us? what is thine occupation, and whence comest thou? which is thy country, and of what people art thou?

9 And he answered them, I am an Hebrew, and I fear the Lord God of heaven, which hath made the sea, and the dry land.

10 Then were the men exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, Why hast thou done this? (for the men knew that he fled from the presence of the Lord, because he had told them)

11 Then said they unto him, What shall we do unto thee, that the sea may be calm unto us? (for the sea wrought and was troublous)

12 And he said unto them, Take me, and cast me into the sea, so shall the sea be calm unto you: for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you.

13 Nevertheless, the men rowed to bring it to the land, but they could not: for the sea wrought, and was troublous against them.

14 Wherefore they cried unto the Lord, and said, ^k We beseech thee, O Lord, we beseech thee, let us not perish for this man's life, and lay not upon us innocent blood: for thou, O Lord, hast done ^l as it pleased thee.

15 So they took up Jonah, and cast him into the sea, and the sea ceased from her raging.

16 Then the men ^m feared the Lord exceedingly, and offered a sacrifice unto the Lord, and made vows.

17 Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah: and Jonah was in the ⁿ belly of the fish three days and three nights.

C H A P. II.

1 Jonah is in the fish's belly. 2 His prayer. 10 He is delivered.

THEN Jonah prayed unto the Lord his God, ^o out of the fish's belly,

2 And said, I cried in mine affliction unto the Lord, and he heard me: out of the ^p belly of hell cried I, and thou heardest my voice.

3 For thou hadst cast me into the bottom in the midst of the sea, and the floods compassed me about: all thy surges and all thy waves passed over me.

4 Then I said, I am ^q cast away out of thy sight: yet will I look again toward thine holy temple.

5 The waters compassed me about unto the soul: the depth closed me round about, and the weeds were wrapt about my head.

6 I went down to the bottom of the mountains: the earth with her bars was about me for ever, yet hast thou brought up my ^r life from the pit, O Lord my God.

7 When my soul fainted within me, I remembered the Lord: and my prayer came unto thee into thine holy temple.

8 They that wait upon lying ^s vanities, forsake their own ^t mercy.

9 But

^a After that he had preached ^u long time in Israel: and so Ezekiel, after that for ^v time he had prophesied in Judah, he had visions in Babylon, Ezek. 1. 1.

^b For seeing the great obstination of the Israelites, he sent his prophet to the Gentiles, that they might provoke them to repentance, ^w at least, make them inexcusable: for Nineveh was the chief city of the Assyrians.

^c For ^x authors write, it contained in circuit about eight and forty miles, and had a thousand and five hundred towers, and ^y this time there ^z hundred and twenty thousand children therein, chap. 4. 11.

^d Whereby he declareth his weakness, that would not promptly follow the Lord's calling, but gave place to his own reason, which persuaded him that he should nothing at all profit there, seeing he had done so small good among his own people, chap. 4. 2.

^e Which was the haven and port to take shipping thither, called also Joppa.

^f From that vocation whereunto God had called him, and wherein he would have assisted him.

^g As one that would have cast off this care and solicitude, by seeking rest and quietness.

^h As they had called ^{aa} their idols, which declareth that idolaters have no stay nor certainty, but in their troubles seek they cannot tell to whom.

ⁱ Which declareth, that the matter was in great extremity and doubt, which thing was God's motion in them, for the trial of the cause: and this may not be done but in matters of great importance.

^k This declarath that the very wicked in their necessities flee unto God for succour, and also that they are touched with a certain fear to shed man's blood, whereas they know no manifest sign of wickedness.

^l They were touched with ^{ab} certain repentance of their life past, and began to worship the true God, by whom they saw themselves so wonderfully delivered: but this was done for fear and not of a pure heart and affection, neither according to God's word.

ⁿ Being now swallowed up of death and seeing no remedy to escape, his faith brake out unto the Lord, knowing that out of the very hell he was able to deliver him.

^o For he ^{ac} now in the fish's belly, as in a grave or place of darkness.

^p This declared what his prayer was, and how he laboured between hope and despair, considering the neglect of his vocation, and God's judgments for the same: but yet in the end faith got the victory.

^q Thou hast delivered ^{ad} from the belly of the fish, and all these dangers, as it were raising me from death to life.

^r They that depend upon any thing save on God alone. ^{ae} They refuse their own felicity, and that goodness which they should else receive of God.

■ Jonah is sent again to Nineveh. 5 The repentance of the king of Nineveh.

AND the word of the Lord came unto ¹Jonah the second time, saying, ²Arise, go unto Nineveh that great city, and preach unto it the preaching which I bid thee.

³So Jonah arose and went to Nineveh according to the word of the Lord: now Nineveh was ⁴great and excellent city of three days journey.

⁴And Jonah began to enter into the city ⁵day's journey, and he cried, and said, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown.

⁵So the people of Nineveh ⁶believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them, even to the least of them.

⁶For the word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, and sat in ashes.

⁷And he proclaimed and said through Nineveh, (by the counsel of the king and his nobles) saying, Let neither man nor ⁸beast, bullock nor sheep, taste any thing, neither feed, nor drink water.

■ But let man and beast put on sackcloth, and ⁹cry mightily unto God: yea, let every man turn from his evil way, and from the wickedness that is in their hands.

⁹Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce wrath, that we perish not?

¹⁰And God saw their ¹¹works, that they turned from their evil ways: and ¹²God repented of the evil that he said that he would do unto them, and he did it not.

¹ This is a great declaration of God's mercy, that he receiveth him again, and sendeth him forth ²his prophet, which had before shewed so great infirmity.

² Read chap. 1. 2.

■ He went forward one day in the city and preached, and so he continued till the city was converted.

* For he declared that he was a prophet sent to them from God, to denounce his judgments against them.

⁷ Not that the dumb beasts had sinned, or could repent, but that by their example man might be astonished, considering that for his sin the anger of God hanged over all creatures.

■ He willed that the ⁸king should earnestly call unto God for mercy.

■ For partly by the threatening of the prophet, and partly by the motion of his conscience, he doubted whether God would shew them mercy.

⁹ That is, the fruits of their repentance, which did proceed of faith, which God had planted by the ministry of his prophet.

C H A P. IV.

The great goodness of God toward his creatures.

THEREFORE it displeas'd ¹Jonah exceedingly, and he was angry.

²And he prayed unto the Lord, and said, I pray thee, O Lord, was not this my saying, when I was yet in my country? therefore I prevented it to flee unto ³Tarshish: for I knew that thou art ⁴gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil.

³Therefore now, O Lord, take, I beseech thee, my life ⁴from me: for it is better for me to die than to live.

⁴Then said the Lord, dost thou well to be ⁵angry?

⁵So Jonah went out of the city, and sat on the east side of the city, and there made him a booth, and sat under it in the shadow ⁶till he might see what should be done in the city.

⁶And the Lord God prepared a ⁷gourd, and made it to come up over Jonah, that it might be ⁸shadow over his head, and deliver him from his grief. So Jonah was exceedingly glad of the gourd.

⁷But God prepared ⁸worm when the morning rose the next day, and it smote the gourd, that it withered.

⁸And when the sun did arise, God prepared also ⁹fervent east wind, and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he fainted, and wished in his heart to die, and said, It is better for me to die than to live.

⁹And God said unto Jonah, Dost thou well to be angry for the gourd? And he said, I do well to be ¹⁰angry unto the death.

¹⁰Then said the Lord, Thou hast had pity on the gourd, for the which thou hast not laboured, neither madest it grow, which came up in ¹¹night, and perished in a night:

and so the name of God, which he preached, should be blasphemed.

² Read chap. 1. 3.

³ Thus he prayed of grief, fearing lest God's name by this forgiveness might be blasphemed, ⁴though he sent his prophets forth to denounce his judgments in vain.

⁵ Wilt thou be judge when I do things for my glory, and when I do not?

⁶ For he doubted as yet, whether God would shew them mercy or not, and therefore after forty days he departed out of the city, looking what issue God would send.

⁷ Which was ⁸further means to cover him from the heat of the sun, as he remained in his booth.

⁹ This declareth the great inconveniences whereinto God's servants do fall, when they give place to their own affections. and do not in all things willingly submit themselves to God.

¹⁰ Thus God mercifully reproveth him, which would pity himself, and this gourd, and yet would restrain God to shew his compassion to so many thousand people.

¹¹ Meaning, that they were children and infants.

4 In that day shall they take up a parable against you, and lament with a doleful lamentation, and say, ' We be utterly wasted: he hath changed the portion of my people: how hath he taken it away to restore it unto me? he hath divided our fields.

BUT in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be prepared in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills, and people shall flee unto it.

■ Yea, many nations shall come and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem,

3 And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke mighty nations afar off, and they shall break their swords into mattocks, and their spears into scythes: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn to fight any more.

4 But they shall sit every man under his vine, and under his fig-tree, and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it.

5 For all the people will walk every one in the name of his God, and we will walk in the name of the Lord our God, for ever and ever.

6 At the same day, saith the Lord, will I gather her that halteth, and I will gather her that is cast out, and her that I have afflicted.

7 And I will make her that halted, a remnant: and her that was cast far off, a mighty nation: and the Lord shall reign over them in mount Zion, from henceforth even for ever.

8 And thou, O tower of the flock, the stronghold of the daughter Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion and kingdom shall come to the daughter Jerusalem.

9 Now why dost thou cry out with lamentation? is there no king in thee? is thy counsellor perished? for sorrow hath taken thee as a woman in travail,

An exhortation to the dumb creatures to bear the judgment against Israel being unkind. 6 What manner of sacrifices do please God.

HEARKEN ye now what the Lord saith, Arise thou, and contend before the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice.

2 Hear ye, O mountains, the Lord's quarrel, and ye mighty foundations of the earth: for the Lord hath a quarrel against his people, and he will plead with Israel.

3 O my people, what have I done unto thee? or wherein have I grieved thee? testify against me.

4 Surely I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of servants, and I have sent before thee Moses, Aaron, and Miriam.

5 O my people, remember now what Balak

This remnant, or church which God shall deliver, shall only depend on God's power and defence, as doth the grass of the field, and not on the hope of man.

I will destroy all things wherein thou puttest thy confidence, as thy vain confidence and idolatry, and so will help thee.

It shall be so terrible that the like hath not been heard of.

He taketh the high mountains and hard rocks to witness against the obstinacy of his people.

I have not hurt thee, but bestowed infinite benefits upon thee.

That is, remember my benefits from the beginning, how I delivered you from Balaam's curse, and also spared you from Shittim, which in the plain of Moab, till I brought you into the land promised.

That is, the truth of his promise, and his manifold benefits toward you.

Thus the people by hypocrisy ask how to please God, and are content to offer sacrifices, but will not change their lives.

There is nothing so dear to man but the hypocrites will offer it unto God, if they think thereby to avoid his king of Moab had devised, and what Balaam, the son of Beor, answered him, from Shittim unto Gilgal, that ye may know the righteousness of the Lord.

6 Wherewith shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt-offerings, and with calves of year old?

7 Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousand rivers of oil? shall I give my first-born for my transgression, even the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?

8 He hath shewed thee, O man, what good, and what the Lord requireth of thee: surely to do justly, and to love mercy, and humble thyself walk with thy God.

9 The Lord's voice crieth unto the city, and the man of wisdom shall see thy name: Hear the rod, and who hath appointed it.

10 Are yet the treasures of wickedness in the house of the wicked, and the scant measure that is abominable?

11 Shall I justify the wicked balances, and the bag of deceitful weights?

12 For the rich men thereof are full of cruelty, and the inhabitants thereof have spoken lyes, and their tongue is deceitful in their mouth.

13 Therefore also will I make thee sick in smiting thee, and making thee desolate, because of thy sins.

14 Thou shalt eat and not be satisfied, and thy casting down shall be in the midst of thee, and thou shalt take hold, but shalt not deliver: and that which thou deliverest, will I give up to the sword.

15 Thou shalt sow, but not reap: thou shalt tread the olives, but thou shalt not anoint thee with oil: and make sweet wine, but shalt not drink wine.

16 For the statutes of Omri are kept, and all the manner of the house of Ahab, and ye walk in their counsels, that I should make thee waste, and the inhabitants thereof an hissing: therefore ye shall bear the reproach of my people.

anger: but they will never be brought to mortify their own affections, and give themselves willingly to serve God the commandeth.

The prophet in few words calleth them to the observation of the second table, to know if they will obey God aright or no, saying, that God hath prescribed them to do this.

Meaning, that when God speaketh to any city or nation, the godly will acknowledge his Majesty, and consider not the mortal that bringeth the threatening, but God that sendeth it.

That is, of Jerusalem.

Thou shalt be consumed with inward grief and evils.

Meaning, that the city should go about to save her men, they that lay hold on that which they would preserve.

You have received all the corruption and idolatry, wherewith the tribes were infected under Omri, and Ahab his son: and to excuse your doings, you alledge the king's authority by his statutes, and also wisdom and policy in so doing, but you shall not escape punishment, but as I shewed you great favour, and took you for my people, shall your plagues be accordingly, Luke 12. 47.

2 The good man is perished out of the earth, and there is none righteous among them: they all lie in wait for blood: every man hunteth his brother with a net.

3 To make good for the evil of their hands, the prince asked, and the judge jagetb for a reward: therefore the great man he speaketh out the corruption of his soul: so they wrap it up.

4 The best of them is as a brier, and the most righteous of them is sharper than a thorn hedge: the day of thy watchmen and thy visitation cometh: then shall be their confusion.

5 Trust ye not in a friend, neither put ye confidence in a counsellor: keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom:

6 For the son revileth the father: the daughter riseth up against her mother: the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law, and a man's enemies are the men of his own house.

7 Therefore I will look unto the Lord: I will wait for God my Saviour: my God will hear me.

8 Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy: though I fall, I shall arise: when I shall sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me.

9 I will bear the wrath of the Lord, because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause, and execute judgment for me: then will he bring me forth to the light, and I shall see his righteousness.

10 Then she that is mine enemy, shall look upon it, and shame shall cover her, which said unto me, Where is the Lord thy God? Mine

11 This is the day that thy walls shall be built: this day shall drive far away the decree.

12 In this day also they shall come unto thee from Ashur, and from the strong cities, and from the strong holds even unto the river, and from sea to sea, and from mountain to mountain.

13 Notwithstanding, the land shall be desolate because of them that dwell therein, and for the fruits of their inventions.

14 Feed thy people with thy rod, the flock of thine heritage (which dwell solitary in the wood) as in the midst of Carmel: let them feed in Bashan and Gilead, in old time.

15 According to the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt, will I shew unto him marvellous things.

16 The nations shall see, and be confounded for all their power: they shall lay their hand upon their mouth: their ears shall be deaf.

17 They shall lick the dust like a serpent: they shall move out of their holes like worms: they shall be afraid of the Lord our God, and shall fear because of thee.

18 Who is a God like unto thee, that taketh away iniquity, and passeth by the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? He retaineth not his wrath for ever, because mercy pleaseth him.

19 He will turn again, and have compassion upon us: he will subdue our iniquities, and cast all their sins into the bottom of the sea.

20 Thou wilt perform thy truth to Jacob, and mercy to Abraham, thou hast sworn unto our fathers in old time.

^a The prophet taketh upon him the person of the earth, which complaineth that all her fruits are gone, so that nothing is left: that is, that there is no godly man remaining: for all are given to cruelty and deceit, so that none spareth his own brother.

^b He sheweth that the prince, the judge, and the rich man are linked together, all to do evil, and to cloke the doings one of another.

^e They that are of most estimation, and are counted most honest among them, are but thorns and briers to prick.

^f Meaning of the prophets and governors.

^g The prophet sheweth that the only remedy for the godly in desperate evils, is to flee unto God for succour.

^h This is spoken in the person of the church, which calleth the malignant church her enemy.

ⁱ To wit, when God shall shew himself deliverer of his church and destroyer of his enemies.

^k Meaning, the cruel empire of the Babylonians.

^l When the church shall be restored, they that were enemies afore shall come out of all the corners of the world to see her, so that neither holds, rivers, seas, nor mountains shall be able to let them.

^m Afore this grace appear, he sheweth how grievously the hypocrites themselves shall be punished, seeing that the earth itself, which cannot sin, shall be made waste because of their wickedness.

ⁿ The prophet prayeth to God to be merciful unto his church, when they should be scattered abroad in solitary places in Babylon, and be beneficial unto them in time past.

^o God promiseth to be favourable to his people, as he had been aforetime.

^p They shall be dumb men, and dare brag more.

^q They shall be astonished and afraid to hear men speak, lest they should hear of their destruction.

^r They shall fall flat on the ground for fear.

^u The church is assured that God will declare in effect the truth of his merciful promise which he had made of old to Abraham, and all that should apprehend the promise by faith.

N A H U M.

THE ARGUMENT.

As they of Nineveh shewed themselves prompt and ready to receive the words of God at Jonah's preaching, and so turned to the Lord by repentance: so after a certain time, rather giving themselves to worldly means to increase their dominion, than seeking to continue in the fear of God, and trade wherein they had begun, they cast off the care of religion, and so returned to their vomit, and provoked God's just judgment against them, in afflicting his people. Therefore their city Nineveh was destroyed, and Meroch-baladan king of Babel (or, as some think, Nebuchadnezzar) enjoyed the empire of the Assyrians. But because God hath continual care of his church, he stirreth up his prophet to comfort the godly, shewing that the destruction of their enemies should be for their consolation. And as it seemeth, he prophesied about the time of Hezekiah, and not in the time of Manasseh his son, as the Jews write.

CHAP. I.

Of the destruction of the Assyrians, and of the deliverance of Israel.

THE burden of Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum the Elkeshite.

2 God is jealous, and the Lord revengeth: the Lord revengeth: even the Lord of anger, the Lord will take vengeance on his adversaries, and he reserveth wrath for his enemies.

3 The Lord is slow to anger, but he is great in power, and will not surely clear the wicked: the Lord hath his way in the whirlwind and in the storm, and the clouds are the dust of his feet.

4 He rebuketh the sea, and drieth it, and he drieth up all the rivers: Bashan is wasted and Carmel, and the flower of Lebanon is wasted.

5 The mountains tremble for him, and the hills melt, and the earth is burnt at his sight, yea, the world, and all that dwell therein.

6 Who can stand before his wrath? or who can abide in the fierceness of his wrath? his wrath is poured out like fire, and the rocks are broken by him.

7 The Lord is good and as a strong hold in the day of trouble, and he knoweth them that trust in him.

8 But passing over as with a flood, he will utterly destroy the place thereof, and darkness shall pursue his enemies.

9 What do ye imagine against the Lord? he will make an utter destruction: affliction shall not rise up the second time:

10 For he shall come as unto thorns folded in another, and as unto drunkards in their drunkenness: they shall be devoured as stubble fully dried.

11 There cometh one out of thee that imagineth evil against the Lord, even a wicked counsellor.

12 Thus saith the Lord, Though they be quiet, and also many, yet thus shall they be cut off when he shall pass by: though I have afflicted thee, I will afflict thee no more.

13 For now I will break his yoke from thee, and will burst thy bonds in sunder.

^a Read Isa. 13. 1.

^c That is, born in a poor village in the tribe of Simeon.

^d Meaning, of his glory.

^e With his he is but angry for a time, but his anger never awageth toward the reprobate, though for a time he defer it.

^f Thus the wicked would make God's mercy an occasion of sin, but the prophet willeth them to consider his force and justice.

^g If all creatures be at God's commandment, and none is able to resist his wrath, shall they flatter himself, and think by any means to escape when he provoketh his God to anger?

^h Lest the faithful should be discouraged by hearing the power of God, he sheweth them that his mercies appertain unto them, and that he hath care over them.

ⁱ Signifying, that God will suddenly destroy Nineveh, and the Assyrians, in such sort, as they shall lie in perpetual darkness, and never recover their strength again.

^k He sheweth that the enterprises of the Assyrians against Judah and the church, were against God, and therefore he would to destroy them at once, that he should need return the second time.

^l Though the Assyrians think themselves like thorns that prick all sides, yet the Lord will set fire on them, and as drunken men are not able to stand against any force, so they shall be nothing able to resist him.

^m Which may be understood either of Sennacherib, or of 14 And the Lord hath given a commandment concerning thee, that no more of thy name be sown: out of the house of thy gods will I cut off the graven and the molten image: I will make it thy grave for thee, for thou art vile.

He describeth the victories of the Chaldeans against the Assyrians.

THE destroyer is come before thy face: keep the munition: look to the way: make thy loins strong: increase thy strength mightily.

2 For the Lord hath turned away the glory of Jacob, the glory of Israel: for the emptiers have emptied them out, and marred their vine-branches.

3 The shield of his mighty men is made red: the valiant men are in scarlet: the chariots shall be as in the fire, and flames in the day of his preparation, and the fir-trees shall tremble.

4 The chariots shall rage in the streets: they shall run to and fro in the high-ways, they shall seem like lamps: they shall shoot like the lightning.

5 He shall remember his strong men: they shall stumble as they go: they shall make haste to the walls thereof, and the defence shall be prepared.

6 The gates of the rivers shall be opened, and the palace shall melt.

7 And Huzzab the queen shall be led away captive, and her maids shall lead her with the voice of doves, smiting upon their breasts.

8 But Nineveh is of old like a pool of water: yet they shall flee away. Stand, stand, shall they cry: but none shall look back.

^b Meaning Sennacherib, who should have more children, but he slain in the house of his gods, Kings 19. 16, 37.

^c Which peace the Jews should enjoy by the death of Sennacherib.

^d That is, Nebuchadnezzar is in readiness to destroy the Assyrians: and the prophet derideth the enterprises of the Assyrians which prepared to resist him.

^e Seeing God hath punished his own people Judah and Israel, he will now punish the enemies by whom he scourged them: read Isa. 10. 12.

^f Signifying, that the Israelites were utterly destroyed.

^g Both fear the enemy, and also that they themselves should not so soon espy blood one of another to discourage them.

^h Meaning, their spears should shake and crash together.

ⁱ Then the Assyrians shall seek by all means to gather their power, but all things shall fail them.

^k The Assyrians will flatter themselves and say, that Nineveh is so ancient that it never perish, and as a fish-pool, whose waters they that walk the banks cannot touch: but they shall be scattered, and shall not look back, though they would call them.

^l God commandeth the enemies to spoil Nineveh, and promiseth them infinite riches and treasures.

Def. Chr. 713. 10 She is empty and void and waste, and the heart melteth, and the knees smite together, and sorrow is in all loins, and the faces of them all gather blackness.

11 Where is the dwelling of the lions, and the pasture of the lions whelps: where the lion and the lioness walked, and the lion's whelp, and none made them afraid?

12 The lion did tear in pieces enough for his whelps, and worried for his lioness, and filled his holes with prey, and his dens with spoil.

13 Behold, I come unto thee, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will burn her chariots in the smoke, and the sword shall devour thy young lions, and I will cut off thy spoil from the earth, and the voice of thy messengers shall no more be heard.

The prophet complaineth unto God, considering the great felicity of the wicked, and the miserable oppression of the godly, which endure all kind of affliction and cruelty, and yet can see no end. Therefore he had this revelation shewed him of God, that the Chaldeans should and take them away captives, so that they could look for no end of their troubles as yet, because of their stubbornness and rebellion against the Lord. And lest the godly should despair, seeing this horrible confusion, he comforteth them by this, that God will punish the Chaldeans their enemies, when their pride and cruelty shall be at height: wherefore he exhorteth the faithful to patience by his own example, and sheweth them a form of prayer, wherewith they should comfort themselves.

3 Why dost thou shew me iniquity, and cause me to behold sorrow? for spoiling and violence are before me: and there are that raise up strife and contention.

4 Therefore the law is dissolved, and judgment doth never go forth: for the wicked doth ^b compass about the righteous: therefore ^c wrong judgment proceedeth.

5 Behold among the heathen, and regard and wonder, and marvel: for I will work a work in your days: ^d ye will not believe it, though it be told you.

7 They are terrible ^e and fearful: ^e their judgment and their dignity shall proceed of themselves.

■ Their horses also are swifter than the leopards, and are more fierce than the wolves in the ^f evening: and their horsemen are many: and their horsemen shall come from far: they shall flee as the eagle hasting to meat.

9 They come all to spoil: before their faces shall be an ^g east wind, and they shall gather the captivity ^h as the sand.

10 And they shall mock the kings, and the princes shall be ⁱ scorn unto them: they shall deride every strong hold: for they shall gather ^h dust, and take it.

11 Then shall they ^j take courage, and transgress and do wickedly, imputing this their power unto their god.

12 Art not thou of old, O Lord my God, mine Holy one? we shall ^k not die: O Lord, thou hast ordained them for judgment, and, O God, thou hast established them for correction.

13 Thou art of pure eyes, and canst not see evil: thou canst not behold wickedness: wherefore dost thou look upon the transgressors, and holdest thy tongue when the wicked devoureth the man that is more righteous than he? Ref. Chr. 626.

14 And makest men as the ^l fishes of the sea, and as the creeping things, that have no ruler over them?

THE ARGUMENT.

When the time of the seventy years captivity prophesied by Jeremiah was expired, God raised up Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi, to comfort the Jews, and to exhort them to the building of the temple, which was a figure of the spiritual temple and church of God, whose perfection and excellence stood in Christ. And because that all were given to their own pleasures and commodities, he declareth that that plague of famine, which God then sent among them, was a just reward of their ingratitude, in that they contemned God's honour, who had delivered them. Yet he comforteth them, if they will return to the Lord, with the promise of greater felicity, forasmuch as the Lord will finish the work that he hath begun, and send Christ whom he had promised, and by whom they should attain to perfect joy and glory.

CHAP. I.

Bef. Chr. 520. 1 The time of the prophecy of Haggai. An exhortation to build the temple again.

IN the second year of king Darius, in the sixth month, the first day of the month, came the word of the Lord (by the ministry of the prophet Haggai) unto Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, prince of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Josedech the high priest, saying,
 2 Thus speaketh the Lord of hosts, saying,

This people say, The time is not yet come that the Lord's house should be builded. Bef. Chr. 520.

3 Then came the word of the Lord by the ministry of the prophet Haggai, saying,

4 Is it time for yourselves to dwell in your cieled houses, and this house lie waste?

5 Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, Consider your own ways in your hearts.

6 Ye have sown much, and bring in little: ye eat, but ye have not enough: ye drink, but ye a Who was the son of Hystaspis, and the third king of the Persians, as some think.

 b Because the building of the temple began in cease, by reason that the people were discouraged by their enemies: and if these two notable men had need to be stirred up, and admonished of their duties, what shall we think of other governors, whose doings are either against God, or very cold in his cause?

c Not that they condemned the building thereof, but they preferred policy and private profit in religion, being content with small beginnings.
 d Shewing, that they sought not only their necessities, but their very pleasures before God's honour.
 e Consider the plagues of God upon you for preferring your policies to his religion, and because ye seek not him first of all.

Can ye are not filled: ye clothe you, but ye be not warm: and he that earneth wages, putteth the wages into a broken bag.

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Consider your own ways in your hearts.

8 Go up to the mountain and bring wood, and build this house, and I will be favourable in it, and I will be glorified, saith the Lord.

9 Ye looked for much, and lo, it came to little: and when ye brought it home, I did blow upon it. And why, saith the Lord of hosts? Because of mine house that is waste, and ye run every man to his own house.

10 Therefore the heaven over you stayed itself from dew, and the earth stayed her fruit, 11 And I called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn, and upon the wine, and upon the oil, upon all that the ground bringeth forth: both upon men and upon cattle, and upon all the labour of the hands.

12 When Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Joshua the son of Josedech the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, heard the voice of the Lord their God, and the works of the prophet Haggai (as the Lord their God had sent him) then the people did fear before the Lord.

13 Then spake Haggai the Lord's messenger in the Lord's message unto the people, saying, I am with you, saith the Lord.

14 And the Lord stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel, the son of Shealtiel, a prince of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Josedech the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people, and they came, and did the work in the house of the Lord of hosts their God.

CHAPTER II.

He sheweth that the glory of the second temple shall exceed the first.

IN the four and twentieth day of the sixth month, in the second year of king Darius,

2 In the seventh month, in the one and twentieth day of the month, came the word of the Lord by the ministry of the prophet Haggai, saying,

3 Speak now to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel prince of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Josedech the high priest, and to the residue of the people, saying,

^f Meaning, that they should leave off their own commodities, and go forward in the building of God's temple, and in the setting forth of his religion.

^g That is, I will hear your prayers according to my promise, 1 Kings 8. 21, 29.

^h That is, my glory shall be set forth by you.

ⁱ And so brought it to nothing.

^k This declared that God is the author of the doctrine, and that he was but the minister, Exod. 14. 31. Judges 7. 20. Acts 15. 28.

^l Which declareth that men are unapt and dull to serve the Lord, neither can they obey his word or his messengers, before God reform their hearts, and give them new spirits, John 6. 44.

^m For the people, according to Isa. 32. 11, and Ezek. 41. 1. had prophesied, thought this temple should have been more excellent than Solomon's temple, which was destroyed by the Babylonians, but the prophets meant the spiritual temple, the church of Christ.

ⁿ That is, go forward in building the temple.

^o He exhorteth them to patience, though they see as yet this temple so glorious as the prophets had declared: for 4 Who is left among you, that saw this house in her first glory, and how do you see it now? is it not in your eyes, in comparison of it, as nothing?

5 Yet now be of good courage, O Zerubbabel, saith the Lord, and be of good comfort, O Joshua, son of Josedech the high priest: and be strong, all ye people of the land, saith the Lord, and do it: for I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts,

6 According to the word that I covenanted with you, when ye came out of Egypt: so my Spirit shall remain among you: fear ye not:

7 For thus saith the Lord of hosts, Yet a little while, and I will shake the heavens and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land:

And I will move all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come, and I will fill this house with glory, saith the Lord of hosts.

9 The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts.

10 The glory of this last house shall be greater than the first, saith the Lord of hosts: and in this place will I give peace, saith the Lord of hosts.

11 ¶ In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the Lord unto the prophet Haggai, saying,

12 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Ask now the priests concerning the law, and say, 13 If a man bear holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, and with his skirt do touch the bread, or the pottage, or the wine, or the oil, or any meat, shall it be holy? And the priests answered, and said, No.

14 Then said Haggai, If a polluted person touch any of these, shall it be unclean? And the priests answered, and said, It shall be unclean.

15 Then answered Haggai, and said, So is this people, and so is this nation before me, saith the Lord: and so are all the works of their hands, and that which they offer here, is unclean.

16 And now, I pray you consider in your minds, from this day, and afore, even afore a stone was laid upon a stone in the temple of the Lord:

17 Before these things were, when one came to a heap of twenty measures, there were but ten: when one came to the wine-press for to draw this should be accomplished in Christ, by whom all things should be renewed.

¶ Meaning Christ, whom all ought to look for and desire: or by desire, he may signify all precious things, riches, and such like.

¶ Therefore when his time cometh, he can make all the treasures of the world serve his purpose: but the glory of this second temple doth not stand in material things, neither can it be built.

¶ Meaning all spiritual blessings and felicity purchased by Christ, Phil. 4. 7.

¶ That is, the flesh of the sacrifices, whereby he signifieth that that thing which of itself is good, cannot make another thing so, and therefore they ought not to justify themselves by their sacrifices and ceremonies: but contrary, he that is unclean and not pure of heart, doth corrupt those things and make them detestable unto God, which else are good and godly.

¶ Consider how God did plague you with famine afore you began to build the temple.

¶ That is, before the building was begun.

520. draw out fifty vessels out of the press, there were but twenty.

18 I smote you with blasting and with mildew, and with hail, in all the labours of your hands: yet you turned not to me, saith the Lord.

19 Consider, I pray you, in your minds, from this day, and afore, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, even from the day that the foundation of the Lord's temple was laid: consider it in your minds.

20 Is the seed yet in the barn? yet the vine, and the fig-tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive-tree hath not brought forth: from this day will I bless you.

21 And again the word of the Lord came unto Haggai in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying, 520.

22 Speak unto Zerubbabel the prince of Judah, and say, I will shake the heavens and the earth, 23 And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathen, and I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them, and the horse and the riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother.

24 In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel my servant, the son of Shealtiel, saith the Lord, and will make thee as a signet: for I have chosen thee, saith the Lord of hosts.

From the time they began build the temple, he promised that God would bless them: and albeit yet the fruit was not come forth, yet in the gathering they should have plenty.

He exhorteth them to patience, and to abide till the harvest came, and then they should see God's blessings.

I will make a change and renew all things in Christ, of whom Zerubbabel here is a figure.

Hereby he sheweth that there shall be no let nor hindrance when God will make this wonderful restitution of his church.

Signifying, that his dignity should be most excellent, which thing was accomplished in Christ.

Z E C H A R I A H.

THE ARGUMENT.

Two months after that Haggai had begun to prophesy, Zechariah was also sent of the Lord to help him in the labour, and to confirm the same doctrine. First therefore he putteth them in remembrance for what cause God had so sore punished their fathers: and yet comforteth them, if they will repent unfeignedly, and not abuse this great benefit of God in their deliverance, which was figure of that true deliverance that all the faithful should have from death and sin by Christ. But because they still remained in their wickedness, and could not set forth God's glory, and were not yet made better by their long banishment, he rebuketh them most sharply: yet for the comfort of the repentant, he ever mixeth the promise of grace, that they might by this means be prepared to receive Christ, in whom all should be sanctified to the Lord.

CHAP. I.

520. He exhorteth the people to turn to the Lord, and to eschew the wickedness of their fathers. 16 He signifieth the restitution of Jerusalem and the temple.

IN the eighth month of the second year of Darius, came the word of the Lord unto Zechariah the son of Barachiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,

2 The Lord hath been sore displeased with your fathers.

3 Therefore say thou unto them, Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Turn ye unto me, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will turn unto you, saith the Lord of hosts.

4 Be ye not your fathers, unto whom the former prophets have cried, saying, Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Turn you now from your evil ways, and from your wicked works: but they would not hear, nor hearken unto me, saith the Lord: 520.

5 Your fathers, where are they? and do the prophets live for ever?

6 But did not my words and my statutes, which I commanded by my servants the prophets, take hold of your fathers? and they returned, and said, As the Lord of hosts hath determined to do unto us, according to our own ways, and according to our works, so hath he dealt with us.

7 Upon the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month, which is the month Shebat, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the Lord unto Zechariah the son of Barachiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,

8 I saw by night, and behold a man riding upon red horse, and he stood among the myrrh-trees, that were in bottom, and behind him

Who was the son of Hystaspis.

This was not that Zechariah whereof is mention, 2 Chron. 24. 20. but had the same name, and is called the son of Barachiah, as he was, because he came of those progenitors, as of Jehoiada or Barachiah and Iddo.

He speaketh this to fear them with God's judgments, that they should not provoke him their fathers had done, whom he so grievously punished.

Let your fruits declare that you God's people, and that he hath wrought in you by his Spirit, and mortified you: for else man hath no power to return God, but God must convert him, as Jer. 31. 18. Lament. 5. 21. Isa. 21. 8. and 31. 6. and 45. 21.

Though your fathers be dead, yet God's judgments in punishing them ought still to be before your eyes: and though the prophets be dead, yet their doctrine remaineth for ever, Pet. 1. 15.

Seeing ye saw the force of my doctrine punishing your fathers, why do not ye fear the threatenings contained in the same, and declared by my prophets?

As men astonished with my judgments, and not that they were touched with true repentance.

8 And they answered the angel of the Lord, that stood among the myrrh-trees, and said, We have gone through the world: and behold, all the world sitteth still, and is at rest.

9 Then the ² angel of the Lord answered and said, O Lord of hosts, how long wilt thou be unmerciful to Jerusalem, and to the cities of Judah, with whom thou hast been displeased now these threescore and ten years?

AND he shewed me Joshua the high priest,

him.

² And the ¹ Lord said unto Satan, The Lord reprove thee, O Satan: even the Lord that hath chosen Jerusalem, reprove thee. Is not this [■] brand taken out of the fire?

³ Now Joshua [■] clothed with filthy gar-

⁴ And he answered and spake unto those that stood before him, saying, Take away the ¹ filthy garments from him. And unto him he said, Behold, I have [■] caused thine iniquity to depart from thee, and I will clothe thee with change of raiment.

⁵ And I said, let them [■] set a fair diadem upon his head. So they set a fair diadem upon his head, and clothed him with garments, and the angel of the Lord stood by.

⁶ And the angel of the Lord testified unto Joshua, saying,

⁷ Thus saith the Lord of hosts, If thou wilt walk in my ways, and keep my watch, thou shalt also [°] judge mine house, and shalt also keep my [■] courts, and I will give thee place among [°] these that stand by.

⁹ For lo, the [°] stone that I have laid before Joshua: upon one stone shall be seven eyes:
behold I [°] will cut out the graving thereof, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will take [■] away the iniquity of this land in one day.

[■] He prayed to Christ the mediator for the state of the church.

[■] Which declareth that the faithful have not only war with flesh and blood, but with Satan himself, and spiritual wickednesses, Eph. 6. 12.

¹ That is, Christ speaketh to God [■] the mediator of his church, that he would rebuke Satan: and here he sheweth himself to be the continual preserver of his church.

[■] Meaning, that Joshua [■] wonderfully preserved in the captivity, and [■] Satan sought to afflict and trouble him when he was doing his office.

¹ In respect of the glorious garments and precious stones that the priests did wear before the captivity: and by this contemptible state the prophet signifieth that these small beginnings should be made excellent, when Christ shall make the full restitution of his church.

¹ Which was ever in the midst of the temple, signifying, that the graces of God's Spirit should shine there in most abundance, and in all perfection.

² Which conveyed the oil that dropped from the trees into the lamps, so that the light never failed: and this vision was to confirm the faithful, that God had sufficient power in himself to continue his graces, and to bring his promise to pass, though he had [■] help of man.

1 The vision of the flying book, signifying the curse of thieves, and such as abuse the name of God.
6 By the vision of the measure is signified the bringing of Judah's afflictions into Babylon.

THEN I turned me, and lifted up mine eyes and looked, and behold, a flying book.

2 And he said unto me, What seeest thou? And I answered, I see a flying ² book : the length thereof is twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits.

3 Then said he unto me, This is the curse that goeth forth over the whole earth : for every one that ² stealeth, shall be cut off as well on this ¹ side, as on that : and every one that ² sweareth, shall be cut off as well on this side, as on that.

4 I will bring it forth, saith the Lord of hosts, and it shall enter into the house of the thief, and into the house of him that falsely sweareth by my name : and it shall remain in the midst of his house, and shall consume it, with the timber thereof, and the stones thereof.

5 Then the angel that talked with me, went forth, and said unto me, Lift up now thine eyes, and see what is this that goeth forth.

6 And I said, What is it? And he said, This is an ¹ ephah that goeth forth. He said moreover, This is the ¹ sight of them through all the earth.

² That is, God hath seven eyes : meaning, a continual providence : so that neither Satan nor any power in the world can go about to bring any thing ² pass to hinder his work. chap. 3. 9.

² Because the Jews had provoked God's plagues by contemning his word, and casting off all judgment and equity, he threateth that God's curses written in this book had justly light both ² them and their fathers : but now if they would repent, God would send the same among the Chaldeans their former enemies.

¹ That is, useth any injury toward his neighbour.

8 And he said, This is ² wickedness, and he cast it into the midst of the ephah, and he cast the weight of lead upon the mouth thereof.

9 Then lift I up mine eyes, and looked : and behold, there came out two ² women, and the wind was in their wings (for they had wings like the wings of ² stork) and they lift up the ephah between the earth and the heaven.

10 Then said I to the angel that talked with me, Whither do these bear the ephah?

11 And he said unto me, ² To build it an house in the land of Shinar, and it shall be established and set there upon her own place.

By the four chariots he describeth the four monarchies.

6 That with the black horse went forth into the land of the North, and the white went out after them, and they of divers colours went forth toward the ¹ south country.

7 And the ² reddish went out, and required to go and pass through the world : and he said, Go pass through the world. So they went throughout the world.

² Signifying, that Satan should not have such power against the Jews to tempt them, as he had in time past, but that God would shut up iniquity in a measure, ² in ² prison.

² Which declared that God would execute his judgments by the means of weak and infirm means.

² To remove the iniquity and afflictions that came for the same from Judah, ² place it for ever in Babylon.

¹ By chariots here, as by horses afore, he meaneth the swift messengers of God, ² execute and declare his will.

² By the brazen mountains he meaneth the eternal counsel and providence of God, whereby he hath from before all eternity decreed what shall ² pass, and that which neither Satan nor all the world can alter.

² Which signified the great cruelty and persecutions that the church had endured under divers enemies.

² Signifying, that they had endured great afflictions under the Babylonians.

² These represented their state under the Persians, which restored them ² liberty.

² Which signified that God would sometime give his church rest, and pour his plagues upon their enemies, as he did in destroying Nineveh and Babylon, and other their enemies.

² Meaning, all the actions and motions of God's Spirit, which according ² his unchangeable counsel he causeth to appear through all the world.

¹ That is, toward Egypt, and other countries thereabout.

² That is, they of divers colours, which ask leave, to signify that Satan hath no power to hurt or afflict, till God give it him, Job 1. 12.

8 Then cried he upon me, and spake unto me, saying, Behold, these that go toward the north country, have pacified my^h spirit in the north country.

9 And the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,

10 Take of them of the captivity, even of Heldai, and of Tobijah, and Jedaiah, which are come from Babel, and come thou the same day, and go unto the houseⁱ of Joshia, the son of Zephaniah.

11 Take even silver, and gold, and make crowns, and set them upon theⁿ head of Joshua, the son of Josedech the high priest,

2 And Hamath also shall border thereby: Tyrus also and Zidon, though they be very wise.

3 For Tyrus did build herself a strong hold, and heaped up silver as the dust, and gold as the mire of the streets.

4 Behold, the Lord will spoil her, and he will smite her power in the sea, and she shall be devoured with fire.

5 Ashkelon shall see it, and fear, and Azzah also shall be very sorrowful, and Ekron: for her countenance shall be ashamed, and the king shall perish from Azzah, and Ashkelon shall not be inhabited.

6 And the stranger shall dwell in Ashdod, and I will cut off the pride of the Philistines.

7 And I will take away his blood out of his mouth, and his abominations from between his teeth: but he that remaineth, even he shall be for our God, and he shall be as a prince in Judah, but Ekron shall be as a Jebusite.

8 And I will camp about mine house against the army, against him that passeth by, and against him that returneth, and no oppressor shall come upon them any more: for now have I seen with mine eyes.

9 Rejoice greatly, O daughter Zion, shout for joy, O daughter Jerusalem, behold thy king cometh unto thee: he is just, and saved himself, poor and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass.

10 And I will cut off the chariots from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem: the bow of the battle shall be broken, and he shall speak peace unto the heathen, and his dominion shall be from sea unto sea, and from the river to the end of the land.

11 Thou also shalt be saved through the blood of thy covenant: I have loosed thy prisoners out of the pit wherein is no water.

The vanity of idolatry. 3 The Lord promiseth to visit and comfort the house of Israel.

ASK you of the Lord rain in the time of the latter rain: so shall the Lord make white clouds, and give you showers of rain, and to every one grass in the field.

6 And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will preserve the house of Joseph, and I will bring them again, for I pity them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the Lord their God, and will hear them.

7 And they of Ephraim shall be as a giant, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine: yea, their children shall see it, and be glad: and their heart shall rejoice in the Lord.

8 I will hiss for them, and gather them, for I have redeemed them: and they shall increase, as they have increased.

9 And I will sow them among the people, and they shall remember me in far countries: and they shall live with their children and turn again.

10 I will bring them again also out of the land of Egypt, and gather them out of Asshur: and I will bring them into the land of Gilead and Lebanon, and place shall not be found for them.

11 And he shall go into the sea with affliction, and shall smite the waves in the sea, and all the depths of the river shall dry up: and the pride of Asshur shall be cast down, and the scepter of Egypt shall depart away.

12 And I will strengthen them in the Lord, and they shall walk in his name, saith the Lord.

Whereby he declareth the power of God, who needeth no great preparation, when he will deliver his: for with a beck or hiss he can call them from all places suddenly.

Though they shall yet be scattered and seem be lost, yet it shall be profitable unto them: for there they shall come to the knowledge of my name, which was accomplished under the gospel among whom it first preached.

Not that they should return into their country, but be gathered and joined in faith, by the doctrine of the gospel.

He alludeth the deliverance of the people out of Egypt, when the angel smote the floods and rivers.

Because the Jews thought themselves so strong by reason of this mountain, that no enemy could come hurt them, the prophet sheweth, that when God sendeth the enemies, it shall shew itself ready to receive them.

Shewing that if the strong were destroyed, the weaker were not able to resist.

Seeing that Lebanon was destroyed, which was the strongest munition, the weaker places could not think to hold out.

That is, the renown of Judah and Israel should perish.

Which being now destined to be slain, were delivered as out of the lion's mouth.

O oaks of Bashan, for the fenced forest is cut down.

3 There is the voice of the howling of the shepherds, for their glory is destroyed: the voice of the roaring of lions whelps, for the pride of Jordan is destroyed.

4 Thus saith the Lord my God, Feed the sheep of the slaughter.

5 They that possess them, slay them and sin not: and they that sell them, say, Blessed be the Lord, for I am rich, and their own shepherds spare them not.

6 Surely I will no more spare those that dwell in the land, saith the Lord: but lo, I will deliver the men every one into his neighbour's hand, and into the hand of his king: and they shall smite the land, and out of their hands I will not deliver them.

7 For I fed the sheep of slaughter, even the poor of the flock, and I took unto me two staves: the one I called Beauty, and the other I called Bands, and I fed the sheep.

8 Three shepherds also I cut off in one month, and my soul loathed them, and their soul abhorred me.

9 Then said I, I will not feed you: that that dieth, let it die: and that that perisheth, let it perish: and let the remnant eat, every one the flesh of his neighbour.

10 And I took my staff, even Beauty, and brake it, that I might disannul my covenant, which I had made with all people.

11 And it was broken in that day: and so the poor of the sheep that waited upon me knew that it was the word of the Lord.

12 And I said unto them, If ye think it good, give me my wages: and if not, leave off: so they weighed for my wages thirty pieces of silver.

13 And the Lord said unto me, Cast it unto the potter: a goodly price, that I was valued of them: And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them to the potter in the house of the Lord.

14 Then brake I mine other staff, even the Bands, that I might dissolve the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.

Their governors destroy them without any remorse of conscience, or yet thinking that they do evil.

He noteth the hypocrites, which have the name of God in their mouths, though in their life and doings they deny God, attributing their gain to God's blessings, which cometh of the spoil of their brethren.

I will cause to destroy another.

Their governors shall cruelty over them.

That is, the small remnant whom he thought worthy to shew mercy unto.

God sheweth his great benefits toward his people, to convince them of greater ingratitude, which would neither be ruled by his most beautiful order of government, neither continue in the bands of brotherly unities, and therefore he breaketh both the and the other. Some read, for bands, destroyers; but in the fourteenth verse the first reading is confirmed.

Whereby he sheweth his and diligence, that he would suffer them have evil rulers, because they should consider his great love.

Meaning, the people, because they would not acknowledge these great benefits of God.

He sheweth that the least part ever profit by God's judgments.

Besides their ingratitude, God accuseth them of malice and wickedness, which did not only forget his benefits, but esteemed them as things of nought.

Shewing, that it was too little to pay his wages, which could scarce suffice to make few tiles for cover the temple.

9 And I will bring that third part through the fire, and will fine them as the silver is fined, and will try them as gold is tried: they shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people: and they shall say, The Lord is my God.

C H A P. XIV.

1 Of the doctrine that shall proceed out of the church, and of the restoration thereof.

BEHOLD, the day of the Lord cometh, and thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee.

2 For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle, and the city shall be taken, and the houses spoiled, and the women defiled, and half of the city shall go into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city.

3 Then shall the Lord God go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle.

4 And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east side, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof: toward the East and toward the West there shall be a very great valley, and half of the mountain shall remove toward the North, and half of the mountain toward the South.

5 And ye shall flee unto the valley of the mountains: for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal: yea, ye shall flee like as ye fled from the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah: and the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee.

6 And in that day shall there be no clear light, but dark.

7 And there shall be a day (it is known to the Lord) neither day nor night, but about the evening time it shall be light.

8 And in that day shall there be waters of life go out from Jerusalem, half of them toward the east sea, and half of them toward the uttermost sea, and shall be both in summer and winter.

9 And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one Lord, and his name shall be one.

10 All the land shall be turned as a plain from Geba to Rimmon, toward the south of Jerusalem, and it shall be lifted up, and inhabited in her place: from Benjamin's gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananeel, unto the king's wine-presses.

11 And men shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more destruction, but Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited.

12 And this shall be the plague, wherewith the Lord will smite all people that have fought against Jerusalem: their flesh shall consume away, though they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume in their holes, and their tongues shall consume in their mouth.

13 But in that day a great tumult of the Lord shall be among them, and every one shall take the hand of his neighbour, and his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbour, 14 And Judah shall fight against Jerusalem, and the arm of the heathen shall be gathered round about, with gold and silver, and great abundance of apparel.

15 Yet this shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts that be in these tents as this plague.

16 But it shall come to pass that every one that is left of all the nations, which came against Jerusalem, shall go up from year to year to worship the King the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles.

17 And

¶ They shall confess their former ignorance, and be content to labour for their living.

¶ Hereby he sheweth, that though their parents and friends dealt more gently with them and put them to death, yet they would so punish their children that became false prophets, that the marks and signs should remain for ever.

¶ The prophet warreth the Jews, that before this great comfort shall come under Christ, there should be an horrible dissipation among the people. for their governors and pastors should be destroyed, and the people should be scattered sheep: and the evangelist applieth this to Christ, because he was the head of all pastors, Matt. 26. 31.

¶ The greatest part shall have no portion of these blessings, and yet they that shall enjoy them shall be tried with great afflictions, so that it shall be known that only God's power and his mercies do preserve them.

¶ He armeth the godly against the great temptations that should come before they enjoyed this prosperous estate, promised under Christ, that when these dangers should come, they might know that they were warned of them before.

¶ As your fathers and you have had experience, both in the Red sea, and at all other times.

¶ By this manner of speech the prophet sheweth God's power and care over his church, and how he will it were by miracle save it.

¶ So that out of all the parts of the world they shall see Jerusalem, which was before hid with this mountain: and this he meaneth of the spiritual Jerusalem the church.

¶ He speaketh of the hypocrites, which could not abide God's presence, but should flee into all places, where they might hide them among the mountains.

¶ Read Amos 1. 1.

¶ Because they did not credit the prophet's words, he turneth to God and comforteth himself in that that he knew that these things should come, and saith, Thou, O God, with thine angels, wilt perform this great thing.

¶ Signifying, that there should be great troubles in the church, and that the time hereof is in the Lord's hands, yet at length (which is here meant by the evening) God would send comfort.

¶ That is, the spiritual graces of God, which should ever continue in most abundance.

¶ All idolatry and superstition shall be abolished, and there shall be one God, one faith, and one religion.

¶ This new Jerusalem shall be seen through all the world, and shall excel the first in excellency, wealth, and greatness.

¶ God will not only raise up war without, but sedition at home, to try them.

¶ To hurt and oppress him.

¶ The enemies are rich, and therefore shall not come for prey, but destroy and shed blood.

¶ As the walls should be destroyed, ver. 12.

Bef. Chr. 587. 17 And whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the King the Lord of hosts, even upon them shall come no rain.

18 And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, it shall not rain upon them. This shall be the plague wherewith the Lord will smite all the heathen, that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

19 This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all the nations that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

^a By the Egyptians, which were greatest enemies to true religion, he meaneth all the Gentiles.

^b Signifying, that to what service they were put now (whether to labour, or to serve in war) they were now holy, because the Lord had sanctified them.

Bef. Chr. 187. 20 In that day there shall be written upon the bridles of the horses, The holiness unto the Lord, and the pots in the Lord's house shall be like the bowls before the altar.

21 Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and Judah shall be holy unto the Lord of hosts: and all they that sacrifice, shall come and take of them, and seethe therein: and in that day there shall be no more the Canaanite in the house of the Lord of hosts.

This prophet was one of the three which God raised up for the comfort of his church after the captivity; and after him there was no more until John Baptist was sent, which was either a token of God's wrath, or an admonition that they should with more fervent desires look for the coming of Messiah. He confirmeth the same doctrine that the two former do, but chiefly he reproveth the priests for their covetousness, and for that they served God after their own fancies; and not according to the prescript of his word. He also noteth certain peculiar sins, which were then among them, as marrying of idolatrous and many wives, murmurings against God, impatience, and sack like. Notwithstanding, for the comfort of the godly, he declareth that God would not forget his promise made unto their fathers, but would send Christ his messenger, in whom the covenant should be accomplished, whose coming should be terrible to the wicked, and bring all consolation and joy unto the godly.

C H A P. I.

A complaint against Israel, and chiefly the priests.

TH E burden of the word of the Lord to Israel by the ministry of Malachi.

2 I have loved you, saith the Lord: yet ye say, Wherein hast thou loved us? Was not Esau Jacob's brother, saith the Lord? yet I loved Jacob,

3 And I hated Esau, and made his mountains waste, and his heritage wilderness for dragons.

4 Though Edom say, We are impoverished, but we will return and build the desolate places, yet saith the Lord of hosts, They shall build, but I will destroy it: and they shall call them, The border of wickedness, and the people with whom the Lord is angry for ever.

5 And your eyes shall see it, and ye shall say, The Lord will be magnified upon the border of Israel.

^a Read Isa. 13. 1.

^b Which declareth their great ingratitude that did not acknowledge this love, which was so evident in that he chose Abraham from out of all the world, and next, chose Jacob the younger brother, of whom they came, and left Esau the elder.

^c For besides that the signs of my hatred appeared, even when he was made servant unto his younger brother, being yet in his mother's belly, and also afterward in that he was put from his birthright, yet was now before your eyes the signs hereof evident, in that his country lieth waste, and he shall never return to inhabit it, whereas ye my people, whom the enemy hated more than them, were by my grace and love toward you delivered, read Rom. 9. 13.

^d Besides the rest of the people he condemneth the priests chiefly, because they should have reprov'd others for their hypocrisy and obstinacy against God, and not have hardened them by their example to greater evils.

^e He noteth their gross hypocrisy, which would not see

Bef. Chr. 397. 6 A son honoureth his father, and a servant his master. If then I be a father, where is mine honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear? saith the Lord of hosts unto you, O priests, that despise my name? and ye say, Wherein have we despised thy name?

7 Ye offer unclean bread upon mine altar; and you say, Wherein have we polluted thee? In that ye say, The table of the Lord is not to be regarded.

8 And if ye offer the blind for sacrifice, it is not evil: and if ye offer the lame and sick, it is not evil: offer it now unto thy prince: will he be content with thee, or accept thy person, saith the Lord of hosts?

9 And now, I pray you, pray before God, that he may have mercy upon us: this hath been by your means: will he regard your persons, saith the Lord of hosts?

9 Q

their faults, but most impudently covered them, and so were blind guides.

^f Ye receive all manner of offerings for your greediness, and do not examine whether they be according to my law or no.

^g Not that they said thus, but by their doings they declared no less.

^h You make it no fault: whereby he condemneth them that think it sufficient to serve God, partly, as he hath commanded, and partly, after man's fancy, and so to that pureness of religion which he requireth, and therefore, in reproach, he sheweth them that a mortal man would not be content to be so served.

ⁱ He derideth the priests, who bare the people in hand that they prayed for them, and sheweth that they were the occasion that these evils came upon the people.

^k Will God consider your office and state, seeing you are so wicked?

Ref. Chr. 397. 10 Who is there even among you¹ that would shut the doors, and kindle not fire on mine altar in vain? I have no pleasure in you, saith the Lord of hosts, neither will I accept an offering at your hand.

11 For from the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same, my name is² great among the Gentiles, and in every place incense shall be offered unto my name and³ pure offering: for my name is great among the heathen, saith the Lord of hosts.

12 But ye have polluted it, in that ye say, The table of the Lord is⁴ polluted, and the fruit thereof, even his meat is not to be regarded.

13 Ye said also, Behold, it is a⁵ weariness, and ye have snuffed at it, saith the Lord of hosts, and ye offered that which was torn, and the lame and the sick: thus ye offered an offering: should I accept this of your hand, saith the Lord?

14 But cursed be the deceiver, which hath in his flock⁶ a male, and voweth and sacrificeth unto the Lord a corrupt thing: for I am a great king, saith the Lord of hosts, and my name is terrible among the heathen.

C H A P. II.

Threatenings against the priests, being the seducers of the people.

AND now, O ye⁷ priests, this commandment is for you.

1 If ye will not hear it, nor consider it in your heart, to give glory⁸ unto my name, saith the Lord of hosts, I will even send a curse upon you, and will curse your⁹ blessings: yea, I have cursed them already, because ye do not consider it in your heart.

2 Behold, I will corrupt¹⁰ your seed, and cast dung upon your faces, even the¹¹ dung of your solemn feasts, and you shall be like unto it.

3 And ye shall know that I have¹² sent this commandment unto you, that my covenant, which made with Levi might stand, saith the Lord of hosts.

4 My¹³ covenant was with him of life and peace: and I¹⁴ gave him fear, and he feared me, and was afraid before¹⁵ my name.

5 The law of¹⁶ truth was in his mouth, and there was no iniquity found in his lips: he walked with me in peace and equity, and did turn many away from iniquity:

6 For the priests¹⁷ lips should preserve knowledge, and they should seek the law at his mouth: for he is the¹⁸ messenger of the Lord of hosts.

7 But ye are gone out of the way: ye have caused many to fall by the law: ye have broken the covenant of Levi, saith the Lord of hosts.

8 Therefore have I also made you to be despised, and vile before all the people, because ye kept not my ways, but have been partial in the law.

9 Have we not all one¹⁹ father? hath not one God made us? why do we transgress every one against his brother, and break the covenant of²⁰ our fathers?

10 Judah hath transgressed, and an abomination is committed in Israel and in Jerusalem: for Judah hath defiled the holiness of the Lord, which he loved, and hath married the²¹ daughter of a strange god.

11 The Lord will cut off the man that doth this: both the master and the servant out of the tabernacle of Jacob, and him that²² offereth an offering unto the Lord of hosts.

12 And this have ye done again, and²³ covered the altar of the Lord with tears, with weeping and with mourning: because the offering is no more regarded, neither received acceptably at your hands.

13 Yet ye say,²⁴ Wherein? Because the Lord hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, against whom thou hast transgressed: yet is she thy²⁵ companion, and the wife of thy covenant.

² God sheweth that their ingratitude, and neglect of his true service, shall be the cause of the calling of the Gentiles: and here the prophet that under the law framed his words to the capacity of the people, and by the altar and sacrifice he meaneth the spiritual service of God which should be under the gospel, when an end shall be made to all these legal ceremonies by Christ's only sacrifice.

³ Both the priests and the people were infected with this error, that they passed not what they offered: for they thought that God was as well content with the lean as with the fat: but in the mean season they shewed not that obedience to God which he required, and so committed both impiety, and also shewed their contempt of God, and covetousness.

⁴ The priests and people were both weary with serving God, and passed not what manner of sacrifice and service they gave to God, for that which was least profitable, was thought good enough for the Lord.

⁵ That is, hath ability to serve the Lord according to his word, and yet will serve him according to his covetous mind.

⁶ He speaketh unto them chiefly, but under them he containeth the people also.

⁷ To serve according to my word.

⁸ That is, the abundance of God's benefits.

⁹ Your seed sown shall increase to no profit.

¹⁰ You boast of your holiness, sacrifices and feasts, but they shall turn to your shame, and be vile as dung.

¹¹ The priests objected against the prophet that he could not reprove them, but he must speak against the priesthood, and the office established of God by promise: but he sheweth that the office is nothing slandered when their villain-and dung are called by their own names.

¹² He sheweth what were the two conditions of the covenant made with the tribe of Levi: on God's part, that he would give them long life and felicity; and on their part, that they should faithfully serve him according to his word.

¹³ I prescribed Levi a certain law to serve me.

¹⁴ He served me, and set forth my glory with all humility and submission.

¹⁵ He sheweth that the priests ought to have knowledge to instruct others in the word of the Lord.

¹⁶ He is as the treasure-house of God's word, and ought to give to every one according to their necessity, and not to reserve it for himself.

¹⁷ Shewing, that whosoever doth not declare God's will, is not his messenger and priest.

¹⁸ The prophet accuseth the ingratitude of the Jews toward God and man: for seeing they were all born of one father Abraham, and God had elected them to be his holy people, they ought neither to offend God nor their brethren.

¹⁹ Whereby they had bound themselves to God to be a holy people.

²⁰ They have joined themselves in marriage with them that are of another religion.

²¹ That is, the priests.

²² Ye cause the people to lament, because that God doth not regard their sacrifices, so that they seem to sacrifice in vain.

²³ This is another fault whereof he accuseth them, that is, that they brake the laws of marriage.

²⁴ As the one half of thyself.

²⁵ She that was joined to thee by a solemn covenant, and by the invocation of God's name.

15 And did not ^m he make one? yet had he abundance of spirit: and wherefore one? because he fought a godly ^o seed: therefore keep yourselves in your ^p spirit, and let none trespass against the wife of his youth.

16 If thou hatest her, ^a put her away, saith the Lord God of Israel, yet he covereth ^r the injury under his garment, saith the Lord of hosts: therefore keep yourselves in your spirit, and transgress not.

17 Ye have ^r wearied the Lord with your words: yet ye say, Wherein have we wearied him? When ye say, every one that ^r doth evil, is good in the sight of the Lord, and he delighteth in them. Or where is the God of ^r judgment?

CHAP. III.

Of the messenger of the Lord, John Baptist, and of Christ's office.

BEHOLD, I will send my ^m messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the ^r Lord whom ye seek, shall speedily come to his temple: even the ^r messenger of the covenant, whom ye desire: behold, he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts.

2 But who ^r may abide the day of his coming? and who shall endure when he appeareth? for he is like ^r purging fire, and like fullers soap.

3 And he shall sit down to try and fine the silver: he shall even fine the sons of ^r Levi, and purify them as gold and silver, that they may bring offerings unto the Lord in righteousness.

4 Then shall the offerings of Judah and Jerusalem be acceptable unto the Lord, as in old time and in the years afore.

5 And I will come near to you to judgment, and I will be a swift witness against the soothsayers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that wrongfully keep back the hireling's wages, and vex the widow and the fatherless, and oppress the stranger, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts.

6 For I am the Lord: I change not, and ye sons of Jacob ^r are not consumed.

^m Did not God make man and woman ^r one flesh, and not many?

^r By his power and virtue he could have made many women for one man.

^o Such as should be born in lawful and moderate marriage, wherein is no excess of lusts.

^p Contain yourselves within your bounds, and be sober in mind, and bridle your affections.

^r Not that he doth allow divorce, but of the two faults he sheweth which is the less.

^r He thinketh it sufficient to keep his wife still, albeit he take others, and so as it were covereth his fault.

^r Ye murmured against God, because he heard not you as soon as ye called.

^r In thinking that God favoured the wicked, and had not respect to them that serve him.

^r Thus they blasphemed God in condemning his power and justice, because he judged not according ^r their fancies.

^r This is meant of John Baptist, ^r Christ expoundeth it, Luke 7. 27.

^r Meaning, Messiah, as Psalm 40. 1, 7. Dan. 9. 17, 25.

^r That is, Christ, by whom the covenant was made and ratified, who is called the angel ^r messenger of the covenant, because he reconcileth us to his Father: and is Lord or King, because he hath the government of his church.

^r He sheweth that the hypocrites, which wish so much for the Lord's coming, will not abide when he draweth near: for he will consume them, and purge his and make them clean.

^r He beginneth at the priests, that they might be lights, and shine unto others.

7 From the days of your fathers, ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept ^r them: ^c return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts: but he said, Wherein shall we return?

8 Will a ^d man spoil his gods? yet have ye spoiled me: but ye say, Wherein have we spoiled thee? In ^c tithes and offerings.

9 Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have spoiled me, even this whole nation.

10 Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven unto you, and pour you out a blessing ^r without measure.

11 And I will rebuke the ^r devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruit of your ground, neither shall your vine be barren in the field, saith the Lord of hosts.

12 And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a pleasant land, saith the Lord of hosts.

13 Your words have been stout ^b against me, saith the Lord: yet ye say, What have we spoken against thee?

14 Ye have said, It is in vain to serve God: and what profit is it that we have kept his commandment, and that we walked humbly before the Lord of hosts?

15 Therefore we count the proud blessed: even they that work wickedness are set up, and they that tempt God, yea, they are ⁱ delivered.

16 ^r Then spake they that feared the Lord, every one to his neighbour, and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a ^r book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name.

17 And they shall be to me, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day ^m that I shall do this, for a flock, and I will ^r spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him.

18 Then shall you return, and discern between the righteous and wicked, between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not.

CHAP.

^b They murmured against God because they saw not his help ever present to defend them: and therefore he accuseth them of ingratitude, and sheweth that in that they are not daily consumed, it is a token that he doth still defend them: and so his mercy toward them never changeth.

^c Read Zech. 1. 3.

^r There are none of the heathen so barbarous, that will defraud their gods of their honour, or deal deceitfully with them.

^r Whereby the service of God should have been maintained, and the priests and the poor relieved.

^r Not having respect how much ye need, but I will give you in all abundance: so that ye shall lack place to put my blessings in.

^r Meaning, the caterpillar, and whatsoever destroyeth corn and fruits.

^r The prophet condemneth them of double blasphemy against God: first, in that they said, that God had no respect to them that served him; and next, that the wicked were ^r in his favour than the godly.

^r They are not only preferred to honour, but also delivered from dangers.

^r After these admonitions of the prophet, some were lively touched, and encouraged others to fear God.

^r Both because the thing was strange that some turned to God in that great and universal corruption, and also that this might be ^r example of God's mercies to all penitent sinners.

^r When I shall restore my church according ^r my promise, they shall be as mine own proper goods.

^r That is, forgive their sins, and govern them with my spirit.

Bef. Chr.
397.

CHAP. IV.

The day of the Lord before the which Elijah should come.

FOR behold, the day cometh that shall burn as an oven, and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble, and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, and shall leave them neither root nor branch.

■ But unto you that fear my name, shall the Sun of righteousness arise, and health shall be under his wings, and ye shall go forth, and grow up fat calves.

• He prophesieth of God's judgments against the wicked, who would not receive Christ, when God should send him for, the restoration of his church.

■ Meaning, Christ, who with his wings, beams of his grace, should lighten and comfort his church, Eph. 5. 14. and he is called the Sun of righteousness, because in himself he hath all perfection; and also the justice of the Father dwelleth in him, whereby he regenerateth into righteousness, cleanseth from the filth of this world, and reformeth us to the image of God.

■ Ye shall be set at liberty, and increase in the joy of the Spirit, 2 Cor. 3. 17.

• Because the time was come that the Jews should be destitute of prophets until the time of Christ, because they should with more fervent minds desire his coming, the prophet exhorteth them to exercise themselves diligently in

3 And ye shall tread down the wicked: for they shall be dust under the soles of your feet in the day that I shall do this, saith the Lord of hosts.

4 Remember the law of Moses my servant, which I commanded unto him in Horeb for all Israel, with the statutes and judgments.

5 Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and fearful day of the Lord.

6 And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children; and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with curse.

studying the law of Moses in the mean season, whereby they might continue in the religion, and also be armed against all temptations.

• This Christ expoundeth of John Baptist, Matt. 11: 13, 14. who both for his zeal, and restoring of religion, is aptly compared to Elijah.

• Which as it is true for the wicked, so doth it waken the godly, and call them to repentance.

• He sheweth wherein John's should stand: in the turning of men to God, and joining of the father and children in one unity of faith: so that the father shall turn the religion of his son which is converted to Christ, and the son shall embrace the faith of the true fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

• The second point of his office was to denounce God's judgments against them that would not receive Christ.

THE END OF THE PROPHETS.

The P R I N T E R to the Diligent R E A D E R.

DEAR Christian Reader; to the intent that thou mightest the better enjoy the benefit of these notes or expositions upon the New Testament, I thought it not amiss to declare unto thee the use of the same.

The notes that are directed by figures of arithmetic, as ¹, ², ³, ⁴, &c. throughout the Evangelists and Acts, declare the effect or sum of the doctrine contained between one of the said figures, and the next that followeth: as for example, from the figure ¹, in the first line and first word of Matthew, unto the figure ², in the eighteenth verse of the same chapter, the doctrine there gathered is set down in this sort: 'Jesus came of Abraham of the tribe of Judah, and of the stock of David, as God promised.' And in the Epistles in like sort they declare the method and art which the apostles use, and how every argument or reason dependeth one upon another: these figures are begun again at the beginning of every chapter.

Lastly, the notes which go by order of the letters of the alphabet placed in the text, with the like answering unto them at the bottom of the page; serve to expound and lighten the dark words and phrases immediately following them. As in the first line and second word, the letter ^a being referred unto ^a, at the bottom of the page, sheweth that this word, Book, signifieth, ^a A rehearsal, as the Hebrews use to speak: as Gen. 5. 1. The book of the generations.' These letters begin at the beginning of every chapter, continuing unto ^z, and so beginning again with ^a, if there be so many notes that they do exceed in number the letters of one alphabet. This have I faithfully done for thy commodity, reap thou the fruit, and give the praise to God.

THE ¹ book of the ^b generation of Jesus Christ the son of David, the ^c son of Abraham:

Abraham begat Isaac.

And Isaac begat Jacob. And

Jacob begat Judas and his brethren.

3 And Judas begat Phares, and Zara of Thamar. And Phares begat Esrom. And Esrom begat Aram.

4 And Aram begat Aminadab. And Aminadab begat Naasson. And Naasson begat Salmon.

5 And Salmon begat Booz of Rachab. And Booz begat Obed of Ruth. And Obed begat Jesse.

6 And Jesse begat David the king. And David the king begat Solomon of her that was the wife of Urias.

7 And Solomon begat Roboam. And Roboam begat Abia. And Abia begat Afa.

And Afa begat Josaphat. And Josaphat begat Joram. And Joram begat Ozias.

9 And Ozias begat Joatham. And Joatham begat Achaz. And Achaz begat Ezekias.

10 And Ezekias begat Manasses. And Manasses begat Amon. And Amon begat Josias.

11 And Josias begat Jakim. And Jakim begat Jechonias, and his brethren, about the time they were carried away to Babylon.

12 And after they were carried away into Babylon, Jechonias begat Salathiel. And Salathiel begat Zorobabel.

13 And Zorobabel begat Abiud. And Abiud begat Eliakim. And Eliakim begat Azor.

14 And Azor begat Sadoc. And Sadoc begat Achim. And Achim begat Eliud.

15 And Eliud begat Eleazar. And Eleazar begat Matthan. And Matthan begat Jacob.

16 And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, that is called Christ.

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations: and from David until they were carried away into Babylon, fourteen generations: and after they were carried away into Babylon until Christ, fourteen generations.

18 ¶ Now the birth of Jesus Christ was thus. When as his mother Mary was betrothed to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost.

19 Then Joseph her husband being a just man, and not willing to make her a publick example, was minded to put her away secretly.

20 But while he thought these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in dream, saying, Joseph the son of David, fear not to take Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her, is of the Holy Ghost.

21 And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins.

22 And all this was done, that it might be fulfilled, which is spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying,

23 Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bear a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which is by interpretation, God with us.

24 ¶ Then Joseph, being raised from sleep, did the angel of the Lord had enjoined him, and took his wife.

25 But

¹ Jesus Christ came of Abraham, of the tribe of Judah, and of the stock of David, God promised.

² Rehearsal: as the Hebrews use to speak, as Gen. 5. 1. The book of the generations.

^b Of the ancestors of whom Christ

^c Which Christ is also the son of Abraham.

^d That is, the captivity fell in the days of Jakim and Jechonias: for Jechonias was born before their carrying away into captivity.

^e All these which are reckoned up in the pedigree of David's stock, as they begat one another orderly in their degrees.

² Christ the true Immanuel, and therefore Jesus (that is, Saviour) is conceived in the virgin by the Holy Ghost, as it was foretold by the prophets.

² Which was promised and made sure to thee be thy wife.

^b Of the mother's substance by the Holy Ghost.

³ Christ is born of the same virgin which never knew man, and is called Jesus of God himself, by the angel.

¹ Deliver, and this sheweth us the meaning of this name Jesus.

² There is in the Hebrew and Greek text an article added, point the woman, and set her forth plainly: as you would say, That virgin, or, a certain virgin.

25 But he knew her not, till she had brought forth her first born son, and he called his name Jesus.

C H A P. II.

The wise men, who are the first fruits of the Gentiles, worship Christ. 14 Joseph fleeth into Egypt with Jesus, and his mother. 16 Herod slayeth the children.

* Luke 2. 5. The 4th year before the common account called Anno Domini.

WHEN * * Jesus then was born at Bethlehem in * Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold there came * wise men from the East to Jerusalem,

2 Saying, Where is that king of the Jews that is born? for we have seen his star in the East, and are come to worship him.

3 When king Herod heard this, he was * troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

4 And gathering together all the * chief priests and * scribes of the people, he asked of them, where Christ should be born.

5 And they said unto him, At Bethlehem in Judea: for so it is written by the prophet,

* Mic. 5. 2. Jan. 7. 42

6 * And thou Bethlehem in the land of Juda, art not the * least among the princes of Juda: For out of thee shall come the governor that * shall feed my people Israel.

7 Then Herod privily called the wise men, and diligently inquired of them the time of the star that appeared.

8 And sent them to Bethlehem, saying, Go, and search diligently for the babe: and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come also and worship him.

9 ¶ So when they had heard the king, they departed: and lo, the star which they had seen in the East, went before them, till it came and stood over the place where the babe was.

10 And when they saw the star, they rejoiced with an exceeding great joy, 11 And went into the house, and found the babe with Mary his mother, and fell * down, and worshipped him, and opened their * treasures, and presented unto him gifts, even gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

12 And after they were * warned of God in a dream, that they should not go again to Herod, they returned into their country another way.

13 ¶ * After their departure, behold, the an-

² Christ a poor child laid down in a crib, and nothing set by of his own people, receiveth notwithstanding a noble witness of his divinity from heaven, and of his kingly estate, of strangers: which his own also unwittingly allow of, although they do not acknowledge him.

³ For there was another in the tribe of Zebulun.
⁴ Wise and learned men: it is a Persian word which they use in good part.

⁵ Was much moved, for he was * stranger, and came to the kingdom by force: and the Jews were troubled: for wickedness is mad and raging.

⁶ The chief priests, that is, such as were of Aaron's family, which were divided into four and twenty orders, 1 Chron. 24. 5. and * Chron. 36. 14.

⁷ They that expound the law to the people, for the Hebrews take this word of another, which significeth as much as to expound and declare.

den. 33 The kingdom of God and his righteousness.

TAKE heed that ye give not your alms before men, to be seen of them, or else ye shall have no reward of your father which is in heaven.

2 ¶ Therefore when thou givest thine alms, thou shalt not make a trumpet to be blown before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues, and in the streets, to be praised of men.
 Verily I say unto you, they have their reward.

3 But when thou dost thine alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doth,

4 That thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father that seeth in secret, he will reward thee openly.

5 ¶ And when thou prayest, be not as the hypocrites: for they love to stand and pray in the synagogues, and in the corners of the streets,

¶ He sheweth clean contrary to the doctrine of the scribes, that the sum of the second table must be so understood, that we may in no wise render evil for evil, but rather suffer double injury, and do well to them that are deadly enemies.

¶ A double reason: the one is taken of the relatives,
 The children must be like their father: the other is taken of comparisons. The children of God must be better than the children of this world.

¶ They that were the toll-masters, and had the oversight of tributes and customs: a kind of men that the Jews hated to death, both because they served the Romans in those offices, (whose yokeful bondage they could hardly away without) and also, because these toll-masters are for the most part given to covetousness.

¶ And this maketh alms vain.

¶ This word, Reward, is always taken in the scriptures for a free recompence, and therefore the schoolmen do fondly set it to be answerable to a deserving, which they call merit.

¶ Counterfeits, for hypocrites were players that played a part in a play.

¶ He reprehendeth two foul faults in prayer, ambition and vain babbling.

¶ Long prayers are not condemned, but vain, needless, because they would be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, they have their reward.

6 But when thou prayest, enter into thy chamber: and when thou hast shut thy door, pray unto to thy Father which is in secret, and thy Father which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.

7 Also when ye pray, use no vain repetitions as the heathen: for they think to be heard for their much babbling.

8 Be ye not like them therefore: for your Father knoweth whereof ye have need, before ye ask of him.

9 ¶ After this manner therefore pray ye, ¶ Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.

10 Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done even in earth, as it is in heaven.

11 Give us this day our daily bread.

12 And forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors.

13 And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: for thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever. Amen.

14 ¶ For if ye do forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you.

15 But if ye do not forgive men their trespasses, no more will your Father forgive you your trespasses.

16 ¶ Moreover, when ye fast, look not sour as the hypocrites: for they disfigure their faces, that they might seem unto men to fast. Verily
 I say unto you, that they have their reward.

17 But when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face,

18 That thou seem not unto men to fast, but unto thy Father which is in secret: and thy Father which seeth in secret, will reward thee openly.

19 ¶ Lay not up treasures for yourselves upon the earth, where the moth and canker corrupt, and where thieves dig through and steal:

20 ¶ But lay up treasures for yourselves in heaven, where neither the moth nor canker corrupteth, and where thieves neither dig through nor steal.

21 For where your treasure is, there will your hearts be also.

22 ¶ The light of the body is the eye: if then thine eye be single, the whole body shall be light.

23 But if thine eye be wicked, then all thy body shall be dark. Wherefore if the light that is in thee, be darkness, how great is that darkness!

24 ¶ No man can serve two masters: for and superstitious.

¶ A true sum and form of all Christian prayers.
 ¶ That that is meet for our nature for our daily food, or such as may suffice our nature and complexion.

¶ From the devil, or from all adversity.
 ¶ They that forgive wrongs, to them their sins are forgiven, but revenge is prepared for them that revenge.

¶ Against such hunt after holiness by fasting.

¶ They suffer not their first hue to be seen, that is to say, they mar the natural colour of their faces, that they may seem lean and pale faced.

¶ Those men's labours are shewed to be vain, which pass not for the assured treasure of everlasting life, but spend their lives in scraping together frail and vain riches.

¶ Men do maliciously and wickedly put out even the little light of nature that is in them.

¶ The judgment of the mind: that as the body is with the eyes, so our whole life may be ruled with right reason, that is to say, with the Spirit of God wherewith we are lightened.

¶ God will be worshipped of the whole man.

¶ Which be at jarr together; for if two agree, they are as one.

31. D. For either he shall hate the one, and love the other: or else he shall lean to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and riches.

25. Therefore I say unto you, Be not careful for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink: nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more worth than meat? and the body than raiment?

26 Behold the fowls of the heaven: for they sow not, neither reap, nor carry into the barns: yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?

27 Which of you by taking care is able to add one cubit unto his stature?

28 And why care ye for raiment? Learn how the lilies of the field do grow: they are not wearied, neither spin:

29 Yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

30 Wherefore if God so cloath the grafs of the field, which is to-day, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not do much more unto you, O ye of little faith?

31 Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or what shall we drink? or wherewith shall we be cloathed?

32 (For after all these things seek the Gentiles) for your heavenly Father knoweth, that ye have need of all these things.

33 But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all these things shall be ministered unto you.

34 Care not then for the morrow: for the morrow shall care for itself: the day hath enough with his own grief.

C H A P. VII.

1 We may not give judgment of our neighbour. 6 Nor cast that which is holy to dogs. 13 The broad and strait way. 15 False prophets. 18 The tree and fruit. 24 The house built upon a rock, 26 and on the sand.

JUDGE not, that ye be not judged. 2 For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

3 And why seeest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, and perceivest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

4 Or how sayest thou to thy brother, Suffer me to cast out the mote out of thine eye, and behold, a beam is in thine own eye?

5 Hypocrite, first cast out that beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye. A. D. 31.

6 ¶ Give ye not that which is holy to dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they tread them under their feet, and turning again, all to rent you.

7 ¶ Ask, and it shall be given you: seek, and ye shall find: knock, and it shall be opened unto you. Ch. 21. 22. Mark 11. 24.

¶ For whosoever asketh, receiveth: and he that seeketh, findeth: and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened. Luke 11. 9. John 14. 17. and 16. 23. James 1. 5.

9 For what man is there among you, which if his son ask him bread, would give him a stone?

10 Or if he ask fish, will he give him a serpent?

11 If ye then, which are evil, can give to your children good gifts, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven, give good things to them that ask him?

12 Therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, even so do ye to them: for this is the law and the prophets. Luke 6. 31. John 4. 16.

13 ¶ Enter in at the strait gate: for it is the wide gate and broad way that leadeth to destruction: and many there be which go in thereat. Luke 13. 24.

14 Because the gate is strait; and the way narrow that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.

15 ¶ Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheeps cloathing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.

16 Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns? or figs of thistles? Luke 6. 44.

17 So every good tree bringeth forth good fruit: and a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.

18 A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit: neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

19 Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down, and cast into the fire. Ch. 3. 10.

20 Therefore by their fruits ye shall know them.

21 ¶ Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doth my Father's will which is in heaven. Rom. 2. 13.

22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not by thy name prophesied? and by thy name cast out devils? and by thy name done many great works?

23 And

6 We ought to find fault one with another, but we must beware we do it not without cause, or to seem holier than they, or in hatred of them.

7 The stiff-necked and stubborn enemies of the gospel are unworthy to have it preached unto them.

8 A pearl hath his name among the Grecians, for the orient brightness that is in it: and a pearl was in ancient time in great estimation among the Latins: for a pearl that Cleopatra had, was valued at two hundred and fifty thou-

11 That is to say, the doctrine of the law and prophets.

12 Example of life must not be taken from a multitude.

13 The way is strait and narrow: we must pass through this rough way, and suffer, and endure, and be thronged, and so enter into life.

14 False teachers must be taken heed of: and they are known by false doctrine, and evil living.

15 Even the best gifts that are, are nothing without godliness.

16 By power here, is meant that mighty working power of God, which every man witnesseth that calleth upon him.

17 Properly powers: now these excellent works wrought, power called powers, by occasion of those things which they bring power pass, for by them power understand how mighty the power of God is.

27 And the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house, and it fell, and the fall thereof was great.

28 ¶ ³⁵ And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these words, the people were astonished at his doctrine, 29 For he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.

3 The leper cleansed. 5 The centurion's faith. 11 The calling of the Gentiles, 12 and casting out of the Jews. 14 Peter's mother-in-law healed. 19 A scribe desirous to follow Christ. 23 The tempest on the sea. 28 Two possessed with devils, cured. 32 The devils go into the swine.

NOW when he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him.

2 * ³⁶ And lo, there came a leper, and worshipped him, saying, Master, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

¶ And Jesus putting forth his hand, touched him, saying, I will, be thou clean: and immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

4 Then Jesus said unto him, See thou tell no man, but go, and shew thyself unto the priests, and offer the gift that ³⁷ Moses commanded for a witness unto them.

5 ¶ ³⁸ When Jesus was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him,

6 And said, Master, my servant lieth sick at home of the palsy, and is grievously pained.

7 And Jesus said unto him, I will come and heal him.

8 But the centurion answered, saying, Master, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof: but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed.

9 For I am a man also under the authority of another, and have soldiers under me: and I say to one, Go, and he goeth: and to another, Come, and he cometh: and to my servant, Do this, and he doth it.

10 Wden Jesus heard that, he marvelled, and said to them that followed him, Verily, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith even in Israel.

11 But I say unto you, that many shall come from the East and West, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven:

12 And the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into utter ³⁹ darkness, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

13 Then Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way, and as thou hast believed, so be it unto thee. And his servant was healed the same hour.

14 ¶ ⁴⁰ And when Jesus came to Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother laid down, and sick of a fever, 15 And he touched her hand, and the fever left her: so she arose, and ministered unto them.

16 * When the even was come, they brought unto him many that were possessed with devils: and he cast out the spirits with his word, and healed ⁴¹ all that were sick:

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by ⁴² Isaiah the prophet, saying, He took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.

18 ¶ ⁴³ And when Jesus saw great multitudes of people about him, he commanded them to go over the water.

19 ⁴⁴ Then came there a certain scribe, and said unto him, Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

20 But Jesus said unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the heaven have ⁴⁵ nests, but the Son of man hath not whereon to rest his head.

21 ¶ ⁴⁶ And another of his disciples said unto him, Master, suffer me first to go and bury my father.

22 But Jesus said unto him, Follow me, and let the dead bury their dead.

23 ¶ ⁴⁷ And when he was entered into the ship, his disciples followed him.

24 And behold, there arose ⁴⁸ a great tempest in the sea, so that the ship was covered with waves: but he was asleep.

25 Then his disciples came, and awoke him, saying, Master, save us: we perish.

26 And he said unto them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Then he arose, and rebuked the winds and the sea: and so there was a great calm.

27 And the men marvelled, saying, What man is this, that both the winds and the sea obey him?

* Mark 2. 3. Luke 5. 18. 2 And lo, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, laid on a bed. And Jesus seeing their faith, said to the sick of the palsy, Son, be of good comfort: thy sins are forgiven thee.

3 And behold, certain of the Scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth.

4 But when Jesus saw their thoughts, he said, Wherefore think ye evil things in your hearts?

5 For whether is it easier to say, Thy sins are forgiven thee, or to say, Arise, and walk?

6 And that ye may know that the Son of man hath authority on earth to forgive sins, (then said he to the sick of the palsy) Arise, take up thy bed, and go to thine house.

7 And he arose, and departed to his own house.

10 And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in his house, Behold, many Publicans and sinners, that came thither, sat down at the table with Jesus and his disciples.

11 And when the Pharisees saw that, they said to his disciples, Why eateth your master with Publicans and sinners?

12 Now when Jesus heard it, he said unto them, The whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

16 Moreover, no man pieceth an old garment with a piece of new cloth, for that that should fill it up, taketh away from the garment, and the breach is worse.

17 Neither do they put new wine into old vessels: for then the vessels would break, and the wine would be spilt, and the vessels should perish: but they put new wine into new vessels, and so are both preserved.

18 ¶ * 4 While he thus spake unto them, behold, there came a certain ruler, and worshipped him, saying, My daughter is now deceased, but come and lay thine hand on her, and she shall live. * Mark 5. 22. Luke 8. 41.

19 And Jesus arose, and followed him with his disciples.

20 (And behold, a woman which was diseased with an issue of blood twelve years, came behind him, and touched the hem of his garment.

21 For she said in herself, If I may touch but his garment only, I shall be whole.

22 Then Jesus turned him about, and seeing her, did say, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole at that same moment.)

23 Now when Jesus came into the ruler's house, and saw the minstrels and the multitude making noise,

25 And when the multitude were put forth, he went in and took her by the hand, and the maid arose.

26 And this bruit went throughout all that land.

27 And as Jesus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and saying, O son of David, have mercy upon us.

28 And when he was come into the house, the blind came to him: and Jesus said unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? And they said unto him, Yea, Lord.

29 Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you.

30 And their eyes were opened, and Jesus gave them great charge, saying, See that no man know it.

31 But when they were departed, they spread abroad his fame throughout all that land.

32 ¶ And as they went out, behold, they brought to him a dumb man possessed with a devil.

33 And when the devil was cast out, the dumb spake: then the multitude marvelled, saying, The like was never seen in Israel.

34 But the Pharisees said, He casteth out devils through the prince of devils.

35 ¶ And Jesus went about all cities and towns, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness, and every disease among the people.

36 But when he saw the multitude, he had compassion upon them, because they were dispersed, and scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd.

37 Then said he to his disciples, Surely the harvest is great, but the labourers are few.

38 Wherefore pray the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest.

The gift of healing given to the apostles. 5 They are sent to preach the gospel. 13 Peace. 14 Shaking off the dust. 16 Affliction. 22 Continuance unto the end. 23 Flying from persecution. 28 Fear. 29 Two sparrows. 30 Hairs of our head. 32 To acknowledge Christ. 34 Peace and the sword. 35 Variance. 37 Love of parents. 38 The cross. AND he called his twelve disciples unto him, and gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal every sickness, and every disease.

2 Now the names of the twelve apostles are

By healing these blind, Christ sheweth that he is the light of the world.

An example of that power, that Christ hath over the devil.

Although the ordinary pastors cease, yet Christ hath not cast off the care of his church.

Word for word, cast them out: for men are very slow in so holy work.

The apostles sent to preach the gospel in Israel.

Theophylact saith, that Peter and Andrew are called the first, because they were first called.

A Kerioth. Now Kerioth was in the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15. 25.

The sum of the gospel, preaching of the apostles.

Miracles are dependences of the word.

The ministers of the word must cast away all cares that might hinder them the least wise that might be.

For this journey, wit, both that nothing might hinder them, and also that they might feel some taste of God's these. The first is Simon, called Peter, and Andrew his brother: James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother:

3 Philip and Bartholomew: Thomas, and Matthew the Publican: James the son of Alphaeus, and Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus:

4 Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

5 These twelve did Jesus send forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into the cities of the Samaritans enter ye not:

6 But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

7 And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.

8 Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers: raise up the dead: cast out the devils. Freely ye have received, freely give.

9 Possess not gold, nor silver, nor money in your girdles, 10 Nor scrip for the journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor a staff: for the workman is worthy of his meat.

11 And into whatsoever city or town ye shall come, enquire who is worthy in it, and there abide till ye go thence.

12 And when ye come into an house, salute the same.

13 And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.

14 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house, or that city, shake off the dust of your feet.

15 Truly I say unto you, it shall be easier for them of the land of Sodom and Gomorrah, in the day of judgment, than for that city.

16 Behold, I send you as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and innocent as doves.

17 But beware of men, for they will deliver you up to the councils, and will scourge you in their synagogues.

18 And ye shall be brought to the governors and kings for my sake, in witness to them, and to the Gentiles.

19 But when they deliver you up, take no thought how or what ye shall speak: for it shall be given you in that hour what ye shall say.

20 For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you.

21 And the brother shall betray the brother to providence: for at their return back, the Lord asketh of them, whether they lacked any thing by the way, Luke. 22. 35.

God will provide you meat. Happy they that receive the preaching of the gospel: and unhappy are they that refuse it.

It is a manner of speech taken from the Hebrews, whereby they meant all kind of happiness.

Christ sheweth how the ministers must behave themselves under the cross.

You shall be in great danger.

You shall not so much revenge an injury: and by the mixing of these beasts natures together, he will not have wisdom be malicious, nor simplicity mad, but certain form of good nature as exquisitely framed of both them may be.

For in the cause of religion men will fight against another.

8 But what went ye out to see? a man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings houses.

9 But what went ye out to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet.

A. D. 31. 1. The disciples pluck the ears of corn. 6 Mercy, sacrifice. 10. The withered hand is healed. 12 We must do good on the sabbath. 22 The possessed is holpen. 25 A kingdom divided. 31 Sin, blasphemy. 33 The good or evil tree. 34 Vipers. 41 The Ninevites. 42 The queen of Sheba. 48 The true mother and brethren of Christ.

A T ¶ that time Jesus went on a sabbath day through the corn, and his disciples were an hungred, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat.

2 And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto him, Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the sabbath.

3 But he said unto them, ¶ Have ye not read what David did when he was an hungred, and they that were with him?

4 How he entered into the house of God, and did eat the shewbread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, but only for the priests?

5 Or have ye not read in the law, how that on the sabbath days the priests in the temple break the sabbath, and are blameless?

6 But I say unto you, that here is one greater than the temple.

7 Wherefore if ye knew what this is, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the innocent.

8 For the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath.

9 ¶ And he departed thence, and went into their synagogue:

10 And behold, there was a man which had his hand dried up. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal upon a sabbath day? that they might accuse him.

11 And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that hath a sheep, and if it fall on a sabbath-day into a pit, doth he not take it, and lift it out?

12 How much more then is a man better than a sheep? therefore it is lawful to do well on the sabbath day.

13 Then said he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth, and it was made whole as the other.

14 ¶ Then the Pharisees went out, and consulted against him, how they might destroy him.

15 But when Jesus knew it, he departed thence: and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all,

16 And charged them in threatening wise, that they should not make him known,

17 That

1. God's will is the only rule of righteousness.

2 There is true knowledge of God, nor quietness of mind, but only in Christ alone.

3 May easily be borne. For his commandments are not grievous, for all that is born of God overcometh the world. 1 John 5. 4.

4 Of the true sanctifying of the sabbath, and the abrogating of it.

5 The Hebrews call it bread of faces, because it stood before the Lord all the week upon the golden table appointed to that service, Levit. 24. 6.

6 When the priests do God's service upon the sabbath day, yet they break not the law: much less doth the Lord of the sabbath break the sabbath.

7 The ceremonies of the law not against the love of our neighbour.

8 How far and in what respect we may give place to the unbridled rage of the wicked.

17 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying, 18 * Behold my servant whom I have chosen, my beloved in whom my soul delighteth: I will put my Spirit on him, and he shall shew^c judgment to the Gentiles.

19 He shall not strive, nor cry, neither shall any man hear his voice in the streets.

20 A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, till he^d bring forth judgment unto victory.

21 And in his name shall the Gentiles trust.

22 ¶ * Then was brought to him one possessed with a devil, both blind and dumb, and he healed him, so that he which was blind and dumb, both spake and saw.

23 And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this that son of David?

24 But when the Pharisees heard it; they said, * This man casteth the devils no otherwise out but through Beelzebub, the prince of devils.

25^e But Jesus knew their thoughts, and said to them, Every kingdom divided against itself, is brought to nought: and every city or house divided against itself, shall not stand.

26 So if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself: how shall then his kingdom endure?

27 Also if I through Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? Therefore they shall be your judges.

28 But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then is the kingdom of God come unto you.

29 Else how can a man enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man, and then spoil his house?

30 He that is not with me, is against me: and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth.

31 * Wherefore I say unto you, Every sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.

32 And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: ⁶ but whosoever shall speak against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, nor in the world to come.

33 Either make the tree good, and his fruit good: or else make the tree evil, and his fruit evil: for the tree is known by the fruit.

34⁷ O generations of vipers, how can you speak good things, when ye are evil? For of the * abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.

35 A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth good things: and an evil man out of an evil treasure bringeth forth evil things.

36 But I say unto you, that of every^e idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof at the day of judgment.

37 For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.

38 ¶ * Then answered certain of the Scribes and of the Pharisees, saying, Master, we would see⁸ a sign of thee.

39 But he answered and said to them, An evil and^f adulterous generation seeketh a sign, but no sign shall be given unto it, save that sign of the prophet Jonas.

40 * For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly: so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.

41⁹ The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation, and condemn it: for they⁹ repented at the preaching of Jonas: and behold, a greater than Jonas⁹ is here.

42 * The queen of the¹⁰ South shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for she came from the¹⁰ utmost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon: and behold, a greater than Solomon¹⁰ is here.

43 ¶ * Now when the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh throughout dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none.

44 Then he saith, I will return into mine house from whence I came: and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept and garnished.

45 ¶ Then he goeth and taketh unto him seven other spirits worse than himself, and they enter in, and dwell there: * and the end of that man is worse than the beginning. Even so shall it be with this wicked generation.

46 ¶ * While he yet spake to the multitude, behold, his mother and his brethren stood without, desiring to speak with him.

47 Then one said unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speak with thee.

48 But he answered and said to him that told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren?

49¹¹ And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren.

50 For whosoever shall do my Father's will which is in heaven, the same is my brother and sister and mother.

The parable of the sower. 11 and 34 Why Christ spake in parables. 18 The exposition of the parables. 24 The parable of the tares. 31 Of the mustard seed. 33 Of the leaven. 44 Of the hidden treasure. 45 Of the pearl. 47 Of the draw-net cast into the sea. 53 Christ is not received of his countrymen the Nazarites.

Mark 4. 1. Luke 8. 4-5.

THE same day went Jesus out of the house, and sat by the sea side.

2 And great multitudes resorted unto him, so that he went into a ship, and sat down: and the whole multitude stood on the shore.

3 Then he spake many things to them in parables, saying, Behold, a sower went forth to sow.

4 And as he sowed, some fell by the way-side, and the fowls came and devoured them up.

5 And some fell upon stony ground, where they had not much earth, and anon they sprung up, because they had no depth of earth.

6 And when the sun was up, they were parched, and for lack of rooting, withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns, and the thorns sprung up, and choked them.

8 Some again fell in good ground, and brought forth fruit, one corn an hundred-fold, some sixty-fold, and another thirty-fold.

9 He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 ¶ Then the disciples came, and said to him, Why speakest thou to them in parables?

11 And he answered, and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the secrets of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.

Chap. 25. 29.

12 For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that he hath.

13 Therefore speak I to them in parables, because they seeing, do not see: and hearing, they hear not, neither understand.

Isa 6. 9. Mark 4. 12. Luke 8. 10. John 12. 40. Acts 28. 26. Rom. 11. 8.

14 So in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which prophecy saith, By hearing, ye shall hear, and shall not understand: and seeing, ye shall see, and shall not perceive.

15 For this people's heart is waxed fat, and their ears are dull of hearing, and with their eyes they have winked, lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their hearts, and should return that I might heal them.

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear.

Luke 10. 24.

17 For verily, I say unto you, that many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them: and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

18 ¶ Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower.

19 Whensoever any man heareth the word of that kingdom, and understandeth it not, that evil one cometh, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart: and this is he which hath received the seed by the way side.

20 And he that received seed in the stony ground, is he which heareth the word, and incessantly with joy receiveth it, 21 Yet hath he no root in himself, and dureth but a season: for as soon as tribulation or persecution cometh because of the word, by and by he is offended.

22 And he that received the seed among thorns, is he that heareth the word: but the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and he is made unfruitful.

23 But he that received the seed in the good ground, is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it, which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundred-fold, some sixty-fold, and some thirty-fold.

24 ¶ Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like unto a man which sowed good seed in his field:

25 But while men slept, there came his enemy, and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

26 And when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

27 Then came the servants of the household-er, and said unto him, Master, sowedst not thou good seed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares?

28 And he said to them, Some envious man hath done this. Then the servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?

29 But he said, Nay, lest while ye go about to gather the tares, ye pluck up also with them the wheat.

30 Let both grow together until the harvest, and in time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye first the tares, and bind them in sheaves to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

31 ¶ Another parable he put forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like unto a grain of mustard-seed, which a man taketh and soweth in his field:

32 Which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and it is a tree, so that the birds of heaven come and build in the branches thereof.

33 ¶ Another parable spake he to them, The Christ sheweth, in putting forth this parable of the sower, that the seed of life which is sown in the world, cometh not on so well in one as in another, and the reason is, for that men, for the most part, either do not receive it, or suffer it not to ripen.

The gift of understanding and of faith is proper to the elect, and all the rest are blinded through the just judgment of God.

The condition of the church under, and since Christ, is better than it was in the time of the fathers under the law.

Though there be mention made of the heart, yet this sowing is referred to hearing, without understanding. For whether the seed be received in the heart or no, yet he that soweth, soweth to the heart.

Christ sheweth in another parable of the evil seed mixt with the good, that the church shall never be free and quit from offences, both in doctrine and manners, until the day appointed for the restoring of all things do come, and therefore the faithful have to arm themselves with patience and constancy.

God beginneth his kingdom with very small beginnings, to the end that by the growing on of it, beside the expectation and hope of all men, his mighty power and working may be the more set forth.

A. D. 31. Mark 4. 1. Luke 8. 4-5. Luke 13. 18. Luke 17. 21.

A. D. 31. The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman taketh and hideth in three pecks of meal, till all be leavened.

34 ¶ All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables, and without parables spake he not to them,

35 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, * I will open my mouth in parables, and will utter the things which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world.

36 Then sent Jesus the multitude away, and went into the house. And his disciples came unto him, saying, Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

37 ¶ Then answered he, and said to them, He that soweth the good seed, is the Son of man.

38 And the field is the world, and the good seed are the children of the kingdom, and the tares are the children of that wicked one.

39 And the enemy that soweth them, is the devil, * and the harvest is the end of the world, and the reapers be the angels.

40 As then the tares are gathered and burned in the fire, so shall it be in the end of this world.

41 The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity.

42 And shall cast them into a furnace of fire. There shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

43 ¶ Then shall the just men shine as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

44 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a treasure hid in the field, which when a man hath found, he hideth it, and for joy thereof departeth, and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

45 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like to a merchant-man, that seeketh good pearls, 46 Who having found a pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had, and bought it.

47 ¶ Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a draw-net cast into the sea, that gathereth of all kinds of things, 48 Which, when it is full, men draw to land, and sit and gather the good into vessels, and cast the bad away.

49 So shall it be at the end of the world. The angels shall go forth, and sever the bad from among the just,

50 And shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing, and gnashing of teeth.

51 ¶ Jesus said unto them, Understand ye all these things? They said unto him, Yea, Lord.

52 Then said he unto them, Therefore every Scribe which is taught unto the kingdom of heaven, is like unto an householder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure things both new and old.

53 ¶ And it came to pass, that when Jesus had ended these parables, he departed thence, 54 ¶ And came into his own country, and taught them in their synagogue, so that they were astonished, and said, Whence cometh this wisdom and great works unto this man?

55 Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not his mother called Mary, * and his brethren James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas?

56 And are not his sisters all with us? Whence then hath he all these things?

57 And they were offended with him. Then Jesus said to them, * A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and in his own house.

58 And he did not many great works there, for their unbelief's sake.

i Herod's judgment of Christ. 3 Wherefore John was bound, 10 and beheaded. 13 Jesus departeth. 18 Of the five loaves, &c. 23 Christ prayeth. 24 The apostles tossed with the waves. 27 Faith. 34 Peter in jeopardy. 36 The hem of Christ's garment.

A T * that time Herod the Tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus,

2 And said unto his servants, This is that John Baptist, he is risen again from the dead, and therefore great works are wrought by him.

3 ¶ For Herod had taken John, and bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias sake, his brother Philip's wife.

4 For John said unto him, It is not * lawful for thee to have her.

5 And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, because they counted him a * prophet.

6 But when Herod's birth-day was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased b Herod.

7 Wherefore he promised with an oath, that he would give her whatsoever she would ask.

¶ And she being before instructed of her mother, said, Give me here John Baptist's head in a platter.

9 And the king was sorry; nevertheless, because

6 He expoundeth the former parable of the good and evil seed.

7 Few men understand how great the riches of the kingdom of heaven are; and no man can be partaker of them, but he that redeemeth them with the loss of all his goods.

8 There are many in the church, which notwithstanding are not of the church, and therefore at length shall be cast out: but the full and perfect cleansing of them is deferred to the last day.

9 They ought to be diligent, which have not only to be wise for themselves, but to dispense the wisdom of God to others.

10 Men do not only sin of ignorance, but also wittingly and willingly lay stumbling-blocks in their own ways, that when God calleth them, they may not obey, and so most plainly destroy and cast away themselves.

11 Here is in John an example of invincible courage, which all faithful ministers of God's word ought to follow: in Herod, an example of tyrannous vanity, pride and cruelty, and to be short, of a courtly conscience, and of their miserable slavery, which have once given themselves over to pleasures: in Herodias and her daughter, an example of whorelike wantonness and womanlike cruelty.

12 By works, he meaneth that force and power, whereby works are wrought, and not the works, as is seen oft before.

13 There were three Herods: the first of them was Antipater's son, who is also called Alcalonius, in whose reign Christ was born, and he it was that caused the children to be slain. The second called Antipas, Magnus his son, whose mother's name was Malthaca or Martaca, and this was called Tetrarch, by reason of enlarging his dominion, when Archelaus was banished to Vienne in France. The third Agrippa, Magnus his nephew by Aristobulus, and he it was that slew James.

11 And his head was brought in a platter, and given to the maid, and she brought it unto her mother.

12 And his disciples came, and took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus.

• Mark 6. 35. Luke 9. 12. John 6. 5. 13 And when Jesus heard it, he departed thence by ship into a desert place apart. And when the multitude had heard it, they followed him on foot out of the cities.

14 And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick.

• Mark 6. 35. Luke 9. 12. John 6. 5. 15 And when even was come, his disciples came to him, saying, This is a desert place, and the time is already past: let the multitude depart, that they may go into the towns, and buy them victuals.

16 But Jesus said to them, They have no need to go away: give ye them to eat.

17 Then said they unto him, We have here but five loaves and two fishes.

18 And he said, Bring them hither to me.

19 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looked up to heaven, and blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

20 And they did all eat, and were sufficed, and took up of the fragments that remained, twelve baskets full.

21 And they that had eaten, were about five thousand men, beside women, and little children.

22 And straightway Jesus compelled his disciples to enter into a ship, and to go over before him, while he sent the multitude away.

• Mark 6. 45. 46. 47. John 6. 16. 17. 18. 23 And as soon as he had sent the multitude away, he went up into a mountain alone to pray: and when the evening was come, he was there alone.

24 And the ship was now in the midst of the sea, and was tossed with waves: for it was a contrary wind.

25 And in the fourth watch of the night, Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea.

26 And when his disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is a spirit, and cried out for fear.

27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good comfort, it is I: be not afraid.

² Christ refresheth a great multitude with five loaves and two little fishes, shewing thereby that they shall want nothing, which lay all things aside, and seek the kingdom of heaven.

³ We must sail through mighty tempests, and Christ will never forsake us, so that we go whither he hath commanded us.

⁴ By the fourth watch is meant the time near day breaking: for in old time they divided the night into four watches, in which they scouted.

⁵ A spirit, as it is here taken, is that which imagineth to himself vainly in his mind, persuading himself that he seeth something, and seeth nothing.

⁶ By faith we tread under our feet even the tempests themselves, but yet by the virtue of Christ, which helpeth that virtue, which he of his mercy hath given.

⁷ This Gennesaret was a lake nigh to Capernaum, which is also called the sea of Galilee, and Tyberias, so that the country itself grew to be called by that name.

⁸ In that that Christ healeth the sick, we are given to understand, that we must seek remedy for spiritual diseases at his hands, and that we are bound not only to run ourselves, but also to bring others unto him.

28 Then Peter answered him, and said, Master, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water.

29 And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus.

30 But when he saw a mighty wind, he was afraid: and he began to sink, he cried, saying, Master, save me.

31 So immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

32 And as soon as they were come into the ship, the wind ceased.

33 Then they that were in the ship, came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God.

34 And when they were come over, they came into the land of Gennesaret.

35 And when the men of that place knew him, they sent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were sick, 36 And besought him that they might touch the hem of his garment only: and as many as touched it were made whole.

THEN came to Jesus the Scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem, saying,

2 Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread.

3 But he answered and said unto them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition?

4 For God hath commanded, saying, Honour thy father and mother: and he that curseth father or mother, let him die the death.

5 But ye say, Whosoever shall say to father or mother, By the gift that is offered by me, thou mayest have profit,

6 Though he honour not his father or his mother, shall be free: thus have ye made the commandment of God of no authority by your tradition.

7 O hypocrites, Esaias prophesied well of you, saying, This ¹ None commonly more bold contemners of God, than they whom God appointeth keep his law.

² Which they received of their ancestors from hand to hand, or their elders allowed, which were the governors of the church.

³ Their wicked boldness in corrupting the commandments of God, and that upon pretence of godliness, and usurping authority make laws, is here reproved.

⁴ By honour is meant, all kind of duty which children owe to their parents.

⁵ The meaning is this: whatsoever I bestow upon the temple, is to thy profit, for it is as good as if I gave it thee, for (as the Pharisees of our time say) it shall be meritorious for thee: for under this colour of religion they raked all to themselves, though he that had given anything to the temple, had done the duty of a child.

⁶ You made it of power and authority as much as lay in you: for otherwise the commandments of God stand fast in the church of God, in despite of the world and Satan.

⁷ The same men condemned for hypocrisy and superstition, because they made the kingdom of God stand on outward things.

A. D. 32. 13. 19. 8 * This people draw near unto me with their mouth, and honou'reth me with the lips, but their heart is far off from me.

10 + Then he called the multitude unto him, and said to them, Hear and understand.

11 * That which goeth into the mouth, defileth not the man: but that which cometh out of the mouth, that defileth the man.

12 ¶ Then came his disciples and said unto him, Perceivest thou not, that the Pharisees are offended in hearing this saying?

13 But he answered and said, * Every plant which mine heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up.

14 Let them alone, they be the * blind leaders of the blind: and if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.

15 ¶ * Then answered Peter, and said to him, Declare unto us this parable.

16 Then said Jesus, Are ye yet without understanding?

18 He said to him, Which? And Jesus said, * These, Thou shalt not kill: Thou shalt not commit adultery: Thou shalt not steal: Thou shalt not bear false witness: ^{Exod. 20. 13. Deut. 5. 16. Rom. 13. 9.}

23 Then Jesus said unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.

24 And again, I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

25 And when his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved?

26 And Jesus beheld them, and said unto them, With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible.

27 ¶ Then answered Peter, and said to him, Behold we have forsaken all, and followed thee: what therefore shall we have?

28 And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his majesty, ye which followed me in the regeneration shall sit upon twelve thrones, and judge the twelve tribes of Israel.

29 And whosoever shall forsake houses, or brethren, or sister, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name sake, he shall receive an hundred-fold more, and shall inherit everlasting life.

30 But many that are first, shall be last, and the last shall be first.

CHAP. XX.

Labourers hired into the vineyard. 15 The evil eye. 17 He foretelleth his passion. 20 Zebedee's sons. 22 The cup. 28 Christ is our minister. 30 Two blind men.

FOR the kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain householder, which went out in the dawning of the day to hire labourers into his vineyard.

And he agreed with the labourers for a penny a day, and sent them into his vineyard.

And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the market-place,

4 And said unto them, Go ye also into my vineyard, and whatsoever is right, I will give it you: and they went their way.

5 Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise.

6 And he went out about the eleventh hour, and found others standing idle, and said unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?

7 They said unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He said unto them, Go ye also into my vineyard, and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.

¶ And when even was come, the master of the vineyard said unto his steward, Call the labourers, and give them their hire, beginning at the last, till thou come to the first.

9 And they which were hired about the eleventh hour, came and received every man a penny.

10 Now when the first came, they supposed that they should receive more, but they likewise received every man a penny.

11 And when they had received it, they murmured against the master of the house, 12 Saying, These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day.

13 And he answered one of them, saying, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst thou not agree with me for a penny?

14 Take that which is thine own, and go thy way: I will give unto this last as much as to thee.

15 Is it not lawful for me to do as I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil, because I am good?

16 So the last shall be first, and the first last: for many are called, but few chosen.

17 ¶ And Jesus went up to Jerusalem, and took the twelve disciples apart in the way, and said unto them, 18 Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and unto the Scribes, and they shall condemn him to death.

19 And I shall deliver him to the Gentiles, to mock, and to scourge, and to crucify him, but the third day he shall rise again.

20 ¶ Then came to him the mother of Zebedee's children with her sons, worshipping him, and desiring a certain thing of him.

21 And he said unto her, What wouldest thou? She said to him, Grant that these my two sons may sit, the one at thy right hand, and the other at thy left hand in thy kingdom.

22 And Jesus answered and said, Ye know not what ye ask. Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism?

Rich men have need of a singular gift of God to escape of the snares of Satan.

Word for word, it is of less labour.

Theophylact noteth that by this word is a cable rope, but Caninius aliedgeth of the Talmudists, that it is a proverb, and the word, Camel, signifieth the beast itself.

It is not lost that is neglected for God's sake.

The regeneration is taken from the day, wherein the shall begin to live a new life, that is say, when they shall enjoy the heavenly inheritance, both in body and soul.

To have begun well, and continue unto the end, doth not only profit, but hurteth very much.

God is bound to no man, and therefore he calleth whomsoever, and whensoever he listeth. This only every man ought take heed of, and hereupon bestow his whole endeavour, that forward and come in the mark without all stopping or staggering, and curiously examine other men's doings, in the judgments of God.

Word for word, in time: it is a kind of speech taken from song.

The last hour, in the day in twelve hours long, and the first hour began in the sun-rising.

Nought, that is to say, dost thou envy at my goodness towards them? for the Hebrews by an evil eye mean envy, because such dispositions appear chiefly in the eyes, as above chap. 6. 23. It is set to answer the word, single, and is taken there for corrupt: for whereas he said there above vers. 22. If thine eye be single, he addeth in the 23d, But if thine eye be wicked, or corrupt, the word being the same in that place, as it is here.

Christ goeth to the cross necessarily, but yet willingly.

They that least ought, are the greatest persecutors of Christ.

The ignominy of the cross is the sure way to the glory of everlasting life.

The manner of the heavenly kingdom is quite contrary to the earthly kingdom.

This is spoken by a figure, taking the cup for that which is contained in the cup. And again, the Hebrews understand by this word cup, sometimes, the manner of punishment which is rendered to sin, as Psalm 11. 6. or the joy that is given to the faithful, as Psalm 23. 5. and sometimes a lot, or condition, as Psalm 16. 5.

A. D. 33. baptism that I shall be baptized with? They said to him; We are able.

23 And he said unto them; Ye shall drink indeed of my cup, and shall be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with: but to sit at my right hand, and at my left hand; is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared of my Father.

24 And when the other ten heard this, they disdained at the two brethren.

25 Therefore Jesus called them unto him, and said, Ye know that the lords of the Gentiles have domination over them: and they that are great, exercise authority over them.

26 But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your servant.

27 And whosoever will be chief among you; let him be your servant.

28 Even the Son of man came not to be served, but to serve, and to give his life for the ransom of many.

29 And they departed from Jericho; a great multitude followed him.

30 And behold; two blind men; sitting by the way side, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried, saying; O Lord the son of David, have mercy on us.

31 And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace: but they cried the more, saying; O Lord; the son of David; have mercy on us.

32 Then Jesus stood still; and called them, and said, What will ye that I should do to you?

33 They said to him, Lord; that our eyes may be opened.

34 And Jesus, moved with compassion, touched their eyes, and immediately their eyes received sight; and they followed him.

C H A P. XXI.

Christ rideth on an ass into Jerusalem. 12 He casteth out the sellers. 13 The house of prayer. 19 The withered fig-tree. 25 John's baptism. 28 Who do the will of God. 30 Publicans; harlots. 33 God's vineyard. The Jews. 38 The son killed of the husbandmen. 42 The corner stone.

AND when they drew near to Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage, unto the mount of the Olives, then sent Jesus two disciples, Saying to them; Go into the town that is over-against you, and anon ye shall find an ass bound, and a colt with her: loose them; and bring them unto me.

This is applied to affliction, as David commonly useth.
 The almightiness of Christ his divinity is not shut out by this, but it sheweth the debasing of himself by taking man's nature upon him.
 Somewhat sharply and roughly.
 Christ by healing these blind with an only touch, sheweth that he is the only light of the world.
 Himself, not by other men's.
 Christ by his humility triumphing over the pride of this world, ascendeth true glory, by ignominy of the cross.
 He that shall say any thing to you, shall let them go, to wit, the ass and the colt.
 The city of Sion. An Hebrew kind of speech, commonly used in the Lamentations of Jeremiah.
 Their uppermost garments.
 Upon their garments, upon the ass and the colt.
 This ancient kind of crying, which they used

3 And if any man say aught unto you; say ye; that the Lord hath need of them, and straightway he will let them go.

4 All this was done that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying;

5 Tell ye the daughter of Sion; Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, meek; and sitting upon an ass, and a colt, the foal of an ass used to the yoke.

6 So the disciples went; and did as Jesus had commanded them,

7 And brought the ass and the colt, and put on them their cloaths, and set him thereon.

And a great multitude spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches from the trees; and strewed them in the way.

9 Moreover; the people that went before; and they also that followed, cried; saying; Hosanna to the son of David; Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna thou which art in the highest heavens.

10 And when he was come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved; saying, Who is this?

11 And the people said; This is Jesus that prophet of Nazareth in Galilee.

12 And Jesus went into the temple of God; and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple; and overthrew the tables of the money-changers; and the seats of them that sold doves;

13 And said to them; It is written; My house shall be called the house of prayer: but ye have made it den of thieves.

14 Then the blind and the halt came to him in the temple; and he healed them.

15 But when the chief priests and Scribes saw the marvels that he did; and the children crying in the temple; and saying; Hosanna to the son of David; they disdained;

16 And said unto him, Hearst thou what these say? And Jesus said unto them; Yea: read ye never; By the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast made perfect the praise?

17 So he left them; and went out of the city into Bethany; and lodged there.

18 And in the morning; he returned into the city; he was hungry;

19 And seeing a fig-tree in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon; but leaves only, and said to it; Never fruit grow thou henceforward: And anon the fig-tree withered.

20 And when his disciples saw it; they marvelled; saying; How soon is the fig-tree withered!

21 And Jesus answered and said unto them; Verily in the feast of tabernacles, when they carried boughs, according as God commanded; Levit. 23. 40. And the word is corruptly made of two, for we should say, Hoshiangena, which is much say, Save, I pray thee.

 Well be it to him that cometh in the name of the Lord, that is say, whom the Lord hath given for our king.
 That is; all the of Jerusalem were moved.
 Such as should be masters of godliness, are they that do most envy the glory of Christ: but in vain.
 Thou hast made most perfect. We read in David, Thou hast established or grounded; and if the matter be considered well, it is all one that the Evangelist saith, for that is stable and sure, which is most perfect.
 Christ doth so forsake the wicked, that yet he hath a consideration and regard of his church.
 Hypocrites shall at length have their masks discovered, and vizards plucked from their faces.
 How great the force of faith is.

A. D. * Verily I say unto you, if ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do that which I have done to the fig-tree, but also if ye say unto this mountain, Take thyself away, and cast thyself into the sea, it shall be done.

22 * And whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, if ye believe, ye shall receive it.

23 * And when he was come into the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came unto him, as he was teaching, and said, By what authority dost thou these things? and who gave thee this authority?

24 Then Jesus answered and said unto them, I also will ask of you a certain thing, which if you tell me, I likewise will tell you by what authority I do these things.

25 The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven, or of men? Then they reasoned among themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven, he will say unto us, Why did ye not then believe him?

26 And if we say, Of men, we fear the multitude, for all hold John as a prophet.

27 Then they answered Jesus, and said, We cannot tell. And he said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

28 * But what think ye? A certain man had two sons, and came to the elder, and said, Son, go and work to day in my vineyard.

29 But he answered, and said, I will not: yet afterwards he repented himself, and went.

30 Then came he to the second, and said likewise. And he answered, and said, I will, Sir: yet he went not.

31 Whether of them twain did the will of the father? They said unto him, the first. Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that the Publicans and the harlots go before you into the kingdom of God.

32 For John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not: but the Publicans and the harlots believed him, and ye, though ye saw it, were not moved with repentance afterward, that ye might believe him.

33 * Hear another parable, There was a certain householder, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and made a winepress therein, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a strange country.

34 And when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen to receive the fruits thereof.

¹ The Greek word signifieth a sticking or wavering of mind, so that we cannot tell which way to take.

² Against them which overslipping the doctrine, bind the calling and vocation to an ordinary succession, going about by that false pretext, to stop Christ's mouth.

³ Or by what power.

⁴ One word, that is to say, I will ask you in one word.

⁵ John his preaching is called by a figure, Baptism, because he preached the baptism of repentance, &c. Mark 1. 4. Acts 19. 3.

⁶ From God, and so it is plainly seen, how these are set one against another.

⁷ Beat their heads about it and mused, or laid their heads together.

⁸ It is no new thing to see them to be the worst of all men, which ought to shew the way of godliness to others.

¹⁰ Living uprightly, being of a good and honest conversation: for the Hebrews use this word, 'way,' for life and manners.

¹¹ Those men oftentimes are the cruellest enemies of the church, to whose fidelity it is committed: But the vocation of God is neither tied to time, place, nor person.

35 And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another.

36 Again he sent other servants, more than the first: and they did the like unto them.

37 But last of all he sent unto them his own son, saying, They will reverence my son.

38 But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir: come, let us kill him, and let us take his inheritance.

39 So they took him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him.

40 When therefore the lord of the vineyard shall come, what will he do to those husbandmen?

41 They said unto him, He will cruelly destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall deliver him the fruits in their seasons.

42 Jesus said unto them, Read ye never in the scriptures, The stone which the builders refused, the same is made the head of the corner? This was the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes.

43 Therefore I say unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and shall be given to a nation which shall bring forth the fruits thereof.

44 * And whosoever shall fall on this stone, he shall be broken: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will dash him in pieces.

45 And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them.

46 * And they seeking to lay hands on him, feared the people, because they took him as a prophet.

⁴ Master-builders, which are chief builders of the house, that is, of the church.

⁵ Began to be.

⁶ The chief stone in the corner is called the head of the corner: which beareth up the couplings or joints of the whole building.

⁷ This matter (in that the stone which was cast away is made the head) is the Lord's doing; which we behold and greatly marvel at.

⁸ They bring forth the fruits of the kingdom of God, which bring forth the fruits of the Spirit, and not of the flesh, Gal. 5.

⁹ As chaff useth to be scattered with the wind, for he useth a word which signifieth properly to separate the chaff from the corn with winnowing, and to scatter it abroad.

¹⁰ The wicked can do nothing but what God will.

¹¹ Not all the whole company of them that are called by the voice of the gospel, are the true church before God: for the most part of them had rather follow the commodities of his life: and some do most cruelly persecute those that call them:

A. D. 33. 3 And sent forth his servants, to call them that were bid to the wedding, but they would not come.

4 Again he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my dinner: mine oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come unto the marriage.

5 But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, and another about his merchandize.

6 And the remnant took his servants, and intreated them sharply, and slew them.

7 But when the king heard it, he was wroth, and sent forth his warriors, and destroyed those murderers, and burnt up their city.

8 Then said he to his servants, Truly the wedding is prepared: but they which were bidden, were not worthy.

9 Go ye therefore out into the high ways, and as many as you find, bid them to the marriage.

10 So these servants went out into the high ways, and gathered together all that ever they found, both good and bad: so the wedding was furnished with guests.

11 Then the king came in to see the guests, and saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment.

12 And he said unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither, and hast not on a wedding garment? and he was speechless.

13 Then said the king to the servants, Bind him hand and foot: take him away, and cast him into utter darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

14 For many are called, but few chosen.

15 ¶ Then went the Pharisees, and took counsel how they might tangle him in talk.

16 And they sent unto him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God truly, neither carest for any man: for thou considerest not the person of men.

17 Tell us therefore, how thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cesar, or not?

18 But Jesus perceived their wickedness, and said, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites?

19 Shew me the tribute-money: And they brought him a penny.

20 And he said unto them, Whose is this image and superscription?

21 And they said unto him, Cesar's. Then said he unto them, Give therefore to Cesar the things which are Cesar's, and give unto God those things which are God's.

22 And when they heard it, they marvelled, and left him, and went their way.

23 ¶ The same day the Sadducees came to him (which say that there is no resurrection) and asked him, 24 Saying, Master, Moses said, If a man die, having no children, his brother shall marry his wife by the right of alliance, and raise up seed unto his brother.

25 Now there were with us seven brethren, and the first married a wife, and deceased, and having no issue, left his wife unto his brother.

26 Likewise also the second, and the third, unto the seventh.

27 And last of all the woman died also.

28 Therefore in the resurrection, whose wife shall she be of the seven? for all had her.

29 Then Jesus answered, and said unto them, Ye are deceived, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God.

30 For in the resurrection they neither marry wives, nor wives are bestowed in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven.

31 And concerning the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read what is spoken unto you of God, saying, 32 I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

33 And when the multitude heard it, they were astonished at his doctrine.

34 ¶ But when the Pharisees had heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, they assembled together.

35 And one of them, which was an expounder of the law, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying, 36 Master, which is the greatest commandment in the law?

37 Jesus said to him, Thou shalt love the Lord

^k The word that is used here, signifieth valuing and rating of men's substance, according to the proportion whereof they payed tribute in those provinces which were subject to tribute, and it is here taken for the tribute itself.

^l Before, chap. 17. 24. there is mention made of a didrachm, and here of a penny, whereas a didrachm is more by the seventh part than a penny: so that there seemeth to be a jar in those two places: but they may easily be accorded thus: The penny was payed to the Romans for tribute, according to the proportion they were rated at, the drachm was paid of every man to the temple, which also the Romans took to themselves, when they had subdued Judea.

^m Christ voucheth the resurrection of the flesh against the Sadducees.

27 Woe be to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: for ye are like unto whited tombs, which appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all filthiness.

28 So are ye also: for outward ye appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.

29 ¶ * Wo be unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: for ye build the tombs of the prophets, and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous, 30 And say, If we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partners with them in the blood of the prophets.

31 So then ye be witnesses unto yourselves, that ye are the children of them that murdered the prophets.

32 * Fulfil ye also the measure of your fathers.

33 O serpents, the generation of vipers, how should ye escape the damnation of hell?

34 ¹⁰ Wherefore behold, I send unto you prophets, and wise men, and scribes, and of them ye shall kill and crucify: and of them shall ye scourge in your synagogues, and persecute from city to city, 35 ¹¹ That upon you may come all the righteous blood that was shed upon the earth, * from the blood of Abel the righteous, unto the blood of Zecharias, the son of Barachias, whom ye slew between the temple and the altar.

AND * Jesus went out, and departed from the temple, and his disciples came to him, to shew him the building of the temple. ^{Mark 13. 1. Luke 21. 5. 6.}

2 * And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? Verily I say unto you, there shall not be here left a stone upon a stone, that shall not be cast down. ^{Luke 19. 44.}

3 And he sat upon the mount of Olives, his disciples came unto him apart, saying, Tell us when these things shall be, and what sign shall be of thy coming, and of the end of the world.

4 * And Jesus answered, and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you, ^{Ephes. 5. 6. Coloss. 2. 18.}

5 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ, and shall deceive many.

6 And ye shall hear of wars, and rumours of wars: see that ye be not troubled, for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

7 For nation shall rise against nation, and realm against realm, and there shall be famine, and pestilence, and earthquakes in divers places.

CHAP. XXV.

1 The virgins looking for the bridegroom. 13 We must watch. 14 The talents delivered unto the servants. 4 The evil servant. 30 After what sort the last judgment shall be. 41 The cursed.

THEN the kingdom of heaven shall be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom:

And five of them were wise, and five foolish.

3 The foolish took their lamps, but took no oil with them.

4 But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

5 Now while the bridegroom, tarried long, all slumbered and slept.

6 And at midnight there was a cry made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh: go out to meet him.

7 Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lamps.

And the foolish said to the wise, Give us of your oil, for our lamps are out.

9 But the wise answered, saying, Not so, lest there will not be enough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves.

10 And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came: and they that were ready, went in with him to the wedding, and the gate was shut.

11 Afterwards came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us.

12 But he answered, and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not. A. D. 33.

13 Watch therefore: for ye know neither the day nor the hour when the Son of man will come. Ch. 24. 42. Mark 13. 35.

14 For the kingdom of heaven is as a man that going into a strange country, called his servants, and delivered to them his goods. Luke 19. 12, 13.

15 And unto one he gave five talents, and to another two, to another one, to every man after his own ability, and straightway went from home.

16 Then he that had received the five talents, went and occupied with them, and gained other five talents.

17 Likewise also, he that received two, he also gained other two.

18 But he that received that one, went, and digged it in the earth, and hid his master's money:

19 But after a long season, the master of those servants came, and reckoned with them.

20 Then came he that had received five talents, and brought other five talents, saying, Master, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I have gained with them other five talents.

21 Then his master said unto him, It is well done, good servant and faithful, thou hast been faithful in little; I will make thee ruler over much: enter into thy master's joy:

22 Also he that had received two talents, came, and said, Master, thou deliveredst unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents more.

23 His master said unto him, It is well done, good servant and faithful: thou hast been faithful in little; I will make thee ruler over much: enter into thy master's joy.

24 Then he which had received the one talent, came, and said, Master, I knew that thou wast a hard man, which reapest where thou sowedst not, and gatherest where thou strewedst not:

25 I was therefore afraid, and went, and hid thy talent in the earth: behold, thou hast thine own.

26 And his master answered, and said unto him, Thou evil servant, and slothful, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I strewed not.

27 Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming should I have received mine own with vantage.

28 Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

29 For unto every man that hath, it shall be given, and he shall have abundance, and from him that hath not, even that he hath, shall be taken away. Ch. 13. 12. Mark 4. 25. Luke 9. 18. and 19. 26.

30 Cast therefore that unprofitable servant into his departure to his Father, and his coming again us, but yet notwithstanding, that he will at that day take account not only of the rebellious and obstinate, how they have bestowed that which they received of him, but also of his household servants, which have not through slothfulness employed those gifts which he bestowed upon them.

31 ¶ And when the Son of man cometh in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory.

32 And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd separateth the sheep from the goats.

33 And he shall set the sheep on his right-hand, and the goats on the left.

34 Then shall the King say to them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father: take the inheritance of the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

35 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I thirsted, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in unto you.

36 I was naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.

37 Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or athirst, and gave thee drink?

38 And when saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in unto us? or naked, and clothed thee?

39 Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?

40 And the King shall answer, and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it to me.

41 Then shall he say unto them on the left-hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, which is prepared for the devil and his angels.

42 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I thirsted, and ye gave me no drink:

43 I was a stranger, and ye took me not in unto you: I was naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not.

44 Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?

45 Then shall he answer them, and say, Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me.

46 And these shall go into everlasting pain, and the righteous into life eternal.

* A lively setting forth of the everlasting judgment which is to come.

† Blessed and happy, upon whom my Father hath most abundantly bestowed his benefits.

‡ Christ witnesseth by his voluntary going to death, that he will make full satisfaction for the sin of Adam, by his obedience.

§ God himself and not appointed the time that Christ should be crucified in.

¶ By this word feast, is meant the whole feast of unleavened bread: the first and eighth day whereof, were so holy, that they might do no manner of work therein, though the whole company of the Sanhedrim determined otherwise: and yet it came to pass through God's providence, that Christ suffered at that time, to the end that all the people of Israel might be witnesses of his everlasting sacrifice.

‡ By this sudden work of a sinful woman, Christ giveth the goods to understand of his death and burial which was nigh, the favour whereof shall bring life to all sinners which live unto him. But Judas taketh an occasion hereby to accomplish his wicked purpose and counsel.

§ For these things were done before Christ came to Jerusalem, and yet some think that the Evangelists recite two histories.

¶ These boxes were of alabaster, which in old time men

3 The consultation of the priests against Christ. 6 His feet are anointed. 15 Judas selleth him. 26 The institution of the supper. 34 and 36 Peter's denial. 38 Christ is heavy. 47 He is betrayed with a kiss. 56 He is led to Caiaphas. 64 He confesseth himself to be Christ. 67 They spit at him.

AND it came to pass, when Jesus had finished all these sayings, he said unto his disciples,

2 Ye know, that after two days is the passover, and the Son of man shall be delivered to be crucified.

3 Then assembled together the chief priests, and the Scribes, and the elders of the people into the hall of the high priest, called Caiaphas,

4 And consulted together, that they might take Jesus by subtilty, and kill him.

5 But they said, Not on the feast day, lest any uproar be among the people.

6 ¶ And when Jesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper,

7 There came unto him a woman, which had a box of very costly ointment, and poured it on his head as he sat at the table.

8 And when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, What needed this waste?

9 For this ointment might have been sold for much, and been given to the poor.

10 And Jesus knowing it, said unto them, Why trouble ye the woman? for she hath wrought a good work upon me.

11 For ye have the poor always with you, but me shall ye not have always.

12 For in that she poured this ointment on my body, she did it to bury me.

13 Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout all the world, there shall also this that she hath done, be spoken of for memorial of her.

14 ¶ Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests, 15 And said, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they appointed unto him thirty pieces of silver.

16 And from that time he sought opportunity to betray him.

17 ¶ Now on the first day of the feast of unleavened bread, the disciples came to Jesus, saying made hollow to put in ointments: for some write that alabaster keepeth ointment very well without corruption, Pliny, book 13. ch. 1.

¶ This is a figure called Synecdoche: for it is said but of Judas, that he was moved thereat, John 12. 14.

¶ Unprofitable spending.

¶ We ought not rashly to condemn that which is not orderly done.

¶ Christ who was once anointed in his own person, must always be anointed in the poor.

¶ In that she poured this ointment upon my body, she did it to bury me.

¶ Christ verily purposing to bring us into our country out of hand, and so to abrogate the figure of the law, fulfilleth the law, neglecting the contrary tradition and custom of the Jews: and therewithal sheweth that all things shall so come to pass by the ministry of men, that the secret council of God shall govern them.

¶ This was the fourteenth day of the first month: and the first day of unleavened bread should have been the fifteenth, but because this day's evening (which after the manner of the Romans was referred to the day before) did belong by the Jews manner to the day following, therefore it is called the first day of unleavened bread.

A. D. 53. saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover?

18 And he said, Go ye into the city to such a man, and say to him, The Master saith, My time is at hand: I will keep the passover at thine house with my disciples.

19 And the disciples did as Jesus had given them charge, and made ready the passover.

20 * So when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve.

21 And as they did eat, he said, * Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto him, Is it I, Master?

23 And he answered, and said, * He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, he shall betray me.

24 Surely the Son of man goeth his way, as it is written of him: but woe be to that man, by whom the Son of man is betrayed: it had been good for that man, if he had never been born.

25 Then Judas^k which betrayed him, answered and said, Is it I, Master? He said unto him, Thou hast said it.

26 ¶ 7 * And as they did eat, Jesus took the bread, and when he had blessed, he brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat: * This is my body.

27 Also he took the cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it them, saying, Drink yeⁿ all of it.

28^o For this is my blood of the^p new Testament, that is shed for many for the remission of of sins.

29 I say unto you, that I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day, when I shall drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom.

30 And when they had sung^q a psalm, they went out into the mount of Olives.

31 ¶ 8 * Then said Jesus unto them, All ye shall be offended by me this night: for it is written, I^r will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered.

^h Because the law appointed them to be shod, and have their slaves in their hands, though they were in haste, thereby it is to be gathered, that they sat not down when they did eat the passover, but stood, for otherwise when they went to meat, they put off their shoes: therefore he speaketh here in this place, not of the passover, but of the supper which was celebrated after that the passover was solemnly done.

ⁱ That is to say, whom I vouchsafed to come to my table, alluding to the place, Psalm 41. 10. which is not so be understood as though the self-same instant that the Lord spake these words, Judas had had his hand in the dish (for that had been undoubted token) but it is meant of his tabling and eating with him.

^k Whose head was about nothing else but to betray him.

^l Christ minding forthwith to fulfil the promises of the old covenant, instituteth a new covenant with new signs.

^m Mark saith, had given thanks: and therefore blessing is not a consecrating, with conjuring kind of murmuring and force of words; and yet the bread and the wine are changed, not in nature, but in quality, for they become undoubted tokens of the body and blood of Christ, not of their own nature or force of words, but by Christ his institution, which must be recited, and laid forth, that faith my mind what to lay hold on, both in the word and in the elements.

ⁿ This is figurative speech, which is called Metonymia: that is to say, the putting of one name for another: so calling the bread his body, which is the sign and sacrament of his body, and yet notwithstanding, it is so a figurative and changed kind of speech, that the faithful do receive Christ indeed with all his gifts (though by a spiritual means) and become one with him.

^o Therefore they which took away the cup from the people, did against Christ his institution.

32 But * after I am risen again, I will go before you into Galilee.

33 But Peter answered, and said unto him, Though that all men should be offended by thee, yet will I never be offended.

34 * Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, that this night, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.

35 Peter said unto him, Though I should die with thee, I will in no case deny thee. Likewise also said all the disciples.

36 ¶ * Then went Jesus with them into a place which is called Gethsemane, and said unto his disciples, Sit ye here, while I go, and pray yonder.

37 And he took unto him Peter, and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to wax sorrowful, and grievously troubled.

38^o Then said Jesus unto them, My soul is very heavy, even unto the death: tarry ye here, and watch with me.

39 So he went a little further; and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt.

40^o After, he came unto the disciples, and found them asleep, and said to Peter, What could ye not watch with me one hour?

41 Watch, and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is ready, but the flesh is weak.

42 Again he went away the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup cannot pass away from me, but that I must drink it, thy will be done.

43 And he came, and found them asleep again, for their eyes were heavy.

44 So he left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words.

45 Then came he to his disciples, and said unto them, Sleep henceforth, and take your rest: behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is given into the hands of sinners.

46. Rise,

^o To wit, this cup or wine, is my blood sacramentally, as Luke 22. 10.

^p Or, the covenant, that is to say, whereby the new league and covenant is made: for in making of leagues, they used pouring of wine and shedding of blood.

^q When they had made an end of their solemn singing, which some think was six psalms, beginning at the 112th to the 117th.

^r Christ being careful of his disciples than of himself, forewarneth them of their flight, and putteth them in better comfort.

^s Christ having regard to the weakness of his disciples, leaving all the rest in safety, taketh with him but three to be witnesses of his anguish, and goeth of purpose into the place appointed to betray him in.

^t The word which he useth, signifieth great sorrow, and marvellous and deadly grief: which thing, as it betokeneth the truth of man's nature, which shunneth death, as a thing that is entered in against nature; so it sheweth, that though Christ were void of sin, yet he sustained this horrible punishment, because he felt the wrath of God kindled against us for sins, which he revenged and punished in his person.

^u Christ a true man, going about to suffer the punishment which due unto us, for forsaking of God, is forsaken of his own: he hath a terrible conflict with the horror and fear of the curse of God: out of which he escaping as conqueror, causeth not to be any more afraid of death.

^v Let it pass me, and not touch me.

^w That is, which is hand, and is offered and prepared for me: kind of speech which the Hebrews use, for the wrath of God, and the punishment he sendeth: above, ch. 20. 22.

^x An example of the carelessness of man.

 55 that betrayeth me:

 of the twelve, came, and with him a great mul-

 48 Now he that betrayed him, had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that is he, lay hold on him.
 49 And forthwith he came to Jesus, and said,
 God save thee, Master, and kissed him.
 50 ¹⁶ Then Jesus said unto him, ¹⁷ Friend, wherefore art thou come? Then came they, and laid hands on Jesus, and took him.
 51 And behold, one of them which were with Jesus, stretched out his hand, and drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high priest, and smote off his ear.
 52 ¹⁸ Then said Jesus unto him, Put up thy sword into his place: ¹⁹ for all that ²⁰ take the sword, shall perish with the sword.
 53 ²¹ Either thinkest thou, that I cannot now pray unto my Father, and he will give me more than twelve legions of angels?
 • 1. Luke 22. 53. 54 ²² How then should the ²³ scriptures be fulfilled, which say, that it must be so?
 55 The same hour said Jesus to the multitude, Ye be come out ²⁴ it were against a thief, with swords and staves to take me: I sat daily teaching in the temple among you, and ye took me not.
 56 But all this was done, that the scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. * Then all the disciples forsook him, and fled.

 high priest's ²⁷ hall, and went in, and sat with the servants, to see the end.
 • Mark 14. 59 Now ²⁸ the chief priests and the elders, and all the whole council, sought false witnesses against Jesus, to put him to death.
 60 But they found none: and though many false witnesses came, yet found they none: but at the last came two false witnesses, 61 And said, This man said, * I can destroy the temple of God, and build it in three days.
 62 Then the chief priest arose, and said to him, Answerest thou nothing? ²⁹ What is the matter that these men witness against thee?
 63 But Jesus held his peace. Then the chief priest answered, and said to him, I charge thee ³⁰ Christ offereth himself willingly ³¹ be taken, that in so obeying willingly, he might make satisfaction for the wilful fall of man.
³² Sent from the high priests.
³³ Christ is taken, that we might be delivered.
³⁴ Christ reprehendeth Judas tauntingly, and rebuketh him sharply, for he knew well enough for what cause he came.
³⁵ Our vocation must be the rule of our zeal.

 given it, that is to say, they which use the sword, and ³⁹ not called to it.
⁴⁰ Christ was taken, because he was willing ⁴¹ be taken.
⁴² By this questioning, he answereth a sly objection, for they might have asked him, why he did not in this his great extremity of danger, call to his Father for aid: but to this he answereth by a question.
⁴³ Christ being innocent, is condemned of the high priest for that wickedness whereof ⁴⁴ are guilty.
⁴⁵ From Annas to Caiaphas, before whom the multitude was assembled, John 18. 13.

 room before an house, ⁴⁸ see in kings palaces and noble-men's houses: we call it a court, for it is open to the air, swear unto us by the living God, to tell us, If thou be that Christ, the Son of God, or no.

 nevertheless I say unto you, ⁴⁹ Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man, sitting ⁵⁰ at the right hand of the power of God, and come in the ⁵¹ clouds of the heaven.
 65 Then the high priest ⁵² rent his cloaths, saying, He hath blasphemed, what have we any more need of witnesses? behold, now ye have heard his blasphemy.
 66 What think ye? They answered, and said, He is guilty of death.
 67 * Then spat they in his face, and buffeted him, and others smote him with rods.

 he that smote thee?
 69 ¶ ⁵³ Peter ⁵⁴ sat without in the hall, and a maid came to him, saying, Thou also wast with Jesus of Galilee:
 70 But he denied before them all, saying, I wot not what thou sayest.
 71 And when he went out into the porch, another maid saw him, and said unto them that were there, This man was also with Jesus of Nazareth.
 72 And again he denied with an oath, saying,
 I know not the man.
 73 So after a while came unto him they that stood by, and said unto Peter, Surely thou art also one of them: for even thy speech bewrayeth thee.
 74 Then began he to ⁵⁵ curse himself, and to swear, saying, I know not the man. And immediately the cock crew.
 75 Thon Peter remembered the words of Jesus, which had said unto him, Before the cock crow thou shalt deny me thrice. So he went out, and wept bitterly.

CHRIST'S CRUCIFIXION.

A. D. 33. And led him away bound, and delivered him unto Pontius Pilate the governor.

3 ¶ Then when Judas which betrayed him, saw that he was condemned, he repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders,

4 Saying, I have sinned, betraying the innocent blood. But they said, What is that to us? see thou it.

5 And when he had cast down the silver pieces in the temple, he departed, and went and hanged himself.

6 And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for us to put them into the treasure, because it is the price of blood.

7 And they took counsel, and bought with them a potter's field, for the burial of strangers:

8 Wherefore that field is called, The field of blood, until this day.

9 (Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremiah the prophet, saying, * And they took thirty silver pieces, the price of him that was valued, whom they of the children of Israel valued,

10 And they gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord appointed me.)

11 ¶ * And Jesus stood before the governor, and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the king of the Jews? Jesus said unto him, Thou sayest it.

12 And when he was accused of the chief priests and elders, he answered nothing.

13 Then said Pilate unto him, Hearst thou not how many things they lay against thee?

14 But he answered him not to one word, in so much that the governor marvelled greatly.

15 Now at the feast, the governor was wont to deliver unto the people a prisoner whom they would.

16 And they had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

17 When they were then gathered together, Pilate said unto them, Whether will ye that I let loose unto you Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?

18 (For he knew well that for envy they had delivered him.)

19 Also when he was set down upon the judgment seat, his wife sent to him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man: for I have suffered many things this day in dream by reason of him.)

20 * But the chief priests and the elders had persuaded the people that they should ask Barabbas, and should destroy Jesus.

21 Then the governor answered, and said unto them, Whether of the twain will ye that I let loose unto you? And they said, Barabbas.

22 Pilate said unto them, What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ? They all said to him, Let him be crucified.

23 Then said the governor, But what evil hath he done? Then they cried the more, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 * When Pilate saw that he availed nothing, but that more tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just man: look you to it.

25 Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on us, and on our children.

26 Thus let he Barabbas loose unto them, and scourged Jesus, and delivered him to be crucified.

27 ¶ * Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the common hall, and gathered about him the whole band,

28 And they stripped him, and put about him a scarlet robe,

29 And platted a crown of thorns, and put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand, and bowed their knees before him, and mocked him, saying, God save the king of the Jews:

30 And spitted upon him, and took a reed, and smote him on the head.

31 Thus when they had mocked him, they took the robe from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him.

32 And as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, named Simon: him they compelled to bear his cross.

33 * And when they came unto the place called Golgotha, (that is to say, the place of dead men's skulls)

34 They gave him vinegar to drink, mingled with gall: and when he had tasted thereof, he would not drink.

^a Out of men's fight.

^b The treasure of the temple.

^c Of life and death.

^d Strangers and guests whom the Jews could not abide to be joined unto, no not after they were dead.

^e Seeing this prophecy is read in Zech. 11 12. it cannot be denied but Jeremiah's name crept into the text either through the printer's fault, or by some others ignorance: it may be also that it came out of the margin, by reason of the breviation of the letters, the one being jou, and the other zou, which is not much unlike: but in the Syrian text the prophet's name is not set down at all.

^f The evangelist doth not follow the prophet's words, but his meaning, which he sheweth to be fulfilled.

^g Christ holdeth his peace when he is accused, that he may not be accused: acknowledging our guiltiness, and therewithal his own innocency.

^h Christ is first quitted of the same judge, before he be condemned, that we might see how the just died for the unjust.

ⁱ Christ being quit by the testimony of the judge himself, is notwithstanding condemned by the same, and quit us before God.

¹ It was a manner in old time, when any man was murdered, and in other slaughters, to wash their hands in water, and declare themselves guiltless.

² Of the murder; an Hebrew kind of speech.

³ If there be any offence committed in slaying him, let us and our posterity smart for it.

⁵ They cast a cloak about him, and wrapped it about him, for it lacked sleeves.

⁶ John and Mark make mention of a purple robe, which is also a very pleasant red, but these prophane and malapert saucy soldiers clad Jesus in this array, to mock him withal, who was indeed a king.

⁷ They compelled Simon to bear his burdensome cross, whereby appeareth that Jesus was so sore handled before, that he fainted by the way, and was not able to bear his cross through: for John writeth that he did bear the cross, from the beginning.

⁸ He is led out of the city, that we might be brought into the heavenly kingdom.

⁹ Christ found no comfort any where, that in him we might be filled with all comfort.

A. D. 35 ¶ And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, and did cast lots, that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the prophet, * They divided my garments among them, and upon my vesture they did cast lots.

36 And they sat, and watched him there.

37 ¶ They set up also over his head, his name written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 ¶ And there were two thieves crucified with him, one on the right hand, and another on the left.

39 ¶ And they that passed by, reviled him, wagging their heads, 40 And saying, * Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, save thyself: if thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross.

41 Likewise also the high priests mocking him, with the Scribes and elders, and Pharisees, said, 42 He saved others, but he cannot save himself: if he be the king of Itrael, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe in him.

43 ¶ He trusted in God, let him deliver him now, if he will have him: for he said, I am the Son of God.

44 The self same thing also the 2 thieves which were crucified with him, cast in his teeth.

45 ¶ Now from the sixth hour was there darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.

46 And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, * Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is, My God, my God, why hast thou 0 forsaken me?

47 And some of them that stood there, when they heard it, said, This man calleth 2 Elias.

48 And straightway one of them ran, and took 2 a sponge, and filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink.

49 Others said, Let be: let us see, if Elias will come, and save him.

50 ¶ Then Jesus cried again with a loud voice, and yielded up the ghost.

51 ¶ And behold, 2 the 1 vail of the temple was rent in twain, from the top to the bottom, and the earth did quake, and the stones were cloven,

52 And the 1 graves did open themselves, and many bodies of the saints which slept, arose,

53 And came out of the graves after his

1 He is made a curse, that in him we may be blessed: he is spoiled of his garments, that we might be enriched by his nakedness.

2 He is pronounced the true Messias, even of them of whom he is rejected.

3 Christ began then to judge the world, when after his judgment he hung between two thieves.

4 To make full satisfaction for us, Christ suffereth and overcometh not only the torments of the body, but also the most horrible torments of the mind.

5 This is spoken by the figure Synecdoche, for there was but one of them that did revile him.

6 Heaven itself is darkened for very horror, and Jesus crieth out from the depth of hell, and in the mean while he is mocked.

7 To wit, in this misery: and this crying out is proper to his humanity, which notwithstanding was void of sin, but yet it felt the wrath of God which is due to our sins.

8 They allude to Elias's name, not for want of understanding the tongue, but of a prophane impudency and sauciness: and he repeated those words, to the end that this better hearing upon the name might be understood.

9 Christ after he had overcome other enemies, 11 length provoked an 11 fetters upon death itself.

10 Christ, when he was dead, shewed himself to be God almighty, even his enemies confessing the same.

resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many.

54 When the centurion, and they that were with him watching Jesus, saw the earthquake, and the things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God.

55 ¶ And many women were there, beholding him afar off, which had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him, 56 Among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Joses, and the nother of Zebedee's sons.

57 ¶ And when the even was come, there came 1 rich man of Arimathea, named Joseph, who had also himself been Jesus' disciple.

58 He went to Pilate, and asked the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered.

59 So Joseph took the body, and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, 60 And put it in his new tomb, which he had hewn out in 1 rock, and rolled 1 great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed.

61 And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over-against the sepulchre.

62 ¶ Now the next day that followed the preparation of the sabbath, the high priests and Pharisees assembled to Pilate, 63 And said, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, Within three days I will rise.

64 Command therefore, that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead: so shall the last error be worse than the first.

65 Then Pilate said unto them, Ye have a 1 watch: go, and make it sure, as ye know.

66 And they went, and made the sepulchre sure with the watch, and sealed the stone.

C H A P. XXVIII.

1 The women go to the sepulchre. 2 The angel. 9 The women see Christ. 18 He sendeth his apostles to preach.

NOW 2 in 1 the 2 end of the sabbath, when the first day of the week 3 began to dawn, Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, came to see the sepulchre.

2 And behold, there was a great earthquake: for

1 Which divided the holiest of all.

2 That is to say, the stones cleave in sunder, and the graves did open themselves, to shew by this token, that death was overcome: and the resurrection of the dead followed the resurrection of Christ, 11 appeareth by the next verse following.

3 Christ is buried, not privily or by stealth, but by the governor's consent by a famous man in a place, not far distant, in 1 new sepulchre, so that it cannot be doubted of his death.

4 The keeping of the sepulchre is committed to Christ's 11 murderers, that there might be no doubt of his resurrection.

5 The soldiers of the garrison which were appointed to keep the temple.

6 Christ having put death to flight in the sepulchre, riseth by his own power, 11 straightway the angel witnesseth.

7 At the going out of the sabbath, that is, about day-break, after the Roman count, which reckon the natural day, from the sun rising 11 the next sun rising: and not as the Hebrews, which count from evening to evening.

8 When the morning of the first day after the sabbath began to dawn: and that first day is the same which we now call Sunday, or the Lord's day.

A. D. 33. for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

3 And his countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow.

4 And for fear of him the keepers were astonished, and became as dead men.

5 But the angel answered, and said to the women, Fear ye not: for I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified:

6 He is not here, for he is risen, as he said: come, see the place where the Lord was laid,

7 And go quickly, and tell his disciples, that he is risen from the dead: and behold, he goeth before you into Galilee: there ye shall see him: lo, I have told you.

8 So they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy, and did run to bring his disciples word.

9 And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus also met them, saying, God save you. And they came, and took him by the feet, and worshipped him.

10 Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid. Go, and tell my brethren, that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

11 ¶ Now when they were gone, behold, some of the watch came into the city, and shewed unto the high priests all the things that were done. A. D. 33.

12 And they gathered them together with the elders, and took counsel; and gave large money unto the soldiers, 13 Saying, Say, his disciples came by night, and stole him away, while we slept.

14 And if this matter come before the governor to be heard, we will persuade him, and so use the matter, that you shall not need to care.

15 So they took the money, and did as they were taught: and this saying is noised among the Jews unto this day.

16 ¶ Then the eleven disciples went into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

17 And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some doubted.

18 And Jesus came, and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me, in heaven, and in earth.

19 ¶ Go therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost,

20 Teaching them to observe all things, whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo,

I am with you always, until the end of the world, Amen.

The Holy Gospel of JESUS CHRIST, according to St. MARK.

CHAP. I.

4 John baptizeth. 6 His apparel and meat. 9 Jesus is baptized. 12 He is tempted. 14 He preacheth the gospel. 21 and 39 He teacheth in the synagogues. 13 He healeth one that had a devil. 29 Peter's mother-in-law. 32 Many diseas'd persons. 40 The leper.

THE beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ the son of God:

2 As it is written in the prophets, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.

3 The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, is, Prepare the way of the Lord: make his paths straight.

4 ¶ John did baptize in the wilderness, and John goeth before Christ, as it was forespoken by the prophets.

¶ This is the figure Metonymia, whereby is meant the book of the prophets, Malachi and Isaiah.

¶ The prophet useth the present tense, when he speaketh of a thing to come, being as sure of it, as if he saw it.

¶ A metaphor taken from the usage of kings, which use to have others go before them.

¶ The sum of John's doctrine, or rather Christ's, is remission of sins and amendment of life.

¶ The Jews used many kinds of washings, but here is spopreach the baptism of amendment of life for remission of sins. A. D. 26 end.

5 And all the country of Judea, and they of Jerusalem went out unto him, and were all baptized of him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins.

6 ¶ Now John was clothed with camel's hair, and with a girdle of a skin about his loins, and he did eat locust and wild honey,

7 ¶ And preached, saying, A stronger than I cometh after me, whose shoes latchet I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose.

¶ Truth it is, I have baptized you with water: but he will baptize you with the Holy Ghost.

9 ¶ And it came to pass in those days, that ken of a peculiar kind of washing, which hath all the parts of true baptism, amendment of life, and forgiveness of sins.

¶ John and all ministers cast their eyes upon Christ the Lord.

¶ The evangelist his meaning was to express the condition of the basest servant.

¶ He sheweth that all the force of baptism proceedeth from Christ, who baptizeth within.

¶ Christ doth consecrate our baptism in himself.

A. D. 27. that Jesus came from Nazareth, a city of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan.

10 And as soon as he was come out of the water, Jesus saw the heavens cloven in twain, and the Holy Ghost descending upon him like a dove.

11 Then there was a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

12 And immediately the Spirit driveth him into the wilderness.

13 And he was there in the wilderness forty days, and was tempted of Satan: he was also with the wild beasts, and the angels ministered unto him.

14 Now after that John was committed to prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, 15 And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent and believe the gospel.

16 And as he walked by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea, (for they were fishers.)

17 Then Jesus said unto them, Follow me, and I will make you to be fishers of men.

18 And straightway they forsook their nets, and followed him.

19 And when he had gone a little further thence, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, as they were in the ship, mending their nets.

20 And anon he called them: and they left their father Zebedee in the ship with his hired servants, and went their way after him.

21 So they entered into Capernaum, and straightway on the sabbath-day he entered into the synagogue, and taught.

22 And they were astonished at his doctrine, for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the Scribes.

23 And there was in their synagogue a man in whom was an unclean spirit, and he cried out, 24 Saying, Ah, what have we to do with thee, O Jesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroy us? I know thee what thou art, even that Holy one of God.

25 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.

26 And the unclean spirit tare him, and cried with loud voice, and came out of him.

27 And they were all amazed, so that they demanded one of another, saying, What thing is this? what new doctrine is this? for he commandeth even the foul spirits with authority, and they obey him.

28 And immediately his fame spread abroad throughout all the region bordering on Galilee.

29 And soon they were come out of the synagogue, they entered into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.

30 And Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they told him of her.

31 And he came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up, and the fever forsook her by and by, and she ministered unto them.

32 And when even was come, at what time the sun setteth, they brought unto him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with devils.

33 And the whole city was gathered together at the door.

34 And he healed many that were sick of divers diseases: and he cast out many devils, and suffered not the devils to say that they knew him.

35 And in the morning very early before day, Jesus arose and went out into a solitary place, and there prayed.

36 And Simon, and they that were with him, followed carefully after him.

37 And when they had found him, they said unto him, All men seek for thee.

38 Then he said unto them, Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also: for I came out for that purpose.

39 And he preached in their synagogues throughout all Galilee, and cast the devils out.

40 And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeled down unto him, and said to him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

41 And Jesus had compassion, and put forth his hand, and touched him, and said to him, I will: be thou clean.

42 And as soon he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was made clean.

43 And after he had given him strait commandment, he sent him away forthwith, 44 And said unto him, See thou say nothing to any man, but get thee hence, and shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commanded for a testimonial unto them.

45 But when he was departed, he began to tell many things, and to publish the matter: so that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but without in desert places: and they came to him from every quarter.

2 And he said to them, Is it lawful to do a good deed on the sabbath-day, or to do evil? to save the life, or to kill? But they held their peace.

3 Then he looked round about on them angry, mourning also for their hardness of their hearts, and said to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored as whole as the other.

4 And the Pharisees departed, and straightway gathered a council with the Herodians against him, that they might destroy him.

5 But Jesus avoided with his disciples to the sea: and a great multitude followed him from Galilee, and from Judea,

6 And from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and beyond Jordan: and they that dwelled about Tyre and Sidon, when they had heard what great things he did, came unto him in great number.

7 And he commanded his disciples, that a little ship should wait for him, because of the multitude, lest they should throng him.

8 For he had healed many, insomuch that they pressed upon him to touch him, as many as had plagues.

9 And when the unclean spirits saw him, they fell down before him, and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God.

10 And he sharply rebuked them, to the intent that they should not utter him.

11 Then he went up into a mountain, and called unto him whom he would, and they came unto him.

12 And he appointed twelve, that they should be with him, and that he might send them to preach, 13 And that they might have power to heal sicknesses, and to cast out devils.

14 And the first was Simon, and he named Simon, Peter.

15 Then James the son of Zebedee, and John, James's brother (and surnamed them Boanerges, which is, the sons of thunder,)

16 And Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddeus, and Simon the Canaanite, 17 And Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him, and they came home.

18 And the multitude assembled again, so that they could not so much as eat bread.

21 And when his kinsfolks heard of it, they went out to lay hold on him: for they said that he was beside himself.

22 And the Scribes which came down from Jerusalem, said, He hath Beelzebub, and through the prince of the devils he casteth out devils.

23 But he called them unto him, and said unto them in parables, How can Satan drive out Satan?

24 For if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 Or if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot continue.

26 So if Satan make insurrection against himself, and be divided, he cannot endure, but is at an end.

27 No man can enter into a strong man's house, and take away his goods, except he first bind the strong man, and then spoil his house.

28 Verily I say unto you, all sins shall be forgiven unto the children of men, and blasphemies, wherewith they blaspheme:

29 But he that blasphemeth against the Holy Ghost, shall never have forgiveness, but is culpable of eternal damnation.

30 Because they said, He had an unclean spirit.

31 Then came his brethren and mother, and stood without, and sent unto him, and called him.

32 And the people sat about him, and they said unto him, Behold, thy mother, and thy brethren seek for thee without.

33 But he answered them, saying, Who is my mother and my brethren?

34 And he looked round about on them which sat in compass about him, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren.

35 For whosoever doth the will of God, he is my brother, and my sister, and my mother.

A. D. 31. 2 And he taught them many things in parables, and said unto them in his doctrine, 3 Harken: Behold, there went out a sower to sow.

4 And it came to pass as he sowed, that some fell by the way side, and the fowls of the heaven came, and devoured it up.

5 And some fell on stony ground, where it had not much earth, and by and by sprang up, because it had not depth of earth.

6 But as soon as the sun was up, it was burnt up, and because it had not root, it withered away.

7 And some fell among the thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choaked it, so that it gave no fruit.

8 Some again fell in good ground, and did yield fruit that sprung up, and grew, and it brought forth, some thirty-fold, some sixty-fold, and some an hundred-fold.

9 Then he said unto them, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 And when he was alone, they that were about him with the twelve, asked him of the parable.

11 And he said unto them, To you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them that are without, all things be done in parables.

12 * That they seeing, may see, and not discern: and they hearing, may hear, and not understand: lest at any time they should turn, and their sins should be forgiven them.

13 Again he said unto them, Perceive ye not this parable? how then shall ye understand all other parables?

14 The sower soweth the word.

15 And these are they that receive the seed by the way side, in whom the word is sown: but when they have heard it, Satan cometh immediately, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts.

16 And likewise they that receive the seed in stony ground, are they, which when they have heard the word, straightway receive it with gladness.

17 Yet have they no root in themselves, and endure but a time: for when trouble and persecution ariseth for the word, immediately they be offended.

18 Also they that receive the seed among the thorns, are such as hear the word:

19 But the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things enter in, and choak the word, and it is unfruitful.

20 But they that have received seed in good ground, are they that hear the word, and receive it, and bring forth fruit: one corn thirty, another sixty, and some an hundred.

21 ¶ ² Also he said unto them, * Cometh the candle in, to be put under a bushel, or under the bed, and not to be put on a candlestick?

22 * For there is nothing hid, that shall not be opened: neither is there a secret, but that it shall come to light.

23 If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.

24 ³ And he said unto them, Take heed what ye hear. * With what measure ye mete it shall be measured unto you: and unto you that hear, shall more be given.

25 * For unto him that hath, shall it be given: and from him that hath not, shall be taken away even that he hath.

26 ¶ ⁴ Also he said, So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed in the ground, 27 And ⁵ should sleep, and rise up night and day, and the seed should spring and grow up, ⁶ he not knowing how.

28 For the earth bringeth forth fruit ¹ of itself, first the blade, then the ears, after that, full corn in the ears.

29 And as soon as the fruit sheweth itself, anon he putteth in the sickle, because the harvest is come.

30 ¶ ⁷ He said moreover, Whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it?

31 It is like a grain of mustard-seed, which when it is sown in the earth, is the least of all seeds that be in the earth:

32 But after that it is sown, it groweth up, and is greatest of all herbs, and beareth great branches, so that the fowls of heaven may build under the shadow of it.

33 And * with many such parables he preached the word unto them, ⁸ as they were able to hear it.

34 And without parables spake he nothing unto them, but he ⁹ expounded all things to his disciples apart.

35 ¶ ¹⁰ Now the same day when even was come, he said unto them, Let us pass over unto the other side.

36 And they left the multitude, and took him as he was in the ship, and there were also with him other little ships.

37 ¹¹ And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves dashed into the ship, so that it was now full.

16 And they that saw it, told them what was done to him that was possessed with the devil, and concerning the swine.

17 Then they began to pray him, that he would depart from their coasts.

18 And when he was come into the ship, he that had been possessed with the devil, prayed him that he might be with him.

19 Howbeit, Jesus would not suffer him, but said unto him, Go thy way home to thy friends, and shew them what great things the Lord hath done unto thee, and how he hath had compassion on thee.

20 So he departed, and began to publish in Decapolis, what great things Jesus had done unto him: and all men did marvel.

21 ¶ And when Jesus was come over-again by ship unto the other side, a great multitude gathered together to him, and he was near unto the sea.

22 = And behold, there came one of the rulers of the synagogue, whose name was Jairus: and when he saw him, he fell down at his feet.

23 And besought him instantly, saying, My little daughter lieth at point of death: I pray thee that thou wouldest come and lay thine hands on her, that she may be healed and live.

24 Then he went with him, and a great multitude followed him, and thronged him.

25 (And there was a certain woman, which was diseased with an issue of blood twelve years,

26 And had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and it availed her nothing, but she became much worse,

27 When she had heard of Jesus, she came in the press behind, and touched his garment:

28 For she said, If I may but touch his cloaths, I shall be whole.

29 And straightway the course of her blood was dried up, and she felt in her body, that she was healed of that plague.

30 And immediately when Jesus did know in himself the virtue that went out of him, he turned him round about in the press, and said, Who hath touched my cloaths?

31 And his disciples said unto him, Thou seest the multitude throng thee, and sayest thou, Who did touch me?

32 And he looked round about to see her that had done that.

33 And the woman feared and trembled: for she knew what was done in her, and she came and fell down before him, and told him the whole truth.

34 And he said to her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole: go in peace, and be whole of thy plague.)

¶ Strabo in the sixteenth book saith that in Gadaris there is a standing pool of very naughty water, which if beasts taste of, they shed their hair, nails, or hoofs and horns.
¶ The whole company assembled not disorderly, but in every synagogue there were certain men which governed the people.
¶ Jesus being touched with true faith, although it be but weak, doth heal us by his virtue.

A. D. 31. said, Thy daughter is dead: why diseatest thou the Master any further?

36 As soon as Jesus heard that word spoken, he said unto the ruler of the synagogue, Be not afraid: only believe.

37 And he suffered no man to follow him, save Peter and James, and John the brother of James.

38 So he came unto the house of the ruler of the synagogue, and saw the tumult, and them that wept and wailed greatly.

39 And he went in, and laid unto them, Why make ye this trouble, and weep? the child is not dead, but sleepeth.

40 And they laughed him to scorn: but he put them all out, and took the father, and the mother of the child, and them that were with him, and entered in where the child lay,

41 And took the child by the hand, and said unto her, Talitha-cumi, which is by interpretation, Maiden, I say unto thee, arise.

42 And straightway the maiden arose, and walked: for she was of the age of twelve years, and they were astonished out of measure.

43 And he charged them straightly that no man should know of it, and commanded to give her meat.

Matt. 13. 54. Luke 4. 16. AND he departed thence, and came into his own country, and his disciples followed him.

2 And when the sabbath was come, he began to teach in the synagogue, and many that heard him, were astonished, and said, From whence hath this man these things? and what wisdom is this that is given unto him, that even such great works are done by his hands?

3 Is not this that carpenter, Mary's son, the brother of James and Joseph, and of Judah and Simon? and are not his sisters here with us? And they were offended in him.

Such as mock and scorn Christ unworthy to be witnesses of his goodness.

The three disciples. The faithless world doth whit all diminish the virtue of Christ, but wittingly and willingly deprived itself of the efficacy of it, being offered unto them.

The word signifieth powers, or virtues, whereby are meant those wonderful works that Christ did, which shewed and set forth the virtue and power of his godhead to all the world, Matt. 7. 22.

After the manner of the Hebrews, who by brethren and sisters understand all their kinsfolks.

Not only that hath that honour, which of right is due to him, taken from him, but is also evil spoken of, and misrepresented.

That is, he would not: for we must needs have faith if we will receive the works of God.

The disciples are prepared to the general apostleship, by a peculiar sending forth.

and among his own kindred; and in his own house. A. D. 31.

5 And he could there do no great works, save that he laid his hands upon a few sick folk, and healed them.

6 And he marvelled at their unbelief, and went about by the towns on every side, teaching. Matt. 4. 23. Luke 13. 22.

7 And he called unto him the twelve, and began to send them forth two and two, and gave them power over unclean spirits, Ch. 3. 14. Matt. 10. 1. Luke 9. 1.

8 And commanded them, that they should take nothing for their journey, save a staff only: neither scrip, neither bread, neither money in their girdles:

9 But that they should be shod with sandals, and that they should not put on two coats. Acts 12. 8.

10 And he said unto them, Whosoever ye shall enter into an house, there abide till ye depart thence.

11 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear you, when ye depart thence, shake off the dust that is under your feet, for witness unto them. Verily I say unto you, It shall be easier for Sodom or Gomorrah at the day of judgment, than for that city. Matt. 10. 14. Luke 9. 5. Acts 13. 5. and 18. 6.

12 And they went out, and preached, that men should amend their lives.

13 And they cast out many devils: and they anointed many that were sick, with oil, and healed them. James 5. 14.

14 Then king Herod heard of him (for his name was made manifest) and said, John Baptist is risen again from the dead, and therefore great works are wrought by him. Matt. 14. Luke 9. 7.

15 Other said, It is Elias, and some said, it is a prophet, or as one of those prophets.

16 So when Herod heard it, he said, it is John whom I beheaded: he is risen from the dead. Luke 3. 19.

17 For Herod himself had sent forth, and had taken John, and bound him in prison for Herodias's sake, which was his brother Philip's wife, because he had married her.

18 For John said unto Herod, It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife. Levit. 18. 16. and 20. 17.

19 Therefore Herodias laid wait against him, and would have killed him, but she could not.

For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a just man, and holy, and revered him, and when he heard him, he did many things, and heard him gladly.

For the rulers ought not to have their minds set, nor on things that are necessary for this life, if they may be an hindrance unto them, be it never so little.

The word signifieth properly women's shoes.

That is, they should take no change of garments with them, that they might be lighter for this journey, and make more speed.

That is, change not your inns in this short journey.

The Lord is a most severe revenger of his servants.

That oil was token and a sign of this marvellous virtue: and seeing that the gift of healing is ceased a good while since, the ceremony which is yet retained of some, is purpose.

The gospel confirmeth the godly, and vexeth the wicked.

The word signifieth powers, whereby is meant the power of working miracles.

Of the old prophets.

Commanded to be beheaded.

Sought all means to do him hurt.

The tyrant was very well content to hear sentence pronounced against himself, but the seed fell upon stony places.

A. D. 31. But the time being convenient, when Herod on his birth-day made a banquet to his princes and captains, and chief estates of Galilee:

22 And the daughter * of the same Herodias came in, and danced, and pleased Herod, and them that sat at table together, the king said unto the maid, Ask of me what thou wilt, and I will give it thee.

23 And he swore unto her, Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me, I will give it thee, ^{even} unto the half of my kingdom.

24 * So she went forth and said to her mother, What shall I ask? and she said, John Baptist's head.

25 Then she came in straightway with haste unto the king, and asked, saying, I would that thou shouldst give me even now in a charger the head of John Baptist.

26 Then the king was very sorry: yet for his oath's sake, and for their sakes which sat at table with him, he would not refuse her.

27 And immediately the king sent the hangman, and gave charge that his head should be brought in. So he went and beheaded him in the prison.

28 And brought his head in a charger, and gave it to the maid, and the maid gave it to her mother.

29 And when his disciples heard it, they came and took up his body, and put it in a tomb.

30 ¶ And the apostles gathered themselves together to Jesus, and told him all things, both what they had done, and what they had taught.

31 ¶ And he said unto them, Come ye apart into the wilderness, and rest awhile: for there were many comers and goers, that they had no leisure to eat.

32 * So they went by ship out of the way into a desert place.

33 But the people saw them when they departed, and many knew him, and ran a-foot thither out of all cities, and came thither before them, and assembled unto him.

34 * Then Jesus went out, and saw a great multitude, and had compassion on them, because they were like sheep which had no shepherd: and he began to teach them many things.

35 * And when the day was now far spent, his disciples came unto him, saying, This is a desert place, and now the day is far passed.

36 Let them depart, that they may go into the country and towns about, and buy them bread: for they have nothing to eat.

37 But he answered, and said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they said unto him, Shall we go and buy two hundred pennyworth of bread, and give them to eat?

* When the same Herodias had not by Herodes Antipas, but by Philip, and Josephus called her Salome.

* For women used not to sit at table with men.

* The word signifieth one that beareth a dart, and the king's guard was so called, because they did bear darts.

* Such who follow Christ shall want nothing, no not in the wilderness, but shall have abundance. And how wicked a thing is it, not to look for this transitory life at his hands, who giveth everlasting life?

* This is a kind of demand and wondering, not without a privy mock, which men do commonly use, when beginning to be in a fume, they deny, to do a thing.

* Which is about twenty crowns: which is five pounds.

* Word for word, by baskets, after the manner of the Hebrews, who have no distributives, as chap. 6. 7. Now he collecteth the rows of the sitters, baskets.

* The word signifieth the beds in a garden, and it is word for word, by beds and beds, meaning thereby that they sat down in rows one by another, as beds in a garden.

38 * Then he said unto them, How many loaves have ye? go and look. And when they knew it, they said, Five, and two fishes.

39 So he commanded them to make them all sit down by companies upon the green grass.

40 Then they sat down by rows, by hundreds, and by fifties.

41 And he took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looked up to heaven, and gave thanks, and brake the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before them, and the two fishes he divided among them all.

42 So they did all eat, and were satisfied.

43 And they took up twelve baskets full of the fragments, and of the fishes.

44 And they that had eaten, were about five thousand men.

45 ¶ And straightway he caused his disciples to go into the ship, and to go before unto the other side unto Bethsaida, while he sent away the people.

46 Then as soon as he had sent them away, he departed into a mountain to pray.

47 * And when even was come, the ship was in the midst of the sea, and he alone on the land.

48 And he saw them troubled in rowing, (for the wind was contrary unto them;) and about the fourth watch of the night, he came unto them walking upon the sea, and would have passed by them.

49 And when they saw him walking upon the sea, they supposed it had been a spirit, and cried out.

50 For they all saw him, and were sore afraid: but anon he talked with them, and said unto them, Be ye of good comfort: it is I, be not afraid.

51 Then he went up unto them into the ship, and the wind ceased, and they were much more amazed in themselves, and marvelled.

52 For they had not considered the matter of the loaves, because their hearts were hardened.

53 ¶ And they came over, and went into the land of Gennesaret, and arrived.

54 * So when they were come out of the ship, straightway they knew him, 55 And ran about throughout all that region round about, and began to carry hither and thither in couches all that were sick, where they heard that he was.

56 And whithersoever he entered into towns, or cities, or villages, they laid their sick in the streets, and prayed him that they might touch at the least the edge of his garment. And as many as touched him, were made whole.

* The faithful servants of God after their little labour, are subject to a great tempest, which Christ doth so moderate, being present in power, although absent in body, that he bringeth them to an happy haven, at such time, and by such means, as they looked not for: a lively image of the church tossed to and fro in this world.

* His disciples. They were so far from leaving to be amazed, when they knew that it was no spirit, that they were much more astonished than ever they were before, when they saw the wind and the seas obey his commandments.

* Either they perceived not, or had not well considered that miracle of the five loaves, insomuch that that virtue of Christ was no less strange to them, than if they had not been present at that miracle which was done but a little before.

* Christ being rejected in his own country, and arriving upon a sudden amongst them, of whom he was not looked for, is received to their great profit.

2 The apostles are found fault with for eating with unwashen hands. 4 The Pharisees traditions about washings. Hypocrites. 8 Man's traditions more set by than God's. 10 Parents must be honoured. 14 The things that do indeed defile a man. 25 The woman of Canaan. 32 The deaf and dumb man is healed.

THEN gathered unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the Scribes which came from Jerusalem.

2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat meat with common hands, (that is to say, unwashen) they complained.

3 (For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands oft, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders.

4 And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not: and many other things there be, which they have taken upon them to observe, as the washing of cups, and pots, and of brasen vessels, and of beds.)

5 Then asked him the Pharisees and Scribes, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat meat with unwashen hands?

6 Then he answered and said unto them, Surely Isaiah hath prophesied well of you, hypocrites, as it is written, This people honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is far away from me.

7 But they worship me in vain, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

8 For ye lay the commandment of God apart, and observe the tradition of men, as the washing of pots and of cups, and many other such like things ye do.

9 And he said unto them, Well ye reject the commandment of God, that ye may observe your own tradition.

10 For Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother: and Whosoever shall speak evil of father or mother, let him die the death.

11 But ye say, If a man say to father or mother, Corban, that is, By the gift that is offered by me, thou mayest have profit, he shall be free.

12 So ye suffer him no more to do any thing for his father, or his mother;

13 Making the word of God of none authority, by your tradition which ye have ordained: and ye do many such like things.

1 None do more resist the wisdom of God, than they that should be wisest, and that upon a zeal of their own traditions: for men do not please themselves more in any thing than in superstition, that is to say, in a worship of God fondly devised of themselves.

2 Word for word, eat bread: a kind of speech which the Hebrews use, taking bread for all kind of food.

3 For the Pharisees would not eat their meat with unwashen hands, because they thought that their hands were defiled with common handling of things, Matt. 15. 11, 12.

4 Observing diligently.

5 That is to say, from civil affairs and worldly, they go not to meat, unless they wash themselves first.

6 By these words are understood all kinds of vessels, which are appointed for our daily use.

7 Why live they not? kind of speech taken from the Hebrews: for among them, the way is taken for trade of life.

8 Hypocrisy is always joined with superstition.

9 The more earnest the superstitious are, the more they are mad in promising themselves God's favour by their devices.

10 The devices of superstitious men do not only not fulfil the law of God, (as they blasphemously persuade themselves) but also do utterly take it away.

11 True religion, which is clean contrary to superstition,

14 Then he called the whole multitude unto him, and said unto them, Harken you all unto me, and understand.

15 There is nothing without a man, that can defile him, when it entereth into him: but the things which proceed out of him, are they which defile the man.

16 If any have ears to hear, let him hear.

17 And when he came into an house, away from the people, his disciples asked him concerning the parable.

18 And he said unto them, What? are ye without understanding also? Do ye not know that whatsoever thing from without entereth into a man, cannot defile him, 19 Because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, which is the purging of all meats?

20 Then he said, That which cometh out of a man, that defileth man.

21 For from within, even out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, 22 Thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, uncleanness, a wicked eye, backbiting, pride, foolishness.

23 All these evil things come from within, and defile a man.

24 And from thence he arose, and went into the borders of Tyre and Sidon, and entered into an house, and would that no man should have known: but he could not be hid.

25 For a certain woman, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit, heard of him, and came, and fell at his feet.

26 (And the woman was a Greek, a Syrophenician by nation) and she besought him that he would cast out the devil out of her daughter.

27 But Jesus said unto her, Let the children first be fed: for it is not good to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto whelps.

28 Then she answered, and said unto him, Truth, Lord: yet indeed the whelps eat under the table of the children's crumbs.

29 Then he said unto her, For this saying, go thy way: the devil is gone out of thy daughter.

30 And when she was come home to her house, she found the devil departed, and her daughter lying on the bed.

31 And he departed again from the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, and came unto the sea of Galilee; consisteth in spiritual worship: and all the enemies of true religion, although they seem to have taken deep root, shall be plucked up.

Without hope of pardon, he shall be put to death.

For that that goeth into the draught, purgeth all meats:

32 And they brought unto him one that was deaf, and stammered in his speech, and prayed him to put his hands upon him.

33 Then he took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers in his ears, and did spit, and touched his tongue.

34 And looking up to heaven, he sighed, and said unto him, Ephphatha, that is, Be opened.

35 And straightway his ears were opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain.

36 And he commanded them that they should tell no man: but how much soever he forbade them, the more a great deal they published it.

37 And were beyond measure astonished, saying, He hath done all things well: he maketh both the deaf hear, and the dumb to speak.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The miracle of the seven loaves. 11 The Jews seek signs. 15 To beware of the leaven of the Pharisees. 22 A blind man healed. 27 The people's sundry opinions of Christ. 29 The apostles acknowledge Christ. 31 He foretelleth his death. 33 Peter, Satan. 35 To save and lose the life. 38 To be ashamed of Christ.

IN those days, when there was a very great multitude, and had nothing to eat, Jesus called his disciples to him, and said unto them,

2 I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now continued with me three days, and have nothing to eat:

3 And if I send them away fasting to their own houses, they would faint by the way: for some of them came from far.

4 Then his disciples answered him, Whence can a man satisfy these with bread here in the wilderness?

5 And he asked them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven.

Then he commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground: and he took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, brake them, and gave to his disciples to set before them, and they did set them before the people.

7 They had also a few small fishes: and when he had given thanks, he commanded them also to be set before them.

So they did eat, and were sufficed, and they took up of the broken meat that was left, seven baskets full.

< It was a little country, and so called of ten cities, which the four governments do run between and compass. P. 1. 3. chap. 8.

- Was for word, they will fall in sender, or be dashed; for when men fall in a swoon, their senses fall out from a while.

The stubborn enemies of the doctrine of the gospel giving no credit to the miracles already done, require new ones: Christ being angry with them, doth utterly forsake them.

A common kind of speech, which the Hebrews use, whereby it meant that the Pharisees went from their houses on purpose to encounter with him.

It might come over from a heart root, for the Jews were much moved with these signs to great infidelity.

Used for a sign, is a sign to them: it is a cutted line of speech very common among the Hebrews: where in some places it is used as a sign to be understood, let me be taken for a sign, or some such like. And when they speak out the words, they say, The Lord do thus and thus by me.

9 (And they that had eaten, were about four thousand) so he sent them away.

10 ¶ And anon he entered into a ship with his disciples, and came into the parts of Dalmanutha.

11 ¶ And the Pharisees came forth, and began to dispute with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, and tempting him.

12 Then he sighed deeply in his spirit, and said, Why doth this generation seek a sign? Verily I say unto you, A sign shall not be given into this generation.

13 ¶ So he left them, and went into the ship again, and departed to the other side.

14 ¶ And they had forgotten to take bread, neither had they in the ship with them but one loaf.

15 And he charged them, saying, Take heed, and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod.

16 And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is, because we have no bread.

17 And when Jesus knew it, he said unto them, Why reason ye thus, because ye have no bread? perceive ye not yet, neither understand? how ye your hearts yet hardened?

18 Have ye eyes, and see not? and have ye ears, and hear not? and do ye not remember?

19 ¶ When I brake the five loaves among you, how many baskets full of broken meat took ye up? They said unto him, Twelve.

20 And when I brake seven among four thousand, how many baskets full of the leavings of broken meat took ye up? And they said, Seven.

21 Then he said unto them, How is it that ye understand not?

22 And he came to Bethsaida, and they brought a blind man unto him, and desired him to touch him.

23 Then he took the blind by the hand, and led him out of the town, and spat in his eyes, and put his hands upon him, and asked him if he saw aught?

24 And he looked up, and said, I see men: for I see them walking like trees.

25 After that, he put his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look again. And he was scitored to his sight, and saw every man as far off clearly.

26 And he sent him home to his house, saying, Neither go into the town, nor tell it to any in the town.

27 ¶ And Jesus went out, and his disciples

> We must especially take heed of them which corrupt the word of God, what degree soever they be of, either in the church, or in civil policy.

They that have their minds fixed on earthly things, are utterly blind in heavenly things, although they be never so plainly set forth unto them.

How cometh it to pass, that you understand not these things which are so plain and evident?

A true image of our regeneration, which Christ separating us from the world, worketh and accomplisheth by little and little in us.

He perceived some moving of him when he could not see in their bodies.

He commanded him again, to try indeed, whether he could see or no.

Christ will not have his miracles to be separated from his doctrine.

Many praise Christ, which yet notwithstanding speak him of his praise.

29 And he said unto them, But whom say ye that I am? Then Peter answered, and said unto him, Thou art that Christ.

30 And he sharply charged them, that concerning him they should tell no man.

31 Then he began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer many things, and should be reprov'd of the elders, and of the high priests, and of the Scribes, and be slain, and within three days rise again.

32 And he spake that thing boldly. Then Peter took him aside, and began to rebuke him.

33 Then he turned back, and looked on his disciples, and rebuked Peter, saying, Get thee behind me, Satan: for thou understandest not the things that are of God, but the things that are of men.

34 ¶ And he called the people unto him with his disciples, and said unto them, Whosoever will follow me, let him forsake himself, and take up his cross, and follow me, 35 For whosoever will save his life, shall lose it: but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, he shall save it.

36 For what shall it profit a man, though he should win the whole world, if he lose his soul?

37 Or what exchange shall a man give for his soul?

38 For whosoever shall be ashamed of me, and of my words, among this adulterous and sinful generation, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed also, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.

AND he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that there be some of them that stand here, which shall not taste of death till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power.

2 And six days after, Jesus taketh unto him Peter, and James, and John, and carrieth them up into an high mountain out of the way alone, and his shape was changed before them.

3 And his raiment did shine, and was very white as snow, so white as no fuller can make upon the earth.

4 And there appeared unto them Elias with Moses, and they were talking with Jesus.

5 Then Peter answered; and said to Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: let us make also three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

6 Yet he knew not what he said: for they were afraid.

7 And there was a cloud that shadowed them, and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son: hear him,

8 And suddenly they looked round about, and saw no more any man save Jesus only with them.

9 And as they came down from the mountain, he charged them that they should tell no man what they had seen, save when the Son of man were risen from the dead again.

10 So they kept that matter to themselves, and demanded one of another, what the rising from the dead again should mean?

11 Also they asked him, saying, Why say the Scribes, that Elias must first come?

12 And he answered, and said unto them, Elias verily shall first come, and restore all things: and as it is written of the Son of man, he must suffer many things, and be set at nought.

13 But I say unto you, that Elias is come, (and they have done unto him whatsoever they would) as it is written of him.

14 ¶ And when he came to his disciples, he saw a great multitude about them, and the Scribes disputing with them.

15 And straightway all the people, when they beheld him, were amazed, and ran to him, and saluted him.

16 Then he asked the Scribes, What dispute you among yourselves?

17 And one of the company answered, and said, Master, I have brought my son unto thee, which hath a dumb spirit:

18 And wheresoever he taketh him, he tear-eth him, and he foameth, and gnasheth his teeth, and pineth away: and I spake to thy disciples, that they should cast him out, and they could not.

19 Then he answered him, and said, O faithless generation, how long now shall I be with you! how long now shall I suffer you! Bring him unto me. N 20 So

Luke 9. 38.

7 Christ hath appointed his times to the preaching of the gospel, and therefore here deferreth it to a more commodious time, lest sudden haste should rather hinder than further the mystery of his coming.

8 Christ suffered all that he suffered for us, not unwillingly, neither unawares, but foreknowing it, and willingly.

9 None are more mad than they that are wise beside the word of God.

10 This is not godly, but worldly wisdom.

10 The disciples of Christ must bear stoutly what burden soever the Lord layeth upon them, and subdue the affections of the flesh.

11 They are the most foolish of all men, which purchase the enjoying of this life with the loss of everlasting bliss.

12 When he shall begin his kingdom through the preaching of the gospel, that is to say, after the resurrection.

13 The heavenly glory of Christ, which should with in a short space be abased upon the cross, is avouched by visible signs, by the presence and talk of Elias and Moses, and by the voice of the Father himself, before three of his disciples, which were witnesses, against whom lieth no exception.

Did sparkle as it were.

c They were beside themselves for fear.

2 The Lord hath appointed his times for the publishing of the gospel.

Even very hardly it were.

They questioned not together touching the general resurrection, which shall be in the latter day, but they understood not what he meant by that which he spake of his own peculiar resurrection.

The foolish opinion of the Rabbies is here refuted, touching Elias coming, which was, that either Elias should rise again from the dead, or that his soul should enter into some other body.

Christ sheweth by a miracle even to the unworthy, that he is able to bridle the rage of Satan.

Vexeth him inwardly, as the cholic useth to do.

A. D. 32. 20 So they brought him unto him: and as soon as the spirit saw him, he tare him, and he fell down on the ground, wallowing and foaming.

21 Then he asked his father, How long time is it since he hath been thus? And he said, Of a child:

22 And oft-times he casteth him into the fire, and into the water, to destroy him: but if thou canst do any thing, help us, and have compassion upon us.

23 And Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe it, all things are possible to him that believeth.

24 And straightway the father of the child crying with tears, said, Lord, I believe: help my unbelief.

25 When Jesus saw that the people came running together, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him, 26 Then the spirit cried, and rent him sore, and came out, and he was as one dead, insomuch that many said, He is dead.

27 But Jesus took his hand, and lift him up, and he arose.

28 And when he was come into the house, his disciples asked him secretly, Why could not we cast him out?

29 And he said unto them, This kind can by no other means come forth, but by prayer and fasting.

30 ¶ And they departed thence, and went together through Galilee, and he would not that any should have known it.

31 For he taught his disciples, and said unto them, The Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men, and they shall kill him, but after that he is killed, he shall rise again the third day.

32 But they understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask him.

33 ¶ After, he came to Capernaum: and when he was in the house, he asked them, What was it that ye disputed among you by the way?

34 And they held their peace: for by the way they reasoned among themselves, who should be the chiefest.

35 And he sat down, and called the twelve, and said to them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant unto all.

36 And he took a little child, and set him in the midst of them, and took him in his arms, and said unto them,

37 Whosoever shall receive one of such little children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever receiveth me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.

38 ¶ Then John answered him, saying, Master, we saw one casting out devils by thy name, which followeth not us, and we forbid him, because he followeth us not.

39 But Jesus said, Forbid him not: for there is no man that can do a miracle by my name, that can lightly speak evil of me.

40 For whosoever is not against us, is on our part.

41 And whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink for my name's sake, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.

42 And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it were better for him rather, that a mill-stone were hanged about his neck, and that he were cast into the sea.

43 Wherefore if thine hand cause thee to offend, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched.

44 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire never goeth out.

45 Likewise, if thy foot cause thee to offend, cut it off: it is better for thee to go halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched,

46 Where their worm dieth not, and the fire never goeth out.

47 And if thine eye cause thee to offend, pluck it out: it is better for thee to go into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire, 48 Where the worm dieth not, and the fire never goeth out.

49 For every man shall be salted with fire: and every sacrifice shall be salted with salt.

50 Salt is good: but if the salt be unfavoury, wherewith shall it be seasoned? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace one with another.

9 The wife only for fornication is to be put away. 13 Little children are brought to Christ. 17 A rich man asketh Jesus how he may possess eternal life. 28 The apostles forsook all things for Christ's sake. 33 Christ foretelleth his death. 35 Zebedee his sons request. 46 Blind Bartimeus healed.

AND he arose from thence, and went into the coasts of Judea by the far side of Jordan, and the people resorted unto him again: and as he was wont, he taught them again.

Then

So soon as Jesus had looked upon the boy that was brought unto him, the devil began in rage after his manner.

There is nothing but Christ can and will do it, for them that will believe in him.

The nearer the virtue of Christ is, the more outrageously doth Satan rage.

We have need of faith, and therefore of prayer and fasting, to cast Satan out of his old possession.

He and his disciples together.

Christ forwarneth us with great diligence, to the end we should not be oppressed with sudden calamities, but the steadfastness of man is wonderful.

Only humility doth exalt.

Where he was wont to make his abode.

He doth not only receive me, but also him that sent me.

God, who is the author of an ordinary vocation, worketh also extraordinarily so oft as it pleaseth him. But an extraordinary vocation is tried by the doctrine and the effects.

God is so severe a revenger of offences, that it is better to suffer any loss, than to be an occasion of offence unto any.

Their worm which shall be cast into that flame.

We must be seasoned and powdered by God, both that we may be acceptable sacrifices unto him, and also that we, being knit together, may season one another.

That is, shall be consecrate unto God, being seasoned with the incorruptible word.

That is to say, departed and went from thence: for in the Hebrew tongue sitting and dwelling are all one, and so are rising and going forth.

A. D. 33. 2 Then the Pharisees came and asked him, if it were lawful for a man to put away his wife: and tempted him.

3 And he answered, and said unto them, What did ^{Deut. 24. 1.} Moses command you?

4 And they said, Moses suffered to write a bill of divorcement, and to put her away.

5 ¹ Then Jesus answered, and said unto them, For the hardness of your heart he wrote this ^b precept unto you.

^{Gen. 1. 27.} ^{Matt. 19. 4.} 6 But at the beginning of the creation * God made them male and female:

^{Gen. 2. 24.} ^{1 Cor. 6. 16.} ^{1 Pet. 5. 31.} 7 [■] For this cause shall man leave his father and mother, and cleave unto his wife,

8 And they twain shall be one flesh: so that they are no more twain, but one flesh.

^{1 Cor. 7. 10.} 9 * Therefore, what God hath coupled together, let no man separate.

10 And in the houte his disciples asked him again of that matter.

^{Matt. 7. 32.} ^{Matt. 19. 9.} ^{Luke 10. 12.} 11 And he said unto them, * Whosoever shall put away his wife and marry another, committeth adultery [■] against her.

12 And if a woman put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery.

^{Matt. 19. 13.} ^{Luke 18. 15.} 13 ¶ * ² Then they brought little children to him, that he should touch them, and his disciples rebuked those that brought them.

14 But when Jesus saw it, he was displeased, and said to them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.

15 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God ³ as a little child, he shall not enter therein.

16 And he took them up in his arms, and put his hands upon them, and blessed them.

^{Matt. 19. 16.} ^{Luke 18. 18.} 17 ¶ ⁴ And when he was gone out on the way, there came one * running, and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good Master, what shall I do that I may possess eternal life?

18 Jesus said to him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, even God.

^{Exod. 20. 13.} 19 Thou knowest the commandments, * Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness. ^d Thou shalt ^d hurt no man. Honour thy father and mother.

20 Then he answered, and said to him, Master, all these things have I observed from my youth.

21 And Jesus looked upon him, and loved him, and said unto him, One thing is lacking unto thee. Go and sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come, follow me, and take up the cross.

22 But he was sad at that saying, and went away sorrowful: for he had great possessions. A. D. 33.

23 And Jesus looked round about, and said unto his disciples, How hardly do they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

24 And his disciples were afraid [■] his words. But Jesus answered again, and said unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches, to enter into the kingdom of God!

25 It is easier for [■] camel to go through the eye of [■] needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they were much more astonished, saying with themselves, Who then can be saved?

27 But Jesus looked upon them, and said, With men it is impossible, but not with God: for with God all things are possible.

28 ¶ * ⁵ Then Peter began to say unto him, [■] Lo, we have forsaken all, and have followed thee. * Matt. 19. 27. Luke 18. 28.

29 Jesus answered, and said, Verily I say unto you, there is no man that hath forsaken house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake and the gospel's, 30 But he shall receive an ^o hundred-fold, now at this present, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands [■] with persecutions; and in the world to come, eternal life.

31 * But many that are first, shall be last: and the last, first. * Matt. 19. 30. Luke 13. 30. * Matt. 20. 17. Luke 18. 31.

32 ¶ * ⁶ And they were in the way, going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus went before them, and they were troubled, and as they followed, they were afraid: and Jesus took the twelve again, and began to tell them what things should come unto him, 33 Saying, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the high priests, and to the Scribes, and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him to the Gentiles.

34 And they shall mock him, and scourge him, and spit upon him, and kill him: but the third day he shall rise again.

35 ¶ * ⁷ Then James and John the sons of Zebedee came unto him, saying, Master, ⁸ we would that thou shouldest do for us that we desire. * Matt. 20. 20.

36 And he said unto them, What would ye that [■] I should do for you?

37 And they said unto him, Grant unto us, that we may sit, one at thy right hand, and the other at thy left hand in thy glory.

38 But Jesus said unto them, Ye know not what ye ask: Can ye drink of the cup that I shall drink

¹ God did never allow those divorces which the law did tolerate.

^b Look Matt. 19. For Moses gave them no commandment to put away their wives, but rather made [■] good proviso for the wives against the stubborn hardness of their husbands.

[■] Whom he putteth away, for he is [■] adulterer by keeping company with another.

[■] God of his goodness comprehendeth in the covenant not only the fathers, but the children also: and therefore he blesseth them.

[■] We must in malice become children, if we will enter into the kingdom of heaven.

[■] Two things are chiefly to be eschewed of them which earnestly seek eternal life: that is to say, an opinion of their merits or deservings, which is not only understood, but [■] damned by the due consideration of the law: and the love of riches, which turneth aside many from that race wherein they ran with [■] good courage.

[■] Neither by force nor deceit, nor any other [■] whatsoever.

[■] To neglect all things in comparison of Christ is [■] sure way [■] eternal life, so that we fall not away by the way.

[■] An hundred-fold as much, if we look to the true use and commodities of this life, so that we measure them after the will of God, and not after the wealth itself, and our greedy desire.

[■] Even in the midst of persecution.

⁶ The disciples are again prepared to patience, not to be [■] by the foretelling unto them of his death, which [■] hand, and therewithal of life, which should [■] certainly follow

[■] we must first strive before [■] triumph.

⁸ We pray thee

A. D. 33. drink of, and be baptized with the baptism that I shall be baptized with?

39 And they said unto him, We can. But Jesus said unto them, Ye shall drink indeed of the cup that I shall drink of, and be baptized with the baptism wherewith I shall be baptized:

40 But to sit at my right hand, and at my left, is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared.

41 And when the ten heard that, they began to disdain at James and John.

42 But Jesus called them unto him, and said to them, Ye know that they which are princes among the Gentiles, have domination over them: and they that be great among them, exercise authority over them:

43 But it shall not be so among you: but whosoever will be great among you, shall be your servant.

44 And whosoever will be chief of you, shall be the servant of all.

45 For even the Son of man came not to be served, but to serve, and to give his life for the ransom of many.

46 ¶ Then they came to Jericho: and as he went out of Jericho with his disciples, and a great multitude, Bartimeus the son of Timeus, a blind man, sat by the way's side, begging.

47 And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry, and to say, Jesus the son of David, have mercy on me.

48 And many rebuked him, because he should hold his peace: but he cried much more, O son of David, have mercy on me.

49 Then Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called: and they called the blind, saying unto him, Be of good comfort: arise, he calleth thee.

50 So he threw away his cloak, and arose, and came to Jesus.

51 And Jesus answered, and said unto him, What wilt thou that I do unto thee? And the blind said unto him, Lord, that I may receive sight.

52 Then Jesus said unto him, Go thy way: thy faith hath saved thee. And by and by he received his sight, and followed Jesus in the way.

C H A P. XI.

1 Christ entereth into Jerusalem riding on an ass. 13 The fruitless fig-tree is cursed. 15 Sellers and buyers are cast out of the temple. 23 The force of faith. 24 Faith in prayer. 25 The brother's offences must be pardoned. 27 The priests ask by what authority he wrought those things that he did. 30 Whence John's baptism was.

AND when they came near to Jerusalem, to Bethphage and Bethany, unto the mount of Olives, he sent forth two of his disciples,

¶ The magistrates according to God's appointment rule over their subjects: but the pastors are not called to rule, but to serve according to the example of the Son of God himself, who went before them, for so much as he also was a Minister of his Father's will.

¶ They to whom it is decreed and appointed.

¶ Christ only, being called upon by faith, healeth our blindness.

¶ A lively image of the spiritual kingdom of Christ on earth.

¶ Well be it to him that cometh to us from God, or that is sent of God.

2 And said unto them, Go your ways into that town that is over-against you, and as soon as ye shall enter into it, ye shall find a colt tied, whereon never man sat: loose him, and bring him.

3 And if any man say unto you, Why do ye this? Say that the Lord hath need of him, and straightway he will send him hither.

4 And they went their way, and found a colt tied by the door without, in a place where two ways met, and they loosed him.

5 Then certain of them that stood there said unto them, What do ye loosing the colt?

6 And they said unto them, Jesus had commanded them: So they let them go.

7 ¶ And they brought the colt to Jesus, and cast their garments on him, and he sat upon him.

8 And many spread their garments in the way: others cut down branches off the trees, and strewed them in the way.

9 And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna: blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord:

10 Blessed be the kingdom that cometh in the name of the Lord of our father David: Hosanna, O thou which art in the highest heavens.

11 So Jesus entered into Jerusalem, and into the temple: and when he had looked about on all things, and now it was evening, he went forth unto Bethany with the twelve.

12 And on the morrow when they were come out from Bethany, he was hungry.

13 And seeing a fig-tree afar off, that had leaves, he went to see if he might find any thing thereon: but when he came unto it, he found nothing but leaves: for the time of figs was not yet.

14 Then Jesus answered, and said to it, Never man eat fruit of thee hereafter while the world standeth: and his disciples heard it.

15 ¶ And they came to Jerusalem, and Jesus went into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money changers, and the seats of them that sold doves.

16 Neither would he suffer that any man should carry a vessel through the temple.

17 And he taught, saying unto them, Is it not written, Mine house shall be called the house of prayer unto all nations? but you have made it a den of thieves.

18 And the Scribes and high priests heard it, and sought how to destroy him: for they feared him, because the whole multitude was astonished at his doctrine.

19 But when even was come, Jesus went out of the city.

20 ¶ And in the morning as they journeyed together, they saw the fig-tree dried up from the roots.

21 Then

¶ Happy and prosperous.

¶ An example of that vengeance which hangeth over the heads of hypocrites.

¶ Christ sheweth indeed that he is the true King and High Priest, and therefore the revenger of the divine service of the temple.

¶ That is, any prophane instrument, of which those fellows had a number, that made the court of the temple a market-place.

¶ Shall openly be so accounted and taken.

¶ The force of faith is exceeding great, and charity is ever joined with it.

 22 So those seven had her, and left no issue: last of all the wife died also.
 23 In the resurrection then, when they shall rise again, whose wife shall she be of them? for seven had her to wife.
 24 Then Jesus answered, and said unto them, Are ye not therefore deceived, because ye know not the scriptures, neither the power of God?
 25 For when they shall rise again from the dead, neither men marry, nor wives are married, but are as the angels which are in heaven.
 26 And as touching the dead, that they shall rise again, have ye not read in the book of Moses, how in the bush God spake unto him, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?
 27 God is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living. Ye are therefore greatly deceived.
 28 ¶ Then came one of the Scribes that had heard them disputing together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, he asked him, Which is the first commandment of all?
 29 Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, Israel, The Lord our God is the only Lord.
 30 Thou shalt therefore love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment.
 31 And the second is like, that is, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is no other commandment greater than these.
 32 Then that Scribe said unto him, Well, Master, thou hast said the truth, that there is one God, and there is none but he.
 33 And to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul and with all the strength, and to love his neighbour as himself, is more than all the whole burnt-offerings and sacrifices.
 34 Then when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said unto him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God. And no man after that durst ask him any question.
 35 ¶ And Jesus answered, and said, teaching in the temple, How say the Scribes that Christ is the son of David?
 36 For David himself said by the Holy Ghost, The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool.
 37 Then David himself calleth him Lord: by what means is he then his son? and much people heard him gladly.
 38 Moreover he said unto them in his doctrine, Beware of the Scribes, which love to go in long robes, and love salutations in the markets, 39 And the chief seats in the synagogues, and the first rooms at feasts:

 40 Which devour widows houses, even under a colour of long prayers. These shall receive the greater damnation.
 41 ¶ And as Jesus sat over-against the treasury, he beheld how the people cast money into the treasury, and many rich men cast in much.
 42 And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two mites, which make a quadrin.
 43 Then he called unto him his disciples, and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast more in than all they which have cast into the treasury.
 44 For they all did cast in of their superfluity: but she of her poverty did cast in all that she had, even all her living.

1 Of the destruction of Jerusalem, 9 Persecution for the gospel. 10 The gospel must be preached to all nations. 26 Of Christ's coming to judgment. 33 We must watch and pray.

AND as he went out of the temple, one of his disciples said unto him, Master, see what manner stones, and what manner buildings are here.

2 Then Jesus answered, and said unto him, Seest thou these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon a stone, that shall not be thrown down.

3 And as he sat on the mount of Olives, over-against the temple, Peter, and James and John, and Andrew, asked him secretly, 4 Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?

5 And Jesus answered them, and began to say, Take heed, lest any man deceive you.

6 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ, and shall deceive many.

7 Furthermore, when ye shall hear of wars, and rumours of wars, be ye not troubled: for such things must needs be: but the end shall not be yet.

8 For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be earthquakes in divers quarters, and there shall be famine and troubles: these are the beginnings of sorrows.

9 But take ye heed to yourselves: for they shall deliver you up to the councils, and to the synagogues: ye shall be beaten, and brought before ¶ Sacrifices and outward worship never pleased God, unless such necessary duties we owe God and our neighbours went afore.

¶ Christ proveth his Godhead even out of David himself, of whom he came according to the flesh.

¶ Word for word, in the Holy Ghost, and there is great force in this kind of speech, whereby is meant, that it is not so much David, as the Holy Ghost that spake, who did in manner possess David.

¶ The manners of ministers are not rashly to be followed as an example.

¶ Which he taught them.

¶ The word is a stole, which is a kind of woman's garment, long even down to the heels, and is taken generally for any garment made for comeliness, but in this place it seemeth to signify that fringed garment mentioned in Deut. 22. 11.

¶ The doing of our duties, which God alloweth, is not esteemed according to the outward value, but the inward affections of the heart.

¶ Money of any kind of metal, the Romans used, who in the beginning did stamp or coin brass, and after used it for current money.

¶ The destruction of the temple, city and whole nation is foretold, and the troubles of the church: but yet there are annexed many comforts, and last of all, the end of the world is described.

A. D. before rulers and kings for my sake, for testimonial unto them.

10 And the gospel must first be published among all nations.

11 * But when they lead you, and deliver you up, be not careful beforehand, neither study what ye shall say: but what is given you at the same time, that speak: for it is not ye that speak, but the Holy Ghost.

12 Yea, and the brother shall deliver the brother to death, and the father the son, and the children shall rise against their parents, and shall cause them to die.

13 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but whosoever shall endure to the end, he shall be saved.

14 * Moreover, when ye shall see the abomination of the desolation (spoken of by Daniel the prophet) set where it ought not, (let him that readeth, consider it) then let them that be in Judea, flee into the mountains:

15 And let him that is upon the house, not come down into the house, neither enter therein, to fetch any thing out of his house.

16 And let him that is in the field, not turn back again to take his garment.

17 Then woe shall be to them that are with child, and to them that give suck in those days.

18 Pray therefore that your flight be not in the winter.

19 For in those days shall be such tribulation as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created unto this time, neither shall be.

20 And except that the Lord had shortened these days, no flesh should be saved: but for the elect's sake, which he hath chosen, he hath shortened those days.

21 Then * if any man say to you, Lo, here is Christ, or lo, he is there, believe it not.

22 For false Christs shall rise, and false prophets, and shall shew signs and wonders, to deceive, if it were possible, the very elect.

23 But take ye heed: behold, I have shewed you all things before.

24 ¶ Moreover, in those days, after that tribulation, * the sun shall wax dark, and the moon shall not give her light, 25 And the stars of heaven shall fall: and the powers which are in heaven shall shake.

26 And then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds with great power and glory.

27 * And he shall then send his angels, and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, and from the utmost part of the earth to the utmost part of heaven.

28 Now learn a parable of the fig-tree: When her bough is yet tender, and it bringeth forth leaves, ye know that summer is near.

30 Verily I say unto you, that this generation shall not pass, till all these things be done.

31 Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away.

32 * But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son himself, but the Father.

33 * Take heed: watch, and pray: for ye know not when the time is.

34 For the Son of man is as a man going into a strange country, who leaveth his house, and giveth authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commandeth the porter to watch.

35 Watch ye therefore, (for ye know not when the master of the house will come, at even, or at midnight, at the cock crowing, or in the dawning,)

3 * And when he was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at table, there came a woman having a box of ointment of spikenard; very costly, and she brake the box, and poured it on his head.

4 * Therefore some disdained among themselves, and said; To what end is this waste of ointment?

5 For it might have been sold for more than three hundred pence, and been given unto the poor: and they murmured against her.

* The hearing of you preaching shall be a most evident witness against them, so that they shall not be able to pretend ignorance.

* We are not forbidden to think beforehand, but penfive carefulness, whereby we discourage ourselves, which proceedeth from distrust, and want of confidence and sure hope of God's assistance, that carefulness we will beware of, Look Matt. 6. 27

* By any kind of artificial and cunning kind of tale what to speak.

* For me.

* When the heathen and prophane people shall not only enter into the temple, and defile both it and the city, but also clean destroy it.

* This is a kind of speech which the Hebrews use, and it hath a great force in it, for it giveth us understanding that in all that time misery shall so follow upon another, if the time itself were very misery itself. So the prophet Amos 5. 20. saith, that the day of the Lord shall be darkness.

* The latter day is not curiously to be searched for, which the Father alone knoweth: but let us rather take heed, that it come not upon us unawares.

* By the will of God against the counsel of men, it came to pass that Christ should be put to death upon the solemn day of the passover, that in all respects the truth might agree to the figure.

* Rash judgments are frustrate before God.

* Which is about six pounds English.

* Christ suffered himself to be anointed once twice for certain considerations: but his will is to be daily anointed in the poor.

- A. D. 33. 8 * She hath done that she could : she came aforehand to anoint my body to the burying.
- 9 Verily I say unto you, wheresoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done, shall be spoken of in remembrance of her.
- Mat. 26. 14. Luke 22. 4. 10 ¶ * Then Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went away unto the high priests, to betray him unto them.
- 11 And when they heard it, they were glad, and promised that they would give him money : therefore he sought how he might conveniently betray him.
- Mat. 26. 17. Luke 22. 8. 12 ¶ * Now the first day of unleavened bread, when they sacrificed the passover, his disciples said unto him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare, that thou mayest eat the passover ?
- 13 Then he sent forth two of his disciples, and said unto them, Go ye into the cities, and there shall a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water : follow him.
- 14 And whithersoever he goeth in, say ye to the good man of the house, the Master saith, Where is the lodging where I shall eat the passover with my disciples ?
- 15 And he will shew you an upper chamber, which is large, trimmed and prepared, there make it ready for us.
- 16 So his disciples went forth, and came to the city, and found as he had said unto them, and made ready the passover.
- 17 ¶ And at even he came with the twelve.
- Ps. 41. 10. Mat. 26. 20. 21. Luke 22. 14. John 13. 18. 21. 18 * 7 And as they sat at table, and did eat, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me, which eateth with me.
- 19 Then they began to be sorrowful, and to say to him one by one, Is it I ? and another, Is it I ?
- 20 And he answered, and said unto them, It is one of the twelve that dippeth with me in the platter.
- Acts 1. 16. 21 Truly the Son of man goeth his way, as it is written of him : * but woe be to that man, by whom the Son of man is betrayed : it had been good for that man, if he had never been born.
- Mat. 26. 26. 1 Cor. 11. 24. 22 * And they did eat, Jesus took the bread, and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave it to them, and said, Take, eat, this is my body.
- 23 Also he took the cup, and when he had given thanks, gave it to them : and they all drank of it.
- 24 And he said unto them, This is my blood of that New Testament, which is shed for many.
- 25 Verily I say unto you, I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, until that day that I drink it new in the kingdom of God.
- 26 And when they had sung a psalm, they went out to the mount of Olives.
- 27 ¶ * Then Jesus said unto them, All ye shall be offended by me this night : for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered.
- 28 But after that I am risen, I will go into Galilee before you.
- 29 And Peter said unto him, Although all men should be offended at thee, yet would not I.
- 30 Then Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, this day, even in this night, before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice.
- 31 But he said more earnestly, If I should die with thee, I will not deny thee : likewise also said they all.
- 32 ¶ * After, they came into a place, named Gethsemane : then he said to his disciples, Sit ye here, till I have prayed.
- 33 And he took with him Peter, and James, and John, and he began to be troubled, and in great heaviness.
- 34 And said unto them, My soul is very heavy, even unto the death : tarry here, and watch.
- 35 So he went forward a little, and fell down on the ground, and prayed, that if it were possible, that hour might pass from him.
- 36 And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee : take away this cup from me : nevertheless not that I will, but that thou wilt, be done.
- 37 Then he came, and found them sleeping, and said to Peter, Simon, sleepest thou ? couldest not thou watch one hour ?
- 38 ¶ Watch ye, and pray, that ye enter not into temptation : the spirit indeed is ready, but the flesh is weak.
- 39 And again he went away, and prayed, and spake the same words.
- 40 And he returned, and found them asleep again : for their eyes were heavy : neither knew they what they should answer him.
- 41 And he came the third time, and said unto them, Sleep henceforth, and take your rest : it is enough : the hour is come : Behold, the Son of man is delivered into the hands of sinners.
- 42 Rise up : let us go : lo, he that betrayeth me is at hand.
- 43 And

* This woman, by the secret instinct of the Spirit, anointing Christ, setteth before men's eyes, his death and burial, which were at hand.

* Covetousness, cloaked with a zeal of charity, is an occasion to betray and crucify Christ.

* Christ being made subject to the law for us, doth celebrate the passover according to the law : and therewithal by a miracle sheweth, that notwithstanding he in the flesh shall straightway suffer, yet that he is God.

* That is, upon which day, and in the evening of the same day, which was the beginning of the fifteenth. Look Mat. 26. 17.

* They used to sacrifice.

* This is spoken thus, by the figure Metonymia, which is usual in sacraments, and by the passover is meant the Paschal Lamb.

* The Greek word signifieth, that part of the house that is high from the ground, to what use soever it be put; but because they used to sup in that part of the house, they called it a supping-chamber.

* The figure of the law which is by and by to be fulfilled, is abrogated : and in place thereof are put figures of the new covenant answerable unto them, which shall continue to the world's end.

* That useth to eat meat with me.

* Christ foretelleth how he shall be forsaken of his, but yet that he will never forsake them.

* Here is set forth in an excellent person, a most sorrowful example of man's rashness and weakness.

* That doubling of words setteth out more plainly Peter's vehement affirmation.

* Christ suffering for us, in that flesh which he took upon him for our sakes, the most horrible terrors of the curse of God, receiveth the cup at his Father's hands, which he, being just, doth straightway drink off for the unjust.

* This doubling of the word was used in those days when their languages were so mixed together : for this word, Abba, is a Syrian word.

* An horrible example of sluggishness of men, even as the disciples whom Christ had chosen.

Mark XV. Ch. ver. 40

CHRIST taken down from the Cross.

A. D. 33. ^{33.} ^{Mat. 26.} ^{John 18. 3.} 43 ¹² And immediately while he yet spake, came Judas that was one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the high priests, and Scribes, and elders.

44 And he that betrayed him, had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss; he it is: take him, and lead him away safely.

45 And soon he was come, he went straightway to him, and said, Hail, Master, and kissed him.

46 Then they laid their hands on him, and took him.

47 And one of them that stood by, drew out a sword, and smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

48 And Jesus answered, and said to them, Ye be come out as against a thief with swords and with staves, to take me.

49 I was daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye took me not: but this is done that the scriptures should be fulfilled.

50 Then they all forsook him, and fled.

51 ¹³ And there followed him certain young man, clothed in linen upon his bare body, and the young men caught him.

52 But he left his linen cloth, and fled from them naked.

⁵³ ¹⁴ So they led Jesus away to the high priest; and he came together all the high priests, and the elders, and the Scribes.

54 And Peter followed him afar off, even unto the hall of the high priest, and sat with the servants, and warmed himself at the fire.

⁵⁵ ¹⁵ And the high priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesus, but found none.

56 For many bare false witness against him, but their witness agreed not together.

57 Then there arose certain, and bare false witness against him, saying,

⁵⁸ ¹⁶ We heard him say, I will destroy this temple made with hands, and within three days I will build another, made without hands.

59 But their witness yet agreed not together.

60 Then the high priest stood up amongst them, and asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? What is the matter that these bear witness against thee?

61 But he held his peace, and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked him, and said unto him, Art thou that Christ, the Son of the Blessed?

¹² As men did willingly spoil God their Creator of his praise, in forsaking and betraying him: so Christ willingly going about to make satisfaction for this ruin, is forsaken of his own, and betrayed by one of his familiars, a thief, that the punishment might be agreeable to the sin, and who are very traitors, forsakers, and sacrilegers, might be delivered out of the devil's snare.

¹ So diligently, that he escape not out of your hands.

^k That is, Peter.

²³ Under pretence of godliness, all things lawful such as do violence against Christ.

^m Which cast about him, when he hearing that stir in the night, suddenly ran forth: whereby may understand with how great licentiousness these villains violently set upon him.

ⁿ The highest council was assembled, because Christ was accused as a blasphemer, and false prophet: for for the other crime of treason, it forged against him by the priests, to enforce Pilate by that to condemn him.

¹⁴ Christ, who was so innocent that he could not be oppressed, no not by false witnesses, is at length, for confessing God to be his Father, condemned of impiety before the high priests: that we, who denied God, and were indeed wicked, 62 And Jesus said, I am he, and ye shall see the Son of man sit at the right hand of the power of God, and come in the clouds of heaven.

63 Then the high priest rent his clothes, and said, What have we any need of witnesses?

64 Ye have heard the blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned him be worthy of death.

65 ¹⁵ And some began to spit at him, and to cover his face, and to beat him with fists, and to say unto him, Prophecy. And the sergeants smote him with their rods.

66 ¹⁶ And Peter was beneath in the hall; there one of the maids of the high priest.

67 And when she saw Peter warming himself, she looked on him, and said, Thou wast also with Jesus of Nazareth.

68 But he denied it, saying, I know him not, neither wot I what thou sayest. Then he went out into the porch, and the cock crew.

69 ¹⁷ Then a maid saw him again, and began to say to them that stood by, This is one of them.

70 But he denied it again: and anon after, they that stood by, said again to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art of Galilee, and thy speech is like.

71 And he began to curse and swear, saying, I know not this man of whom ye speak.

72 ¹⁸ Then the second time the cock crew, and Peter remembered the word that Jesus had said to him, Before the cock crew twice, thou shalt deny me thrice, and weighing that with himself, he wept.

CHAP. XV.

1 Of the things that Christ suffered under Pilate. 11 Barabbas is preferred before Christ. 15 Pilate delivereth Christ to be crucified. 17 He is crowned with thorns. 19 They spit on him, and mock him. 21 Simon of Cyrene carrieth Christ's cross. 27 Christ is crucified between two thieves. 29 He is railed at. 37 He giveth up the ghost. 43 Joseph burieth him.

AND ¹⁹ anon in the dawning, the high priests held a council with the elders, and the Scribes, and the whole council, and bound Jesus, and led him away, and delivered him to Pilate.

2 Then Pilate asked him, Art thou the king of might be quit before God.

²⁰ Of God, who most worthy of praise?

²¹ Christ suffering all kind of reproach for our sakes, getteth everlasting glory to them that believe in him.

²² An heavy example of the frailness of man, together with a most comfortable example of the mercy of God, who giveth the spirit of repentance and faith to his elect.

²⁴ Christ being bound before the judgment-seat of an earthly judge, in open assembly, is condemned guilty unto the death of the cross, for his sins, (as appeareth by the judge's words) but for all ours, that we most guilty being delivered from the guiltiness of our sins, might be quitted before the judgment-seat of God, even in open assembly of the angels.

²⁵ It is not lawful for them to put any man to death, for all causes of life and death taken away from them, first by Herod the Great, and afterward by the Romans, about forty years before the destruction of the temple, and therefore they deliver Jesus to Pilate.

1. D. of the Jews? And he answered, and said unto him, Thou sayest it.

3 And the high priests accused him of many things.

4 Wherefore Pilate asked him again, saying, Answerest thou nothing? behold how many things they witness against thee.

5 But Jesus answered no more at all, so that Pilate marvelled.

6 Now at the feast Pilate did deliver a prisoner unto them, whomsoever they would desire.

7 Then there was one named Barabbas, which was bound with his fellows, that had made insurrection, who in the insurrection had committed murder.

8 And the people cried aloud, and began to desire that he would do as he had ever done unto them.

9 Then Pilate answered them, and said, Will ye that I let loose unto you the king of the Jews?

10 For he knew that the high priests had delivered him of envy.

11 But the high priests had moved the people to desire that he would rather deliver Barabbas unto them.

12 And Pilate answered, and said again unto them, What will ye then that I do with him, whom ye call the king of the Jews?

13 And they cried again, Crucify him.

14 Then Pilate said unto them, But what evil hath he done? and they cried the more fervently, Crucify him.

15 So Pilate, willing to content the people, loosed them Barabbas, and delivered Jesus, who he had scourged him, that he might be crucified.

16 Then the soldiers led him away into the hall, which is the common hall, and called together the whole band, 17 And clad him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head.

18 And began to salute him, saying, Hail, king of the Jews.

19 And they smote him on the head with a reed, and spat upon him, and bowed the knees, and did him reverence.

20 And when they had mocked him, they took the purple off him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucify him.

21 And they compelled one that passed by, called Simon of Cyrene (which came out of the country, and was father of Alexander and Rufus), to bear his cross.

22 * + And they brought him to a place named Golgotha, which is by interpretation, the place of dead men's skulls.

23 And they gave him to drink wine mingled with myrrh: but he received it not.

24 * 5 And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, casting lots for them what every man should have.

25 And it was the third hour when they crucified him.

26 And the title of his cause was written above, THAT KING OF THE JEWS.

27 They crucified also with him two thieves, the one on the right hand, and the other on his left.

28 Thus the scripture was fulfilled, which saith, * And he was counted among the wicked.

29 And they that went by, railed on him, wagging their heads, and saying, * Hey, thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it in three days, 30 Save thyself, and come down from the cross.

31 Likewise also even the high priests, mocking, said among themselves with the Scribes, He saved other men, himself he cannot save.

32 Let Christ the king of Israel now come down from the cross, that we may see and believe. They also that were crucified with him, reviled him.

33 ¶ Now when the sixth hour was come, darkness arose over all the land until the ninth hour.

34 And at the 7 ninth hour, Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, * Eloi, Eloi, lama-sabachthani? which is by interpretation, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

35 And some of them that stood by, when they heard it, said, Behold, he calleth Elias.

36 And one ran and filled a sponge full of vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, Let him alone: let us see if Elias will come, and take him down.

37 And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost.

38 And the vail of the temple was rent in twain, from the top to the bottom.

39 Now when the centurion, which stood over-against him, saw that he thus crying gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God.

40 ¶ There were also women, which beheld afar off, among whom was Mary Magdalene,

* Used to deliver.

* Christ going about to take away the sins of men, who went about to usurp the throne of God himself, is condemned as one that hunted after the kingdom; and mocked with a false shew of a kingdom; that we on the other side, who shall indeed be eternal kings, might receive the crown of glory at God's own hand.

* The rage of the wicked hath no measure, but in the mean season, even the weakness of Christ, being in pain under the heavy burden of the cross, doth manifestly shew that he is led to be sacrificed.

* Christ led out of the walls of the earthly Jerusalem, into a place of dead men's carcases, as a man most unclean, not washing himself, but touching our sins, which were laid upon him, to the end that we being made clean by his blood, might be brought into the heavenly sanctuary.

* Christ hangeth upon the naked cross, and as the wicked said that ever was, and vilely reproved: that we being clothed with his righteousness, and clothed with his merits, and sanctified by his only oblation, may be taken up into heaven.

* How angry God was against our sins, which he punished ed in our surety, his son, it appeareth by this horrible darkness.

* By this word Land he meaneth Palestine: so that the strangeness of the wonder is so much the more set forth in that, that at the feast of the passover, and in the full moon, when the sun shined over all the rest of the world, and at mid-day, that corner of the world, wherein so wicked an act was committed, was overcovered with most gross darkness.

* Christ striving mightily with Satan, with sin, and with death, all three armed with the horrible curse of God, grievously tormented in body hanging upon the cross, and in soul plunged in the depth of hell, yet he riddeth himself, crying with a mighty voice: and notwithstanding the wound which he received of death, in that he died, yet by smiling both things above and things beneath, by renting of the vail of the temple, and by the testimony wrung out of them which murdered him, he sheweth evidently unto the rest of his enemies which are as yet obstinate, and mock at him, that he shall be known out of hand to be conqueror and Lord of all.

* Christ, to the great shame of men which forsok the Lord, chose women for his witnesses, which beheld all this whole action.

A. D. 33. lene, and Mary the mother of James the leis, and of Joses, and Salome, 41 Which also, when he was in Galilee, * followed him, and ministered unto him, and many other women which came up with him unto Jerusalem.

42 * And now when the night was come (because it was the day of preparation that is before the sabbath)

43 * Joseph of Arimathea, an ^a honourable counsellor, which also looked for the kingdom of God, came, and went in ^b boldly unto Pilate, and asked the body of Jesus.

44 And Pilate marvelled, if he were already dead, and called unto him the centurion, and asked of him whether he had been any while dead.

45 And when he knew the truth of the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph:

46 Who bought a linen cloth, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen cloth, and laid him in a tomb that was hewn out of a rock, and rolled ^c stone unto the door of the sepulchre:

47 And Mary Magdalene, and Mary, Joses' mother, beheld where he should be laid.

Of Christ's resurrection. 9 He appeareth to Mary Magdalene, and others. 15 He sendeth his apostles to preach. 19 His ascension.

1. Luke 24. 1. John 20. 1. AND * when the sabbath day was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Salome, bought sweet ointments, that they might come and anoint him.

2 Therefore early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre, when the sun was now risen.

3 And they said one to another, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

4 And when they ^d looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away, (for it was a very great one)

5 * So they went into the ^e sepulchre, and saw a young man sitting at the right side clothed in a long white robe: and they were sore troubled.

6 But he said unto them, Be not so troubled: ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which hath been crucified: he is risen, he is not here: behold the place where they put him.

7 But go your way, and tell his disciples, and Peter, that he will go before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, * as he said unto you.

8 And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre: for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man: for they were afraid.

9 ¶ ¹ And when Jesus was risen again, early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, * out of whom he had cast seven devils.

10 And she went and told them that had been with him, which mourned and wept.

11 And when they heard that he was alive, and had appeared to her, they believed it not.

12 ¶ ² After that, he appeared unto two of them in another form, as they walked and went into the country.

13 And they went, and told it to the remnant, neither believed they them.

14 ¶ ³ Finally, he appeared unto the eleven as they sat together, and reproached them for their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him, being risen up again.

15 ⁴ And he said unto them, * Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to ^e every creature.

16 He that shall believe and be baptized, shall be saved: * but he that will not believe, shall be damned.

17 And these tokens shall follow them that believe, * In my name they shall cast out devils, and * shall speak with new ^f tongues.

18 * And they shall take away serpents, and if they drink any deadly drink, it shall not hurt them: * they shall lay their hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

19 * ⁵ So after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received into heaven, and sat at the right hand of God.

20 And they went forth, and preached every where. And the Lord ^g wrought with them, and confirmed ^h the word with signs that followed. Amen.

^e Christ himself appeareth to Mary Magdalene, to upbraid the disciples incredulity.

^f Christ appeareth to two other disciples, and at length to the eleven.

^g The evangelist considered not the order of the time, but the course of his history, which he divided into three parts: the first sheweth how he appeared to the women, the second to his disciples, the third to his apostles, and therefore he saith finally.

^h The apostles are appointed, and their office is limited unto them, which is to preach that which they heard of him, and to minister the sacraments, which Christ hath instituted, having besides power to do miracles.

ⁱ Not to the Jews only, nor in Judea only, but to all men, and every where: and so must all the apostles do.

^j Strange tongues, such as they knew not before.

^k Christ having accomplished his office on earth, ascendeth into heaven, from whence (the doctrine of his apostles being confirmed with signs) he will govern his church, unto the world's end.

^l To wit, the doctrine: therefore doctrine must go before, and signs must follow after.

FOrasmuch as ^a many have ^a taken in hand to set forth the story of those things, whereof we are fully persuaded,

2 ^b As they have delivered them unto us, which from the beginning saw them their selves, and were ministers of the word,

3 It seemed good also to me (^c most noble Theophilus) as soon as I had searched out perfectly all things ^d from the beginning, to write unto thee thereof from point to point,

4 That thou mightest ^e acknowledge the certainty of those things, whereof thou hast been instructed.

5 IN ^f the ^g time of ^h Herod king of Judea, there was a certain priest named Zacharias, of the ⁱ ^j course of Abia: and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth.

6 Both were ^k just before God, and ^l walked in all the ^m commandments and ordinances of the Lord, ⁿ without reproof.

7 And they had no child, because that Elizabeth was barren: and both were well stricken in age,

8 And it came to pass, as he executed the priest's office before God, as his course came in order,

9 ^o According to the custom of the priest's office, his lot was to burn incense, when he went into the ^p temple of the Lord.

10 And the whole multitude of the people were without in prayer, ^q while the incense was burning.

11 Then appeared unto him an angel of the Lord standing at the right side of the altar of incense.

12 And when Zacharias saw ^r him, he was troubled; and fear fell upon him.

13 But the angel said unto him, Fear not,
 Zacharias: for thy prayer is heard, and thy wife shall bear thee ^s son, and thou shalt call his name John.

14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness, and many shall rejoice at his birth.

15 For he shall be great in the ^t sight of the Lord, and shall neither drink wine, nor ^u strong drink: and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb.

16 ^v And many of the children of Israel shall he ^w turn to the Lord their God.

17 ^x For he shall go before ^y him, ^z in the spirit and power of Elias, ^{aa} turn the ^{ab} hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the ^{ac} wisdom of the just men, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

18 Then Zacharias said unto the angel, Whereby shall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife is of ^{ad} great age.

19 And the angel answered, and said unto him, I am Gabriel ^{ae} that stand in the presence of God, and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee these good tidings.

20 And behold, thou shalt be dumb, and not be able to speak, until the day that these things be done, because thou believedst not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season.

21 Now the people waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he tarried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out, he could not speak unto them: then they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple: for he made signs unto them, and remained dumb.

23 And it came to pass, when the days of his office were fulfilled, that he departed to his own house.

24 And after those days, his wife Elizabeth conceived, and hid herself five months, saying, 25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me, in the days wherein he looked on me, to take from me my rebuke among men.

26 ¶ And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, 27 * To a virgin affianced to a man, whose name was Joseph, of the house of David, and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And the angel went in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art freely beloved: the Lord is with thee: a blessed art thou among women.

29 And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and thought what manner of salutation that should be.

30 Then the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God.

31 ¶ For lo, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bear a son, * and shalt call his name JESUS.

32 He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the most High, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David.

33 * And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom shall be no end.

34 Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not man?

35 And the angel answered, and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the most High shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee, shall be called the Son of God.

36 And behold, thy cousin Elizabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her old age: and this is her sixth month, which was called barren.

37 For with God shall nothing be impossible.

38 Then Mary said, Behold the servant of the Lord: be it unto me according to thy word. So the angel departed from her.

39 ¶ And Mary arose, in those days, and went into the hill country with haste to a city of Judah:

40 And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elizabeth.

41 And it came to pass, as Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe sprang in her belly, and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost.

42 And she cried with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, because the fruit of thy womb is blessed.

43 And whence cometh this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44 For lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe sprang in my belly for joy.

45 And blessed is she that believed: for those things shall be performed, which were told her from the Lord.

46 ¶ Then Mary said, My soul magnifieth the Lord,

47 And my spirit rejoiceth in God my Saviour.

48 For he hath looked on the poor degree of his servant: for behold, from henceforth shall all ages call me blessed,

49 Because he that is mighty hath done for me great things, and holy is his name.

50 And his mercy is from generation to generation on them that fear him.

51 * He hath shewed strength with his arm: * he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.

¶ The angel serving the Lord which should be born, is sent to the virgin Mary, in whom the Son of the most High, promised to David, is conceived by the virtue of the Holy Ghost.

¶ As much is he said of Mary, otherwise Christ had not been of the stock, the son of David.

¶ It might be rendered word for word, full of favour and grace, and he sheweth straight after, laying out plainly unto us, what that favour is, in that he saith, the Lord is with thee.

¶ Of God.

¶ Moved at the strangeness of the matter.

¶ So speak the Hebrews, saying that they have found favour, which is in favour.

¶ He shall be declared so to be, for he was the Son of God from everlasting, but was made manifest in the flesh in his time.

¶ The greatness of the matter causeth the virgin to ask this question, not that she distrusteth any whit at all, for she asketh only of the manner of the conceiving, so that it is plain she believed all the rest.

¶ So speak the Hebrews, signifying by this modest kind of speech, the company of man and wife together, and this is the meaning of it: how shall this be, for seeing I shall be Christ his mother, I am very sure, I shall not know any man; for the godly virgin had learned by the prophets, that the Messiah should be born of a virgin.

¶ That is, the Holy Ghost shall cause thee to conceive by his mighty power.

¶ That pure thing and void of all spot of uncleanness: for he that was to take away sin, must needs be void of sin.

¶ Declared, and shewed to the world, to be the Son of God.

¶ Though Elizabeth was of the tribe of Levi, yet she might be Mary's cousin: for whereas it was forbidden by the law, for maidens to be married to men of other tribes, this could not let, but that the Levites might take them wives out of any tribe: for the Levites had their portion allotted them, when the land was divided among the people.

¶ This is now the sixth month from the time when she conceived.

¶ Elizabeth being great with child of John, and Mary with Christ, by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, do rejoice each for other.

¶ Which is on the south side of Jerusalem.

¶ That is to say, Hebron, which was in times past called Kirjath-arba, which was one of the towns that was given to the Levites in the tribe of Judah, and is said to be in the mountains of Judah, Josh. 14. 15. and 21. 11.

¶ This was no ordinary usual kind of moving.

¶ Christ is blessed in respect of his humanity.

¶ Christ the redeemer of the afflicted, and revenger of the proud, of long time promised to the fathers, is now length exhibited indeed.

¶ Hath freely and graciously loved.

¶ Word for word, My baseness, that is, my base estate: so that the virgin vaunteth not her deserts, but the grace of God.

¶ To them that live godly and religiously: so speak the Hebrews.

¶ This is heaping up of words more than needs, which the Hebrews use very much, and the aim is taken for strength.

¶ As the wind doth the chaff.

¶ He hath scattered them, and the imagination of their hearts; or by and through the imagination of their own hearts; so that their wicked counsel turned to their own destruction.

9 And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone about them, and they were fore afraid.

10 Then the angel said unto them, Be not afraid: for behold I bring you glad tidings of great joy that shall be to all people.

11 That is, that unto you born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

12 And this shall be a sign unto you, Ye shall find the babe swaddled, and laid in a cratch.

13 And straightway there was with the angel a multitude of heavenly soldiers, praising God, and saying, 14 Glory be to God in the high heavens, and peace in earth, and towards men good will.

15 And it came to pass, when the angels were gone away from them into heaven, that the shepherds said one to another, Let us go then unto Bethlehem, and see this thing that is come to pass, which the Lord hath shewed unto us.

16 So they came with haste, and found both Mary and Joseph, and the babe laid in the cratch.

17 And when they had seen it, they published abroad the thing that was told them of that child.

18 And all that heard it, wondered at the things that were told them of the shepherds.

19 But Mary kept all those sayings, and pondered them in her heart.

20 And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God, for all that they had heard and seen, as it was spoken unto them.

21 ¶ And when the eight days were accomplished, that they would circumcise the child, his name was called Jesus, which was named of the angel, before he was conceived in the womb.

22 ¶ And when the days of her purification after the law of Moses were accomplished, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord,

23 (As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male child that first openeth the womb, shall be called holy to the Lord.)

26 And it was declared to him from God by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death, before he had seen that anointed of the Lord.

27 And he came by the motion of the Spirit in to the temple: and when the parents brought in the babe Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law, 28 Then he took him in his arms, and praised God, and said.

29 Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word:

30 For mine eyes have seen thy salvation,

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people,

32 A light to be revealed unto the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.

33 And Joseph and his mother marvelled at those things, which were spoken touching him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is appointed for the fall and rising again of many in Israel, and for a sign which shall be spoken against,

35 (Yea, and a sword shall pierce through thy soul) that the thoughts of many hearts may be opened.

36 And there was a prophetess, one Anna the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aser, which was of great age, after she had lived with an husband seven years from her virginity:

37 And she was widow about fourscore and four years, and went not out of the temple, but served God with fastings and prayers, night and day.

38 She then coming at the same instant upon them, confessed likewise the Lord, and spake of him to all that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

39 And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee to their own city Nazareth.

4 John exhorteth to repentance. 15 His testimony of Christ. 20 Herod putteth him in prison. 21 Christ is baptized. 23 His pedigree.

NOW in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip tetrarch of Iturea, and of the country of Trachonitis, and Lysanias the tetrarch of Abylene, (When Anna and Caiaphas were the high priests) the word of God came unto John the son of Zacharias in the wilderness.

3 ¶ And he came into all the coasts about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins,

4 As it is written in the book of the sayings of Isaiah the prophet, which saith, The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness is, Prepare ye the way of the Lord: make his paths straight.

5 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low, and crooked things shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth.

6 And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.

7 Then said he to the people that were come out to be baptized of him, O generation of vipers, who hath forewarned you to flee from the wrath to come?

Bring forth therefore fruits worthy amendment of life, and begin not to say with yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

9 Now also is the ax laid unto the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit, shall be hewn down, and cast into the fire.

10 ¶ Then the people asked him, saying, What shall we do then?

11 And he answered, and said unto them, He that hath two coats, let him part with him that hath none: and he that hath meat, let him do likewise.

12 Then came there Publicans also to be baptized, and said unto him, Master, what shall we do?

13 And he said unto them, Require no more than that which is appointed unto you.

14 The soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? And he said unto them, Do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely, and be content with your wages.

15 ¶ As the people waited, and all men mused in their hearts of John, if he were not that Christ, 16 John answered, and said to them all, Indeed I baptize you with water, but one stronger than I cometh, whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose: he will baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire.

17 ¶ Whose fan is in his hand, and he will make clean his floor, and will gather the wheat into his garner, but the chaff will he burn up with fire that never shall be quenched.

18 Thus then exhorting with many other things, he preached unto the people.

19 ¶ But when Herod the tetrarch was rebuked of him, for Herodias his brother Philip's wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done, 20 He added yet this above all, that he shut up John in prison.

21 ¶ Now it came to pass as all the people were baptized, and that Jesus was baptized, and did pray, that the heaven was opened:

22 And

As Christ grew up in age, so the virtue of his Godhead shewed itself more and more.

The Scribes and Pharisees are stirred up to hear the wisdom of Christ in his time, by an extraordinary deed.

All duties which we owe men, they are to be neglected; so they according to our vocation, not to be preferred before the glory of God.

Christ very man is made like unto us in all things, except sin.

John cometh at the time foretold of the prophets, and layeth the foundation of the gospel which is exhibited us, setting forth the true observing of the law, and free mercy in Christ, which cometh after him, using also baptism, the effectual sign both of regeneration, and also of forgiveness of sin.

Josephus calleth him Ananus.

Require no more than that sum that is appointed for the tribute-money.

Which was paid them partly in money, and partly in victuals.

If we will rightly and fruitfully receive the sacraments, we must neither rest in the signs, neither in him that ministereth the signs, but lift up our eyes to Christ, who is the author of the sacraments, and the giver of that which is represented by the sacraments.

The gospel is the fan of the world.

John's preaching is confirmed with his death.

Our baptism is sanctified in the head of the church, and Christ also is pronounced, by the voice of the Father, to be everlasting King, Priest, and Prophet.

C H A P. IV.

2 Of Christ's temptation, and fasting. 16 He teacheth in Nazareth to the great admiration of all. 24 A prophet that teacheth in his own country is contemned. 33 One possessed of the devil is cured. 38 Peter's mother-in-law healed: 40 and divers sick persons are restored to health. 41 The devils acknowledge Christ.

¶ The stock of Christ, according to the flesh, is brought by order even to Adam, and so to God, that it might appear, that he only it was whom God promised to Abraham and David, and appointed from everlasting to his church, which is gathered together of all sorts of men.

¶ Christ being carried away (as it were out of the world into the desert) after the fast of forty days, and the overcoming of Satan thrice, coming as it were suddenly from heaven beginneth his office.

¶ Christ being stirred up of Satan first to distrust in God, secondly to the desire of riches and honour, and lastly to vain confidence of himself, overcometh him thrice by the word of God.

¶ By this word Power, are the kingdoms themselves meant.

A. D. 27. AND Jesus, full of the Holy Ghost, returned from Jordan, and was led by that spirit into the wilderness.

2 * And was there forty days tempted of the devil; and in those days he did eat nothing: but when they were ended, he afterwards was hungry. * Mat. 4. 1. Mark 1. 12.

3 ¶ Then the devil said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread.

4 But Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, * That man shall not live by bread only, but by every word of God. * Deut. 8. 3. Matt. 4. 4.

5 Then the devil took him up into an high mountain, and shewed him all the kingdoms of the world, in the twinkling of an eye.

6 And the devil said unto him, All this power will I give thee, and the glory of those kingdoms: for that is delivered unto me: and to whomsoever I will, I give it.

7 If thou therefore wilt worship me, they shall be all thine.

¶ But Jesus answered him, and said, Hence from me, Satan: for it is written, * Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him alone thou shalt serve. * Deut. 6. 13. and 10. 20.

9 Then he brought him to Jerusalem, and set him on a pinnacle of the temple, and said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down from hence, 10 For it is written, * That he will give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee: * Ps. 91. 12.

11 And with their hands they shall lift thee up, lest at any time thou shouldest dash thy foot against a stone.

12 And Jesus answered, and said unto him, It is said, * Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God. * Deut. 6. 16.

13 And when the devil had ended all the temptation, he departed from him for a little season.

14 ¶ And Jesus returned by the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went a fame of him throughout all the region round about.

15 For he taught in their synagogues, and was honoured of all men.

16 * ¶ And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up, and (as his custom was) went into the synagogue on the sabbath-day, and stood up to read. * Mat. 13. 54. Mark 9. 1. John 4. 43.

17 And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias: and when he had opened the book, he found the place, where it was written,

18 * The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me, that I should preach the gospel to the poor: he hath sent me, that I should heal the broken-hearted, that I should preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering which have the power; and so it is spoken by the figure Metonymia.

¶ That is sure so, for he is prince of the world, yet not absolutely, and as the sovereign over it, but by sufferance and way of intreaty, and therefore he saith not true, that he will give it to whom he will.

¶ Out of high place, which had a goodly champaign country underneath it, he shewed him the situation of all countries.

¶ Who Christ is, and wherefore he came, he sheweth out of the prophet Esaias.

¶ Their books in those days were rolled up as scrolls upon a roller: and so Christ unrolled or untold it, which is here called opened.

A. D. 31. vering of sight to the blind, that I should set at liberty them that are bruised :

19 And that I should preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

20 And he closed the book, and gave it again to the minister, and sat down : and the eyes of all that were in the synagogue were fastened on him.

21 Then he began to say unto them, This day is the scripture fulfilled in your ears.

22 * And all bare him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth, and said, Is not this Joseph's son ?

23 Then he said unto them, Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician, heal thyself : whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do it here likewise in thine own country.

24 And he said, Verily I say unto you, No prophet is accepted in his own country.

25 But I tell you of a truth, many widows were in Israel in the days of Elias, when heaven was shut three years and six months, when great famine was throughout all the land :

26 But unto none of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a certain widow.

27 Also many lepers were in Israel, in the time of Elias the prophet : yet none of them was made clean, saving Naaman the Syrian.

28 Then all that were in the synagogue, when they heard it, were filled with wrath, 29 And rose up, and thrust him out of the city, and led him unto the edge of the hill, whereon their city was built, to cast him down headlong.

30 But he passed through the midst of them, and went his way.

31 ¶ And came down into Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and there taught them on the sabbath-days.

32 And they were astonished at his doctrine : for his word was with authority.

33 And in the synagogue there was a man which had a spirit of an unclean devil, which cried with a loud voice, 34 Saying, Oh, what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth ? art thou come to destroy us ? I know who thou art, even the holy One of God.

35 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. Then the devil, throwing him in the midst of them, came out of him, and hurt him nothing at all.

36 So fear came on them all, and they spake among themselves, saying, What thing is this ?

for with authority and power he commandeth the foul spirits, and they come out.

37 And the fame of him spread abroad throughout all the places of the country round about.

38 ¶ And he rose up, and came out of the synagogue, and entered into Simon's house. And Simon's wife's mother was taken with great fever, and they required him for her.

39 Then he stood over her, and rebuked the fever, and it left her, and immediately she arose, and ministered unto them.

40 Now at the sun-setting, all they that had sick folks of divers diseases, brought them unto him, and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.

41 ¶ And devils also came out of many, crying, and saying, Thou art that Christ, that Son of God : but he rebuked them, and suffered them not to say, that they knew him to be that Christ.

42 And when it was day he departed, and went forth into a desert place, and the people sought him, and came to him, and kept him that he should not depart from them.

43 But he said unto them, Surely I must also preach the kingdom of God to other cities : for therefore am I sent.

44 And he preached in the synagogues of Galilee.

CHAP. V.

Christ teacheth out of the ship. 6 Of the draught of fish. 12 The leper. 16 Christ prayeth in the desert. 18 One sick of the palsy. 27 Levi the publican. 34 The fastings and afflictions of the apostles after Christ's ascension. 36, 37, 38. Faint-hearted and weak disciples are likened to old bottles and worn garments.

THEN it came to pass, as the people pressed upon him to hear the word of God, that he stood by the lake of Gennefaret,

2 And saw two ships stand by the lake's side, but the fishermen were gone out of them, and were washing their nets.

3 And he entered into one of the ships, which was Simon's, and required him that he would thrust off a little from the land : and he sat down, and taught the people out of the ship.

4 ¶ Now when he had left speaking, he said unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets to make a draught.

5 Then Simon answered, and said unto him, Master, we have travailed sore all night, and have taken nothing : nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net.

6 And when they had so done, they inclosed

* Familiarity causeth Christ to be contemned, and therefore he oftentimes goeth to strangers.

¶ Approved those things which he spake with consent and voice ; for this word Witness signifieth in this place, and many other, to allow and approve a thing with open confession.

¶ Not only the doctors, but also the common people were present at this conference of the scriptures : and besides that, their mother tongue was used, for else how could the people have wondered ? Paul appointed the same order in the church at Corinth, as 1 Cor. 14.

¶ Words full of the mighty power of God, which appeared in all his doings, as well, and allured men marvelously unto him, Psalm 45. 2. grace is poured into thy lips.

¶ Land of Israel, look Mark 15. 38.

¶ The more sharply the world is rebuked, the more it rageth openly : but the life of the godly is not simply subject to the pleasure of the wicked.

¶ Christ astonisheth not only men, be they never so blockish, but even the devils also, whether they will or not.

¶ In that, that Christ healeth the diseases of the body with his word only, he proveth that he is God Almighty, sent for man's salvation.

¶ Satan, who is a continual enemy to the truth, ought not to be heard, no not then, when he speaketh the truth.

¶ No colour of zeal ought to hinder in the race of our vocation.

¶ Christ advertiseth the four disciples, which he had taken unto him, of the office of the apostleship, which should hereafter be committed unto them.

¶ Did, as it were, lie upon him, so desirous they were both to see him and hear him, and therefore he taught them out of a ship.

¶ The word signifieth him that hath rule over any thing.

A. D. 31. fed a great multitude of fishes, so that their net brake.

7 And they beckoned to their partners, which were in the other ship, that they should come and help them: who came then, and filled both the ships, that they did sink.

8 Now when Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus's knees, saying, Lord, go from me: for I am a sinful man.

9 For he was utterly astonished, and all that were with him, for the draught of fishes which they took.

10 And so was also James and John, the sons of Zebedee, which were companions with Simon. Then Jesus said unto Simon, Fear not: from henceforth thou shalt catch men.

11 And when they had brought the ships to land, they forsook all, and followed him.

* Matt 8. 2. Mark 1. 40. 12 ¶ * 2 Now it came to pass, as he was in a certain city, behold, there was a man full of leprosy, and when he saw Jesus, he fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean.

13 So he stretched forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will, be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him.

14 And he commanded him that he should tell it to no man: but go, saith he, and shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing as * Moses hath commanded, for a witness unto them.

Let. 14. 4. 15 But so much more went there a fame abroad of him, and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed of him of their infirmities.

16 But he kept himself apart in the wilderness, and prayed.

17 ¶ 4 And it came to pass on a certain day, as he was teaching, that the Pharisees and doctors of the law far by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judea, and Jerusalem, and the power of the Lord ^c was in him to heal them.

* Matt 9. 2. Mark 2. 3. 18 * Then behold, men brought a man lying in a bed, which was taken with a palsy, and they sought means to bring him in, and to lay him before him.

19 And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in, because of the press, they went up on the house, and let him down through the tiling, bed and all, in the midst before Jesus.

20 And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee.

21 Then the Scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this that speaketh blasphemies? who can forgive sins, but God only?

22 But when Jesus perceived their reasoning, he answered, and said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts?

23 Whether is it easier to say, Thy sins are forgiven thee, or to say, Rise and walk?

* Christ by healing the leper with his only touch, and sending him to the priest, witnesseth that it is he, through whom, and by whom, apprehended by faith, all we which are unclean, according to the law, by the witness of God himself, are pronounced to be pure and clean.

† Christ had rather to be famous by his doctrine than by miracles and therefore he departeth from them that seek him as a physician of the body, and not as the author of salvation.

‡ Christ in healing him that was sick of the palsy, sheweth the cause of all diseases, and the remedy.

24 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath authority to forgive sins in earth, (he said unto the sick of the palsy) I say to thee, Arise: take up thy bed, and go to thine house.

25 And immediately he rose up before them, and took up his bed whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, praising God.

26 And they were all amazed, and praised God, and were filled with fear, saying, Doubtless we have seen strange things to day.

27 ¶ * 5 And after that, he went forth, and saw a Publican named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom, and said unto him, Follow me.

28 And he left all, rose up, and followed him.

29 Then Levi made him a great feast in his own house, where there was a great company of Publicans, and of others that sat at table with them.

30 But they that were Scribes and Pharisees among them, murmured against his disciples, saying, Why eat ye and drink ye with Publicans and sinners?

31 Then Jesus answered, and said unto them, They that are whole, need not the physician, but they that are sick.

32 * I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

33 ¶ * 6 Then they said unto him, Why do the disciples of John fast often, and pray, and the disciples of the Pharisees also, but thine eat and drink?

34 7 And he said unto them, Can ye make the children of the wedding-chamber to fast, as long as the bridegroom is with them.

35 But the days will come, even when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them: then shall they fast in those days.

36 Again he spake also unto them a parable, No man putteth a piece of a new garment into an old vesture: for then the new renteth it, and the piece taken out of the new, agreeth not with the old.

37 Also no man poureth new wine into old vessels: for then the new wine will break the vessels, and it will run out, and the vessels will perish:

38 But new wine must be poured into new vessels: so both are preserved

39 Also no man that drinketh old wine, straightway desireth new: for he saith, The old is more profitable.

C H A P. VI.

¶ The disciples pull the ears of corn on the sabbath. 6 Of him that had a withered hand. 13 The election of the apostles. 20 The blessings and curses. 27 We must love our enemies. 46 With what fruit the word of God is to be heard.

AND

^c The mighty power of Christ's Godhead shewed itself in him at that time.

⁵ The church is a company of sinners, through the grace of Christ repentant, which banquet with him, to the great offence of the proud and envious worldlings.

¶ It is the point of hypocrites and ignorant men to put holiness in fasting, and in things indifferent.

¶ Laws generally made without any consideration of circumstance, for fasting, and other things of like sort, are not only tyrannous, but very hurtful in the church.

A. D. 31. AND it came to pass on a second solemn sabbath, that he went through the corn fields, and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and did eat, and rub them in their hands.

2 And certain of the Pharisees said unto them, Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath-days?

3 Then Jesus answered them, and said, Have ye not read this, that David did when he himself was an hungred, and they which were with him,

4 How he went into the house of God, and took and ate the shewbread, and gave also to them which were with him, which was not lawful to eat, but for the priests only?

5 And he said unto them, The Son of man is lord also of the sabbath day.

6 It came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue, and taught, and there was a man, whose right hand was dried up.

7 And the Scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day, that they might find an accusation against him.

8 But he knew their thoughts, and said unto the man which had the withered hand, Arise, and stand up in the midst. And he arose, and stood up.

9 Then said Jesus unto them, I will ask you a question. Whether is it lawful on the sabbath days to do good, or to do evil? to save life, or to destroy?

10 And he beheld them all in compass, and said unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he did so, and his hand was restored again as whole as the other.

11 Then they were filled full of madness, and communed one with another, what they might do to Jesus.

12 And it came to pass in those days, that he went into a mountain to pray, and spent the night in prayer to God.

13 And when it was day, he called his disciples, and of them he chose twelve, which also he called apostles.

14 (Simon whom he named also Peter, and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew:

15 Matthew and Thomas: James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zelotes:

16 Judas, James's brother, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.)

17 Then he came down with them, and stood in a plain place, with the company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people out of all Judea and Jerusalem, and from the sea coast of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases:

18 And they that were vexed with foul spirits, and they were healed.

19 And the whole multitude sought to touch him: for there went virtue out of him, and healed them all.

20 And he lifted up his eyes upon his disciples, and said, Blessed be ye poor: for yours is the kingdom of God.

21 Blessed are ye that hunger now: for ye shall be satisfied: blessed are ye that weep now: for ye shall laugh.

22 Blessed are ye, when men hate you, and when they separate you, and revile you, and put out your name evil for the Son of man's sake.

23 Rejoice ye in that day, and be glad: for behold, your reward is great in heaven: for after this manner their fathers did to the prophets.

24 But woe be to you that are rich: for ye have received your consolation.

25 Woe be to you that are full: for ye shall hunger. Woe be to you that now laugh: for ye shall wail and weep.

26 Woe be to you, when all men speak well of you: for so did their fathers to the false prophets.

27 But I say unto you which hear, Love your enemies: do well to them which hate you.

28 Bless them that curse you, and pray for them which hurt you.

29 And unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek, offer also the other: and him that taketh away thy cloak, forbid not to take thy coat also.

30 Give to every man that asketh of thee: and of him that taketh away the things that be thine, ask them not again.

31 And as ye would that men should do to you, so do ye to them likewise.

32 For if ye love them which love you, what thank shall ye have? for even sinners love those that love them.

33 And if ye do good for them which do good for you, what thank shall ye have? for even the sinners do the same.

34 And if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank shall ye have? for even the sinners lend to sinners, to receive the like.

35 Where-

Christ sheweth against the superstitious, who stick in every trifle, that the law of the very sabbath was not given to be kept without exception: much less that the salvation of man should consist in the outward keeping of it.

Epiphanius noteth well in his treatise, where he confuteth Ebion, that the time when the disciples plucked the ears of corn, was in the feast of unleavened bread: Now whereas in those feasts, which were kept many days together, as the feast of tabernacles, and as the passover, their first day, and the last were of like solemnity, Lev. 23. Luke fitly calleth the last day the second sabbath, though Theoph. understandeth it of any other of them, that followed the first.

Charity is the rule of all ceremonies.

Whoso helpeth not his neighbour, when he can, he killeth him.

In that that Christ useth earnest and long prayer in choosing twelve of his own company, the office of the apostleship, he sheweth how religiously we ought to behave ourselves in the choice of ecclesiastical persons.

From all the sea coast, which is called, Syrophenicia.

Christ teacheth against all philosophers, and especially the epicures, that the chiefest felicity of man is laid up in no place here in earth, but in heaven: and that persecution for righteousness sake, is the right way unto it.

Cast you out of their synagogues, John expoundeth it, chap. 16. 2. which is the sharpest punishment the church hath, if so be the elders judge rightfully, and by the word of God.

Leap (as cattle do which provender pricked) for exceeding joy.

That is, you reap now of your riches, all the commodity and blessings you ever like have, and therefore you have not to look for any other reward, Matt. 6. 2.

Christian charity, which differeth much from the worldly, doth only not revenge injuries, but comprehendeth even our most grievous enemies, and that for our Father's sake which is in heaven: so far is it from seeking its own profit in doing well.

What is there in this your work, that is to be accounted of? for if you look to have commodity by loving, seek those commodities which commodities indeed: love your enemies, and so shall you shew to the world that you look for those commodities which come from God.

C H A P. VII.

A. D. 35 Wherefore love ye your enemies, and do good, and lend, ^h looking for nothing again, and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be children of ^h the most High: for he is kind to the unkind, and to the evil.

36 Be ye therefore merciful, ^h your Father also is merciful.

37 ¶ ^h Judge not, and ye shall not be judged: condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: ^h forgive, and ye shall be forgiven.

38 Give, and it shall be given unto you: ^h a good measure, ^k pressed down, shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom: for with what measure ye mete, with the same shall men mete to you again.

41 ¶ ^h And why seeest thou a mote in thy brother's eye, and considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?

42 Either how canst thou say to thy brother, Brother, let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye, when thou seeest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Hypocrite, cast out the beam out of thine own eye first, and then shalt thou see perfectly to pull out the mote that is in thy brother's eye.

45 A good man, out of the good treasure of his heart, bringeth forth good: and an evil man, out of the evil treasure of his heart, bringeth forth evil: for of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh.

46 ¶ ^h But why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things that I speak?

47 ^h Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my words, and doth the same, I will shew you to whom he is like:

48 He is like ^h man who built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock: and when the waters arose, the flood beat upon that house, and could not shake it: for it was grounded upon ^h rock.

49 But he that heareth and doth not, is like a man that built an house upon the earth without foundation, against which the flood did beat, and it fell by and by: and the fall of that house was great.

W H E N ^h he ^h had ended all his sayings in ^h the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum. ^h Matt. 8. 5.

2 And a certain centurion's servant was sick, and ready to die, which was dear unto him.

¶ And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come, and heal his servant.

4 So they came ^h Jesus, and besought him instantly, saying, that he ^h worthy that he should do this for him:

5 For he loveth, said they, our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue.

6 Then Jesus went with them: but when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof:

7 Wherefore I thought not myself worthy to come unto thee: but say the word, and my servant shall be whole:

¶ For I likewise am ^h man set under authority and have under me soldiers, and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth: and to another, Come, and he cometh: and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

9 When Jesus heard these things, he marvelled at him, and turned him, and said to the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no not in Israel.

10 And when they that were sent, turned back to the house, they found the servant that was sick, whole.

11 ^h And it came to pass the day after, that he went into ^h city called ^h Nain, and many of his disciples went with him, and ^h great multitude.

12 Now when he came ^h to the gate of the city, behold, there was ^h dead ^h carried out, who was the only begotten son of his mother, which was a widow, and much people of the city was with her.

13 And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not.

14 And he went and touched the coffin (and they that bare him stood still) and he said, Young man, I say unto thee, Arise.

15 And he that was dead, sat up, and began to speak, and he delivered him to his mother.

A. D. 31. they glorified God, saying, A great Prophet is risen among us, and God hath visited his people.

17 And this rumour of him went forth throughout all Judea, and throughout all the region round about.

18 And the disciples of John shewed him of all these things.

19 So John called unto him two certain men of his disciples, and sent them to Jesus, saying, Art thou he that should come, or shall we wait for another?

20 And when the men were come unto him, they said, John Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou he that should come, or shall we wait for another?

21 And at that time he cured many of their sicknesses, and plagues, and of evil spirits, and unto many blind men he gave sight freely.

22 And Jesus answered, and said unto them, Go your ways, and shew John what things ye have seen and heard: that the blind see, the halt go, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and the poor receive the gospel.

23 And blessed is he that shall not be offended in me.

24 And when the messengers of John were departed, he began to speak unto the people, of John, What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?

25 But what went you out to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? behold, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings courts.

26 But what went ye forth to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and greater than a prophet.

27 This is he of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.

28 For I say unto you, there is no greater prophet than John, among them that are begotten of women: nevertheless, he that is the least in the kingdom of God, is greater than he.

29 Then all the people that heard, and the Publicans justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John.

30 But the Pharisees and the expounders of the law despised the counsel of God against themselves, and were not baptized of him.

31 And the Lord said, Whereunto shall I liken the men of this generation? and what thing are they like unto?

32 They are like unto little children sitting in the market place, and crying one to another, and saying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced: we have mourned to you, and ye have not wept.

33 For John Baptist came neither eating bread, nor drinking wine: and ye say, He hath the devil.

34 The Son of man is come, and eateth and drinketh: and ye say, Behold, a man which is a glutton, and a drinker of wine, a friend of Publicans and sinners:

35 But wisdom is justified of all her children.

36 ¶ And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him: and he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down at table.

37 And behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at table in the Pharisee's house, she brought a box of ointment:

38 And she stood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.

39 Now when the Pharisee which bade him, saw it, he spake within himself, saying, If this man were a prophet, he would surely have known who, and what manner of woman this is which toucheth him, for she is a sinner.

40 And Jesus answered, and said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he said, Master, say on.

41 There was a certain lender which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty:

42 When they had nothing to pay, he forgave them both: Which of them therefore, tell me, will love him most?

43 Simon answered, and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast truly judged.

44 Then he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, See'st thou this woman? I entered into thine house, and thou gavest me no water to my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.

45 Thou gavest me no kiss: but she, since the time I came in, hath not ceased to kiss my feet.

46 Mine head with oil thou didst not anoint: but she hath anointed my feet with ointment.

47 Wherefore I say unto thee, Many sins are forgiven her: for she loved much. To whom a little is forgiven, he doth love a little.

48 And he said unto her, Thy sins are forgiven thee.

⁴ That which the prophets shewed long before, John sheweth at hand; and Christ himself doth present it daily unto us in the gospel, but for the most part in vain, for that many seek nothing else but foolish toys and vain glory.

⁵ Said that he was just, good, faithful and merciful.

⁶ To their own hurt.

⁷ What way soever God followeth in offering us the gospel, the most part of men procure offences unto themselves; yet notwithstanding some church is gathered together.

⁸ Proud men deprive themselves of the benefits of the presence of Christ, even then, when he is at home with them in their houses, which the humble and base do enjoy.

⁹ Rashness is the fellow of pride.

¹⁰ The Pharisee respecteth the law, which holdeth them defiled that touch the defiled.

¹¹ To love Christ, is a sure and perpetual witness of remission of sins.

¹² That is, saith Theophylact, she hath shewed her faith abundantly. And Basil, in his Sermon of Baptism saith, He that oweth much, hath much forgiven him, that he may love much more. And therefore Christ's saying is so plain by the similitude, that it is a wonder to see the enemies of the truth draw and rack this place so fondly, to establish their meritorious works; for the greater sum a man hath forgiven him, the more he loveth him that hath been so gracious to him. And this woman sheweth by duties of love, how great the benefit was she had received. And therefore the charity that is here spoken of, is not to be taken for the cause, but as a sign: for Christ saith not as the Pharisees did, that she was a sinner, but beareth her witness that the sins of her life past are forgiven her.

A. D. 31. 49 And they that sat at table with him, began to say within themselves, Who is this that even forgiveth sins?
 50 And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee: go in peace.

Women that minister unto Christ of their substance.
 4 The parable of the sower. 16 The candle. 19 Christ's mother and brethren. 22 He rebuketh the winds. 26 Of Legion. 37 The Gadarenes reject Christ. 41 Jairus's daughter healed. 43 The woman delivered from the issue of blood. 52 Weeping for the dead.

AND it came to pass afterward, that he himself went through every city and town, preaching and publishing the kingdom of God, and the twelve were with him,

2 And certain women, which were healed of evil spirits, and infirmities, * Mary which was called Magdalene, out of whom went seven devils:

3 And Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many other which ministered unto him of their substance.

4 * Now when much people were gathered together, and were come unto him out of all cities, he spake by a parable.

5 A sower went out to sow his seed: and as he sowed, some fell by the way's side, and it was trodden under feet, and the fowls of heaven devoured it up.

6 And some fell on the stones, and when it was sprung up, it withered away, because it lacked moistness.

7 And some fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up with it, and choaked it.

8 And some fell on good ground, and sprang up, and bare fruit, an hundred-fold. And as he said these things, he cried, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

9 Then his disciples asked him, demanding what parable that was.

10 And he said, Unto you it is given to know the secrets of the kingdom of God, but to other in parables, that when * they see, they should not see: and when they hear, they should not understand.

11 * The parable is this, The seed is the word of God.

12 And they that are beside the way, are they that hear: afterward cometh the devil, and taketh away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe, and be saved.

13 But they that are on the stones, are they which when they have heard, receive the word with joy, but they have no roots: which for a while believe, but in the time of temptation go away. A. D. 31.

14 And that which fell among thorns, are they which have heard, and after their departure are choaked with cares, and with riches, and voluptuous living, and bring forth no fruit.

15 But that which fell in good ground, are they which with an honest and good heart hear the word, and keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience.

17 * For nothing is secret, that shall not be evident: neither any thing hid, that shall not be known, and come to light. * Matt. 10. 26. Mark 4. 22. Ch. 12. 2.

20 And it was told him by certain which said, Thy mother and thy brethren stand without, and would see thee.

21 But he answered and said unto them, My mother and my brethren are these which hear the word of God and do it.

22 ¶ * And it came to pass on a certain day, that he went into a ship with his disciples, and he said unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake. And they launched forth. * Matt. 8. 23. Mark 4. 36.

23 And as they sailed, he fell asleep, and there came down a storm of wind on the lake, and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy.

24 Then they went to him, and awoke him, saying, Master, Master, we perish. And he arose, and rebuked the wind, and the waves of water: and they ceased, and it was calm.

25 Then he said unto them, Where is your faith? and they feared, and wondered among themselves, saying, Who is this that commandeth both the winds and water, and they obey him!

26 ¶ * So they sailed unto the region of the Gadarenes, which is over-against Galilee. * Matt. 8. 28. Mark 5. 1.

A. D. 31. him a certain man out of the city, which had devils long time, and he wore no garment, neither abode in house, but in the graves.

28 And when he saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, the Son of God the most High? I beseech thee torment me not.

29 For he commanded the foul spirit to come out of the man: (for oft-times he had caught him: therefore he was bound with chains, and kept in fetters: but he brake the bands, and was carried of the devil into the wilderness.)

30 Then Jesus asked him, saying, What is thy name? and he said, Legion, because many devils were entered into him.

31 And they besought him, that he would not command them to go out into the deep.

32 And there was thereby a herd of many swine, feeding on an hill: and the devils besought him, that he would suffer them to enter into them. So he suffered them.

33 Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the swine: and the herd was carried with violence from a steep place down into the lake, and was choked.

34 When the herdmen saw what was done, they fled: and when they were departed, they told it in the city, and in the country.

35 Then they came out to see what was done, and came to Jesus, and found the man out of whom the devils were departed sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

36 They also which saw it, told them by what means he that was possessed with the devil was healed.

37 Then the whole multitude of the country about the Gadarenes besought him that he would depart from them: for they were taken with great fear: and he went into the ship, and returned.

38 Then the man, out of whom the devils were departed, besought him that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying, 39 Return into thine own house, and shew what great things God hath done to thee. So he went his way, and preached throughout all the city, what great things Jesus had done unto him.

40 ¶ And it came to pass, when Jesus was come again, that the people received him: for they all waited for him.

41 ¶ And behold, there came a man named Jairus, and he was the ruler of the synagogue, who fell down at Jesus's feet, and besought him that he would come into his house.

42 For he had but a daughter only, about twelve years of age, and she lay a dying (and as he went, the people thronged him.

43 And a woman having an issue of blood twelve years long, which had spent all her substance upon physicians, and could not be helped by any:

44 When she came behind him, she touched the hem of his garment, and immediately her issue of blood staid.

45 Then Jesus said, Who is it that hath touched me? When every man denied, Peter said, and they that were with him, Master, the multitude thrust thee, and tread on thee, and sayest thou, Who hath touched me?

46 And Jesus said, Some one hath touched me: for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me.

47 When the woman saw that she was not hid, she came trembling, and fell down before him, and told him before all the people for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed immediately.

48 And he said unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath saved thee: go in peace.)

49 While he yet spake, there came one from the ruler of the synagogue's house, which said to him, Thy daughter is dead: disease not the Master.

50 When Jesus heard it, he answered him, saying, Fear not: believe only, and she shall be saved.

51 And when he went into the house, he suffered no man to go in with him, save Peter, and James, and John, and the father and mother of the maid.

52 And all wept, and sorrowed for her: but he said, Weep not: for she is not dead, but sleepeth.

53 And they laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead.

54 So he thrust them all out, and took her by the hand, and cried, saying, Maid, arise.

55 And her spirit came again, and she rose straightway: and he commanded to give her meat.

56 Then her parents were astonished: but he commanded them that they should tell no man what was done.

CHAPTER IX.

1 The apostles are sent to preach. 7 and 19 The common people's opinion of Christ. 12 Of the five loaves and two fishes. 20 The apostles confession. 24 To lose the life. 35 We must bear Christ. 37 The possessed of a spirit. 46 Strife among the apostles for the primacy. 49 One casting out devils in Christ's name. 52 The Samaritans will not receive Christ. 55 Revenge forbidden. 57, 59, 61. Of three that would follow Christ, but on divers conditions.

THEN Jesus called he his twelve disciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to heal diseases.

2 ¶ And he sent them forth to preach the kingdom of God, and to cure the sick.

3 And

* By force and violence, as a horse when he is spurred.

† To wit, the city of the Gadarenes: and though Mark say that he preached it in Decapolis, they dissent not: for Pliny recordeth, lib. 5. chap. 18. that Gadara is a town of Decapolis: so that Decapolis was partly this side Jordan, and partly the other side.

‡ The multitude was glad he came again, and rejoiced greatly.

§ Christ sheweth by a double miracle, that he is Lord both of life and death.

¶ All that she had she live upon:

¶ The word signifieth to beat and strike, and is transferred to the mournings and lamentations that are at burials, at which times men use such kind of behaviour.

¶ The corps was laid out, and the wench received life, and rose out of the bed, that all the world might see, she was not only restored to life, but also void of all sickness.

¶ The twelve apostles sent forth at the only commandment of Christ, and furnished with the power of the Holy Ghost: both that some of the Israelites might pretend ignorance, and also that they might be better prepared to their general embassy.

The apostles sent out.

3 And he said to them, * Take nothing to your journey, neither staves nor scrip, neither bread nor silver, neither have two coats apiece.
 4 And whatsoever house ye enter into, there abide, and thence depart.
 5 And how many soever will not receive you, when ye go out of that city, * shake off the very dust from your feet, for ■ testimony against them.
 6 And they went out, and went through every town, preaching the gospel, and healing every where.
 7 ¶ * Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was done by him : and he ^b doubted, because that it was said of some, that John was risen again from the dead :
 ■ And of some, that Elias had appeared : and of some, that one of the old prophets was risen again.
 9 Then Herod said, John have I beheaded : who then is this of whom I hear such things ? and he desired to see him.
 10 ¶ * And when the apostles returned, they told him what great things they had done.
 11 Then he took them to him, and went aside into a ^c solitary place, near to the city called Bethsaida.
 12 But when the people knew it, they followed him : and he received them, and spake unto them of the kingdom of God, and healed them that had need to be healed.
 13 * And when the day began to wear away, the twelve came, and said unto him, Send the people away, that they may go into the towns and villages round about, and lodge, and get meat : for we are here in a desert place.
 14 But he said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they said, We have no more but five loaves and two fishes, ^d except we should go and buy meat for all this people.
 15 For they were about five thousand men. Then he said to his disciples, Cause them to sit down by fifties in a company.
 16 And they did so, and caused all to sit down.
 17 Then he took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looked up to heaven, and ^e blessed them, and brake, and gave to the disciples, to set before the people.
 18 So they did all eat, and were satisfied : and there was taken up of that remained to them twelve baskets full of broken meat.
 19 ¶ * And it came to pass, as he was ^f alone praying, his disciples were with him : and he asked them, saying, Whom say the people that I am ?
 20 They answered, and said, John Baptist :

and others say, Elias : and some say, that one of the old prophets is risen again.
 20 And he said unto them, But whom say ye that I am ? Peter answered, and said, That Christ of God.
 21 And he warned and commanded them, that they should tell that to ■ man, 22 ^g Saying, ■ The Son of man must suffer many things, and be reprov'd of the elders, and of the high priests and Scribes, and be slain, and the third day rise again.
 23 ¶ * And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross ^h daily, and follow me.
 24 * For whosoever will save his life, shall lose it : and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it.
 25 * For what advantageth it a man, if he win the whole world, and destroy himself, or lose himself ?
 26 * For whosoever shall be ashamed of me, and of my words, of him shall the Son of ■ be ashamed, when he shall come in his glory, and in the glory of the Father, and of the holy angels.
 27 * And I tell you of ■ surety, there be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God.
 28 ■ And it came to pass about ■ eight days after those words, that he took Peter, and John, and James, and went up into ■ mountain to pray.
 29 And as he prayed, the fashion of his countenance was changed, and his garment was white and glittered.
 30 And behold, two men talked with him, which were Moses and Elias :
 31 Which appeared in glory, and told of his departing, which he should accomplish at Jerusalem.
 32 But Peter and they that were with him, were heavy with sleep : and when they awoke, they saw his glory, and the two men standing with him.
 33 And it came to pass, ■ they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here : let us therefore make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias : and wist not what he said.
 34 While he thus spake, there came ■ cloud, and overshadowed them, and they feared when they were entering into the cloud.
 35 * And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is that my beloved Son, hear him.
 36 And when the voice was past, Jesus was found alone : and they kept it close, and told ■ man

^a When you depart out of any city, depart from thence, where you first took up your lodging : so that in few words the Lord forbiddeth them to change their lodgings ; for the publishing of this gospel, was as it were ■ thorough passage, that none of Judea might pretend ignorance, ■ though he had not heard that Christ was come.
^b So soon ■ the world heareth tidings of the gospel, it is divided into divers opinions, and the tyrants especially are afraid.
^c He stuck, as it were, fast in the mire.
^d They shall lack nothing that follow Christ, no ■ in the wilderness.
^e The word signifieth a desert : note, this was not in the town Bethsaida, but part of the fields belonging to the town.
^f This is imperfectly spoken, and therefore we must understand something, as this, We cannot give them ■ eat, unless we go and buy, &c.
^g He gave God thanks for these loaves and fishes, and withal prayed him to feed this so great a multitude with so small ■ quantity, and to be short, that this whole banquet might be ■ the glory of God.

^h Although the world be tossed up and down, betwixt divers errors, yet ■ ought ■ the truth, but be so much the ■ desirous to know it, and be ■ constant to confess it.
ⁱ Alone from the people.
^j Christ himself attained to the heavenly glory, by the cross and invincible patience.
^k Even as ■ day followeth another, so doth one cross follow another, and the cross is by the figure Metonymia taken for the miseries of this life : for to be hanged, ■ the sorest and cruellest punishment that was amongst the Jews.
^l Lest the disciples of Christ should be offended at the debasing himself in his flesh, he teacheth them that it is voluntary, shewing therewithal for ■ space, the brightness of his glory.

A. D. man in those days any of those things which 32 they had seen.

37 ¶ And it came to pass on the next day, as they came down from the mountain, much people met him.

38 * And behold, a man of the company cried out, saying, Master, I beseech thee, behold my son: for he is all that I have.

39 And lo, a spirit taketh him, and suddenly he crieth, and he teareth him, that he foameth, and hardly departeth from him when he hath bruised him.

40 Now I have besought thy disciples to cast him out, but they could not.

41 Then Jesus answered, and said, O generation faithless and crooked, how long now shall I be with you, and suffer you? bring thy son hither.

42 And while he was yet coming, the devil rent him, and tare him: and Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the child, and delivered him: o his father.

43 ¶ And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God: and while they all wondered at all things which Jesus did, he said unto his disciples, 44 * Mark these words diligently: * for it shall come to pass, that the Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men.

45 But they understood not that word: for it was hid from them, so that they could not perceive it: and they feared to ask him of that word.

46 ¶ * Then there arose a disputation among them, which of them should be the greatest.

47 When Jesus saw the thoughts of their hearts, he took a little child, and set him by him, 48 And said unto them, Whosoever receiveth this little child in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth him that sent me: for he that is least among you all, he shall be great.

49 ¶ And John answered and said, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and we forbid him, because he followeth thee not with us.

50 Then Jesus said unto him, Forbid ye him not: for he that is not against us, is with us.

51 ¶ And it came to pass, when the days were accomplished, that he should be received up, he settled himself fully to go to Jerusalem,

52 And sent messengers before him: and they

¹ Until Christ was risen again from the dead.

² Christ is offended with nothing so much as with incredulity, although he bear with it for a time.

³ As it saith in the falling sickness.

⁴ We have no cause to promise ourselves rest and quietness in this world, seeing that they themselves which seemed to fawn upon Christ, do shortly after crucify him.

⁵ Give diligent ear unto them, and when you have once heard them, see that you keep them.

⁶ The end of ambition is ignominy: but the end of modest obedience is glory.

⁷ Extraordinary things are neither rashly to be allowed nor condemned.

⁸ Christ goeth willingly to death.

⁹ Word for word, he hardened his face: that is, he resolved with himself to die, and therefore ventured upon his journey, and cast away all fear of death, and went on.

¹⁰ We must take heed of the immoderateness of zeal and fond imitation, even in good causes, that whatsoever we do we do it to God's glory, and the profit of our neighbour.

¹¹ So speak the Hebrews, that is, you know not what will, mind, and counsel you are of: for the gifts of God are called the Spirit, because they are given of God's Spirit, and went and entered into a town of the Samaritans, to prepare him lodging.

53 But they would not receive him, because his behaviour was as though he would go to Jerusalem.

54 ¶ And when his disciples, James and John, saw it, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command, that fire come down from heaven, and consume them, even as * Elias did?

55 But Jesus turned about, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not of what spirit ye are.

56 For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. Then they went to another town.

57 ¶ And it came to pass, that as they went in the way, a certain man said unto him, I will follow thee, Lord, whithersoever thou goest.

58 And Jesus said unto him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the heaven nests, but the Son of man hath not whereon to lay his head.

59 ¶ But he said unto another, Follow me, And the same said, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.

60 And Jesus said unto him, Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou, and preach the kingdom of God.

61 ¶ Then another said, I will follow thee, Lord: but let me first go bid them farewell which are at mine house.

62 And Jesus said unto him, No man that putteth his hand to the plough, and looketh back, is apt to the kingdom of God.

CHAP. X.

The seventy disciples. 10 The unthankful cities charged with impiety. 17 The disciples returning home, are warned to be humble. 30 Who is our neighbour. 38 Of Martha and her sister Mary.

AFTER * these things, the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before him, into every city and place, whither he himself should come.

¶ And he said unto them, * The harvest is great, but the labourers are few: pray therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth labourers into his harvest.

3 * Go your ways: behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves.

4 Bear no bag, neither scrip, nor shoes, and salute no man by the way.

5 ¶ And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be to this house.

6 And so are they that are contrary to them which proceed of the wicked spirit of covetousness, of pride, and madness.

¹³ Such follow Christ, must prepare themselves to suffer all discommodities.

¹⁴ The calling of God ought to be preferred, without all controversy, before all duties that we owe man.

¹⁵ Who notwithstanding that they live in this frail life of man, yet are strangers from the true life, which is everlasting and heavenly.

¹⁶ Such as follow Christ, must at once renounce all worldly cares.

¹⁷ The seventy sent the second forewarners of the coming of Christ.

¹⁹ This is spoken after the manner of a figure, which men use when they put down more in words than is meant: usual among the Hebrews, when they command a thing to be done speedily without delay, as 2 Kings 4. 29. for otherwise courteous and gentle salutations are points of christian duties: as for this calling, it was but for a season.

A. D. 31. 38 ¶ Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain town, and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.

39 And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his preaching.

40 But Martha was cumbered about much serving: and came unto him, and said, Master, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me.

41 And Jesus answered, and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou carest and art troubled about many things:

42 But one thing is needful: Mary hath chosen the good part, which shall not be taken away from her.

C H A P. XI.

1 He teacheth his apostles to pray. 14 The dumb devil driven out. 27 A woman of the company lifteth up her voice. 29 The Jews require signs. 37 He being feasted of the Pharisee, reproveth the outward shew of holiness.

AND so it was, that as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.

2 ¶ And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name: Thy kingdom come: Let thy will be done, even in earth, as it is in heaven:

3 Our daily bread give us for the day:

4 And forgive us our sins: for even we forgive every man that is indebted to us: And lead us not into temptation: but deliver us from evil.

5 ¶ Moreover he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go to him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves:

6 For a friend of mine is come out of the way to me, and I have nothing to set before him:

7 And he within should answer, and say, Trouble me not: the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed: I cannot rise and give them to thee.

8 I say unto you, Though he would not rise and give him, because he is his friend, yet doubtless because of his importunity, he would rise, and give him as many as he needed.

9 ¶ And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you: seek, and ye shall find: knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

10 ¶ For every one that asketh, receiveth: and he that seeketh, findeth: and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened.

11 ¶ If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent?

12 Or if he ask an egg, will he give him a scorpion?

13 If ye then which are evil, can give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Ghost to them that desire him?

14 ¶ Then he cast out a devil which was dumb: and when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake, and the people wondered.

15 ¶ But some of them said, He casteth out devils through Beelzebub, the chief of the devils.

16 And others tempted him, seeking of him a sign from heaven.

17 ¶ But he knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself shall be desolate, and an house divided against an house, falleth.

18 So if Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub.

19 If I through Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? Therefore shall they be your judges.

20 But if I by the finger of God cast out devils, doubtless the kingdom of God is come unto you.

21 When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, the things that he possesseth are in peace.

22 But when a stronger than he cometh upon him, and overcometh him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoils.

23 ¶ He that is not with me, is against me: and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth.

24 ¶ When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest: and when he findeth none, he saith, I will return unto mine house whence I came out.

25 And when he cometh, he findeth it swept and garnished.

26 Then goeth he, and taketh to him seven other spirits worse than himself: and they enter in, and dwell there: so the last state of that man is worse than the first.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, he said these things, a certain woman of the company lifted up her voice, and said unto him, Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou hast sucked.

28 But he said, Yea, rather blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.

29 ¶ And

12 Christ careth not be entertained delicately, but to be heard diligently, that is it which he especially requireth.

1 A form of true prayer.

2 That is, much is needful for this day; whereby we are not debarred have honest for the maintenance of our lives, but that carping care, which killeth number of men, is cut off and restrained.

3 We must pray with faith.

4 Word for word, impudency: but that impudency which is spoken of here, is not be found fault withal, but is very commendable before God, for he liketh well of such importunity.

5 An example of horrible blindness, and such as cannot be healed, when upon an evil conscience, and pretended malice, the power of God is blasphemed.

6 The true way know the true Christ from the false.

is this, that the Christ hath accord or agreement with Satan. And it remaineth, that after know him, acknowledge him.

7 By the and power of Beelzebub.

8 That is, by the power of God: so said Exod. 8.

19. The word signifieth properly an open and void room before house, and so by translation is taken for noble-men's houses.

Against indifferent men, and such as love have a mean, which seek to reconcile Christ and Satan together.

He that doth not continue, is in worse case than he that never began.

Christ seeketh not praise in himself, but in our salvation.

30 For as Jonas was a sign to the Ninevites: so also shall the Son of man be to this generation.

31 ¶ The queen of the South shall rise in judgment with the men of this generation, and shall condemn them: for she came from the utmost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

32 The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for they * repented at the preaching of Jonas: and behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

33 ¶ * No man, when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a private place, neither under a bushel, but on a candlestick, that they which come in may see the light.

34 ¶ The light of the body is the eye: therefore when thine eye is single, then is thy whole body light: but if thine eye be evil, then thy body is dark.

35 Take heed therefore, that the light which is in thee be not darkness.

36 If therefore thy whole body shall be light, having no part dark, then shall all be light, even as when a candle doth light thee with the brightness.

37 ¶ ¹⁰ And as he spake, a certain Pharisee belought him to dine with him: and he went in, and sat down at table.

38 And when the Pharisee saw it, he marvelled that he had not first washed before dinner.

39 ¶ And the Lord said to him, Indeed ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup, and of the platter: but the inward part is full of ravening and wickedness.

40 Ye fools, did not he that made that which is without, make that which is within also?

41 Therefore give alms ^a of those things which you have, and behold, all things shall be clean unto you.

42 ¶ ¹¹ But woe be to you, Pharisees: for ye ^b tithe the mint and the rue, and ^c all manner of herbs, and pass over ^d judgment, and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to have left the other undone.

43 ¶ ¹² Woe be to you, Pharisees: for ye love the uppermost seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets.

44 ¶ ¹³ Woe be to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: * for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them, perceive not.

45 ¶ ¹⁴ Then answered one of the lawyers, and said unto him, Master, thus saying, thou puttest us to rebuke also.

46 And he said, Woe be to you also, ye lawyers: * for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers.

47 ¶ ¹⁵ Woe be to you: * for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.

48 Truly ^k ye bear witness, and allow the deeds of your fathers: for they killed them, and ye build their sepulchres.

49 Therefore said the wisdom of God, I will send them prophets and apostles, and of them they shall slay, and ^l persecute away,

50 That the blood of all the prophets, ^m shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation:

51 From the blood of * Abel unto the blood of * Zacharias, which was slain between the altar and the temple: verily I say unto you, it shall be required of this generation. ⁿ

52 ¶ ¹⁶ Woe be to you, lawyers: for ye have ^o taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that came in, ye forbad.

53 ¶ ¹⁷ And as he said these things unto them, the Scribes and Pharisees began to urge him sore, and to ^p provoke him to speak of many things, 54 Laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something of his mouth, whereby they might accuse him.

IN

^a They that are fond desirers of miracles, instead of miracles, shall receive punishment.

^b Our minds are therefore lightened with the knowledge of God, that we should give light unto others, and therefore our chiefest labour ought to be to pray for that light.

^c The service of God consisteth not in outward cleanliness and devised rites, or ceremonies, but in the spiritual righteousness of the heart and charity.

^d That is, according to your ability: ^e who would say, instead of your extortions, which hindered you, that you could not eat cleanly, use charity, and, according as your ability shall serve you, be good to the poor, and so shall that, that ^f within the platter, be sanctified, though the platter be unwashed.

^g It is the property of hypocrites to stand stoutly for little trifles, and let pass greater matters.

^h You decide by God's law, that the tenth part is due to be paid.

ⁱ Of all kinds of herbs some, as Augustine expoundeth it in his Enchiridion to Laurence, cap. 99. where he sheweth, in like sort, how that place of Paul, 1 Tim. 2. 4. God will have all men to be saved, is to be expounded after the same manner.

^j That is to say, that is right and reason to do: for this word judgment, containeth the commandments of the second table, and the other words, the love of God, containeth the first.

^k Hypocrisy and ambition are commonly joined together.

^o Hypocrites are very severe against other men, but think all things lawful to themselves.

^p Hypocrites honour those saints when they are dead, whom they most cruelly persecute when they are alive.

^q When you persecute God's servants, like madmen, even ^r your fathers did, though you colour it with a pretence of godliness, yet notwithstanding, in that you beautify the sepulchres of the prophets, what do you else but glory in your fathers cruelty, and set up monuments (as it were) in glory and triumph of it?

^s They shall so vex and trouble them, that at length they shall banish them.

^t That you may be called to an account for it, yea, and be punished for the shedding of that blood of the prophets.

^u They have of long time chiefly hindered the people from entering into the knowledge of God, which ought to be the door-keepers of the church.

^v You have hidden and taken away, so that it cannot be found any where.

^w The more the world is reprehended, the worse it is, and yet must we not betray the truth.

^x They proposed many questions to him, to draw something out of his mouth, which they might traiterously carp at.

A. D. 33. 11 * * * In the mean time there gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, so that they trod one another: and he began to say unto his disciples first, Take heed to yourselves of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.

12 * * * For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed: neither hid, that shall not be known.

13 * * * Wherefore whatsoever ye have spoken in darkness, it shall be heard in the light: and that which ye have spoken in the ear, in secret places, shall be preached on the houses.

14 * * * And I say unto you, my friends, be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that are not able to do any more.

15 * * * But I will forewarn you, whom ye shall fear: fear him, which after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell: yea, I say unto you, him fear.

16 * * * Are not five sparrows bought for two farthings, and yet not one of them is forgotten before God?

17 * * * Yea, and all the hairs of your head are numbered: fear not therefore: ye are more of value than many sparrows.

18 * * * Also I say unto you, Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man confess also before the angels of God.

19 * * * But he that shall deny me before men, shall be denied before the angels of God.

20 * * * And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but unto him that shall blaspheme the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven.

21 * * * And when they shall bring you into the synagogues, and unto the rulers and princes, take no thought how, or what thing ye shall answer, or what ye shall speak.

22 * * * For the Holy Ghost shall teach you in the same hour what ye ought to say.

23 * * * And one of the company said unto him, Master, bid my brother divide the inheritance with me.

24 * * * And he said unto him, Man, who made me a judge, or a divider over you?

25 * * * Wherefore he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for though a man have abundance, yet his life standeth not in his riches.

16 * * * And he put forth a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth fruits plenteously.

17 * * * Therefore he thought with himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room, where I may lay up my fruits?

18 * * * And he said, This will I do, I will pull down my barns, and build greater, and therein will I gather all my fruits, and goods.

19 * * * And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years: live at ease, eat, drink, and take thy pastime.

20 * * * But God said unto him, O fool, this night will they fetch away thy soul from thee: then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?

21 * * * So is he that gathereth riches to himself, and is not rich in God.

22 * * * And he spake unto his disciples, Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat: neither for your body, what ye shall put on.

23 * * * The life is more than meat: and the body more than the raiment.

24 * * * Consider the ravens: for they neither sow nor reap: which neither have storehouse nor barn, and yet God feedeth them: how much more are ye better than fowls?

25 * * * And which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit?

26 * * * If ye then be not able to do the least thing, why take ye thought for the remnant?

27 * * * Consider the lilies how they grow: they labour not, neither spin they: yet I say unto you, that Solomon himself in all his royalty was not clothed like one of these.

28 * * * If then God so cloath the grass which is to-day in the field, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, how much more will he cloath you, O ye of little faith?

29 * * * Therefore ask not what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, neither hang you in suspense.

30 * * * For all such things the people of the world seek for: and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things.

31 But

* The faithful teachers of God's word, which are appointed by him for his people, must both take good heed of them which corrupt the purity of doctrine with goodly glosses, and also take pains, through the help of God, to set forth sincere doctrine, openly without fear.

* Word for word, ten thousands of people, a certain number for an uncertain.

* Although hypocrites have princes to execute their cruelty, yet there is no cause why we should be afraid of them the least jot that may be, seeing they can do nothing but what pleaseth God, and God will not any thing that may be against the salvation of his elect.

* He warneth them of dangers that presently hang over their heads, for those that come upon the sudden, do make the greater wound.

* Great is the reward of a constant confession, and horrible is the punishment of the denying of Christ, yea, impossible to be called back again shall the punishment be, if upon set purpose, both with mouth and heart, we blaspheme a known truth.

* It is a great and hard conflict to confess the truth, yet he that can do all things, and is almighty, will not be wanting to the weakest, which strive and contend in his appointed time.

* Christ would not for three causes be a judge to divide an inheritance. First, for that he would not foster up and cherish the Jewish opinion that the Jews had of Messiah: secondly, for that he would distinguish the civil government from the ecclesiastical: Thirdly, to teach us to beware of them which abuse the shew of the gospel, and also the name of ministers, to their own private commodities.

* By covetousness is meant that greedy desire to get, commonly with other men's hurt.

* God is the author and preserver of man's life, goods are not.

* There are none more mad than rich men, which hang upon their riches.

* Or rather country, for here is set forth a man that possesseth not a piece of ground only, but an whole country, as they do which join house to house, and field to field, Isa. 5. 8.

* Made his reckoning with himself, which is the property of covetous churis, which spend their life in their trifles.

* Be merry and make good cheer.

* Caring for no man but for himself, and minding to trust in himself.

* An earnest thinking upon the providence of God, is a present remedy against the most foolish and pining carefulness of men for this life.

* A metaphor taken of things that hang in the air, for they that are careful for this worldly life, and hang upon the arm of man, have always wandering and doubtful minds, swaying sometimes this way, and sometimes that way.

The wise steward.

31 ^{A. D.} But rather seek ye after the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be cast upon you.

32 ³² Fear not, little flock: for it is your Father's pleasure to give you the kingdom.

33 ³³ ¶ ¹⁰ Sell that ye have, and ^k give alms: make you bags which wax not old, a treasure that can never fail in heaven, where no thief cometh, neither moth corrupteth.

34 For where your treasure is, there will your hearts be also.

35 ³⁵ ¶ ¹¹ Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning.

36 And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their matter, when he will return from the wedding, that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately.

37 Blessed are those servants, whom the Lord when he cometh shall find waking: verily I say unto you, he will gird himself about, and make them to sit down at table, and will come forth, and serve them.

38 And if he come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and shall find them so, blessed are those servants.

39 ³⁹ * Now understand this, that if the good man of the house had known at what hour the thief would have come, he would have watched and would have not suffered his house to be digged through.

40 ⁴⁰ ¹² Be ye also prepared therefore: for the Son of man will come at an hour when ye think not.

41 Then Peter said unto him: Master, tellest thou this parable unto us, or even to all?

42 And the Lord said, Who is a faithful steward and wise, whom the master shall make ruler over his household, to give them their ¹ portion of meat in season?

43 Blessed is that servant, whom his master when he cometh, shall find so doing.

44 Of a truth I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all that he hath:

45 But if that servant say in his heart, My matter doth defer his coming, and shall begin to finite the servants, and maidens, and to eat, and drink, and to be drunken,

46 The master of that servant will come in a day when he thinketh not, and at an hour when he is not ware of, and will cut him off, and give him his portion with the unbelievers.

47 ¶ And that servant that knew his master's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes:

² It is a foolish thing not to look for small things at his hands which giveth us freely the greatest things.

³ A godly bountifulness is a ready way to get true riches.

⁵ The life of the faithful servants of God in this world, is a certain watchful peregrination, having the light of the word going before it.

⁶ None have more need to watch, than they that have some degree of honour in the household of God.

⁷ That is, every month such measure of corn as was appointed them.

⁸ More than of him, in whom so much was not given.

Of the Galileans, 4. and those that were slain under Siloam. 6 The fig-tree that bare no fruit. 11 The woman vexed with the spirit of infirmity, that is, with a disease brought on her by Satan, is healed. 19 The parable of the grain of mustard-seed. 21 Of leaven. 23 How few shall be saved. 32 Herod that fox.

THERE were certain men present at the same season, that shewed him of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. 2 And ¹³ The gospel is the only cause of peace betwixt the godly: and so is it the occasion of great trouble among the wicked.

¹⁴ Men which are very quick of sight in earthly things, are blind in those things which pertain to the heavenly life, and that through their own malice.

¹⁵ Which appeareth and gathereth itself together in that part of the air.

¹⁶ Men that are blinded with the love of themselves, and therefore are detestable and stubborn, shall bear the reward of their folly.

¹⁷ To him that had to demand and gather the amercia-ments, which they were condemned unto, that had wrongfully troubled men. Moreover, the magistrates officers make them which are condemned pay that they owe, yea, and oftentimes if they be obstinate, they do not only take the costs and charges of them, but also imprison them.

¹⁸ We must not rejoice in the just punishment of others, but rather be instructed thereby to repentance.

¹⁹ Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea almost ten years, and about the fourth year of his government, which might be about the fifteenth year of Tiberius's reign, Christ finished the work of our redemption by his death.

2 And Jesus answered, and said unto them, surprise ye, that these Galileans were greater sinners than all the other Galileans, because they have suffered such things?

3 I tell you, nay: but except ye amend your lives, ye shall likewise perish.

4 Or think you that those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and slew them, were sinners above all men that dwell in Jerusalem?

5 I tell you, nay: but except ye amend your lives, ye shall all likewise perish.

6 He spake also this parable, A certain man had a fig-tree planted in his vineyard: and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none.

7 Then said he to the dresser of his vineyard: Behold, these three years have I come and sought fruit of this fig-tree, and find none: cut it down: why keepeth it also the ground barren?

8 And he answered, and said unto him, Lord, let it alone this year also, till I dig round about it, and dung it.

9 And if it bear fruit, well: if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down.

10 And he taught in one of the synagogues on the sabbath day.

11 And behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could not lift up herself in any wise.

12 When Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said to her, Woman, thou art loosed from thy disease.

13 And he laid his hands on her, and immediately she was made straight again, and glorified God.

14 And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day.

15 Then answered him the Lord, and said, Hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath day loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to the water?

16 And ought not this daughter of Abraham, whom Satan had bound, lo eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?

17 And when he said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: but all the people rejoiced at all the excellent things that were done by him.

^a To wit, in the place or river: for Siloam was a small river, from whence the conduits of the city came, whereof John 9. 7. and Isa. 8. 6. and therefore it was a tower or castle built upon the conduit side, which fell down suddenly and killed some.

^b Great and long suffering is the patience of God, but yet so that at length he executeth judgment.

^c Maketh the ground barren in that part which otherwise were good for vines.

^d Christ came to deliver us from the bands of Satan.

^e Troubled with a disease which Satan brought.

^f For Satan had the woman bound, as if she had been in chains, inasmuch that for eighteen years space she could not hold up her head.

^g A lively image of hypocrisy: a reward thereof.

ⁱ God beginneth his kingdom with small beginnings, that the unlooked-for proceeding of it may better set forth his power.

18 ¶ Then said he, What is the kingdom of God like? or whereto shall I compare it?

19 ^a It is like a grain of mustard-seed, which a man took, and sowed in his garden, and it grew, and waxed a great tree, and the fowls of the heaven made nests in the branches thereof.

20 ¶ And again he said, Whereunto shall I liken the kingdom of God?

21 It is like leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three pecks of flour, till all was leavened.

22 ¶ And he went through all cities and towns, teaching, and journeying towards Jerusalem.

23 Then said one unto him, Lord, are there few that shall be saved? And he said unto them, 24 * Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able.

25 When the good man of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us: and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are:

26 ^b Then shall ye begin to say, We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets.

27 * But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence ye are: depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity.

28 ^c There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and yourselves thrust out at doors.

29 Then shall come many from the East, and from the West, and from the North, and from the South, and shall sit at table in the kingdom of God.

30 * And behold, there are last, which shall be first: and there are first, which shall be last.

31 ^d The same day there came certain Pharisees, and said unto him, Depart, and go hence: for Herod will kill thee.

32 Then said he unto them, Go ye and tell that fox, Behold, I cast out devils, and will heal still to-day, and to-morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected.

33 ^e Nevertheless, I must walk to-day, and to-morrow, and the day following: for it cannot be that a prophet should perish out of Jerusalem.

■ The dropsy healed ■ the sabbath. 8 The chief places at banquets. 12 The poor must be called to our feasts. 16 Of those that were bid to the great supper. 23 Some compelled to come in. 28 One about to build ■ tower.

AND it came to pass, that when he was entered into the house of one of the chief Pharisees on the sabbath day, to eat bread, they watched him.

2 And behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy.

3 Then Jesus answering, spake unto the Lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day?

4 And they held their peace. Then he took him, and healed him, and let him go,

5 And answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass, or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day?

6 And they could not answer him again to those things.

7 ¶ He spake also a parable to the guests, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms, and said unto them,

■ When thou shalt be bidden of any man to a wedding, set not thyself down in the chiefest place, lest a more honourable man than thou be bidden of him.

9 And he that bade both him and thee, come, and say to thee, Give this man room, and thou then begin with shame to take the lowest room.

10 * But when thou art bidden, go and sit down in the lowest room, that when he that bade thee, cometh, he may say unto thee, Friend, sit up higher: then shalt thou have worship in the presence of them that sit at table with thee.

11 * For whosoever exalteth himself, shall be brought low: and he that humbleth himself, shall be exalted.

12 ¶ Then said he also to him that had bidden him, * When thou makest a dinner, or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours, lest they also bid thee again, and recompence be made thee. A. D. 33.

13 But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, and the blind, 14 And thou shalt be blessed, because they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

15 ¶ Now when one of them that sat at table heard these things, he said unto him, Blessed is he that eateth bread in the kingdom of God.

16 Then said he to him, * A certain man made a great supper, and bade many, * Matt. 22. 1. Rev. 19. 9.

17 And sent his servant at supper time to say to them that were bidden, Come: for all things are now ready.

18 † But they all with one mind began to make excuse: The first said unto him, I have bought a farm, and I must needs go out and see it: I pray thee have me excused.

19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them: I pray thee have me excused.

20 And another said, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21 So that servant returned, and shewed his master these things. Then was the good man of the house angry, and said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind.

22 And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room.

23 Then the master said to the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that mine house may be filled.

24 For I say unto you, that none of those which were bidden shall taste of my supper.

25 † Now there went great multitudes with him, and he turned, and said unto them,

26 * If any man come to me, and † hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters: yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. * Matt. 10. 37.

27 * † And whosoever beareth not his cross, and cometh after me, cannot be my disciple. * Ch. 9. 29. Matt. 16. 24. Mark 8. 34.

28 For which of you minding to build a tower, sitteth not down before, and counteth the cost, whether he hath sufficient to perform it,

4 The parable of the lost sheep: 8 Of the groat: 11 And of the prodigal son.

1 THEN † resorted unto him all the Publicans and sinners to hear him.

2 Therefore the Pharisees and Scribes murmured, saying, He receiveth sinners, and eateth with them.

3 Then spake he this parable to them, saying,

4 What man of you having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?

5 And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders with joy.

6 And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends, and neighbours, saying unto them, Rejoice with me: for I have found my sheep which was lost.

7 I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven for one sinner that converteth, more than for ninety and nine just men, which need none amendment of life.

8 Either what woman having ten groats, if she lose one groat, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it?

9 And when she hath found it, she calleth her friends, and neighbours, saying, Rejoice with me: for I have found the groat which I had lost.

10 Likewise I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God, for one sinner that converteth.

11 ¶ He said moreover, A certain man had two sons.

12 And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of the goods that falleth to me. So he divided unto them his substance.

13 So not many days after, when the younger son had gathered all together, he took his journey into a far country, and there he wasted his goods with riotous living.

14 Now when he had spent all, there arose a great dearth throughout that land, and he began to be in necessity.

15 Then he went and clave to a citizen of that country, and he sent him to his farm, to feed swine.

16 And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine ate: but no man gave them him.

17 Then he came to himself, and said, How many hired servants at my father's have bread enough, and I die for hunger!

18 I will rise, and go to my father, and say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, 19 And I am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me one of thy hired servants.

20 So he arose, and came to his father: and when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran and fell on his neck, and kissed him.

21 And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

22 Then the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet.

23 And bring the fat calf, and kill him, and let us eat, and be merry:

24 For this my son was dead, and is alive again: and he was lost, but he is found. And they began to be merry.

25 Now the elder brother was in the field, and when he came and drew near to the house, he heard melody and dancing.

26 And called one of his servants, and asked what those things meant.

27 And he said unto him, Thy brother is come, and thy father hath killed the fat calf, because he hath received him safe and found.

28 Then he was angry, and would not go in: therefore came his father out, and intreated him.

29 But he answered, and said to his father, Lo, these many years have I done thee service, neither brake I at any time thy commandment, and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends.

30 But when this thy son was come, which hath devoured thy goods with harlots, thou hast for his sake killed the fat calf.

31 And he said unto him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine. It was meet that we should make merry, and be glad: for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again: and he was lost, but he is found.

The parable of the steward accused to his master. 13 To serve two masters. 16 The law and the prophets. 19 Of Dives and Lazarus.

AND

7 The disciples of Christ must be wise both for themselves, and for others: otherwise they become the foolishness of all.

8 We must not despair of them which have gone out of the way, but according to the example of Christ, we must take great pains about them.

9 Some publicans and sinners came to Christ from all quarters.

10 Men by their voluntary falling from God, having spoiled themselves of the benefits which they received of him, cast themselves headlong into infinite calamities: but God of his singular goodness, offering himself freely to them, whom he called to repentance, through the greatness of their misery, wherewith they were tamed, doth not only gently receive them, but also enricheth them with far greater gifts, and blesteth them with the chiefest bliss.

11 The beginning of repentance is the acknowledging of the mercy of God, which stirreth us to hope well.

12 Against God, because he is said to dwell in heaven.

13 In the true repentance there is a feeling of our sins joined with sorrow and shame, from whence springeth confession, after which followeth forgiveness.

14 Such as truly fear God, desire to have all men to be their fellows.

A. D.
33.

AND he said also unto his disciples, ¹ There was a certain rich man which had a steward, and he was accused unto him, that he wasted his goods.

² And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? Give an account of thy stewardship: for thou mayest be no longer steward.

³ Then the steward said within himself, What shall I do? for my master taketh away from me the stewardship: I cannot dig, ^{and} to beg I am ashamed.

⁴ I know what I will do, that when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.

⁵ Then called he unto him every one of his master's debtors, and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my master?

⁶ And he said, An hundred measures of oil. And he said unto him, Take thy writing, and sit down quickly, and write fifty.

⁷ Then said he to another, How much owest thou? and he said, An hundred measures of wheat. Then he said to him, Take thy writing, and write fourscore.

And the lord commended ^a the unjust steward, because he had done wisely. Wherefore the ^b children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.

⁹ And I say unto you, Make you friends with the riches of ^c iniquity, that when ye shall want, they may receive you into everlasting ^d habitations.

¹⁰ ^e He that is faithful in the least, he is also faithful in much: and he that is unjust in the least, is unjust also in much.

¹¹ If then ye have not been faithful in the wicked riches, who will trust you in the ^f true treasure?

¹² And if ye have not been faithful in ^g another man's goods, who shall give you that which is your's?

¹³ ^h No servant can serve two masters: for either he shall hate the one, and love the other: or else he shall lean to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and riches.

¹⁴ All these things heard the Pharisees also,

^a Seeing that men oftentimes purchase friendship to themselves, by other men's coits, it is shame for us, if with a free and liberal bestowing of the goods which the Lord hath given us, to that purpose we do not please him, nor procure the good will of our neighbours, seeing that by this only means, riches, which are oftentimes occasions of sin, ^{are} turned to another end and purpose.

^b This parable doth not approve the steward's naughty dealing, for it ^{is} very theft: but parables ^{are} set forth ^{to} shew ^{us} thing covertly, and ^{as} it were, under ^a figure to represent the truth, though it agree not thoroughly with the matter itself: so that Christ meaneth by this parable to teach us that worldly men are ^{more} heedful in the affairs of this world, than the children of God are careful for everlasting life.

^c Men that ^{are} given ^{to} this present life, contrary to whom the children of light ^{are} set. St. Paul calleth those spiritual, and the other carnal.

^d This is not spoken of goods that are evil gotten, for God will have our bountifulness to the poor proceed and come from ^a good fountain: but he calleth those riches of iniquity, which men use naughtily.

^e To wit, the poor Christians: for they are the inheritors of these tabernacles. Theoph.

^f We ought to take heed, that for abusing our earthly function and duty, we be not deprived of heavenly gifts: for how can they use spiritual gifts aright, who abuse worldly things?

^g That is, heavenly and true riches: which are contrary to worldly and sitting substance.

which were covetous, and they scoffed at him. A. D.

¹⁷ ^{*} Now it is more easy that heaven and earth should pass away, than that one tittle of the law should fall.

¹⁸ ¶ ^{*} Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery: and whosoever marrieth her that is ² put away from her husband, committeth adultery. ¹²

¹⁹ ¶ ⁶ There was ^a certain rich man, which was clothed in ^b purple and fine linen, and fared well and delicately every day.

²⁰ Also there was ^a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate full of sores, ²¹ And desired to be refreshed with the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table: yea, and the dogs came and licked his sores.

²² And it was so that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The rich man also died, and was buried.

²³ And being in hell in torments, ¹ he lift up his eyes, and saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

²⁴ Then he cried, and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue: for I am tormented in this flame.

²⁵ But Abraham said, Son, remember, that thou in thy life-time receivedst thy pleasures, and likewise Lazarus pains: now therefore is he comforted, and thou art tormented.

²⁶ Besides all this, between you and us there is a great gulf set, so that they which would go from hence to you, cannot: neither can they come from thence to us.

²⁷ ⁷ Then he said, I pray thee, therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house.

7 ¶ Who is it also of you, that having a servant plowing, or feeding cattle, would say unto him by and by, when he were come from the field, Go, and sit down at table?

8 And would not rather say to him, Dress wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself, and serve me till I have eaten and drunken, and afterward eat thou, and drink thou?

9 Doth he thank that servant, because he did that which was commanded unto him? I trow not.

10 ¶ So likewise ye, when ye have done all those things which are commanded you, say,

We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do.

11 ¶ And so it was when he went to Jerusalem, that he passed through the midst of Samaria, and Galilee.

12 And as he entered into a certain town, there met him ten men that were lepers, which stood afar off.

13 And they lift up their voices, and said, Jesus, Master, have mercy on us.

14 And when he saw them, he said unto them, ¶ Go, shew yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass, that as they went, they were cleansed. ^{Lev. 14. 2.}

15 Then one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice praised God,

16 And fell down on his face at his feet, and gave him thanks: and he was a Samaritan.

17 And Jesus answered, and said, Are there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?

18 There is none found that returned to give God praise, save this stranger.

19 And he said unto him, Arise, go thy way, thy faith hath saved thee.

20 ¶ And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come? he answered them, and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with observation.

21 Neither shall men say, Lo here, or lo there: for behold, the kingdom of God is within you.

22 ¶ And he said unto the disciples, The days will come, when ye shall desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and ye shall not see it.

23 ¶ Then they shall say to you, Behold here, or behold there: but go not thither, neither follow them. ^{Mat. 24. 23.}
^{Mat. 23. 31.}

24 For as the lightning, that lighteneth out of the one part under heaven, shineth unto the other part under heaven, so shall the Son of man be in his day.

25 But first he must suffer many things, and be reproved of this generation.

26 ¶ And as it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be in the days of the Son of man. ^{Gen. 7. 1.}
^{Mat. 24. 38.}
^{1 Pet. 3. 20.}

27 They ate, they drank, they married wives, and gave in marriage, unto the day that Noah went into the ark: and the flood came, and destroyed them all.

28 Likewise

¹ The church is of necessity subject to offences, but the Lord will not suffer them unpunished, if any of the least be offended.

² Our reprehensions must be just, and proceed of love and charity.

³ God will never be utterly lacking to the godly (although he be not so perfectly with them as they would) even in those difficulties which cannot be overcome by man's reason.

⁴ If you had no faith, but the quantity of the grain of mustard-seed.

⁵ Seeing that God may challenge unto himself of right, both us and all that is ours, he can be debtor unto us for nothing, although we labour manfully even unto death.

⁶ The most perfect keeping of the law which we can perform, deserveth no reward.

⁷ Christ doth well even unto such as will be unthankful, but the benefits of God profit them only to salvation, which are thankful.

⁸ The kingdom of God is not marked of many, although it be most present before their eyes: because they fondly persuade themselves, that it is joined with outward pomp.

⁹ With any outward pomp and shew of majesty, to be known by: for there were otherwise many plain and evident tokens whereby men might have understood that Christ was the Messiah, whose kingdom was so long looked for: but he speaketh in this place of those signs which the Pharisees dreamed of, which looked for an earthly kingdom of Messiah.

¹⁰ You look about for Messiah, as though he were absent, but he is amongst you, in the midst of you.

¹¹ We oftentimes neglect those things when they be present, which we afterward desire when they are gone, but in vain.

¹² The time will come, that you shall seek for the Son of man with great sorrow of heart, and shall not find him.

¹³ Christ forewarneth us, that false Christs shall come, and that his glory shall suddenly be spread far and wide through the world, after that the ignominy of the cross is put out and extinguished.

¹⁴ The world shall be taken unawares with the sudden judgment of God: and therefore the faithful ought to watch continually.

A. D. 28 * Likewise also, as it was in the days of 35 Lot: they ate, they drank, they bought, they

 29 But in the day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven,

 30 After these ensamples shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed.
 31 " At that day he that is upon the house, and his stuff in the house, let him not come down to take it out: and he that is in the field, likewise, let him not turn back to that he left behind.

 AND ¹ he spake also ■ parable unto them, to this end, that they ² ought always to pray, and not to ³ wax faint:

2 ¹ Saying, There was a judge in ■ certain city, which feared not God, neither revered man.

3 And there was a widow in that city, which came unto him, saying, Do me justice against mine adversary.

4 And he would not of a long time: but afterward he said with himself, Though I fear not God, nor reverence man,

5 Yet because this widow troubleth me, I will do her right, lest at the last she come and make me weary.

¹ We must take good heed that neither distrust, nor the inticements of this world, nor any respect of friendship, hinder us the least that may be.

² That is, shall save it, so Matthew expoundeth it: for the life that is here spoken of, is everlasting salvation.

³ The only way to continue, is to cleave to Christ.

⁴ God will have us to continue in prayer, not to weary us, but ■ exercise us; therefore we must so strive with impatience, that long delay cause us not to break off the course of our prayers.

⁵ Yield to afflictions and adversities, ■ they do which are out of heart.

⁶ He doth not compare things that are equal, together, but the less with the greater: if a ■ get his right ■ a most unrighteous judge's hands, much more shall the prayers of the godly prevail before God.

⁷ Word for word, beat me down with her blows, and it is a metaphor taken of wrestlers, which beat their adversaries with their fists or clubs: so do they that ■ importu-nate, beat the judge's ears with their crying out, even as it were with blows.

⁸ Though he seems slow in revenging the injuries done to his.

6 And the Lord said, Hear what the unrighteous judge saith.

A. D. 33.

7 Now shall not God avenge his elect, which cry day and night unto him, yea, though ⁸ he suffer long for them?

■ I tell you he will avenge them quickly: but when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?

9 ¶ ² He spake also this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were just,
 and despised other.

10 Two men went up into the temple to pray: the one ■ Pharisee, and the other ■ Publican.

11 ³ The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, O God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this Publican.

12 I fast twice in the week: I give tithes of all that ever I possess.

13 But the Publican standing ⁴ afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes to heaven, but smote his breast, saying, O God, be merciful to me a sinner.

14 I tell you, this man departed to his house justified rather than the other: * for every man that exalteth himself shall be brought low, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

* Ch. 14. 11.
 * Mat. 23. 12.

15 ¶ ⁵ They brought unto him also babes, that he should touch them. ⁶ And when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them.

* Mat. 19. 13.
 * Mark 10. 13.

16 ⁷ But Jesus ⁸ called them unto him, and said, Suffer the babes to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.

17 ⁹ Verily I say unto you, whosoever receiv-eth not the kingdom of God ■ ■ babe, he shall not enter therein.

18 ■ Then ■ certain ruler asked him, saying,
 Good master, what ought I to do, to inherit eternal life?

* Mat. 19. 16.
 * Mark 10. 17.

19 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? none is good, save one, even God.

20 Thou knowest the commandments, *
 Thou shalt not commit adultery: Thou shalt not kill: Thou shalt not steal: Thou shalt not bear false witness: Honour thy father and thy mother.

* Exod. 20. 13.

21 ⁷ And he said, All these have I kept from my youth.

22 Now when Jesus heard that, he said unto him,

⁴ Two things especially make our prayers void and of ■ effect: confidence of our own righteousness, and the contempt of others: and ■ humble heart is contrary to both these.

⁵ Although we confess that whatsoever ■ have, ■ have it of God; yet ■ despised of God, ■ proud and arrogant, if we put never so little trust in ■ own works before God.

⁶ Far from the Pharisee in ■ lower place.

⁷ The children were tender and young, in that they were brought, which appeareth more evidently in that, that they were infants: which is to be marked against them that ■ enemies ■ the baptizing of children.

⁸ To judge ■ think of Christ after the reason of our flesh, is the cause of infinite corruptions.

⁹ The children also of the faithful are comprehended in the free covenant of God.

¹⁰ Them that carried the children whom the disciples drove away.

 him, Yet lackest thou one thing. Sell all that ever thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come follow me.

23 But when he heard those things, he was very heavy: for he was marvellous rich.

24 ^b And when Jesus saw him very sorrowful, he said, With what difficulty shall they that have riches, enter into the kingdom of God!

25 Surely it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 Then said they that heard it, And who then can be saved?

27 And he said, The things which are impossible with men, are possible with God.

17 And he said unto him, Well, good servant: because thou hast been faithful in a very little thing, take thou authority over ten cities.

18 And the second came, saying, Lord, thy piece hath increased five pieces.

19 And to the same he said, Be thou also ruler over five cities.

20 So the other came, and said, Lord, behold thy piece, which I have laid up in a napkin:

21 For I feared thee, because thou art a strait man: thou takest up that thou layest not down, and reapest that thou didst not sow.

22 Then he said unto him, Of thine own mouth will I judge thee, O evil servant. Thou knewest that I am a strait man, taking up that I layed not down, and reaping that I did not sow:

23 Wherefore then gavest thou not my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required it with advantage?

24 And he said to them that stood by, Take from him that piece, and give it to him that hath ten pieces.

25 (And they said unto him, Lord, he hath ten pieces.)

26 * For I say unto you, that unto all them that have, it shall be given: and from him that hath not, even that he hath shall be taken from him.

27 Moreover, those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

28 ¶ And when he had thus spoken, he went forth before, ascending up to Jerusalem.

29 * 7 And it came to pass, when he was come near to Bethphage, and Bethany, besides the mount which is called the mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples, 30 Saying, Go to the town which is before you, wherein soon ye are come, ye shall find a colt tied, whereon never man sat: loose him, and bring him hither.

31 And if any man ask you why ye loose him, thus shall ye say unto him; Because the Lord hath need of him: A. D. 33.

32 So they that were sent went their way, and found it as he had said unto them.

33 And they were loosing the colt, the owner thereof said unto them, Why loose ye the colt?

34 And they said, The Lord hath need of him.

36 And as he went, they spread their clothes in the way.

37 And when he was now come near to the going down of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice, and to praise God with a loud voice, for all the great works that they had seen, 38 Saying, Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest places.

39 Then some of the Pharisees of the company said unto him, Master, rebuke thy disciples.

40 But he answered, and said unto them, I tell you, that if these should hold their peace, the stones would cry.

41 ¶ * 9 And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept for it, 42 saying, O if thou hadst even known at the least in this thy day those things which belong unto thy peace! but now are they hid from thine eyes.

43 For the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side, 44 And shall make thee even with the ground, and thy children which are in thee, and they shall not leave in thee a stone upon a stone, because thou knewest not that season of thy visitation.

first, the Lord, when he cometh, will justly punish them in his time: the other he will bless according to the pains which they have taken: and for the slothful and idle persons, he will punish them the first.

This piece of money which the Grecians used, and was in value about an hundred pence, which is about ten crowns.

Against them which spend their life idly in deliberating, and otherwise, in contemplation.

To the bankers and changers.

The disciples staggered and stayed the matter, but Christ goeth boldly, though death were before his eyes.

Christ sheweth in his person that his kingdom is not of this world.

When they linger which ought to be the chiefest preachers and setters forth of the kingdom of God, he will raise up others extraordinarily in despite of them.

Christ is not simply delighted with the destruction, of the wicked.

Christ breaketh off his speech, which sheweth partly how he was moved with compassion for the destruction of the city that like ensue: and partly to upbraid them for their treachery and stubbornness against him, such as hath lightly been heard of.

At leastwise thou, O Jerusalem, whom this message was properly sent.

If after the slaying of so many prophets, and so often refusing the Lord of the prophets now especially, in this my coming to thee, thou hadst had any regard thyself.

The fit and commodious time is called the day of this city.

That is, those things wherein thy happiness standeth.

That is, this very instant, wherein God visited thee.

Christ sheweth after his entry into Jerusalem by a visible sign, that it is his office enjoined him of his Father to purge the temple.

4 From whence John's baptism was. 9 The wickedness of the priests is noted by the parable of the vineyard and the husbandmen. 21 To give tribute to Cæsar. 27 He convinceth the Sadducees denying the resurrection. 41 How Christ is the Son of David.

AND it came to pass, that on one of those days, as he taught the people in the temple, and preached the gospel, the high priests and the Scribes came upon him, with the elders,

2 And spake unto him, saying, Tell us by what authority thou doest these things, or who is he that hath given thee this authority?

3 And he answered, and said unto them, I also will ask you one thing: tell me therefore:

4 The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men?

5 And they reasoned within themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven, he will say, Why then believed ye him not?

6 But if we shall say, of men, all the people will stone us: for they be persuaded that John was a prophet.

7 Therefore they answered, that they could not tell whence it was.

8 Then Jesus said unto them, Neither tell you by what authority I do these things.

9 ¶ Then began he to speak to the people this parable, A certain man planted a vineyard, and let it forth to husbandmen: and went into a strange country for a great time.

10 And at the time convenient he sent a servant to the husbandmen, that they should give him of the fruit of the vineyard: but the husbandmen did beat him, and sent him away empty.

11 Again he sent yet another servant: and they did beat him, and foully intreated him, and sent him away empty.

12 Moreover he sent the third, and him they wounded, and cast out.

13 Then said the lord of the vineyard, What shall I do? I will send my beloved son: it may be that they will do reverence, when they see him.

14 But when the husbandmen saw him, they reasoned with themselves, saying, This is the heir: come, let us kill him, that the inheritance may be ours.

15 So they cast him out of the vineyard, and killed him. What shall the lord of the vineyard therefore do unto them?

16 He will come and destroy these husbandmen, and will give out his vineyard to others. But when they heard it, they said, God forbid.

17 ¶ And he beheld them, and said, What

23 But he perceived their craftiness, and said unto them, Why tempt ye me?

25 Then he said unto them, ¶ Give then unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's, and to God those which are God's. * Rom. 13. 7.

26 And they could not reprove his saying before the people: but they marvelled at his answer, and held their peace.

30 And the second took the wife, and he died childless.

31 Then the third took her: and so likewise the seven died, and left no children.

32 And last of all the woman died also.

33 Therefore at the resurrection, whose wife of them shall she be? for seven had her to wife.

34 Then Jesus answered, and said unto them, The children of this world marry wives, and are married.

35 But they which shall be counted worthy to enjoy that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry wives, neither are married.

36 For they can die no more, forasmuch as they are equal unto the angels, and are the sons of 39 Then certain of the Scribes answered, and said, Master, thou hast well said.

40 And after that, durst they not ask him any thing at all.

41 * 5 Then said he unto them, How say they that Christ is David's son?

42 And David himself saith in the book of the Psalms, * The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit at my right hand,

1 The widow's liberality above her riches. 5 Of the time of the destruction of the temple, 19 and Jerusalem. 25 The signs going before the last judgment.

1. AND * 1 as he beheld, he saw the rich men which cast their gifts into the treasury.

2 And he saw also certain poor widow, which cast in thither two mites:

3 And he said, Of truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all.

4 For they all have of their superfluity cast into the offerings of God: but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had.

5 * 2 Now some spake of the temple, how it was garnished with goodly stones, and with consecrated things, he said,

6 Are these the things that ye look upon? the days will come wherein stone shall not be left upon stone that shall not be thrown down.

7 Then they asked him, saying, Master, but when shall these things be? and what sign shall

¶ That is, men partakers of the resurrection: for we say truly that they shall live indeed, which shall enjoy everlasting bliss, so do they rise indeed, which rise in life; though if this word resurrection be taken generally, it belongeth also to the wicked, which shall rise in condemnation, which is properly life, but death.

1 That is, before him: a notable saying, the godly do not die, though they die here on earth.

2 Christ is so the son of David, according to the flesh, that he is also his Lord (because he is the everlasting Son of God) according to the Spirit.

3 We must avoid the example of the ambitious and covetous pastors.

4 This is spoken, by the figure Metonymia, houses, for the goods and substance.

9 3 And when ye hear of wars and seditions, be not afraid: for these things must first come, but the end followeth not by and by.

10 Then said he unto them, Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom.

11 * And great earthquakes shall be in divers places, and hunger, and pestilence, and fearful things, and great signs shall there be from heaven.

12 But before all these, they shall lay their hands on you, and persecute you, delivering you up to the assemblies, and into prisons, and bring you before kings and rulers for my name's sake.

13 And this shall turn to you for testimonial.

14 Lay it up therefore in your hearts, that ye cast not beforehand what ye shall answer.

15 For I will give you mouth, and wisdom, where against all your adversaries shall not be able to speak nor resist.

16 Yea, ye shall be betrayed also of your parents, and of your brethren, and kinsmen, and friends, and some of you shall they put to death.

17 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake.

21 Then let them which are in Judea flee to the mountains: and let them which are in the midst thereof depart out: and let not them that are in the country, enter therein.

22 For these be the days of vengeance, to fulfil all things that are written.

23 But woe be to them that be with child, and to them that give suck in those days: for there shall be great distress in this land, and wrath over this people.

24 And they shall fall on the edge of the sword, and shall be led captives into all nations, and Jerusalem shall be trodden under foot of the Gentiles, until the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled.

38 And all the people came in the morning to him, to hear him in the temple.

3 Judas selleth Christ. 7 The apostles prepare the passover. 24 They strive who shall be chiefest. 31 Satan desireth them. 35 Christ sweareth that they wanted nothing. 42 He prayeth in the mount. 44 He sweateth blood. 50 Malchus's ear cut off, and healed. 57, 58, 60 Peter denieth Christ thrice. 63 Christ is mocked, and stricken. 69 He confesseth himself to be the Son of God.

33. NOW^a the^b feast of unleavened bread drew near, which is called the passover.

^a After divers tempests, the Lord will at the length plainly appear to deliver his church.

^b We must be sober and watchful both day and night for the Lord's coming, that we be not taken at unawares.

^c On all men wherefoever they be.

^d You may so appear, that you will abide the countenance and sentence of the judge without fear.

^e Christ is taken upon the day of the passover, rather by the providence of his Father, than by the will of man.

^f God by his wonderful providence causeth him to be the minister of our salvation, who is the author of our destruction.

^g They that had the charge of keeping the temple, which were none of the priests and bishops, as appeareth by the 5d verse of this chapter.

^h Without tumult, unwitting to the people which used to follow him: and therefore indeed they watched their time, when they knew he was alone in the garden.

ⁱ Christ teacheth his disciples by a manifest miracle, that although he be going to be crucified, yet nothing is hid from him: and therefore that he goeth willingly to death.

^k By the order appointed by the law.

^l The Lamb which is the figure of the passover. And

2 And the high priests and Scribes sought how they might kill him: for they feared the people.

3^m Then entered Satan into Judas, who was called Iscariot, and was of the number of the twelve.

4 And he went his way, and communed with the high priests and captains, how he might betray him to them.

5 So they were glad, and agreed to give him money.

6 And he consented, and sought opportunity to betray him unto them, when the people were away.

7 ¶ Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the passover must be sacrificed.

8 And he sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat it.

9 And they said unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare it?

10 Then he said unto them, Behold, when ye be entered into the city, there shall a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water: follow him into the house that he entereth in,

11 And say unto the good man of the house, The Master saith unto thee, where is the lodging where I shall eat my passover with my disciples?

12 Then he shall shew you a great high chamber trimmed: there make it ready.

13 So they went, and found as he had said unto them, and made ready the passover.

14ⁿ And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him.

15 Then he said unto them, I have earnestly desired to eat this passover with you, before I suffer.

16 For I say unto you, Henceforth I will not eat of it any more, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.

17 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among you.

18 For I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God be come.

19^o And he took bread, and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave to them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: do this in remembrance of me.

20 Likewise also after supper he took the cup, saying, This cup is that New Testament in my blood, which is shed for you.

21 Yet

this is spoken by the figure Metonymia, which is very usual in the matter of the sacraments.

^a Christ having ended the passover according to the order of the law: forewarneth them that this shall be his last banquet with them, after the manner and necessity of this life.

^b The evening and twilight, at what time this supper was to be kept.

^c I am put to death.

^d Christ establisheth his new covenant, and his communicating with us with new signs.

^e Here is a double metonymia: for first, the vessel is taken for that which is contained in the vessel; as the cup, for the wine which is within the cup. Then the wine is called the Covenant or Testament, whereas indeed it is but the sign of the testament, or rather of the blood of Christ whereby the testament was made: neither is it a vain sign, although it be not all one with the thing that it representeth.

^f This word, That, sheweth the excellency of the testament, and answereth to the place of Jeremiah, chap. 31. 31. where the New Testament is promised.

A. D. 21 * 6 Yet behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me, is with me at the table.

22 7 And truly the Son of man goeth as it is appointed: but woe be to that man, by whom he is betrayed.

23 Then they began to enquire among themselves, which of them it should be, that should do that.

24 ¶ * 8 And there arose also strife among them, which of them should seem to be the greatest.

25 But he said unto them, The kings of the Gentiles reign over them, and they that bear rule over them, are called ^k bountiful.

26 But ye shall not be so: but let the greatest among you be as the least: and the chiefest as he that serveth.

27 For who is greater, he that sitteth at table, or he that serveth? Is not he that sitteth at table? And I am among you as he that serveth.

28 9 And ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations.

29 Therefore I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my father hath appointed unto me, 30 * That ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on seats, and judge the twelve tribes of Israel.

31 ¶ 10 And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold, ^s Satan hath desired you, ¹ to winnow you as wheat.

32 11 But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not: therefore when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren.

33 * 12 And he said unto him, Lord, I am ready to go with thee into prison, and to death.

34 But he said, I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before thou hast thrice denied that thou knewest me.

35 ¶ And he said unto them, * When I sent you without bag, and scrip, and shoes, lacked ye any thing? And they said, Nothing.

36 ^m Then he said to them, But now he that hath a bag, let him take it, and likewise a scrip: and he that hath none, let him sell his coat, and buy a sword,

37 For I say unto you, That yet the same which is written, must be performed in me, ² Even with the wicked was he numbered: for doubtless those things which are written of me, A. D. 33. have an end. 33.

38 And they said, Lord, behold, here are two swords. And he said unto them, It is enough.

39 ¶ And he came out, and went (as he was wont) to the mount of Olives: and his disciples also followed him.

40 * 13 And when he came to the place, he said to them, Pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

41 14 And he was drawn aside from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed, 42 Saying, Father, if thou wilt, take away this cup from me: nevertheless, not my will, but thine be done.

43 And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, comforting him.

44 But being in an agony, he prayed more earnestly: and his sweat was like drops of blood, trickling down to the ground.

45 15 And he rose up from prayer, and came to his disciples, and found them sleeping for heaviness, 46 And he said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

47 ¶ * 16 And while he yet spake, behold, a company, and he that was called Judas one of the twelve, went before them, and came near unto Jesus to kiss him.

48 And Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?

49 17 Now when they which were about him saw what would follow, they said unto him Lord, shall we smite with the sword?

50 And one of them smote a servant of the high priest, and struck off his ear.

51 Then Jesus answered, and said, Suffer them thus far: and he touched his ear, and healed him.

52 18 Then Jesus said unto the high priests, and captains of the temple, and the elders which were come to him, Be ye come out as unto a thief with swords and staves?

53 When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched not forth the hands against me: but this is your very hour, and the power of darkness.

54 Then

6 Christ sheweth again that he goeth to death willingly, although he be not ignorant of Judas's treason.

7 That is, his practice, so use the Hebrew word to speak, Kings 14. 19. Is not the hand of Joab in this matter?

8 Although the decree of God's providence come necessarily to pass, yet it excuseth not the fault of the instruments.

9 The pastors are not called to rule, but to serve.

10 Have great titles, for so it was the custom to honour princes with some great titles.

11 Such as are partakers of the afflictions of Christ, shall also be partakers of his kingdom.

12 We must always think upon the wail that Satan layeth for us.

13 To toss you and scatter you, and also to cast you out.

14 It is through the prayers of Christ, that the elect do never utterly fall away from the faith: and that for this cause, that they should stir up one another.

15 Christ sheweth that faith differeth much from vain security, in setting before us the grievous example of Peter.

16 All this talk is by way of an allegory, if he said, O my friends and fellow soldiers, you have lived hitherto as it were in peace: but now there is most sharp battle at hand to be fought, and therefore you must lay all other things aside, and think upon furnishing yourselves in armour. And what this armour is, he shewed by his example, when he prayed afterwards in the garden, and reproved Peter for striking with the sword.

17 Christ hath made death acceptable unto us, by overcoming in our stead all the horrors of death which had joined with them the curse of God.

14 Prayers are a sure succour against the most perilous assaults of our enemies.

15 This agony sheweth that Christ strove much, and was in great distress: for Christ strives not only with the fears of death as other use to do, for so many martyrs might seem constant than Christ, but with the fearful judgment of his angry Father, which is the fearfullest thing in the world; and the matter was, for that he took the burden of all sins upon himself.

16 These do not only shew that Christ true man, but other things also which the godly have to consider of, wherein the secret of the redemption of all mankind is contained in the Son of God his debasing himself to the state of a servant: such things as a man sufficiently declare.

17 Men are utterly sluggish, even in their greatest dangers, until Christ stir them up.

18 Christ is willingly betrayed and taken, that by his obedience he might deliver us, which were guilty for the betraying of God's glory.

19 That zeal which carrieth out of the bounds of our vocation pleaseth not Christ.

20 Even the very fear of them which took Christ proveth partly their evil conscience, and partly also that all these things were done by God's providence.

21 The power that was given to darkness oppress the light for a season.

A. D. 54 ¶ Then took they him, and led him and brought him to the high priest's house. 19 And Peter followed afar off.

55 ¶ And when they had kindled a fire in the midlt of the hall, and were set down together, Peter also sat down among them.

56 And a certain maid beheld him he sat by the fire, and having well looked on him, said, This man was also with him.

57 But he denied him, saying, Woman, I know him not.

58 And after a little while, another man saw him, and said, Thou art also of them. But Peter said, Man, I am not.

59 And about the space of an hour after, a certain other affirmed, saying, Verily, even this man was with him: for he is also Galilean.

60 And Peter said, Man, I know not what thou sayest. And immediately while he yet spake, the cock crew.

61 Then the Lord turned back, and looked upon Peter: and Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he said unto him, before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.

62 And Peter went out, and wept bitterly.

63 ¶ And the men that held Jesus, mocked him, and struck him.

64 And when they had blindfolded him, they smote him the face, and asked him, saying, Prophecy who it is that smote thee.

65 And many other things blasphemously spake they against him.

66 ¶ And as soon as it was day, the elders of the people, and the high priests, and the Scribes came together, and led him into their council, 67 Saying, Art thou that Christ? tell us. And he said unto them, If I tell you, ye will not believe it.

68 And if also I ask you, ye will not answer me, nor let me go.

69 Hereafter shall the Son of man sit at the right hand of the power of God.

70 Then said they all, Art thou then the Son of God? And he said to them, Ye say, that I am.

71 Then said they, What need we any further witness? for we ourselves have heard it of his own mouth.

C H A P. XXIII.

1 He is accused before Pilate. 7 He is sent to Herod. 11 He is mocked. 24 Pilate yieldeth him up to the Jews request. 27 The women bewail him. 33 He is crucified. 39 One of the thieves revileth him. 43 The other is saved by faith. 45 He dieth. 53 He is buried.

THEN the whole multitude of them arose, and led him unto Pilate.

2 And they began to accuse him, saying, We have found this man perverting the nation, and forbidding to pay tribute to Cæsar, saying, That he is Christ, a king.

3 ¶ And Pilate asked him, saying, Art thou the king of the Jews? And he answered him, and said, Thou sayest it.

4 Then said Pilate to the high priests, and to the people, I find no fault in this man.

5 But they were the more fierce, saying, He moveth the people, teaching throughout all Judea, beginning Galilee, even to this place.

6 ¶ Now when Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilean.

7 And when he knew that he was of Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, which was also at Jerusalem in those days.

¶ And when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceedingly glad: for he was desirous to see him of long season, because he had heard many things of him, and trusted to have seen some sign done by him.

9 Then questioned he with him of many things: but he answered him nothing.

10 The high priests also and the Scribes stood forth, and accused him vehemently.

11 And Herod with his men of war, despised him, and mocked him, and arrayed him in white, and sent him again to Pilate.

12 ¶ And the same day Pilate and Herod were made friends together: for before they were enemies one to another.

13 ¶ Then Pilate called together the high priests, and the rulers, and the people,

14 ¶ And said unto them, Ye have brought this man unto me, as one that perverted the people: and behold, I have examined him before you, and have found no fault in this man, of those things whereof ye accuse him:

15 Neither yet Herod: for I sent you to him: and behold, nothing worthy of death is done of him.

16 ¶ I will therefore chastise him, and let him loose.

17 (For of necessity he must have let one loose unto them at the feast)

18 Then all the multitude cried at once, saying, Away with him, and deliver unto us Barabbas.

19 Which for a certain insurrection made in the city, and murder, was cast into prison.

20 Then Pilate made again them, willing to let Jesus loose.

21 But they cried, saying, Crucify, crucify him.

22 And

19 We have behold in Peter an example both of the frailty of man's nature, and of the singular goodness of God towards his elect.

20 Christ bare the shame that is due to our sins.

¶ Christ is wrongfully condemned of blasphemy before the high priests judgment seat, that he might be quit before God from the blasphemy which we deserved.

¶ Christ who is ready to suffer for the sedition which we raised in this world, is first of all pronounced guiltless, that it might appear that he suffered not for his own sins, (which were none) but for ours.

¶ Corrupting the people, and leading them into errors.

2 Christ is a laughing-stock of princes, but their great smart.

¶ This Herod Antipas, the tetrarch, in the time of whose government, which was almost the space of 22 years,

John the Baptist preached, and was put to death, and Jesus Christ also died and rose again, and the apostles began to preach, and divers things were done at Jerusalem, almost seven years after Christ's death. This Herod was sent into banishment to Lyons, about the second year of Caius Cæsar.

¶ Accompanied with his nobles and soldiers, which followed him from Galilee.

3 The hatred of godliness joineth the wicked together.

¶ Christ is quit the second time, even of him of whom he is condemned, that it might appear, how he being just, redeemed us which were unjust.

¶ Those whom the Jews called the Sanhedrin.

5 The wisdom of the flesh, of two evils chuseth the less, but God curseth such counsels.

Luke Ch. 23. V. 26

Christ going to be Crucified.

C. Butler sc.

A. D. 33. 22 ⁶ And he said unto them the third time, But what evil hath he done? I find no cause of death in him: I will therefore chastise him, and let him loose.

23 But they were instant with loud voices, and required that he might be crucified: and the voices of them and of the high priests prevailed.

24 So Pilate gave sentence, that it should be as they required.

25 And he let loose unto them him that for insurrection and murder was cast into prison, whom they desired, and delivered Jesus to do with him what they would.

26 ¶ ⁷ And as they led him away, they caught one Simon of Cyrene, coming out of the field, and on him they laid the cross, to bear it after Jesus.

27 ⁸ And there followed him a great multitude of people, and of women, which women bewailed and lamented him.

28 But Jesus turned back unto them, and said, Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children.

29 For behold, the days will come, when men shall say, Blessed are the barren, and the womb that never bare, and the paps that never gave suck.

30 Then shall they begin to say to the mountains, ⁹ Fall on us, and to the hills, Cover us.

31 ¹⁰ For if they do these things to ¹¹ a green tree, what shall be done to the dry?

32 ¹¹ And there were two others, which were evil doers, led with him to be slain.

33 And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the evil doers: one at the right hand, and the other at the left.

34 Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them: for they know not what they do. And they parted his raiment, and cast lots.

35 And the people stood, and beheld: and the rulers mocked him with them, saying, He saved others: let him save himself, if he be that Christ, the chosen of God.

36 The soldiers also mocked him, and came and offered him vinegar, 37 And said, If thou be the king of the Jews, save thyself.

38 ¹² And a superscription also was written over him, in Greek letters, and in Latin, and in Hebrew, THIS IS THAT KING OF THE JEWS.

A. D. 33.

39 ¶ ¹² And one of the evil doers, which were hanged, railed on him, saying, If thou be that Christ, save thyself and us.

40 But the other answered, and rebuked him, saying, Fearest thou not God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation?

41 We are indeed righteously here: for we receive things worthy of that we have done: but this man hath done nothing amiss.

42 And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me, when thou comest into thy kingdom.

43 Then Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, to-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise.

44 ¶ ¹³ And it was about the sixth hour: and there was darkness over all the land, until the ninth hour.

45 ¹⁴ And the sun was darkened, and the vail of the temple rent through the midst.

46 And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and said, ¹⁵ Father, into thine hands I commend my spirit. And when he thus had said, he gave up the ghost.

* Ps. 31. 6.

47 ¶ ¹⁵ Now when the centurion saw what was done, he glorified God, saying, Of a surety this man was just.

48 And all the people that came together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, smote their breasts, and returned.

49 ¹⁶ And all his acquaintance stood afar off, and the women that followed him from Galilee, beholding these things.

50 ¶ ¹⁷ And behold, there was a man named Joseph, which was a counsellor, a good man and a just:

* Matt. 27. 57. Mark 15. 43. John 19. 38.

51 (He did not consent to the counsel and deed of them) which was of Arimathea, a city of the Jews: who also himself waited for the kingdom of God.

52 He went unto Pilate, and asked the body of Jesus, 53 And took it down: and wrapped it in a linen cloth, and laid it in a tomb hewn out of a rock, wherein was never yet laid.

54 And that day was the preparation, and the sabbath drew on.

55 And the women also that followed after, which came with him from Galilee, beheld the sepulchre, and how his body was laid.

⁶ Christ is quit the third time, before he was condemned once, that it might appear how that our sins were condemned in him.

⁷ An example of the outrageousness and disorder of soldiers.

⁸ The triumph of the wicked hath a most horrible end.

⁹ As if he said, If they do thus to ¹⁰ that fruitful and always flourishing, and who live for ever, by reason of my Godhead, what will they do to you that ¹¹ are unfruitful, and void of all lively righteousness!

¹² Christ became accursed for ¹³ upon the cross, suffering the punishment which they deserved that would be God's.

¹⁴ Christ, in praying for his enemies, sheweth that he is both the Sacrifice and the Priest.

¹⁵ Whom God loveth ¹⁶ than all other.

¹⁷ Pilate ¹⁸ unawares is made a preacher of the kingdom of Christ.

¹⁹ Therefore either ²⁰ must take that spoken by Synecdoche, which Matthew saith, ²¹ that both of them mocked Christ. But one of them ²² length, overcome with the great patience of God, brake forth into that confession worthy all memory.

²³ Christ in the midst of the humbling himself upon the cross, sheweth indeed, that he hath both power of life to save the believers, and of death ²⁴ revenge the rebellious.

¹² More than he ought.

¹³ God made the visible Paradise in the east part of the world: but that which we behold with the eyes of our mind is the place of everlasting joy and salvation, through the goodness and mercy of God, a most pleasant rest of the souls of the godly, and a most quiet and joyful dwelling.

¹⁴ Christ being ¹⁵ at the point of death, sheweth himself to be God Almighty, even to the blind.

¹⁶ Christ entereth stoutly into the very darkness of death, for ¹⁷ overcome death even within his most secret places.

¹⁸ Christ causeth his very enemies ¹⁹ give honourable witness ²⁰ his side, so oft as it pleaseth him.

²¹ Christ gathereth together, and defendeth his little flock, in the midst of the tormentors.

²² Christ through his famous burial, confirmeth the truth both of his death and resurrection, by the plain and evident witness of Pilate.

²⁶ Christ being set upon by the devil, and all his instruments, and being even in death's mouth, setteth weak ²⁷ in his fore-ward, minding straightway to triumph over those terrible enemies, without any great endeavour.

A. D. 33. 56 And they returned, and prepared odours, and ointments, and rested the sabbath day according to the commandment.

C H A P. XXIV.

¶ The women came to the sepulchre. 9 They report that which they heard of the angels unto the apostles. 13 Christ doth accompany two going to Emmaus. 27 He expoundeth the scriptures unto them. 29 He offereth himself to his apostles to be handled. 49 He promiseth the Holy Ghost. 51 He is carried up into heaven.

NOW the first day of the week early in the morning, they came to the sepulchre, and brought the odours, which they had prepared, and certain women with them.

2 And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre,

3 And went in, but found not the body of the Lord Jesus.

4 And it came to pass, that as they were amazed thereat, behold, two men suddenly stood by them in shining vestures.

5 And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said to them, Why seek ye him that liveth, among the dead?

6 He is not here, but is risen: remember how he spake unto you, when he was yet in Galilee,

7 Saying, that the Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.

8 And they remembered his words,

9 And returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the remnant.

10 Now it was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women with them, which told these things unto the apostles.

11 But their words seemed unto them as a feigned thing, neither believed they them.

• John 20. 1.

12 Then arose Peter, and ran unto the sepulchre, and looked in, and saw the linen clothes laid by themselves, and departed, wondering in himself at that which was come to pass.

• Mark 16. 22.

13 And behold, two of them went that same day to a town which was from Jerusalem about threescore furlongs, called Emmaus.

14 And they talked together of all these things that were done.

15 And it came to pass, they communed together, and reasoned, that Jesus himself drew near, and went with them.

16 But their eyes were holden, that they could not know him.

17 And he said unto them, What manner of communications are these that ye have one to another as ye walk and are sad?

A. D. 33.

18 And the one (named Cleopas) answered, and said unto him, Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things that are come to pass therein in these days?

19 And he said unto them, What things? And they said unto him, Of Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet, mighty in deed and in word before God, and all the people.

20 And how the high priests and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him.

21 But we trusted that it had been he that should have delivered Israel: and as touching all these things, to-day is the third day, that they were done.

22 Yea, and certain women among us made us astonished, which came early unto the sepulchre, 23 And when they found not his body, they came, saying, that they had also seen a vision of angels, which said, that he was alive.

24 Therefore certain of them which were with us, went to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women said, but him they saw not.

25 Then he said unto them, O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken!

26 Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?

27 And he began at Moses, and at all the prophets, and interpreted unto them in all the scriptures the things which were written of him.

28 And they drew near unto the town which they went to, but he made as though he would have gone further.

29 But they constrained him, saying, Abide with us: for it is towards night, and the day is far spent. So he went in to tarry with them.

30 And it came to pass, he sat at table with them, he took the bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave it to them.

31 Then their eyes were opened, and they knew him: and he was no more seen of them.

32 And they said between themselves, Did not our hearts burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and when he opened to us the scriptures?

33 And they rose up the same hour, and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them, 34 Which said, The Lord is risen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

35 Then they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread.

¶ Poor silly women even beside their expectation chosen to be the first witnesses of the resurrection, that there might be no suspicion either of deceit or violence.

¶ Very early, as Mark saith: John saith, while it was yet dark, that is, when it was yet scarce the dawning of the day.

¶ The cowardly and dastardly mind of the disciples is upbraided by the stout courage of women (so wrought by God's great mercies) to shew that the kingdom of God consisteth in an extraordinary power.

¶ Christ useth the incredulity of his disciples, the fuller setting forth of the truth of his resurrection, lest they should seem to have believed that lightly, which they preached afterward all the world.

¶ As it were holding down his head, and bowing his neck, looked diligently in.

¶ The resurrection is proved by two other witnesses, which saw it, and that it was no forged thing framed of purpose in their own brains, all the circumstances do declare.

¶ Were holden back and stayed, God so appointing it, no doubt: and therefore his body was not invisible, but their eyes were dimmed.

¶ Some of the old fathers think that the other disciple was this our Evangelist, but Epiphanius writing against the Saturnalians saith, it was Nathaniel; but all these are uncertainties.

¶ It appeareth by the conferring of the forewarnings of the prophets, that all these things are true and certain which the evangelists have put down in their writing of Christ.

¶ Suddenly taken away, and therefore we may not imagine that he was there in such a body could not be seen. but believe indeed that he changed his place.

¶ When he brake bread, which that people used, as the Jews use yet at this day at the beginning of their meals, and say prayer.

³⁷ But they were abashed and afraid, supposing that they had seen a spirit.

³⁸ Then he said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and wherefore do ^a doubts arise in your hearts?

³⁹ Behold mine hands and my feet, for it is I myself: handle me and see: for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.

C H A P. I.

¹ That Word begotten of God before all worlds, ² and which was ever with the Father, ¹⁴ is made man. ^{6, 7} For what end John was sent from God. ¹⁶ His preaching of Christ's office. ^{19, 20} The record that he bare given out unto the priests. ⁴⁰ The calling of Andrew, ⁴² of Peter, ⁴³ Philip, ⁴⁵ and Nathaniel.

IN ¹ the ^a beginning ^b was ^c that Word, and that Word was ^d with God, and that ^e Word was God.

¹ The Son of God is of one and the self-same eternity or everlastingness, and of one and the self-same essence or nature with the Father.

² From the beginning, ^{the evangelist saith,} ¹ Epistle 1. 1. as though he said, that the Word began not then to have his being, when God began to make all that was made: for the Word was even then when all things that were made, began to be made, and therefore he was before the beginning of all things.

³ He had his being.

⁴ This word That, pointeth out unto ^{the} peculiar and choice thing above all others, and putteth ^a difference between this Word, which is the Son of God, and the laws of God, which otherwise ^{are} called the word of God.

⁵ This word With, pointeth out the distinction of persons unto us.

⁶ This word (Word) is the first in order in the sentence, and is that which the learned call (Subjectum) and this word (God) is the latter in order, and the same which the learned call (Prædicatum).

⁷ The Son of God declareth that same his everlasting Godhead, both by the creating of all things, and also by the preserving of them, and especially by the excellent gifts of reason and understanding, wherewith he hath beautified man above all other creatures.

² This same was in the beginning with God.

³ ¶ ^{*} ² All ^f things were made by it, and ^{without it} ^h was made nothing that was made. Col. 1. 16.

⁴ ¹ In it ^k was life, and that life was ^l the light of men.

⁵ ³ And that light shineth in the darkness, and the darkness ^m comprehended it not.

⁶ ¶ ⁴ There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. Matt 3. 2. Mark 1. 4. Luke 3. 2.

⁷ This same came for a witness, to bear witness

¹ Paul expoundeth this place, Col. 1. 15. and 16 verses.

² That is, as the Father did work, so did the Son work with him: for, he ^{was} fellow-worker with him.

³ Of all those things which were made, nothing was made without him.

⁴ That is, by him: and it is spoken after the manner of the Hebrews, meaning thereby that by his force and working power, all life cometh to the world.

⁵ To wit, even then, when all things are made by him: for else he would have said, Life is in him, and not life was.

⁶ That force of reason and understanding, which is kindled in ^{the} minds to acknowledge him, the author of so great a benefit.

⁷ The light of ^{the} is turned into darkness, but yet so, that there is clearness enough ^{to} make them without excuse.

⁸ They could ^{not} perceive nor reach unto it, to receive any light of it, no, they did not so much as acknowledge him.

⁹ There is another ^{full} manifestation of the Son of God, to the consideration whereof men ^{are} in good time stirred up, even by John's voice, who is as it were the herald of Christ.

A. D. 30. 29 ¶ The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold that Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.

30 This is he of whom I said, After me cometh a man, which was before me: for he was better than I,

31 And I know him not: but because he should be declared to Israel, therefore am I come, baptizing with water.

32 So John bare record, saying, I beheld that Spirit come down from heaven, like a dove, and it abode upon him.

33 And I knew him not: but he that sent me to baptize with water, he said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit come down, and tarry still on him, that is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost.

34 And I saw, and bare record that this is that Son of God.

35 ¶ The next day John stood again, and two of his disciples

36 And he beheld Jesus walking by, and said, Behold that Lamb of God.

37 And the two disciples heard him speak, and followed Jesus.

38 Then Jesus turned about, and saw them follow, and said unto them, What seek ye? And they said unto him, Rabbi, (which is to say by interpretation, Master) where dwellest thou?

39 He said unto them, Come, and see. They came and saw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day: for it was about the tenth hour.

40 Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, was one of the two which had heard it of John, and that followed him.

41 The same found his brother Simon first, and said unto him, We have found that Messiah, which is by interpretation, that Christ.

42 And he brought him to Jesus, and Jesus beheld him, and said, Thou art Simon the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, a stone.

43 ¶ The day following, Jesus would go into Galilee, and found Philip, and said unto him, Follow me.

44 Now Philip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. A. D. 30.

45 Philip found Nathanael, and said unto him, We have found him of whom Moses did write in the law, and the prophets, Jesus that son of Joseph, that was of Nazareth. Gen. 49. 10. Deut. 18. 18. Isa. 4. 2. and 40. 10. and 45. 8. Jer. 23. 5. and 33. 14. Ezech. 34. 23. and 37. 24. Dan. 2. 24.

46 Then Nathanael said unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip said to him, Come, and see.

47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him, and said of him, Behold indeed an Israelite, in whom is no guile.

48 Nathanael said unto him, Whence knewest thou me? Jesus answered, and said unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig-tree, I saw thee.

49 Nathanael answered, and said unto him, Rabbi, thou art that Son of God: thou art that King of Israel.

50 Jesus answered and said unto him, Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig-tree, believest thou? thou shalt see greater things than these.

51 And he said unto him, Verily, verily I say unto you, hereafter shall ye see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon that Son of man. Gen. 28. 12.

C H A P. II.

1 Christ turneth water into wine, 11 which was the beginning of his miracles. 12 He goeth down to Capernaum, 13 from thence he goeth up to Jerusalem, 15 and casteth the merchandise out of the temple. 19 He foretelleth that the temple, that is, his body, shall be destroyed of the Jews. 23 Many believe in him, seeing the miracles which he did.

AND the third day, was there a marriage in Cana a town of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there.

2 And Jesus was called also, and his disciples unto the marriage.

3 Now when the wine failed, the mother of Jesus said unto him, They have no wine.

4 Jesus said unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come.

11 The body and truth of all the sacrifices of the law, to make satisfaction for the sin of the world, is in Christ.

12 This word (that) which is added, hath great force in it, not only set forth the worthiness of Christ, and so separate him from the lamb, which was a figure of him, and from all other sacrifices of the law, but also bring into our minds the prophecies of Isaiah and others.

13 This word, of the present time, signifieth continual act, for the Lamb hath this virtue proper unto him, and for ever, to take away the sins of the world.

14 That is, that root of sins, wit, our corruption, and so consequently the fruits of sin, which commonly called in the plural number, sins.

15 I never knew him by face before.

16 Christ is proved to be the Son of God, by the coming down of the Holy Ghost, by the Father's voice, and by John's testimony.

17 This word (that) pointeth out unto us some excellent thing, and maketh difference between Christ and others, whom Moses and the prophets commonly call the sons of God, or the sons of the most High.

18 John gathereth disciples not to himself, but Christ.

19 Christ is set before us to follow, not as a vain shadow, but our Mediator.

20 In this first gathering of the disciples, we have shewed unto us, that the beginning of salvation is from God, who calleth us unto his Son by the ministry of his servants: whom (to preventing us) we must also hear, and follow him home, that being instructed by him, we may also instruct others.

21 Where is thy lodging?

22 The night grew on.

23 That is, anointed, and king, after the manner of the Jewish people.

24 The good endeavours even of the unlearned, God doth so allow, that he maketh them masters to the learned.

25 We must especially take heed of false presumptions, which shut up against the entrance to Christ.

26 Simple uprightnes discerneth the true Israelites from the false.

27 The end of miracles, is to set before us Christ the Almighty, and also the only author of our salvation, that we may apprehend him by faith.

28 By these words the power of God is signified, which should appear in his ministry by the angels serving him as the head of the church.

29 Christ declaring openly in an assembly by a notable miracle that he hath power over the nature of things feed man's body, leadeth the minds of all to his spiritual and saving virtue and power.

30 After the talk which he had with Nathanael, or after that he departed from John, after that he came into Galilee.

31 Christ is careful enough of our salvation, and therefore hath need of others to put him in mind of it.

32 Mine appointed time.

A. D. 30. 5 His mother said unto the servants, Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it.

6 And there were set there, six ^c water-pots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three ^c firkins a-piece.

7 And Jesus said unto them, Fill the water-pots with water. Then they filled them up to the brim.

8 Then he said unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. So they bare it.

9 Now when the governor of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, (for he knew not whence it was, but the servants, which drew the water, knew) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom,

10 And said unto him, All men at the beginning set forth good wine, and when men have ^h well drunk, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept back the good wine until now.

11 This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana, a town of Galilee, and shewed forth his glory: and his disciples believed on him.

12 After that, he went down into Capernaum, he and his mother, and his ⁱ brethren, and his disciples: but they continued not many days there:

13 ⁱ For the Jews passover was at hand. Therefore Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

14 ^h And he found in the temple those that sold oxen, and sheep, and doves, and changers of money, sitting ^{there}.

15 Then he made a scourge of small cords, and drove them all out of the temple, with the sheep and oxen, and poured out the changers money, and overthrew the tables:

16 And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence: make not my Father's house an house of merchandise.

17 And his disciples remembered, that it was written, ^h The ^h zeal of thine house hath eaten me up.

18 ⁱ Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, What ^h sign shewest thou unto us, that thou doest these things?

19 Jesus answered, and said unto them, ^h Destroy this temple, and in three days I will arise it up again.

^c These were vessels appointed for water, wherein they washed themselves.

^h Every firkin contained an hundred pounds, at twelve ounces the pound: whereby we gather that Christ helped them with a thousand and eight hundred pounds of wine.

^c Word for word, ^h drunken. Now this speech, ^h be drunken, is not always taken in evil part in the Hebrew tongue, but signifieth sometimes such store and plentiful use of wine, as doth not pass measure, as Gen. 43. 34.

ⁱ That is, his cousins.

ⁱ Christ being made subject to the law for us, satisfieth the law of the passover.

^h Christ being ordained to purge the church, doth with great zeal begin his office both of priest and prophet.

^h Zeal in this place is taken for a wrathful indignation and displeasure of the mind, conceived of some naughty and evil dealing towards them whom we love well.

ⁱ Against them which so bind God to an ordinary calling, which they themselves most shamefully abuse, that they will not admit an extraordinary, which God confirmeth from heaven (and they, although in vain, would have it extinguished) unless it be sealed with outward and bodily miracles.

^h With what miracle dost thou confirm it, that we may see that heavenly power and virtue, which giveth thee authority to speak and do thus?

ⁱ That is, of his body.

^h It is not good crediting them, which stand only upon miracles.

^h Christ is the searcher of hearts, and therefore true God.

20 Then said the Jews, Forty and six years ^h this temple ^h building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days? A. D. 30.

21 But he spake of the ⁱ temple of his body.

22 As soon therefore as he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he thus said unto them: and they believed the scripture, and the word that Jesus had said.

23 Now when he was at Jerusalem, at the passover in the feast, many believed in his name, when they saw his miracles which he did.

24 ^h But Jesus did not commit himself unto them, because he knew them all,

25 ⁱ And had not need that any should testify of man: for he knew what was in man.

C H A P. III.

ⁱ Christ teacheth Nicodemus the very principles of christian religion. 14 The serpent in the wilderness. 23 John baptizeth, 27 and teacheth his, that he is not Christ.

THERE ⁱ was now a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ^h ruler of the Jews.

2 This ^h man came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art ^h teacher come from God: for no man could do these miracles that thou doest, ^c except God were with him.

3 ^h Jesus answered, and said unto him, Verily, verily I say unto thee, except ^h man be born again, he cannot ^h see the ^c kingdom of God.

4 Nicodemus said unto him, How ⁱ can ^h be born which is old? can he enter into his mother's womb again, and be born?

5 Jesus answered, Verily, verily I say unto thee, except that a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

6 That which is born of the flesh, ^h is flesh: and that which is born of the Spirit, is spirit.

7 Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again.

8 The wind bloweth where it ^h listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence

^h There ^h none sometimes more unlearned than the learned: but ^h well the learned as the unlearned must desire wisdom of Christ only.

^h A man of great estimation, and a ruler amongst the Jews.

^h We know that thou art sent from God to teach us.

^c But he in whom some part of the excellency of God appeareth. And if Nicodemus had known Christ aright, he would not only have said that God was with him, but in him, as Paul doth, ^h Cor. 1. 19.

^h The beginning of Christianity consisteth in this, that we know ourselves not only to be corrupt in part, but ^h be wholly dead in sin: so that our nature hath need ^h be created anew, ^h touching the qualities thereof: which can be done by ^h other virtue, but by the divine and heavenly, whereby we were first created.

ⁱ That is, go in, or enter, ^h he expoundeth himself afterward, ver. 5.

^c The church: for Christ sheweth in this place, how ^h come to be citizens, and to have aught ^h do in the city of God.

ⁱ How ^h that ^h old be born again? for he answereth as if Christ his words belonged to none but to him.

ⁱ That is, fleshly, to wit, wholly unclean, and under the wrath of God: and therefore this word (flesh) signifieth the corrupt nature of man: contrary to which is the (spirit) that is, the ^h ingrafted into Christ through the grace of the Holy Ghost, whose nature is everlasting and immortal, though the strife of the flesh remaine ^h.

^h With free and wandering blasts as it listeth.

Christ teaching Nicodemus John C. 3 v. 7.

YE MUST BE BORN AGAIN.

Barber's

A. D. 30. whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every man that is born of the Spirit.

9¹ Nicodemus answered, and said unto him, How can these things be?

10 Jesus answered, and said unto him, Art thou a teacher of Israel, and knowest not these things?

11 Verily, verily I say unto thee, We speak that we know, and testify that we have seen: but ye receive not our witness.

12 If when I tell you earthly things, ye believe not, how should ye believe, if I shall tell you of heavenly things?

13 For no man ascendeth up to heaven, but he that hath descended from heaven, that Son of man which is in heaven.

14 And as Moses lift up the serpent in the wilderness, so must that Son of man be lift up, 15 That whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have eternal life.

16 For God so loved the world, that he hath given his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have everlasting life.

17 For God sent not his Son into the world, that he should condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved.

18 He that believeth in him, is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of that only begotten Son of God.

19 And this is the condemnation, that that light came into the world, and men loved darkness rather than that light, because their deeds were evil.

20 For every man that evil doth, hateth the light: neither cometh to light, lest his deeds should be reproved.

21 But he that doth truth, cometh to the light, that his deeds might be made manifest, that they are wrought according to God.

22 After these things, came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judea, and there tarried with them, and baptized.

23 And John also baptized in Enon beside-

Salim, because there was much water there: and they came, and were baptized.

24 For John was not yet cast into prison.

25 Then there arose a question between John's disciples and the Jews, about purifying.

26 And they came unto John, and said unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, to whom thou barest witness, behold, he baptizeth, and all men come to him.

27 John answered, and said, A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven.

28 Ye yourselves are my witnesses, that I said, I am not that Christ, but that I am sent before him.

29 He that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom, which standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly, because of the bridegroom's voice. This my joy therefore is fulfilled.

30 He must increase, but I must decrease.

31 He that is come from on high, is above all: he that is of the earth, of the earth, and speaketh of the earth: he that is come from heaven, is above all.

32 And what he hath seen and heard, that he testifieth: but no man receiveth his testimony.

33 He that hath received his testimony, hath sealed that God is true.

34 For he whom God hath sent, speaketh the words of God: for God giveth him not the Spirit by measure.

35 The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand.

36 He that believeth in the Son, hath everlasting life, and he that obeyeth not the Son, shall not see life: but the wrath of God abideth him.

NOW

Nazianzen, in his oration of the Spirit.

6 Not Christ, but the despising of Christ, doth condemn.

7 That is, be the cause of condemning of the world, for indeed sins are the cause of death, but Christ shall judge the quick and the dead.

8 Not only the people of the Jews, but whosoever shall believe in him.

9 Only wickedness is the cause, why refuse the light that is offered them.

10 That is, the cause of condemnation which sticketh fast in men, unless through God's great benefit they be delivered from it.

11 That is, he that leadeth honest life, and void of all craft and deceit.

12 That is, with God, God is it going before.

13 Satan inflameth the disciples of John with fond emulation of their master, hinder the course of the gospel, but John being mindful of his office, doth not only break off their endeavours; but also taketh occasion thereby give testimony of Christ, how that in him only the Father hath set forth life everlasting.

14 What do you to go about to better my estate? this is, every man's lot and portion, that they cannot better themselves jot.

15 Is nothing else but man, a piece of work made of the slime of the earth.

16 Savoureth of nothing else but corruption, ignorance, dulness, &c.

17 What he knoweth fully and perfectly.

18 That is, very few.

19 Committed them to his power and will.

20 Shall not enjoy.

1 The secret mystery of our regeneration, which cannot be comprehended by man's capacity, is perceived by faith, and that in Christ only, because that he is both God on earth and man in heaven, that is say, in such sort man, that he is God also, and therefore Almighty; and in such sort God, that he is also, and therefore his power is manifest unto us.

2 You handle doubtful things, and such as you have certain author for, and yet men believe you: but I teach those things that are of truth and well known, and you believe me not.

3 Only Christ teach us heavenly things, for no man ascendeth, &c.

4 That is, hath any spiritual light and understanding, or ever had, but only that Son of God, which came down to us.

5 Whereas he is said to have come down from heaven, that must he understood of his Godhead, and of the manner of his conception: for Christ his birth upon the earth was heavenly and not earthly, for he was conceived by the Holy Ghost.

6 That which is proper to the divinity of Christ, is here spoken of whole Christ, to give us to understand that he is but one Person wherein two natures are united, and this kind of speech men call, the communicating of properties.

7 Nothing else but the free love of the Father, is the beginning of our salvation, and Christ is he in whom our righteousness and salvation is resident; and faith is the instrument or mean whereby we apprehend it, and life everlasting is that which is set before us to apprehend.

8 It is not all one to believe in a thing, and to believe of a thing, for we may not believe (in any thing) save only in God; but we may believe (of any thing) whatsoever, faith

A. D. 30.
 NOW ¹ when the Lord knew how the Pharisees had heard, that Jesus made ² and baptized more disciples than John,
 (Though Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples)
 He left Judea, and departed again into Galilee.
 And he must needs go through Samaria.
 Then he came to a city of Samaria, called Sychar, near unto the possession that Jacob gave to his son Joseph.
 And there was Jacob's well. Jesus then, wearied in the journey, sat thus on the well: it was about the sixth hour.
 There came a woman of Samaria to draw water. Jesus said unto her, Give me drink.
 For his disciples were gone away into the city, to buy meat.
 Then said the woman of Samaria unto him, How is it that thou, being a Jew, askest drink of me, which am a woman of Samaria? for the Jews meddle not with the Samaritans.
 Jesus answered, and said unto her, If thou knewest that gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me drink, thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee water of life.
 The woman said unto him, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep: from whence then hast thou that water of life?
 Art thou greater than our father Jacob, which gave us the well, and he himself drank thereof, and his sons, and his cattle?
 Jesus answered, and said unto her, Whosoever drinketh of this water, shall thirst again:
 But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him, shall never be more a-thirst: but the water that I shall give him, shall be in him a well of water, springing up into everlasting life.
 The woman said unto him, Sir, give me of that water, that I may not thirst, neither come hither to draw.
 Jesus said unto her, Go, call thine husband, and come hither.
 The woman answered, and said, I have no husband. Jesus said unto her, Thou hast well said, I have no husband.
 For thou hast had five husbands, and he whom thou now hast, is not thine husband: that saidst thou truly.

19 The woman said unto him, Sir, I see that thou art prophet.
 20 Our fathers worshipped in this mountain, and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.
 21 Jesus said unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor at Jerusalem, worship the Father.
 22 Ye worship that which ye know not: we worship that which we know: for salvation is of the Jews.
 23 But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth: for the Father requireth even such to worship him.
 24 God is a spirit: and they that worship him, must worship him in spirit and truth.
 25 The woman said unto him, I know well that Messias shall come, which is called Christ: when he is come, he will tell all things.
 26 Jesus said unto her, I am he, that speak unto thee.
 ¶ And upon that, came his disciples, and marvelled that he talked with a woman: yet no man said unto him, What askest thou? or why talkest thou with her?
 28 The woman then left her water-pot, and went her way into the city, and said to the men, 29 Come, see a man which hath told me all things that ever I did, Is not he that Christ?
 30 Then they went out of the city, and came unto him.
 ¶ In the mean while, the disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eat.
 32 But he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of.
 33 Then said the disciples between themselves, Hath any man brought him meat?
 34 Jesus said unto them, My meat is, that I may do the will of him that sent me, and finish his work.
 35 Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the regions: for they are white already unto harvest.
 36 And he that reapeth, receiveth reward, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal, that both he that soweth, and he that reapeth, might rejoice together.

37 For

² Christ leaving the proud Pharisees, communicateth the treasures of everlasting life with a poor sinful stranger, refelling the gross errors of the Samaritans, and defending the true service of God, which was delivered to the Jews, but yet so that he calleth both of them back to himself, as one, whom only all the fathers, and also the ceremonies of the law, did regard, and had a respect unto.

³ Even as he was weary, or because he was weary.

⁴ It was almost noon.

⁵ There is no familiarity nor friendship between the Jews and the Samaritans.

⁶ By this word, That, we are given to understand, that Christ speaketh of some excellent gift, that is to say, even of himself, whom his Father offered to this woman.

⁷ This everlasting water, that is to say, the exceeding love of God, is called living, or of life, to make a difference between it, and the water that should be drawn of a well; and these metaphors are very much used of the Jews, Jer. 2. 13. Joel 3. 18. Zech. 13. 11.

⁸ All the religion of superstitious people standeth, for the most part, upon two pillars, but very weak, that is to say, upon the examples of the fathers perverted, and a foolish opinion of outward things: against which error: we have to set the word and nature of God.

⁹ The name of this mountain is Gerezim, whereupon Sannaballetta the Cuthite built a temple by Alexander of Macedon his leave, after the victory of Jessica: and made there Manasses his son-in-law high priest, Joseph. book 11.

¹⁰ This word (Spirit) is to be taken here, it is set against that commandment which is called carnal, Heb. 7. 16. as the commandment is considered in itself: and so he speaketh of (Truth) not as we set it against a lye, but as we take it in respect of the outward ceremonies of the law, which did only shadow that which Christ performed in deed.

¹¹ By the word (Spirit) he meaneth the nature of the God-head, and the third Person in the Trinity.

¹² We may have care of our bodies, but yet so, that we prefer willingly and freely the occasion which is offered us to enlarge the kingdom of God: before all necessities of this life whatsoever.

¹³ When the spiritual is ripe, we must not linger, for so the children of this world would condemn us.

¹⁴ The doctrine of the prophets was, as it were, a sowing time: and the doctrine of the gospel, the harvest: and there is an excellent agreement between them both, and the ministers of them both.

CHRIST conversing with the woman of Samaria.

J. Burdor sculpt.

A. D. 37 For herein is the¹ saying true, that one soweth, and another reapeth.

38 I sent you to reap that, whereon ye bestowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours.

39 Now many of the Samaritans of that city believed in him, for the saying of the woman, which testified, He hath told me all things that ever I did.

40 Then when the Samaritans were come unto him, they besought him that he would tarry with them: and he abode there two days.

41 And many more believed because of his own word.

42 And they said unto the woman; Now we believe, not because of thy saying: for we have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed that Christ, the Saviour of the world.

43 ¶ So two days after he departed thence, and went into Galilee.

44 For Jesus himself had testified, that a prophet hath none honour in his own country.

45 Then when he was come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, which had seen all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast: for they went also unto the feast.

46 And Jesus came again into Cana, a town of Galilee, where he had made of water wine. And there was a certain ruler, whose son was sick at Capernaum.

47 When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would go down, and heal his son: for he was even ready to die.

48 Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe.

49 The ruler said unto him, Sir, go down before my son die.

50 Jesus said unto him, Go thy way, thy son liveth: and the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and went his way.

51 And as he was now going down, his servants met him, saying, Thy son liveth.

52 Then inquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday the seventh hour the fever left him.

53 Then the father knew, that it was the same hour in the which Jesus had said unto him, Thy son liveth. And he believed, and all his household.

54 This second miracle did Jesus again, after he was come out of Judea into Galilee.

A. D. 31.

AFTER * that, there was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. ^{Lev. 23, 35. Deut. 16. 1.}

¶ And there is at Jerusalem, by the place of the sheep, a pool called in Hebrew Bethesda, having five porches:

3 In the which lay a great multitude of sick folk, of blind, halt, and withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first, after the stirring of the water, stepped in, was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

5 And a certain man was there, which had been diseased eight and thirty years.

6 When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he now long time had been diseased, he said unto him, Wilt thou be made whole?

7 The sick man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another stepeth down before me.

¶ Jesus said unto him, Rise: take up thy bed, and walk.

9 And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and the same day was the sabbath.

10 The Jews therefore said to him that was made whole, It is the sabbath day: * it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed. ^{Jer. 17. 22.}

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, he said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk.

12 Then asked they him, What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed, and walk?

13 And he that was healed, knew not who it was: for Jesus had conveyed himself away from the multitude that was in that place.

14 And after that, Jesus found him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.

15 ¶ The man departed, and told the Jews, that it was Jesus, which had made him whole.

16 And therefore the Jews did persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day.

17 But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.

18 * Therefore the Jews fought the more to kill him: not only because he had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, and made himself equal with God. ^{Ch. 7. 19.}

19 Then answered Jesus, and said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, The Son can do

² The Samaritans do most joyfully embrace that which the Jews most stubbornly rejected.

³ The despisers of Christ deprive themselves of his benefit: yet Christ prepareth a place for himself.

¶ Into the towns and villages of Galilee, for he would not make abode in his country of Nazareth, because they despised him, and where (as the other Evangelists write) the efficacy of his benefits were hindered through their marvellous stiff-neckedness.

⁴ Although Christ be absent in body, yet he worketh mightily in the believers by his word.

⁵ Some of Herod's courtiers, for though Herod was not a king, but a tetrarch, yet, the lofty name only excepted, he was a king, or, at least, the people called him a king.

¹ There is no disease so old, which Christ cannot heal.

² Whereof cattle drank, and used to be plunged in, whereof there could not be but great store at Jerusalem.

³ That is to say, the house of pouring out, because great store of water was poured out into that place.

¶ True religion is not cruelly assaulted by any means, than by the pretence of religion itself.

⁴ The work of God was never the breach of the sabbath, but the works of Christ are the works of the Father, both because they are one God, and also because the Father doth not work but in the Son.

⁵ That is, his only, and a man's else, which they gather by that, that he saith, (And I work) applying this word (work) to himself, which is proper to God, and therefore maketh himself equal to God.

A. D. 31. nothing of himself, save that he seeth the Father do: for whatsoever things he doeth, the same things doeth the Son in like manner.

20 For the Father loveth the Son, and sheweth him all things whatsoever he himself doeth, and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye should marvel.

21 For likewise as the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them, so the Son quickeneth whom he will.

22 For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son.

23 Because that all men should honour the Son, as they honour the Father: he that honoureth not the Son, the same honoureth not the Father which hath sent him.

24 Verily, verily I say unto you, he that heareth my word, and believeth him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but hath passed from death unto life.

25 Verily, verily I say unto you, the hour shall come, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear it, shall live.

26 For as the Father hath life in himself, so likewise hath he given to the Son to have life in himself.

27 And hath given him power also to execute judgment, in that he is the Son of man.

28 Marvel not at this: for the hour shall come, in the which all that are in the graves, shall hear his voice.

29 And they shall come forth, that have done good, unto the resurrection of life: but they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of condemnation.

30 I can do nothing of mine own self: as I hear, I judge: and my judgment is just, because I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father who hath sent me.

31 If I should bear witness of myself, my witness were not true.

32 There is another that beareth witness of me, and I know that the witness which he beareth of me, is true.

33 Ye sent unto John, and he bare witness unto the truth.

Not only without his Father's authority, but also without his mighty working and power.

This must be understood of Christ's person, which consisteth of two natures, and not simply of his Godhead: so then he saith that his Father moveth and governeth him in all things; but yet notwithstanding when he saith he worketh with his Father, he voucheth his Godhead.

In like sort, jointly and together. Not for that the Father doeth some things, and then the Son worketh after him, and doth the like, but because the might and power of the Father and the Son do work equally and jointly together.

The Father maketh no man partaker of everlasting life, but in Christ, in whom only also he is truly worshipped.

This word (judgeth) is taken by the figure Synecdoche, for all government.

These words are not so to be taken, as though they simply denied, that God governed the world, but as the Jews imagined it, which separate the Father from the Son; whereas indeed the Father doth not govern the world, but only in the person of his Son, being made manifest in the flesh, so saith he afterward, ver. 30. that he came not to do his own will: that his doctrine is not his own, chap. 7. 16. that the blind man and his parents sinned not, &c. chap. 9. 3.

The Father is not worshipped but by his Son's word, apprehended by faith, which is the only way that leadeth to eternal life.

We are all dead in sin, and cannot be quickened by any other means, than by the word of Christ, apprehended 34 But I receive not the record of man: nevertheless these things I say, that ye might be saved.

35 He was a burning and shining candle: and ye would for a season have rejoiced in his light.

36 But I have greater witnesses than the witness of John: for the works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father sent me.

37 And the Father himself, which hath sent me, beareth witness of me. Ye have not heard his voice at any time, neither have ye seen his shape.

38 And his word have ye not abiding in you: for whom he hath sent, him ye believe not.

39 Search the scriptures: for in them ye think to have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me.

40 But ye will not come to me, that ye might have life.

41 I receive not the praise of men.

42 But I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you.

43 I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not: if another shall come in his own name, him will ye receive.

44 How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh of God alone?

45 Do not think that I will accuse you to my Father: there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust.

46 For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me: for he wrote of me.

47 But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?

CHAPTER VI.

5 Five thousand are fed with five loaves and two fishes. 11 Christ goeth apart from the people.

17 As his disciples were rowing, 19 he cometh to them walking on the water. 26 He reasoneth of the true, 27 and everlasting 35 bread of life.

41, 52 The Jews murmur, 60 and many of the disciples 66 depart from him. 69 The apostles confess him to be the Son of God.

by faith.

That is, high and sovereign power to rule and govern things, insomuch that he hath power of life and death.

That is, he shall only judge the world as he is God; but also as he is man, he received this of his Father, to be judge of the world.

All shall appear before the judgment-seat of Christ, at length to be judged.

Faith and infidelity shall be judged by their fruits.

Of their graves.

To that resurrection which hath life everlasting following it; against which is set the resurrection of condemnation, that is, which condemnation followeth.

The Father is the author and approver of all things which Christ doth.

Christ is declared to be the only Saviour by John's voice, and infinite miracles, and by the testimonies of all the prophets. But the world notwithstanding being addicted false prophets, and desirous to seem religious, seek none of all these things.

A little while.

Love toward God.

This denial doth not put away that which is here said, but correcteth it; if Christ said, the Jews shall have no fierer accuser than Moses.

A. D. 32. AFTER these things, Jesus went his way over the sea of Galilee, which is Tiberias.

2 And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles, which he did on them that were diseased.

3 Then Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples.

4 Now the passover, a feast of the Jews, was near.

5 Then Jesus lift up his eyes, and seeing that a great multitude came unto him, he said unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these might eat?

6 (And this he said to prove him: for he himself knew what he would do)

7 Philip answered him, two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

8 Then said unto him one of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, 9 There is a little boy here, which hath five barley loaves, and two fishes: but what are they among so many?

10 And Jesus said, Make the people sit down. (Now there was much grass in that place.) Then the men sat down, in number about five thousand.

11 And Jesus took the bread, and gave thanks, and gave to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down: and likewise of the fishes as much as they would.

12 And when they were satisfied, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the broken meat which remaineth, that nothing be lost.

13 Then they gathered it together, and filled twelve baskets with the broken meat of the five barley loaves, which remained unto them that had eaten.

14 Then the men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world.

15 When Jesus therefore perceived that they would come, and take him to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himself alone.

16 ¶ When even was now come, his disciples went down unto the sea, 17 And entered into a ship, and went over the sea, towards Capernaum: and now it was dark, and Jesus was not come to them.

18 And the sea arose with a great wind that blew.

19 And when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs, they saw Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing near unto the ship: so they were afraid.

20 But he said unto them, It is I: be not afraid.

21 Then willingly they received him into the ship, and the ship was by and by at the land whither they went.

22 ¶ The day following, the people which stood on the other side of the sea, saw that there was none other ship there, save that one, wherewith his disciples were entered, and that Jesus went not with his disciples in the ship, but that his disciples were gone alone;

23 And that there came other ships from Tiberias near unto the place where they ate the bread, after the Lord had given thanks.

24 Now when the people saw that Jesus was not there, neither his disciples, they also took shipping, and came to Capernaum, seeking for Jesus.

25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?

26 Jesus answered them, and said, Verily, verily I say unto you, Ye seek me not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye ate of the loaves, and were filled.

27 Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for the meat that endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed.

28 Then said they unto him, What shall we do, that we might work the works of God?

29 Jesus answered, and said unto them, ¶ This is the work of God, that ye believe in him whom he hath sent.

30 They said therefore unto him, What sign shewest thou then, that we may see it, and believe thee? what doest thou work?

31 Our fathers did eat manna in the desert, as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat.

32 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven, but my Father giveth you that true bread from heaven.

33 For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world.

34 Then they said unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread.

35 And

^a Not that he cut over the lake of Tiberias, but by reason of the large creeks, his sailing made his journey the shorter: therefore he is said to have gone over the sea, when he passed over from one side of the creek to the other.

¹ They that follow Christ, do sometimes hunger, but they are never destitute of help.

² Christ is not only not delighted, but also greatly offended with a preposterous worship.

³ The godly are often in peril and danger, but Christ cometh to them in time, even in the midst of the tempests, and bringeth them to the haven.

^b In Mark 6. 45. they are willed to go before to Bethsaida, for Bethsaida was in the way to Capernaum.

^c They were afraid at the first; but when they knew his voice they became new men, and took him willingly into the ship, whom they shunned and fled from before.

⁴ They that seek the kingdom of heaven, lack nothing: notwithstanding, the gospel is not the food of the belly, but of the mind.

^d Bestow not your labour and pain.

^e That is, whom God the father hath distinguished from all other men by planting his own virtue in him, as though he had sealed him with his seal, that he might be a lively pattern and representer of him: and that is, installed him in this office, to reconcile men to God, and bring us to everlasting life, which is only proper to Christ.

^f Which please God: for they think that everlasting life hangeth upon the condition of fulfilling the law: therefore Christ calleth them back to faith.

¹ Men torment themselves in vain, when they go about to please God without faith.

² That is, this is the work that God requireth, that you believe in me, and therefore he calleth them back to faith.

³ The spiritual virtue of Christ is contemned of them that are desirous of earthly miracles.

⁴ Christ, who is the true and only author and giver of eternal life, was signified unto the fathers in Manna.

^b He denieth that that Manna was that pure heavenly bread, and saith that he himself is that true bread, because he feedeth unto the true and everlasting life. And as for that, that Paul, 1 Cor. 10. calleth Manna, spiritual food, it maketh nothing against this place, for he joineth the thing signified with the sign: but in this whole disputation, Christ dealeth with the Jews after their own opinion and conceit of the matter, and they had no further consideration of the Manna, but in that it fed the belly.

A. D. 32. 35 And Jesus said unto them, I am that bread of life: he that cometh to me, shall not hunger: and he that believeth in me, shall never thirst.

36 But I said unto you, that ye also have seen me, and believe not.

37 All that the Father give thine, shall come to me: and him that cometh to me, I cast not away.

38 For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but his will which hath sent me.

39 And this is the Father's will which hath sent me, that of all which he hath given me, I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day.

40 And this is the will of him that sent me, that every man which seeth the Son, and believeth in him, should have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day.

41 The Jews then murmured at him, because he said, I am that bread which is come down from heaven.

42 And they said, Is not this Jesus, that son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? how then saith he, I came down from heaven?

43 Jesus then answered, and said unto them, Murmur not among yourselves.

44 No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me, draw him: and I will raise him up at the last day.

45 It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me, 46 Not that any man hath seen the Father, save he which is of God, he hath seen the Father.

47 Verily, verily I say unto you, He that believeth in me hath everlasting life.

48 I am that bread of life.

49 Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead,

50 This is that bread which cometh down from heaven, that he which eateth of it should not die.

51 I am that living bread, which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. A. D. 32.

52 Then the Jews strove among themselves, saying, How can this man give us his flesh to eat?

53 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you.

54 Whosoever eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day. 1 Cor. 10.

55 For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.

56 He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him.

57 As that living Father hath sent me, so live I by the Father: and he that eateth me, even he shall live by me.

58 This is that bread which came down from heaven: not your fathers have eaten manna, and are dead. He that eateth of this bread, shall live for ever.

59 These things spake he in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

60 Many therefore of his disciples (when they heard this) said, This is an hard saying: who can bear it?

61 But Jesus knowing in himself, that his disciples murmured at this, said unto them, Doth this offend you?

62 What then if ye shall see that Son of man ascend up, where he was before? Ch. 3. 13.

63 It is the Spirit that quickeneth: the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, are spirit and life.

64 But there are some of you that believe not: for Jesus knew from the beginning, which they were that believed not, and who should betray him.

65 And

¹ Which have life, and give life.

² The gift of faith proceedeth from the free election of the Father in Christ, after which followeth necessarily everlasting life: Therefore faith in Christ Jesus is a sure witness of our election, and therefore of our glorification, which is to come.

³ Look above chap. 5. ver. 22.

⁴ Seeing and believing are joined together: for there is another kind of seeing which is general, which the devil have, for they see: but here he speaketh of that kind of seeing which is proper to the elect.

⁵ Flesh cannot perceive spiritual things, and therefore the beginning of our salvation cometh from God, who changeth our nature, so that we being inspired of him, may abide to be instructed and saved by Christ.

⁶ In the book of the prophets: for the Old Testament was divided by them into three several parts, into the law, the prophets, and the holy writ.

⁷ To wit, they shall be children of the church, for so the prophet Isaiah expoundeth it, ch. 54. 13. that is to say, ordained to life, Acts 13. 48. and therefore the knowledge of the heavenly truth is the gift and work of God, and standeth not in any power of man.

⁸ If the Son only hath seen the Father, then it is he only that can teach and instruct us truly.

⁹ The true use of sacraments is to ascend from them to the thing itself, that is, to Christ: by the partaking of whom only, we get everlasting life.

¹⁰ He pointeth out himself when he spake these words.

¹¹ Christ being sent from the Father, is the self-same unto us for the getting and keeping of everlasting life, that bread and flesh, yea, meat and drink are, to the use of this transitory life.

¹² Which giveth life to the world.

¹³ That is to say, whosoever is partaker of Christ indeed, who is our food.

¹⁴ Flesh cannot put a difference between fleshly eating, which is done by the help of the teeth, and spiritual eating, which consisteth in faith: and therefore it condemneth that which it understandeth not: yet notwithstanding, the truth must be preached and taught.

¹⁵ If Christ be present, life is present; but when Christ is absent, then is death present.

¹⁶ In that that Christ is man, he receiveth that power which quickeneth and giveth life to them that are his, of his Father: and he addeth this word (That) to make a difference between him and all other fathers.

¹⁸ The reason of man cannot comprehend the uniting of Christ and his members: therefore let it worship and reverence that which is better than itself.

¹⁹ The flesh of Christ doth therefore quicken us because that he that is man, is God: which mystery is only comprehended by faith, which is the gift of God, proper only to the elect.

²⁰ Spirit, that is, that power which floweth from the God-head, causeth the flesh of Christ, which otherwise were nothing but flesh, both to live in itself, and to give life to us.

65 And he said, Therefore said I unto you, that no man can come unto me, except it be given unto him of my Father.
 66 From that time, many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him.
 67 Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away?
 68 Then Simon Peter answered him, Master, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life:
 69 And we believe and know that thou art that Christ, that Son of the living God.
 70 Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?
 71 Now he spake it of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon: for he it was that should betray him, though he was one of the twelve.

CHAP. VII.

2 Christ, after his cousins were gone up to the feast of tabernacles, 10 goeth thither privily. 12 The people's sundry opinions of him. 14 He teacheth in the temple. 32 The priests command to take him. 41 Strife among the multitude about him, 47 and between the Pharisees and the officers that were sent to take him, 50 and Nicodemus.

AFTER these things, Jesus walked in Galilee, and would not walk in Judea: for the Jews sought to kill him.
 2 Now the Jews' feast of the tabernacles was at hand.
 3 His brethren therefore said unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy disciples may see thy works that thou doest.
 4 For there is no man that doeth any thing secretly, and he himself seeketh to be famous. If thou doest these things, shew thyself to the world.
 5 For as yet his brethren believed not in him.
 6 Then Jesus said unto them, My time is not yet come: but your time is always ready.
 7 The world cannot hate you: but me it hateth, because I testify of it, that the works thereof are evil.
 8 Go ye up unto this feast: I will not go up yet unto this feast: for my time is not yet fulfilled.

9 ¶ These things he said unto them, and abode still in Galilee. A. D. 32.
 10 But soon his brethren were gone up, then went he also up unto the feast, not openly, but it were privily.
 11 Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, Where is he?
 12 And much murmuring was there of him among the people. Some said, He is a good man: others said, Nay, but he deceiveth the people.
 13 Howbeit no man spake openly of him for fear of the Jews.
 14 Now when the half of the feast was done, Jesus went up into the temple and taught.
 15 And the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man the scriptures, seeing that he never learned!
 16 Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.
 17 If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself.
 18 He that speaketh of himself, seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him.
 19 Did not Moses give you law, and yet none of you keepeth the law? Why go ye about to kill me?
 20 The people answered and said, Thou hast a devil: who goeth about to kill thee?
 21 Jesus answered, and said to them, I have done one work, and ye all marvel.
 22 Moses therefore gave unto you circumcision (not because it is of Moses, but of the fathers) and ye on the sabbath day circumcise a man.
 23 If a man on the sabbath receive circumcision, that the law of Moses should not be broken, be ye angry with me, because I have made man every whit whole on the sabbath day?
 24 Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment.
 25 ¶ Then said some of them of Jerusalem, Is not this he, whom they go about to kill?
 26 And behold, he speaketh openly, and they say nothing to him? do the rulers know indeed, that this is indeed that Christ?

¹⁵ Such is the malice of men, that they take occasion of their own destruction, of the very doctrine of salvation, unless it be few which believe through the singular gift of God.
¹⁶ The number of the professors of Christ is very small among them; also there be some hypocrites, and worse than all other.
^a This feast was so called, because of the booths and tents which they pitched of divers kinds of boughs, and sat under them, seven days together, all which time the feast lasted.
^b The grace of God cometh not by inheritance, but it is a gift that cometh other ways: whereby it cometh pass, that oftentimes the children of God suffer more affliction by their own kinsfolks than by strangers.
^c His kinsfolks: for so use the Hebrews to speak.
^d We must not follow the foolish desires of our friends.
^e An example of horrible confusion in the very bosom of the church. The pastors oppress the people with terror and fear: the people seek Christ, when he appeareth not; when he offereth himself, they neglect him. Some also that know him, condemn him rashly: very few think well of him, and that in secret.
^f Or, boldly and freely: for the chief of the Jews sought nothing so much, as to bury his fame and name.
^g Christ striveth with goodness against the wickedness of the world; in the mean season the most part of them take occasion of offence even by that same whereby they ought to have been stirred up to embrace Christ.
^h About the fourth day of the feast.
ⁱ Therefore are there few whom the gospel favoureth very well, because the study of godliness is very rare.

^a Look above chap. 5. ver. 22. and he speaketh this after the opinion of the Jews: as if he said, my doctrine is not mine, that is, it is his whom you take to be a man: other are, and therefore set light by him, but it is his that sent me.
^b The true doctrine of salvation differeth from the false in this, that the same setteth forth the glory of God, and this by puffing up of men, darkeneth the glory of God.
^c None do more confidently boast themselves to be the defenders of the law of God, than they that do most impudently break it.
^d The sabbath day (which is here set before for a rule of all ceremonies) was not appointed to hinder, but to further and practise God's works, amongst which, the love of our neighbour is the chiefest.
^e That is to say, if the law of circumcision, which Moses gave, be of so great account amongst you, that you doubt not to circumcise upon the sabbath, do you rightly reprove me for healing man thoroughly?
^f We must judge according to the truth of things, lest the persons of us do turn us and carry us away.
^g By the shew that I make; for I seem to be but an abject and rascal of Galilee, and a carpenter's son, whom no man maketh account of: but mark the matter itself well, and judge the tree by the fruit.
^h Many do marvel that the endeavours of the enemies of God have no success: yet in the mean season they do not acknowledge the virtue and power of God.

A. D. 52. 27 ¹¹ Howbeit, we know this man whence he is: but when that Christ cometh, no man shall know whence he is.

28 ¹² Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, Ye both know me, and know whence I am: yet am I not come of myself: but he that sent me is true, whom ye know not.

29 But I know him: for I am of him, and he hath sent me.

30 ¹³ Then they sought to take him, but no man laid hands on him, because his hour was not yet come.

31 Now many of the people believed in him, and said, When that Christ cometh, will he do more miracles than this man hath done?

32 ¹⁴ The Pharisees heard that the people murmured these things of him, and the Pharisees and high priests sent officers to take him.

33 Then said Jesus unto them, Yet am I a little while with you, and then go I unto him that sent me.

• Ch. 13. 34. 34 ¹⁵ Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, can ye not come.

35 Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? Will he go unto them that are dispersed among the Grecians, and teach the Grecians?

36 What saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me? and where I am, cannot ye come?

• Lev. 23. 35. 37 ¹⁶ Now in the last and great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.

• Deut. 18. 38 He that believeth in me, as saith the scripture, out of his belly shall flow rivers of water of life.

• Ch. 13. 39. 39 ¹⁷ (This spake he of the Spirit, which they that believed in him should receive: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet glorified)

• Deut. 18. 40 ¹⁸ So many of the people, when they heard this saying, said, Of a truth this is that prophet.

41 Others said, This is that Christ: and some said, But shall that Christ come out of Galilee?

• Mat. 1. 42. 42 ¹⁹ Sayeth not the scripture, that that Christ shall come of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was?

43 So was there dissension among the people for him.

¹¹ Men are very wise to procure stops and stays to themselves.

¹² The truth of Christ doth not hang upon the judgment of man.

¹³ The wicked cannot do what they list, but what God hath appointed.

¹⁵ Word for word (to the dispersion of the Gentiles or Grecians); and under the name of the Grecians he understandeth the Jews which were dispersed amongst the Gentiles, 1 Pet. 1. 1.

¹⁶ There are two principles of our salvation: the one to be thoroughly touched with a true feeling of our extreme poverty: the other, to seek in Christ only (whom we catch hold on by faith) the abundance of all good things.

¹⁷ The last day of the feast of tabernacles, that is, the eighth day, was as high a day as the first. Lev. 23. 36.

¹⁸ This is not read word for word in any place, but it seemeth to be taken out of many places where mention is made of the gifts of the Holy Ghost, as Joel 2. 11a. 44. but especially in 11a. 55.

44 And some of them would have taken him, but no man laid hands on him. A. D. 52.

45 ¹⁷ Then came the officers to the high priests and Pharisees, and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him?

46 The officers answered, Never man spake like this man.

47 Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived?

48 ¹⁸ Doth any of the rulers, or of the Pharisees believe in him?

49 But this people, which know not the law, are cursed.

50 Nicodemus said unto them (he that came to Jesus by night, and was one of them) ^{Deut. 17. 8. and 19. 15.}

51 Doth our law judge a man before it hear him, and know what he hath done?

52 They answered, and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search and look: for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.

53 ¹⁹ And every man went unto his own house.

C H A P. VIII.

3 The woman taken in adultery, 11 hath her sins forgiven her. 12 Christ is the light of the world. 19 The Pharisees ask where his Father is. 39 The sons of Abraham. 42 The sons of God. 44 The devil the father of lying. 56 Abraham saw Christ's day.

AND Jesus went unto the mount of Olives, 2 And early in the morning came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him, and he sat down and taught them.

3 Then the Scribes and the Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery, and set her in the midst,

4 And said unto him, Master, we found this woman committing adultery, even in the very act.

5 Now Moses in our law commanded, that such should be stoned: what sayest thou therefore?

6 And this they said to tempt him, that they might have whereof to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground.

7 And while they continued asking him, he lift himself up, and said unto them, Let him that is among you without sin, cast the first stone at her.

8 And

¹ What is meant by the Holy Ghost, he expressed a little before, speaking of the Spirit which they that believed in him should receive. So that by the name of the Holy Ghost, are meant the virtues and mighty workings of the Holy Ghost.

² That is, those things were not yet seen and perceived, which were to shew and set forth the glory of the only begotten.

³ There is contention even in the church itself about the chief point of religion: neither hath Christ any more cruel enemies than those that occupy the seat of truth, yet cannot they do what they would.

⁴ God from heaven scorneth such as are his Son's enemies.

⁵ False pastors are so fond and foolish, that they esteem the church of God, according to the multitude and outward show, chap. 3. 2.

⁶ What he hath committed, who is accused?

⁷ There is no counsel against the Lord.

⁸ While the wicked go about to make a snare for good men, they make a snare for themselves.

⁹ Against hypocrites which are very severe judges against other men, and flatter themselves in their own sins.

A. D. 33.

8 And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground.

9 And when they heard it, being accused by their own conscience, they went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even to the last: so Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.

10 When Jesus had lift up himself again, and saw no man, but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee?

11 She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said, Neither do I condemn thee, go and sin no more.

12 Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am that light of the world: he that followeth me, shall not walk in darkness, but shall have that light of life.

13 The Pharisees therefore said unto him, Thou bearest record of thyself: thy record is not true.

14 Jesus answered, and said unto them, Though I bear record of myself, yet my record is true: for I know whence I came, and whither I go: but ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go.

15 Ye judge after the flesh: I judge no man.

16 And if I also judge, my judgment is true: for I am not alone, but I, and the Father, that sent me.

17 And it is also written in your law, that the testimony of two men is true.

18 I am one that bear witness of myself, and the Father that sent me beareth witness of me.

19 Then said they unto him, Where is that Father of thine? Jesus answered, Ye neither know me, nor that Father of mine. If ye had known me, ye should have known that Father of mine also.

20 These words spake Jesus in the treasury, as he taught in the temple, and no man laid hand on him: for his hour was not yet come.

21 Then said Jesus again unto them, I go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall die in your sins. Whither I go, can ye not come.

22 Then said the Jews, Will he kill himself, because he saith, Whither I go, can ye not come?

23 And he said unto them, Ye are from beneath, I am from above: ye are of this world, I am not of this world.

24 I said therefore unto you, That ye shall die in your sins: for except ye believe that I am he, ye shall die in your sins.

25 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? And Jesus said unto them, Even the same thing that I said unto you from the beginning.

26 I have many things to say, and to judge of you: but he that sent me, is true, and the things that I have heard of him, those speak I to the world.

27 They understood not that he spake to them of the Father.

28 Then said Jesus unto them, When ye have lift up the Son of man, then shall ye know that I am he, and that I do nothing of myself, but as my Father hath taught me, so I speak these things.

29 For he that sent me, is with me: the Father hath not left me alone, because I do always those things that please him.

30 As he spake these things, many believed in him.

31 Then said Jesus to the Jews which believed in him, If ye continue in my word, ye are verily my disciples, 32 And shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

33 They answered him, We be Abraham's seed, and were never bond to any man: why sayest thou then, Ye shall be made free?

34 Jesus answered them, Verily, verily I say unto you, that whosoever committeth sin, is the servant of sin.

35 And the servant abideth not in the house for ever: but the Son abideth for ever.

36 If that Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.

37 I know that ye are Abraham's seed: but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you.

38 I speak that which I have seen with my Father: and ye do that which ye have seen with your father.

39 They answered, and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus said unto them, If ye were

A. D. 32.

Rom. 6. 2 Pet. 2. 19.

Christ would not take upon him the civil magistrate's office: he contented himself to bring sinners to faith and repentance.

The world which is blind in itself, cannot come to have any light but in Christ only.

Christ is, without all exception, the best witness of the truth, for he was sent by his father for that purpose, and was by him approved to the world by infinite miracles.

Thou bearest witness of thyself, which thing by all opinions is naught, and for a man to commend himself is very discommendable.

That which he denied afore, ch. 5. 31. must be taken by a manner of granting, for in that place he framed himself somewhat to the humour of his hearers, which acknowledged nothing in Christ but his humanity, and therefore he was content they should set light by his own witness, unless it were otherwise confirmed. But in this place, he standeth for the maintenance of his Godhead, and praiseth his Father, who is his witness, and agreeth with him.

I do now only teach you. I condemn no man; but if I lust to do it, I might lawfully do it, for I am alone, but my Father is with me.

The Godhead is plainly distinguished from the manhood, else there were not two witnesses: for the party accused is not taken for a witness.

No man can know God, but in Christ only.

This was some place appointed for the gathering of the offerings.

We live and die at the pleasure of God, and not of men. Therefore this one thing remaineth, that we go forward constantly in our vocation.

Because that men do naturally abhor heavenly things, they cannot be a fit disciple of Christ, unless the Spirit of God frame him. In the mean season notwithstanding, the world must of necessity perish, because it refuseth the life that is offered unto it.

He shall at length know who Christ is, which will diligently hear what he saith.

That is, I am Christ, and the Saviour, for so I told you from the beginning, that I was.

God is the revenger of Christ's doctrine despised.

Even the contempt of Christ maketh for his glory: which thing his enemies shall feel at length in their great smart.

The true disciples of Christ continue in his doctrine, that profiting more and more in the knowledge of the truth, they may be delivered from the most grievous burden of sin, into the true liberty of righteousness and life.

From the slavery of sin.

Some of the multitude, and they that believed: for this is not the speech of men that consent unto him, but of those that are against him.

Born and begotten of Abraham.

Our wicked manners declare, that we are plainly born of a devilish nature. But we are changed, and made of the household of God, according to the covenant which he made with Abraham by Christ only, apprehended and laid hold on by faith: which faith is known by a godly and honest life.

A. D. were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham.

40 But now ye go about to kill me, a man that have told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham.

41 Ye do the works of your father. Then said they to him, We are not born of fornication: we have one Father, which is God.

42 Therefore Jesus said unto them, If God were your father, then would ye love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God, neither came I of myself, but he sent me.

43 Why do ye not understand my talk? because ye cannot hear my word.

44 * Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do: he hath been murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh lye, then speaketh he of his own: for he is lyar, and the father thereof.

45 And because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.

46 Which of you can rebuke me of sin? and if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me?

47 He that is of God, heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God.

48 Then answered the Jews, and said unto him, Say we not well, that thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?

49 Jesus answered, I have not devil: but I honour my Father, and ye have dishonoured me.

50 And I seek not mine own praise: but there is one that seeketh it, and judgeth.

51 Verily, verily I say unto you, If a man keep my word, he shall never see death.

52 Then said the Jews to him, Now know we that thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets: and thou sayest, If a man keep my word, he shall never taste of death.

53 Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is dead? and the prophets are dead: whom makest thou thyself?

* Or, language; as though he said, you do no more understand what I say, than if I spake in strange and unknown language you.

† From the beginning of the world: for as soon as man was made, the devil cast him headlong into death.

‡ That is, continued not constantly, or remained not.

§ That is, in faithfulness and uprightnes; that is, he kept not his creation.

¶ Even of his own head, and of his own brain or disposition.

‡ The author thereof.

§ Christ did thoroughly execute the office that his Father enjoined him.

¶ The enemies of Christ make their bravery for a while, but the Father will appear at his time and revenge the reproach that is done unto him in the person of his Son.

‡ That is, that will revenge both your despising of me, and of him.

§ The only doctrine of the gospel apprehended by faith, is a sure remedy against death.

¶ That is, he shall not find it: for even in the midst of death, the faithful see life.

‡ Against them which abuse the glory of the saints, to darken Christ's glory.

§ There is nothing further off from all ambition than Christ, but his Father has set him above all things.

¶ This is spoken by manner of a grant; as if he had said, Be it so, let this report which I give of myself be of no force: yet there is another that glorifieth me, that is, that honoureth my name.

‡ There is no right knowledge of God without Christ, neither any right knowledge of Christ without his word.

§ The virtue of Christ shewed itself through all former 54 Jesus answered, If I honour myself, mine honour is nothing worth: it is my Father that honoureth me, whom ye say, that he is your God.

55 Yet ye have not known him: but I know him, and if I should say, I know him not; I should be lyar like unto you: but I know him, and keep his word.

56 Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day, and he saw it, and was glad.

57 Then said the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?

58 Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am.

59 Then took they up stones to cast at him, but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple: and he passed through the midst of them, and so went his way.

CHAPTER IX.

Christ giveth sight to the sabbath day to him that was born blind: 13 Whom, after he had long reasoned against the Pharisees, 22, 34 and was cast out of the synagoge, 36 Christ endueth with the knowledge of the everlasting light.

AND as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth.

2 And his disciples asked him, saying, Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?

3 Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents, but that the works of God should be shewed on him.

4 I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.

5 As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.

6 As soon as he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground, and made clay of the spittle, and anointed the eyes of the blind with the clay,

7 And said unto him, Go wash in the pool of Siloam (which is by interpretation, Sent) He went ages in the fathers, for they saw in the promises that he should come, and did very joyfully lay hold on him with a lively faith.

† Was very desirous.

‡ A day is space that a man liveth in, or doth any notable act, or suffereth any great thing.

§ With the eyes of faith, Heb. 11. 13.

¶ Christ, as he was God, was before Abraham; and he was the Lamb slain from the beginning of the world.

‡ Zeal without knowledge, breaketh out at length into most open madness; and yet the wicked cannot do what they list.

§ Sin is the beginning even of all bodily diseases, and yet doth it not follow, that God always respecteth their sins whom he most sharply punisheth.

¶ Christ reasoneth here, as his disciples thought, which presuppose that there come no diseases but for sins only; whereupon he answereth, that there was another cause of this man's blindness, and that was, that God's work might be seen.

‡ The works of Christ as if it were a light, which lighten the darkness of the world.

§ By (day) is meant the light, that is, the lightsome doctrine of the heavenly truth: and by night is meant the darkness which cometh by the obscurity of the same doctrine.

¶ Christ healing the man born blind, by taking the sign of clay, and afterward the sign of the fountain of Siloam, (which signifieth Sent) sheweth that as he at the beginning made man, so doth he again restore both his body and soul; and yet so, that he himself cometh first of his own accord to heal us.

A. D. went his way therefore, and washed, and came again seeing.

8 + Now the neighbours and they that had seen him before, when he was blind, said, Is not this he that sat and begged?

9 Some said, This is he: and others said, He is like him: but he himself said, I am he.

10 Therefore they said unto him, How were thine eyes opened?

11 He answered, and said, The man that is called Jesus, made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash. So I went and washed, and received sight.

12 Then they said unto him, Where is he? He said, I cannot tell.

13 ¶ They brought to the Pharisees him that was once blind.

14 And it was the sabbath day, when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.

15 Then again the Pharisees also asked him, how he had received sight. And he said unto them, He laid clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and do see.

16 + Then said some of the Pharisees, This man is not of God, because he keepeth not the sabbath day. Others said, How can a man that is a sinner, do such miracles? and there was dissention among them.

17 Then spake they unto the blind again, What sayest thou of him, because he hath opened thine eyes? And he said, He is a prophet.

18 Then the Jews did not believe him, (that he had been blind, and received his sight) until they had called the parents of him that had received sight.

19 And they asked them, saying, Is this your son, whom ye say was born blind? How doth he now see then?

20 His parents answered them, and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind:

21 But by what means he now seeth, we know not: or who hath opened his eyes, can we not tell: he is old enough: ask him: he shall answer for himself.

22 These words spake his parents, because they feared the Jews: for the Jews had ordained already, that if any man did confess that he was Christ, he should be excommunicate out of the synagogue, 23 Therefore said his parents, He is old enough: ask him.

24 Then again called they the man that had been blind, and said unto him, Give glory unto God: we know that this man is a sinner. A. D. 32.

25 Then he answered, and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I cannot tell: one thing I know, that I was blind, and now I see.

26 Then said they to him again, What did he do thee? how opened he thine eyes?

27 He answered them, I have told you already, and ye have not heard it: wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye also be his disciples?

28 + Then reviled they him, and said, Be thou his disciple: we be Moses's disciples.

29 We know that God spake with Moses: but this man we know not from whence he is.

30 The man answered and said unto them, Doubtless, this is a marvellous thing, that ye know not whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes.

31 Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but if a man be worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him heareth he.

32 Since the world began, was it not heard, that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.

33 If this man were not of God, he could have done nothing.

34 They answered, and said unto him, Thou art altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us? so they cast him out.

35 + Jesus heard that they had cast him out: and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe in the Son of God?

36 He answered, and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe in him?

37 And Jesus said unto him, Both thou hast seen him, and he it is that talketh with thee.

38 Then he said, Lord, I believe: and worshipped him.

39 + And Jesus said, I am come unto judgment into this world, that they which see not, might see: and that they which see, might be made blind.

40 And some of the Pharisees which were with him, heard these things, and said unto him, Are we blind also?

41 Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should not have sin: but now ye say, We see: therefore your sin remaineth.

CHAP.

+ A true image of all men, who they of nature blind, do neither themselves receive the light that is offered unto them, nor suffer it in others, and yet make a great ado amongst themselves.

+ This is Hebrew kind of speech, for they call a man's eyes shut, when they cannot receive any light. And therefore they said have their eyes opened, which of blind men are made see.

+ Religion is not assaulted by any means more, than by pretence of religion; but the more it is pressed down, the more it riseth up.

+ A solemn order, whereby was constrained in old time to acknowledge their fault before God, as if they should say, Consider thou before God, who knoweth the whole matter, and therefore see thou his majesty, and do him this honour, rather confess the whole matter openly, than to lye before him, Josh. 7. 19. 1 Sam. 6. 5.

+ He is called a sinner in the Hebrew tongue, which is a wicked man, and maketh as it were art of sinning.

+ Proud wickedness must needs length break forth, which in vain lieth hid under zeal of godliness.

+ Thou art naught even from thy cradle, and we use say, there is nothing in thee but sin:

+ Happy is their state which are cast furthest out of the church of the wicked (which proudly boast themselves of the name of the church) that Christ may come nearer to them.

+ Christ doth lighten all them by the preaching of the gospel, which acknowledge their own darkness, but such as seem to themselves to see clearly enough, those he altogether blindeth; of which sort are they oftentimes which have the highest place in the church.

+ With great power and authority, to do what is right and just; as if he said, These men take upon them to govern the people of God after their own lust, as though they saw all things, and no man but they; but I will rule far otherwise than these men do: for whom they account for blind men, them will I lighten; and such as take themselves to be wisest, them will I drown in most gross darkness of ignorance.

+ In these words (of seeing, and seeing) there is secret taunting and check to the Pharisees: for they thought all blind but themselves.

CHAP. X.

1 Christ proveth that the Pharisees are the evil shepherds, and by many reasons, that himself is the good shepherd. 19 And thereof divers arifeth. 31 They take up stones, 39 and go about to take him, but he escapeth.

VERILY, ¹ verily I say unto you, He that entereth not in by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up another way, he is a thief and a robber.

2 But he that goeth in by the door, is the shepherd of the sheep.

3 To him the ² porter openeth, and the sheep hear his voice, and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he hath sent forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice.

5 And they will not follow a stranger, but they flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers.

6 This ³ parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them.

7 Then said Jesus unto them again, Verily, verily I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep.

8 ⁴ All that ⁴ ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them.

9 ⁵ I am that door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall ⁵ go in, and go out, and find pasture.

10 The thief cometh not but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and have it in abundance.

11 ⁶ I am that good shepherd: that good shepherd giveth his life for his sheep.

12 But an hireling, and he which is not the shepherd, neither the sheep are his own, seeth the wolf coming, and he leaveth the sheep, and fleeth, and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.

13 So the hireling fleeth, because he is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep.

14 I am that good shepherd, and know mine, and am known of mine,

15 As the Father ⁷ knoweth me, so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for my sheep. A. D. 32.

16 ⁴ Other sheep I have also, which are not of this fold: them also must I bring, and they shall hear my voice: and ⁴ there shall be ⁴ one sheepfold, and one shepherd. Ezek. 37. 23.

17 ⁵ Therefore doth my Father love me, because ⁵ I lay down my life, that I might take it again. 10. 51. 7.

18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself: I have power to lay it down, and have power to take it again: this ⁶ commandment have I received of my Father. 10. 17. 19.

19 ¶ ⁶ Then there was a dissention again among the Jews for these sayings.

20 And many of them said, He hath a devil, and is mad: why hear ye him?

21 Others said, These are not the words of him that hath a devil: Can the devil open the eyes of the blind?

22 And it was at Jerusalem, the ⁷ feast of the ⁷ dedication, and it was winter.

23 ⁷ And Jesus walked in the temple, in Solomon's porch.

24 Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou make us doubt? If thou be that Christ, tell us plainly.

25 ⁸ Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believe not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me.

26 ⁹ But ye believe not: ⁹ for ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you.

27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me:

28 And I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of mine hand.

29 My Father which gave ¹⁰ them me, is greater than all, and none is able to take them out of my Father's hand.

30 I and my Father are one.

31 ¹¹ Then the Jews again took up stones, to stone him. Ch. 8. 19.

32 Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewed you from my ¹¹ Father: for which of these works do ye stone me?

33 The Jews answered him, saying, For the good

¹ Seeing that by Christ only we have access to the Father, there are neither other true shepherds, than those which come to Christ themselves, and bring others thither also; neither is any to be thought the true sheep-fold, but that which is gathered to Christ.

² In those days they used to have a servant always sitting at the door, and therefore he speaketh after the manner of those days.

³ This word (parable) which the Evangelist useth here, signifieth a dark kind of speech, when words are taken from their natural meaning, to signify another thing to us.

⁴ It maketh no matter, how many, neither how old the false teachers have been.

⁵ These large terms must be applied to the matter he speaketh of. And therefore when he calleth himself the door, he calleth all them thieves and robbers which take upon them this name of Door, which none of the prophets can, for they shewed the sheep that Christ was the door.

⁶ Only Christ is the true pastor, and that only is the true church, which acknowledgeth him to be properly their only pastor: To him are opposite thieves, which feed not the sheep, but kill them: and hirelings also, which forsake the flock in time of danger, because they feed it only for their own profit and gains.

⁷ That is, shall live safely: so use the Jews to speak, as Deut. 25. 6. and yet there is a peculiar alluding to the shepherd's office.

⁸ Loveth me, alloweth me.

⁹ The calling of the Gentiles.

¹⁰ The certain mark of the catholic church throughout all the world, which hath one head, that is, Christ, the only keeper and only shepherd of it.

¹¹ Christ is by the decree of the Father, the only true shepherd of the true church, for he willingly gave his life for his sheep, and by his own power rose again to life.

He speaketh in the time that now is, because Christ's whole life was in it a perpetual death.

¹² The gospel discovereth hypocrisy, and therefore the world must needs rage when it cometh forth.

¹³ The feast of the dedication was instituted by Judas Maccabæus and his brethren, after the restoring of God's true religion by the casting out of Antiochus's garrison, 1 Mac. 4. 59.

¹⁴ The unbelievers and proud men accuse the gospel of darkness, which darkness indeed is within themselves.

¹⁵ The doctrine of the gospel is proved from heaven by two witnesses; both by the purity of the doctrine, and by miracles.

¹⁶ It is no marvel that there do but a few believe, seeing that all are by nature untamed beasts, yet notwithstanding God hath his, which he turneth into his sheep, and committeth them unto his Son, and preserveth them against the cruelty of all wild beasts.

¹⁷ He giveth a reason why they believe not, to wit, because they are not of his sheep.

¹⁸ Christ proveth his dignity by divine works.

¹⁹ Through my Father's authority and power.

A. D. 33. good work we stone thee not, but for blasphemy, and that thou being a man, makest thyself God.

34 Jesus answered them, Is it not written in your law, * I said, Ye are gods?

35 If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God was given, and the scripture cannot be broken:

36 Say ye of him, whom the Father hath sanctified, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest, because I said, I am the Son of God?

37 If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not.

38 But if I do, then though ye believe not me, yet believe the works, that ye may know and believe, that the Father is in me, and I in him.

39 ¹¹ Again they went about to take him: but he escaped out of their hands, 40 And went again beyond Jordan, into the place where John first baptized, and there abode.

41 And many resorted unto him, and said, John did no miracle: but all things that John spake of this man, were true.

42 And many believed in him there.

C H A P. XI.

Christ, to shew that he is ²⁵ the life and the resurrection, ¹⁴ cometh to Lazarus being dead, ¹⁷, ³⁴ and buried, ⁴³ and raiseth him up. ⁴⁷ As the priests were consulting together, ⁴⁹ Caiaphas ⁵⁰ propheseth that one must die for the people. ⁵⁶, ⁵⁷ They command to seek Christ out, and to take him.

AND ¹ a certain man was sick, named Lazarus of Bethany, the ² town of Mary, and her sister Martha.

2 (And it was that * Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick)

3 Therefore his sisters sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest, is sick.

4 When Jesus heard it, he said, This sickness is not unto ^b death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby.

5 ¶ Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister, and Lazarus.

6 ² And after he had heard that he was sick, yet abode he two days still in the same place where he was.

7 Then after that, said he to his disciples, Let us go into Judea again.

8 ¹ The disciples said unto him, Master, the Jews lately sought to stone thee, and dost thou go thither again?

9 Jesus answered, Are there not ^a twelve hours in the day? If a man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the light of this world. A. D. 33.

10 But if a man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him.

11 These things spake he: and after, he said unto them, Our friend Lazarus ^d sleepeth: but I go to wake him up.

12 Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, he shall be safe.

13 Howbeit, Jesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of the natural sleep.

14 Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead.

15 And I am glad for your sakes, that I was not there, that ye may believe: but let us go unto him.

16 Then said Thomas (which is called Didymus) unto his fellow disciples, Let us also go, that we may die with him.

17 ¶ Then came Jesus, and found that he had lien in the grave four days already.

18 ¶ (Now Bethany was near unto Jerusalem, about fifteen furlongs off.)

19 ⁴ And many of the Jews were come to Martha and Mary, to comfort them for their brother.

20 Then Martha, when she heard that Jesus was coming, went to meet him: but Mary sat still in the house.

21 Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not been dead.

22 But now I know also, that whatsoever thou askest of God, God will give it thee.

23 Jesus said unto her, Thy brother shall rise again

24 Martha said unto him, I know that he shall rise again * in the resurrection at the last day.

25 Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life: * he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.

26 And whosoever liveth, and believeth in me, shall never die: believest thou this?

27 She said unto him, Yea, Lord, I believe that thou art that Christ that Son of God, which should come into the world.

28 ¶ And when she had so said, she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The Master is come, and calleth for thee.

29 And when she heard it, she arose quickly, and came unto him,

30 For Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in the place where Martha met him.

31 The Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw Mary that she rose up hastily, and went out, followed

A. D. followed her, saying, She goeth unto the grave, 33 to weep there.

32 Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying unto him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not been dead.

33 When Jesus therefore saw her weep, and the Jews also weep which came with her, he groaned in the spirit, and was troubled in himself, 34 And said, Where have ye laid him? They said unto him, Lord, come and see.

35 And Jesus wept.

36 Then said the Jews, Behold, how he loved him!

• Ch. 9. 6. 37 And some of them said, * Could not he which opened the eyes of the blind, have made also, that this man should not have died?

38 Jesus therefore again groaned in himself, and came to the grave. And it was a cave, and a stone was laid upon it.

39 Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. Martha, the sister of him that was dead, said unto him, Lord, he sinneth already: for he hath been dead four days.

40 Jesus said unto her, Said I not unto thee, that if thou didst believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God?

41 Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lit up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee, because thou hast heard me.

42 I know that thou hearest me always, but because of the people that stand by, I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

43 As he had spoken these things, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth.

44 Then he that was dead, came forth, bound hand and foot with bands, and his face was bound with a napkin. Jesus said unto them, Loose him, and let him go.

45 ¶ Then many of the Jews, which came to Mary, and had seen the things which Jesus did, believed in him.

46 ¶ But some of them went their way to the Pharisees, and told them what things Jesus had done.

47 Then gathered the high priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, What shall we do? For this man doeth many miracles, 48 If we let him thus alone, all men will believe in him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place, and the nation.

49 Then one of them named Caiphas, which was the high priest that same year, said unto them, Ye perceive nothing at all.

50 Nor yet do you consider, that it is expedient for us, that one man die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not. A. D. 33.

51 ¶ This spake he not of himself: but being high priest that same year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation:

52 And not for that nation only, but that he should gather together in one the children of God, which were scattered.

53 Then from that day forth they consulted together to put him to death.

54 ¶ Jesus therefore walked no more openly among the Jews, but went thence into a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.

55 ¶ And the Jews passover was at hand, and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem, before the passover, to purify themselves.

56 Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, ¶ they stood in the temple, What think ye, that he cometh not to the feast?

57 Now both the high priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

C H A P. XII.

2 Christ is at supper with Lazarus, 3 Mary anoints his feet. 5 Judas findeth fault with her. 7 Christ defendeth her. 10 The priests would put Lazarus to death. 12 As Christ cometh to Jerusalem, 18 the people meet him. 20 The Grecians desire to see him. 40 The chief rulers that believe in him, but for fear do not confess him. 44 he exhorteth to faith.

¶ THEN * Jesus, six days before the passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, who died, whom he had raised from the dead. Ch. 26. 7. Mark 14. 3.

2 There they made him a supper, and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed Jesus's feet, and wiped his feet with her hair, and the house was filled with the savour of the ointment.

4 Then said one of his disciples, even Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,

5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?

6 Now he said this, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare that which was given. Ch. 12. 29.

7 ¶ Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my burying she kept it.

8 For the poor always ye have with you, but me ye shall not have always.

9 Then

¶ Christ took upon him, together with our flesh, all affections of man (sin only excepted) and amongst them especially mercy and compassion.

¶ These are tokens that he was greatly moved, but yet they were without sin; and these affections are proper to man's nature.

¶ The last point of iron like stubbornness is this, to proclaim open war against God, and yet ceaseth not to make a pretence both of godliness, and of the profit of the commonwealth.

¶ The Jews called this council Sanhedrin: and the word that John useth, is Synedrion.

¶ That is, take away from us by force: for at that time, though the high priest's authority was greatly lessened and decayed, yet there was some kind of government left among the Jews.

¶ The raging and mad company of the false church persuade themselves that they cannot be in safety, unless he be taken away, who only upholdeth the church. And so likewise judgeth the wisdom of the flesh in worldly affairs, which is governed by the spirit of giddiness or madness.

¶ Christ doth sometimes so turn the tongues, even of the wicked, that even in cursing, they bless.

¶ For they were not gathered together in one country, the Jews were, but they were gathered from all quarters, from the East to the West.

¶ We may give place to the rage of the wicked, when it is expedient so to do, but yet in such sort, that we swerve not from God's vocation.

¶ An horrible example in Judas, of a mind blinded with covetousness, and yet pretending godliness.

¶ This extraordinary anointing, which was for a sign, is so allowed of God, that he witnesseth how he will not be worshipped with outward pomp, or costly service, but with alms.

A. D. 33. 9 Then much people of the Jews knew that he was there: and they came, not for Jesus's sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead.

10 The high priests therefore consulted, that they might put Lazarus to death also,

11 Because that for his sake many of the Jews went away, and believed in Jesus.

12 ¶ * On the morrow a great multitude that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus should come to Jerusalem, 13 Took branches of palm-trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna, Blessed is the king of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord.

14 And Jesus found a young ass, and sat thereon, as it is written, 15 * Fear not, daughter of Sion: Behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt.

16 But his disciples understood not these things at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they, that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him.

17 The people therefore that was with him, bare witness that he called Lazarus out of the grave, and raised him from the dead:

18 Therefore met him the people also, because they said that he had done this miracle.

19 + And the Pharisees said among themselves, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? Behold, the world goeth after him.

20 ¶ Now there were certain Greeks among them that came up to worship at the feast.

21 And they came to Philip, which was of Bethsaida in Galilee, and desired him, saying, Sir, we would see that Jesus.

22 Philip came and told Andrew: and again Andrew and Philip told Jesus.

23 And Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come, that the Son of man must be glorified.

24 + Verily, verily I say unto you, Except the wheat corn fall into the ground, and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

25 * He that loveth his life, shall lose it: and he that hateth his life in this world, shall keep it unto life eternal.

26 * If any man serve me, let him follow me: for where I am, there shall also my servant be:

and if any man serve me, him will my Father honour. A. D. 33.

27 + Now is my soul troubled: and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour? But therefore came I unto this hour.

28 Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.

29 Then said the people that stood by, and heard, that it was thunder: others said, An angel spake to him.

30 + Jesus answered, and said, This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes.

31 Now is the judgment of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out.

32 * And I, if I were lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me. * Ch. 3. 14.

33 Now this said he, signifying what death he should die.

34 The people answered him, We have heard out of the law, that that Christ abideth for ever: and how sayest thou, that that Son of man must be lifted up? Who is that Son of man? * Ps. 89. 36. and 110. 4. and 117. 2. Isa. 40. 8. Ezech. 37. 25. * Ch. 1. 9.

35 + Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you: walk while ye have that light, lest the darkness come upon you: for he that walketh in the dark, knoweth not whither he goeth.

36 While ye have that light, believe in that light, that ye may be the children of the light. These things spake Jesus, and departed, and hid himself from them.

37 ¶ + And though he had done so many miracles before them, yet believed they not on him, 38 That the saying of Esaias the prophet might be fulfilled, that he said, * Lord, who believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? * Isa. 53. 1. Rom. 10. 16.

39 Therefore could they not believe, because that Esaias saith again, 40 * He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart, that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them * Isa. 6. 9. Matt. 13. 14. Mark 4. 12. Luke 9. 10. Acts 28. 26. Rom. 11. 8.

41 These things said Esaias, when he saw his glory, and spake of him.

42 + Nevertheless, even among the chief rulers, many believed in him: but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be cast out of the synagogue.

F f 43 For

1 When the light of the gospel sheweth itself, some are found to be curious, and others (which least ought) to be open enemies: others in rage honour him, whom they will straightway fall from: and very few do so reverently receive him as they ought notwithstanding, Christ beginneth his spiritual kingdom in the midst of his enemies.

2 Even they which go about oppress Christ, are made instruments of his glory.

3 After the solemn custom: the Grecians were first so called by the name of the country of Greece, where they dwelt: but afterward, all that were not of the Jews religion, but worshipped false gods, and were also called heathens, were called by this name.

4 The death of Christ is, as it were, sowing, which seemeth to be a dying of the corn, but indeed is the cause of a far greater harvest: and such as is the condition of the seed, so shall it be of the members.

5 A wheat corn dieth when it is changed by virtue of the ground, and becometh root of a fruitful blade.

6 While Christ went about to suffer all the punishment which is due to our sins, and whilst his divinity did not yet shew his might and power so far, this satisfaction might be thoroughly wrought: now when he is stricken with the great fear of the curse of God, he crieth and prayeth, and desireth to be released: yet notwithstanding he preferreth the will and glory of his Father before all things, whose obedience the Father alloweth even from heaven.

7 To wit, of death that is now at hand.

8 So then the Father's glory is Christ's glory.

9 Christ foretelleth in the deed the manner of his death, the overcoming of the devil and the world, and in conclusion, his triumph.

10 Christ used a word which hath double meaning, for it signifieth either to lift up, or rid out of the way: for his meaning was to put them in mind of his death, but the Jews seem to take it another way.

11 Chrysostom and Theophylact, refer this word, All, to all nations, that is, not only to the Jews only.

12 Unmeasurable is the mercy of God; but an horrible judgment followeth, if it be contemned.

13 That is, partakers of light.

14 Faith is not of nature, but of grace.

15 The arm of the Lord, is the gospel, which is the power of God to salvation, to all that believe: and therefore the name of the Lord is not revealed to them, whose hearts the Lord hath not opened.

16 Such as believe, are not only few in number, if they be compared with the unbelievers, but also the most of those few (yea, and especially, the chiefest) do fear men rather than God.

43 For they loved the praise of men, more than the praise of God.

44 And Jesus cried, and said, He that believeth in me, believeth not in me, but in him that sent me.

45 And he that seeth me, seeth him that sent me.

46 I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth in me, should not abide in darkness.

47 And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world.

48 He that refuseth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, it shall judge him in the last day.

49 For I have not spoken of myself: but the Father which hath sent me, he gave me a commandment what I should say, and what I should speak.

50 And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: the things therefore that I speak, I speak them to as the Father said unto me.

C H A P. XIII.

Christ rising from supper, 15 to commend humility to his apostles, washeth their feet. 21 He detecteth the traitor Judas, 26 with an evident token 34 He commendeth charity. 37, 39 He foretelleth Peter of his denial.

NOW before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come, that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, forasmuch as he loved his own which were in the world, unto the end he loved them.

2 And when supper was done (and that the devil had now put in the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him)

3 Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come forth from God, and went to God:

4 He riseth from supper, and layeth aside his supper garments, and took a towel, and girded himself.

5 After that, he poured water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples feet, and to wipe them with the towel, wherewith he was girded.

6 Then came he to Simon Peter, who said to him, Lord, dost thou wash my feet?

7 Jesus answered, and said unto him, What I do, thou knowest not now: but thou shalt know it hereafter.

8 Peter said unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou shalt have no part with me.

9 Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also the hands and the head.

10 Jesus said unto him, He that is washed, needeth not, save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.

11 For he knew who should betray him: therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

12 ¶ So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said to them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13 Ye call me Master, and Lord, and ye say well: for so am I.

14 If I then your Lord, and Master, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

15 For I have given you an example, that ye should do even as I have done to you.

16 Verily, verily I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his master, neither the ambassador greater than he that sent him.

17 If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them.

18 ¶ I speak not of you all: I know whom I have chosen: but it is that the scripture might be fulfilled, He that eateth bread with me, hath lift up his heel against me.

19 From henceforth tell I you before it come, that when it is come to pass, ye might believe that I am he.

20 Verily, verily I say unto you, If I send any, he that receiveth him, receiveth me: and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me.

21 When Jesus had said these things, he was troubled in the spirit, and testified and said, Verily, verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me.

22 Then the disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake.

23 Now there was one of his disciples, which leaned on Jesus's bosom, whom Jesus loved.

24 To him beckoned therefore Simon Peter, that he should ask who it was of whom he spake.

25 He then, as he leaned on Jesus's breast, said unto him, Lord, who is it?

26 Jesus answered, He it is, to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipt it: and he wet a sop, and gave it to Judas Iscariot, Simon's son.

27 And after the sop, Satan entered into him, Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.

28 But none of them that were at table, knew for what cause he spake it unto him.

29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those

1 The sum of the gospel, and therefore of salvation, which Christ witnessed in the midst of Jerusalem by his crying out, is this, to rest upon Christ through faith, as the only Saviour appointed and given us of the Father.

2 This word, Not, doth not take any whit of this from Christ, which is here spoken of, but is in way of correction rather: as if he said, He that believeth in me, doth so much believe in me, as in him that sent me. So is it in Mark 9, 37.

3 Christ no less certain of the victory, than of the combat which was at hand, using the sign of washing the feet, doth partly thereby give an example of singular modesty, and his great love towards his apostles in this notable act, being like, very shortly, to depart from them: and partly witnesseth unto them, that it is he only which washeth away the filth of his people, and that by little and little in their time and season.

4 Them of his household, that is, his saints.

¶ Into his power.

¶ In that he is said to rise, it argueth that there was a space between the ceremony of the passover and this washing of feet, at what time it seemeth that the supper was instituted.

¶ Unless thou suffer me to wash thee, thou shalt have no part in the kingdom of heaven.

¶ The betraying of Christ was not casual, or a thing that happened by chance, but the Father so ordained the cause of our salvation, to reconcile unto himself in his Son, and the Son did willingly and voluntarily obey the Father.

¶ He affirmed it openly and soothed it.

¶ John's leaning was such, that sitting down in his bed, his head was toward Jesus's head: so that it was an easy matter for him to touch Jesus's bosom: for it is certain that in old time men used not to sit at the table, but to lie down on the one side.

A. D. 33. those things that we have need of against the feast: or that he should give something to the poor.

30 As soon then as he had received the sop, he went immediately out, and it was night.

31 ¶ When he was gone out, Jesus said, Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.

32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.

33 * Little children, yet a little while am I with you: ye shall seek me, but as I said unto the * Jews, Whither I go, can ye not come: also to you say I now, 34 * A new commandment give I unto you, that ye love one another: as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

35 By this shall all men know, that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

36 † Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now: but thou shalt follow me afterward.

37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why can I not follow thee now? * I will lay down my life for thy sake.

38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou have denied me thrice.

CHAP. XIV.

1 He comforteth his disciples, 2, 7 declaring his divinity and the fruit of his death, 16 promising the Comforter. 17 even the Holy Spirit, 26 whose office he setteth out. 27 He promiseth his peace.

LET not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

2 In my Father's house are many dwelling-places: if it were not so, † I would have told you: I go to † prepare a place for you.

3 † And if I go to prepare a place for you, I will † come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there may ye be also.

4 † And whither I go, ye know, and the way ye know.

5 Thomas said unto him, Lord, we know

† We have to consider the glorifying of Christ in his ignominy.

‡ This verse and the next following, are most plain and evident testimony of the divinity of Christ.

§ The eternal glory shall flow by little and little from the head into the members. But in the mean time, we must take good heed, that we pass over the race of this life in brotherly love.

¶ An heavy example of rash trust and confidence.

‡ He believeth in God that believeth in Christ, and there is no other way to confirm our minds in the greatest difficulties.

§ That is, if it were not so as I tell you, we wit, unless there were place enough not only for me, but for you also, in my Father's house, I would not thus deceive you with a vain hope, but I would have told you so plainly.

¶ All this speech is by way of an allegory, whereby the Lord comforteth his own, declaring to them his departure into heaven, which is not to reign there alone, but to go before and prepare a place for them.

‡ Christ went not away from us, to the end we forsake us, but rather that he might at length take us up with him into heaven.

§ These words are to be referred to the whole church, and therefore the angel said to the disciples when they were astonished, What stand you gazing up into heaven? This Jesus shall so come as you saw him go up, Acts 1. 11. and in all places of the scripture, the full comfort of the church is referred to that day when God shall be all in all, and is therefore called the day of redemption.

¶ Christ only is the way to true and everlasting life, for not whither thou goest, how can we then know the way?

6 Jesus said unto him, I am † that Way, and that Truth, and that Life: No man cometh unto the Father, but by me.

7 † If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.

8 Philip said unto him; Lord; shew us thy Father, and it sufficeth us.

9 Jesus said unto him, I have been so long time with you, and hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me, hath seen my Father: how then sayest thou; Shew us thy Father?

10 † Believest thou not, that I am in the Father, and the Father is in me? The words that I speak unto you; I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doth the works.

11 Believe me; that I am in the Father, and the Father is in me: at the least, believe me for the very works sake.

12 † Verily; verily I say unto you, he that believeth in me, the works that I do, he shall do also, and † greater than these shall he do: for I go unto my Father.

13 * And whatsoever ye ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15 † If ye love me, keep my commandments.

16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another comforter, that he may abide with you for ever:

17 Even the † Spirit of truth, whom the † world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him: for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

18 I will not leave you fatherless: but I will come to you.

19 Yet a little while, and the world shall see me no more, but ye shall see me: because I live, ye shall live also.

20 At that day shall ye know that I am † in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

21 He that hath my commandments, and keepeth

he it is in whom the Father hath revealed himself.

‡ This saying, sheweth unto us both the nature, the will, and the office of Christ.

¶ It is plain by this place, that we know God, and we see God, is all one: now whereas he said before, that we saw God at any time, that is to be understood thus; without Christ, or were it not through Christ, we saw God at any time: for Chrysostom saith, the Son is a very short and easy setting forth of the Father's nature unto us.

§ The majesty of God sheweth itself most evidently, both in Christ's doctrine and deeds.

¶ The approving of the virtue of Christ is not included within his own person, but it is spread through the body of his whole church.

‡ That is, not only do them, but I can also give other men power to do greater.

¶ He loveth Christ aright which obeyeth his commandments: and because the same is accompanied with an infinite sort of miseries, although he be absent in body, yet doth he comfort his with the present virtue of the Holy Ghost, whom the world despiseth, because it knoweth him not.

§ The Holy Ghost is called the Spirit of truth, of the effect which he worketh, because he inspireth the truth in us, whereas otherwise he hath truth in himself.

¶ Worldly men.

‡ The Son is in the Father after such sort, that he is of the self-same substance with his Father; but he is in his disciples in a certain respect, as an aider and helper of them.

27 Peace I leave with you: my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your hearts be troubled, nor fear.

28 Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away, and will come unto you. If ye loved me, ye would verily rejoice, because I said, I go unto the Father: for the Father is ¹ greater than I.

29 And now have I spoken unto you, before it come, that when it is come to pass, ye might believe.

30 Hereafter will I not speak many things unto you: for the prince of this world cometh, and hath ^a nought in me.

31 But it is that the world may know that I love ^{my} Father: and as the Father hath commanded me, so I do. Arise, let us go hence.

C H A P. XV.

1 By the parable of the vine, 2 and the branches, 5, 6 be declared how the disciples may bear fruit. 12, 17 He commendeth mutual love. 18 He exhorteth them to bear afflictions patiently, 20 by his own example.

I AM that true vine, and my Father is that husbandman.

¹ I will shew myself to him, and be known of him, as if he saw me with his eyes: but this shewing of himself is not bodily, but spiritually, yet so plain as none can be more.

² We must not ask why the gospel is revealed to some rather than to others, but we must rather take heed that we embrace Christ, who is offered unto us, and that we truly love him, that is to say, that we give ourselves wholly to his obedience.

³ It is the office of the Holy Ghost to imprint in the minds of the elect, in their times and seasons, that which Christ once spake.

⁴ All true felicity cometh to me by Christ alone.

⁵ So far is it that we should be sorry for the departing of Christ from us, according to the flesh, that we should rather rejoice for it, seeing that all the blessing of the members dependeth upon the glorifying of the Head.

⁶ This is spoken, in that that he is Mediator, for so the Father is greater than he, inasmuch as the person to whom request is made, is greater than he that maketh the request.

⁷ Christ goeth to death not unwillingly, but willingly, not as yielding to the devil, but obeying his Father's decree.

⁸ As who would say, Satan will by and by set upon me with all the might he can, but he hath no power over me, neither shall he find any such thing in me, as he thinketh he shall.

⁹ We are of nature dry and fit for nothing, but the fire: therefore that we may live and be fruitful, we must first be grafted into Christ, as it were into a vine, by the Father's

2 ^a Every branch that beareth not fruit in me, he taketh away: and every one that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit.

3 Now are ye clean through the word which I have spoken unto you.

4 Abide in me, and I in you: as the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

5 I am that vine: ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me can ye do nothing.

6 If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and withereth: and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they burn.

7 If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ask what ye will, and it shall be done to you.

8 Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit, and be made my disciples.

9 As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: ^b continue in that my love.

10 If ye shall keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love, as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

11 These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

12 This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you.

13 Greater love than this hath no man, when any man bestoweth his life for his friends.

14 Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

15 Henceforth call I you not servants: for the servant knoweth not what his master doth: but I have called you friends: for all things that I have heard of my Father, have I made known unto you.

16 Ye ^c have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, ^d that ye go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you.

17 These things command I you, that ye love one another. 13 If hand: and then be daily shred with a continual meditation of the word, and the cross: otherwise it shall not avail any at all to have been grafted, unless he cleave fast unto the Vine, and so draw juice out of it.

² He abideth in Christ, which resteth in his doctrine, and therefore bringeth forth good fruit: and the Father will deny such one nothing.

³ As who would say, Herein shall my Father be glorified, and herein also shall you be my disciples, if you bring forth much fruit.

⁴ The love of the Father towards the Son, and of the Son towards us, and ours towards God and our neighbour, are joined together with a inseparable knot: and there is nothing more sweet and pleasant than it is. Now this love sheweth itself by the effects: a most perfect example whereof Christ himself exhibiteth unto us.

⁵ That is, in that love wherewith I do love you: which love is on both parts.

⁶ The doctrine of the gospel (as it is uttered by Christ's own mouth) is a most perfect and absolute declaration of the counsel of God which pertaineth to our salvation, and is committed unto the apostles.

⁷ Christ is the author and preserver of the ministry of the gospel even to the world's end: but the ministers have above all things need of prayer and brotherly love.

⁸ This place teacheth us plainly, that our salvation cometh from the only favour and gracious goodness of the everlasting God toward us, and of nothing that we do or can d.f.r.v.c.

20 Remember the word that I said unto you,

Ch. 13. 16. * The servant is not greater than his master.

Ch. 10. 24. * If they have persecuted me, they will persecute you also: if they have kept my word, they will also keep yours.

Ch. 16. 4. 21 ⁷ But * all these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because they have not known him that sent me.

22 ⁴ If I had not come and spoken unto them, they should not have had sin: but now have they no cloke for their sin.

23 He that hateth me, hateth my Father also.

24 If I had not done works among them which none other man did, they had not had sin: but now have they both seen, and have hated both me, and my Father.

Ch. 35. 19. 25 But it is that the word might be fulfilled, that is written in their ¹⁰ law, * They hated me without ¹¹ cause.

Ch. 14. 26. 26 ¹ But when that Comforter shall come, ² whom I will send unto you from the Father, ³ even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth of the Father, he shall testify of me.

27 And ye shall witness also, because ye have been with me from the beginning.

C H A P. XVI.

1 He foretelleth the disciples of persecution. 7 He promiseth the Comforter, and declareth his office.

21 He compareth the afflictions of his to a woman that travaileth with child.

THESSE ¹ things have I said unto you, that ye should not be offended.

2 They shall excommunicate you: yea, the time shall come, that whosoever killeth you, will think that he doth God service.

3 And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me.

¹ It ought not only not to fear, but rather confirm the faithful ministers of Christ, when they shall be hated of the world ² their Master was.

⁷ The hatred that the world beareth against Christ, proceedeth of the blockishness of the mind, which notwithstanding is voluntarily blind, so that the world can pretend no excuse to cover their fault.

⁴ As who would say, If I had not come, these ⁵ would not have stuck to have said still before God's judgment-seat, that they are religious and void of sin: but seeing I came to them, and they clean refuse me, they can have ⁶ cloak for their wickedness.

¹ Sometimes by this word, Law, ² meant the five books of Moses, but in this place, the whole scripture: for the place alledged is in the psalms.

⁸ Against the rage of the wicked, we shall stand surely by the inward testimony of the Holy Ghost: but the Holy Ghost speaketh no otherwise, than he speaketh by the mouth of the apostles.

¹ The ministers of the gospel must look for all manner of reproaches, not only of them which ² open enemies, but even of them also which seem ³ be of the same household, and the very pillars of the church.

² The absence of Christ according ³ the flesh, is profitable to the church, that we may wholly depend upon his spiritual power.

³ The Spirit of God worketh so mightily by the preaching of the word, that he constraineth the world, will it, nill it, to confess its own unrighteousness, and Christ's righteousness and almightiness.

¹ He will so reprove the world, that the worldlings shall be able to pretend ² excuse.

¹ He respecteth the time that followed his ascension,

4 ⁸ But these things have I told you, that when the hour shall come, ye might remember, that I told you them. And these things said I not unto you from the beginning, because I was with you.

5 But now I go my way to him that sent me, and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?

6 But because I have said these things unto you, your hearts are full of sorrow.

7 ² Yet I tell you the truth, It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, that Comforter will not come unto you: but if I depart, I will send him unto you.

³ And when he is come, he will ⁴ reprove the ⁵ world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment.

9 Of sin, because they believed not in me:

10 Of ¹ righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye shall see me no more:

11 Of ⁴ judgment, ⁵ because the prince of this world is judged.

12 ⁴ I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.

13 Howbeit, when he is come which is the Spirit of truth, he will lead you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself, but whatsoever he shall hear, shall he speak, and he will shew you the things to come.

14 ⁵ He shall glorify me: For he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

15 All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shew it unto you.

16 ⁶ A ¹ little while, and ye shall not see me: and again ² little while, and ye shall see me: ³ for I go to the Father.

17 Then said some of his disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me, and again a little while, and ye shall see me: for I go to the Father?

18 They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? we know not what he saith.

19 Now Jesus knew that they would ask

G g him,

when ¹ all gainsayers were manifestly reprov'd through the pouring out of the Holy Ghost upon the church: so that the very enemies of Christ were reprov'd of sin, in that they were constrained to confess that they were deceived, in that they believed not, and therefore they said ² Peter, Acts 2. Men and brethren, what shall we do?

³ Of Christ himself: for when the world shall see that I have poured out the Holy Ghost, they shall be constrained ⁴ confess that I was just, and was not condemned of my Father, when I went out of this world.

⁴ Of that authority and power which I have both in heaven and earth.

⁵ That is, because they shall then understand and know indeed that I have overcome the devil, and do govern the world, when all ⁶ shall see that they set themselves against you in vain, for I will arm you with that heavenly power whereby you may destroy every high thing which is lifted up against the knowledge of God, 2 Cor. 10. 12.

¹ The doctrine of the apostles proceeded from the Holy Ghost, and is most perfect.

⁵ The Holy Ghost bringeth no new doctrine, but teacheth that which was uttered by Christ's own mouth, and imprinteth it in our minds.

⁶ The grace of the Holy Ghost is ¹ most lively glass, wherein Christ is truly beholden with the most sharp-sighted eyes of faith, and not with the bleared eyes of the flesh, whereby we feel ² continual joy even in the midst of sorrows.

¹ When a little time is once past.

² For I pass to eternal glory, so that I shall be much more present with you than I was before: for then you shall feel indeed what I am, and what I am able to do.

A. D. 33. Ch. 15. 21.

A. D. 33. him, and said unto them, Do ye inquire among yourselves, of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me?

20 Verily, verily I say unto you, that ye shall weep and lament, and the world shall rejoice: and ye shall sorrow, but your sorrow shall be turned to joy.

21 A woman, when she travaileth, hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.

22 And ye now therefore are in sorrow: but I will see you again, and your hearts shall rejoice, and your joy shall no man take from you.

23 And in that day shall ye ask me nothing. * Verily, verily I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.

24 Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.

25 These things have I spoken unto you in parables: but the time will come, when I shall no more speak to you in parables: but I shall shew you plainly of the Father.

26 At that day shall ye ask in my name, and I say not unto you, that I will pray unto the Father for you:

27 For the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, * and have believed that I came out from God.

28 I am come out from the Father, and came into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.

29 His disciples said unto him, Lo, now speakest thou plainly, and thou speakest no parable.

30 Now know we that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee. By this we believe that thou art come out from God.

31 Jesus answered them, Do you believe now?

32 * Behold, the hour cometh, and is already come, that ye shall be scattered every man into his own, and shall leave me alone: but I am not alone: for the Father is with me.

The Holy Ghost, which was poured upon the apostles after the ascension of Christ, instructed both them in all the chiefest mysteries and secrets of our salvation, and also by them the church, and will also instruct it to the end of the world.

The sum of the worship of God is the invocation of the Father, in the name of the Son the Mediator, who is already heard for us, for whom he both abased himself, and is now also glorified.

Faith and foolish security differ very much.

Neither the wickedness of the world, neither the weakness of his own, can diminish any thing of the virtue of Christ.

The surety and stay of the church dependeth only upon the victory of Christ.

That in me you might be thoroughly quieted. For by (peace) is meant in this place, that quiet state of mind which is clean contrary to disquietness and heaviness.

Jesus Christ the everlasting high Priest, being ready straightways to offer up himself, doth by solemn prayers consecrate himself to God the Father, as a sacrifice, and us together with himself. Therefore this prayer was from the beginning, is, and shall be to the end of the world, the foundation and ground of the church of God.

He first declareth, that he came into the world to the end that the Father might shew in him, being apprehended by faith, his glory, in saving his elect, to be applied himself to that only: and therefore desireth of the 33 These things have I spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace: in the world ye shall have affliction: but be of good comfort, I have overcome the world.

CHAPTER XVII.

Christ prayeth that his glory, together with his Father's, may be made manifest. 9 He prayeth for his apostles, 20 and for all believers.

THESE things spake Jesus, and lift up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, that hour is come: glorify thy Son, that thy Son may also glorify thee:

2 As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to all them that thou hast given him.

3 And this is life eternal, that they know thee to be the only very God, and whom thou hast sent, Jesus Christ.

4 I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.

5 And now glorify me, thou Father, with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

6 I have declared thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me, and they have kept thy word.

7 Now they that know all things whatsoever thou hast given me, are of thee.

8 For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me, and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and have believed that thou hast sent me.

9 I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me: for they are thine,

10 And all mine are thine, and thine are mine, and I am glorified in them.

11 And now am I no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep them in thy name, even them whom thou hast given me, that they may be one as we are.

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: those that thou gavest me have I kept, and none of them is lost, but the Father, that he would bless the work which he had finished.

Over all men.

He calleth the Father the only very God, to set him against false gods, and not to shut out himself and the Holy Ghost, for straightway he joineth the knowledge of the Father and the knowledge of himself together, and according to his accustomed manner, setteth forth the whole Godhead in the person of the Father: so is the Father alone said to be King, immortal, wise, and dwelling in light which no man can attain unto, invisible. Rom. 16. 27. 1 Tim. 1. 17.

First of all, he prayeth for those his disciples, by whom he would have the rest be gathered together, and commendeth them to the Father (having once rejected the whole company of the reprobate) because he received them of him, into his custody, and for that they embracing his doctrine shall have many and so mighty enemies, that there is no way for them to be in safety, but by his help only.

He sheweth hereby that everlasting election and choice, which is hidden in the good-will and pleasure of God, which is the groundwork of salvation.

He sheweth how that everlasting and hidden purpose of God is declared in Christ, by whom we are justified and sanctified, if we lay hold on him by faith, that at length we may come to the glory of the election.

He prayeth that his people may peaceably agree and be joined together in one, that as the Godhead is one, so they may be of one mind, and consent together.

14 I have given them thy word, and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, as I am not of the world.

15 + I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou keep them from all evil.

16 They are not of the world, I am not of the world.

17 Sanctify them with thy truth: thy word is truth.

18 As thou didst send me into the world, so have I sent them into the world.

19 And for their sakes sanctify I myself, that they also may be sanctified through the truth.

20 I pray not for these alone, but for them also which shall believe in me, through their word.

21 That they all may be one, thou, O Father, art in me, and I in thee: even that they may be also one in us, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.

22 And the glory that thou gavest me, I have given them, that they may be one, as we are one,

23 I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

24 * Father, I will that they which thou hast given me, be with me, even where I am, that they may behold that my glory, which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

25 O righteous Father, the world also hath not known thee: but I have known thee, and these have known, that thou hast sent me.

26 7 And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it, that the love wherewith thou hast loved me, may be in them, and I in them.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 By Christ's power, whom Judas betrayeth, 6 the soldiers are cast down to the ground. 13 Christ is led to Annas, and from him to Caiaphas. 22 23 His answer to the officer that smote him with a rod. 28 Being delivered to Pilate, 36 he declareth his kingdom.

WHEN Jesus had spoken these things, he went forth with his disciples over the brook * Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his disciples.

4 He sheweth what manner of deliverance he meaneth, not that they should be in no danger, but that they being preserved from all, might prove by experience that the doctrine of salvation is truth, which they received at his mouth and deliver to others.

5 That is, make them holy: and that is said to be holy, which is dedicated and made proper to God only.

6 He addeth moreover, that the apostles have a vocation common with them, and therefore they must be holden up by the self-same virtue to give up themselves wholly to God, whereby he being first, did consecrate himself to the Father.

7 The true and substantial sanctification of Christ, is set against the outward purifying.

8 Secondly, he offereth to God the Father all his, that is, how many soever shall believe in him by the doctrine of the apostles; that as he cleaveth unto the Father, receiving from him all fullness, so they being joined with him, may receive life from him, and at length being together beloved in him, may also with him enjoy everlasting glory.

9 He communicateth with his by little and little, the knowledge of the Father, which is most full in Christ the

2 And Judas, which betrayed him, knew also the place: for Jesus oft-times resorted thither with his disciples. A. D. 33.

3 * 2 Judas then, after he had received a band of men and officers of the high priests and of the Pharisees, came thither with lanterns, and torches, and weapons. 6 Matt. 26. 47. Mark 14. 43. Luke 22. 47.

4 3 Then Jesus, knowing all things that should come unto him, went forth, and said unto them, Whom seek ye?

5 They answered him, Jesus of Nazareth. Jesus said unto them, I am he. Now Judas also which betrayed him, stood with them.

6 As soon then as he had said unto them, I am he, they went away backwards, and fell to the ground:

7 Then he asked them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth.

8 + Jesus answered, I said unto you, that I am he: therefore if ye seek me, let these go their way.

9 This was that the word might be fulfilled which he spake, Of them which thou gavest me, have I lost none. Ch. 17. 12.

10 5 Then Simon Peter having a sword, drew it, and smote the high priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. Now the servant's name was Malchus.

11 Then said Jesus unto Peter, Put up thy sword into the sheath: shall I not drink of the cup which my Father hath given me?

12 Then the band and the captain, and the officers of the Jews, took Jesus, and bound him, 13 6 And led him away to * Annas first (for he was father-in-law to Caiaphas, which was the high priest that same year.) Luke 3. 2.

14 * And Caiaphas was he that gave counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should die for the people. Ch. 11. 50.

15 ¶ 7 * Now Simon Peter followed Jesus, and another disciple, and that disciple was known of the high priest, therefore he went in with Jesus into the hall of the high priest: Matt. 26. 58. Mark 14. 54. Luke 22. 54.

16 But Peter stood at the door without. Then went out the other disciple which was known unto the high priest, and spake to her that kept the door, and brought in Peter.

17 Then said the maid that kept the door, unto Peter, Art not thou also one of this man's disciples? He said, I am not.

18 And the servants and officers stood there, which had made a fire of coals: for it was cold, and they warmed themselves. And Peter also stood among them, and warmed himself.

19 ¶ 8 The high priest then asked Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine. Jesus Mediator, that they may in him be beloved of the Father, with the self-same love wherewith he loveth the Son.

1 Christ goeth of his accord into a garden, which his betrayer knew, he taken, that by his obedience he might take away the sin that entered into the world by man's rebellion, and that in a garden.

2 Christ, who was innocent, was taken as a wicked person, that we which are wicked might be let go as innocent.

3 Christ's person (but not his virtue) was bound of the adversaries when and how he would.

4 Christ doth not neglect the office of a good pastor, no not in his greatest danger.

5 We ought to contain the zeal we bear to God, within the bounds of our vocation.

6 Christ is brought before an earthly high priest to be condemned for his blasphemies, that we might be acquitted of the everlasting high priest himself.

7 A lively example of the frailty of man, who is in the best, when they be once left to themselves.

8 Christ defendeth his cause but slenderly, not that he would withdraw himself from death, but he sheweth that he was condemned as an innocent.

A. D. 33. 20 Jesus answered him, I spake openly to the world. I ever taught in the synagogue and in the temple, whither the Jews resort continually, and in secret have I said nothing.

21 Why askest thou me? ask them which heard me what I said unto them: behold, they know what I said.

22 When he had spoken these things, one of the officers which stood by, smote Jesus with his rod, saying, Answerest thou the high priest so?

23 Jesus answered him, If I have evil spoken, bear witness of the evil: but if I have well spoken, why smitest thou me?

24 ¶ Now Annas had sent him bound unto Caiaphas the high priest.)

25 And Simon Peter stood and warmed himself, and they said unto him, Art not thou also of his disciples? He denied it, and said, I am not.

26 One of the servants of the high priest, his cousin, whose ear Peter smote off, said, Did not I see thee in the garden with him?

27 Peter then denied again, and immediately the cock crew.

28 ¶ Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas into the common hall. Now it was morning, and they themselves went not into the common hall, lest they should be defiled, but that they might eat the passover.

29 Pilate then went out unto them, and said, What accusation bring ye against this man?

30 They answered, and said unto him, If he were not an evil doer, we would not have delivered him unto thee.

31 Then said Pilate unto them, Take ye him, and judge him after your own law. Then the Jews said unto him, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death.

32 It was that the word of Jesus might be fulfilled which he spake, signifying what death he should die.

33 So Pilate entered into the common hall again, and called Jesus, and said unto him, Art thou the king of the Jews?

34 Jesus answered him, Sayest thou that of thyself, or did others tell it thee of me?

35 Pilate answered, Am I a Jew? Thine own nation, and the high priests, have delivered thee unto me. What hast thou done?

36 Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, my servants would surely fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence.

37 Pilate then said unto him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am king: for this cause am I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth: every one that is of the truth, heareth my voice.

38 Pilate said unto him, What is truth? And when he had said that, he went out again unto the Jews, and said unto them, I find in him no cause at all.

39 But you have a custom, that I should deliver you one loose at the passover: will ye then that I loose unto you the king of the Jews?

40 Then cried they all again, saying, Not him, but Barabbas: now this Barabbas was a murderer.

C H A P. XIX.

Pilate, when Christ was scourged, 2 and crowned with thorns, 4 was desirous to let him loose: 8 but being overcome with the outrage of the Jews, 16 he delivereth him to be crucified. 26 Jesus committeth his mother to the disciple. 30 Having tasted vinegar, he dieth. 34 And being dead, his side is pierced with a spear. 40 He is buried.

THEN Pilate took Jesus and scourged him.

2 And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head: and they put on him a purple garment.

3 And said, Hail, king of the Jews. And they smote him with their rods.

4 Then Pilate went forth again, and said unto them, Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know, that I find no fault in him at all.

5 Then came Jesus forth wearing a crown of thorns, and a purple garment. And Pilate said unto them, Behold the man.

6 Then when the high priests and officers saw him, they cried, saying, Crucify, crucify him. Pilate said unto them, Take ye him, and crucify him: for I find no fault in him.

7 The Jews answered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.

8 ¶ When Pilate then heard that word, he was the more afraid,

9 And went again into the common hall, and said unto Jesus, Whence art thou? but Jesus gave him no answer.

10 Then said Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? Knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to loose thee?

11 Jesus answered, Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the greater sin.

12 From thenceforth Pilate sought to loose him,

20 After that men have once fallen, they cannot only lift up themselves by their own strength, but also they fall more and more into worse, until they be raised up again by a new virtue of God.

22 The Son of God is brought before the judgment-seat of an earthly and profane man, in whom there is found much less wickedness than in the princes of the people of God. A lively image of the wrath of God against sin, and therefore of his great mercy, and last of all of his most severe judgment against the stubborn contemners of his grace when it is offered unto them.

24 From Caiaphas's house.

26 For judgments of life and death were taken from them forty years before the destruction of the temple.

28 For Christ had foretold that he should be crucified.

30 Christ avoucheth his spiritual kingdom, but rejecteth a worldly.

12 It was requisite that Christ should be pronounced innocent, but notwithstanding (in that that he took upon him our person) was to be condemned as a most wicked man.

14 He speaketh this disdainfully and scoffingly, and not by way of asking a question.

16 Word for word, made a great and foul voice.

18 The wisdom of the flesh chuseth of two evils the least, but God curseth that same wisdom.

20 Christ is again quitted by that same mouth wherewith he is afterward condemned.

22 They will have him crucified, whom by an old custom of theirs they should have stoned and hanged up as convicted of blasphemy; but they desire to have him crucified after the manner of the Romans.

28 Pilate's conscience fighteth for Christ, but straightway it yieldeth, because it is not upholden with the living virtue of God.

A. D. 33. him, but the Jews cried, saying, If thou deliver him, thou art not Cæsar's friend: for whosoever maketh himself king, speaketh against Cæsar.

13 ¶ When Pilate heard this word, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment-seat, in a place called the Pavement, and in Hebrew Gabbatha.

14 And it was the preparation of the passover, and about the sixth hour: and he said unto the Jews, Behold your king.

15 But they cried, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate said unto them, Shall I crucify your king? The high priests answered, We have no king but Cæsar.

16 Then delivered he him unto them, to be crucified. And they took Jesus, and led him away.

17 ¶ And he bare his own cross, and came into a place named of dead men's skulls, which is called in Hebrew Golgotha:

18 Where they crucified him, and two others with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst.

19 ¶ And Pilate wrote also a title, and put it on the cross, and it was written, JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20 This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was near to the city: and it was written in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin.

21 Then said the high priests of the Jews, to Pilate, Write not, The king of the Jews, but that he said, I am king of the Jews.

22 Pilate answered, What I have written, I have written.

23 ¶ Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments (and made four parts, to every soldier a part) and his coat: and the coat was without seam, woven from the top throughout.

24 Therefore they said one to another, Let us not divide it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be. This was that the scripture might be fulfilled, which saith, * They parted my garments among them, and on my coat did cast lots. So the soldiers did these things indeed.

25 ¶ Then stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Cleopas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 And when Jesus saw his mother, and the disciple standing by, whom he loved, he said unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son.

27 Then said he to the disciple, Behold thy mother: and from that hour the disciple took her home unto him.

28 ¶ After, when Jesus knew that all things were performed, that the scripture might be fulfilled, he said, I thirst.

29 And there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it about hyssop stalk, and put it to his mouth.

30 Now when Jesus had received of the vinegar, he said, It is finished, and bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.

31 ¶ The Jews then (because it was the preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the sabbath day: for that sabbath was high day) besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken down.

32 Then came the soldiers and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with Jesus.

33 But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs.

34 ¶ But one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and forthwith came thereout blood and water.

35 And he that saw it, bare record, and his record is true: and he knoweth that he saith true, that ye might believe it.

36 For these things were done, that the scripture should be fulfilled, * Not a bone of him shall be broken.

37 And again another scripture saith, * They shall see him whom they have thrust through.

38 ¶ And after these things, Joseph of Arimathea (who was a disciple of Jesus, but secretly for fear of the Jews) besought Pilate that he might take down the body of Jesus. And Pilate gave him licence. He came then and took Jesus's body.

39 And there came also Nicodemus (which first came to Jesus by night) and brought of myrrh and aloes mingled together about an hundred pound.

40 Then took they the body of Jesus, and wrapped it in linen cloaths with the odours, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41 And in that place where Jesus was crucified, was a garden, and in the garden a new sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid.

H h 42 There

¶ Pilate condemneth himself first, with the same mouth wherewith he afterward condemneth Christ.

¶ Gabbatha signifieth a high place, a judgment-seat: are.

¶ Christ fasteneth Satan, sin and death to the cross.

¶ Christ sitting upon the throne of the cross, is openly written everlasting king of all people with his own hand, whose mouth condemned him for usurping a kingdom.

¶ Christ signifieth by the division of his garments amongst the bloody butchers (his coat except, that had no seam) that it shall come to pass, that he will shortly divide his benefits, and enrich his very enemies throughout the world: but so notwithstanding that the treasure of his church shall remain whole.

¶ Christ is a perfect example of all righteousness, not only in the keeping of the first, but also of the second table.

¶ Christ, when he hath taken the vinegar, yieldeth up the ghost, drinking up indeed that most bitter and sharp cup of his Father's wrath in our name.

¶ Galatinus witnesseth out of the book called Sanhedrin, that the Jews were wont to give them that were executed, vinegar mixed with frankincense to drink, to make their brains somewhat troubled: so charitably the Jews provided for the poor men's conscience, which were executed!

¶ The body of Christ which was dead for a season, (because it so pleased him) is wounded, but the least bone of it is not broken, and such is the state of his mystical body.

¶ Christ being dead upon the cross witnesseth by a double sign, that he only is the true satisfaction, and the true washing for the believers.

¶ This wound was a most manifest witness of the death of Christ: for the water that issued out of this wound gave us plainly to understand, that the weapon pierced the very skin that compasseth the heart, which is the vessel that containeth that water, and that being once wounded, that creature which is so pierced, and stricken, cannot chuse but die.

¶ Christ is openly buried, and in a famous place, Pilate writing and suffering it, and that by which did favour Christ, in such wise, that yet before that day, they never openly followed him: so that by his burial, we can justly doubt either of his death, or resurrection.

¶ That no man might cavil at his resurrection, though some other that had been buried there, had risen. Theoph.

A. D. 42 There then laid they Jesus, because of the 33 Jews preparation day, for the sepulchre was near.

C H A P. XX.

1 Mary bringeth word that Christ is risen. 3 Peter and John 4 run to see it. 15 Jesus appear-eth to Mary, 19 and to the disciples that were together in the house. 25 Thomas, before faithless, 29 now believeth.

NOW the first day of the week came Mary Magdalene, early when it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and saw the stone taken away from the tomb.

2 Then she ran, and came to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and said unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 Peter therefore went forth, and the other disciple, and they came unto the sepulchre.

4 So they ran both together, but the other disciple did out-run Peter, and came first to the sepulchre.

5 And he stooped down, and saw the linen cloaths lying: yet went he not in.

6 Then came Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulchre, and saw the linen cloaths lie.

7 And the kerchief that was upon his head, not lying with the linen cloaths, but wrapped together in a place by itself.

8 Then went in also the other disciple, which came first to the sepulchre, and he saw it, and believed.

9 For as yet they knew not the scripture,
That he must rise again from the dead.

10 And the disciples went away again unto their own home.

11 ¶ * But Mary stood ^a without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept, she bowed herself into the sepulchre,

12 ^b And saw two angels in ^c white, sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

13 And they said unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She said unto them, They have taken away ^d my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 ^e When she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weep-est thou? whom seekest thou? She supposing that he had been the gardener, said unto him, Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

^a Mary Magdalene, Peter and John, are the first witnesses of the resurrection; and such as cannot justly be suspected, for that they themselves could scarcely be persuaded of it, so far it is off that they should invent it of set purpose.

^b That is, without the cave, which the sepulchre was cut out of.

^c Two angels are made witnesses of the Lord's resurrection.

^d In white cloathing.

^e Mary spake ^f the common people used to speak; for they speak of ^g dead carcase as they do of a whole man.

^f Jesus witnesseth by his presence, that he is truly risen.

^g Christ which is risen is not to be sought in this world, according to the flesh, but in heaven by faith, whither he is gone before us.

^h By his brethren he meaneth his disciples; for in the next verse following, it is said, that Mary told his disciples.

ⁱ He calleth God his Father, because he is his Father naturally in the Godhead, and he saith your Father, because he is our Father by grace, through the adoption of 16 Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and said unto him, Rabboni, which is to say, Master.

17 ^j Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not: for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my ^k brethren and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and to your Father, and to my God, and your God.

18 Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

19 ¶ * The same day then at night, which was the first day of the week, and when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and said to them, Peace ^{be} unto you.

20 And when he had so said, he shewed unto them ^{his} hands, and his side. Then were the disciples glad when they had seen the Lord.

21 * Then said Jesus unto them again, Peace
^{be} unto you: as my Father sent me, so send I you.

22 And when he had said that, he breathed on them, and said unto them, Receive the Holy Ghost.

23 ^l Whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them: and whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained.

24 ¶ ^m But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him
We have seen the Lord: but he said unto them, Except I see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into his side, I will not believe it.

26 ¶ And eight days after, again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Then came Jesus, when the doors were shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace ^{be} unto you.

27 After, said he to Thomas, Put thy finger here, and see mine hands, and put forth thine hand, and put it into my side, and be not faithless, but faithful.

28 Then Thomas answered, and said unto him, Thou art my Lord and my God.

29 ⁿ Jesus said unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou believest: blessed are they that have not seen, and have believed.

30 ¶ *^o And many other signs also did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book.

31 But these things are written, that ye might believe, that Jesus is that Christ that Son of God, and that in believing ye might have life through his name.

the Son of God; that is, by taking ^p of his free grace to be his sons. Epiphanius.

^q Christ in that that he presented himself before his disciples suddenly, through his divine power, when the gates were shut, doth fully assure them both of his resurrection, and also of their apostleship, inspiring them with the Holy Ghost, who is the ministry of the gospel.

^r Either the doors opened to him of their own accord, or the very walls themselves were ^s passage to him.

^t The publishing of the forgiveness of sins by faith in Christ, and the setting-forth and denouncing the wrath of God in retaining the sins of the unbelievers, is the sum of the preaching of the gospel.

^u Christ draweth out of the unbelief of Thomas a certain and sure testimony of his resurrection.

^v True faith dependeth upon the mouth of God, and not upon fleshly eyes.

^w To believe in Christ the son of God, and our only Saviour, is the end of the doctrine of the gospel, and of the history of the resurrection.

Thomas's Doubt.

Bur...

C H A P. XXI.

1 Jesus appeareth to his disciples as they were a fishing, 6, 7 whom they know by a miraculous draught of fishes. 15 He committeth the charge of the sheep to Peter, 18 and foretelleth him of the manner of his death.

AFTER these things ¹ Jesus shewed himself again to his disciples at the sea of Tiberias: and thus shewed he himself:

2 There were together Simon Peter; and Thomas, which is called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter said unto them, I go a fishing. They said unto him, We also will go with thee. They went their way and entered into a ship straightway, and that night caught they nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: nevertheless the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.

5 Jesus then said unto them, Sirs, have ye any meat? They answered him, No.

6 Then he said unto them, Cast out the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. So they cast out, and they were not able at all to draw it, for the multitude of fishes.

7 Therefore said the disciple whom Jesus loved, unto Peter, It is the Lord. When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girded his ² coat to him (for he was naked) and cast himself into the sea.

8 But the other disciples came by ship, (for they were not far from land, but about two hundred cubits) and drew the net with fishes.

9 As soon then as they were come to land, they saw hot coals, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus said unto them, Bring of the fishes, which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter stepped forth, and drew the net to land, full of great fishes, an hundred fifty and three: and albeit there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jesus said unto them, Come, and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? seeing they knew that he was the Lord.

13 Jesus then came and took bread and gave them, and fish likewise. A. D. 33.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen again from the dead.

15 ¹ So when they had dined, Jesus said to Simon Peter, Simon, the son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He said unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He said unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He said to him again the second time, Simon the son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He said unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He said unto him, Feed my sheep.

17 He said unto him the ² third time, Simon the son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was sorry, because he said to him the third time, Lovest thou me? and said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things: thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus said unto him, Feed my sheep.

18 ³ Verily, verily I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou ⁴ girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldest: but when thou shalt be old; thou shalt stretch forth thine hands, and another shall ⁵ gird thee, and lead thee whither thou wouldest ⁶ not.

19 And this spake he, signifying by ⁷ what death he should glorify God. And when he had said this, he said to him, Follow me.

20 ⁸ Then Peter turned about, and saw the disciple whom Jesus loved, following, which had also ⁹ leaned on his breast at supper, and had said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee? *Ch. 13. 23.

21 When Peter therefore saw him, he said to Jesus, Lord, what shall this man do?

22 Jesus said unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is it to thee? follow thou me.

23 Then went this word abroad among the brethren, that this disciple should not die. Yet Jesus said not to him, He shall not die: but if ¹⁰ I will that he tarry till I come, what is it to thee?

24 ¹¹ This is that disciple, which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things, and we know that his testimony is true.

25 ¹² Now there are also many other things ¹³ which Jesus did, the which if they should be written every one, I suppose the world could not contain the books that should be written. Amen. *Ch. 20. 30.

¹ In that, that Christ here is not only present but also eateth with his disciples, he giveth ¹ most full assurance of his resurrection.

² It was a linen garment, which could not let his swimming.

³ Peter by this triple confession is restored into his former degree from whence he fell by his triple denial: and therewithal is advertised, that he is indeed ⁴ pastor, which sheweth his love to Christ, in feeding his sheep.

⁵ It was meet that he that denied him thrice should confess him thrice, that Peter might neither doubt of the forgiveness of his so grievous ⁶ sin, nor of his restoring to the office of the apostleship.

⁷ The violent death of Peter is foretold.

⁸ They that took far journies, especially in the East country, and in those places where the people used long garments, had need to be girded and trussed up.

⁹ He meant that kind of girding which is used toward captives, when they are bound fast with cords and chains,

¹¹ Not that Peter suffered aught for the truth of God against his will, for ¹² read that he ¹³ with joy and gladness, when he returned from the council, where he ¹⁴ whipped: but because this will cometh ¹⁵ from the flesh, but from that gift of the Spirit which is given us from above, therefore he shewed, there should be ¹⁶ certain striving and conflict or repugnancy, which also is in us, in all our sufferances ¹⁷ touching the flesh.

¹⁸ That is, that Peter should die by ¹⁹ violent death.

²⁰ We must take heed, that while ²¹ we cast our eyes upon others, we neglect ²² that which is enjoined us.

²³ The history of Christ is true and warily written: not for curiosity of men, but for the salvation of the godly.

THE ACTS OF THE HOLY APOSTLES,

Written by LUKE the Evangelist.

CHAP. I.

A. D.
33.

1 Luke tieth this history to his gospel. 19 Christ being taken into heaven, 10 the apostles, 11 being carried by the angels, 12 return, 14 and give themselves to prayer. 15 By Peter's motion, 18 into Judas the traitor's place, 26 Matthias is chosen.

I HAVE made the ¹ former treatise, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began to ² do and teach,

2 Until the day that he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles, whom he had chosen:

3 ³ To whom also he presented himself alive after that he had suffered by many ^b infallible tokens, being seen of them by the ^c space of forty days, and speaking of those things which ^d appertain to the kingdom of God.

4 ⁴ And when he had ^e gathered them together, he commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father, ^f which, said he, ye have heard of me.

5 ⁵ For John indeed baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized ^g with the Holy Ghost within these few days.

6 ⁶ When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time ^h restore the kingdom to Israel?

7 And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times, or ⁱ the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.

8 ⁸ But ye shall receive power of the Holy Ghost when he shall come on you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

9 ⁹ And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up: for a cloud took him up out of their sight.

10 And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven, ¹⁰ he went, behold two men stood by them in white apparel, 11 Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing into heaven? This Jesus which is taken up ¹¹ from you into heaven, shall so come, as ye have seen him go into heaven.

12 ¹² ¶ Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the mount that is called the mount of Olives, which is near to Jerusalem, being from it ¹² sabbath ¹² day's journey.

13 ¹³ And when they were ¹³ come in, they went up into an upper chamber, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the son of Alpheus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas James's brother.

14 These all ¹⁴ continued with ¹⁴ one accord in ¹⁴ prayer and supplication with the ¹⁴ women, and Mary, the mother of Jesus, and ¹⁴ with his brethren.

15 ¹⁵ ¶ And in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said (now the number of ¹⁵ names that were in one place, were about an hundred and twenty.)

16 ¹⁶ Ye men and brethren, this scripture must needs have been fulfilled, which the ¹⁶ Holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before of Judas, which was ¹⁶ guide to them that took Jesus.

17 For he was numbered with us, and had obtained fellowship in this ministration.

18 He

¹ A passing over from the history of the gospel, that is, from the history of the sayings and doings of Christ unto the acts of the apostles.

² The acts of Jesus ² the miracles and doings which shewed his Godhead, and his most perfect holiness and examples of his doctrine.

³ Christ did not straightways ascend into heaven after his resurrection, because he would thoroughly prove his resurrection, and with his presence confirm his apostles in the doctrine which they had heard.

⁴ He calleth those infallible tokens, which are otherwise termed necessary: now in that that Christ spake, and walked, and ate, and was felt of many, these ⁴ sure signs and tokens that he truly rose again.

⁵ They were dispersed here and there, but he gathereth them together that they might all together be witnesses of his resurrection.

⁶ Either of the Father, or of me: so that either the Father, or Christ, is set here against John, as the Holy Ghost is against water, ⁶ things answerable the one to the other.

⁷ We must fight before we triumph: and we ought ⁷ curiously to search after those things which God hath ⁷ revealed.

⁸ To the old and ancient state.

⁹ That is, the fit occasion that served to doing of matters which the Lord hath appointed to bring things ⁹ pass in.

¹⁰ After that Christ had promised the full virtue of the Holy Ghost, wherewith he would govern his church, although he should be absent in body, he took up his body from us into the heavenly tabernacles, there to continue until the latter day of judgment, ¹⁰ the angels witness.

¹¹ That is, out of your sight.

¹² About two miles.

¹³ Ecclesiastical assemblies to hear the word, and to make common prayer, were first instituted and kept in private houses by the apostles.

¹⁴ They went into the house, which the church had chosen at that time to be ¹⁴ receptacle for the whole assembly.

¹⁵ The Greek word signifieth, an invincible constancy, and steadiness.

¹⁶ It is ¹⁶ good purpose, that this concord is mentioned: for those prayers ¹⁶ most acceptable to God, which are made with agreeing minds and wills.

¹⁷ The disciples prayed for the sending of the Holy Ghost, and also to be delivered from present dangers, wherewith they were beset.

¹⁸ For it was behoveable, to have the wives confirmed, who were afterward to be partakers of the dangers with their husbands.

²⁰ Peter is made the mouth and interpreter of the whole company of the apostles, either by secret revelation of the Holy Ghost, or by express judgment of the congregation.

²¹ Because men ²¹ commonly billed and enrolled by their names.

²² Peter preventeth the offence that might be taken of the falling away of Judas the betrayer, shewing, that all things which came unto him, were foretold by God.

Verſes 1-13

THE
HOLY GHOST.

A. D. 33. ¹⁸ He therefore hath ^a purchased a field with the reward of iniquity: and when ^b he had thrown down himself headlong, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.

¹⁹ And it is known unto all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, inasmuch that that field is called in their own language, Aeldema, that is, The field of blood.

²⁰ For it is written in the book of Psalms, Let his habitation be void, and let no man dwell therein: ^c also, Let another take his charge.

²¹ Wherefore of these men, which have companied with us, all the time that the Lord Jesus was ^d conversant among us, ²² Beginning from the baptism of John unto the day that he was taken up ^e from us, must one of them be made ^f witness with us of his resurrection.

²³ And they ^g presented two, Joseph called Barabas, whose surname was Juitus, and Matthias.

²⁴ And they prayed, saying, Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen, ²⁵ That he may take the ^h room of this ministration and apostleship, from which Judas hath ⁱ gone astray, to go to his own place.

²⁶ Then they gave forth their lots: and the lot fell on Matthias, and he was by a common consent counted with the eleven apostles.

C H A P II.

¹ The apostles, ⁴ filled with the Holy Ghost, ⁸ speak with divers tongues. ¹³ They are thought to be drunk, ¹⁵ but Peter disproveth that. ³⁴ He teacheth that Christ is the Messias. ³⁷ and seeing the hearers astonished, ³⁸ he exhorteth them to repentance.

A. D. 33. ^{AND} when the day of Pentecost was ^a come, they were ^b all with one accord in one place.

[■] And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing and mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they sat.

³ And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like fire, and it sat upon each of them.

⁴ And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with ^c other tongues, as the ^d Spirit gave them utterance.

⁵ And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, men that feared God, of every nation under heaven.

⁶ Now when this was noised, the multitude came together, and were astonished, because that every man heard them speak his own language.

⁷ And they wondered all, and marvelled, saying among themselves, Behold, are not all these which speak, of Galilee?

[■] How then hear we every man in our own language wherein we were born?

⁹ Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the inhabitants of Mesopotamia, and of Judea, and of Cappadocia, of Pontus, and Asia,

¹⁰ And of Phrygia, and Pamphylia, of Egypt, and of the parts of Libya, which is beside Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, and ^e Jews, and proselytes, ¹¹ Cretes, and Arabians: we heard them speak in our own tongues the wonderful works of God.

¹² They were all then amazed, and doubted, saying one to another, What may this be?

¹³ And others ^f mocked, and said, They are full of new wine.

¹⁴ ¶ But Peter standing with the eleven, ^g lift up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judea, and ye all that inhabit Jerusalem, be

^a Luke considered not Judas his purpose, but that that followed of it; and so we use to say, that a man both procured himself harm, not that his will and purpose was so, but in respect of that which followed.

^b The Greek word signifieth thus much, that Judas fell down flat, and was rent in sunder in the midst, with a marvellous huge noise.

^c His office and ministry. David wrote these words against Doeg the king's herdman: And these words, Shepherd, Sheep, and Flock, are put over to the church office and ministry, so that the church and the offices thereof are called by these names.

^d The apostles deliberate upon nothing, but first they consult, and take advisement by God's word; and again they do nothing that concerneth and is behoveable for the whole body of the congregation, without making the congregation privy unto it.

^e Word for word, went in and out, which kind of speech betokeneth as much in the Hebrew tongue, as the exercising of a public and painful office, when they speak of such as are in any public office, Deut 31. 2. 1 Chron. 27. 1.

^f From our company.

^g The apostles must be chosen immediately from God, and therefore after prayer, Matthias is chosen by lot, which is, as it were, God's own voice.

^h Openly, and by the voices of all the whole company.

ⁱ That he may be fellow and partaker of his ministry.

[■] Departed from, or fallen from: And it is a metaphor taken from the way. For callings are signified by the ways, with the Hebrews.

[■] The apostles being gathered together on ■ most solemn feast day in one place, that it might evidently appear to all the world, that they had all one office, one Spirit, one faith, are by a double sign from heaven authorized, and anointed with all the most excellent gifts of the Holy Ghost, and especially with an extraordinary and necessary gift of tongues.

[■] Word for word, was fulfilled, that is, was begun, as Luke 2. 21. For the Hebrews say, that a day, or a year is fulfilled or ended, when the former days or years ■ ended, and the other begun, Jer. 25. 12. And it shall come to pass, that when seventy years are fulfilled, I will visit, &c. For the Lord did not bring home his people, after the seventieth year was ended, but in the seventieth year: Now the day of Pentecost was the fiftieth day after the feast of the passover.

[■] The twelve apostles, which were to be the patriarchs as it were of the church.

^c He calleth them other tongues, which were not the same which the apostles used commonly, and Mark calleth them new tongues.

[■] Hereby we understand, that the apostles used not now ■ tongue, and then another by hap-hazard and fatal adventure, or as fantastical men use to do, but with good consideration of their hearers: and to be short, that they spake nothing, but as the Holy Ghost governed their tongues.

^e Not that they spake with one voice, and many languages were heard, but that the apostles spake with strange tongues: for also the miracle had rather been in the hearers else, whereas now it is in the speakers. Nazianzen, in his oration of Whitsunday.

^f By Jews, he meaneth them that were both Jews by birth, and Jews by profession of religion, though they were born in other places: and they were proselytes, which were Gentiles born, and embraced the Jewish religion.

^g God's word pierceth some, that it driveth them to seek out the truth; and it doth so choak others, that it forceth them to be witnesses of their own impudency.

[■] The word which he useth here, signifieth such a kind of mocking which is reproachful and contumelious: And by this reproachful mocking we see, that there is no miracle so great and excellent, which the wickedness of man dareth not speak evil of.

[■] Peter's boldness is to be marked, wherein the grace of the Holy Ghost is to be seen, even straight after the beginning.

A. D. 33. this known unto you, and hearken unto my words.

15 For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, since it is but the third¹ hour of the day.

16 But this is that which was spoken by the prophet² Joel, 17³ And it shall be in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon⁴ all⁵ flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams.

18 And on my servants, and on mine handmaids, I will pour out of my Spirit in those days, and they shall prophesy.

19 And I will shew wonders in heaven above, and tokens in the earth beneath, blood and fire, and vapour of smoke.

20 The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come.

21⁶ And it shall be, that whosoever shall⁷ call on the name of the Lord shall be saved.

22⁸ Ye men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus of Nazareth, a man⁹ approved of God among you with great works, and wonders, and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:

23 Him, I say, being delivered by the determinate counsel¹⁰ and¹¹ foreknowledge of God, after you had taken with wicked¹² hands, you have crucified and¹³ slain:

24¹⁴ Whom God hath raised up, and loosed the¹⁵ sorrows of death, because it was impossible that he should be holden of it.

25 For David saith concerning him, * I beheld the Lord always before me: for he is at my right hand, that I should not be shaken.

26 Therefore did mine heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad, and moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope, 27 Because thou wilt not¹⁶ leave my soul in grave, neither wilt suffer thine holy One to see corruption.

28 Thou hast¹⁷ shewed me the ways of life, and shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, I may boldly speak unto you of the patriarch David, * that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre remaineth with us unto this day.

30 Therefore, seeing he was a prophet, and knew that God had¹⁸ sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins he would raise up Christ concerning the flesh, to set him upon his throne:

31 He knowing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that¹⁹ his soul should not be left in grave, neither his flesh should see corruption.

32²⁰ This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we are all witnesses.

33 Since then that he by the right²¹ hand of God hath been exalted, and hath received of his Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear.

34 For David is not ascended into heaven: but he saith, * The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand, 35 Until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

36 Therefore let all the house of Israel know for²² surety, that God hath²³ made him both Lord, and Christ: this Jesus, I say, whom ye have crucified.

37 Now when they heard it, they were pricked in their hearts, and said unto Peter, and the other apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

38²⁴ Then Peter said unto them, Amend your lives, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins: and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

39 For the²⁵ promise is made unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even²⁶ many as the Lord our God shall call.

40²⁷ And with many other words he besought and exhorted them, saying, Save yourselves from this froward generation.

41²⁸ Then they that gladly received his word, were baptized: and the same day there were added to the church about three thousand souls.

42 And

¹ After the sun rising, which may be about seven or eight of the clock with us.

² There is nothing that can dissolve questions and doubts, but testimony taken out of the prophets; for men's reasons may be overturned, but God's voice cannot be overturned.

³ Peter setting the truth of God against the false accusations of men, sheweth in himself and in his fellows, that that is fulfilled which Joel spake before concerning the full giving of the Holy Ghost in the latter days; which grace also is offered to the whole church, to their certain and undoubted destruction which do contemn it.

⁴ All without exception, both upon the Jews and Gentiles.

⁵ That is, men.

⁶ The chiefest use of all the gifts of the Holy Ghost is to bring man to salvation by faith.

⁷ This word, Call on, signifieth in holy scriptures, an earnest praying and craving for help in God's hand.

⁸ Christ being innocent, but by God's providence crucified of wicked men.

⁹ Who is by those works which God wrought by him so manifestly approved and allowed of, that no man can gainsay him.

¹⁰ God's everlasting knowledge going before, which neither be separated from his determinate counsel, nor the Epicures say, neither yet be the cause of evil; for God, in his everlasting and unchangeable counsel, appointed the wicked act of Judas to an excellent end. And God doth that well, which the instruments do ill.

¹¹ God's counsel doth not excuse the Jews, whose hands were wicked.

¹² The fact is said to be theirs, by whose counsel and egging forward it is done.

¹³ Christ (as David foretold) did not only rise again, but also was in the grave void of all corruption.

¹⁴ The death that was full of sorrow both of body and mind. Therefore when death appeared conqueror and victor over those sorrows, Christ is rightly said to have overcome those sorrows of death, when being dead, he overcame death, to live for ever with his Father.

¹⁵ Thou wilt not suffer me to remain in the grave.

¹⁶ Thou hast opened the way to the true life.

¹⁷ Had sworn solemnly.

¹⁸ Peter witnesseth that Jesus Christ is the appointed everlasting King, which he proveth manifestly by the gifts of the Holy Ghost and the testimony of David.

¹⁹ Might and power of God.

²⁰ Christ is said to be made, because he was advanced to that dignity, and therefore it is not spoken of his nature, but of his estate and high dignity.

²¹ Repentance and remission of sins in Christ, are two principles of the gospel, and therefore of our salvation; and they are obtained by the promises apprehended by faith, and are ratified in us by baptism, wherewith is joined the virtue of the Holy Ghost.

²² The word that is used here, giveth us to understand that it was a free gift.

²³ He is truly joined to the church, which separateth himself from the wicked.

²⁴ A notable example of the virtue of the Holy Ghost. But such as are of age, not baptized, before they make confession of their faith.

33. ^{A. D.} 42 ¹¹ And they continued in the apostles doctrine and ^b fellowship, and ^a breaking of bread, and prayers.
 43 ¶ ¹² And fear came upon every soul, and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles.
 44 ¹³ And all that believed, were in one place, and had all things common.
 45 And they sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every one had need.
 46 ¹⁴ And they continued daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread at home, did eat their meat together with gladness, and singleness of heart, 47 Praising God, and had favour with all the people: and the Lord added unto the church from day to day such [■] should be saved.

CHAP. III.

¶ Peter going into the temple with John, 2 healeth the cripple. 9 To the people gathered together to see the miracle, 12 he expoundeth the mystery of our salvation through Christ, 14 accusing their ingratitude, 19 and requiring their repentance.

NOW ¹ Peter and John went up together into the temple, at the ninth hour of prayer.
 2 And a certain man which was [■] cripple from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple:
 3 Who seeing Peter and John, that they would enter into the temple, desired to receive an alms.
 4 And Peter earnestly beholding him with John, said, Look on us.
 5 And he [■] gave heed unto them, trusting to receive something of them.
 6 Then said Peter, Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, that give I thee: in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk.
 7 And he took him by the right hand, and lift him up, and immediately his feet and ancle bones received strength,
 8 And he leaped up, stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking and leaping, and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walk, and praising God. ^{A. D.} 33.
 10 And they knew him, that it was he which sat for the alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and they were amazed, and sore astonished at that which was come unto him.
 11 ¶ And [■] the cripple which was healed, [■] held Peter and John, all the people ran amazed unto them in the porch which is called Solomon's.
 12 [■] So when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so stedfastly on us, [■] though by our own power or godliness [■] had made this man go?
 13 The God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, the ^{*} God of our fathers, hath glorified his [■] Son Jesus, whom ye betrayed, and denied in the presence of Pilate, when he had judged him to be delivered. ^{Ch. 5. 30.}
 14 But ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired [■] murderer to be given you:
 15 And killed the Lord [°] of life, whom God hath raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses.
 16 And his name hath made this man sound, whom ye see and know, through faith in his name: [°] and the faith which is by him, hath given to him this perfect health of his whole body in the presence of you all.
 17 [■] And now, brethren, I know that through ignorance ye did it, [■] did also your governors.
 18 But those things which God before had shewed [°] by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath thus fulfilled.
 19 Amend your lives therefore, and turn, that your sins may be put away, when the time of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord.
 20 And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you:
 21 [°] Whom the heaven must contain until the time that all things be restored, which God had spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.
 22 ^{*} For Moses said unto the fathers, The Lord your God shall raise up unto you [°] a prophet, even of your brethren, like unto me: ye shall ¹¹ The marks of the true church are the doctrine of the apostles, the duties of charity, the pure and simple administration of the sacraments, and true invocations used of all the faithful.

^b Communicating of goods, and of all other duties of charity, as is shewed afterward.
^c The Jews used thin loaves, and therefore they did rather break them than cut them: So by breaking of bread, they understood that living together, and the banquets which they used to keep. And when they kept their love-feasts, they used to celebrate the Lord's Supper, which even in these days began [■] be corrupted, and Paul amendeth it, 1 Cor. 11.
¹² So oft as the Lord thinketh it expedient, he bridleth the rage of strangers, that the church may be planted, and have some refreshing.
¹³ Charity maketh all things [■] concerning the use, according [■] necessity requireth.
¹⁴ The faithful came together at the beginning with great fruit, not only to the hearing of the word, but also to meat.
¹ Christ in healing a [■] that [■] born lame, and well known to all men, both in place and time very famous, by the hands of his apostles, doth partly confirm them which believed, and partly also calleth others to believe.
[■] Both with heart and eyes.
[■] Either because he loved them, who had healed him;

[■] because he feared that if he [■] let them go out of his sight, he should be lame again.
² Miracles [■] appointed to convince the unbelievers, and therefore they do wickedly abuse them, who standing amazed, either at the miracles themselves, or [■] the instruments and means which it pleaseth God [■] use, take an occasion to establish idolatry and superstition, by that which God hath provided for the knowledge of his true worship, that is, christianity.
^c Who hath life in himself, and giveth life [■] others.
^d Because he believed on him being raised from the dead, whose [■] he heard of by us.
³ It is best of all to receive Christ so soon as he is offered unto us. But such [■] have neglected so great [■] benefit, through man's weakness, have yet repentance for [■] mean. As for the ignominy of the cross, we have [■] set against that the decree and purpose of God, foretold by the prophets, of Christ, how that first of [■] he should be crucified here upon earth, and then he should appear from heaven the judge and restorer of all things, that all believers might be saved, and all unbelievers utterly perish.
^c Though there were many prophets, yet he speaketh but of one mouth, to shew to us the consent and agreement of the prophets.
[°] Or, be taken up into heaven.
[■] This promise was of an excellent and singular prophet.

35. D. shall hear him in all things, whatsoever he shall say unto you.

23 For it shall be that every person which shall not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed out of the people

24 Also the prophets from Samuel, and thenceforth as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of these days.

25 + Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God hath made unto our fathers, saying to Abraham, - Every in the seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed.

26 First unto you hath God raised up his Son Jesus, and him he hath sent to bless you, in turning every one of you from your iniquities.

CHAP. IV.

1 Peter and John 3 are taken and brought before the council. 7 and 19 They speak boldly in Christ's name. 24 The disciples pray unto God. 32 Many sell their possessions: 36 Of whom Barnabas is one.

AND as they spake unto the people, the priests and the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees came upon them,

2 Taking it grievously, that they taught the people, and preached in Jesus's name the resurrection from the dead.

3 And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold, until the next day: for it was now even-tide.

4 Howbeit, many of them which heard the word, believed, and the number of the men was about five thousand.

5 And it came to pass on the morrow that their rulers and elders and Scribes were gathered together at Jerusalem:

6 And Annas the chief priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the high priests.

7 And when they had set them before them, they asked, By what power, or in what name have ye done this?

8 Then Peter, full of the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel,

9 Forasmuch as we this day are examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, to wit, by what means he is made whole,

10 + Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye have crucified, whom God raised again from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you, whole.

11 This is the stone cast aside of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.

12 Neither is there salvation in any other: for among men there is given none other name under heaven, whereby we must be saved.

13 Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and understood that they were unlearned men and without knowledge, they marvelled, and knew them, that they had been with Jesus:

14 And beholding also the man which was healed standing with them, they had nothing to say against it.

15 Then they commanded them to go aside out of the council, and conferred among themselves.

16 Saying, What shall we do to these men? for surely a manifest sign is done by them, and it is openly known to all them that dwell in Jerusalem: and we cannot deny it.

17 But that it be noised no further among the people, let us threaten and charge them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name.

18 So they called them, and commanded them, that in no wise they should speak or teach in the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answered unto them, and said, Whether it be right in the sight of God, to obey you rather than God, judge ye.

20 For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.

21 So they threatened them, and let them go, and found nothing how to punish them, because of the people: for all men praised God for that which was done.

22 For the man was above forty years old, on whom this miracle of healing was shewed.

23 Then as soon as they were let go, they came to their fellows, and shewed all that the high priests and elders had said unto them.

24 And

+ At what time the kingdom of Israel was established.

+ The Jews that believe are the first-begotten in the kingdom of God.

+ For whom the prophets were specially appointed.

+ Given to the world, or raised from the dead, and advanced to his kingdom.

+ None are commonly more diligent or bolder enemies of the church, than such as profess themselves to be head-builders. But the more they rage, the more constantly the faithful servants of God do continue.

- The Jews had certain garrisons for the guard and safety of the temple and holy things, Matt. 26. 65. These garrisons had a captain, such as Eleazarus Ananias, the high priest's son, was in the time of the war that was in Judea, being a very impudent and proud young man. Joseph. lib. 2. of the taking of Judea.

+ While they thought to diminish the number, they increased them.

- These were they that made the Sanhedrin, which were all of the tribe of Judah, until Herod used that cruelty against David's stock.

- Of whom the high priests were wont to be chosen and made, the execution of the yearly office being now changed.

- Against such as brag of a succession of persons, without a succession of doctrine, and by that means beat down the true ministers of the word, so far forth as they are able.

+ By what authority.

+ The wolves which succeed true pastors, plead their own cause and not God's, neither the church's.

+ He is indeed a true shepherd, that teacheth his flock; to hang upon Christ only, as upon one that is not dead, but hath conquered death, and hath all rule in his own hands.

+ Of God.

+ There is no other man, or no other power and authority whatsoever: which kind of speech being usual among the Jews, rose upon this, that when we are in danger, we call upon them at whose hands we look for help

+ Any where. And this setteth forth unto us the largeness of Christ's kingdom.

+ The good liberty and boldness of the servants of God doth yet thus much good, that such as lay hid under a vizard of zeal, do at length bewray themselves to be indeed wicked men.

+ The word used here, is Idiot, which being spoken in comparison had to a magistrate, betokeneth a private man: but when we speak of sciences and studies, it signifieth one that is unlearned, and in account of honour and estimation, it importeth one of base degree and no estimation.

+ Laid their heads together.

+ He that flattereth himself in ignorance, cometh at length to do open wickedness, and that against his own conscience.

+ We must so obey them to whom we are subject, that especially and before all things we obey God.

+ So far off are the wicked from doing what they will, that contrariwise God useth even that to the setting forth of his glory, which he giveth them leave to do.

+ The apostles communicate their troubles with the congregation.

Ps. 118. 22. 118. 23. 16. Matt. 21. 42. Mark 12. 10. L. Ke 20. 17. Rom. 9. 33. 1 Pet. 2. 7. Ps. 7. 2.

A. D. 33. 24 ¹⁰ And when they heard it, they lift up their voices to God with one accord, and said, O Lord, thou art the God which hast made the heaven, and the earth, the sea, and all things that are in them, 25 Which by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, * Why did the Gentiles rage, and the people imagine vain things?

26 The kings of the earth assembled, and the rulers came together against the Lord, and against his Christ.

27 For doubtless, against thine holy Son Jesus, whom thou hadst anointed, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the people of Israel, gathered themselves together, 28 To ^m do whatsoever ⁿ thine hand and thy counsel had determined before to be done.

29 And now, O Lord, behold their threatenings, and grant unto thy servants with all boldness to speak thy word, 30 So that thou stretch forth thine hand, that healing, and signs, and wonders may be done by the name of thine holy Son Jesus.

31 ¹¹ And when as they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God boldly.

32 ¹² And the multitude of them that believed, were of ^o one heart, and of one soul: neither any of them said, that any thing of that which he possessed, was his own, but they had all things ^p common.

33 And with great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all.

34 ¹³ Neither was there any among them that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses, sold them, and brought the price of the things that were sold,

35 And laid it down at the apostles feet, and it was distributed unto every man, according as he had need.

36 Also Joses, which was called of the apostles Barnabas (that is, by interpretation, the son of consolation) being a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, 37 Whereas he had land, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it down at the apostles feet.

C H A P. V.

¹ Ananias, for his deceit in keeping back part of the price, 5 falleth down dead, 13 and likewise

¹⁰ We ought neither to be afraid of the threatenings of our enemies, neither yet foolishly condemn their rage and madness against us; but we have to set against their force and malice, an earnest thinking upon the power and goodwill of God (both which we do manifestly behold in Christ) and so flee to the aid and succour of our Father.

^m The wicked execute God's counsel, though they think nothing of it, but they ⁿ not therefore without fault.

ⁿ Thou hast determined of thine absolute authority ⁿ power.

¹¹ God witnesseth to his church by ⁿ visible sign, it is he that will establish it, by shaking the powers both of heaven and earth.

¹² An example of the true church, wherein there is content as well in doctrine as in charity one toward another. And the pastors deliver true doctrine both sincerely and constantly.

ⁿ They agreed both in counsel, will, and purposes.

¹³ True charity helpeth the necessity of the poor with his Sapphira his wife. 12 Through divers the apostles miracles, 14 the faith is increased. 18 The apostles that were imprisoned, are delivered by an angel, 26 and being before the synod of the priests, 36 through Gamaliel's counsel they are kept alive, 40 and beaten: 41 they glorify God. A. D. 33.

BUT ⁿ certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold ⁿ possession, ⁿ And ⁿ kept away part of the price, his wife also being of counsel, and brought ⁿ certain part, and laid it down at the apostles feet.

3 Then said Peter, Ananias, why hath Satan ^p filled thine heart, that thou shouldest ^c lye unto the Holy Ghost, and keep away part of the price of this possession?

4 Whilst it remained, appertained it not unto thee? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? how is it that thou hast ^d conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lyled unto men, but unto God.

5 Now when Ananias heard these words, he fell down, and gave up the ghost. Then great fear came on all them that heard these things.

6 And the young men rose up, and took him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7 And it came to pass, about the space of three hours after, that his wife came in, ignorant of that which was done.

8 And Peter said unto her, Tell me, sold ye the land for so much? And she said, Yea, for so much.

9 Then Peter said unto her, Why have ye agreed together to ⁿ tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thine husband are at the ^f door, and shall carry thee out.

10 Then she fell down straightway at his feet and yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in, and found her dead, and carried her out, and buried her by her husband.

11 ² And great fear came on all the church, and on as many ⁿ heard these things.

12 Thus by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders shewed among the people (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch).

13 And of the other durst no man join himself to them: nevertheless, the people ^s magnified them.

14 Also the number of them that believed

ⁿ Craftily took away.

^p Fully possessed.

^c For when they had appointed that farm or possession for the church, they stuck not at it to keep away part of the price, as though they had to do with men, and not with God, and therefore he saith afterward that they tempted God.

^d Hereby is declared an advised and purposed deceit, and the fault in the man in admitting the devil's suggestions.

ⁿ Look how oft ⁿ do things with an evil conscience, so oft they pronounce sentence against themselves, and as such ⁿ in them lieth, provoke God ⁿ anger, ⁿ of set purpose, minding to try whether he be just and almighty or no.

^f Are ⁿ hand.

ⁿ The Lord by his marvellous virtue bridleth some, that they may ⁿ hurt the church: other some he keepeth in awe and fear: and other some he allureth unto him.

^s Highly praised them.

A. D. 33. in the Lord, both of men and women, grew more and more.)

15 Inasmuch that they brought the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least way the shadow of Peter, when he came by, might shadow some of them.

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits, who were all healed.

17 ¶ Then the chief priest rose up, and all they that were with him (which was the sect of the Sadducees) and were full of indignation, 18 And laid hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 ¶ But the angel of the Lord, by night, opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said, 20 ¶ Go your way, and stand in the temple, and speak to the people all the words of this life.

21 ¶ So when they heard it, they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. And the chief priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the elders of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison, to cause them to be brought.

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned and told it, 23 Saying, Certainly we found the prison shut as sure as was possible, and the keepers standing without, before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

24 Then when the chief priest, and the captain of the temple, and the high priests, heard these things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

25 ¶ Then came one, and shewed them, saying, Behold, the men that ye put in prison, are standing in the temple, and teach the people.

26 ¶ Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence (for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.)

27 And when they had brought them, they set them before the council, and the chief priest asked them, 28 ¶ Saying, Did not we straightly command you, that ye should not teach in this name?

¶ The more that the church increaseth, the more increaseth the rage of Satan, and therefore they proceed from threatenings to prisoning.

¶ The word which is used here, is heresy, which signifieth a choice, and so is taken for a right form of learning, or facion, or study, and course of life, which the Latins call a sect: ¶ the first this word was indifferently used, but at length it came to be taken only in evil part, whereupon came the name of heretic, which is taken for one that goeth astray from sound and wholesome doctrine, after such sort that he ferreth light by the judgment of God and his church, and continueth in his opinion, and breaketh the peace of the church.

¶ Angels are made servants of the servants of God.

¶ God doth therefore deliver his, that they may more stoutly provoke his enemies.

¶ Words, whereby the way unto life is shewed.

¶ God mocketh his enemies attempts from above.

¶ The more openly that Christ's virtue sheweth itself, the more increaseth the madness of his enemies, which conspire against him.

¶ Tyrants which fear not God, are constrained to fear his servants.

¶ It is the property of tyrants to set out their own commandments as right and reason, be they never so wicked.

¶ Make us guilty of murdering that man, whom yet they will not vouchsafe to name.

and behold, you have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and ye would bring this man's blood upon us.

29 ¶ Then Peter and the apostles answered, and said, We ought rather to obey God than men.

30 ¶ The God of our fathers hath raised up Jesus, whom ye slew, and hanged on a tree.

31 Him hath God lift up with his right hand, to be a prince and a saviour, to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins.

32 ¶ And we are his witnesses concerning these things which we say: yea, and the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33 Now when they heard it, they burst for anger, and consulted to slay them.

34 ¶ Then stood there up in the council a certain Pharisee named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, honoured of all the people, and commanded to put the apostles forth a little space:

35 And said unto them, Men of Israel, take heed to yourselves, what ye intend to do, touching these men:

36 ¶ For before these times, rose up Theudas, boasting himself, to whom resorted a number of men, about four hundred, who was slain, and they all which obeyed him were scattered, and brought to nought.

37 After this man, rose up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the tribute, and drew away much people after him: he also perished, and all that obeyed him were scattered abroad.

38 And now I say unto you, Refrain yourselves from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel, or this work be of men, it will come to nought:

39 But if it be of God, ye cannot destroy it, lest ye be found even fighters against God.

40 And to him they agreed, and called the apostles: and when they had beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the name of Jesus: and let them go.

41 ¶ So they departed from the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to suffer rebuke for his name.

42 And daily in the temple, and from house to house, they ceased not to teach, and preach Jesus Christ.

CHAP.

¶ We ought to obey no man, but so far forth as obeying him we may obey God.

¶ Christ is appointed and indeed declared prince and preserver of his church in despite of his enemies.

¶ It is not sufficient for us, that there is a right end, but we must also according to our vocation go on forward till we come unto it.

¶ This betokeneth that they were in a most vehement rage, and marvellously disquieted in mind, for it is a borrowed kind of speech taken from them which are harshly cut in sunder with a saw.

¶ Christ findeth defenders of his cause, even in the very route of his enemies, so oft as he thinketh it needful.

¶ In matters of religion we must take good heed, that we attempt nothing under the colour of zeal, beside our vocation.

¶ To be of some fame.

¶ He dissuadeth his fellows from murdering the apostles, neither doth he think it good to refer the matter to the Roman magistrate; for the Jews could abide nothing worse than to have the tyranny of the Romans confirmed.

¶ If it be counterfeit and devised.

¶ The apostles accustomed to suffer and bear words, are length inured to bear stripes, but yet so, that by the means they become stronger.

¶ Both publicly and privately.

C H A P. VI.

2 The apostles 3 appoint the office of deaconship
5 to seven chosen men: 8 of whom Stephen, full of faith, is one. 12 He is taken, 13 and accused as a transgressor of Moses's law.

AND ¹ in those days, as the number of the disciples grew, there arose ² murmuring of the ³ Grecians towards the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the ⁴ daily ministering.

⁵ Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples together, and said, It is not ⁶ mete that we should leave the word of God to serve the ⁷ tables.

⁸ Wherefore, brethren; look you out among you seven men of honest report, and full of the Holy Ghost, and of wisdom, which we may appoint to this business.

⁹ And we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministration of the word.

¹⁰ And the saying pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith, and of the Holy Ghost, and ¹¹ Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicholas, ¹² profelyte of Antiochia.

¹³ Which they set before the apostles: and they prayed, and ¹⁴ laid their hands on them.

¹⁵ And the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples was multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and ¹⁶ great company of the priests were obedient to the ¹⁷ faith.

¹⁸ ¶ ¹⁹ Now Stephen, full of faith and ²⁰ power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

²¹ Then there arose certain of the ²² synagogue, which are called Libertines, and Cyrenians, and of Alexandria, and of them of Cilicia, and of Asia, and disputed with Stephen.

²³ But they were not able to resist the wisdom and the Spirit by the which he spake.

¹ When Satan hath assailed the church without, and that to small purpose, and in vain, he assaileth it within, with civil dissention and strife betwixt themselves. But the apostles take occasion thereby ² to set order in the church.

³ Of their parts, which of Grecians became religious Jews.

⁴ In the bestowing of alms according to their necessity.

⁵ The office of preaching the word, and dispensing the goods of the church, ⁶ different one from another, and not rashly to be joined together, as the apostles do here institute. And the apostles do not chuse so much as the deacons without the consent of the church.

⁷ It is such ⁸ matter, ⁹ we may in no wise accept of it.

¹⁰ Banquets. Though by the name of tables; other offices are also meant which are annexed to it, such ¹¹ pertain to the care of the poor.

¹² In chusing of deacons (much more of ministers) there must be examination both of their learning and manners of life.

¹³ The ancient church did, with laying ¹⁴ of hands, as it were consecrate to the Lord, such as were lawfully elected.

¹⁵ This ceremony of laying-on of hands came from the Jews, who used this order both in public affairs, and offering of sacrifices, and also in private prayers and blessings, ¹⁶ appeareth Gen. 28. And the church observed this ceremony, ¹⁷ Tim. 5. 22. Acts 8. 17. But here is no mention made either of cream, or shaving, or rasing, or crossing, &c.

¹⁸ An happy end of temptation.

¹⁹ This is the figure Metonymia, meaning by faith, the doctrine of the gospel which ingendereth faith.

²⁰ God exerciseth his church first with evil words and slanders, then with imprisonments, afterward with scourg-ings, and by these means prepareth it in such sort, that at length he causeth it to encounter with Satan and the world.
even to bloodshed and death, and that with good success.

²¹ Excellent and singular good gifts.

¹¹ Then they suborned men, which said,
We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and God.

A. D.
33.

¹² Thus they moved the people and the elders, and the Scribes: and running upon him, caught him, and brought him to the council,

¹³ And set forth false witnesses, which said;
This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place; and the law.

¹⁴ For we have heard him say, that this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the ordinances which Moses gave us.

¹⁵ And all that sat in the council, looking stedfastly on him, ¹⁶ saw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

C H A P. VII.

Stephen pleading his cause, sheweth that God chose the fathers, 20 before Moses was born, 47.
and before the temple was built, 44 and that all outward ceremonies were ordained according to the heavenly pattern. 54 The Jews gnashing their teeth; 59 stone him.

THEN ¹ said the chief priest, Are these things
so?

² And he said, Ye men, brethren, and fathers, hearken. ³ That God of ⁴ glory appeared ⁵ Gen. 24.
unto our father Abraham, while he was in ⁶ Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran,

⁷ And said unto him, Come out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee.

⁸ Then came he out of the land of the Chal-deans, and dwelt in Charran. And after that his father was dead; ⁹ God brought him from thence into this land, wherein ye now dwell.

¹⁰ And he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not the ¹¹ breadth of a foot: yet he ¹² promised that he would give it to him for a possession; and to his seed after him; when as yet he had no child.

6 But

¹ Schools and universities were of old time addicted to false pastors, and were the instruments of Satan to blow abroad and defend false doctrines.

² Of the company and college, as it were.

³ False teachers, because they will not be overcome, flee from disputations to manifest and open slandering and false accusations.

⁴ The first bloody persecution of the church of Christ began and sprung from a council of priests, by the suggestion of the university doctors.

⁵ An example of cavillers or false accusers, which gather false conclusions of things that are well uttered and spoken.

⁶ Hereby it appeareth that Stephen had an excellent and goodly countenance, having ⁷ quiet and settled mind, a good conscience and sure persuasion that his cause was just.
⁸ For seeing he was to speak before the people, God beautified his countenance, to the end that with the very beholding of him, the Jews minds might be pierced and amazed.

⁹ Stephen is admitted to plead his cause, but to this end and purpose, that under a cloak and colour of law, he might be condemned.

¹⁰ Stephen witnesseth unto the Jews, that he acknowledgeth the true fathers, and the only true God; and sheweth moreover that they are more ancient than the temple, with all that service appointed by the law, and therefore they ought ¹¹ to lay another foundation of true religion, that is to say, the free covenant that God made with the fathers.

¹² That mighty God full of glory and majesty.

¹³ When he saith afterward, ver. 4. that Abraham came out of Chaldea, it is evident that Mesopotamia contained Chaldea which was near unto it, and bordering upon it, and so writeth Pliny, book 6. chap. 27.

¹⁴ Not so much ground as to set his foot upon.

¹⁵ The promise of the possession was certain and belonged to Abraham, though his posterity enjoyed it ¹⁶ great while after his death; and this is the figure Synecdoche.

A. D. 6 But God spake thus, that his seed should be a sojourner in a strange land: and that they should keep it in bondage, and entreat it evil four hundred years.

7 But the nation to whom they shall be in bondage, will I judge, saith God: and after that, they shall come forth and serve me in this place,

8 He gave him also the covenant of circumcision: and to Abraham begat Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day: and Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob the twelve patriarchs.

9 And the patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him,

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt, who made him governor over Egypt, and over his whole house.

11 Then came there a famine over all the land of Egypt and Canaan, and great affliction, that our fathers found no sustenance

12 But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he sent our fathers first:

13 And at the second time, Joseph was known of his brethren, and Joseph's kindred were made known unto Pharaoh.

14 Then sent Joseph, and caused his father to be brought, and all his kindred, even threescore and fifteen souls.

15 So Jacob went down into Egypt, and he died, and our fathers, 16 And were removed into Sychem, and were put in the sepulchre that Abraham had bought for money of the sons of Emmor, father of Sychem.

17 But when the time of the promise drew near, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, 18 Till another king arose, which knew not Joseph.

19 The same dealt subtilly with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, and made them to cast out their young children, that they should not remain alive.

20 The same time was Moses born, and was acceptable unto God, which was nourished up in his father's house three months.

21 And when he was cast out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him for her own son.

22 And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds.

23 Now when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren, the children of Israel.

24 And when he saw one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged his quarrel that had the harm done to him, and smote the Egyptian.

25 For he supposed his brethren would have understood, that God by his hand should give them deliverance: but they understood it not.

26 And the next day he shewed himself unto them as they strove, and would have set them at one again, saying, Sirs, ye are brethren: why do ye wrong one to another?

27 But he that did his neighbour wrong, thrust him away, saying, Who made thee a prince and judge over us?

28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou didst the Egyptian yesterday?

29 Then fled Moses at that saying, and was a stranger in the land of Midian, where he begat two sons.

30 And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderness of mount Sinai an angel of the Lord, in a flame of fire in a bush.

31 And when Moses saw it, he wondered at the sight: and as he drew near to consider it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, saying, 32 I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses trembled, and durst not behold it.

33 Then the Lord said to him, Put off thy shoes from thy feet: for the place where thou standest is holy ground.

34 I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them: and now come, and I will send thee into Egypt.

35 This Moses whom they forsook, saying, Who made thee a prince and judge? the same God sent for a prince, and a deliverer, by the hand of the angel, which appeared to him in the bush.

36 He brought them out, doing wonders and miracles in the land of Egypt, and in the red sea, and in the wilderness forty years.

37 This is that Moses which said unto the children of Israel, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you, even of your brethren, like unto me: him shall ye hear.

38 This is he that was in the congregation, in the wilderness with the angel, which spake to him in mount Sinai, and with our fathers, who received the lively oracles to give unto us.

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but refused, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt:

40 Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods that may go before us: for we know not what is become of this Moses that brought us out of the land of Egypt.

41 And

There are reckoned four hundred years from the beginning of Abraham's progeny, which was at the birth of Isaac; and four hundred and thirty years which are spoken of by Paul, Gal. 3. 17. from the time that Abraham and his father departed together out of Ur of the Chaldeans.

Stephen reckoneth up diligently the horrible mischiefs of some of the fathers, to teach the Jews that they ought not rashly to rest in the authority or examples of the fathers.

By this kind of speech, is meant the peculiar favour that God sheweth men; for he seemeth to be away from them, whom he helpeth not. And on the other side, he is with them whom he delivereth out of whatsoever great troubles.

Gave him favour in Pharaoh's fight for his wisdom.

The patriarchs, the sons of Jacob, though there be mention made of no more than Joseph, Josh. 24. 32.

He deviseth a subtil invention against our stock, in that he commanded all the males to be cast out.

That child was born through God's merciful goodness and favour, to be of a goodly and fair countenance.

Now he calleth the Son of God an angel, for he is the angel of great counsel, and therefore straightway after he sheweth him, saying to Moses, I am the God of thy fathers, &c.

By the power.

He acknowledgeth Moses for the law-giver, but so that he proveth by his own witness, that the law had respect to a more perfect thing, that is to say, to the prophetic office which tended to Christ, the head of all prophets.

 voice, came out of many that were possessed of them: and many taken with palsies, and that halted, were healed.

8 And there was great joy in that city.

9 And there was before in the city a certain man called Simon, which used^b witchcraft, and bewitched the people of Samaria, saying, that he himself was some great man.

10 To whom they gave heed from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is that great power of God.

11 And they gave heed unto him, because that of long time he had bewitched them with forceries.

12 But as soon as they believed Philip, which preached the things that concerned the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

13 Then Simon himself believed also, and was baptized, and continued with Philip, and wondered when he saw the signs and great miracles which were done.

14 Now when the apostles, which were at Jerusalem, heard say, that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John.

15 Which, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost.

16 For as yet he was fallen down on none of them, but they were baptized only in the name of the Lord Jesus.)

17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.

18 And when Simon saw, that through laying on of the apostles hands, the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, 19 Saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay the hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost.

20 Then said Peter unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou thinkest that the gift of God may be obtained with money.

21 Thou hast neither part nor fellowship in this^c business: for thine heart is not^d right in the sight of God.

22 Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, that if it be possible, the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee.

^a Christ overcometh Satan so oft as he listeth, and carrieth him about as it were in triumph, in the sight of them whom he deceived and bewitched.

^b The word which is used in this place was at the first taken in good part, and is borrowed out of the Persian language, who call their wise men by that name, but afterward it was taken in evil part.

^c He had so allured the Samaritans with his witchcraft, that as blind and mad hare-brains they were wholly addicted to him.

^d The wicked and the very reprobate are constrained oftentimes to taste of the good gift of God, but they cast it up again forthwith.

^e Peter, not chief, but ambassador sent from the whole company of the apostles, and John his companion, according to the authority which was committed unto them, confirm and build up the churches of Samaria, whose foundation had been laid before by Philip.

^f Those excellent gifts, which are necessary, especially for them that were to be appointed rulers and governors of the church.

^g Ambition and covetousness do at length pluck the hypocrites out of their dens.

24 Then answered Simon, and said, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon me.

25 ¶ So they, when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the gospel in many towns of the Samaritans.

26 Then the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the South unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is waste.

27 And he arose, and went on: and behold, a certain eunuch of Ethiopia, Candace the queen of the Ethiopians^c chief governor, who had the rule of all her treasure, and came to Jerusalem to worship.

28 And he returned sitting in his chariot, he read Esaias the prophet.

29 Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near and join thyself to yonder chariot.

30 And Philip ran thither, and heard him read the prophet Esaias, and said, But understandest thou what thou readest?

31 And he said, How can I, except I had^d a guide? and he desired Philip, that he would come up, and sit with him.

32 Now the place of the scripture which he read, was this, He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth.

33 In his^e humility his judgment hath been exalted: but who shall declare his^f generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

34 Then the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?

35 Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.

36 And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water, and the eunuch said, See, here is water: what doth let me to be baptized?

37 And Philip said unto him, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. Then he answered, and said, I believe that that Jesus Christ is that Son of God.

^e Those things which seem most to come by chance or fortune (as some term it) are governed by the secret providence of God.

^f The Hebrew text readeth it thus, Out of a narrow strait, and out of judgment he taken: where by the narrow strait, he meaneth the grave and the very bands of death; and by judgment, the punishment which was laid upon him, and that miserable state which Christ took upon him for our sakes, in bearing his Father's wrath.

3 Then he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch, and he baptized him.

39 And as soon as they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more: so he went on his way rejoicing.

40 But Philip was found at Azotus, and he walked to and fro preaching in all the cities till he came to Cesarea.

AND ¹ * Saul yet ^a breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high priest,

1 Cor. 15. 8.

3 Now as he journeyed, it came to pass that as he was come near to Damascus, * suddenly there shined round about him ^c light from heaven.

4 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice, saying to him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

5 And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest: it is ^c hard for thee to kick against pricks.

6 He then, both trembling and astonished, said, Lord, what wilt thou that I do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou shalt do.

7 The men also which journeyed with him, ^d stood amazed, hearing his ^e voice, but seeing no man.

8 And Saul arose from the ground, and opened his eyes, but saw no man. Then led they him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus, 9 Where he was three days without sight, and neither ate nor drank.

10 And there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias, and to him said the Lord in ^f vision, Ananias: And he said, Behold, I ^g am here, Lord.

11 Then the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Strait, and seek in the house of Judas after one called Saul of Tarsus: for behold he prayeth:

12 (And he saw in a vision ^h ⁱ named Ananias coming in to him, and putting his hands ^j upon him, that he might receive his sight.)

13 Then Ananias answered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to thy saints at Jerusalem.

14 Moreover here he hath authority of the high priests, to bind all that call on thy name.

15 Then the Lord said unto him, Go thy way: for he is ^k ^l chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel.

16 For I will ^m shew him how many things he must suffer for my name's sake.

17 Then Ananias went his way, and entered into ⁿ that house, and put his hands on ^o him, and said, Brother Saul, the Lord hath sent me, ^p Jesus that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest) that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost.

18 And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales, and suddenly he received sight, and arose, and was baptized, 19 And received meat, and was strengthened. So was Saul certain days with the disciples which were at Damascus.

20 ^q And straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that he was that Son of God, 21 So that all that heard him were amazed; and said, Is not this he that made havock of them which called on this name in Jerusalem, and came hither for that intent, that he should bring them bound unto the high priests?

22 ^r But Saul increased the more in strength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, ^s confirming that this was that Christ.

23 ^t And after that many days were fulfilled, the Jews took counsel together to kill him.

24 But their laying wait was known of Saul: now they ^u watched the gates day and night, ^v that they might kill him. ^w ^x

25 ^y Then the disciples took him by night, and put him through the wall, and let him down by a rope in ^z a basket.

26 ^{aa} And when Saul was come to Jerusalem, he assayed to join himself with the disciples: but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple.

27 But

A. D. 37. 27 But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the apostles, and declared to them, how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken unto him, and how he had spoken boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus.

28 And he was conversant with them at Jerusalem :

29 And spake boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus, and spake and disputed against the Grecians, but they went about to slay him.

30 But when the brethren knew it, they brought him to Cesarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus.

31 Then had the churches rest through all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were multiplied, and walked in the fear of the Lord, and were multiplied by the comfort of the Holy Ghost.

32 And it came to pass, as Peter walked throughout all quarters, he came also to the saints which dwelt at Lydda.

33 And there he found a certain man named Æneas, which had kept his couch eight years, and was sick of the palsy.

34 Then said Peter unto him, Æneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole : arise, and take thy couch together. And he arose immediately.

35 And all that dwelt at Lydda and Saron, saw him, and turned to the Lord.

36 There was also at Joppa a certain woman, a disciple, named Tabitha (which by interpretation is called Dorcas) she was full of good works and alms which she did.

37 And it came to pass in those days, that she was sick, and died : and when they had washed her, they laid her in an upper chamber.

38 Now forasmuch as Lydda was near to Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent unto him two men, desiring that he would not delay to come unto them.

39 Then Peter arose, and came with them : and when he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber, where all the widows stood by him weeping, and shewing the coats and garments which Dorcas made, while she was with them.

40 But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down, and prayed, and turned him to the body, and said, Tabitha, Arise. And she opened her eyes, and when she saw Peter, sat up.

41 Then he gave her the hand, and lift her up, and called the saints and widows, and restored her alive. A. D. 38.

42 And it was known throughout all Joppa, and many believed in the Lord.

43 And it came to pass that he tarried many days in Joppa with one Simon a tanner.

C H A P. X.

Cornelius, 4 at the angel's commandment, 5 sendeth for Peter : 11 who also by a vision, 15 20 is taught not to despise the Gentiles : 34 He preacheth the gospel to Cornelius and his household, 45 who having received the Holy Ghost, 47 are baptized.

Furthermore there was a certain man in Cesarea called Cornelius, a captain of the band called the Italian band,

2 A devout man, and one that feared God with all his household, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed God continually.

3 He saw in a vision evidently (about the ninth hour of the day) an angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius.

4 But when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? and he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up into remembrance before God.

5 Now therefore send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter.

6 He lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea side : he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do.

7 And when the angel which spake unto Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his servants, and a soldier that feared God, one of them that waited on him,

8 And told them all things, and sent them to Joppa.

9 On the morrow as they went on their journey and drew near unto the city, Peter went up upon the house to pray, about the sixth hour.

10 Then waxed he an hungred, and would have eaten : but while they made some thing ready, he fell into trance.

11 And he saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel come down unto him, as it had been a great sheet, knit at the four corners, and was let down to the earth.

12 Wherein were all manner of four-footed

⁴ The ministers of the word may change their place by the advice and counsel of the congregation and church.

⁵ The end of persecutions is the building of the church, so that we will patiently wait for the Lord.

⁶ This is a borrowed kind of speech, which signifieth establishment and increase.

⁷ Peter's apostleship is confirmed by healing of the man that was sick of the palsy.

⁹ Peter declareth evidently by raising up a dead body through the name of Christ, that he preached the glad tidings of life.

¹⁰ Peter consecrateth the first fruits of the Gentiles to God, by the means of two miracles.

¹¹ So that he worshipped one God, and was no idolater, neither could he void of faith in Christ, because he was a devout man: but as yet he knew not that he was come.

¹² This is a great commendation in this man, that he laboured to have all his household and familiar friends and acquaintance to be religious and godly.

¹³ What wilt thou with me, Lord? for he setteth himself to hear.

¹⁴ This is a borrowed kind of speech, which the Hebrews used very much, taken from sacrifices, and applied to prayers: for it is said of whole burnt sacrifices, that the smoke and savour of them goeth up into God's nostrils: so do our prayers a sweet smelling sacrifice which the Lord taketh great pleasure in.

¹⁵ That is, inasmuch that they will not suffer God, as it were, to forget thee: for so do the scriptures use ostentations to prattle with us as nurses do with little children, when they frame their tongues to speak.

¹⁶ For though Peter stood not amazed as one that is tongue-tied, but talketh with God, and is instructed in his mystery, yet his mind was far otherwise than it was wont to be, but shortly returned to the old bent.

¹⁷ So that it seemed to be a four-square sheet.

¹⁸ Here is this word (All) which is general, plainly set for indefinite and uncertain, that is to say, for some or all parts, not for all of every part.

 13 And there came a voice to him, Arise, Peter: kill, and eat.
 14 But Peter said, Not io, Lord: for I have never eaten any thing that is polluted, or unclean.
 15 And the voice spake unto him again the second time, The things that God hath purified, pollute thou not.
 16 This was so done thrice: and the vessel was drawn up again into heaven.
 17 ¶ Now while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen, meant, behold, the men which were sent from Cornelius, had inquired for Simon's house, and stood at the gate:
 18 And called, and asked, whether Simon which was surnamed Peter, were lodged there.
 19 And while Peter thought on the vision, the Spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee.
 20 Arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, and doubt nothing: for I have sent them.
 21 ¶ Then Peter went down to the men, which were sent unto him from Cornelius, and said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause wherefore ye are come?
 22 And they said, Cornelius the captain, a just man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from heaven by an holy angel, to send for thee into his house, and to hear thy words.
 23 Then called he them in, and lodged them: and the next day, Peter went forth with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him.
 24 ¶ And the day after, they entered into Cæsarea. Now Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen, and special friends.
 25 And it came to pass as Peter came in, that Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worshipped him.
 26 But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up: for even I myself am a man.
 27 And as he talked with him, he came in, and found many that were come together.
 28 And he said unto them, Ye know that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew, to company, or come unto one of another nation: but God hath shewed me, that I should not call any man polluted, or unclean.

29 Therefore came I unto you without saying nay, when I was sent for. I ask therefore, for what intent have ye sent for me?
 30 Then Cornelius said, Four days ago, about this hour, I fasted, and at the ninth hour I prayed in mine house, and behold, a man stood before me in bright cloathing, 31 And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God.
 32 Send therefore to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter (he is lodged in the house of Simon a tanner, by the sea side) who when he cometh shall speak unto thee.
 33 Then sent I for thee immediately, and thou hast well done to come. Now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.
 34 Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive, that God is no acceptor of persons.
 35 But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.
 36 Ye know the word which God hath sent to the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ which is Lord of all:
 37 Even the word which came through all Judea, beginning in Galilee, after the baptism which John preached:
 38 To wit, how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost, and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil: for God was with him.
 39 And we are witnesses of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews, and in Jerusalem, whom they slew, hanging him on a tree:
 40 Him God raised up the third day, and caused that he was shewed openly:
 41 Not to all the people, but unto the witnesses chosen before of God, even to us which did eat and drink with him, after he arose from the dead.
 42 And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to testify, that it is he that is ordained of God a judge of quick and dead.
 43 To him also give all the prophets witness, that through his name all that believe in him, shall receive remission of sins.
 44 While Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them that heard the word.

What is meant by those creeping things, look Lev. 11.
 Peter profiteth daily in the knowledge of the benefit of Christ, yea, after that he had received the Holy Ghost.
 Do not thou hold them as unclean.
 Religious adoration or worship agreeth only God: but civil worship is given to the ministers of the word, although not without danger.
 He meaneth not the self-same hour, but the like, that is about nine of the clock the other day, as it was then nine when he spake to Peter.
 Cornelius's faith sheweth forth itself by prayer and charity.
 As faith cometh by hearing, so is it nourished and groweth up by the same.
 Distinction of nations is taken away by the coming of Christ: And it is evidently seen, by faith and righteousness, who agreeable to him, or whom he accepteth.
 That God judgeth not after the outward appearance.
 By the fear of God the Hebrews understand the whole service of God, whereby they perceive that Cornelius was not void of faith, no more than they were which lived before Christ's time: and therefore they deal foolishly which build preparative works and free-will upon this place.
 God gave the Israelites to understand, that whosoever liveth godly, is acceptable to God, of what nation soever he be; for he preached peace to men through Jesus Christ, who is Lord not of one nation only, that is, of the Jews, but of all.

 The sum of the gospel (which shall be made manifest the latter day, when Christ himself shall sit as judge both of the quick and dead) is this, that Christ promised to the fathers, and exhibited in his time with the mighty power of God, (which was by all means shewed) and in length crucified to reconcile us to God, did rise again the third day, that whosoever believeth in him should be saved through the remission of sins.
 The stile is taken from an old custom of the Jews, who used to anoint their kings and priests, whereupon it grew, to call them anointed, upon whom God bestoweth gifts and virtues.
 This chusing of the apostles is properly given to God: for though God be president in the lawful election of ministers, yet there is in this place a secret opposition and setting of God's chusing and men's voices the one against the other, for the apostles were immediately appointed of God, and the church ministers by means.
 The Spirit of God sealeth that in the heart of the hearers which the minister of the word speaketh by the commandment of God, it appeareth by the effects.

A. D. 45 So they of the circumcision which believed, were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost.

46 For they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God. Then answered Peter, 47 Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghost, as well as we?

48 So he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

CHAP. XI.

2 Peter being accused for going to the Gentiles, 5 defendeth himself. 22 Barnabas is sent to Antioch, 26 where the disciples are called Christians: 28 And there Agabus foretelleth a famine to come.

NOW the apostles, and the brethren that were in Judea, heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God.

2 And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they of the circumcision contended against him,

3 Saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and hast eaten with them.

4 Then Peter began, and expounded the thing in order to them, saying,

5 I was in the city of Joppa, praying, and in a trance I saw this vision, A certain vessel coming down as it had been a great sheet, let down from heaven by the four corners, and it came to me:

6 Toward the which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and saw four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the heaven.

7 Also I heard a voice, saying unto me, Arise, Peter: slay and eat.

8 And I said, God forbid, Lord: for nothing polluted or unclean hath at any time entered into my mouth.

9 But the voice answered me the second time from heaven, The things that God hath purified, pollute thou not.

10 And this was done three times, and all were taken up again into heaven.

11 Then behold, immediately there were three men already come into the house where I was, sent from Cæsarea unto me.

12 And the Spirit said unto me, that I should go with them, without doubting: moreover, these six brethren came with me: and we entered into the man's house.

13 And he shewed us how he had seen an angel in his house, which stood and said to him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter:

14 He shall speak words unto thee, whereby both thou and all thine house shall be saved.

15 And as I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them, even as upon us at the beginning.

16 Then I remembered the word of the Lord, how he said, John baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost.

17 Forasmuch then as God gave them a like gift, as he did unto us, when we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I, that I could let God?

18 When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

19 ¶ And they which were scattered abroad, because of the affliction that arose about Stephen, went throughout till they came unto Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to no man, but unto the Jews only.

20 Now some of them were men of Cyprus and of Cyrene, which when they were come into Antioch, spake unto the Grecians, and preached the Lord Jesus.

21 And the hand of the Lord was with them, so that great number believed, and turned unto the Lord.

22 Then tidings of those things came unto the ears of the church which was in Jerusalem: and they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go unto Antioch:

23 Who, when he was come, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted all, that with purpose of heart they would continue in the Lord.

24 For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost, and faith, and much people joined themselves unto the Lord.

25 ¶ Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, to seek Saul:

26 And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch: and it came to pass, that a whole year they were conversant with the church, and taught much people, insomuch that the disciples were first called Christians in Antioch.

27 In those days also came prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch.

28 And there stood up one of them named Agabus, and signified by the Spirit, that there should be great famine throughout all the world, which also came to pass under Claudius Cæsar.

29 Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, purposed to send succour unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea.

30 Which thing they also did, and sent it to the elders by the hand of Barnabas and Saul.

CHAP.

² Baptism doth not sanctify or make them holy which receive it, but sealeth up and confirmeth their sanctification.

¹ Peter being without cause reprehended of the unskilful and ignorant, doth not object that he ought not to be judged of any, but openly giveth an account of his doing.

² Such as ask question of the truth which they know not, ought to be quietly heard, and must also quietly yield to the declaration thereof.

³ The scattering abroad of the church of Jerusalem, is the cause of the gathering together of many other churches.

⁴ He speaketh of Antioch which was in Syria, and bordered upon Cilicia.

⁵ The church of Antioch, the new Jerusalem of the Gentiles, was extraordinarily called.

⁵ The apostles do not rashly condemn an extraordinary vocation, but yet they judge it by the effects.

⁶ There was no contention amongst the apostles either of usurping, or of holding places and degrees.

⁷ God doth so wrap up his church with the wicked, in his scourges and plagues which he sendeth upon the earth, that notwithstanding he provideth for it conveniently.

⁸ All congregations or churches make one body.

⁹ That is, that thereof the deacons might succour the poor: for it behoved to have all these things done orderly and decently, and therefore it is said, that they sent these things to the elders, that is, to the governors of the church.

C H A P. XII.

2 Herod killeth James with the sword, 4 and imprisoneth Peter, 8 whom the angel delivereth. 22 Herod being offended with them of Tyre, 21 is pacified: 22 And taking the honour due to God to himself, 23 he is eaten with worms, and so dieth.

NOW¹ about that time, Herod the king stretched forth his hands to vex certain of the church, ² And he killed James the brother of John with the sword.

³ And when he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further, to take Peter also (then were the days of unleavened bread.)

⁴ And when he had caught him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to be kept, intending after the passover to bring him forth to the people.

⁵ So Peter was kept in prison, but earnest prayer was made of the church unto God for him.

⁶ And when Herod would have brought him out unto the people, the same night slept Peter between two soldiers, bound with two chains, and the keepers before the door kept the prison.

⁷ * And behold, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and a light shined in the house, and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise quickly. And his chains fell from off his hands.

⁸ And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And so he did. Then he said unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me.

⁹ So Peter came out, and followed him, and knew not that it was true which was done by the angel, but thought he had seen a vision.

¹⁰ Now when they were past the first and the second watch, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city, which opened to them by its own accord, and they went out, and passed through one street, and by and by the angel departed from him.

¹¹ ¶ And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know for truth, that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the waiting for of the people of the Jews.

¹² And as he considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary, the mother of John, whose surname was Mark, where many were gathered together, and prayed.

¹³ And when Peter knocked at the entry door, a maid came forth to hearken, named Rhode.

¹⁴ But when she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the entry door for gladness, but ran in, and told how Peter stood before the entry.

¹⁵ But they said unto her, Thou art mad. Yet she affirmed it constantly, that it was so. Then said they, It is his angel.

¹⁶ But Peter continued knocking, and when they had opened it, and saw him, they were astonished.

¹⁷ And he beckoned unto them with the hand to hold their peace, and told them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, Go shew these things unto James, and to the brethren: and he departed, and went into another place.

¹⁸ ¶ Now as soon as it was day, there was no small trouble among the soldiers, what was become of Peter.

¹⁹ And when Herod had sought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and commanded them to be led to be punished. And he went down from Judea to Cæsarea, and there abode.

²¹ And upon a day appointed Herod arrayed himself in royal apparel, and sat on the judgment seat, and made an oration unto them.

²² And the people gave shout, saying, The voice of God, and not of man.

²³ But immediately the angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not glory unto God, so that he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost.

²⁴ And the word of God grew, and multiplied.

²⁵ So Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem, when they had fulfilled their office, and took with them John, whose surname was Mark.

2 The Holy Ghost commandeth, that Paul and Barnabas be separated unto him. 6 At Paphus Elymas the sorcerer 11 is stricken blind: 14 From whence being come to Antioch, 17 they preach the gospel, 45 the Jews vehemently withstanding them.

¹ God giveth his church a truce but for a little time.

² This name Herod was common to all them that came of the stock of Herod Ascalonites, whose surname was Magnus: but he that is spoken of here, his nephew Herod the great, son Aristobulus, and father to that Agrippa who is spoken of afterward.

^b Violently, his cause being not once heard.

^c It is on old fashion of tyrants to procure the favour of the wicked with the blood of the godly.

³ The tyrants and wicked make gallows for themselves, even then, when they do most according to their own will and fancy.

⁴ The prayers of the godly overturn the counsel of tyrants, obtain angels of God, break the prison, unloose the chains, put Satan to flight, and preserve the church.

^e In the prison.

⁵ Holy meetings in the night, as well of men as women (when they cannot be suffered in the day time) are allowable by the example of the apostles.

⁶ We obtain more of God than we dare well hope for.

⁷ Out of the place where they were assembled, but not out of the house.

⁸ We may sometimes give place to the rage of the wicked, but yet so that our diligence, which ought to be used in God's business, be not whit slackened.

⁹ Evil counsel falleth out in the end to the hurt of the devisers of it.

¹⁰ A miserable and shameful example of the end of the enemies of the church.

¹¹ The flattery of the people, maketh fools vain.

¹² God resisteth the proud.

¹³ Josephus recordeth, that this king did not repress those flatterers tongues, and therefore at his death he complained and cried out of their vanity.

¹⁴ Tyrants build up the church by plucking it down.

¹⁵ They that hear the word of God.

A. D. 45. THERE were also in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers, as Barnabas, and Simeon called Nigger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manahen, (which had been brought up with Herod the Tetrarch) and Saul.

2 Now as they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul, for the work whereunto I have called them.

3 Then fasted they and prayed, and laid their hands on them, and let them go.

4 And they, after they were sent forth of the Holy Ghost, came down unto Seleucia, and from thence they sailed to Cyprus.

5 And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews: and they had also John to their minister.

6 So when they had gone throughout the isle unto Paphos, they found a certain forcerer, a false prophet, being a Jew, named Barjesus, 7 Which was with the deputy Sergius Paulus, a prudent man. He called unto him Barnabas and Saul, and desired to hear the word of God.

8 But Elymas, the forcerer (for so is his name by interpretation) withstood them, and sought to turn away the deputy from the faith.

9 Then Saul (which also is called Paul) being full of the Holy Ghost, set his eyes on him,

10 And said, O full of subtilty and all mischief, the child of the devil, and enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the straight ways of the Lord?

11 Now therefore behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, and not see the sun for a season. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness, and he went about, seeking some to lead him by the hand.

12 Then the deputy, when he saw what was done, believed, and was astonished at the doctrine of the Lord.

13 Now when Paul, and they that were with him, were departed by ship from Paphos, they came to Perga, a city of Pamphylia: then John departed from them, and returned to Jerusalem.

14 But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch, a city of Pisidia, and went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and sat down.

15 And after the lecture of the law and prophets, the rulers of the synagogue sent unto them, saying, Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation for the people, say on.

16 Then Paul stood up, and beckoned with the hand, and said, Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, hearken.

17 The God of this people of Israel chose our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt in the land of Egypt, and with an high arm brought them out thereof.

18 And about the time of forty years, suffered he their manners in the wilderness.

19 And he destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, and divided their land to them by lot.

20 Then afterward he gave unto them judges about four hundred and fifty years, unto the time of Samuel the prophet.

21 So after that, they desired a king, and God gave unto them Saul, the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the space of forty years.

22 And after he had taken him away, he raised up David to be their king, of whom he witnessed, saying, I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man after mine own heart, which will do all things that I will.

23 Of this man's seed hath God, according to his promise, raised up to Israel the Saviour Jesus.

24 When John had first preached before his coming, the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel.

25 And when John had fulfilled his course, he said, Whom ye think that I am, I am not: but behold, there cometh one after me, whose shoes of his feet I am not worthy to loose.

26 Ye

¹ Paul with Barnabas is again the second time appointed apostle of the Gentiles, not of man, neither by man, but by an extraordinary commandment of the Holy Ghost.

² The same was Antipas, which put John Baptist to death.

³ While they were busy doing their office, that is, as Chrysostom expoundeth it, while they were preaching.

⁴ The Lord is said to call (whereof this word 'Calling' cometh, which is usual in the church) when he causeth that to be, which was not, whether you refer it to the matter itself, or to any quality or thing about the matter; and it groweth of this, because when things begin to be, then they have some name: God his mighty power is also declared thereby, who spake the word, and things were made.

⁵ Fasts and solemn prayers were used before the laying on of hands.

⁶ Paul and his company, do at the first bring Cyprus to the subjection and obedience of Christ.

⁷ Seleucia was a city of Cilicia, so called of Seleucus one of Alexander's successors.

⁸ The devil maketh the conquest of Christ more glorious, in that that he setteth himself against him.

⁹ The forcerer which was stricken of Paul with corporal punishment (although extraordinarily) sheweth an example to lawful magistrates, how they ought to punish them which wickedly and obstinately hinder the course of the gospel.

¹⁰ He noteth out such a fault, who hath it, runneth headlong and with great desire to all kind of wickedness with the least motion in the world.

¹¹ His power which he sheweth in striking and beating down his enemies.

¹² An example in him and the self-same company both of singular constancy, and also of great weakness.

¹³ This putteth a difference betwixt it, and Antioch which was in Syria.

¹⁴ In the synagogue of the Jews (according to the pattern whereof christian congregations were instituted) first the scriptures were read, then such as were learned, were licensed by the rulers of the synagogue to speak and expound.

¹⁵ Word for word, If there be any word in you, and this is a kind of speech taken from the Hebrews, whereby is meant that the gifts of God's grace are in us, as it were in treasure-houses, and that they are not ours, but God's. In like sort saith David, Thou hast put a new song in my mouth, Psalm 10. 1.

¹⁶ God bestowed many peculiar benefits upon his chosen Israel: but this especially, that he promised them the everlasting Redeemer.

¹⁷ Advanced and brought to honour.

¹⁸ Openly and with main force, breaking in pieces the enemies of his people.

¹⁹ There was a space of time from the birth of Isaac unto the destruction of the Canaanites under the governance of Joshua, four hundred and seven and forty years, and therefore he addeth in this place, this word, About, for there want three years, but the apostle useth the whole greater number.

²⁰ In this space of forty years, must the time of Samuel be reckoned with the days of Saul, for the kingdom did as it were swallow up his government.

²¹ He proveth by the witness of John, that Jesus is that Saviour which should come of David.

²² John was a herald, did not shew Christ's coming afar off, as the other prophets did, but hard at hand, and entered on his journey.

A. D. 45. 26 Ye men and brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, and whosoever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this salvation sent.

27 For the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and their rulers, because they knew him not, nor yet the words of the prophets, which are read every sabbath day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him.

28 And though they found no cause of death in him, yet desired they Pilate to kill him.

29 And when they had fulfilled all things that were written of him, they took him down from the tree, and put him in a sepulchre.

30 But God raised him up from the dead.

31 And he was seen many days of them which came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, which are his witnesses unto the people.

32 And we declare unto you, that touching the promise made unto the fathers, 33 God hath fulfilled it unto us their children, in that he raised up Jesus, even as it is written in the second Psalm, Thou art my son: this day have I begotten thee.

34 Now as concerning that he raised him up from the dead, no more to return to corruption, he hath said thus, I will give you the holy things of David, which are faithful.

35 Wherefore he saith also in another place, Thou wilt not suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

36 Howbeit David, after he had served his time by the counsel of God, slept, and was laid with his fathers, and saw corruption.

37 But he whom God raised up, saw no corruption.

38 Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins:

39 And from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses, by him every one that believeth is justified.

40 Beware therefore lest that come upon you which is spoken of in the prophets, 41 Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and vanish away: for I work a work in your days, a work which ye shall not believe, if a man would declare it you.

10 Christ was promised, and sent properly to the Jews.

11 All things were to pass to Christ which the prophets foretold of Messias: so that hereby also it appeareth that he is the true and only Saviour: and yet notwithstanding they are not to be excused, which did not only not receive him, but also persecute him most cruelly although he was innocent.

12 We must set the glory of the resurrection against the shame of the cross and grave. And the resurrection is proved well by witnesses which saw it, as by the testimonies of the prophets.

For then he appeared plainly and manifestly, that only Son of God, when he left off his weakness, and came out of the grave, having conquered death.

13 If Christ had tarried in death, he had not been the true Son of God, neither had the covenant, which was made with David, been sure.

The Grecians call those, holy things, which the Hebrews call gracious bounties: and they called David's bounties in the passive signification, because God bestowed them upon David: moreover they are termed faithful, after the manner of speech which the Hebrews use, who term those things faithful which are steady and sure, such never alter nor change.

14 The Lord was so in grave, that he felt corruption.

15 Christ was sent to give them free remission of sins, which were condemned by the law.

Whereas the ceremonies of the law could not absolve you from your sins, this man doth absolve you, if you lay hold on him by faith.

16 The benefits of God turn to the utter undoing of them

42 ¶ 17 And when they were come out of the synagogue of the Jews, the Gentiles besought, that they would preach these words to them the next sabbath day.

43 Now when the congregation was dissolved, many of the Jews and proselytes that feared God followed Paul and Barnabas, which spake unto them, and exhorted them to continue in the grace of God.

44 And the next sabbath day came almost the whole city together to hear the word of God.

45 But when the Jews saw the people, they were full of envy, and spake against those things which were spoken of Paul, contrarying them, and railing on them.

46 Then Paul and Barnabas spake boldly, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken unto you: but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles.

47 For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have made thee a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be the salvation unto the end of the world:

48 And when the Gentiles heard it, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and many as were ordained unto eternal life, believed.

49 Thus the word of the Lord was published throughout the whole country.

50 But the Jews stirred certain devout and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coasts.

51 But they shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Iconium.

52 And the disciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghost.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Paul and Barnabas are persecuted from Iconium. 6 At Lystra Paul bealeth a cripple. 13 They are about to do sacrifice unto them, 15 but they forbid it. 19 Paul, by the persuasion of certain Jews, is stoned. 23 From thence passing through divers churches, 26 they return to Antioch.

AND it came to pass in Iconium, that they went both together into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that a great multitude that contemn them.

17 The Gentiles go before the Jews into the kingdom of heaven.

Which had forsaken their heathenish religion, and embraced the religion set forth by Moses.

18 The favour of one self-same gospel is unto the reprobate and unto believers, death; and to the elect, and such believe, life.

19 The gospel is published to the Gentiles by the express commandment of God.

By this your doing, you do, as it were, pronounce sentence against yourselves, and judge yourselves.

Therefore either all were appointed everlasting life, or else all should have believed, but because that is not so, it followeth that some certain were ordained: and therefore God did not only foreknow, but also fore-ordain, that neither faith, nor the effects of faith, should be the cause of his ordaining appointment; but his ordaining, the cause of faith.

20 Such is the craft and subtilty of the enemies of the gospel, that they abuse the simplicity of some which are altogether evil men, to execute their cruelty.

Such embraced Moses's law.

21 The wickedness of the world cannot let God gather his church together, and to foster and cherish it when it is gathered together.

We ought be less constant in preaching of the gospel, than the perverseness of the wicked is obdurate in persecuting of it.

2 And the ^b unbelieving Jews stirred up and corrupted the minds of the Gentiles against the brethren.

3 ^c So therefore they abode there a long time, and spake boldly in the Lord, which gave testimony unto the word of his grace, and caused signs and wonders to be done by their hands.

4 But the multitude of the city was divided: and some were with the Jews, and some with the apostles.

5 And when there was an assault made both of the Gentiles and of the Jews with their rulers, to do them violence, and to stone them,

6 They were ware of it, and ^d fled unto Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region round about,

7 And there preached the gospel.

8 ¶ ^e Now there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, which was a cripple from his mother's womb, who had never walked:

9 He heard Paul speak: who beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed,

10 Said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped up, and walked.

11 Then when the people saw what Paul had done, they lift up their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, Gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.

12 And they called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercury: because he was the chief speaker.

13 Then Jupiter's priest, which was before their city, brought bulls with garlands unto the ^f gates, and would have sacrificed with the people.

14 But when the apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard it, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying,

15 ^g And saying, O men, why do ye these things? We are even men subject to the ^h like passions that ye be, and preach unto you, that ye should turn from these ⁱ vain things unto the living God, ^j which made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all things that in them are:

16 ^k Who in times past ^l suffered all the Gentiles to walk in their own ways.

17 Nevertheless, he left not himself without witness, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness.

18 And speaking these things, scarce appeared they the multitude, that they had not sacrificed unto them.

19 ^m Then there came certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, which when they had persuaded the people, ⁿ stoned Paul, and drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead.

20 Howbeit, ^o the disciples stood round about him, he arose up, and came into the city, and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 ^p And after they had preached the glad tidings of the gospel to that city, and had taught many, they returned to Lystra, and to Iconium, and to Antioch, 22 ^q Confirming the disciples hearts, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, ^r affirming, that we must through many afflictions enter into the kingdom of God.

23 ^s And when they had ordained them elders by election in every church, and prayed, and fasted, they commended them to the Lord in whom they believed.

24 ^t Thus they went throughout Pisidia, and came to Pamphylia.

25 And when they had preached the word in Perga, they came down to ^u Attalia, 26 And thence sailed to ^v Antioch, ^w from whence they had been commended unto the grace of God, to the work which they had fulfilled.

27 And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearsed all the things that God had done by them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.

28 So there they abode a long time with the disciples.

^a Which obeyed not the doctrine.

^b We ought not to leave our places and give place to threatenings, neither ^c open rage, but when there is no other remedy, and that not for our own quietness sake, but that the gospel of Christ may be spread further abroad.

^d It is lawful sometimes to flee dangers in time convenient.

^e It is an old subtilty of the devil, either to cause the faithful servants of God ^f be banished at once, or ^g be worshipped for idols: and that chiefly, taking occasion by miracles wrought by them.

^h Of the house where Paul and Barnabas were.

ⁱ That is also called idolatry, which giveth ^j creatures, be they never so holy and excellent, that which is proper to the only one God, that is, invocation, or calling upon.

^k Men as ye are, and partakers of the self-same nature of man as you.

^l He calleth idols vain things, after the ^m of the Hebrews.

ⁿ Custom, be it never so old, doth not excuse the idolaters.

^o Suffered them to live as they listed, prescribing and appointing them no kind of religion.

^p The Devil, when he is brought to the last cast, at length ragech openly, but in vain, even then when he seemeth to have the upper-hand.

^q We must go forward in our vocation through a thousand deaths.

^r It is the office of the ministers, not only to teach, but also to confirm them that are taught, and prepare them to the cross.

^s The apostles committed the churches which they had planted, to proper and peculiar pastors, which they made not rashly, but with prayers and fastings going before: neither did they thrust them upon churches through bribery, or lordly superiority, but chose and placed them by the voice of the congregation.

^t Paul and Barnabas having made an end of their peregrination, and being returned to Antioch, do render an account of their journey to the congregation or church.

^u Attalia was a sea city of Pamphylia, near to Lycia.

^v Antioch of Syria.

^w The church is at length troubled with dissention within itself, and the trouble riseth of the proud and stubborn wits of certain evil men: the first strife was concerning the office of Christ, whether we be saved by his only righteousness apprehended by faith, or we have need also to observe the law.

^x Epiphanius is of opinion, that this was Cerinthus.

A. D. 51. 2² And when there was great dissention, and disputation by Paul and Barnabas against them, they ordained that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question.

3 Thus^b being brought forth by the church, they passed through Phenice and Samaria, declaring the conversion of the Gentiles, and they brought great joy unto all the brethren.

4 And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the church, and of the apostles and elders, and they declared what things God had done by them.

5 But said they, certain of the sect of the Pharisees which did believe, rose up, saying, that it was needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.

6 Then the apostles and elders came together to look to this matter.

7 And when there had been great disputation, Peter rose up, and said unto them, * * Ye men and brethren, ye know that a^c good while ago, amongst us God chose out me, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe,

8 And God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, in giving unto them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us.

9 And he put no^d difference between us and them, after that * * by faith he had purified their hearts.

10 Now therefore, why^f tempt ye God, to * lay a yoke upon the disciples necks, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?

11 But we believe, through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, to be saved, even as they do.

12 Then all the multitude kept silence, and heard Barnabas and Paul, which told what signs and wonders God had done among the Gentiles by them.

13 And when they held their peace,^g James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me.

14 Simeon hath declared how God first did visit the Gentiles, to take of them people unto his name.

15 And to this agree the words of the prophets, as it is written,

16 After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down, and the ruins thereof will I build again, and I will set it up;

17 That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, which doeth all these things.

18 From the beginning of the world, God knoweth all his works.

19 Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them of the Gentiles that are turned to God,

20 But that we send unto them, that they abstain themselves from^h filthiness of idols, and fornication, and that that is strangled, and from blood:

21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, seeing he is read in the synagogues every sabbath day.

22 Then it seemed good to the apostles and elders, with the whole church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas: to wit, Judas whose surname was Barsabas, and Silas, which were chief men among the brethren:

23 And wrote letters by them after this manner, The apostles, and the elders, and the brethren, unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and in Syria, and in Cilicia, send greeting.

24 Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain, which^k went out from us, have troubled you with words, and^l cumbered your minds, saying, Ye must be circumcised, and keep the law, to whom we gave no such commandment, 25 It seemed therefore good to us, when we were come together with^m one accord, to send chosen men unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul.

26 Men that haveⁿ given up their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

27 We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, which shall also tell you the same things by mouth.

28 For

^a Meetings of congregations were instituted to suppress heresies, whereunto certain were sent by common consent in the name of all.

^b Courteously and lovingly brought ■ their way by the church, that is, by certain appointed by the church.

^c The matter is first handled, both parts being heard, in the assembly of the apostles and ancients, and after is communicated with the people.

^d God himself, in calling of the Gentiles, which are uncircumcised, did teach that our salvation doth consist in faith without the worship appointed by the law.

^e Word for word, of old time, that is, even from the first time that we were commanded to preach the gospel, and straightways after that the Holy Ghost ■ down upon us.

^f He put no difference between us and them, ■ touching the benefit of his free favour.

^g Christ pronounceth them to be blessed which are pure of heart: and here we are plainly taught that ■ made such by faith.

^h Peter passing from the ceremonies to the law itself in general, sheweth that none could be saved, if salvation were to be sought for by the law, and not by grace only in Jesus Christ; because that no ■ could ever fulfil the law, neither patriarch nor apostle.

ⁱ Why tempt you God, ■ though he could not save by faith?

^j A true pattern of ■ lawful council, where God's truth only reigneth.

^k The son of Alphaeus, who is also called the Lord's brother.

^l James confirmeth the calling of the Gentiles out of the word of God, therein agreeing to Peter.

^m And therefore nothing cometh to pass by fortune, but by God's appointment.

ⁿ In matters indifferent we may so far bear with the weakness of ■ brethren, as they may have time ■ be instructed.

^o From sacrifices, or from feasts which were kept in idols temples.

^p In ■ lawful synod neither they which are appointed and chosen judges, appoint and determine any thing tyrannously or upon a lordliness, neither doth the common multitude set themselves tumultuously against them, which sit as judges by the word of God: as the like order also is holden in publishing and ratifying those things which have been so determined and agreed upon.

^q The council of Jerusalem concludeth, that they trouble men's consciences, which teach us to seek salvation in any other means than in Christ only, apprehended by faith, from whencesoever they come; and whomsoever they pretend to be author of their vocation.

^s A borrowed kind of speech taken of them which pull down that that was built up: and it is ■ very usual metaphor in the scriptures, ■ say the church is built, for, the church is planted and stablished.

^t Have greatly hazarded their lives.

A. D. 28 " For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay no more burden upon you, than these necessary things :

29 " That is, that ye abstain from things offered to idols, and blood, and that that is strangled, and from fornication : from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

30 " Now when they were departed, they came to Antioch, and after that they had assembled the multitude, they delivered the epistle.

31 And when they had read it, they rejoiced for the consolation.

32 And Judas and Silas, being prophets, exhorted the brethren with many words, and strengthened them.

33 And after they had tarried there a space, they were let go in peace of the brethren unto the apostles.

34 Notwithstanding Silas thought good to abide there still.

35 Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching with many other the word of the Lord.

36 ¶ But after certain days Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us return, and visit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do.

37 " And Barnabas counselled to take with them John, called Mark.

38 But Paul thought it not meet to take him unto their company, which departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work.

39 " Then were they so stirred, that they departed asunder one from the other, so that Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus.

40 And Paul chose Silas, and departed, being commended of the brethren unto the grace of God.

41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia, stablishing the churches.

CHAPTER XVI.

1 Paul having circumcised Timothy, 12 being at Philippi, 14 instructeth Lydia in the faith. 16 The spirit of divination 18 is by him cast out. 20 And for that cause 22 they are whipped, 24 and imprisoned. 26 Through an earthquake 27 the prison-doors are opened. 31, 32 The jailor receiveth the faith.

" That is a lawful council, which the Holy Ghost ruleth. First, they make mention of the Holy Ghost, that it may not seem to be any man's work.

" Not that men have any authority of themselves, but to shew the faithfulness that they used in their ministry and labour.

" This was no precise necessity, but in respect of the state of that time, that the Gentiles and the Jews might more peaceably live together with less occasion of quarrel.

" Charity is requisite even in things indifferent.

" It is requisite for all people to know certainly, what to hold in matters of faith and religion, and not that the church by ignorance and knowing nothing, should depend upon the pleasure of a few.

" This is an Hebrew kind of speech, which is as much to say, as, the brethren wished them all prosperous success, and the church dismissed them with good leave.

" Congregations or churches do easily degenerate, unless they be diligently seen unto, and therefore went these apostles to oversee such which they had planted, and for this cause also synods were instituted and appointed.

" A lamentable example of discord between excellent men and very great friends, yet not for profane or their private affairs, neither yet for doctrine.

" God useth the faults of his servants to the profit and building of the church: yet we have to take heed, even in the best matters, that we pass not measure in our heat.

" They were in great heat: but herein we have to consider the force of God's counsel: for by this came

THEN came he to Derbe and to Lystra: and behold, a certain disciple was there named Timothy, a woman's son, which was a Jewess, and believed, but his father was a Grecian.

2 Of whom the brethren which were at Lystra and Iconium, reported well.

3 Therefore Paul would that he should go forth with him, and took and circumcised him, because of the Jews which were in those quarters: for they knew all, that his father was a Grecian.

4 And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees to keep, ordained of the apostles and elders, which were at Jerusalem.

5 And so were the churches stablished in the faith, and increased in number daily.

6 ¶ Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia, and the region of Galatia, they were forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in Asia.

7 Then came they to Mysia, and sought to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not.

8 Therefore they passed through Mysia, and came down to Troas.

9 Where a vision appeared to Paul in the night. There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come into Macedonia, and help us.

10 And after he had seen the vision, immediately we prepared to go into Macedonia, being assured that the Lord had called us to preach the gospel unto them.

11 Then went we forth from Troas, and with a straight course came to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis:

12 ¶ And from thence to Philippi, which is the chief city in the parts of Macedonia, and whose inhabitants came from Rome, to dwell there, and we were in that city abiding certain days.

13 And on the sabbath day, we went out of the city, besides a river, where they were wont to pray: and we sat down, and spake unto the women which were come together.

14 And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of the Thyatirians, which

" Paul himself doth not receive Timothy into the ministry without sufficient testimony, and allowance of the brethren.

" Paul in his latter epistle to Timothy commendeth the godliness of Timothy's mother and grandmother.

" Both for his godliness and honesty.

" Timothy is circumcised, not simply for any necessity, but in the respect of the time only to win the Jews.

" Charity is to be observed in things indifferent, that so regard be had both of the weak, and the quietness of the church.

" Those decrees which he spake of in the former chapter.

" God appointeth certain and determinate times to open and set forth his truth, that both the election and the calling may proceed of grace.

" He sheweth not why they were forbidden, but only that they were forbidden, teaching us to obey and not to enquire.

" They were the ministers of the gospel, by whom he helpeth such which like to perish.

" The saints did not easily believe every vision.

" God beginneth his kingdom in Macedonia by the conversion of a woman, and so sheweth, that there is no acception of persons in the gospel.

" Where they were wont to assemble themselves.

" The Lord only openeth the heart to hear the word which is preached.

A. D. 53. which worshipped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which Paul spake.

15 And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into mine house, and abide there: and she constrained us.

16 And it came to pass, that we went to prayer, certain maid having a spirit of divination, met us, which gat her masters much vantage with divining.

17 She followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, These men are the servants of the most high God, which shew unto you the way of salvation.

18 And this did she many days: but Paul being grieved, turned about, and said to the spirit, I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ, that thou come out of her. And he came out the same hour.

19 Now when her masters saw that the hope of their gain was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the market place unto the magistrates,

20 And brought them to the governors, saying, These men, which are Jews, trouble our city:

21 And preach ordinances, which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to observe, seeing we are Romans.

22 The people also all rose up together against them, and the governors rent their clothes, and commanded them to be beaten with rods.

23 And when they had beaten them sore, they cast them into prison, commanding the jailor to keep them surely:

24 Who, having received such commandment, cast them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the stocks.

25 Now at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and sung psalms unto God: and the prisoners heard them.

26 And suddenly there was a great earthquake: so that the foundation of the prison was shaken: and by and by all the doors opened, and every man's bands were loosed.

27 Then the keeper of the prison waked out of his sleep, and when he saw the prison doors open, he drew out his sword, and would have killed himself, supposing the prisoners had been fled.

28 But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, Do thyself no harm: for we are all here.

^a An example of a godly housewife.

^b Satan transformeth himself into an angel of light, and coveteth to enter by undermining; but Paul openly letteth him, and casteth him out.

^c This is a proper note of Apollo, which was wont to give answers to them that asked him.

^d Paul made no haste to this miracle, for he did all things as he was led by the Spirit.

^e Covetousness of lucre and gain is an occasion of persecuting the truth. In the same season, God sparing Timothy, calleth Paul and Silas the stronger in battle.

^f Covetousness pretendeth a desire of peace and godliness.

^g It is an argument of the devil, to urge the authority of ancestors without any distinction.

^h An example of evil magistrates, to obey the fury and rage of the people.

ⁱ Because he would be more sure of them, he set them fast in the stocks.

^k The prayers of the godly do shake both heaven and earth.

^l The merciful Lord, so oft as he listeth, draweth men to life even through the midst of death, and whereas justly

29 Then he called for a light, and leaped in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, A. D. 53.

30 And brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?

31 And they said, Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thine household.

32 And they preached unto him the word of the Lord, and all that were in the house.

33 Afterward he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes, and was baptized, with all that belonged unto him, straightway.

34 And when he had brought them into his house, he set meat before them, and rejoiced that he with all his household believed in God.

35 And when it was day, the governors sent the serjeants, saying, Let those men go.

36 Then the keeper of the prison told these words unto Paul, saying, The governors have sent to loose you: now therefore get you hence, and go in peace.

37 Then said Paul unto them, After that they have beaten us openly uncondemned, which are Romans, they have cast us into prison, and now would they put us out privily? nay verily: but let them come and bring us out.

38 And the serjeants told these words unto the governors, who feared when they heard that they were Romans.

39 Then came they and prayed them, and brought them out, and desired them to depart out of the city.

40 And they went out of the prison, and entered into the house of Lydia: and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

C H A P. XVII.

¹ Paul at Thessalonica, 3 preaching Christ, 6, 7 is entertained of Jason: 10 he is sent to Berea: 15 from thence coming to Athens, 19 in Mars street, 23 he preacheth the living God to them unknown, 34 and so many are converted unto Christ.

NOW as they passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews.

2 And Paul, in his manner was, went in unto them, and three sabbath days disputed with them by the scriptures,

3 Opening, and alledging that Christ must have they deserved great punishment, he sheweth them great mercy.

¹⁷ In means which are especially extraordinary, we ought not to move our foot forward, unless that God go before us.

¹⁸ God with one self-same hand woundeth and healeth when it pleaseth him.

¹⁹ Shame and confusion is in process of time the reward of wicked and unjust magistrates.

²⁰ We must not render injury for injury, and yet notwithstanding it is lawful for us to use such help as God giveth us, to bridle the outrageousness of the wicked, that they hurt not others in like sort.

²¹ The wicked are not moved with the fear of God, but with the fear of men: and by that means also God provideth for his, when it is needful.

²² We may eschew dangers, so that we never neglect our duties.

¹ The casting out of Silas and Paul, was the saving of many others.

² Christ is therefore the Mediator, because he was crucified and rose again: much less is he to be rejected because the cross is ignominious.

A. D. 53. have suffered, and risen again from the dead: and this is Jesus Christ, whom, said he, I preach to you.

4 And some of them believed, and joined in company with Paul and Silas: also of the Grecians that feared God a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.

5 ¹ But the Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain ² vagabonds and wicked fellows, and when they had assembled the multitude, they made a tumult in the city, and made assault against the house of Jason, and sought to bring them out to the people.

6 But when they found them not, they drew Jason and certain brethren unto the heads of the city, crying, These are they which have subverted the state of the ³ world, and here they are,

7 Whom Jason hath received, and these all do against the decrees of Cæsar, saying, that there is another king, one Jesus.

8 Then they troubled the people, and the heads of the city, when they heard these things.

9 Notwithstanding, when they had received sufficient assurance of Jason and of the other, they let them go.

10 ⁴ And the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea, which when they were come thither, entered into the synagogue of the Jews.

11 ⁵ These were also more ⁶ noble men than they which were at Thessalonica, which received the word with all readiness, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so.

12 Therefore many of them believed, and of honest women, which were Grecians, and men not a few.

13 ¶ ⁷ But when the Jews of Thessalonica knew that the word of God was also preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither also, and moved the people.

14 But by and by the brethren sent away Paul to go as it were to the sea: but Silas and Timothy abode there still.

¹ Although the zeal of the unfaithful seem never so goodly, yet at length it is found to have neither truth nor equity. But yet the wicked cannot do what they list, for even among themselves God stirreth up some, whose help he useth to the deliverance of his.

² Certain companions which do nothing but walk the streets, wicked men, to be hired for every man's money do any mischief, such as we commonly call the rascals, and very sink and dunghill knaves of all towns and cities.

³ Into what country and place soever they come, they cause sedition and tumult.

⁴ When Jason had put them in good assurance that they should appear.

⁵ That is indeed the wisdom of the Spirit, which always setteth the glory of God before itself, as a mark whereunto it directeth itself, and never swerveth from it.

⁶ The Lord setteth out in one moment, and in one people, divers examples of his unsearchable wisdom, to cause them to fear him.

⁷ He compareth the Jews with the Jews.

⁸ Satan hath his, who ⁹ zealous for him, and that even such as least of all ought.

¹⁰ There is neither counsel nor fury, nor madness, against the Lord.

¹¹ The sheep of Christ do also watch for their pastors health and safety, but yet in the Lord.

¹² It is not for nought that the Jews of Berea were so commended, for they brought Paul safe from Macedonia to Athens, and there is in distance betwixt those two, all Thessalia, and Bœotia and Attica.

¹⁴ He could not forbear.

¹⁵ Slavishly given to idolatry: Pausanias writeth that there were more idols in Athens than in all Greece, yea, they had altars dedicated to Shame, and Fame, and Lust, whom they 15 ⁸ And they that did conduct Paul, ⁹ brought him unto Athens: and when they had received ¹⁰ commandment unto Silas and Timothy, that they should come to him at once, they departed.

16 ¶ ¹¹ Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was ¹² stirred in him, when he saw the city subject to ¹³ idolatry.

17 Therefore he disputed in the synagogue with the Jews, and with them that were religious, and in the market daily with ¹⁴ whomsoever he met.

18 ¹⁵ Then certain philosophers of the Epicures, and of the Stoics, disputed with him: and some said, What will this ¹⁶ babbler say? Other said, He seemeth to be a setter-forth of strange gods (because he preached unto them Jesus, and the resurrection.)

19 And they took him, and brought him into ¹⁷ Mars-street, saying, May we not know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is?

20 For thou bringest certain strange things unto our ears: we would know therefore what these things mean.

21 ¹⁸ For all the Athenians and strangers which dwelt there, gave themselves to nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some news.

22 ¹⁹ Then Paul stood in the midst of Mars-street, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too ²⁰ superstitious.

23 For as I passed by, and beheld your ²¹ devotions, I found an altar, wherein was written, UNTO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom ye then ignorantly worship, him shew I unto you.

24 ²² God that made the world, and all things that are therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, ²³ dwelleth not in temples made ²⁴ with hands:

25 ²⁵ Neither is worshipped with men's hands, ²⁶ as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life and breath, and all things,

26 ²⁷ And hath made of ²⁸ one blood all mankind, to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath made goddesses.

¹ Whomsoever Paul met with, that would suffer him to talk with him, he reasoned with him, so thoroughly did he burn with the zeal of God's glory.

² Two sects especially of the philosophers, do set themselves against Christ: the Epicures, which make a mock and scoff at all religion: and the Stoics, which determine upon matters of religion according ³ their own brains.

⁵ This was a place called ⁶ you would say, Mars' Hill, where the judges sat, which were called Areopagites, upon weighty affairs, which in old time arraigned Socrates, and after condemned him of impiety.

⁷ The wisdom of man is vanity.

⁸ The idolaters themselves minister strong and forcible arguments against their own superstition.

⁹ To stand in ¹⁰ peevish and servile ¹¹ fear of your gods.

¹² Whatsoever ¹³ worship for religion's sake, that we call devotion.

¹⁴ Pausanias, in his Atticis, maketh mention of the altar which the Athenians had dedicated to unknown gods: and Laertius in his Apimendes, maketh mention of an altar that had no name intitled.

¹⁵ It is a most foolish and vain thing, to compare the Creator with the creature, to limit him within a place which can be comprehended in no place, and to think to allure him with gifts, of whom all men have received all things whatsoever they have. And these are the fountains of dolatry.

¹⁶ God is wonderful in all his works, but especially in the work of man: not that we should stand amazed at his works, but that we should lift up our eyes to the workman.

¹⁷ Of one stock and one beginning.

A. D. 54. hath assigned the seasons which were ordained before, and the bounds of their habitation, 27 That they should seek the Lord, if so be they might have ^p groped after him, and found him, though doubtless he be not far from every one of us.

28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being, as also certain of your own poets have said: for we are also his generation.

29 ¹⁶ Forasmuch then as we are the generation of God, we ought not to think that the god-head is like unto gold, or silver, or stone ^a graven by art and the invention of man.

30 ¹⁵ And the time of this ignorance God regarded not: but now he admonisheth all men every where to repent:

31 Because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath appointed, whereof he hath given an ^r assurance to all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.

32 ¹⁶ Now when they had heard of the resurrection from the dead, some mocked, and others said, We will hear thee again of this thing.

33 And so Paul departed from among them.

34 Howbeit, certain men clave unto Paul, and believed: among whom was also Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

C H A P. XVIII.

1 As Paul at Corinth 6 taught the Gentiles, 9 the Lord comforteth him. 12 He is accused before Gallio, 16 but in vain. 18 From thence he saileth to Syria, 19 and so to Ephesus. 23 At Galatia and Phrygia he strengtheneth the disciples. 24 Apollos being more perfectly instructed by Aquila, 28 preacheth Christ with great efficacy.

AFTER ^a these things, Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth,

2 And found a certain Jew named ^{*} Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, and his wife Priscilla (because that ^a Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome) and he came unto them.

3 And because he was of the same craft, he abode with them, and wrought (for their craft was to make tents.) A. D. 54.

4 ² And he disputed in the synagogue every sabbath day, and ^b exhorted the Jews, and the Grecians.

5 Now when Silas and Timothy were come from Macedonia, Paul, ^c forced in spirit, testified to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ.

6 ³ And when they resisted and blasphemed, he ^{*} shook his raiment, and said unto them, Your ^d blood be upon your own head: I am clean: ^e from henceforth will I go unto the Gentiles. Ch. 13. 57. Matt. 10. 14.

7 So he departed thence, and entered into [■] certain man's house, named Justus, a worshipper of God, whose house joined hard to the synagogue.

10 For I am with thee, and no man shall lay bands on thee to hurt thee: for I have much people in this city.

11 So he ^c continued there a year and six months, and taught the word of God among them.

12 ¶ ⁵ Now when Gallio was deputy of ^a Achaia, the Jews arose with one accord against Paul, and brought him to the judgment-seat, 13 Saying, This fellow persuadeth men to worship God otherwise than the law appointeth.

14 And as Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews, If it were a matter of wrong, or an evil deed, O ye Jews, I would according to ^e reason maintain you.

15 But if it be a question of ^h words and ⁱ names, and of your law, look ye to it yourselves: for I will be no judge of those things.

16 And he drave them from the judgment-seat.

14. D. the judgment-seat: But Gallio cared nothing for these things.

15. But when Paul tarried there yet a good while, he took leave of the brethren, and sailed into Syria, and with him Priscilla and Aquila) after that he had shorn his head in Cenchrea: for he had a vow.

16. Then he came to Ephesus, and left them there: but he entered into the synagogue, and disputed with the Jews:

17. Who desired him to tarry a longer time with them: but he would not consent,

18. But bade them farewell, saying, I must needs keep this feast that cometh, in Jerusalem: but I will return again unto you, if God will. So he sailed from Ephesus.

19. And when he came down to Cæsarea, he went up to Jerusalem: and when he had saluted the church, he went down unto Antioch.

20. Now when he had tarried there a while, he departed, and went through the country of Galatia and Phrygia by order, strengthening all the disciples.

21. And a certain Jew, named Apollos, born at Alexandria, came to Ephesus, an eloquent man, and mighty in the scriptures.

22. The same was instructed in the way of the Lord, and he spake fervently in the Spirit, and taught diligently the things of the Lord, and knew but the baptism of John only.

23. And he began to speak boldly in the synagogue: Whom when Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly.

24. And when he was minded to go into Achaia, the brethren exhorting him, wrote to the disciples to receive him: and after he was come thither, he helped them much which had believed through grace.

25. For mightily he confuted publicly the Jews with great vehemency, shewing by the scriptures that Jesus was that Christ.

C H A P. XIX.

1. Certain disciples at Ephesus, 3 having only received John's baptism, 2 and knew not the visible gifts of the Holy Ghost wherewith God had beautified his Son's kingdom, 5 are baptized in the name of Jesus. 13 The Jewish exorcists 16 are beaten of the dead. 19 Conjuring books are burnt. 24 Demetrius 29 raiseth sedition against Paul.

AND it came to pass, while Apollos was at Corinth, that Paul, when he passed through the upper coasts, came to Ephesus, and found certain disciples,

2. And said unto them, Have ye received the

1 Paul is made all to all, to win all to Christ. 2 That is, Paul. 3 Cenchrea was an haven of the Corinthians. 4 The apostles were carried about, not by the will of men, but by the leading of the Holy Ghost. 5 So we should promise nothing without this clause, for we know not what the day following will bring forth. 6 Apollos, a godly and learned man, refuseth not to profit in the school of a base and abject handi-craftsman, and also of a woman: and so becometh an excellent minister of the church. 7 Very well instructed in the knowledge of the scriptures. 8 The way that leadeth to God. 9 Through God's gracious favour, or by those excellent gifts which God had bestowed upon him. 10 Paul being nothing offended at the rudeness of the Ephesians, planteth a church amongst them. 11 Those excellent gifts of the Holy Ghost, which were in those days in the church. 12 John did only begin to instruct the disciples whom Christ should make perfect.

15. Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be an Holy Ghost.

16. And he said unto them, Unto what were ye then baptized? And they said, Unto John's baptism.

17. Then said Paul, John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe in him which should come after him, that is, in Christ Jesus.

18. And when they heard it, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.

19. So Paul laid his hands upon them, and the Holy Ghost came on them, and they spake the tongues, and prophesied.

20. And all the men were about twelve.

21. Moreover he went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing and exhorting to the things that appertain to the kingdom of God.

22. But when certain were hardened, and disobeyed, speaking evil of the way of God before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, and disputed daily in the school of one Tyrannus.

23. And this was done by the space of two years, so that all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Grecians.

24. And God wrought no small miracles by the hands of Paul,

25. So that from his body were brought unto the sick, kerchiefs, or handkerchiefs, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.

26. Then certain of the vagabond Jews, exorcists, took in hand to name over them which had evil spirits, the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus, whom Paul preacheth.

27. (And there were certain sons of Sceva, a Jew, the priest, about seven, which did this,)

28. And the evil spirit answered, and said, Jesus I acknowledge, and Paul I know: but who are ye?

29. And the man in whom the evil spirit was, ran on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked, and wounded.

30. And this was known to all the Jews and Grecians also which dwelt at Ephesus, and fear came on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.

31. And many that believed came, and confessed, and shewed their works.

1 In what doctrine then were you taught and instructed? 2 To be baptized into John's baptism, is to profess the doctrine which John preached and sealed with his baptism. 3 For a man to separate himself and others from infidels which are utterly desparate, it is not to divide the church, but rather to unite it, and make it one. 4 By this word, Way, the Hebrews understand any kind of life, and here it is taken for christianity. 5 This was a man's proper name. 6 Satan is constrained to give witness against himself. 7 So were they called which cast out devils by conjuring them in the name of God: and in the beginning of the church, they which had the gift of working miracles, and laid their hands on them that were possessed with devils, were also so called. 8 He prevailed against them, though they throve never so much. 9 Conjuring and forcery is condemned by open testimony, and by the authority of the apostle. 10 Confessed their errors, and detested them openly, being terrified with the fear of the judgment of God: and thus is this to ear-thing.

A. D. 59.

19 Many also of them which used curious arts, brought their books, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver.

20 So the word of God grew mightily, and prevailed.

21 Now when these things were accomplished, Paul purposed by the Spirit to pass through Macedonia and Achaia, and to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I must also see Rome.

22 So sent he unto Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timothy and Erastus, but he remained in Asia for a season.

23 And the same time there arose no small trouble about that way.

24 For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, which made silver temples of Diana, brought great gains unto the craftsmen:

25 Whom he called together, with the workmen of like things, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our goods:

26 Moreover ye see and hear, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying, That they be not gods which are made with hands.

27 So that not only this thing is dangerous unto us, that this our portion shall be reprov'd, but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be nothing esteemed, and that it would come to pass, that her magnificence, which all Asia and the world worshippeth, should be destroyed.

28 Now when they heard it, they were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

29 And the whole city was full of confusion, and they rushed into the common place with one assent, and caught Gaius, and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, and Paul's companions of his journey.

30 And when Paul would have entered in unto the people, the disciples suffered him not.

31 Certain also of the chief of Asia which were his friends, sent unto him, desiring him that he would not present himself in the common place.

32 Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was out of order, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together.

33 And some of the company drew forth Alexander, the Jews thrusting him forwards. Alexander then beckoned with the hand, and ^k By the motion of God's Spirit; therefore we may not say that Paul was hand over head to death, but as the Spirit of God led him.

⁷ Gain cloked with shew of religion, is the very cause wherefore idolatry is stoutly and stubbornly defended.

¹ These were certain counterfeit temples with Diana's picture in them, which they bought that worshipped her.

[■] As if he said, If Paul go on thus as he hath begun to confute the opinion which men have of Diana's image, all this our gain will come to nought.

[■] There ought to be in all Christians, and especially in the ministers, invincible constancy, which may not by any storms or assaults be overcome, which notwithstanding must suffer itself modestly to be governed by wisdom.

[■] Instead of reason, the idolaters are sufficiently contented with their own madness and outcries, and those are the greatest defences that they have.

would have excused the matter to the people. A. D. 59.

34 But when they knew that he was a Jew, there arose a shout almost for the space of two hours, of all men, crying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

35 Then the town-clerk, when he had stayed the people, said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is it that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, and of the image which came down from Jupiter?

36 Seeing then that no man can speak against these things, ye ought to be appeased, and to do nothing rashly:

37 For ye have brought hither these men, which have neither committed sacrilege, neither do blaspheme your gods.

38 Wherefore, if Demetrius, and the craftsmen which are with him, have a matter against any man, the law is open, and there are deputies: let them accuse one another.

39 But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters, it may be determined in a lawful assembly:

40 For we are even in jeopardy to be accused of this day's sedition, forasmuch as there is no cause whereby we may give a reason of this concourse of people.

41 And when he had thus spoken, he let the assembly depart.

CHAP. XX.

1 Paul appointed to go to Macedonia. 7 In Troas preaching until midnight, 9 Eutychus fell down dead out of a window: 10 he raiseth him to life. 15 At Miletum, 17 having called the elders of Ephesus together, 23 he declareth what things shall come upon himself, 29 and others.

NOW after the tumult was appeased, Paul called the disciples unto him, and embraced them, and departed to go into Macedonia.

2 And when he had gone through those parts, and had exhorted them with many words, he came into Greece.

3 And having tarried there three months, because the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia.

4 And there accompanied him into Asia, Sopater of Berea, and of them of Thessalonica, Aristarchus, and Secundus, and Gaius of Derbe, and Timothy: and of them of Asia, Tychicus, and Trophimus.

5 These went before, and tarried us at Troas.

[■] The Ephesians believed superstitiously, that the image of Diana came down from heaven to them.

[■] Have ought to accuse any man of.

[■] For there are certain days appointed for civil causes and matters of judgment, and the deputies sit.

[■] By the deputies are meant also the deputies substitutes, that is, such did sit for them.

[■] He speaketh of a lawful assembly, not only to except against the disordered hurly-burly of the people, but also against all meeting and coming together, which was not by order: for there were certain days appointed to call the people together in.

¹ Paul departed from Ephesus by the consent of the church, not to be idle or at rest, but to take pains in another place.

² For after so great trouble there was need of a long exhortation.

[■] A froward zeal is the guider and instructor to murders: and we are not debarred by the wisdom of God to prevent the endeavours of wicked men.

6 And we sailed forth from Philippi, after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days, where we abode seven days.

7 And the first day of the week, the disciples being come together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow, and continued the preaching unto midnight.

8 And there were many lights in an upper chamber, where they were gathered together.

9 And there sat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, fallen into a dead sleep: and as Paul was long preaching, he, overcome with sleep, fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.

10 But Paul went down, and laid himself upon him, and embraced him, saying, Trouble not yourselves: for his life is in him.

11 Then when Paul was come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, having spoken a long while, till the dawning of the day, he so departed.

12 And they brought the boy alive, and they were not a little comforted.

13 Then we went before to ship, and sailed unto the city Assos, that we might receive Paul there: for so had he appointed, and would himself go afoot.

14 Now when he was come unto us to Assos, and we had received him, we came to Mitylene.

15 And we sailed thence, and came the next day overagainst Chios: and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium: the next day we came to Miletum.

16 For Paul had determined to sail by Ephesus, because he would not spend the time in Asia: for he hasted to be, if he could possibly, at Jerusalem at the day of Pentecost.

17 Wherefore from Miletum, he sent to Ephesus, and called the elders of the church.

18 Who, when they were come to him, he said unto them, Ye know from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons,

19 Serving the Lord with all modesty, and with many tears and temptations which came unto me by the layings await of the Jews:

20 And how I kept back nothing that was profitable, but have shewed you, and taught you openly, and throughout every house, 21 Witnessing both to the Jews, and to the Grecians, the repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

22 And now behold, I go bound in the Spirit unto Jerusalem, and know not what things shall come unto me there:

23 Save that the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying, that bonds and afflictions abide me.

24 But I pass not at all, neither is my life dear unto myself, so that I may fulfil my course with joy, and the ministration which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God.

25 And now behold, I know that henceforth ye all, through whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more.

26 Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men.

27 For I have kept nothing back, but have shewed you all the council of God.

28 Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, whereof the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with that his own blood.

29 For I know this, that after my departing, shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock.

30 Moreover, of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw disciples after them.

31 Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one both night and day with tears.

32 And now brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build further, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.

33 I have coveted no man's silver, nor gold, nor apparel.

34 Yea, ye know that these hands have ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me.

35 I have shewed you all things, how that so labouring, ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how that Assemblies in the night-time cannot be justly condemned, neither ought, when the cause is good.

Word for word, the first day of the sabbath, that is, upon the Lord's day: so that by this place, and by 1 Cor. 16. 2. it is not amiss gathered, that in those days the Christians were wont to assemble themselves solemnly together upon that day.

The devil minding to trouble the church with a great offence, giveth Paul a singular occasion to confirm the gospel.

Paul an earnest and diligent follower of Christ, making haste to his bonds without any ceasing or stopping in his race, doeth first of all, as it were, make his testament, whereof he giveth an account of his former life, defendeth the doctrine which he taught, and exhorteth the pastors of the church to persevere and go forward with continuance in their office.

According to the situation of these places is set forth, that distance between Ephesus and Miletum about 400 sailings, which maketh almost fifty Dutch miles.

A lively image of a true pastor.

I refrained not to speak, neither dissembled in any respect whatsoever, either for fear or lucre-sake.

He testifieth that he goeth to his bonds by the commandment of God.

The inward motion of the Holy Ghost, which increased his courage to make his journey to Jerusalem, the bond of the spirit, whom he followed with all his heart.

If you do perish, yet there shall be no fault in me. Look chap. 18. 6.

The doctrine of the apostles is most perfect and absolute.

To keep it, to feed and govern it.

A notable sentence for Christ's Godhead, which sheweth plainly in his person, how that by reason of the joining together of the two natures in his own person, that which is proper to one is spoken of the other, being both in the derivative, and not in the primitive: which in old time the godly fathers termed, a communicating of the fellowship of properties, that is to say, a making common of that to two, which belongeth but to one.

This word, That, sheweth the excellency of this blood.

A prophecy of pastors that should straightway degenerate into wolves, against such as boast and brag only of succession of persons.

This is great misery to want the presence of such a shepherd, but greater to have wolves enter in.

The power of God, and his free promises revealed in his word, are the props and upholders of the ministry of the gospel.

As children, and therefore of free love and good will.

Pastors must before all things beware of covetousness.

As it were by reaching out the hand to them, which otherwise are about to slip and fall away, and to be of no use.

A. D. 60. that he said, It is a blessed thing to give, rather than to receive.

36 And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all.

37 Then they wept all abundantly, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him, 38 Being chiefly sorry for the words which he spake, That they should see his face no more. And they accompanied him unto the ship.

C H A P. XXI.

1 Paul goeth towards Jerusalem. 8 At Cæsarea he talketh with Philip the Evangelist. 10 Agabus foretelleth him of his bonds. 17 After he came to Jerusalem, 26 and into the temple, 27 the Jews laid hands on him. 32 Lysias the captain taketh him from them.

AND as we launched forth, and were departed from them, we came with a straight course unto Coos, and the day following unto Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara.

2 And we found a ship that went over unto Phenice, and went aboard, and set forth.

3 And when we had discovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and sailed toward Syria, and arrived at Tyre: for the ship unladed the burden.

4 And when we had found disciples, we tarried there seven days. And they told Paul through the Spirit, that he should not go up to Jerusalem.

5 But when the days were ended, we departed, and went our way, and they all accompanied us with their wives and children, even out of the city: and we, kneeling down on the shore, prayed.

6 Then, when we had embraced one another, we took ship, and they returned home.

7 And when we had ended the course from Tyre, we arrived at Ptolemais, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

8 And the next day Paul and we that were with him departed, and came into Cæsarea: and we entered into the house of Philip the Evangelist, which was one of the seven deacons, and abode with him.

9 Now he had four daughters virgins, which did prophecy.

10 And as we tarried there many days, there came a certain prophet from Judea, named Agabus.

11 And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12 And when we had heard these things, both we and other of the same place besought him that he would not go up to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul answered, and said, What do ye weeping, and breaking mine heart? For I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.

14 So when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, The will of the Lord be done.

15 And after those days we trussed up our fardels, and went up to Jerusalem.

16 There went with us also certain of the disciples of Cæsarea, and brought with them one Mnason of Cyprus, an old disciple, with whom we should lodge.

17 And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly.

18 And the next day Paul went in with us unto James: and all the elders were there assembled.

19 And when he had embraced them, he told by order all things that God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministration.

20 So when they heard it, they glorified God, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousand Jews there are which believe, and they are all zealous of the law.

21 Now they are informed of thee, that thou teachest all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, and sayest, that they ought not to circumcise their sons, neither to live after the customs.

22 What is then to be done? the multitude must needs come together: for they shall hear that thou art come.

23 Do therefore this that we say to thee. We have four men, which have made a vow.

24 Them take, and purify thyself with them, and contribute with them, that they may shave their heads: and all shall know, that those things whereof they have been informed concerning thee, are nothing, but that thou thyself also walkest and keepst the law.

25 For as touching the Gentiles, which believe, we have written, and determined, that they observe no such thing, but that they keep themselves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from that that is strangled, and from fornication.

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day was purified with them, and entered into the temple, declaring the accomplishment of the days of the purification, until that an offering til such time as christian liberty was more fully revealed to the Jews) charity willett us to conform or apply ourselves willingly, so far as we may, to our brethren which do not stubbornly and maliciously resist the truth, but are not thoroughly instructed, especially if the question be of a whole multitude.

¹⁰ That it may be known, that thou wast not only present at the vow, but also a chief man in it; and therefore it is said afterwards, that Paul declared the days of purification: for although the charges for the Nazarites offerings were appointed, yet they might add somewhat unto them, Num. 6. 21.

¹¹ The priests were to be advertised of the accomplishment of the days of the purification, because there were were sacrifices to be offered the same day, that their vow was ended.

26. offering should be offered for every one of them.

27. ⁵ And when the seven days were almost ended, the Jews which were of Asia (when they saw him in the temple) moved all the people, and laid hands on him,

28. Crying, Men of Israel, help: this is the man that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place: moreover, he hath brought Grecians into the temple, and hath polluted this place.

29. For they had seen before Trophimus, an Ephesian, with him in the city, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.

30. Then all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took and drew him out of the temple, and forthwith the doors were shut.

31. ⁶ But as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band, that all Jerusalem was in an uproar:

32. Who immediately took soldiers, and centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they saw the chief captain and the soldiers, they left beating of Paul.

33. Then the chief captain came near, and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains, and demanded who he was, and what he had done.

34. And one cried this, another that, among the people. So when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be led into the castle.

35. And when he was come unto the stairs, it was so that he was borne of the soldiers, for the violence of the people.

36. For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him.

37. And as Paul should have been led into the castle, he said unto the chief captain, May I speak unto thee? Who said, Canst thou speak Greek?

38. Art not thou the Egyptian, who before these days raised a sedition, and led out into the wilderness four thousand men, that were murderers?

39. Then Paul said, Doubtless, I am a man which am a Jew, and citizen of Tarsus, famous city of Cilicia, and I beseech thee, suffer me to speak unto the people.

40. And when he had given him licence, Paul stood on the stairs, and beckoned with the hand unto the people: and when there was made great silence, he spake unto them in the Hebrew tongue, saying,

C H A P XXII.

■ Paul yieldeth a reason of his faith, 22 and the Jews bear him awhile. 23 But so soon as they cried out, 24 he is commanded to be scourged and examined, 27 and so declareth that he is a citizen of Rome.

YE men, brethren, and fathers, hear my defence now towards you.

2 (And when they heard that he spake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more silence, and he said)

3 ¹ I am verily a man, which am a Jew, born in Tarsus, in Cilicia, but brought up in this city, at the feet of Gamaliel, and instructed according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God, as ye all are this day.

4 And I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prison both men and women.

5 As also the chief priest doth bear me witness, and all the company of the elders: of whom also I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damascus, to bring them which were there, bound unto Jerusalem, that they might be punished.

6 ¶ And so it was, as I journeyed, and was come near unto Damascus about noon, that suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me.

7 So I fell unto the earth, and heard a voice, saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

8 Then I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest.

9 Moreover they that were with me, saw indeed a light, and were afraid: but they heard not the voice of him that spake unto me.

10 Then I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus: and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

11 So when I could not see for the glory of that light, I was led by the hand of them that were with me, and came into Damascus.

12 And one Ananias, a godly man, as pertaining to the law, having good report of all the Jews which dwelt there, 13 Came unto me, and stood, and said unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy sight: and that same hour I looked upon him.

14 And he said, The God of our Fathers hath appointed thee that thou shouldest know his will, and shouldest see that just one, and shouldest hear the voice of his mouth.

15 For thou shalt be his witness unto all men of the things which thou hast seen and heard.

16 Now therefore why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, in calling on the name of the Lord.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, that when I was come again to Jerusalem, and prayed in the temple, I was in a trance, 18 And saw him, saying unto me, Make haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy witness concerning me.

19 Then I said, Lord, they know that I was imprisoned and beat in every synagogue them that believed in thee.

20 And when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was shed, I also stood by, and consented unto 23 And as they ^c cried and cast off their clothes, and threw dust into the air;

24 The chief captain commanded him to be led into the castle, and bade that he should be scourged, and examined, that he might know wherefore they cried so on him.

25 ¶ And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the centurion that stood by, Is it lawful for you to scourge one that is a Roman, and not condemned?

26 Now when the centurion heard it, he went and told the chief captain, saying, Take heed what thou doest: for this man is a Roman.

27 Then the chief captain came, and said to him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? And he said, Yea.

28 And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom. Then Paul said, But I was so born.

29 Then straightway they departed from him, which should have examined him: and the chief captain also was afraid, after he knew that he was ^d a Roman, and that he had bound him.

30 On the next day, because he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him from his bonds; and commanded the high priests and all their council to come together: and he brought Paul, and set him before them.

7 And when he had said this, there was diffension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, so that the multitude was divided.

¶ For the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection: neither angel nor spirit: but the Pharisees confess both. * Matt. 22. 23.

8 Then there was great cry: and the Scribes of the Pharisees part rose up, and strove, saying, We find none evil in this man: but if a spirit or an angel hath spoken unto him, let us not fight against God.

9 And when there was great diffension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him from among them, and to bring him into the castle.

¶ Now the night following the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good courage, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.

20. And let them make ready an horse, that Paul being set on, may be brought safe unto Felix the governor.

21. And he wrote an epistle in this manner:

22. Claudius Lysias unto the most noble governor Felix, sendeth greeting.

23. As this man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them, I came upon them with the garison, and rescued him, perceiving that he was a Roman.

24. And when I would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, I brought him forth into their council.

25. For I perceived that he was accused of questions of their law, but had no crime worthy of death, or of bonds.

30. And when it was shewed me, how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent him straightway to thee, and commanded his accusers to speak before thee the things that they had against him. Farewell.

31. Then the soldiers, it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris.

32. And the next day they left the horsemen to go with him, and returned unto the castle.

33. Now when they came to Cæsarea, they delivered the epistle to the governor, and presented Paul also unto him.

34. So when the governor had read it, he asked of what province he was: and when he understood that he was of Cilicia,

35. I will hear thee, said he, when thine accusers also are come: and commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment hall.

C H A P. XXIV.

2. Tertullus accuseth Paul: 10 He answereth for himself. 25 He preacheth Christ to the governor and his wife. 27 Felix hopeth, but in vain, to receive a bribe: 28 who going from his office, leaveth Paul in prison.

NOW after five days, Ananias the high priest came down with the elders, and with Tertullus, a certain orator, which appeared before the governor against Paul.

2. And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, Seeing that we have obtained great quietness through thee, and that many worthy things are done unto this nation through thy providence,

3. We acknowledge it wholly, and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thanks.

4. But that I be not tedious unto thee: I pray thee, that thou wouldest hear us of thy courtesy a few words.

5. Certainly we have found this man a pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a chief maintainer of the sect of the Nazarites:

6. And hath gone about to pollute the temple: therefore we took him, and would have judged him according to our law:

7. But the chief captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him out of our hands,

8. Commanding his accusers to come to thee: of whom thou mayest (if thou wilt enquire) know all these things whereof we accuse him.

9. And the Jews likewise affirmed, saying, that it was so,

10. Then Paul, after that the governor had beckoned unto him that he should speak, answered,

8 Ye and the senate requiring the same to be done, lest that the tribunes should think that it was demanded of him as some private man's suit.

9 The wisdom of the Spirit must be joined with simplicity.

10 There is no counsel against the Lord and his servants.

11 Lysias is suddenly made by the Lord, Paul's patron.

12 Hypocrites, when they cannot do what they would do by force and deceit, at length they go about compass it by a shew of law.

13 Felix ruled that province with great cruelty and covetousness, and yet Josephus recordeth that he did many worthy things, as that he took Eleazar the captain of certain cut-throats, and put that deceiving wretch the Egyptian to flight, which caused great troubles in Judea.

9 He useth a word which the Stoics defined to be a perfect duty and behaviour.

10 Word for word, a plague.

11 As you would say, a ring-leader, or ensign-bearer.

12 So they called the Christians, scoffingly, of the town's name where they thought that Christ was born, whereupon it came, that Julian the apostate called him Galilean.

13 Confirmed Tertullus's saying.

14 Tertullus, by the devil's rhetoric beginning with flattery, maketh an end with lyes: but Paul using heavenly eloquence, and but a simple beginning, casteth off from himself the crime of sedition, wherewith he was burdened, with a simple denial.

swered, I do the more gladly answer for myself, forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, 11 Seeing that thou mayest know, that there are but twelve days since I came up to worship in Jerusalem.

12 And they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither making uproar among the people, neither in the synagogues, nor in the city.

13 Neither can they ^b prove the things, whereof they now accuse me.

14 ⁱ But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call ⁱ heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and the prophets.

15 And have hope towards God, that the resurrection of the dead, which they themselves look for also, shall be both of just and unjust.

16 And herein I endeavour myself to have alway a clear conscience toward God and toward men.

17 ⁺ Now after many years, I came and brought alms to my nation, and offerings.

18 At ^k what time, certain Jews of ⁱ Asia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult.

19 Who ought to have been present before thee, and accuse me, if they had aught against me.

20 Or let these themselves say, if they have found any unjust thing in me, while I stood in the ^m council :

21 Except it be for this one voice that I cried standing among them, Of the resurrection of the dead am I accused of you this day.

22 ^s Now when Felix heard these things, he deferred them, and said, When I shall more ^r perfectly know the things which concern this way, by the coming of Lysias the chief captain, I will decide your matter.

23 ^o Then he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and that he should have ease, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister unto him, or to come unto him.

24 ¶ And after certain days came Felix with his wife ⁿ Drusilla, which was a Jewess, and he called forth Paul, and heard him of the faith in Christ.

25 And as he disputed of righteousness and temperance, and of the judgment to come, Felix trembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time, and when I have convenient time, I will call for thee.

26 He hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him.

27 ⁷ When two years were expired, Portius Festus came into Felix's room: and Felix, willing to ^p get favour of the Jews, left Paul bound.

C H A P. XXV.

ⁱ Festus succeeding Felix, ⁶ commandeth Paul to be brought forth. ¹¹ Paul appealeth unto Cæsar. ¹⁴ Festus openeth Paul's matter to king Agrippa, ²³ and bringeth him before him, ²⁷ that he may understand his cause.

WHEN ⁱ Festus was then come into the province, after three days he went up from Cæsarea unto Jerusalem.

2 Then the high priest, and the chief of the Jews appeared before him against Paul, and they besought him,

3 And desired favour against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem: and they laid wait to kill him by the way.

4 But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Cæsarea, and that he himself would shortly depart thither.

5 Let them therefore, said he, which among you are able, come down with us: and if there be any wickedness in the man, let them accuse him.

6 ¶ ^q Now when he had tarried among them no more than ten days, he went down to Cæsarea, and the next day sat in the judgment seat: and commanded Paul to be brought.

7 And when he was brought, the Jews which were come from Jerusalem stood about him, and laid many and grievous complaints against Paul, whereof ^r they could make no plain proof, ■ Forasmuch as he answered, that he had neither offended any thing against the law of the Jews, neither against the temple, nor against Cæsar.

9 Yet

^s Paul pleaded his cause two years before Felix departed out of the province, Chap. 27. but he had governed Trachonite, and Batavia, and Galaunite, before that Claudius made him governor of Judea. Josephus in the history of the Jews war, lib. 2. chap. 11.

^b They cannot lay forth before thee, and prove by good reasons.

^r Paul goeth [■] the case of religion, from a state [■] of conjecture to a state of quality, not only not denying that religion which was objected against him, but also proving [■] it to be true, to be heavenly, and from God, and to be the oldest of all religions.

ⁱ Here the word Heresy, [■] Sect, is taken in good part.

⁺ Paul in conclusion telleth the thing which [■] done truly, which Tertullus had before divers ways corrupted.

^k And while I was busy about those things.

^o Hereby it appeareth that these of Asia were Paul's enemies, and those that stirred up the people against him.

ⁿ Whither the tribune brought me.

^p The judge suspendeth his sentence, because the matter is doubtful.

^q Felix could [■] judge whether he had done wickedly in the matters of his religion or no, until he had better understanding of that way which Paul professed, and [■] for other matters, touching the sedition, he thinketh good to defer it till he hear Lysias, and therefore he gave Paul somewhat more liberty.

⁶ God is [■] most faithful keeper of his servants, and the force of the truth is wonderful, even amongst [■] which are otherwise prophane.

^o This Drusilla was Agrippa's sister, of whom Luke speaketh afterward, a very harlot and licentious woman, and being the wife of Azizus king of the Emesens, who was circumcised, departed from him, and went to this Felix the brother of one Pallas, who was some time Nero's bondman.

⁷ In a naughty mind, that is, guilty to itself, although sometimes there be some shew of equity, yet by and by it will be extinguished, but in the [■] season we have need of patience, and that continually.

■ For whereas he had behaved himself very wickedly in the province, had it not been for favour of his brother Pallas, he should have died for it: so that we may gather hereby, why he would have pleased the Jews.

^r Satan's ministers are subtil, and diligent in seeking all occasions: but God, which watcheth for his, hindereth all their counsels easily.

⁺ We may repel an injury justly, but not with injury.

^q They could not prove them certainly, and with undoubted reasons.

62.

9 Yet Feſtus, willing to get favour of the Jews, answered Paul, and ſaid, Wilt thou go up to Jeruſalem, and there be judged of theſe things before me?

10 Then ſaid Paul, I ſtand at Cæſar's judgment ſeat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews I have done no wrong, as thou very well knoweſt.

11 For if I have done wrong, or committed any thing worthy of death, I reſuſe not to die: but if there be none of theſe things whereof they accuſe me, no man, to pleaſure them, can deliver me to them: I appeal unto Cæſar.

12 Then when Feſtus had ſpoken with the council, he answered, Haſt thou appealed unto Cæſar? unto Cæſar ſhalt thou go.

13 ¶ And after certain days, king Agrippa and Bernice came down to Cæſarea to ſalute Feſtus.

14 And when they had remained there many days, Feſtus declared Paul's cauſe unto the king, ſaying, There is a certain man left in priſon by Felix:

15 Of whom when I came to Jeruſalem, the high prieſts and elders of the Jews informed me, and deſired to have judgment againſt him.

16 To whom I answered, that it is not the manner of the Romans, for favour to deliver any man to the death, before that he which is accuſed, have the accuſers before him, and have place to defend himſelf, concerning the crime.

17 Therefore when they were come hither, without delay the day following I ſat on the judgment ſeat, and commanded the man to be brought forth:

18 Againſt whom, when the accuſers ſtood up, they brought no crime of ſuch things as I ſuppoſed:

19 But had certain queſtions againſt him of their own ſuperſtition, and of one Jeſus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.

20 And becauſe I doubted of ſuch manner of queſtion, I aſked him whether he would go to Jeruſalem, and there be judged of theſe things.

21 But becauſe he appealed to be reſerved to the examination of Auguſtus, I commanded him to be kept, till I might ſend him to Cæſar.

22 ¶ Then Agrippa ſaid unto Feſtus, I would alſo hear the man myſelf. To-morrow, ſaid he, thou ſhalt hear him.

23 And on the morrow when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, with great pomp, and were entered into the common hall with the chief captains and chief men of the city, at Feſtus's commandment Paul was brought forth.

24 And Feſtus ſaid, King Agrippa, and all men which are preſent with us, ye ſee this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have called upon me, both at Jeruſalem, and here, crying, that he ought not to live any longer.

25 Yet have I found nothing worthy of death, that he hath committed: nevertheleſs, ſeeing that he hath appealed to Auguſtus, I have determined to ſend him.

26 Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my lord: wherefore I have brought him forth unto you, and ſpecially unto thee, king Agrippa, that after examination had, I might have ſomewhat to write.

27 For me ſeemeth it unreaſonable to ſend a priſoner, and not to ſhew the cauſes which are laid againſt him.

C H A P. XXVI.

2 Paul, in the preſence of Agrippa, 4 declareth his life from his childhood, 16 and his calling, 22 with ſuch efficacy of words, 28 that almoſt he perſuadeth him to Chriſtianity: 30 but he and his company depart, doing nothing in Paul's matter.

THEN Agrippa ſaid unto Paul, Thou art permitted to ſpeak for thyſelf. So Paul ſtretched forth the hand, and answered for himſelf.

2 I think myſelf happy, king Agrippa, becauſe I ſhall answer this day before thee of all the things whereof I am accuſed of the Jews:

3 Chiefly, becauſe thou haſt knowledge of all cuſtoms and queſtions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beſeech thee to hear me patiently.

4 As touching my life from my childhood, and what it was from the beginning among mine own nation at Jeruſalem, know all the Jews,

5 Which knew me heretofore, even from my elders (if they would teſtify) that after the moſt ſtrait ſect of our religion, I lived a Pharifee.

6 And now I ſtand and am accuſed for the hope of the promiſe made of God unto our fathers.

7 Whereunto our twelve tribes, inſtantly ſerving God day and night, hope to come: for the which hope's ſake, O king Agrippa, I am accuſed of the Jews.

¶ Why ſhould it be thought a thing incredible unto you, that God ſhould raiſe again the dead?

¹ God doth not only turn away the counſel of the wicked, but alſo turneth it upon their own heads.

² Feſtus thinking no ſuch thing, even before kings, bringing to light the wickedneſs of the Jews, and Paul's innocency, doth marvellouſly confirm the church of God.

³ This Agrippa was Agrippa's ſon, whoſe death Luke ſpoke of before, and Bernice was his ſiſter.

⁴ The Romans uſe not to deliver any man to be puniſhed before, &c.

⁵ The profane and wicked take an occaſion to condemn the true doctrine, by reaſon of private controverſies and contentions of men betwixt themſelves: but the truth nevertheleſs abideth, in the mean ſeaſon, ſafe and ſure.

⁶ This profane man calleth the Jewiſh religion, ſuperſtition, and that before king Agrippa, but no marvel: for the rulers of provinces by reaſon of the majeſty of the empire of Rome, uſed to prefer themſelves before kings.

⁷ That is fulfilled in Paul, which the Lord before had told to Ananias of him, chap. 9. 15.

⁸ Gorgeouſly like a prince.

⁹ To Auguſtus. Good princes reſuſed this name at the firſt, to wit, to be called lords, but afterward they admitted it, as read of Tratanus.

¹⁰ To have a ſkilful judge, is a great and ſingular gift of God.

¹¹ Paul divideth the hiſtory of his life into two times: for the firſt he calleth his adverſaries witneſſes: for the latter, the fathers and prophets.

¹² What I was, and where, and how I lived.

¹³ That my parents were Pharifees.

¹⁴ The ſect of the Pharifees was the moſt exquisite among all the ſects of the Jews, for it was better than all the reſt.

¹⁵ There are three chief and principal witneſſes of true doctrine, God, the true fathers, and the conſent of the church.

¹⁶ He proveth the reſurrection of the dead, firſt by the power of God, then by the reſurrection of Chriſt, whereof he is a ſufficient witneſs.

62.

94

A. D. 62. 9 I also verily thought in myself, that I ought to do many contrary things against the name of Jesus of Nazareth.

10 * Which thing I also did in Jerusalem: for many of the saints I shut up in prison, having received authority of the high priests, and when they were put to death, I gave my ^d sentence.

11 And I punished them throughout all the synagogues, and ^e compelled them to blaspheme, and being more mad against them, I persecuted them, even unto strange cities.

12 At which time, even as I went to ^{*} Damascus with authority and commission from the high priests, 13 At mid-day, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, passing the brightness of the sun, shine round about me, and them which went with me.

14 So when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against pricks.

15 Then I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest.

16 But rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to appoint thee a minister and a witness, both of the things which thou hast seen, and of the things in the which I will appear unto thee,

17 Delivering thee from this people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee:

18 ^s To open their eyes, that they may turn from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God: that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith in me.

19 Wherefore, king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision, 20 * But shewed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the courts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent, and turn to God, and do works worthy amendment of life.

21 For this cause the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.

22 Nevertheless, I obtained the help of God, and continue unto this day, witnessing both to ^f small and to great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come,

23 To wit, that Christ should ^g suffer, and that he should be the ^h first that should rise from the dead, and should shew ⁱ light unto this people, and to the Gentiles.

24 ^s And as he thus answered for himself, Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art besides thyself: much learning doth make thee mad.

A. D. 62.

25 But he said, I am not mad, O noble Festus, but I speak the words of truth and soberness.

26 For the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak boldly: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him, for this thing was not done in a ^k corner.

27 ^o O king Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest.

28 Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to become a christian.

29 Then Paul said, ^l I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me to-day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.

30 ^o And when he had thus spoken, the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that sat with them.

31 And when they were gone apart, they talked between themselves, saying, This man doth nothing worthy of death, nor of bonds.

32 Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been loosed, if he had not appealed unto Cæsar.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 Paul 7, 9 foretelleth the peril of the voyage, 11 but he is not bel. 14 They are tossed to and fro with the tem. st, 21, 41 and suffer shipwreck: 34 yet all safe and sound 44 escape to land.

NOW when it was concluded, that we should sail into Italy, they delivered both Paul, and certain other prisoners, unto a centurion, named Julius, of the band of Augustus.

2 And we ^{*} entered into a ship of Adramyttium, purposing to sail by the coast of Asia, and launched forth, and had Aristarchus of Macedonia, a Thessalonian, with us.

3 And the next day we arrived at Sidon: and Julius courteously intreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends, that they might refresh him.

4 And from thence we launched, and sailed hard by Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.

5 Then sailed we over the sea, by Cilicia, and Pamphylia, and came to Myra, a city in Lycia.

6 And there the centurion found a ship of Alexandria, sailing into Italy, and put us therein.

R r 7 And

^d I consented to, and allowed of their doing: for he was not a judge.

^e By extreme punishment.

^f The end of the gospel is to save them which are brought to the knowledge of Christ, and are justified and sanctified in him, being laid hold on by faith.

^g Paul alledgeth God to be author of the office of his apostleship, and his grace as a witness.

^h Christ is the end of the law and the prophets.

ⁱ To every one.

^j That Christ should not be such a king as the Jews dreamed of, but one appointed to bear our miseries, and the punishment of our sins.

^k The first of them which are raised from the dead.

^l Life, yea and that a most blessed life, which shall be endless: and this is set against darkness, which almost in all languages signifieth sometimes death, and sometimes misery and calamity.

^m The wisdom of God is madness to fools; yet notwithstanding we must boldly vouch the truth.

ⁿ Secretly and privily.

^o Paul as it were forgetting himself that he stood a prisoner to defend his cause, forgetteth not the office of his apostleship.

^p I would to God that not only almost, but thoroughly and altogether, both thou and all that hear me this day, might be made as I am, my bonds only except.

^q Paul is solemnly quit, and yet not dismissed.

^r Paul with many other prisoners, and through the midst of many deaths, is brought to Rome, but yet by God's own hand as it were, and set forth and commended unto the world with many singular testimonies.

7 And when we had sailed slowly many days, and scarce were come against Cnidus, because the wind suffered us not, we sailed hard by Candie, near to ^a Salmone,

8 And with much ado sailed beyond it, and came unto a certain place called the Fair Havens, near unto the which was the city Lasea.

9 So when much time was spent, and sailing was now jeopardous, because also the ^b fast was now passed, Paul exhorted them,

10 And said unto them, Sirs, I see that this voyage will be with hurt and much damage, not of the lading and ship only, but also of our lives.

11 Nevertheless the centurion believed rather the governor and the master of the ship, than those things which were spoken of Paul.

12 And because the haven was not commodious to winter in, many took counsel to depart thence, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, there to winter, which is an haven of Candie, and lieth toward the southwest and by west, and northwest and by west.

13 And when the southern wind blew softly, they supposing to attain their purpose, loosed anchor, and sailed by Candie.

14 But anon after, there arose by ^c it a stormy wind called ^d Euroclydon.

15 And when the ship was caught, and could not resist the wind, we let her go, and were carried away.

16 And we ran under a little isle called Clauda, and had much ado to get the boat :

17 Which they took up, and used all help, undergirding the ship, fearing lest they should have fallen into fyrtes, and they struck sail, and so were carried.

18 The next day, when we were tossed with an exceeding tempest, they lightened the ship.

19 And the third day we cast out with our own hands the tackling of the ship.

20 And when neither sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay upon us, all hope that we should be saved, was then taken away.

21 But after long abstinence, Paul stood forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened to me, and not have looted from Candie: so should ye not have gained this hurt and loss.

22 But now I exhort you to be of good courage: for there shall be no loss of any man's life among you, save of the ship only.

23 For there stood by me this night the angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serve, 24 Saying, Fear not, Paul: for thou must be brought before Cæsar: and lo, God hath given unto thee freely all that sail with thee.

25 Wherefore, sirs, be of good courage: for I believe God, that it shall be so as it hath been told me.

26 Howbeit, we must be cast into a certain island.

27 And when the fourteenth night was come, as we were carried to and fro in the Adriatic sea, about midnight, the ship-men deemed that some country^e approached unto them, 28 And founded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they founded again, and found fifteen fathoms.

29 Then fearing lest they should have fallen into some rough places, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished that the day were gone.

30 Now as the mariners were about to flee out of the ship, and had let down the boat into the sea, under a colour as though they would have cast anchors out of the foreship, 31 Paul said unto the centurion, and the soldiers, Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be safe.

32 Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let it fall away.

33 And when it began to be day, Paul exhorted them all to take meat, saying, This is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued fasting, receiving nothing:

34 Wherefore I exhort you to take meat: for this is for your safeguard: for there shall not an hair fall from the head of any of you.

35 And when he had thus spoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in presence of them all, and brake it, and began to eat.

36 Then were they all of good courage, and they also took meat.

37 Now we were in the ship in all two hundred threescore and sixteen souls.

38 And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship, and cast out the wheat into the sea.

39 And when it was day, they knew not the country, but they spied a certain creek with a bank, into the which they were minded (if it were possible) to thrust in the ship.

40 So

^a Which was an high hill of Candie.

^b God's providence taketh not away the causes which God used as means, but rather ordereth and disposeth their right use, even then when he openeth an extraordinary issue.

^c This is meant of the Jews fast, which they kept in the feast of expiation, as we read, Lev. 23. 27. which fell in the seventh month, which we call October, and is not good for navigation or sailing.

^d Men cast themselves willingly into an infinite sort of dangers, when they chuse to follow their own wisdom, rather than God, speaking by the mouth of his servants.

^e By Candie, from whence our ship was driven by that means.

^f North-east wind.

^g The old proverb that none provide worse for themselves, than they which commit themselves to be governed only by their own wisdom.

^h God spareth the wicked for a time, for his elect and chosen's sake.

ⁱ The promise is made effectual through faith.

^j We attain and come to the promised and sure salvation through the midst of tempests, and death itself.

^k For Ptolomy writeth, that the Adriatic sea branch upon the east-shore of Cicilia.

^l That they drew near to some country.

^m There is none so foul an act, whereunto distrust and an evil conscience do not enforce men.

ⁿ Although the performing of God's promises doth not simply depend upon second causes, yet they make themselves unworthy of God's bountifullness, which do not embrace those means which God offereth them, either upon rashness or distrust.

^o When the world trembleth, the faithful alone be not only quiet, but confirm others by their example.

^p This is a proverb which the Hebrews use, whereby it is meant, that they shall be safe, and not one of them perish.

^q Then are tempests most of all to be feared and looked for, when the port or haven is nearest.

^r A creek is a sea within land, as the Adriatic sea toward the Persian sea.

PAUL SHAKES OFF THE VIPER FROM HIS HAND.

A. D.
63.

40 So when they had taken up the anchors, they committed the ship unto the sea, and loosed the rudder bands, and hoisted up the main sail to the wind, and drew to the shore.

41 And when they fell into a place where two seas met, they thrust in the ship: and the forepart stuck fast, and could not be moved, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves.

42 ¹² Then the soldiers counsel was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them, when he had swum out, should flee away.

43 ¹¹ But the centurion, willing to save Paul, stayed them from this counsel, and commanded that they that could swim, should cast themselves first into the sea, and go out to land.

44 ¹⁴ And the others, some on boards, and some on certain pieces of the ship: and so it came to pass, that they came all safe to land.

C H A P. XXVIII.

2 The Barbarians courtesy towards Paul and his company. 3 A viper on Paul's hand: 6 he shaketh it off without harm. 8 Publius 9 and others are by him healed. 11 They depart from Melita, 16 and come to Rome. 17 Paul openeth to the Jews 20 the cause of his coming: 22 He preacheth Jesus 30 two years.

AND when they were come safe, then they knew that the isle was called ^a Melita.

2 And the barbarians shewed us no little kindness: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one, because of the present shower, and because of the cold.

3 ¹ And when Paul had gathered a number of sticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and leapt on his hand.

4 ² Now when the barbarians saw the worm hang on his hand, they said among themselves, This man surely is a murderer, whom, though he hath escaped the sea, yet ^b vengeance hath not suffered to live.

5 But he shook off the worm into the fire, and felt no harm.

6 Howbeit they waited when he should have ^c swoln, or fallen down suddenly: ^d but after they had looked a great while, and saw no inconvenience come to him, they changed their minds, and said, That he was a God.

7 ⁺ In the same quarters, the chief man of the isle (whose name was Publius) had possessions: the same received us, and lodged us three days courteously.

¹ So is Isthmus called, because the sea toucheth it ■ both sides.

¹² There is ■ where more unfaithfulness and unthankfulness than in unbelievers.

¹³ God findeth, even amongst his enemies, them whose help he useth to preserve his.

¹⁴ The goodness of God overcometh man's malice.

^a That is it, which at this day we call Malta.

^b The godly are sure to have danger upon danger, but they have always a glorious issue.

^c Although adversity be the punishment of sin, yet seeing that God in punishing of men doth not always respect sin, they judge rashly, which either do not wait for the end, or do judge and esteem of men, according to prosperity or adversity.

^e The Greek word signifieth, to be inflamed, or to swell; moreover, Dioscorides in his sixth book, ch. 38. witnesseth that the biting of ■ viper causeth a swelling of the body, and so saith Nicander, in his remedies against poisons.

⁺ There is nothing more unconstant every way, than they which are ignorant of true religion.

⁺ It never yet repented any man, that received the servant

■ And so it was, that the father of Publius lay sick of the fever, and of a bloody flux: to whom Paul entered in, and when he prayed, he laid his hands on him, and healed him.

9 ⁵ When this then was done, others also in the isle, which had diseases, came to him, and were healed,

10 [■] Which also did us great honour: and when we departed, they laded us with things necessary.

11 [¶] ⁷ Now after three months we departed in a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the isle, whose ^d badge was Castor and Pollux.

12 And when we arrived at Syracuse, we carried there three days.

13 And from thence we fetched a compass, and came to Rhegium, and after one day the south wind blew, and we came the second day to Puteoli:

14 ⁸ Where we found brethren, and were desired to tarry with them seven days, and so we went toward Rome.

15 [¶] ⁹ And from thence, when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us at the ^e market of Appius, and at the Three Taverns, whom, when Paul saw, he thanked God, and waxed bold.

16 So when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the prisoners to the general captain: but Paul was suffered to dwell by ^f himself with a soldier that kept him.

17 ¹⁰ And the third day after, Paul called the chief of the Jews together: and when they were come, he said unto them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing against the people, or laws of the fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans:

18 Who, when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there was no cause of death in me.

19 ¹¹ But when the Jews spake contrary, I was constrained to appeal unto Cæsar, not because I had aught to accuse my nation of.

20 For this cause therefore have I called for you, to see you, and to speak with you: for that hope of Israel's sake, I am bound with this chain.

21 Then they said unto him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither came any of the brethren that shewed or spake any evil of thee.

22 But

of God, were he never so miserable and poor.

⁵ Although Paul were ■ captive, yet the virtue of God was not captive.

⁶ God doth well to strangers for his children's sake.

⁷ Idols do not defile the saints, which do in no wise consent unto them.

[■] So they used to deck the fore part of their ships, whereupon their ships were called by such names.

[■] God boweth and bendeth the hearts even of prophane men, as it pleaseth him to favour his.

⁹ God never suffereth his to be afflicted above their strength.

^e Appius's way was a pavement made by Appius the blind, with the help of his soldiers, long and broad, and runneth out toward the sea, and there were three taverns in it.

^f Not in a common prison, but in a house which he hired for himself.

¹⁰ Paul in every place remembereth himself to be an apostle.

¹¹ We may use the means which God giveth us, but so that we seek the glory of God, and not ourselves.

A. D. 63. 22 But we will hear of thee what thou thinkest: for as concerning this sect, we know that every where it is spoken against.

23 ¹² And when they had appointed him a day, there came many unto him into his lodging, to whom he expounded, ² testifying the kingdom of God, and persuading them those things that concern Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning to night.

24 ¹¹ And some were persuaded with the things which were spoken, and some believed not.

25 Therefore when they agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word, to wit, Well spake the Holy Ghost by Esaias the prophet unto our fathers,

26 ¹⁰ Saying, ⁸ Go unto this people, and say,
By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand: and seeing, ye shall see, and not perceive:

¹² The law and the gospel agree well together.

² By good reasons; and proved, that the kingdom of God, foretold them by the prophets, was come.

¹¹ The gospel is a favour of life to them that believe, and a favour of death to them that be disobedient.

¹⁰ The unbelievers do willingly resist the truth, and yet not by chance.

⁸ They made as though they saw not: that which they

27 For the heart of this people is waxed fat, and their ears are dull of hearing, and with their eyes have they ¹¹ winked, lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts, and should return that I might heal them.

28 ¹⁵ Be it known therefore unto you, that this salvation of God is sent to the Gentiles, and they shall hear it.

29 ¹⁶ And when he had said these things, the Jews departed, and had great reasoning among themselves.

30 ¹⁷ And Paul remained two years full in an house hired for himself, and received all that came in unto him,

teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all boldness of speech, with-saw against their wills: yea they did see, but they would not see.

¹⁵ The unbelief of the reprobate and cast-aways, cannot cause the truth of God to be of none effect.

¹⁶ Not the gospel, but the contempt of the gospel, is the cause of strife and debate.

¹⁷ The word of God cannot be bound.

The Epistle of the Apostle PAUL to the ROMANS.

CHAP. I.

A. D. 60.

1 He first sheweth on what authority his apostleship standeth. 15 Then he commendeth the gospel, 16 by which God setteth out his power to those that are saved, 17 by faith, 21 but were guilty of wicked unthankfulness to God: 26 for which his wrath was worthily poured on them, 29 so that they ran headlong to all kind of sins.

PAUL ¹ a ² servant of JESUS CHRIST, called to be an ³ apostle, ⁴ put apart to preach the gospel of God,

2 Which he had promised afore by his prophets in the holy scriptures)

3 Concerning his ⁵ Son Jesus Christ our

ble promise, unto ver. 16.

² He moving the Romans to give diligent ear unto him, in that he sheweth that he cometh not in his own name, but as God's messenger unto the Gentiles, entreateth with them of the weighty matter that is promised long since of God, by many his witnesses, and now at the length performed indeed.

³ Minister, for this word Servant is not taken in this place as for against this word Freeman, but declareth his ministry and office.

⁴ Whereas he said before in a general term, that he was a minister, now he cometh to a more special name, and saith he is an apostle, and that he took not upon him this office of his own head, but being called of God, and therefore in this his writing to the Romans, doth nothing but his duty.

⁵ Appointed of God to preach the gospel.

⁶ By declaring the sum of the doctrine of the gospel, he firreth up the Romans in good consideration of the matter whereof he entreateth: So then he sheweth that Christ (who is the very substance and sum of the gospel) is the only Son of God the Father, who as touching his humanity, is made Lord (which was ⁷ made of the seed of David ⁸ according to the flesh,

4 And ⁹ declared ¹⁰ mightily to be the Son of God, touching the Spirit of sanctification by the resurrection from the dead)

5 ¹ By whom we have received ² grace and apostleship (that ³ obedience might be given unto the faith) for his name ⁴ among all the Gentiles,

6 Among whom ye be also the ⁷ called of Jesus Christ:

7 To all you that be at Rome beloved of God, called to be saints: ⁸ Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 First of the seed of David, but touching his divine and spiritual nature, whereby he sanctified himself, is begotten of the Father from everlasting, as by his mighty resurrection manifestly appeareth.

⁴ This is a plain testimony of the person of Christ, that he is but one, and of his two natures, and their properties.

² Which took flesh of the virgin, David's daughter.

³ As he is man: for this word, Flesh, by the figure Synec-doche, is taken for man.

⁷ Shewed and made manifest.

⁸ The divine and mighty power is set against the weakness of the flesh, for that overcame death.

² This marvellous, liberal and gracious gift, which is given me, the least of all the saints, to preach, &c. Eph.
3. 8.

¹ That men through faith might obey God.

³ For his name's sake.

⁴ Which through God's goodness are Christ's.

⁸ God's free good will. By peace, the Hebrews mean a prosperous success in all things.

^{A. D.} ^{60.} 8 + First I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, because your faith is ^p published throughout the ^q whole world.

9 For God is my witness (whom I serve in my ^r spirit in the ^s gospel of his Son) that without ceasing I make mention of you

10 Always in my prayers, beseeching that by some means, one time or other, I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God, to come unto you.

11 For I long to see you, that I might bestow among you some spiritual gift, that you might be strengthened:

12 That is, that ^t I might be comforted together with you, through our mutual faith, both yours and mine.

13 Now my brethren, I would that ye should not be ignorant, how that I have oftentimes purposed to come unto you (but have been let hitherto) that I might have some fruit also among you, as I have among the other Gentiles.

14 I am debtor both to the Grecians, and to the Barbarians, both to the wise men and to the unwise.

15 Therefore, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you also that are at ^u Rome.

16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: ^v for it is the ^w power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the ^x Grecian.

^{113.2.4.} 17 ^y For by it the righteousness of God is revealed from ^z faith to faith: ^{aa} as it is written, * The just shall live by faith.

18 ^{ab} For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against ^{ac} all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, which withhold the ^{ad} truth in unrighteousness.

19 ^{ae} Forasmuch as that, which may be known of God, is manifest in ^{af} them: for God hath shewed it unto them.

20 For the invisible things of him, that is, his eternal power and Godhead, are seen by the creation of the world, being ^{ag} considered in his works, to the intent that they should be without excuse:

21 Because that when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became ^{ah} vain in their thoughts, and their foolish heart was full of darkness.

22 When they ^{ai} professed themselves to be wise, they became fools.

23 For they turned the glory of the ^{aj} incorruptible God to the similitude of the image of a corruptible man, and of birds, and four-footed beasts, and of creeping things.

24 ^{ak} Wherefore ^{al} also God ^{am} gave them up to their hearts lusts, unto uncleanness, to defile their own bodies between themselves:

25 Which turned the truth of God unto a lye, and worshipped and served the creature, forsaking the Creator, which is blessed for ever, Amen.

26 For this cause God gave them up to vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature.

27 And likewise also the men left the natural use of the woman, and burned in their lust one toward another, and man with man wrought filthiness, and received in themselves such ^{an} recompence of their error, as was meet.

28 ^{ao} For as they regarded not to acknowledge God, even so God delivered them up unto a ^{ap} reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient:

29 Being full of all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness, full of envy, of murder, of debate, of deceit, taking all things in the evil part, whisperers,

30 Backbiters, haters of God, doers of wrong, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents, without understanding, ^{aq} covenant-

^q He procureth their favourable patience, in that he reckoneth up their true commendation, and his true apostolic good will toward them, confirmed by taking God himself to witness.

^p Because your faith is such, that it is commended in all churches.

^q In all churches.

^r Very willingly, and with all my heart.

^s In preaching his Son.

^t Though Paul were never so excellent, yet by teaching the church, he might be instructed by it.

^u He meaneth all them that dwell ^u Rome, though some of them were ^u Romans. Look the end of the epistle.

^v The second part of the epistle unto the beginning of the ninth chapter. Now the whole end and purpose of the disputation is this: that is ^v say, ^v shew that there is but one way to attain unto salvation (which is set forth unto us of God in the gospel, without any difference of nations) and that is Jesus Christ apprehended by faith.

^w God's mighty and effectual instrument to save men ^wly.

^x When this word Grecian is set against this word Jew, then doth it signify ^x Gentile.

^y The confirmation of the former proposition. We are taught in the gospel, that ^y ^y justified before God by faith, which increaseth daily; and therefore also saved.

^z From faith which increaseth daily.

^{aa} The proof ^{aa} well of the first ^{aa} of the second proposition, out of Habakkuk, who attributeth and giveth unto faith, both justice and life before God.

^{ab} Another confirmation of that principal question. All men being considered within themselves, or without Christ, are guilty both of ungodliness and also unrighteousness, and therefore are subject to condemnation. Therefore must they needs seek righteousness in some other.

^{ac} Against all kinds of ungodliness.

^{ag} By truth, Paul meaneth all the light that is left in man since his fall, not as though they being led thereby ^{ag} able to come into favour with God, but that their own reason might condemn them of wickedness both against God and man.

^{ah} Their ungodliness he proveth hereby, that although all men have ^{ah} most clear and evident glass wherein to behold the everlasting and almighty nature of God, even in his creatures, yet have they fallen away from those principles, to most foolish and fond devices of their own brains, in constituting and appointing the service of God.

^{ai} In their hearts.

^{aj} Thou seest not God, and yet thou acknowledgest him as God by his works, Cic.

^{ak} They did ^{ak} honour him with that honour and service which was meet for his everlasting power and Godhead.

^{al} As if he said, became so mad of themselves.

^{am} Or, thought themselves.

^{an} For the true God they took another.

^{ao} The unrighteousness of men he setteth forth, first in this, that ^{ao} against nature following their lusts, they defiled themselves ^{ao} with another, by the just judgment of God.

^{ap} The contempt of religion is the fountain of all mischief.

^{aq} As a just judge.

^{ar} A meet reward for their deserts.

^{as} He proveth the unrighteousness of man by a large rehearsal of many kinds of wickedness, from which (if not from all, yet ^{as} the least from many of them) no man is altogether free.

^{at} Into ^{at} mad and froward mind, whereby it cometh to pass, that the conscience being once put out, and having almost ^{at} more remorse of sin, men run headlong into all kind of mischief.

^{au} Unmindful of their covenants and bargains.

A. D. 60. venant-breakers, without natural affection, such as can never be appeased, mercileis.

31 Which men, though they knew the law of God, how that they which commit such things are worthy of death, yet not only do the same, but also favour them that do them.

C H A P. II.

1 He bringeth all before the judgment-seat of God. 12 The excuse that the Gentiles might pretend, 14 of ignorance, he taketh quite away. 17 He argueth the Jews with the written law, 23 in which they boasted: 27 and so maketh both Jew and Gentile alike.

Therefore thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that condemnest: for in that that thou condemnest another, thou condemnest thyself: for thou that condemnest, doest the same things.

2 But we know that the judgment of God is according to truth, against them which commit such things.

3 And thinkest thou this, O thou man, that condemnest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?

4 Or despisest thou the riches of his bountifulness, and patience, and long sufferance, not knowing that the bountifulness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

5 But thou, after thine hardness, and heart that cannot repent, heapest up as a treasure unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath, and of the declaration of the just judgment of God.

6 Who will reward every man according to his works:

7 That is, to them, which through patience in well doing, seek glory, and honour, and immortality, everlasting life:

8 But unto them that are contentious and disobey the truth, and obey unrighteousness, shall be indignation and wrath.

9 Tribulation and anguish shall be upon the soul of every man that doeth evil: of the Jew first, and also of the Grecian.

10 But to every man that doeth good, shall be glory, and honour, and peace: to the Jew first, and also to the Grecian.

11 For there is no respect of persons with God.

12 For as many as have sinned without the law, shall perish also without the law: and as many as have sinned in the law, shall be judged by the law,

13 (For the hearers of the law are not righteous before God: but the doers of the law shall be justified.

14 For when the Gentiles which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, they having not the law, are a law unto themselves:

15 Which shew the effect of the law written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts accusing one another, or excusing.)

16 At that day, when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to my gospel.

17 Behold thou art called a Jew, and restest in the law, and gloriest in God,

18 And knowest his will, and triest the things that dissent from it, in that thou art instructed by the law,

19 And persuadest thyself that thou art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness, 20 An instructor of them which lack discretion, a teacher of the unlearned, which hast the form of knowledge, and of the truth in the law.

21 Thou therefore, which teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that teachest, a man should not steal, dost thou steal?

22 Thou

By the law of God he meaneth that which the philosophers called the law of nature, and the lawyers themselves termed the law of nations.

Are fellows and partakers with them in their wickedness, and beside that, commend them which do amiss.

He convinceth them which would seem to be exempt out of the number of other men, because they reprehend other men's faults, and saith, that they are least of all to be excused, for if they were well and narrowly searched (as God surely doth) they themselves would be found guilty in those things which they reprehend and punish in others. So that in condemning others, they pronounce sentence against themselves.

Paul allegeth no places of scripture, for he reasoneth generally against all men. But he bringeth such reasons as every man is persuaded of in his mind, so that the devil himself is not able to pluck them clean out.

Considering and judging things aright, and not by any outward show.

A vehement and grievous crying out against them that please themselves, because they see more than others do, and yet are no whit better than others are.

Which thou givest thyself to pleasures, thinking to increase thy goods, thou shalt find God's wrath.

The ground of the former disputation. That both the Jews and Gentiles have altogether need of righteousness.

Glory which followeth good works, which he layeth not out before us, as though there were any that could attain to salvation by his own strength, but, by laying this condition of salvation before us, which no man can perform, to bring men to Christ, who alone justifieth the believers, as he himself concludeth, chap. 2. 21, 22. following.

By truth, he meaneth that knowledge which we have of nature.

God's indignation against sinners, which shall quickly be kindled.

God doth not measure men either by their blood or by their country, either to receive them, or to cast them away.

He applieth that general accusation of mankind, particularly both to the Gentiles and to the Jews.

He preventeth an objection which might be made by the Jews, whom the law doth not excuse, but condemn, because that not the hearing of the law, but the keeping of the law, doth justify.

Shall be pronounced just before God's judgment-seat; which is true indeed if any such could be found that had fulfilled the law. But seeing Abraham was not justified by the law, but by faith, it followeth that no man can be justified by works.

He preventeth an objection which might be made by the Gentiles, who although they have not the law of Moses, yet they have reason whereby they may excuse their wickedness, in that they have somewhat written in their hearts instead of a law, as men, that forbid and punish some things as wicked, and command and commend other some as good.

Not simply, but in comparison of the Jews.

Commend honest things, and forbid dishonest.

This knowledge is natural knowledge.

God deferreth many judgments, which notwithstanding he will execute at their convenient time by Jesus Christ, with most strict examination, not only of words and deeds, but of thoughts also, be they never so hidden or secret.

As this my doctrine witnesseth, which I am appointed to preach.

He proveth by the testimony of David, and the other prophets, that God bestowed greatest benefits upon the Jews in giving them also the law, but that they are the most unthankful and unkindest of all men.

Canst try and discern what things swerve from God's will.

The way to teach and frame others in the knowledge of the truth.

As though he said, that the Jews under a colour of outward serving of God, challenged all to themselves, as if indeed they did nothing less than observe the law.

A. D. 60.

1 On all the things that are excellent.

22 Thou that sayest, a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, committest thou sacrilege?

23 Thou that gloriest in the law, through breaking the law, dishonourest thou God?

24 For the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you, * as it is written.

25 ⁹ For circumcision verily is profitable, if thou do the law: but if thou be a transgressor of the law, thy circumcision is made uncircumcision.

26 Therefore, if the ¹ uncircumcision keep the ordinances of the law, shall not his ¹ uncircumcision be counted for circumcision?

27 And shall not ² uncircumcision which is by nature, (if it keep the law) condemn thee which by the ¹ letter and circumcision art a transgressor of the law?

28 For he is not a Jew which is one ³ outward: neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh:

29 But he is a Jew which is one within, and the circumcision is of the heart, in the ⁴ Spirit, not in the letter, whose praise is not of men, but of God.

CHAP. III.

1 He giveth the Jews some ² preferment, for the covenant's sake, 4 but yet such as wholly dependeth on God's mercy. 9 That both Jews and Gentiles are sinners, 11 he proveth by scripture: 19 and shewing the use of the law, 28 he concludeth that we are justified by faith.

WHAT ¹ is then the preferment of the Jew? or what is the profit of circumcision?

2 Much every manner of way: for ² chiefly, because unto them were of credit committed the ³ oracles of God.

3 For what, though some did not ⁴ believe: shall their unbelief make the ⁵ faith of God without effect?

⁹ He precisely preventeth their objection, which set an holiness in circumcision, and the outward observation of the law. So that he sheweth that the outward circumcision, if it be separated from the inward, doth not only not justify, but also condemn them that are indeed circumcised, of whom it requireth that which it signifieth, that is to say, cleanness of the heart, and the whole life, according to the commandment of the law, so that if there be a man uncircumcised according to the flesh, who is circumcised in heart, he is far better and more to be accounted of, than any Jew that is circumcised according to the flesh only.

³ The state and condition of the uncircumcised.

⁴ He which is uncircumcised by nature and blood.

⁵ Paul useth oftentimes to set the letter against the spirit. But in this place, the circumcision which is according to the letter, is the cutting off of the foreskin; but the circumcision of the Spirit is the circumcision of the heart, that is to say, the spiritual end of the ceremony is true holiness and righteousness, whereby the people of God are known from prophane and heathenish men.

² By the outward ceremony only.

³ Whose force is inward, and in the heart.

⁴ The first meeting with, or preventing an objection of the Jews. What then have the Jews no more preferment than the Gentiles? yes, that have they, saith the apostle on God's behalf, for he committed the tables of the covenant to them, so that the unbelief of a few cannot cause the whole nation without exception to be cast away of God, who is true, and who also useth their unworthiness to commend and set forth his goodness.

¹ The Jews state and condition was chiefest.

² Words.

³ Brake the covenant.

⁴ The faith that God gave.

⁵ That thy justice might be plainly seen.

⁶ Forasmuch as thou inweddeth forth an evident token of 4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, and every man ¹ liar, as it is written, That thou mightest be ² justified in thy words, and overcome ³ when thou art judged.

5 ⁴ Now if our ⁵ unrighteousness commend the righteousness of God, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous which punisheth? (I speak as ⁶ a man.)

6 God forbid: else how shall God judge the world?

7 ⁷ For if the ⁸ verity of God hath more abounded through my lye unto his glory, why am I yet condemned as a sinner?

8 And (as we are blamed, and as some affirm, that we say) why do we not evil, that good may come ⁹ thereof? whose damnation is just.

9 ¹⁰ What then? are we more excellent? No, in no wise: for we have already proved, that all, both Jews and Gentiles, are ¹¹ under sin, 10 As it is written, ¹² There is none righteous, no not one.

11 There is none that understandeth: there is none that seeketh God.

12 They have all gone out of the way: they have been made altogether unprofitable: there is none that doeth good, no not one.

13 ¹³ Their throat is an open sepulchre: they have used their tongues to deceit: ¹⁴ the poison of asps is under their lips.

14 ¹⁵ Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness.

15 ¹⁶ Their feet are swift to shed blood.

16 Destruction and calamity are in their ways:

17 And the ¹⁷ way of peace they have not known.

18 ¹⁸ The fear of God is not before their eyes.

19 ¹⁹ Now we know that whatsoever the ¹⁹ law saith, it saith it ²⁰ to them which are under the law, that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world be ²⁰ subject to the judgment of God.

20 Therefore thy righteousness, constancy and faith, by preserving him who had broken his covenant.

² Another prevention issuing out of the former answer: that the justice of God is in such sort commended and set forth by our unrighteousness, that therefore God forgetteth not that he is the judge of the world, and therefore a most severe revenger of unrighteousness.

⁶ Treachery, and all the fruits thereof.

⁷ Therefore I speak not these words in mine own person, as though I thought so, but this is the talk of man's wisdom, which is not subject to the will of God.

⁹ A third objection, which addeth somewhat to the former, If sins do turn to the glory of God, they are not only not to be punished, but we ought rather to give ourselves to them: which blasphemy Paul contenting himself to curse and detest, pronounceth just punishment against such blasphemers.

⁸ The truth and constancy.

¹⁰ Another answer to the first objection, that the Jews, if they be considered in themselves, are no better than other men are; as it hath been long since pronounced by the mouth of the prophets.

¹¹ Are guilty of sin.

¹² An innocent and peaceable life.

¹³ He proveth that this grievous accusation which is uttered by David and Isaiah, doth properly concern the Jews.

¹⁴ The law of Moses.

¹⁵ A conclusion of all the former disputation, from the eighteenth verse of the first chapter. Therefore saith the apostle, No man can hope to be justified by any law, whether it be that general law, or the particular law of Moses, and therefore to be saved, seeing it appeareth (as we have already proved) by comparing the law and man's life together, that all men are sinners, and therefore worthy of condemnation in the sight of God.

¹⁶ Be found guilty before God.

Is. 55. 7.

Pf. 36. 1.

A. D. 60. 20 Therefore by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law cometh the knowledge of sin.

21 But now is the righteousness of God made manifest without the law, having witness of the law and of the prophets, 22 To wit, the righteousness of God by the faith of Jesus Christ unto all, and upon all that believe.

23 For there is no difference: for all have sinned, and are deprived of the glory of God.

24 And are justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus,

25 Whom God hath set forth to be a reconciliation through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness, by the forgiveness of the sins that are passed, 26 Through the patience of God, to shew at this time his righteousness, that he might be just, and a justifier of him which is of the faith of Jesus.

27 Where is then the rejoicing? It is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay: but by the law of faith.

28 Therefore we conclude, that a man is justified by faith, without the works of the law.

29 God, is he the God of the Jews only, and not of the Gentiles also? Yes, even of the Gentiles also.

30 For it is one God, who shall justify circumcision of faith, and uncircumcision through faith.

^a By that, that the law can by us be performed.

^b Flesh here taken for man, as in many other places, and furthermore hath here greater force: for it is put to shew the contrariety betwixt God and man. As if you would say, Man who is nothing else but a piece of flesh, doted with sin, and God who is most pure and most perfect in himself.

^c Absolved before the judgment-seat of God.

^d A secret setting of the righteousness which is before men, be they never so just, against the justice which can stand before God. Now there is no righteousness can stand before God, but the righteousness of Christ only.

^e Therefore saith the apostle, Lest that men should perish, God doth now exhibit that which he promised of old, that is to say, a way whereby we may be justified and saved before him without the law.

^f The matter, as it were, of this righteousness is Christ Jesus, apprehended by faith, and for this end offered to all people, as without him all people are shut out from the kingdom of God.

^g Which we give to Jesus Christ, or which resteth upon him.

^h By the glory of God, is meant that mark which we all shoot at, that is, everlasting life, which standeth in that we are made partakers of the glory of God.

ⁱ Therefore this righteousness touching us, is altogether freely given, for it standeth upon those things which we have not done ourselves, but such as Christ hath suffered for our sakes, to deliver us from sin.

^j Of his free gift, and mere liberality.

^k God then is the author of that free justification, because it pleased him: and Christ is he, which suffered punishment for our sins, and in whom we have remission of them: and the mean whereby we apprehend Christ, is faith. To be sure, the end is the setting forth of the goodness of God, that by this means it may appear, that he is merciful indeed, and constant in his promises, as he that freely, and of mere grace, justifieth the believers.

^l This name of blood, calleth us back to the figure of the old sacrifices, the truth and substance of which sacrifice is in Christ.

^m Of those sins which we committed, when we were his enemies.

ⁿ Through his patience and suffering nature.

^o To wit, when Paul wrote this.

^p That he might be found exceeding true and faithful.

^q Making him just and without blame, by imputing Christ's righteousness unto him.

^r Of the number of them which by faith lay hold upon Christ: contrary to whom are they, which look to be saved

31 Do we then make the law of none effect through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law. A. D. 60.

C H A P. IV.

¹ He proveth that which he said before of faith, by the example of Abraham, 3, 6 and the testimony of the scripture: and ten times in this chapter he beateth upon this word imputation.

WHAT shall we say then, that Abraham our father had found concerning the flesh?

2 For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath wherein to rejoice, but not with God.

3 For what saith the scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness.

4 Now to him that worketh, the wages is not counted by favour, but by debt.

5 But to him that worketh not, but believeth in him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness.

6 Even as David declareth the blessedness of the man unto whom God imputeth righteousness without works, saying,

7 Blessed are they, whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered.

8 Blessed is the man, to whom the Lord imputeth not sin.

9 Cant.

by circumcision, that is, by the law.

¹¹ An argument to prove this conclusion, that we are justified by faith, without works, taken from the end of justification. The end of justification is the glory of God alone: therefore we are justified by faith without works: for if we were alone justified, either by our own works only, or partly by faith, and partly by works, the glory of this justification should not be wholly given to God.

¹³ Another argument of an absurdity; if justification depended upon the law of Moses, then should God be Saviour to the Jews only. Again, if he should save the Jews after one sort, and the Gentiles after another, he should not be one, and like himself. Therefore he will justify both of them, after one self-same manner, that is to say, by faith. Moreover, this argument must be joined to that which followeth next, that this conclusion may be firm and evident.

¹⁴ God is said to be their God, after the manner of the scripture, whom he loveth and tendereth.

¹⁵ The circumcised.

¹⁶ The taking away of an objection: yet is not the law taken away therefore, but is rather established, as it shall be declared in his proper place.

¹⁷ Vain, void, to no purpose, and of no force.

¹⁸ We make it effectual and strong.

¹⁹ A new argument of great weight, taken from the example of Abraham, the father of all believers. And this is the proposition, If Abraham be considered in himself by his works, he hath deserved nothing wherein to rejoice with God.

²⁰ By works, as appeareth in the next verse.

²¹ A preventing of an objection. Abraham may well rejoice, and extol himself amongst men, but not with God.

²² A confirmation of the proposition. Abraham was justified by imputation of faith; therefore freely without any respect of his works.

²³ The first proof of the confirmation, taken of contraries. To him that deserveth any thing by his labour, the wages is not counted by favour, but by debt. But to him that hath done nothing, but believeth in him which promiseth freely, faith is imputed.

²⁴ To him that hath deserved any thing by his work.

²⁵ Is not reckoned nor given him.

²⁶ That maketh him, which is wicked in himself, just in Christ.

²⁷ Another proof of the same confirmation. David putteth blessedness in free pardon of sins; therefore justification also.

A. D.
60.

9 ⁶ Came this ⁶ blessedness then upon the circumcision only, or upon the uncircumcision also? For we say, that faith was imputed unto Abraham for righteousness.

10 ⁷ How was it then imputed? when he was circumcised, or uncircumcised? Not when he was circumcised, but when he was uncircumcised:

11 ⁸ After he received the ⁸ sign of circumcision, as the ⁸ seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had when he was uncircumcised, ⁹ that he should be the father of all them that believe, not being circumcised, that righteousness might be imputed to them also:

12 ¹⁰ And the father of circumcision, not unto them only which are of the circumcision, but unto them also that walk in the steps of the faith of our father Abraham, which he had when he was uncircumcised.

13 ¹¹ For the promise that he should be the ¹¹ heir of the world, was not given to Abraham, or to his seed, through the ¹¹ law, but through the righteousness of faith.

14 ¹² For if they which are of the ¹² law, be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise is made of none effect.

15 ¹³ For the law causeth wrath: for where no law is, there is no transgression.

16 ¹⁴ Therefore it is by faith, that it might come by grace, and the promise might be sure to all the ¹⁴ seed, ¹⁵ not to that only which is of the law: but also to that which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all,

17 (As it is written, I have made thee a ¹⁶ father of many nations) even before ¹⁷ God, whom he believed, who ¹⁷ quickeneth the dead, and ¹⁸ calleth those things which be not, as though they ¹⁸ were: A. D. 60.

18 ¹⁷ Which Abraham, above hope, believed under hope, that he should be the father of many nations: according to that which was spoken to him; So shall thy seed be.

19 And he, ¹⁹ not weak in the faith, considered not his own body, which was now ¹⁹ dead, being almost an hundred years old, neither the deadness of Sarah's womb:

20 Neither did he doubt of the promise of God through unbelief, but was strengthened in the faith, and gave ²⁰ glory to God:

21 Being ²¹ fully assured, that he which had promised, was also able to do it.

22 And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness.

23 ¹⁸ Now it is not written for him only, that it was imputed to him for righteousness,

24 But also for us, to whom it shall be imputed for righteousness, which believe in him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead, 25 Who was delivered to death for our ²⁵ sins, and is risen again for our justification.

C H A P. V.

1 He amplifieth 2 Christ's righteousness, which is laid hold on by faith, 5 who was given for the weak, ■ and sinful. 14 He compareth Christ with Adam, 17 death with life, 20 and the law with grace.

THEN being ¹ justified by faith, we have peace toward God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

T t

■ By

¹ A new proposition. That this manner of justification belongeth both to the uncircumcised, and also to the circumcised; as is declared in the person of Abraham.

⁶ This saying of David, wherein he pronounceth them blessed.

⁷ He proveth that it belongeth to the uncircumcised (for there was no doubt of the circumcised) in this sort: Abraham was justified in circumcision, therefore this justification belongeth also to the uncircumcised. Nay it doth not appertain to the circumcised in respect of their circumcision, much less are the uncircumcised shut out for their uncircumcision.

⁸ A preventing of an objection. Why then was Abraham circumcised, if he were already justified? That the gift of righteousness (saith he) might be confirmed in him.

⁸ Circumcision, which is ■ sign; ■ we say, the sacrament of baptism, for baptism which is ■ sacrament.

■ Circumcision was called before, ■ sign, in respect of the outward ceremony: now Paul sheweth the force and substance of that sign, that is, to what end it is used, ■ wit, not only to signify, but also to seal up the righteousness of faith, whereby we come to possess Christ himself; for the Holy Ghost worketh that inwardly indeed, which the sacraments, being joined with the word, do represent.

⁹ An applying of the example of Abraham ■ the uncircumcised believers, whose father also he maketh Abraham.

¹⁰ An applying of the same example ■ the circumcised believers, whose father Abraham is, but yet by faith.

¹¹ A reason why the seed of Abraham is to be esteemed by faith, because that Abraham himself through faith was made partaker of that promise, whereby he was made the father of all nations.

¹¹ That all the nations of the world should be his children; or by the world, may be understood the land of Canaan.

¹² For works that he had done, or upon this condition that he should fulfil the law.

¹² A double confirmation of that reason: the one is, that the promise cannot be apprehended by the law, and therefore it should be frustrate: the other, that the condition of faith should be joined in vain to that promise which should be apprehended by works.

¹² If they be heirs which have fulfilled the law.

¹³ A reason of the first confirmation, why the promise cannot be apprehended by the law: because that the law doth not reconcile God and us, but rather denounceth his anger against us, for so much as no man can observe it.

¹⁴ The conclusion of this argument: The salvation and justification of the posterity of Abraham (that is, of the church which is gathered together of all people) proceedeth of faith, which layeth hold on the promise made unto Abraham, and which promise Abraham himself first of all laid hold on.

¹⁵ That is to say, not only of them which believe and ■ also circumcised according to the law, but, of them also which without circumcision, and in respect of faith only, ■ counted amongst the children of Abraham.

¹⁶ This fatherhood is spiritual, depending only upon the virtue of God, who made the promise.

¹⁷ Before God, that is, by a spiritual kindred which hath place before God, and maketh us acceptable ■ God.

¹⁸ Who restoreth ■ life.

¹⁹ With whom those things ■ already, which as yet are not indeed, ■ he that can with a word make what he will of nothing.

¹⁷ A description of true faith, wholly resting in the power of God, and his good will, set forth in the example of Abraham.

■ Very strong and constant.

¹⁹ Void of strength, and unmeet to get children.

²⁰ Acknowledged and praised God, ■ most gracious and true.

²⁵ A description of true faith.

■ The rule of justification is always one, both in Abraham, and in all the faithful: that is ■ say, faith in God, who as ■ that there was made a full satisfaction for our sins in Christ ■ mediator, raised him from the dead, that we also being justified, might be saved in him.

²¹ To pay the ransom for ■ sins.

■ Another argument taken of the effects: ■ justified with that which truly appeaseth our conscience before God: but faith in Christ doth appease our conscience and not the law, ■ it was before said, therefore by faith we ■ justified, and not by the law.

A. D. 2 ^a By whom also through faith, we have had this access into this grace, ^b wherein we stand, ^c and ^d rejoice under the hope of the glory of God.

3 ^e Neither that only, but also we ^f rejoice in tribulations, ^g knowing that tribulation bringeth forth patience:

4 And patience experience, and experience hope:

5 ^h And hope maketh not ashamed, because the ⁱ love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, which is given unto us.

6 ^j For Christ, when we were yet of no strength, at his time died for the ^k ungodly.

7 ^l Doubtless one will scarce die ^m for a righteous man: but yet for ⁿ good man it may be that one dare die.

8 But God ^o setteth out his love toward us, seeing that while we were yet ^p sinners, Christ died for us.

9 Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from ^q wrath through him.

10 For if when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life.

11 ^r And not only so, but we also rejoice in

^a Whereas quietness of conscience is attributed to faith, it is to be referred to Christ, who is the giver of faith itself, and in whom faith itself is effectual.

^b We must here know, that we have yet still the same effect of faith.

^c By which grace, that is, by which gracious love and good will, or that state whereinto we are graciously taken.

^d We stand steadfast.

^e A preventing of an objection against them, which beholding the daily miseries and calamities of the church, think that the christians dream, when they brag of their felicity: to whom the apostle answereth, that their felicity is laid up under hope in another place: which hope is so certain and sure, that they do no less rejoice for that happiness than if they did presently enjoy it.

^f Our minds are not only quiet and settled, but also we are marvellously glad, and conceive great joy for that heavenly inheritance which waiteth for us.

^g Tribulation itself giveth us, divers and sundry ways, occasion to rejoice, much less doth it make us miserable.

^h Afflictions accusom us to patience, and patience assureth us of the goodness of God, and this experience confirmeth and fostereth our hope, which never deceiveth us.

ⁱ The ground of hope is an assured testimony of the conscience, by the gift of the Holy Ghost, that we are beloved of God, and this is nothing else but that which we call faith, whereof it followeth, that through faith our consciences are quieted.

^j Wherewith he loveth us.

^k A sure comfort in adversity, that our peace and quietness of conscience be not troubled: for he that so loved them that were of no strength, and while they were yet sinners, that he died for them, how can he neglect them being now sanctified and living in him?

^l In time fit and convenient which the Father had appointed.

^m An amplifying of the love of God toward us, so that we cannot doubt of it, who delivered Christ ⁿ death for the unjust, and for them of whom he could receive no commodity, and (that more is) for his very enemies. How can it be then that Christ being now alive, should not save them from destruction, whom by his death he justifieth and reconcileth?

^o In the stead of some just man.

^p He setteth out his love unto us, that in the midst of our afflictions we may know assuredly he will be present with us.

^q While sin reigned in us.

^r From affliction and destruction.

^s He now passeth over to the other part of justification, which consisteth in the free imputation of the obedience of Christ, so that to the remission of sins, there is added more over and besides, the gift of Christ's righteousness imputed, or put upon ^t by faith, which swalloweth up that unrighteousness which flowed from Adam into us, and all the fruits

God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

12 ^u Wherefore as by ^v one man ^w sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death went over all men, ^x in whom all men have sinned.

13 ^y For unto the time ^z of the law was sin in the world, but sin is not ^{aa} imputed, while there is no law.

14 ^{ab} But death reigned from Adam to Moses, even ^{ac} over them also that sinned not after the like ^{ad} manner of the transgression of Adam, ^{ae} which was that figure of him that was to come.

15 ^{af} But yet the gift is not so as is the offence: for if through the offence of ^{ag} that one, many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many.

16 ^{ah} Neither is the gift so, as that which entered in by one that sinned: for the fault came of one offence unto condemnation: but the gift is of many offences to ^{ai} justification.

17 ^{aj} For if by the offence of one, death reigned through one, much more shall they which receive that abundance of grace, and of that gift of that righteousness, ^{ak} reign in life through one, that is, Jesus Christ.

18 Like-thereof: so that in Christ we do not only cease to be unjust, but we begin also to be just.

^u From Adam in whom all have sinned, both guiltiness and death (which is the punishment of the guiltiness) came upon all.

^v By Adam, who is compared with Christ, like to him in this, that both of them make those which are theirs, partakers of that they have: but they are unlike in this, that Adam deriveth sin into them that are his, even of nature, and that to death: but Christ maketh them that are his, partakers of his righteousness by grace, and that unto life.

^w By sin, is ^{ax} that disease which is ours by inheritance, and men commonly call it original sin: for so he useth to call that sin in the singular number, whereas if he spake of the fruits of it, he useth the plural number, calling them sins.

^x That is, in Adam.

^y That this is so, that both guiltiness and death began not after the giving and transgressing of Moses's law, it appeareth manifestly by that, that men died before that law was given: for in that they died, sin which is the cause of death, was then; and in such sort, that it was ^{ay} also imputed: whereupon it followeth that there was then some law, the breach whereof was the cause of death.

^z Even from Adam ^{ba} Moses.

^{aa} Where there is no law made, ^{bb} man is punished as faulty and guilty.

^{ab} But that this law was not that universal law, and that that death did not proceed from any actual sin of every one particularly, it appeareth hereby, that the very infants, which neither could ever know or transgress that natural law, are notwithstanding dead as well as Adam.

^{ac} Our infants.

^{ad} Nor after that sort ^{ae} they sin that are of more years, following their lusts: but yet the whole posterity was corrupted in Adam, whereas he wittingly and willingly sinned.

^{ae} Now that first Adam answereth the latter, who is Christ, as it is afterward declared.

^{af} Adam and Christ ^{ag} compared together ^{ah} this respect, that both of them do give and yield to theirs, that which is their own: but herein first they differ, that Adam by nature hath spread his fault ^{ai} the destruction of many, but Christ's obedience hath by grace overflowed many.

^{aj} That is, Adam.

^{ak} Another inequality consisteth ^{al} this, that by Adam's one offence men are made guilty; but the righteousness of Christ imputed to us freely, doth not only absolve ^{am} from that one fault, but from all other.

^{an} To the sentence of absolution, whereby we are quit and pronounced righteous.

^{ao} The third difference is, that the righteousness of Christ being imputed unto us by grace, is of greater power to bring life, than the offence of Adam is to addict his posterity to death.

^{ap} Be partakers of true and everlasting life.

18 ¹⁷ Likewise then, ■ by the offence of one ^{a. D.} the fault came on all men to condemnation, so ^{c.} by the justifying of one, the benefit abounded toward all men to the ^x justification of life.

19 ¹⁸ For ■ by one man's ² disobedience many were made sinners, so by that obedience of that one shall many also be made righteous.

20 ¹⁹ Moreover, the law ^a entered thereupon, that the offence should abound: nevertheless, where sin abounded, there grace ^b abounded much more:

21 That as sin had reigned unto death, so might grace also reign by righteousness unto eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

C H A P. VI.

1 He cometh to sanctification, without which, that no man putteth on Christ's righteousness, he proveth, 4 by argument taken of baptism, 12 and thereupon exhorteth to holiness of life, 16 briefly making mention of the law transgressed.

WHAT ¹ shall we say then? shall we continue still in ^a sin, that grace may abound? God forbid.

2 ² How shall we that are ^b dead to sin, live yet therein?

^{Gal. 3. 27.} 3 ³ Know ye not, that ^{*} all we which have been baptized into ^c Jesus Christ, have been baptized into his death?

^{Gal. 2. 12.} 4 ^{} We are buried then with him by baptism into his death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead ^a to the glory of the Father, so ^c we also should ^{} walk in newness of life.

5 ⁴ ^{*} For if we be planted with him to the ^f similitude of his death, even so shall we ^s be to the similitude of his resurrection.

6 Knowing this, that our ^b old man is crucified with ¹ him, that the ² body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not ¹ serve sin.

7 ¹ For he that is dead, is freed from sin.

■ Wherefore, if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall live also with him.

9 Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more: death hath no more dominion over him.

10 For in that he died, he died ^m once to sin: but in that he liveth, he liveth to ⁿ God.

11 Likewise think ye also, that ye are dead to sin, but are alive to God in Jesus Christ our Lord.

12 ⁶ Let not ^o sin reign therefore in your mortal body, that you should obey it in the lusts thereof:

13 Neither ^p give ye your ^q members as ^r weapons of unrighteousness unto sin: but give yourselves unto God, as they that are alive from the dead, and give your members as weapons of righteousness unto God.

14 ⁷ For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace.

15 What

¹⁷ Therefore to be short, as by one man's offence, the guiltiness came on all men, to make them subject to death: so on the contrary side, the righteousness of Christ, which by God's mercy is imputed to all believers, justified them, that they may become partakers of everlasting life.

² Not only because our sins ■ forgiven us, but also because the righteousness of Christ is imputed unto us.

¹⁸ The ground of this whole comparison is this, that these two men ■ set as two stocks, or roots, so that out of the one, sin by nature; out of the other, righteousness by grace; doth spring forth upon others.

⁷ So then, sin entered not into ■ only by following the steps of our forefather, but we take corruption of him by inheritance.

⁴ This word, Many, is set against this word, a Few.

¹⁹ A preventing of ■ objection: why then did the law of Moses enter thereupon? that men might be so much the more guilty, and the benefit of God in Christ Jesus be so much the more glorious.

⁴ Besides that disease which all men were infected withal, by being defiled with ■ man's sin, the law entered.

^b Grace was poured so plentiful from heaven, that it did not only countervail sin, but above measure passed it.

¹ He passeth now to another benefit of Christ, which is called sanctification or regeneration.

⁴ In that corruption, for though the guiltiness of sin be not imputed to us, yet the corruption remaineth still in us: the which sanctification, that followeth justification, killeth by little and little.

² The benefit of justification, and sanctification, are always joined together inseparably, and both of them proceed from Christ by the grace of God: Now sanctification is the abolishing of sin, that is, of our natural corruption, into whose place succeedeth the cleanness and pureness of nature reformed.

^b They are said of Paul ■ be dead ■ sin, which ■ in such sort made partakers of the virtue of Christ, that that natural corruption is dead in them, that is, the force of it is put out, and it bringeth not forth his bitter fruits: And on the other side they ■ said to live ■ sin which are in the flesh, that is, whom the Spirit of God hath ■ delivered from the slavery of the corruption of nature.

³ There are three parts of this sanctification: ■ wit, the death of the old man, or sin, his burial, and the resurrection of the new man, descending into us from the virtue of the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, of which benefit our baptism is the sign and pledge.

^c To the end that growing up in one with him, we should receive his strength, to quench sin in us, and to make us ■ men.

■ That Christ himself being discharged of his infirmity and weakness, might live in glory with God for ever.

^c And we which ■ his members rise for this end, that being made partakers of the self-same virtue, we should begin to lead ■ new life, as though we were already in heaven.

⁴ The death of sin, and the life of righteousness, or our ingrafting into Christ, and growing up into one with him, cannot be separated by any means, neither in death nor life: whereby it followeth, that ■ man is sanctified which liveth still ■ sin, and therefore is no ■ made partaker of Christ by faith, which repenteth not, and turneth not from his wickedness: for, as he said before, the law is not subverted, but established by faith.

^f Inasmuch, as by means of the strength which cometh from him to us, ■ so die ■ sin, as he is dead.

■ For we become every day more perfect than other: for we shall never be perfectly sanctified, as long ■ we live here.

■ All our whole nature, as we ■ conceived and born into this world with sin, which is called old, partly by comparing that old Adam with Christ, and partly also in respect of the deformation of our corrupt nature, which we change with ■ new.

■ Our corrupt nature is attributed to Christ, not indeed, but by imputation.

^k That naughtiness which sticketh fast in us.

¹ The end of sanctification which ■ shoot at, and shall at length come to, to wit, when God shall be all in all.

■ He proveth it by the effects of death, using a comparison of Christ the head with his members.

^m Once for all.

ⁿ With God.

⁶ An exhortation to contend and strive with corruption, and all the effects thereof.

^o By reigning, St. Paul meaneth that chiefly and high rule which ■ ■ ■ striveth against, and if any do, yet it is in vain.

^p To sin, as to a lord or tyrant.

■ Your mind and all the powers of it.

■ As instruments to commit wickedness withal.

⁷ He granteth that sin is not yet so dead in us that it is utterly extinct: but he promiseth victory to them that contend manfully, because we have the grace of God given us, which worketh so that the law is not now in us, the power and instrument of sin.

A. D. 15^o What then? shall we sin, because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid.

16^o Know ye not, that to whomsoever ye give yourselves as servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey, whether it be of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?

17^o But God be thanked, that ye have been the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart unto the form of the doctrine, whereunto ye were delivered.

18 Being then made free from sin, ye are made the servants of righteousness.

19 I speak after the manner of man, because of the infirmity of your flesh: for as ye have given your members servants to uncleanness and to iniquity, to commit iniquity, so now give your members servants unto righteousness in holiness:

20 For when ye were the servants of sin, ye were freed from righteousness.

21^o What fruit had ye then in those things whereof ye are now ashamed? For the end of those things is death.

22 But now being freed from sin, and made servants unto God, ye have your fruit in holiness, and the end everlasting life.

23^o For the wages of sin is death: but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

C H A P. VII.

1 He declareth what it is to be no more under the law, 2 by an example taken of the law of marriage. 7, 12 And sheweth the law should seem faulty, 14 be prov-eth, that our sin is the cause 13 that the same is an occasion of death, 17 which was given us unto life. 21 He setteth out the battle between the flesh and the spirit.

KNOW ye not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law) that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth?

2^{*} For the woman which is in subjection to a man, is bound by the law to the man, while he liveth: but if the man be dead, she is delivered from the law of the man.

3 So then, if while the man liveth, she taketh another man, she shall be called an adulteress: but if the man be dead, she is free from the law, so that she is not an adulteress, though she take another man.

4^{*} So ye, my brethren, are dead also to the law by the body of Christ, that ye should be united to another, even unto him that is raised up from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God.

5^{*} For when we were in the flesh, the affections of sins, which were by the law, had force in our members, to bring forth fruit unto death.

6 But now we are delivered from the law, he being dead in whom we were holden, that we should serve in newness of Spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.

7⁺ What shall we say then? Is the law sin? God forbid. Nay, I knew not sin, but by the law: for I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not lust.

8 But sin took an occasion by the commandment,

^{*} To be under the law and under sin, signify all one, in respect of them which are not sanctified; as on the contrary side, to be under grace and righteousness, agree to them that are regenerate. Now these are contraries, so that one cannot agree with the other: therefore let righteousness expel sin.

^o By nature we are slaves to sin, and free from righteousness; but by the grace of God we are made servants to righteousness, and therefore free from sin.

^o This kind of speech hath force in it: for he meaneth thereby that the doctrine of the gospel is like unto a certain mould which we are cast into, to be framed and fashioned like unto it.

^o Righteousness had no rule over you.

^o An exhortation to the study of righteousness and hatred of sin, the contrary ends of both being set down before us.

^o The reward or payment.

^o Death is the punishment due to sin, but we are sanctified freely, unto life everlasting.

^o By proposing the similitude of marriage, he compareth the state of man, both before and after regeneration, together. The law of matrimony, saith he, is this, that so long as the husband liveth, the marriage abideth in force, but if he be dead, the woman may marry again.

^o That is, she shall be an adulteress, by the consent and judgment of all men.

^o An amplification of the similitude thus. So, saith he, doth it fare with us: for now we are joined to the Spirit, as it were to the second husband, by whom we must bring forth new children: we are dead in respect of the first husband, but in respect of the latter, we are as it were raised from the dead.

^o That is, in the body of Christ, to give us to understand, how straight and near that fellowship is betwixt Christ and his members.

^o He calleth the children, which the wife hath by her husband, fruit.

^o Which are acceptable to God.

^o A declaration of the former saying: for the concupiscences (saith he) which the law stirred up in us, were in us, as it were an husband, of whom we brought forth very deadly and carned children; but now since that husband is dead, and so consequently being delivered from the force of that killing law, we have passed into the governance of the spirit, so that we bring forth now not those rotten and dead, but lively children.

^o When we were in the state of the first marriage, which he calleth in the next verse following the oldness of the letter.

^o The motions that egged us to sin, which shew their force even in our minds.

^o He saith not, of the law, but by the law, because they spring of sin, which dwelleth within us, and take occasion to work thus in us, by reason of the restraint that the law maketh: not that the fault is in the law, but in ourselves.

^o Wrought their strength.

^o As if he said, The bond which bound us is dead, and vanished away, insomuch that sin which held us, hath not now wherewith to hold us.

^o For this husband is within us.

^o Satan is an unjust possessor, for he brought us in bondage of sin and himself deceitfully: and yet notwithstanding so long as we are sinners, we sin willingly.

^o As becometh them, which after the death of their old husband, are joined to the Spirit: and whom the Spirit of God hath made new men.

^o By the letter he meaneth the law, in respect of that old condition: for before that our will be framed by the Holy Ghost, the law speaketh but to deaf men, and therefore it is dumb and dead to us, touching the fulfilling of it.

^o An objection, What then? is the law and sin all one, and do they agree together? Nay, saith he, sin is reprov'd and condemn'd by the law. But because sin cannot abide to be reprov'd, and was not in that manner felt, until it was provok'd and stirr'd up by the law, it taketh occasion thereby to be more outrageous, and yet by no fault of the law.

^o By the word lust in this place he meaneth not evil lusts themselves, but the fountain from whence they spring, for the very heathen philosophers themselves condemn'd wicked lusts, though somewhat darkly. But as for the fountain of them, they could not so much as suspect it, and yet it is the very seat of that natural and unclean spirit and filth.

Exod. 21. 37. Deut. 5. 11.

A. D. 60. ment, and wrought in me all manner of concupiscence: for without the law sin is dead.

9 For I once was alive, without the law: but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died: and the same commandment which was ordained unto life, was found to be unto me unto death.

11 For sin took occasion by the commandment, and deceived me, and thereby slew me.

12 Wherefore the law is holy, and that commandment is holy, and just, and good.

13 Was that then which is good, made death unto me? God forbid: but sin, that it might appear sin, wrought death in me by that which is good, that sin might be out of measure sinful by the commandment.

14 For we know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, sold under sin.

15 For I allow not that which I do: for what I would, that I do not: but what I hate, that do I.

16 If I do then that which I would not, I consent to the law that it is good.

17 Now then, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.

18 For I know, that in me, that is, in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing: for to will is present with me: but I find no means to perform that which is good.

Though sin be in us, yet it is not known for sin, neither doth it so rage, as it rageth after that the law is known.

He setteth himself before us for an example, in whom all men may behold, first, what they are by nature before they earnestly think upon the law of God: to wit, blockish, and heady to sin and wickedness, without all true sense and feeling of sin; then what manner of persons they become, when their conscience is reproved by the testimony of the law, to wit, stubborn and more inflamed with the desire of sin, than ever they were before.

When I knew not the law, then methought I lived indeed: for my conscience never troubled me, because I knew not my disease.

When I began to understand the commandment.

In sin, or by sin.

The conclusion: That the law of itself is holy, but all the fault is in us which abuse the law.

Touching not coveting.

The proposition: that the law is not the cause of death, but our corrupt nature being therewith not only discovered, but also stirred up: and took occasion thereby to rebel, as which the more that things are forbidden it, the more it desireth them, and from hence cometh the guiltiness, and occasion of death.

Beareth it the blame of my death?

That sin might shew itself to be sin, and bewray itself to be that which it is indeed.

As evil as it could, shewing all the venom it could.

The cause of this matter, is this, because that the law requireth a heavenly pureness, but such they be born, are bondslaves of corruption, which they willingly serve.

He setteth himself being regenerate, before us, for an example, in whom may easily appear the strife of the Spirit and the flesh, and therefore of the law of God, and our wickedness. For since that the law in such regenerate bringeth forth death only, therefore in him it may easily be accused; but seeing that in such man which is regenerate it bringeth forth good fruit, it doth better appear that evil actions proceed not from the law but from sin, that is, from our corrupt nature: And therefore the apostle teacheth also what the true use of the law is in reproving sin in the regenerate, unto the end of the chapter: a little before (to wit, from the seventh verse unto this fifteenth) he declareth the use of it in them which are not regenerate.

The deeds of my life, saith he, answer not, nay, they are contrary to my will: Therefore by the consent of my will with the law, and repugnancy with the deeds of my life, it appeareth evidently, that the law and a right ruled will, do persuade one thing; but corruption which hath her seat also in the regenerate, another thing.

It is to be noted, that one self-same man is said to will and not to will, in divers respects: to wit, he is said to will, in that, that he is regenerate by grace: and not to will, in that, that he is not regenerate, or in that, that he is such an one as he was born. But because the part which is regenerate, at length becometh conqueror, therefore Pau 19 For I do not the good thing which I would, but the evil which I would not, that do I.

20 Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but the sin that dwelleth in me.

21 I find then that when I would do good; I am thus yoked, that evil is present with me.

22 For I delight in the law of God, concerning the inner man.

23 But I see another law in my members, rebelling against the law of my mind, and leading me captive unto the law of sin, which is in my members.

24 O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death!

25 I thank God, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Then I myself in my mind serve the law of God, but in my flesh the law of sin.

CHAP. VIII.

He concludeth that there is no condemnation to them who are grafted in Christ through his Spirit, howsoever they be as yet burdened with sins: For they live through that Spirit, whose testimony driveth away all fear, and relieveth our present miseries.

NOW then there is no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, which walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

U u 2 For

Ustaining the part of the regenerate, speaketh in such sort as if the corruption which sinneth willingly, were something without a man: although afterward he granteth that this evil is in his flesh, or in his members.

That natural corruption, which cleaveth fast even to them that regenerate, and is not clean conquered.

This vice, or sin, or law of sin, doth wholly possess those which are not regenerate, and hindereth them or holdeth them back that are regenerate.

This doth indeed agree that man, whom the grace of God hath made a new man: for where the Spirit is not, how can there be any strife there?

The conclusion: As the law of God exhorteth to goodness, so doth the law of sin (that is, the corruption wherein we are born) force us to wickedness: but the Spirit, that is, our mind, in that that it is regenerate, consenteth with the law of God: but the flesh, that is, the whole natural man, is bondslave to the law of sin. Therefore to be short, wickedness and death are not of the law, but of sin, which reigneth in them that not regenerate: for they neither will, nor do good; but will, and do evil: but in them that are regenerate, it striveth against the Spirit or law of the mind, so that they cannot neither live so well as they would, nor be so void of sin as they would.

The inner man, and the new man are all one, and are answerable and set as contrary to the old man, neither doth this word, Inner man, signify man's mind and reason, and the old man, the powers that are under them, the philosophers imagine; but by the outward man is meant whatsoever is either without or within a man from top to toe, so long as that man is not born anew by the grace of God.

The law of the mind in this place, is not to be understood of the mind it is naturally, and our mind is from our birth, but of the mind which is renewed by the Spirit of God.

It is a miserable thing to be yet in part subject to sin, which of its own nature maketh us guilty of death; but we must cry to the Lord, who will by death itself at length make us conquerors, as we are already conquerors in Christ.

Wearied with miserable and continual conflicts.

He recovereth himself, and sheweth us that he resteth only in Christ.

This is the true perfection of them that are born anew, confess that they are imperfect.

A conclusion of all the former disputation, from ver. 16. chap. 1. even to this place; seeing that we, being justified by faith in Christ, do obtain remission of sins, and imputation of righteousness, and also sanctified, it followeth hereof, that they that are grafted into Christ by faith, are out of all fear of condemnation.

The fruits of the Spirit, or effects of sanctification which is begun in us, do not ingraft us into Christ, but do declare that we are grafted into him.

Follow not the flesh for their guide: for he is not said to live after the flesh, that hath the Holy Ghost for his guide, though sometimes he keep awry.

A. D.
60.

2 For the law of the Spirit of life, which is in Christ Jesus, hath freed me from the law of sin and of death.

3 For, (that that was impossible to the law, in as much as it was weak, because of the flesh) God sending his own Son, in the similitude of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh,

4 That that righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, which walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

5 For they that are after the flesh, favour the things of the flesh: but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit.

6 For the wisdom of the flesh is death: but the wisdom of the Spirit is life and peace.

7 Because the wisdom of the flesh is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be.

8 So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God.

9 Now ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, because the Spirit of God dwelleth in you: but if any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, the same is not his.

10 And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin: but the Spirit is life for righteousness sake.

11 But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead, dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies, by his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

12 Therefore, brethren, we are debtors not to the flesh, to live after the flesh:

13 For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye mortify the deeds of the body by the Spirit, ye shall live.

14 For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the Sons of God.

15 For ye have not received the Spirit of bondage to fear again: but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry Abba, Father.

16 The

A preventing of an objection. Seeing that the virtue of the Spirit which is in us so weak, how may we gather thereby, that there is no condemnation to them that have that virtue? Because, saith he, that virtue of the quickening Spirit which is so weak in us, is most perfect and most mighty in Christ, and being imputed unto us which believe, causeth us to be so accounted of, as though there were no relics of corruption and death in us. Therefore hath Paul disputed of remission of sins, and imputation of fulfilling the law, and also of sanctification which is begun in us: but now he speaketh of the perfect imputation of Christ's manhood, which part was necessarily required to the full appeasing of our consciences. For our sins are defaced by the blood of Christ, and the guiltiness of our corruption is covered with the imputation of Christ's obedience, and the corruption itself (which the apostle calleth sinful sin) is healed in us by little and little by the gift of sanctification; but yet lacketh beside that, another remedy, to wit, the perfect sanctification of Christ's own flesh, which also is to us imputed.

The power and authority of the Spirit, against which is set the tyranny of sin.

Which mortifieth the old man, and quickeneth the new man.

To wit, absolutely and perfectly.

For Christ's sanctification being imputed to us, perfecteth our sanctification which is begun in us.

He useth no argument here, but expoundeth the mystery of sanctification, which is imputed unto us. For because, saith he, that the virtue of the law was not such (and that by reason of the corruption of our nature) that it could make man pure and perfect, and for that it rather kindled the disease of sin, than did put it out or extinguish it, therefore God clothed his Son with flesh like unto our sinful flesh, wherein he utterly abolished our corruption, that being accounted thoroughly pure and without fault in him, apprehended and laid hold on by faith, we might be found to have fully that singular perfection which the law requireth, and therefore that there might be no condemnation in us.

Which is not proper to the law, but cometh by our fault.

In us not born anew, whose disease the law could point out, but it could not heal it.

Of man's nature which is corrupt through sin, until he sanctified it.

To abolish sin in our flesh.

Shewed that sin hath no right in us.

The very substance of the law of God might be fulfilled, or that same which the law requireth, that we may be found just before God. For if with our justification there be joined that sanctification which is imputed to us, we are just, according to that perfect form which the law requireth.

He returneth to that which he said: that the sanctification which is begun in us, is a sure testimony of our ingrafting into Christ, which is a most plentiful fruit of a godly and honest life.

A reason why we walk after the flesh, agreeth not to them which are grafted in Christ; but to walk after the Spirit, agreeth and is meet for them: Because, saith he, they which are after the flesh favour the things of the flesh, but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit

They that live in the flesh leadeth them.

He proveth the consequent, because that whatsoever the flesh favoureth, that engendereth death; and whatsoever the Spirit favoureth, that tendeth to joy and life everlasting.

A reason and proof why the wisdom of the flesh is death, because, saith he, it is the enemy of God.

A reason why the flesh is enemy to God, because it neither will, neither can, be subject to him; and by flesh he meaneth man not regenerate.

The conclusion. Therefore they that walk after the flesh, cannot please God: whereby it followeth, that they are not grafted into Christ.

He cometh to the others, to wit, to them which walk after the Spirit, of whom we have to understand contrary things to the former. And first of all, he defineth what it is to be in the Spirit, or to be sanctified; to wit, to have the Spirit of God dwelling in us. Then he declareth that sanctification is so joined and knit to our grafting in Christ, that it can by no means be separated.

He confirmeth the faithful against the relics of flesh and sin, granting that they are yet (as appeareth by the corruption which is in them) touching one of their parts (which he calleth the body, that is to say, a lump) which is not yet purged from this earthly filthiness, in death. But therewithal willing them to doubt nothing of the happy success of this combat, because that even this little spark of the Spirit, (that is, of the grace of regeneration) which appeareth to be in them by the fruits of righteousness, is the seed of life.

The flesh, or all that which as yet sticketh fast in the clefts of sin and death.

A confirmation of the former sentence. You have the self-same Spirit which Christ hath: Therefore at length it shall do the same in you, that it did in Christ, to wit, when all infirmities being utterly laid aside, and death overcome, it shall cloath you with heavenly glory.

By the virtue and power of it, which shewed the same might, first in our head, and daily worketh in his members.

An exhortation to oppress the flesh daily more and more by the virtue of the Spirit of regeneration, because (saith he) you are debtors unto God, for so much as you have received so many benefits of him.

Another reason of the profit that ensueth: for such as strive and fight valiantly, shall have everlasting life.

A confirmation of this reason: for they be the children of God, which are governed by his Spirit, therefore shall they have life everlasting.

He declareth and expoundeth by the way in these two verses, by what right this name, to be called the children of God, is given to the believers, because, saith he, they have received the grace of the gospel, wherein God sheweth himself, not (as before in the publishing of the law) terrible and fearful, but most benign and loving Father in Christ, so that with great boldness we call him Father, the Holy Ghost sealing this adoption in our hearts by faith.

By the Spirit, is meant the Holy Ghost, whom we are said to receive, when he worketh in our minds.

Which fear is stirred up in our minds by the preaching of the law.

Which sealeth our adoption in our minds, and therefore openeth our mouths.

A. D. 60.

A. D. 60.

16 The same Spirit beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God.

17 If we be children, we are also heirs, even the heirs of God, and heirs annexed with Christ: if so be that we suffer with him, that we may also be glorified with him.

18 For I count that the afflictions of this present time are not worthy of the glory which shall be shewed unto us.

19 For the fervent desire of the creature waiteth when the sons of God shall be revealed:

20 Because the creature is subject to vanity, not of its own will, but by reason of him which hath subdued it under hope.

21 Because the creature also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the sons of God.

22 For we know that every creature groaneth with us also, and travaileth in pain together unto this present.

23 And not only the creature, but we also which have the first fruits of the Spirit, even we do sigh in our selves, waiting for the adoption, even the redemption of our body.

24 For we are saved by hope: but hope that is seen, is not hope: for how can a man hope for that which he seeth?

25 But if we hope for that we see not, we do with patience abide for it.

26 Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what to pray as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh request for us with sighs which cannot be expressed.

18 A proof of the consequent of the confirmation: because that he which is the Son of God, doth enjoy God with Christ.

19 Partakers of our Father's goods, and that freely, because we are children by adoption.

19 Now Paul teacheth by what way the sons of God do come to that felicity, to wit, by the cross, as Christ himself did: and therewithal openeth unto them fountains of comfort: as first that we have Christ as companion and fellow of our afflictions: secondly, that we shall be also his fellows in that everlasting glory.

Thirdly, that this glory which we look for, doth thousand parts surmount the misery of our afflictions.

All being well considered, I gather.

Fourthly, he plainly teacheth us, that we shall certainly be renewed from that confusion and horrible deformation of the whole world, which cannot be continual, as it was not at the beginning. But as it had a beginning by the sin of man for whom it was made by the ordinance of God, so shall it at length be restored with the elect.

All this world.

Is subject to a vanishing and sitting state.

Not by their natural inclination.

That they should obey the Creator's commandment, whom it pleased to shew by their sickle state, how greatly he was displeased with man.

God would not make the world subject to everlasting curse, for the sin of man, but gave it in hope that it should be restored.

From the corruption which they now subject to, they shall be delivered and changed into that blessed state of incorruption, which shall be revealed, when the sons of God shall be advanced to glory.

By this word is meant, not only exceeding sorrow, but also the fruit that followeth of it.

Fifthly, if the rest of the world look for restoring, groaning as it were for it, and that not in vain, let it not grieve us also to sigh, yea, let us be certainly persuaded of our redemption to come, forasmuch as we have the first-fruits of the Spirit.

Even from the bottom of our hearts.

That last restoring, which shall be the accomplishment of our adoption.

Sixthly, hope is necessarily joined with faith: seeing then that we believe those things which we are not yet in possession of, and hope respecteth not the thing that is present, we must therefore hope and patiently wait for that which we believe shall pass.

27 But he that searcheth the hearts, knoweth what is the meaning of the Spirit: for he maketh request for the saints, according to the will of God.

28 Also we know that all things work together for the best unto them that love God, even to them that are called of his purpose.

29 For those which he knew before, he also predestinated to be made like to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren.

30 Moreover, whom he predestinated, them also he called: and whom he called, them also he justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified.

31 What shall we then say to these things? If God be on our side, who can be against us?

32 Who spared not his own Son, but gave him for us all to death, how shall he not with him give us all things also?

33 Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's chosen? it is God that justifieth, 34 Who shall condemn? it is Christ which is dead: yea, or rather, which is risen again, who is also at the right hand of God, and maketh request also for us.

35 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or anguish, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?

36 As it is written, For thy sake are we killed all day long: we are counted as sheep for the slaughter.

37 Never-

1 This is spoken by the figure Metonymia: Hope, for that which is hoped for.

24 Seventhly, there is no cause why we should faint under the burden of afflictions, seeing that prayers minister unto a most sure help: which cannot be frustrate, seeing they proceed from the Spirit of God which dwelleth in us.

Beareth our burden, as it were, that we faint not under it.

Provoketh us to prayers, and telleth us, as it were, within, what we shall say, and how we shall groan.

1 What sobs and sighs proceed from the instinct of the Spirit.

2 Because he teacheth the godly to pray according to God's will.

25 Eighthly, we are not afflicted either by chance, or to our harm, but by God's providence, for our great profit: who as he chose from the beginning, so hath he predestinate us to be made like to the image of his Son: and therefore will bring in his time, being called and justified, to glory, by the cross.

1 Not only afflictions, but whatsoever else.

2 He calleth that, Purpose, which God hath from everlasting appointed with himself according to his good will and pleasure.

3 He useth the time past for the time present, as the Hebrews use, who sometime set down the thing that is to come, by the time that is past, to signify the certainty of it; and he hath also regard to God's continual working.

26 Ninthly, we have no cause to fear that the Lord will not give whatsoever is profitable for us, seeing that he hath not spared his own Son save us.

Give freely.

27 A most glorious and comfortable conclusion of the whole second part of this epistle, that is of the treatise of justification: There are accusers that we have need to be afraid of before God, seeing that God himself absolveth us as just: and therefore much less need we fear damnation, seeing that we rest upon the death and resurrection of the almighty power and defence of Jesus Christ. Therefore what can there be so weighty in this life, or of so great force and power, that might fear us, though we might fall from the love of God, wherewith he loveth us in Christ? Surely nothing, seeing that it is in itself most constant and sure, and also in us being confirmed by steadfast faith.

1 Who pronounceth not only guiltless, but also perfectly just in his Son.

2 Wherewith Christ loveth us.

Pf. 44. 22.

A. D. 37 Nevertheless, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us.

38 For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,

39 Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

CHAP. IX.

1 His answer to objection that might be brought on the Jews behalf, 7 and telleth of two sorts of Abraham's children, 15 and that God worketh all things in this matter according to his will, 20 even as the poster Job. 24, 30 He proveth as well the calling of the Gentiles, 31 as also the casting off of the Jews, 25, 27 by the testimony of the prophets.

I Say the truth in Christ, I lye not, my conscience bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost,

2 That I have great heaviness, and continual sorrow in mine heart.

3 For I would with myself to be separate from Christ, for my brethren that are my kinsmen according to the flesh:

4 Which are the Israelites, to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises.

We are not only not overcome with so great and manifold sorrows and calamities, but also more than conquerors in all of them.

The third part of this epistle, even to the twelfth chapter, wherein Paul ascendeth to the highest degrees of faith: and first of all, because he purposed to speak much of the casting off of the Jews, he useth an insinuation, declaring by a double or triple oath, and by witnessing of his great desire towards their salvation, his singular love towards them, and therewithal granting unto them all their prerogatives.

The apostle loved his brethren so entirely, that if it had been possible, he would have been ready to have redeemed the casting away of the Israelites with the loss of his own soul for ever: for this word, Separate, betokeneth as much in this place.

Being brethren by flesh, as of one nation and country.

The ark of the covenant, which was token of God's presence.

The tables of the covenant, and this is spoken by the figure Metonymia.

Of the judicial law.

The ceremonial law.

Which were made to Abraham and to his posterity.

A most manifest testimony of the Godhead and divinity of Christ.

He entereth into the handling of predestination, by kind of preventing an objection: How may it be, that Israel is cast off, but that therewithal we must also make the covenant which God made with Abraham and his seed, frustrate and void? He answereth therefore, that God's word is true, although that Israel be cast off; for the election of the people of Israel is so general and common, that notwithstanding the same God chuseth by his secret counsel, such as it pleaseth him. So then, this is the proposition and state of this treatise: The grace of salvation is offered generally in such sort, that notwithstanding it, the efficacy thereof pertaineth only to the elect.

Israel in the first place, is taken for Jacob, and in the second, for the Israelites.

The first proof is taken from the example of Abraham's own house, wherein Isaac only was accounted the son, and that by God's ordinance: although that Ishmael also was born of Abraham, and circumcised before Isaac.

Isaac shall be thy true and natural son, and therefore heir of the blessing.

A general application of the former proof or example.

Which are born of Abraham by the course of nature.

Which are born by virtue of the promise.

A reason of that application: because that Isaac was born by the virtue of the promise, and therefore he was not chosen, nay, he was not at all, but by the free will of God: whereby it followeth, that the promise is the fountain of 5 Of whom are the fathers, and of whom concerning the flesh, Christ came, who is God over all, blessed for ever. Amen.

6 Notwithstanding, it cannot be that the word of God should take none effect: for all they are not Israel which are of Israel.

7 Neither are they all children, because they are the seed of Abraham: but, In Isaac shall thy seed be called:

8 That is, they which are the children of the flesh, are not the children of God: but the children of the promise are counted for the seed.

9 For this is word of promise, In this same time will I come, and Sara shall have a son.

10 Neither be only felt this, but also Rebecca, when she had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac.

11 For ere the children were born, and when they had neither done good nor evil, (that the purpose of God might remain according to election, not by works, but by him that calleth.)

12 It was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger.

13 As it is written, I have loved Jacob, and have hated Esau.

14 What shall we say then? Is there unrighteousness with God? God forbid.

15 For he saith to Moses, I will have mercy on him, on whom I will shew mercy: and will predestination, and not the flesh, from which promise the particular election proceedeth, that is, that the elect be born elect, and not that they be first born, and then after elected in respect of God, who doth predestinate.

Another forcible proof taken from the example of Esau and Jacob, which were both born of the same Isaac, which was the son of the promise, of one mother, and at one birth, and not at divers, as Ishmael and Isaac were: and yet notwithstanding, Esau being cast off only, Jacob was chosen: and that before their birth, that neither any goodness of Jacob's might be thought to be the cause of his election, neither any wickedness of Esau's, of his casting away.

God's decree which proceedeth of his meer good will, whereby it pleaseth him to chuse one, and refuse the other.

Paul saith not, might be made, but, being made might remain. Therefore they are deceived which make foreseen faith the cause of election, and foreknown infidelity the cause of reprobation.

He proveth the casting away of Esau by that, that he was made servant to his brother: and proveth the chusing of Jacob, by that, that he was made lord of his brother, although his brother was the first begotten. And lest any man might take this saying of God, and refer it to external things, the apostle sheweth out of Malachi, who is good interpreter of Moses, that the servitude of Esau was joined with the hatred of God, and the lordship of Jacob with the love of God.

The first objection, If God doth love or hate upon no consideration of worthiness, or unworthiness, then is he unjust, because he may love them which are unworthy, and hate them that are worthy. The apostle detesteth this blasphemy, and afterward answereth it severally point by point.

Man's wit knoweth no other causes of love or hate, but those that are in the persons, and thereupon this objection riseth.

He answereth first, touching them which are chosen to salvation: in the chusing of whom he denieth that God may seem unjust, although he chuse and predestinate to salvation them that are not yet born, without any respect of worthiness. Because he bringeth not the chosen to the appointed end, but by the means of his mercy, which is a cause next under predestination. Now mercy presupposeth misery; and again, misery presupposeth sin, or voluntary corruption of mankind; and corruption presupposeth a pure and perfect creation. Moreover, mercy is shewed by her degrees; to wit, by calling, by faith, by justification and sanctification, so that at length we come to glorification, as the apostle will shew afterward. Now all these things orderly following the purpose of God, do clearly prove that he can by no means seem unjust in loving and saving his.

I will be merciful and favourable to whom I list to be favourable.

A. D. 60. will have^p compassion on him, on whom I will have compassion.

16¹² So then it is not in him that^d willeth, nor in him that runneth, but in God that sheweth mercy.

17¹¹ For the^r scripture saith unto Pharaoh, For this same purpose have I^r stirred thee up, that I might¹⁴ shew my power in thee, and that my name might be^r declared throughout all the earth.

18¹⁵ Therefore he hath mercy on whom he will, and whom he will he hardeneth.

19¹⁶ Thou wilt say then unto me, Why doeth he yet complain? for who hath resisted his will?

20¹⁷ But O man, who art thou which pleadest against God? shall the^r thing^u formed say to him that formed it, Why hast thou made me thus?

21¹⁹ Hath not the potter power of the clay, will have compassion whomsoever I will have compassion.

12 The conclusion of the answer. Therefore God is not unjust in chusing and saving, of his free goodness, such as it pleaseth him; he also answered Moses when he prayed for all the people.

4 By will, he meaneth the thought and endeavour of heart, and by running, good works, neither of which he giveth the praise, but only to the mercy of God.

13 Now he answereth concerning the reprobate, or them whom God hateth, being not yet born, and hath appointed destruction, without any respect of unworthiness. And first of all he proveth this true, by alledging the testimony of God himself touching Pharaoh, whom he stirred up to this purpose, that he might be glorified in his hardening and just punishing.

7 God so speaketh unto Pharaoh in the scripture, or, the scripture bringeth in God, so speaking Pharaoh.

8 Brought thee into this world.

14 Secondly, he bringeth the end of God's counsel, to shew that there is no unrighteousness in him. Now this chiefest end is, properly and simply the destruction of the wicked, but God's glory which appeareth in their rightful punishment.

15 A conclusion of the full answer to the first objection. Therefore seeing God doth not save them whom he freely chose according his good will and pleasure, but by justifying and sanctifying them by his grace, his counsel in saving them cannot seem unjust. And again, there is injustice in the everlasting counsel of God, touching the destruction of them whom he listeth destroy, for that he hardeneth before he destroyeth: therefore the third answer for the maintenance of God's justice in the everlasting counsel of reprobation, consisteth in this word Hardening: which notwithstanding he concealed in the former verse, because the history of Pharaoh was well known. But the force of the word is great, for hardening, which is set against mercy, presupposeth the same things that mercy did, to wit, a voluntary corruption; wherein the reprobates hardened: and again, corruption presupposeth a perfect state of creation. Moreover, this hardening also is voluntary, for God so hardeneth being offended with corruption, that he useth their own will whom he hardeneth, the executing of that judgment. Then follow the fruits of hardening, to wit, unbelief and sin, which are the true and proper causes of the condemnation of the reprobate. Why doth he then appoint to destruction? Because he will: Why doth he harden? Because they are corrupt: Why doth he condemn? Because they are sinners. Where is then unrighteousness? Nay, if he should destroy all after this sort, to whom should he do injury?

9 Whom it pleased him appoint to shew his favour upon.

10 Another objection, but only from the reprobate, rising upon the former answer. If God do appoint everlasting destruction, such as he listeth, and if that cannot be hindered nor withstood, that he hath once decreed, how doth he justly condemn them, which perish by his will?

17 The apostle doth not answer that it is God's will, for that God doth not either reject elect according his pleasure, which thing the wicked call blasphemy, but he rather granteth his adversary both the antecedents, wit, that it is God's will, and that must of necessity fall out, yet he denieth that God is therefore be thought unjust revenger of the wicked: for seeing it appeareth by manifest proof, that this is the will of God, and his doing, what impudency is it for man, which is but dust and ashes, dispute with to make of the same lump one vessel to honour, and another unto dishonour?

18 What, and if God would, to shew his wrath; and to make his power known, suffer with long patience the vessels of wrath, prepared to destruction?

23 And that he might declare the riches of his glory upon the vessels of mercy which he hath prepared unto glory?

24 Even us whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles.

25 As he saith also in Hosea, I will call them my people, which were not my people: and her beloved, which was not beloved.

26 And it shall be in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, that there they shall be called, The children of the living God.

27 Also Esaias crieth concerning Israel,

X x Though

God, and as it were call him into judgment? Now if any man say that the doubt is so dissolved and answered, I answer, that there is no surer demonstration in any matter, because it is grounded upon this principle, That the will of God is the rule of righteousness.

18 An amplification of the former answer, taken from comparison, whereby also it appeareth that God's determinate counsel is of Paul the highest of all causes: so that it dependeth not upon any respect of the second causes, but doth rather frame and direct them.

19 This similitude agreeth very fitly the first creation of mankind.

19 Alluding to the creation of Adam, he compareth mankind not yet made, (but in the Creator's mind) lump of clay: whereof afterward God made, and doth daily make according as he purposed from everlasting, both such as should be elect, and such as should be reprobate, also this word, Making, declareth.

20 Whereas in the objection propounded, mention only made of vessels to dishonour, yet he speaketh of the other also in this answer, for that he proveth the Creator to be just in either of them, as the rule of contraries requireth.

21 To honest uses.

21 Seeing then that in the name of dishonour, the ignominy of everlasting death is signified, they speak with Paul which say, that some are made of God to most just destruction, and they that are offended with this kind of speech bewray their folly.

22 The second answer is this, that God, moreover and besides that he doth justly decree whatsoever he doth decree, useth that moderation in executing of his decrees, as declareth his singular lenity in the reprobate, in that that he suffereth them a long time, and permitteth them to enjoy many and singular benefits, until length he justly condemn them: and that to good end and purpose, to wit, to shew himself to be an enemy and revenger of wickedness, that it may appear what power he is of by these severe judgments, and finally by comparison of contraries to set forth indeed, how great his mercy is towards the elect.

23 By vessels, the Hebrews understand all kinds of instruments.

23 Therefore again, may say with Paul, that some are made of God the Creator to destruction.

24 The unmeasurable and marvellous greatness.

25 Having established the doctrine of the eternal predestination of God on both parts, that is, well of the reprobate as of the elect, he cometh now to shew the use of it, teaching us that ought not to seek the testimony of it in the secret counsel of God, but by the vocation which is made manifest, and set forth in the church, propounding unto us the example of the Jews and Gentiles, that the doctrine may be better perceived.

26 That all and every of the Jews are called, but some of the Jews, and some of the Gentiles.

25 Our vocation or calling is free, and of grace, even as our predestination is; and therefore there is no cause why either our own unworthiness, or the unworthiness of our ancestors, should cause us to think that we are not the elect and chosen of God, if we be called of him, and so embrace through the salvation that is offered us.

26 Contrariwise, Neither any outward general calling, neither any worthiness of our ancestors, is a sufficient witness of election, unless by faith and belief answer God's calling: which things came to pass in the Jews, the Lord had forewarned.

A. D. 60.

A. D. 60. Though the number of the children of Israel were as the sand of the sea, yet shall but a remnant be saved.

28 For he will make his account, and gather it into a short sum with righteousness: for the Lord will make a short account in the earth.

29 And as Esaias said before, Except the Lord of hosts had left us a seed, we had been made as Sodom, and had been like to Gomorrah.

30 What shall we say then? That the Gentiles, which followed not righteousness, have attained unto righteousness, even the righteousness which is of faith:

31 But Israel, which followed the law of righteousness, could not attain unto the law of righteousness.

32 Wherefore? Because they sought it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law: for they have stumbled at the stumbling-stone.

33 As it is written, Behold, I lay in Sion a stumbling-stone, and a rock to make men fall: and every one that believeth in him, shall not be ashamed.

CHAP. X.

11 He denieth the effects of election, 3 that some receive it, and some embrace, 4 Christ, who is the end of the law. 15 He saith that Moses foretold the calling of the Gentiles, 20 and Esaias the baring of the Jews.

BRETHREN, mine heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved.

2 For I bear them record, that they have the zeal of God, but not according to knowledge.

3 For they, being ignorant of the righteousness of God, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves to the righteousness of God.

4 For Christ is the end of the law for every one that believeth.

5 For Moses thus describeth the righteousness which is of the law, That the man which doeth these things, shall live thereby.

6 But the righteousness which is of faith speaketh thus, Say not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that is, to bring Christ from above:)

7 Or who shall descend into the deep? (that is, to bring Christ again from the dead)

8 But what saith it? The word is near thee, even in thy mouth, and in thine heart. This is the word of faith which we preach.

9 For if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart, that God raised him up from the dead, thou shalt be saved:

10 For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth man confesseth to salvation.

11 For the scripture saith, Whosoever believeth in him, shall not be ashamed.

12 For there is no difference between the Jew and the Grecian: for he that is Lord over all, is rich unto all that call on him.

13 For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved.

14 But how shall they call on him, in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him, of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?

15 And how shall they preach, except they be sent? it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them which bring glad tidings of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!

16 But

God purposeth to bring the unkind and unthankful people to an extreme sewness.

Armies, by which word the chiefest power that is, is given to God.

Even a very few.

The declaration and manifestation of our election, is our calling, apprehended by faith, as it came to pass in the Gentiles.

So then the Gentiles had no works to prepare and procure God's mercy beforehand. And as for that that the Gentiles attained to that which they sought not for, the mercy of God is to be thanked for it; and in that the Jews attained not to that which they sought after, they can thank none for it but themselves, because they sought it not aright.

The pride of men is the cause that they contemn vocation, so that the cause of their damnation need be sought for any other where but in themselves.

Seeking to come by righteousness, they followed the law of righteousness.

Purposing to set forth in the Jews an example of marvellous obstinacy, he useth an insinuation.

The first entrance into the vocation unto salvation, is to renounce our own righteousness: the which is, to embrace that righteousness by faith, which God freely offereth us in the gospel.

The ignorance of the law which we ought know, excuseth none before God, especially it excuseth not them that are of his household.

Ignorance hath always pride joined with it.

The proof: The law itself hath respect unto Christ, that such as believe in him should be saved. Therefore the calling to salvation by the works of the law, is vain and forlorn: but Christ is offered for salvation to every believer.

The end of the law is, to justify them that keep the law: but seeing we do not observe the law, through the fault of our flesh, we attain not unto this end: but Christ salvech this disease, for he fulfilled the law for us.

Not only to the Jews, but also to the Gentiles.

That the law regardeth and tendeth to Christ, this is a manifest proof, for that it propoundeth such a condition as can be and is fulfilled of none but of Christ only: which being imputed unto us by faith, our conscience is quieted, so that now no man can ask, Who can ascend up into heaven, or bring us from hell, seeing the gospel teacheth that both of these is done by Christ, and that for their sakes, which with true faith embrace him which calleth them.

Think not with thyself, as men that stagger use to do.

Vocation cometh by the word preached.

By the word, Moses understood the law which the Lord published with his own voice: and Paul applieth it to the preaching of the gospel, which is the perfection of the law.

That is indeed true faith, which is settled not only in the head, but also in the heart of man, whereof also we give testimony by our outward life, and which tendeth to Christ as to our alone and only Saviour, even as he setteth forth himself in his word.

If thou profess plainly, sincerely, and openly, that thou takest Jesus only to be thy Lord and Saviour.

The Father, who is said have raised the Son from the dead: and this is not spoken shut out the divinity, of the Son, but to set forth the Father's counsel touching our redemption in the resurrection of the Son.

Faith is said to justify, and furthermore seeing the confession of the mouth is an effect of faith, and confession is the way to salvation, it followeth that faith is also said to save.

Now he proveth the other part which he propounded afore in the fourth verse, to wit, that Christ calleth whomsoever he listeth, without any difference, and this he confirmeth by double testimony.

To believe in God, is to yield and consent to God's promise of our salvation by Christ, and that not only in general, but when we know that the promises pertain to us, whereupon riseth a sure trust.

True calling upon the name of God is the testimony of true faith; and true faith, of true vocation or calling; and true calling, of true election.

That is, true faith, which seeketh God in his word, and that preached, according as God hath appointed in the church.

A. D. 60. ¹⁰ But they have not ¹ all obeyed the gospel: for Esaias saith, * Lord, who hath believed our report?
¹⁷ ¹¹ Then faith is by hearing, and hearing by the ^m word of God.
¹⁸ ¹² But I demand, Have they not heard?
¹⁹ ¹³ But I demand, Did not Israel know God? First Moses saith, * I will provoke you to envy by a ⁿ nation that is not my nation, and by a foolish nation I will anger you.
²⁰ * And Esaias is ^o bold, and saith, I was found of them that sought me not, and have been made manifest to them that asked not after me.
²¹ And unto Israel he saith, [■] All the day long have I stretched forth mine hand unto [■] disobedient and gainsaying people.

CHAP XI.

[■] Left the casting-off the Jews should be limited according to the outward appearance, 4 he sheweth that Elias was in times past deceived: 16 and that, seeing they have an holy root, 23 many of them likewise shall be holy. 18, 24 He exhorteth the Gentiles to be humble, 33 and crieth out, that God's judgments are unsearchable.

I Demand then, ¹ Hath God cast away his people? God forbid: for ² I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

¹⁰ Wheresoever faith is, there is also the word; but not contrariwise, wheresoever the word is, there is faith also: for many refuse and reject the word.
¹ He speaketh this, because of the Jews.
¹¹ A conclusion of the former gradation: we must ascend from faith to our vocation, as by our vocation we [■] to the testimony of our election.
^m By God's commandment.
¹² An objection: If calling be a testimony of election, were not the Jews called? why should I not grant that, saith the apostle, seeing that there is no nation which hath not been called? much less can I say, that the Jews were not called.
¹³ The defender and maintainer of the Jews cause, goeth on still to ask, whether the Jews also knew not God which called them? Isaias (saith the apostle) denieth it: and witnesseth that the gospel was translated from them [■] the Gentiles, because the Jews neglected it. And therewithal the apostle teacheth, that that outward and universal calling, which is set forth by the creation of the world, sufficeth not to the knowledge of God: yea, and that the particular also which is by the word of God, is of itself of small [■] efficacy, unless it be apprehended or laid hold on by faith, by the gift of God: otherwise by unbelief it is made unprofitable, and that by the only fault of man, who [■] pretend no ignorance.
ⁿ He calleth all prophane people, a nation that is no nation, [■] they are not said to live but to die, which [■] appointed for everlasting condemnation.
^o Speaketh without fear.
¹ Now the apostle sheweth how this doctrine is to be applied to others, abiding still in his propounded cause. Therefore he teacheth us, that all the Jews in particular are not cast away, and therefore we ought not [■] pronounce rashly of private persons, whether they be of the number of the elect, or not.
² The first proof: I am [■] Jew, and yet elected, therefore we may, and ought, fully to resolve upon our election, [■] hath been before said: but of another [■] we cannot be so certainly resolved, and yet ours may cause [■] hope well of others.
³ The second proof: Because that God is faithful in his league or covenant, although [■] be unfaithful: so then, seeing that God hath said, that he will be the God of his unto a thousand generations, we must take heed, that we think not that the whole race and offspring is cast off, by reason of the unbelief of [■] few, but rather that [■] hope well of every member of the church, because of God's league and covenant.

³ God hath not cast away his people which he ^a knew before. ⁴ Know ye not what the scripture saith of Elias, how he communeth with God against Israel, saying,
³ * Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars: and I am left alone, and they seek my life.
⁴ But what saith the answer of God to him? * I have [■] reserved unto myself seven thousand men, which have not bowed the knee to [■] Baal.
⁵ Even so then at this present time is there [■] remnant according to the ^d election of grace.
⁶ And if it be of grace, it is ^e no more of works: or else were grace no more grace: but if it be of works, it is no more grace, or else were work no more work.
⁷ What then? Israel hath not obtained that he sought: but the election hath obtained it, and the rest have been ^f hardened:
⁸ ⁶ According [■] it is written, * God hath given them the spirit of [■] slumber: eyes that they ^b should not see, and ears that they should not hear, unto this day.
⁹ And David saith, * ¹ Let their table be made [■] snare, and a net, and [■] stumbling-block, even for a recompence unto them.
¹⁰ Let their eyes be darkened that they see not, and bow down their back always.
¹¹ ⁷ I demand then, Have they stumbled, that they should fall? God forbid: but through their fall, salvation cometh unto the Gentiles, to provoke them to follow them.
¹² Where-

^a Which he loved and chose from everlasting.
⁴ The third proof taken from the answer that was made to Elias: even then also, when there appeared openly to the face of the world no elect, yet God knew his elect and chosen, and of them also great store and number. Whereupon this also is concluded, that we ought not rashly to pronounce of any man as of [■] reprobate, seeing that the church is oftentimes brought to that state, that even the most watchful and sharp-sighted pastors think it [■] be clean extinct and put out.
^b He speaketh of remnants and reserved people which were chosen from everlasting, and not of remnants that should be chosen afterward, for they are not chosen, because they [■] not idolaters: but therefore they were not idolaters, because they were chosen and elect.
^c Baal signifieth as much, as master, or patron, or one in whose power another is, which [■] the idolaters at this day give their idols, naming them Patrons and Patronesses, [■] Ladies.
^d The election of grace is, not whereby [■] chose grace, but whereby God chose [■] of his grace and goodness.
^e Although that all be not elect and chosen, yet let them that are elected, remember that they [■] freely chosen: and let them that stubbornly refuse the grace and free mercy of God, impute it unto themselves.
^f This saying, beateth down flat to the ground all the doctrine of all kinds and manner of works, whereby our justifiers of themselves do teach, that works are either wholly, [■] partly, the cause of our justification.
⁶ And yet this hardness of heart cometh not but by God's just decree and judgment, and yet without fault, when as he so punisheth the unthankful by taking from them all sense and perseverance, and by doubling their darkness, that the benefits of God which [■] offered [■] them, do redound [■] their just destruction.
[■] A very dead sleep, which taketh away all sense.
[■] That is, eyes unfit [■] see.
¹ As unhappy birds [■] enticed [■] death by that which is their sustenance, so did that only thing turn to the Jews destruction, out of which they sought life, [■] wit, the law of God, for the preposterous zeal whereof, they refused the gospel.
⁷ God appointed this casting-off of the Jews, that it might be [■] occasion to call the Gentiles: and again, might turn this calling of the Gentiles, to be an occasion [■] restore the Jews, to wit, that they being inflamed and provoked by emulation of the Gentiles, might themselves at length embrace

A. D. 60. 12 Wherefore if the fall of them be the^r riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles, how much more shall their^r abundance be?

13 For in that I speak to you Gentiles, inasmuch as I am the apostle of the Gentiles: I magnify mine office, 14 To try if by any means I might provoke them of my flesh to follow them, and might save some of them.

15 For if the casting-away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving be, but life from the dead?

16 For if the^r first fruits be holy, so is the whole lump: and if the root be holy, so are the branches.

17 And though some of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wild olive-tree, wast grafted in for them, and made^r partaker of the root and fatness of the olive-tree:

18 Boast not thyself against the branches: and if thou boast thyself, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee.

19 Thou wilt say then, The branches are broken off, that I might be grafted in.

20 Well: through unbelief they are broken off, and thou standest by faith: be not high-minded, but fear.

21 For if God spared not the^r natural branches, will he also spare not thee.

A. D. 60. 22 Behold therefore the^r bountifulness and severity of God: toward them which have fallen, severity: but toward thee, bountifulness, if thou continue in his^r bountifulness: or else thou shalt also be cut off.

23 And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be grafted in: for God is able to graft them in again.

24 For if thou wast cut out of the olive-tree, which was wild by^r nature, and wast grafted contrary to nature in a^r right olive tree, how much more shall they that are by nature, be grafted in their own olive-tree?

25 For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this secret (lest ye should be arrogant in^r yourselves) that partly obstinacy is come to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be^r come in.

26 And so all Israel shall be saved, as it is written, The deliverer shall come out of Sion, and shall turn away the ungodliness from Jacob.

27 And this is my covenant with them, When I shall take away their sins.

28 As concerning the^r gospel, they are enemies for your sakes: but touching the^r election, they are beloved for the Father's sake.

29 For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

30 For even as ye in times past have not believed brace the gospel. And hereby we may learn, that the severity of God serveth as well to the setting-forth of his glory, as his mercy doth, and also that God prepareth himself a way to mercy, by his severity: so that we ought not rashly to despair of any man, nor proudly triumph over other men, but rather to provoke them to holy emulation, that God may be glorified in them also.

By riches, he meaneth the knowledge of the gospel to everlasting life: and by the world, all nations dispersed throughout the whole world.

Of the Jews, when the whole nation, without exception, shall come to Christ.

He witnesseth by his own example, that he goeth before all other in this behalf.

I make noble and famous.

It shall come to pass that when the Jews come to the gospel, the world shall, as it were, quicken again, and rise up from death to life.

The nation of the Jews being considered in their stock, and root, that is, in Abraham, is holy, although that many of the branches be cut off. Therefore in judging of our brethren, we must not stick in their unworthiness, think that they are at once all cut off, but we ought to consider the root of the covenant, and rather go back to their ancestors which were faithful, that we may know that the blessing of the covenant resteth in some of their posterity, as we also find proof hercof in ourselves.

He alludeth the first-fruits of those loaves, by the offering whereof all the whole crop of corn was sanctified. And they might use the rest of the year following with good conscience.

Abraham.

There is no cause why the Gentiles which have obtained mercy, should triumph over the Jews which contemn the grace of God, seeing they are grafted into the Jews ancestors. But let them rather take heed, that that also be not found in them which is worthily condemned in the Jews. And hercof also this general doctrine may be gathered and taken, that we ought to be studious of God's glory, in respect of our neighbours: so far ought we to be from bragging and glorying, for that, that we preferred before other by a singular grace.

In place of these boughs which are broken off.

It is against the common course of husbandry, that the barren juice of the imp is changed with the juice of the good tree.

We may rejoice in the Lord, but so that we despise not the Jews, whom we ought rather to provoke that good striving with us.

See that thou stand in awe of God modestly and carefully.

He calleth them natural, not because they had any holiness of nature, but because they were born of the the Lord set apart for himself from other nations, by his league and covenant, which he freely made with them.

Seeing the matter itself declareth that election cometh not by inheritance (although the fault be in men, and not in God, why the blessing of God is not perpetual) we must take good heed that that be not found in ourselves, which we think blame-worthy in others; for the election is sure, but they that truly elect and ingrafted, are not proud in themselves with contempt of other, but with due reverence to God, and love towards their neighbour, run to the mark which is set before them

The tender and living heart.

In that state which God's bountifulness hath advanced thee unto; and we must mark here, that he speaketh not of the election of every private man, which remaineth steadfast for ever, but of the election of the whole nation.

Many are now for a season cut off, that is, are without the root, which in their time shall be grafted in: and again there are a great sort, which after a sort, and touching the outward shew, seem to be ingrafted, which notwithstanding through their own fault, afterward are cut off, and clean cast away: which thing is especially to be considered in nations and people, in the Gentiles and Jews.

Understand nature, as it was first made, but as it was corrupted in Adam, and so derived from him to his posterity.

Into the people of the Jews, which God had sanctified of his grace: and he speaketh of the whole nation, not of every one apart.

The blindness of the Jews neither so universal that the Lord hath no elect in that nation, neither shall it be continual: for there shall be a time wherein they also (as the prophets have forewarned) shall effectually embrace that which they do now so stubbornly, for the most part, reject and refuse.

That ye be not proud within yourselves.

Into the church.

Again, that he may join the Jews and Gentiles together as it were in one body, and especially may teach what duty the Gentiles owe to the Jews, he beateh this into their heads, that the nation of the Jews not utterly cut off without hope of recovery.

Forasmuch as they receive it not.

In that God respecteth not what they deserve, but what he promised to Abraham.

The reason or proof: because the covenant made with that nation, of life everlasting, cannot be frustrate and vain.

Another reason; because that although they which are hardened, are worthily punished, yet hath not this stubbornness of the Jews so come to pass properly for an hatred to that nation, but that an entry might be, as it were, opened

A. D. 60. believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief.

31 Even so now have they not believed by the mercy shewed unto you, that they also may obtain mercy.

32 For God hath shut up all in unbelief, that he might have mercy on all.

33 O the deepness of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!

34 For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who was his counsellor?

35 Or who hath given unto him first, and he shall be recompensed?

36 For of him, and through him, and for him are all things: to him be glory for ever. Amen.

C H A P. XII.

1 He exhorteth 2 to that worship which is acceptable to God: 9 to love unfeigned, 14, 20 even towards our enemies.

I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye give up your bodies living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable serving of God.

And fashion not yourselves like unto this opened to bring in the Gentiles, and afterward the Jews, being inflamed with emulation of that mercy which is shewed to the Gentiles, might themselves also be partakers of the same benefit, and so it might appear that both Jews and Gentiles saved only by the free mercy and grace of God, which could not have been so manifest, if at the beginning God had brought altogether into the church, or if he had saved the nation of the Jews without this interruption.

Both Jews and Gentiles.

The apostle crieth out as astonished with this wonderful wisdom of God, which he teacheth us, ought to be religiously revered, and not curiously and profanely to be searched beyond the compass of that that God hath revealed unto us.

The course that he holdeth in governing all things both generally and particularly.

The order of his counsels and doings.

He bridleth three manner of ways, the wicked boldness of man: first, because that God is above all most wise, and therefore it is very absurd, and plainly godless to measure him by folly. Moreover, because he is debtor no man, and therefore no man can complain of injury done unto him. Thirdly, because all things made for his glory, and therefore we must refer all things his glory, much less may contend and debate the matter with him.

This saying overthroweth the doctrine of foreseen works and merits.

To wit, for God, to whose glory all things referred, not only things that were made, but especially his works which he worketh in his elect.

The fourth part of this epistle, which after the finishing of the chief points of Christian doctrine, consisteth in declaring of precepts of Christian life. And first of all, he giveth general precepts and grounds: the chiefest whereof is this, that every man consecrate himself wholly the spiritual service of God, and do it were sacrifice himself, trusting to the grace of God.

By this preface he sheweth that God's glory is the utmost end of all our doings.

In times past the sacrifices were presented before the altar: but now the altar is every where.

Yourself: in times past, other bodies than our own, now our own must be offered.

In times past, dead sacrifices were offered, but now must offer such have the Spirit of life in them.

Spiritual.

The second precept is this, That we take not other men's opinions or manners for a rule of life, but that we wholly renouncing this world, set before us as mark the will of God, as it is manifested and opened unto us in his word.

Why then there is no place left for reason, which the heathen philosophers place a queen in cattle, nor for world, but be ye changed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God is.

A. D. 60. Eph. 5. 17. 1 Thess. 4. 3.

3 For I say through the grace that is given unto me, to every one that is among you, that no man presume to understand above that which he meet to understand, but that he understand according to sobriety, as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith.

1 Cor. 12.

4 For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not one office,

Eph. 4. 7.

5 So we being many, have one body in Christ, and every one, another's members.

6 Seeing then that we have gifts that are divers, according to the grace that is given unto us, whether we have prophecy, let us prophesy according to the portion of faith:

1 Pet. 4.

7 Or an office, let us wait on the office: or he that teacheth, on teaching:

8 Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation: he that distributeth, let him do it with simplicity: he that ruleth, with diligence: he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness.

man's free will, which the popish schoolmen dream on, if the mind must be renewed. Look Ephes. 1. 18. and 2. 3. and 4. 17. and Coloss. 1. 21.

Thirdly, he admonisheth us very earnestly, that every man keep himself within the bounds of his vocation, and that every man be wise according to the measure of grace that God hath given him.

I charge.

That he please not himself too much, as they do which persuade themselves they know more than indeed they do.

We shall be sober, if we take not that upon us which we have not, and if we brag not of that we have.

By faith he meaneth the knowledge of God in Christ, and the gifts which the Holy Ghost poureth upon the faithful.

There is double reason of the precept going afore: the one is, because God hath not committed every thing to be done of every man: and therefore he doth backwardly, and only unprofitably, but also to the great disprofit of others, wearie himself and others, which passeth the bounds of his vocation: the other is, for that this diversity and inequality of vocations and gifts redoundeth to our commodity: seeing that the same is therefore instituted and appointed, that we should be bound one to another. Whereupon it followeth, that no man ought to be grieved thereat, seeing that the use of every private gift is common.

That which he spake before in general, he applieth particularly the holy functions, wherein men offend with great danger. And he divideth them into two sorts: to wit, into prophets and deacons: and again, he divideth the prophets into doctors and pastors. And of deacons he maketh three sorts: to wit, such as be such (as it were) treasurers of the church-coffers, whom he calleth properly deacons: the other to be the governors of the discipline, who are called Seniors, or Elders: the third, to be such as properly served in the help of the poor, of which sort the company of widows were.

That every observe the measure of that which is revealed unto him.

Whose office is only expound the scriptures.

Who in other places is called the pastor.

To wit, the alms, that he distribute them without respect of person.

The elders of the church.

They that are busied about tending on the poor, must do it with cheerfulness, lest they add sorrow to sorrow.

Now he cometh to the duties of the second table, which he deriveth from charity, which is, as it were, the fountain of them all. And he defineth Christian charity, by sincerity, hatred of evil, earnest study of good things, good affection to help our neighbour, and whose final end is the glory of God.

A. D. 60. brotherly love. In giving honour, go one before another, 11 Not slothful to do service, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.

12 Rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation, continuing in prayer.

13 Distributing unto the necessities of the saints: giving yourselves to hospitality.

14 Bless them which persecute you: bless, if you can, and curse not.

15 Rejoice with them that rejoice: and weep with them that weep.

16 Be of like affection one towards another: be not high-minded: but make yourselves equal to them of the lower sort: be not wise in yourselves.

17 Recompense to no man evil for evil: procure things honest in the sight of all men.

18 If it be possible, as much as in you is, have peace with all men.

19 Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but give place unto wrath: for it is written, Vengeance is mine: I will repay, saith the Lord.

20 Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him: if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head.

21 Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with goodness.

C H A P. XIII.

¶ He willeth that we submit ourselves to magistrates: 8 To love our neighbours: 13 To live uprightly, 14 and to put on Christ.

LET every soul be subject unto the higher powers: for there is no power but of God: and the powers that be, are ordained of God.

¶ This piece is well put in, for it maketh difference between christian duties and philosophical duties.

¶ He reckoneth up divers other virtues together with their effects, to wit, hope, patience in tribulation, equanimity, continuance in prayer, liberality toward the saints, hospitality, moderation of mind even in helping our enemies, self-same feeling with others, as well in adversity as prosperity, modesty, endeavour to maintain honest concord, so high as we may, with all men, which cannot be extinguished by any man's injuries.

¶ A true rule of charity, when we are less touched with other men's wants, than with our own, and having that feeling, help them as much as we can.

¶ Not upon pleasures and needless duties, but upon necessary uses.

¶ There is nothing that doth so much break concord as ambition, when as every man loatheth a base estate, and seeketh ambitiously to be aloft.

¶ Be not puffed up with opinion of your own wisdom.

¶ After this sort doth Solomon point out the wrath of God that hangeth over a man.

¶ Now he sheweth severally, what subjects owe to their magistrates, to wit, obedience: From which he sheweth that no man is free: and in such sort that it is not only due to the highest magistrate himself, but also even to the basest, which hath any office under him.

¶ Yea, though an apostle, though an evangelist, though a prophet: Chrysostom. Therefore the tyranny of the pope over all kingdoms must down to the ground.

¶ A reason taken of the nature of the thing itself: for what purpose they placed in higher degree, but that the inferior should be subject to them?

¶ Another argument of great force: because God is author of this order; so that such as rebels ought to know, that they make war with God himself: wherefore they cannot but purchase themselves great misery and calamity.

¶ Be distributed: for some are greater, some smaller.

¶ The third argument, taken from the end wherefore they were made, which is most profitable: for that God by this means preserveth the good, and bridleth the wicked: by which words, the magistrates themselves are put in mind of,

2 Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves condemnation.

3 For magistrates are not to be feared for good works, but for evil. Wilt thou then be without fear of the power? Do well: so shalt thou have praise of the same.

4 For he is the minister of God for thy wealth: but if thou do evil, fear: for he beareth not the sword for nought: for he is the minister of God to take vengeance on him that doeth evil.

5 Wherefore ye must be subject, not because of wrath only, but also for conscience sake.

6 For, for this cause ye pay also tribute: for they are God's ministers, applying themselves for the same thing.

7 Give to all men therefore their duty, tribute, to whom ye owe tribute: custom, to whom custom: fear, to whom fear: honour, to whom ye owe honour.

8 Owe nothing to any man, but to love one another: for he that loveth another, hath fulfilled the law.

9 For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet: and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying, even in this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

10 Love doeth not evil to his neighbour: therefore is love the fulfilling of the law.

11 And that, considering the season, that it is now time that we should arise from sleep: for now is our salvation nearer, than when we believed it.

12 The night is past, and the day is at hand, let that duty which they owe their subjects.

¶ An excellent way to bear this yoke, not only without grief, but also with great profit.

¶ God hath armed the magistrate even with revenging sword.

¶ By whom God avengeth the wicked.

¶ The conclusion: we must obey the magistrate, not only for fear of punishment, but much more because that (although the magistrate hath no power over the conscience of man, yet seeing he is God's minister) he cannot be resisted by any good conscience.

¶ So far lawfully we may: for if unlawful things be commanded us, we must answer as Peter teacheth us, It is better obey God than men.

¶ He reckoneth up the chiefest things wherein consisteth the obedience of subjects.

¶ Obedience, and that from the heart.

¶ Reverence, which (as reason is) we must give to the magistrate.

¶ He sheweth how very few judgments need to be executed, wit, if so order our life no man may justly require any thing of us, besides that only that we owe one to another by the perpetual law of charity.

¶ He commendeth charity an abridgment of the whole law.

¶ He hath not only done commandment, but performed generally that which the law commandeth.

¶ For the whole law commandeth nothing else, but that we love God, and our neighbour. But seeing Paul speaketh here of the duties we owe one to another, we must restrain this word, Law, to the second table.

¶ An amplification taken of the circumstance of the time: which also itself putteth in mind of our duty, (seeing that this remaineth, after that the darkness of ignorance and wicked affections by the knowledge of God's truth be driven out of us, that we order our life according to that certain and sure rule of all righteousness and honesty, being fully grounded upon the virtue of the Spirit of Christ.

¶ In other places we are said to be in the light, but yet so, that it appeareth not as yet what we are, for as yet we see but as it were in the twilight.

CHAP. XIV.

3 He willeth that we so deal with the weak in faith, 10 that through our fault they be not offended, 15 and on the other side he commandeth them not rashly to judge of the stranger: 19 That within the bounds of edification, 20 and charity, 22 Christian liberty may consist.

¶ HIM that is weak in the faith, receive unto you, but not for controversies of disputations.

2 One believeth that he may eat of all things: and another, which is weak, eateth herbs.

3 Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, condemn him that eateth: for God hath received him.

4 Who art thou that condemnest another man's servant? he standeth or falleth to his own master: yea, he shall be established: for God is able to make him stand. A. D. 60.

5 This esteemeth one day above another day, and another man counteth every day alike: let every be fully persuaded in his mind.

6 He that observeth the day, observeth it to the Lord: and he that observeth not the day, observeth it not to the Lord. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks: and he that eateth not, eateth not to the Lord, and giveth God thanks.

7 For none of us liveth to himself, neither doth any die to himself:

¶ For whether we live, we live unto the Lord: or whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's.

9 For Christ therefore died, and rose again, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and the quick.

10 But why dost thou condemn thy brother? or why dost thou despise thy brother? for we shall all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ. 2 Cor. 7. 10.

11 For it is written, I live, saith the Lord: and every knee shall bow to me, and all tongues shall confess unto God. Isa. 45. 23. Phil. 2. 10. 12 So

¶ That kind of life which they lead, that flee the light. 1 To put Christ, is possess Christ, to have him in us, and us in him.

¶ Now he sheweth how we ought to behave ourselves toward our brethren in matters and things indifferent, offending in the use of them, not of malice, or damnable superstition, but for lack of knowledge of the benefit of Christ. And thus he teacheth that they are to be instructed gently, and patiently, and so that apply ourselves in their ignorance in such matters, according to the rule of charity.

¶ Do not for matter or thing that is indifferent, and such as you may do or not do, shun his company, but take him to you.

¶ To make him by your doubtful and uncertain disputations: go away more in doubt than he came, or start back with a troubled conscience.

¶ He propoundeth for example the difference of meats, which some thought was necessary be observed, a thing prescribed by the law (not knowing that it was taken away) whereas on the contrary side, such as had profited in the knowledge of the gospel, knew well that this schoolmaster-ship of the law was abolished.

¶ Knoweth by faith.

¶ In such a matter, saith the apostle, let neither them which know their liberty, proudly despise their weak brother, neither let the unlearned crabbedly or frowardly condemn that that they understand not.

¶ The first reason: because that seeing both he that eateth and he that eateth not, is notwithstanding the member of Christ: neither he which eateth not, can justly be condemned; neither he which eateth, be justly condemned: now the first proposition is declared in the sixth verse following.

¶ Another reason which hangeth upon the former: why the ruder and unlearned ought not to be condemned of the more skilful, men without hope of salvation: because, saith the apostle, he that is ignorant to-day, may be indued to-morrow with further knowledge, so that he may also stand sure: therefore it belongeth God and not unto man, to pronounce that sentence of condemnation.

¶ Another example of the difference of days according to the law.

7 He setteth against this contempt, and hasty or rash judgments, a continual desire profit, that the strong may be certainly persuaded of their liberty, of what manner and sort it is, and how they ought to use it: and again the weak may daily profit, lest either they abuse the gift of God, or these please themselves in their infirmity.

¶ That he may say in his conscience, that he knoweth and is persuaded by Jesus Christ, that nothing is unclean of itself, and this persuasion must be grounded upon the word of God.

¶ A reason taken from the nature of indifferent things, which may with good conscience do, and omit: for seeing that the difference of days and meats was appointed by God, how could they which yet understood not the abrogating of the law, and yet otherwise acknowledged Christ their Saviour, with good conscience neglect that which they knew was commanded of God? And on the contrary side, they that knew the benefit of Christ in this behalf, did with good conscience neither observe days nor meats: Therefore saith the apostle, verse 10. Let the strong condemn the weak for these things, seeing that the weak brethren are brethren notwithstanding. Now if any man would draw this doctrine to these our times and ages, let him know that the apostle speaketh of such things indifferent, they which thought them not to be indifferent, had a ground in the law, and were deceived by simple ignorance, and not of malice, (for such the apostle yielded not, no not for a moment) nor superstition, but of a religious fear of God.

¶ Observeth precisely.

¶ God shall judge whether he do well or no: and therefore you should rather strive about this, how every one of you may be allowed of God, than to think upon other doings.

¶ He that maketh difference of meats.

¶ So the apostle sheweth that he speaketh of the faithful, both strong and weak: but what if we have to do with infidels? Then must we here take heed of two things, also is declared in the epistle the Corinthians. The one is, that we count not their superstition among things indifferent, as they did which sat down to meat in idols temples: the other is, that then also when the matter is indifferent (as buy a thing offered to idols, in the butchers shambles, and to eat it at home, or in a private banquet) we wound not the conscience of weak brother.

¶ He that toucheth not which he taketh to be unclean by the law.

10 We must not stick, saith he, in the meat itself, but in the use of the meat, so that he is justly be reprehended that liveth so, that he casteth his eyes upon God, for both life, and our death is dedicated to him: and for this cause Christ hath properly died, and not simply, that we might this or that.

¶ Hath respect to himself only, which the Hebrews utter after this sort, Doth well his own soul.

¶ The conclusion: we must leave God his right, and therefore in matters, which, according the conscience is affected, either good or evil, the strong must not despise their weak brethren, much less condemn them. But this consequent cannot be taken of equal force in the contrary, wit, that the weak should not judge the strong, because the weak do not know, that they which do not observe a day and eat, observe it not to the Lord, and eat to the Lord, the strong men know that the weak which observe a day and eat not, observe the day to the Lord, and eat not to the Lord.

¶ This is a form of an oath, proper to God only, for he and but he liveth, and hath his being of himself.

¶ Shall acknowledge for God.

A. D. 12 So then every one of us shall give accounts
60. of himself to God.

13 Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but use your judgment rather in this, that no man put an occasion to fall, or a stumbling-block before his brother.

14 I know, and am persuaded through the Lord Jesus, that there is nothing unclean of itself: but unto him that judgeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean.

15 But if thy brother be grieved for the meat, now walkest thou not charitably: Destroy not him with thy meat, for whom Christ died.

16 Cause not your commodity to be evil spoken of.

17 For the kingdom of God is not meat nor drink, but righteousness and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.

18 For whosoever in these things serveth Christ, is acceptable unto God, and is approved of men.

19 Let then follow those things which concern peace, and wherewith one may edify another.

20 Destroy not the work of God for meat's sake: all things indeed are pure: but it is evil for the man which eateth with offence.

21 It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or made weak:

22 Hast thou faith? have it with thyself before God? blessed is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth.

23 For he that doubteth, is condemned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: and whatsoever is not of faith, is sin.

C H A P. XV.

1 The stronger must employ their strength to strengthen the weak, 3 by Christ's example, 7 who receiveth not only the Jews, 10 but also the Gentiles. 15 The cause why he wrote this epistle.

WE which are strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.

2 Therefore let every man please his neighbour in that that is good to edification.

3 For Christ also would not please himself: but as it is written, The rebukes of them which rebuke thee, fell on me.

4 For whatsoever things are written aforetime, are written for our learning, that we, through patience and comfort of the scriptures, might have hope,

5 Now the God of patience and consolation give you that ye be like minded one towards another, according to Christ Jesus.

6 That ye with one mind, and with one mouth, may praise God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

7 Wherefore receive ye one another as Christ also received us, to the glory of God.

8 Now I say, that Jesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision, for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers.

9 And let the Gentiles praise God for his mercy, as it is written, For this cause I will confess 12 After that he hath concluded what is not to be done, he sheweth what is to be done: to wit, we must take heed that we do not utterly cast down, with abusing our liberty, our brother which is not yet strong.

He rebuketh by the way these malicious judgers of others, which occupy their heads about nothing, but to find fault with their brethren's life, whereas they should rather bestow their wits upon this, that they do not with their disdainfulness either cast their brethren clean down, or give them some offence.

13 The preventing of objection: it is true that the schoolmastery of the law is taken away by the benefit of Christ, to such know it; but yet notwithstanding we have consider, in the use of this liberty, what is expedient, that we may have regard of our weak brother, seeing that liberty is not lost thereby.

By the Spirit of the Lord Jesus, or by the Lord Jesus, who I am sure will brake down the wall at his coming.

By nature.

14 It is the part of a cruel mind to make more account of meat, than of our brother's salvation. Which thing they do, that presume to eat with the offence of any brother, and so give him occasion to go back from the gospel.

15 Another argument: we must follow Christ's example: who was so far from destroying the weak with meat, that he gave his life for them.

16 Another argument: for that by this means the liberty of the gospel is evil spoken of, as though it openeth the way to attempt any thing whatsoever, and boldeneth us all things.

17 A general reason, and the ground of all the other arguments: the kingdom of heaven consisteth not in these outward things, but in the study of righteousness and peace, and comfort of the Holy Ghost.

18 He that liveth peaceably, and dieth righteously, through the Holy Ghost.

19 A general conclusion: the use of this liberty, yea, and our whole life, ought to be referred to the edifying one of another, insomuch that we esteem that thing unlawful by reason of the offence of our brother, which is of itself pure and lawful.

20 He giveth a double warning in these matters: one, which pertaineth to the strong, that he which hath obtained a sure knowledge of this liberty, keep that treasure, in the end he may use it wisely and profitably, as hath been said: the other which respecteth the weak, that they do nothing rashly by other example with wavering conscience, for that cannot be done without sin, whereof we are not persuaded by the word of God, that he liketh and approveth it.

He shewed before, verse 14. what he meaneth by faith, to wit, for a man to be certain and out of doubt in matters and things indifferent.

Embraceth.

Reasoneth with himself.

Now the apostle reas'neth generally of tolerating or bearing with the weak, by all means, so far forth as may be for their profit.

And despise others.

For his profit and edification.

A confirmation taken of the example of Christ, who suffered all things, to bring not only the weak, but also his most cruel enemies, overcoming them with patience, to his father.

The preventing of an objection: such things as are cited out of the examples of the ancients, are propounded unto us to this end and purpose, that according to the example of our Fathers, we should in patience and hope bear one with another.

By Moses and the prophets.

The scriptures are said to teach and comfort, because God useth them to teach and comfort his people withal.

We must take an example of patience of God: that both the weak and the strong, serving God with a mutual consent, may bring another God, as Christ also received us unto himself, although we were never so unworthy.

He did not disdain us, but received us of his own accord, to make us partakers of God's glory.

An applying of the example of Christ to the Jews, whom he vouchsafed this honour, for the promises which he made unto their fathers, although they were never so unworthy, that he executed the office of a minister among them with marvellous patience: therefore much less ought the Gentiles despise them for certain faults, whom the Son of God so much esteemed.

Of the circumcised Jews, for as long as he lived, he never went out of their quarters.

That God might be seen to be true.

An applying of the same to the Gentiles, whom also the Lord of his incomprehensible goodness had regard of, so that they are not to be contemned of the Jews, as strangers.

A. D. 60. ¹ confess thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy name.

² And again he saith, * Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people.

³ And again, * Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and laud ye him, all people together.

⁴ And again Esaias saith, * There shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles, in him shall the Gentiles trust.

⁵ Now the God of ¹ hope fill you with ² all joy, and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost.

⁶ And I myself also am persuaded of you, my brethren, that ¹ ye also are full of goodness, and filled with all knowledge, and are able to admonish one another.

⁷ Nevertheless, brethren, I have somewhat boldly after ¹ sort written unto you, as one that putteth you in remembrance, through the grace that is given me of God,

⁸ That I should be the minister of Jesus Christ toward the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, that the ² offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost.

⁹ I have therefore whereof I may rejoice in Christ Jesus in those things which pertain to God:

¹⁰ For I dare not speak of any thing which ¹ Christ hath not wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient in word and deed, ¹¹ With the ² power of signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God: so that from Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have caused to abound the gospel of Christ.

¹² Yea, so I enforced myself to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should have built on another man's foundation, ¹³ But as it is written, ¹ To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see him, and they that heard not, shall understand him.

¹⁴ * Therefore also I have been oft let to come unto you:

¹⁵ But now seeing I have no more place in these quarters, and also have * been desirous many years ago to come unto you,

¹⁶ When I shall take my journey into Spain I will ~~come~~ to you: for I trust to see you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, after that I have been somewhat filled with your company.

¹⁷ But now go I to Jerusalem, to ¹ minister unto the faints.

¹⁸ For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia, to make ¹ certain distribution unto the poor faints which are at Jerusalem.

¹⁹ For it hath pleased them, and their debtors are they: * for if the Gentiles be made partakers of their spiritual things, their duty is also ² to minister unto them in carnal things. ³ 1 Cor. 6.

The First Epistle of the Apostle PAUL to the C O R I N T H I A N S.

CHAP. I.

After the salutation, 10 which in effect is an exhortation, 12 he reprehendeth the Corinthians sects and divisions, 17 and calleth them from pride to humility: 20 For, overthrowing all worldly wisdom, 23, 25 he advanceth only the preaching of the cross.

PAUL called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ, through the will of God, and our brother Sosthenes,

Unto the church of God, which is at Corinthus, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, saints by calling, with all that call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every place, both their Lord, and ours:

Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you in Jesus Christ,

That in all things ye are made rich in him, in all kind of speech, and in all knowledge:

The inscription of the epistle, wherein he chiefly goeth about to procure the good-will of the Corinthians towards him, yet notwithstanding, so that always he letteth them, to wit, that he is the servant of God, and not of men.

If he be an apostle, then he must be heard, although he sometimes reprehend them sharply, seeing he hath not his own cause in hand, but is messenger that bringeth the commandments of Christ.

He joineth Sosthenes with himself, that this doctrine might be confirmed by two witnesses.

It is a church of God, although it hath great faults in it, so that it obey them which admonish it.

A true definition of the catholic church which is one.

The father sanctifieth us, that is to say, separateth us from the wicked, in giving us to his Son, that he may be in us, and we in him.

Whom God of his gracious goodness and mere love hath separated for himself: or whom God hath called holiness: the first of these two expositions, sheweth from whence our sanctification cometh: and the second sheweth to what end it tendeth.

He is said properly call on God, who crieth unto the Lord when he is in danger, and craveth help at his hands, and by the figure Synecdoche, it is taken for all the service of God: and therefore to call upon Christ's name, is to acknowledge and take him for very God.

The foundation and the life of the church, is Christ Jesus, given of the Father.

Going about condemn many vices, he beginneth with a true commendation of their virtues, lest he might seem after to descend to chiding, being moved with malice or envy: yet so, that he referreth all God, the author of them, and that in Christ, that the Corinthians might be more ashamed to prophane and abuse the holy gifts of God.

He toucheth that by name which they most abused.

Seeing, that whilst live here, we know but in part, and prophesy in part, this word (All) must be restrained to the present state of the faithful: but by (Speech) he meaneth not a vain kind of babbling, but the gift of holy eloquence, which the Corinthians abused.

He sheweth that the true use of these gifts consisteth herein, that the mighty power of Christ might thereby be set forth in them, that hereafter it might evidently appear how wickedly they abused them to glory and ambition.

By those excellent gifts of the Holy Ghost.

He saith by the way, that there is no cause why they should please themselves so much in those gifts which they

6 As the testimony of Jesus Christ hath been confirmed in you:

7 So that ye are not destitute of any gift: waiting for the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ,

8 Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 God is faithful, by whom ye are called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

10 Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak one thing, and that there be no dissensions among you: but be ye knit together in one mind, and in one judgment.

11 For it hath been declared unto me, my brethren, of you, by them that are of the house of Cloe, that there are contentions made among you.

12 Now this I say, that every one of you saith, I am Paul's, and I am Apollos, and I am Cephas, and I am Christ's.

13 Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified had received, seeing that those were nothing in comparison of them which are to be looked for.

He speaketh of the last coming of Christ.

He testifieth that he hopeth well of them hereafter, that they may more patiently abide his reprehension afterward. And yet together therewithal sheweth that well the beginning the accomplishing of our salvation, is only the work of God.

He calleth them blameless, not whom man never found fault with, but with whom no man can justly find fault, that is to say, them which are in Christ Jesus, in whom there is condemnation. See Luke 1. 6.

True and constant, who doth not only call us, but giveth us the gift of perseverance also.

Having made an end of the preface, he cometh to the matter itself, beginning with a most grave obtestation, though they should hear Christ himself speaking, and not Paul.

The first part of this epistle, wherein his purpose is to call back the Corinthians to brotherly concord, and take away all occasion of discord. So then this first part concerneth the taking away of schisms. Now a schism is, when men, which otherwise agree and consent together in doctrine, do yet separate themselves from another.

Knit together, body that consisteth of all his parts fitly knit together.

He beginneth his reprehension and chiding by taking away of an objection: for that he understood by good witnesses, that there many factions among them. And therewithal he openeth the cause of dissensions, because that some did hang doctor, some on another, and some so addicted to themselves, that they neglected all doctors and teachers, calling themselves the disciples of Christ only, shutting forth their teachers.

The matter I would say to you, is this.

The first reason why schisms ought to be eschewed: because Christ seemeth by that means, to be divided and torn in pieces, who cannot be the head of two divers and disagreeing bodies, being himself one.

Another reason: because they cannot without great injury God, so hang of men as of Christ: which thing doubt they do, which allow whatsoever some man speaketh, for his person's sake: as these men allowed self-same gospel being uttered of man, and did loath it being uttered of another man. So that these factions were called by the name of their teachers. Now Paul setteth down his own name, not only to grieve no man, but also shew that he pleadeth his own cause.

A. D. 59. fied for you? either were ye ¹⁷ baptized into the name of Paul?

14 ¹⁸ I thank God, that I baptized none of you, but Crispus and Gaius, 15 Lest any should say, that I had baptized into mine own name.

16 I baptized also the household of Stephanas: furthermore know I not, whether I baptized any other.

17 ¹⁹ For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel, ²⁰ not with ¹ wisdom of words, lest the ²¹ cross of Christ should be made of none effect.

18 For that ²² preaching of the cross is to them that perish, foolishness: but unto us, which are saved, it is the ²³ power of God.

19 ²⁴ For it written, ²⁵ I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will cast away the understanding of the prudent.

20 Where is the wise? where is the ²⁶ scribe? where is the ²⁷ disputer of this world? hath not God made the wisdom of this world foolishness? A. D. 59.

21 ²⁸ For seeing the ²⁹ world by wisdom knew not God in the ³⁰ wisdom of God, ³¹ it pleased God by the ³² foolishness of preaching to save them that believe.

22 ³³ Seeing also that the Jews require ³⁴ a sign, and the Grecians seek after wisdom. ³⁵

23 But we preach Christ crucified: unto the Jews, even ³⁶ a stumbling-block, and unto the Grecians, foolishness:

24 But unto them which are called, both of the Jews and Grecians, ³⁷ we preach Christ, the power of God, and the wisdom of God.

25 For the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

26 ³⁸ For, brethren, you see your ³⁹ calling, how that not many wise men ⁴⁰ after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called. ⁴¹

27 But

¹⁷ The third reason taken of the form and end of baptism, wherein we make a promise to Christ, calling also on the name of the Father, and the Holy Ghost. Therefore although a man do not fall from the doctrine of Christ, yet if he hang upon some certain teachers, and despise others, he forsaketh Christ: for if he hold Christ his only Master, he would hear him, teaching by whomsoever.

¹⁸ He protesteth that he speaketh so much the more boldly of these things, because that through God's providence, he is void of all suspicion of challenging disciples unto himself, and taking them from others. Whereby we may understand, that not the scholars only, but the teachers also are here reprehended, which gather themselves flocks apart.

¹⁹ The taking away of an objection: that he gave not himself to baptize any amongst them: not for the contempt of baptism, but because he was chiefly occupied in delivering the doctrine, and committed them that received his doctrine to others to be baptized, whereof he had store. And so he declared sufficiently how far he was from all ambition: whereas on the other side, they whom he reprehendeth, though they gathered disciples unto themselves and not unto Christ, bragged most ambitiously of numbers, which they had baptized.

²⁰ Now he turneth himself to the doctors themselves, which pleased themselves in brave and ambitious eloquence, the end that they might draw more disciples after them. He confesseth plainly that he was unlike unto them, opposing gravely, it became an apostle, his example against their perverse judgments: so that this is another place of this epistle, touching the observing of ²¹ godly simplicity both in words and sentences, in teaching of the gospel.

²² The reason why he useth not the pomp of words and painted speech: because it was God's will to bring the world to his obedience by that way, whereby the most idiots amongst men might understand that this work was done of God himself, without the art of man. Therefore as salvation is set forth unto us in the gospel by the cross of Christ, than which nothing is more contemptible, and more far from life; so God would have the manner of the preaching of the cross most different from those means which ²³ do use to draw and entice others, either to hear or believe: therefore it pleased him by ²⁴ certain kind of most wise folly, to triumph over the most foolish wisdom of the world, as he had said before by Isaiah, that he would. And hereby we may gather, that both these doctors which were puffed up with ambitious eloquence, and also their hearers, strayed far away from the end and mark of their vocation.

²⁵ The preaching of Christ crucified, or the kind of speech which we use.

²⁶ It is that wherein he declareth his marvellous power in saving his elect, which would not so evidently appear, if it hanged upon any help of man, for so man might attribute that to himself, which is proper only ²⁷ in the cross of Christ.

²⁸ The apostle proveth, this ought not only not to seem strange, seeing that it was foretold so long before, but declareth further, that God is wont to punish the pride of the world in such sort, which so pleaseth itself in its own wisdom; and therefore that that is vain, yea a thing of nothing, and such ²⁹ God rejecteth ³⁰ unprofitable, which they so carefully laboured for, and made so great account of.

³¹ Whereart thou, O thou learned fellow, and thou that spendest thy days in turning thy books?

³³ He sheweth that the pride of men was worthily punished of God, because they would not behold God, as meet was they should, in the most clear glass of the wisdom of the world, which is the workmanship of the world.

³⁴ By the world, he meaneth all men which are not born anew, but remain ³⁵ they were, when they were first born.

³⁶ In the workmanship of this world, which hath the marvellous wisdom of God engraved in it, so that every man may behold it.

³⁷ The goodness of God is wonderful, for while he goeth about to punish the pride of this world, he is very provident and careful for the salvation of it, and teacheth men ³⁸ become fools, that they may be wise ³⁹ God.

⁴⁰ So he calleth the preaching of the gospel, as the enemies supposed it: but in the mean season he taunteth them very sharply, who had rather charge God with folly, than acknowledge their own, and crave pardon for it.

⁴¹ A declaration of that which he said, that the preaching of the gospel, is foolish. It is foolish, saith he, to them whom God hath not endued with new light, that is to say, to all men being considered in themselves: for the Jews require miracles, and the Grecians arguments, which they may comprehend by their wit and wisdom: and therefore they do not only not believe the gospel, but also they mock at it. Notwithstanding in this foolish preaching, there is the great virtue and wisdom of God, but such as those only which ⁴² called do perceive: God shewing most plainly, that even then when madmen think him most foolish, he is far wiser than they are: and that he firmounteth all their might and power, when he useth most vile and abject things, ⁴³ it hath appeared in the fruit of the preaching of the gospel.

⁴⁴ A confirmation taken of those things which came to pass at Corinth, where the church especially consisted of the basest and common people, insomuch that the philosophers of Greece were driven to shame when they saw that they could do nothing with their wisdom and eloquence, in comparison of the apostles, whom notwithstanding they called idiots and unlearned. And herewithal doth he beat down their pride: for God did not prefer them before those noble and wise men because they should be proud, but that they might be constrained, even whether they would or not, to rejoice in the Lord, by whose mercy, although they were the most abject of all, they obtained in Christ, both this wisdom, and all things necessary to salvation.

⁴⁵ What way the Lord hath taken in calling you.

⁴⁶ After that kind of wisdom which men make account of, as though there were none else: who because they are carnal, know not spiritual wisdom.

A. D. 59. 27 But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the mighty things:

28 And vile things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are,

29 That no flesh should rejoice in his presence.

30 But ye are of him in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption, 31 That, according as it is written, He that rejoiceth, let him rejoice in the Lord.

C H A P. II.

He setteth down a plat-form of his preaching, which was base in respect of man's wisdom, but noble in respect of the spiritual power and efficacy: and so concludeth, that flesh and blood cannot rightly judge thereof.

A. D. 59. 1. 17. AND I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of words, or of wisdom, shewing unto you the testimony of God.

2 For I esteemed not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified.

* Which in man's judgment are almost nothing.

† To shew that they are vain and unprofitable, and nothing worth. See Rom. 3. 31.

‡ Flesh is oft, as we see, taken for the whole man: and he useth this word, Flesh, very fitly, to set the weak and miserable condition of man, and the majesty of God, against the other.

§ Whom he cast down before, now he listeth up, yea, higher than all men: yet so, that he sheweth them, that all their worthiness is without themselves, that is, standeth in Christ, and that of God.

¶ He teacheth that especially and above all things the gospel ought not to be contemned, seeing it containeth the chiefest things that are to be desired, to wit, true wisdom, the true way to obtain righteousness, the true way to live honestly and godly, the true deliverance from all miseries and calamities.

‡ I let him yield all to God, and give him thanks: and so by this place is man's free will beaten down, which the Papists so dream of.

§ He returneth to the seventeenth verse of the former chapter, that is to say, to his own example: confessing that he used not among them either excellency of words or enticing speech of man's wisdom, but with great simplicity of speech both knew and preached Jesus Christ crucified, humble and abject touching the flesh.

¶ The gospel.

‡ I purposed not to profess any knowledge but the knowledge of Christ and him crucified.

§ He setteth weakness against excellency of words, and therefore joineth with it and trembling, which terrify the conscience, but such contrary to vanity and pride.

¶ He turneth that now to the commendation of his ministry, which he had granted to his adversaries: for his virtue and power, which they knew well enough, was so much the more excellent, because it had no worldly help joined with it.

‡ By plain evidence he meaneth such proof, is made by certain and necessary reasons.

§ And he telleth the Corinthians that he did it for their great profit, because they might thereby know manifestly that the gospel was from heaven. Therefore he privily rebuketh them, because that in seeking vain ostentation, they willingly deprived themselves of the greatest help of their faith.

¶ Another argument taken of the nature of the thing, that is, of the gospel, which is true wisdom, but known them only which are desirous of perfection: and is unfavoury to them which otherwise excel in the world, but yet

3 And I among you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling.

4 Neither stood my word, and my preaching, in the enticing speech of man's wisdom, but in plain evidence of the Spirit and of power:

5 That your faith should not be in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

6 And we speak wisdom among them that are perfect: not the wisdom of this world, neither of the princes of this world, which come to nought.

7 But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hid wisdom, which God had determined before the world, unto our glory.

8 Which none of the princes of this world have known: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

9 But as it is written, The things which eye hath not seen, neither ear hath heard, neither came into man's heart, are, which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

11 For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of a man, which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received not the spirit of the vainly and frailly.

* Those are called perfect here, not which had gotten perfection already, but such as tend to it, Phil. 3. 15. so that perfect is set against weak.

† They that are wiser, richer, or mightier than other are.

‡ He sheweth the cause why this wisdom cannot be perceived of those excellent worldly wits, to wit, because indeed it is so deep, that they cannot attain unto it.

§ Which men could not so much dream of.

¶ He taketh away an objection: If it be so hard, when, and how is it known? God, saith he, determined with himself from the beginning, that which his purpose was to bring forth this time of his secrets, for the salvation of

‡ He taketh away another objection: why then, how cometh it to pass, that this wisdom was so rejected of men of highest authority, that they crucified Christ himself? Paul answereth: because they knew not Christ such he was.

§ That mighty God, full of true majesty and glory: Now this place hath in it most evident proof of the divinity of Christ, and of his joining of the two natures in one, which hath this in it, that that which is proper the manhood alone, is vouched of the Godhead joined with the manhood: which kind of speech is called of the old fathers, A making common of things belonging some one, with others to whom they do not belong.

¶ Another objection. But how could it be that those witty could not perceive this wisdom? Paul answereth: Because we preach those things which pass all men's understanding.

† Man cannot so much think them, much less conceive of them with his senses.

‡ A question. If it surmount the capacity of men, how can it be understood of any man, or how can you declare and preach it? by a peculiar lightening by God's Spirit, wherewith whosoever is inspired, he can enter into the very secrets of God.

§ There is nothing so secret and hidden in God, but the Spirit of God pierceth into it.

¶ He setteth that forth by similitude, which he spake of the inspiration of the Spirit. As the force of man's wit searcheth out things pertaining man, so doth our mind by that power of the Holy Ghost understand heavenly things.

† The mind of man which is endued with the ableness understand and judge.

‡ The Spirit which we have received, doth not teach us things of this world, but listeth up to God; and this place teacheth us against the Papists, what faith is, from whence it cometh, and what force it is of.

14 But the natural man perceiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

15 But he that is spiritual, discerneth all things: yet he himself is judged of no man.

16 For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he might instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ.

CHAPTER III.

He yieldeth a reason why he preached small matters unto them: 4 He sheweth how they ought to esteem of ministers. 6 The minister's office. 10 A true form of edifying. 16 He warneth the Corinthians, that they be not drawn away to profane things, 18 through the proud wisdom of the flesh.

That which he spake generally he reargineth now to those things which God hath opened unto us of our salvation in Christ: lest that any man should separate the Spirit from the preaching of the word and Christ: or should think that these fantastical men are governed by the Spirit of God, which wandering besides the word, thrust upon us their vain imaginations for the secrets of God.

This word (know) is taken here in his proper sense, for true knowledge, which the Spirit of God worketh in us.

Now he returneth to his purpose, and concludeth the argument which he began ver. 6. and it is thus: The words must be applied to the matter, and the matter must be set forth with words which meet and convenient for it. Now this wisdom is spiritual and not of man, and therefore it must be delivered by a spiritual kind of teaching, and not by enticing words of man's eloquence, that the simplicity, and yet wonderful majesty of the Holy Ghost may therein appear.

Applying the words unto the matter, to wit, that as we teach spiritual things, so must our kind of teaching be spiritual.

Again he preventeth an offence or stumbling-block: How cometh it to pass, that so few allow these things? This is not to be marvelled at, saith the apostle, seeing that men in their natural powers (as they term them) are not endued with that faculty whereby spiritual things are discerned (which faculty cometh another way) and therefore they account spiritual wisdom as folly: and it is as if he should say, It is no marvel that blind men cannot judge of colours, seeing that they lack the sight of their eyes, and therefore light is to them darkness.

The man that hath no further light of understanding, than that which he brought with him, even from his mother's womb, as Jude dennoteth it, Jude 19.

By the virtue of the Holy Ghost.

He amplifieth the matters by contraries.

Understandeth and discerneth.

The wisdom of the flesh, saith Paul, determineth nothing certainly, no not in its own affairs, much less can it discern things, that is, spiritual things. But the Spirit of God, when with spiritual men are endued, can be deceived by no means, and therefore be reprov'd of no man.

Of no man: for when the prophets are judged of the prophets, it is the Spirit that judgeth, and not the man.

A reason of the former saying: for he is called spiritual, which hath learned that by the virtue of the Spirit, which Christ hath taught us. Now if that which we have learned of that master could be reprov'd of any man, he must needs be wiser than God: whereupon it followeth, that they are not only foolish, but also wicked, which think that they can devise something that is either more perfect, or that they can teach the wisdom of God a better way than they knew or taught, which undoubtedly were endued with God's Spirit.

Lay his head to his, and teach him what he should do.

We are endued with the Spirit of Christ, who openeth unto us those secrets, which by all other means are unsearchable, and also all truth whatsoever.

AND I could not speak unto you, brethren, unto spiritual men, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ.

2 I gave you milk to drink, and not meat: for ye were not yet able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able.

3 For ye are yet carnal: for whereas among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men?

4 For when one saith, I am Paul's, and another, I am Apollos, are ye not carnal?

5 Who is Paul then? and who is Apollos? but the ministers by whom ye believed, and as the Lord gave to every man?

6 I have planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the increase.

7 So then, neither is he that planteth, any thing, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increase.

8 And he that planteth, and he that watereth, are one: and every man shall receive his wages according to his labour.

9 For we together are God's labourers: ye are God's husbandry, and God's building.

10 Ac-

Having declared the worthiness of heavenly wisdom, and of the gospel, and having generally condemned the blindness of man's mind, now at length he applyeth it particularly to the Corinthians, calling them carnal, that is, such in whom as yet the flesh prevaileth against the Spirit. And he bringeth a double testimony of it: first, that he had proved them to be such, insomuch that he dealt with them no otherwise than with ignorant men, and such as are almost babes in the doctrine of godliness; and secondly, because they shewed indeed by these dissensions, which sprang up by reason of the ignorance of the virtue of the Spirit, and heavenly wisdom, that they had profited very little or nothing.

He calleth them carnal, which as yet ignorant, and therefore to express it the better, he termeth them babes.

Substantial meat, or strong meat.

To be fed by me with substantial meat: therefore the Corinthians grew up in age, so the apostle nourished them by teaching, first with milk, then with strong meat, which difference was only but in the manner of teaching.

By the square and compass of man's wit and judgment.

After that he hath sufficiently reprehended ambitious teachers and their foolish esteemers, now he sheweth how the true ministers are to be esteemed, that we attribute not unto them more or less than we ought to do. Therefore he teacheth us, that they are they by whom we are brought to faith and salvation, but yet the ministers of God, and such as do nothing of themselves, but God so working by them as it pleaseth him to furnish them with his gifts. Therefore we have not to mark or consider what minister it is that speaketh, but what is spoken: and we must depend only upon him which speaketh by his servants.

He beautifieth the former sentence with two similitudes: first comparing the company of the faithful to a field which God maketh fruitful, when it is sowed and watered through the labour of his servants: next, by comparing it to an house, which indeed the Lord buildeth, but by the hands of his workmen, some of whom he useth in laying the foundation, others in building of it up. Now, both these similitudes tend to this purpose, to shew that all things are wholly accomplished by God's only authority and might, so that we must only have an eye to him. Moreover, although that God useth some in the better part of the work, we must therefore concern others in respect of them, and much less may we divide or set them apart, (as these factious men did) seeing that all of them labour in God's business, and in such sort, that they serve to finish one self-same work, although by a diverse manner of working, insomuch that they need one another's help.

Serving under him: Now they which serve under another, do nothing of their own strength, but as it is given them by grace, which grace maketh them fit to that service. Look chap. 15. 10. and 2 Cor. 3. 6. and all the increase that cometh by their labour, doth so proceed from God, that no part of the praise of it may be given to the under servant.

A. D.
59.

10 According to the grace of God given me, as a skilful master-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon: ⁴ but let every man take heed how he buildeth upon it.

11 ⁵ For other foundation can no man lay, than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

12 ⁶ And if any man build on this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, timber, hay, or stubble, 13 ⁷ Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by the fire: and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.

14 If any man's work, that he hath built upon, abide, he shall receive wages.

15 If any man's work burn, he shall lose, but ⁸ he shall be saved himself: nevertheless yet as it were by the fire.

16 ⁹ Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?

17 If any man ¹ destroy the temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the temple of God is holy, which ye are.

18 ¹⁰ Let no man deceive himself: If any man amongst you seem to be wise in this world, let him be ¹¹ fool, that he may be wise.

⁴ Now he speaketh to the teachers themselves, which succeeded him in the church of Corinth, and in their person to all that were after, or shall be pastors of congregations, seeing that they succeed into the labour of the apostles, which were planters and chief builders. Therefore he warneth them first, that they persuade not themselves that they may build after their own fancy, that is, that they may propound and set forth any thing in the church, either in matter or in kind of teaching, different from the apostles which were the chief builders.

⁶ Thirdly, he sheweth, that they must take heed that the upper part of the building be answerable to the foundation, that is, that admonitions, exhortations, and whatsoever pertaineth to the edifying of the flock, be answerable to the doctrine of Christ, as well in matter as in form: which doctrine is compared to gold, silver, and precious stones: of which matter, Isaiah also, and John in the Revelations, build the heavenly city. And ¹¹ these are opposite, wood, hay, stubble, that is ¹² say, curious and vain questions or decrees: and besides, ¹³ he short, all that kind of teaching which serveth ¹⁴ ostentation. For false doctrines, whereof he speaketh not here, ¹⁵ not said properly to be built upon this foundation, unless peradventure in shew only.

⁹ Continuing still in the metaphor of ¹⁰ building, he teacheth us that this ambition is not only vain, but also sacrilegious: for he saith that the church is, ¹¹ it were, the temple of God, which God hath, ¹² it were, consecrated unto himself by his Spirit. Then turning himself

19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God: for it is written, ¹ He ² catcheth the wife in their own craftiness. A. D. 59. Job. 5. 13.

20 ³ And again, The Lord knoweth that the thoughts of the wise be vain. *Ps. 44. 18.

21 ⁴ Therefore let no man ⁵ rejoice in men: for all things are ⁶ yours.

22 Whether it be Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the ⁷ world, or life, or death, whether they be things present, or things to come, even all are yours.

23 And ye Christ's, and Christ God's.

C H A P. IV.

¹ Bringing in the definition of a true apostle, ² he sheweth that humility ought rather to be ³ honour than a shame unto him. ⁴ He bringeth in a proof, whereby it may evidently appear, ⁵ that he neither had care of glory, ⁶ nor of his belly. ⁷ He commendeth Timothy.

LET ¹ a man so think of us, as of the ministers of Christ, and disposers of the secrets of God.

² And as for the rest, it is required of the disposers, that every man be found faithful.

³ As touching me, I pass very little to be judged to these ambitious men, he sheweth that they profane the temple of God, because those vain arts wherein they please themselves so much, are ¹ he teacheth, so many pollution, of the holy doctrine of God, and the purity of the church. Which wickedness shall not be suffered unpunished.

² Defileth it and maketh it unclean, being holy: and surely they do defile it, by Paul's judgment, which by fleshly eloquence defile the purity of the gospel.

³ He concludeth by the contrary, that they profess pure wisdom in the church of God, which refuse and cast away all those vanities of men: and if they be mocked of the world, it is sufficient for them that they be wise according ⁴ the wisdom of God, and ⁵ he will have them to be wise.

⁶ Be they never so crafty, yet the Lord will take them when he shall discover their treachery.

⁷ He returneth to the proposition of the second verse, first warning the hearers, that henceforward they esteem not as lords, those whom God hath appointed to be ministers, and not lords of their salvation: which thing they do, that depend upon men, and not upon God that speaketh by them.

⁸ Please himself.

⁹ Helps appointed for your benefit.

¹⁰ He passeth from the persons to the things themselves, that his arguments be more forcible: yea, he ascendeth from Christ to the Father, to shew that ¹¹ rest ourselves ¹² not in Christ himself, in that that he is man, but because he carrieth us up ¹³ the Father, as Christ witnesseth of himself every where, that he was sent of his Father, that by this band we may be all knit with God himself.

¹⁴ He concludeth the duty of the hearers towards their ministers: that they esteem them not ¹⁵ lords: and yet notwithstanding, that they give ear unto them, as to them that ¹⁶ sent from Christ; sent, I say, to this end and purpose, that they may receive ¹⁷ it were at their hands, the treasure of salvation which is drawn out of the secrets of God.

¹⁹ Last of all, he warneth the ministers, that they also behave themselves not as lords, but ²⁰ faithful servants, because they must render ²¹ account of their stewardship unto God.

²² Because in reprehending others, he set himself for an example, he useth a pre-occupation ²³ preventing of an objection, and using the gravity of an apostle, he sheweth that he careth ²⁴ for the contrary judgments that they have of him, ²⁵ that they esteemed him as a vile person, because he did not set forth himself ²⁶ they did. And he bringeth good reasons why he was nothing moved with the judgments which they had of him.

A. D. 59. judged of you, ^a or of man's ^b judgment: no, ^c I judge not mine own self.

^d For I know nothing by myself, yet am I not thereby justified: but he that judgeth me, is the ^e Lord.

^f Therefore ^g judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who will lighten things that are hid in darkness, and make the counsels of the hearts manifest: and then shall every man have ^h praise of God.

ⁱ Now these things, brethren, I have figuratively applied unto mine own self, and Apollos, for your sakes, that ye might learn ^j by us, that no man presume above that which is written, that one swell not against another for any man's cause.

^k For who separateth thee? and what hast thou, that thou hast not received? if thou hast received it, why rejoicest thou, as though ^l thou hadst not received it?

^m Now ye are full: now ye are made rich: ye reign as kings without us: and would to God ye did reign, that we also might reign with you.

ⁿ For I think that God hath set forth us the last apostles, as men appointed to death: for we are made a ^o gazing-stock unto the world, and to the angels, and to men.

^p We are fools for Christ's sake, and ye are wise in Christ: we are weak, and ye are strong: ye are honourable, and we are despised.

^q To this hour we both hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place,

^r And labour, working with our own hands: we are reviled, and yet we bless: we are persecuted, and suffer it:

^s We are evil spoken of, and we pray: we are made as the ^t filth of the world, the obscuring of all things unto this time.

^u I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved children I admonish you. ^v For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel.

^w Wherefore, I pray you, be ye followers of me.

^x For this cause have I sent unto you Timothy, which is my beloved son, and faithful in the Lord, which shall put you in remembrance of my ^y ways in Christ, as I teach every where in every church.

^z Some are puffed up, ^{aa} though I would not come unto you.

^{ab} But I will come to you shortly, ^{ac} if the Lord will, and will know, not the ^{ad} words of them which are puffed up, but the power. ^{ae} For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power.

^{af} What will ye? shall I come unto you with a rod, or in love, and in the ^{ag} spirit of meekness?

CHAP. V.

^{ah} That they have winked at him who committed incest with his mother-in-law, ^{ai} he sheweth, should cause them rather to be ashamed, than to rejoice. ^{aj} Such kind of wickedness is to be punished with excommunication, ^{ak} lest others be infected with it.

IT is ^{al} heard certainly that there is fornication among you: and such fornication as is not once named among the Gentiles, that one should have his father's wife.

^{am} And ye are puffed up, and have not rather sorrowed, that he which hath done this deed, might be put from among you.

^{an} For I verily ^{ao} absent in body, but present in ^{ap} spirit, have determined already as though I were

^a First, because that that which men judge in these cases of their own brains, is no more to be accounted of, than when the unlearned do judge of wisdom.

^b Word for word, Day, after the manner of the speech of the Citizens.

^c Secondly, saith he, how can ye judge how much or how little I am to be accounted of, seeing that I myself, which know myself better than you do, and which dare profess that I have walked in my vocation with ^d good conscience, dare not yet notwithstanding challenge any thing to myself: for I know that I am not unblameable, all this notwithstanding: much less therefore should ^e I please myself as you do.

^f I commit myself to the Lord's judgments.

^g A third reason proceeding of ^h conclusion, as it were, out of the former reasons. It is God's office to esteem every man according to his value, because he knoweth the secrets of the heart, which men, for the most part, are ignorant of. Therefore this judgment pertaineth not to you.

ⁱ One could not be praised above the rest, but the other should be blamed: and he mentioneth praise rather than dispraise, for that the beginning of this fore was this, that they gave more to some men than meet was.

^j Having rejected their judgment, he setteth forth himself again as a singular example of modesty, as ^k which concealing in this epistle those factious teachers names, doubted not to put down his own name and Apollos's in their place, and took upon him as it were their shame: so far was he from preferring himself to any.

^l By our example, which chose rather to take other mens faults upon us, than to carp any by name.

^m He sheweth a good means ⁿ to bridle pride: first, if thou consider how rightly thou exemptest thyself out of the number of others, seeing thou art ^o man thyself: again, if thou consider that although thou have something ^p more than other men have, yet thou hast it not but by God's bountifulness. And what wise man is he that ^q brag of another's goodness, and that against God?

^r There is nothing then in us of nature, that is worthy of commendation: but all that we have we have, it of grace, which the Pelagians and half Pelagians will not confess.

^s He descendeth to a most grave mock, to cause those ambitious men to blush, even against their wills.

^t He that will take a right view how like Paul and the pope are, who lyingly boasteth that he is his successor, let him compare the delicacies of the popish court, with St. Paul's state, ^u we see it here.

^v Such ^w by sweeping is gathered together.

^x Moderating the sharpness of his mock, he putteth them in mind to remember of whom they were begotten in Christ, and that they should not doubt to follow him for an example, although he seem vile, according to the outward shew in respect of others, yet mighty by the efficacy of God's Spirit, as they had trial thereof ^y themselves.

^z What way and rule I follow every where in teaching the churches.

^{aa} Last of all he descendeth also to apostolic threatenings, but yet chiding them ^{ab} a father, lest by their disorder he be constrained to come to punish some amongst them.

^{ac} By words, he meaneth their painted and coloured kind of eloquence, against which he setteth the virtue of the Spirit.

^{ad} A passing over ^{ae} another part of this epistle, wherein he reprehendeth most sharply ^{af} very heinous offence, shewing the use of ecclesiastical correction.

^{ag} Meekly affected towards you.

^{ah} They ^{ai} greatly to be reprehended which by suffering of wickedness, set forth the church of God to be mocked and scorned of infidels.

^{aj} There ^{ak} none ^{al} more proud than they that least know themselves.

^{am} Excommunication ought not ^{an} be committed to one man's power, but must be done by the authority of the whole congregation, after that the matter is diligently examined.

^{ao} In mind, thought and will.

A. D. 59.

Adi. 10. 21. James 4. 11.

A. D. I were present, that he that hath thus done this thing, 59.

4 When ye are gathered together, and my Spirit, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that such one, I say, by the power of our Lord Jesus Christ,

5 Be delivered unto Satan, for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

6 Your rejoicing is not good: know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?

7 Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened: for Christ our passover is sacrificed for us.

8 Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither in the leaven of malice and wickedness: but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

9 I wrote unto you in an epistle, that ye should not company together with fornicators.

10 And not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or with extortioners, or with idolaters: for then ye must go out of the world.

11 But now I have written unto you, that ye company not together: if any that is called a brother, be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with such one eat not.

12 For what have I to do, to judge them

■ Calling upon Christ's name.

■ There is no doubt but that judgment is ratified in heaven, wherein Christ himself sitteth judge.

■ The excommunicated is delivered to the power of Satan, in that, that he is cast out of the house of God.

■ What it is to be delivered to Satan, the Lord himself declareth, when he saith, Let him be unto thee as an Heathen and Publican, Matt. 18. 17. that is to say, to be disfranchised and put out of the right and liberty of the city of Christ, which is the church, without which Satan is lord and master.

■ The end of excommunication is, not to cast away the excommunicate, that he should utterly perish, but that he may be saved, to wit, that by this means his flesh may be tamed, that he may learn to live to the Spirit.

■ Another end of excommunication is, that other be not infected, and therefore it must of necessity be retained in the church, that the one be not infected by the other.

■ Is naught, and not grounded upon good reason, as though you were excellent, and yet there is such wickedness found amongst you.

■ By alluding to the ceremony of the passover, he exhorteth them to cast out that unclean person from among them. In times past, saith he, it was not lawful for them, which did celebrate the passover to eat leavened bread, inasmuch that he was holden unclean, and unworthy to eat the passover, whosoever had but tasted of leaven. Now all our whole life must be as it were the feast of unleavened bread, wherein all they that are partakers of that immaculate Lamb which is slain, must cast out both of themselves, and also out of their houses and congregation, all impurity.

■ By lump, he meaneth the whole body of the church, every member whereof must be unleavened bread, that is, he renewed in Spirit, by plucking away the old corruption.

■ The Lamb of our passover.

■ Let us lead our whole life, it were, a continual feast, honestly, and uprightly.

■ Now he speaketh more generally: and that which he spake before of the incestuous person, he sheweth that it pertaineth to others, which are known to be wicked, and such as through their naughty life slander the church, which ought also by lawful order to be cast out of the community of the church. And making mention of eating of meat, either he meaneth those feasts of love whereat the supper of the Lord was received, or else their common usage and manner of life: which is rightly to be taken, lest any man should think that either matrimony were broken by excommunication, or such duties hindered and cut off also which are without? do ye not judge them which are within? A. D. 59.

13 But God judgeth them that are without. Put away therefore from among yourselves that wicked man.

C H A P. VI.

1 He envieth against their contentions in law matters, 6 wherewith they vexed one another under judges that were infidels, to the reproach of the gospel: 9 and then sharply threateneth fornicators.

DARE any of you, having business against another, be judged under the unjust, and not under the saints?

2 Do ye not know, that the saints shall judge the world? If the world then shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Know ye not that we shall judge the angels? how much more things that pertain to this life?

4 If then ye have judgment of things pertaining to this life, set up them which are least esteemed in the church.

5 I speak it to your shame. Is it so that there is not a wise man among you? no not one, that can judge between his brethren?

6 But a brother goeth to law with a brother, and that under the infidels.

3 B

7 Now

thereby, as we owe one to another: children to their parents, subjects to their rulers, servants to their masters, and neighbour to neighbour, to win one another unto God.

■ If you should utterly abstain from such company, you should go out of the world: therefore I speak of them which are in the very bosom of the church, which must be called home by discipline, and out of them which are without, with whom you must labour, by all means possible, to bring them to Christ.

■ Such are false brethren ought to be cast out of the congregation; as for them which are without, they must be left to the judgment of God.

■ The third question is of civil judgments. Whether it be lawful for one faithful to draw another before the judgment-seat of an infidel? He answereth, that it is not lawful, for offence sake, for it is not evil of itself.

■ As if he said, Are you become so impudent, that you are not ashamed to make the gospel laughing-stock profane men?

■ Before the unjust.

■ He addeth, that he doth not forbid that one neighbour may go to law with another, if need so require, but yet under holy judges.

■ He gathereth by comparison that the faithful cannot seek to infidels to be judged, without great injury done the saints, seeing that God himself will make the saints judges of the world, and of the devils, with his Son Christ: much more ought they to judge these light and small causes which may be by equity and good conscience determined.

■ The conclusion, wherein he prescribeth remedy for this mischief: wit, if they end their private affairs between themselves by chosen arbiters out of the church: for which matter and purpose, the least of you, saith he, is sufficient. Therefore he condemneth not judgment-seats, but sheweth what is expedient for the circumstance of the time, and that without any diminishing of the right of the magistrate: for he speaketh not of judgments which are practised betwixt the faithful and the infidels, neither of public judgments, but of controversies which may be ended by private arbiters.

■ Courts and places of judgments.

■ Even the most abject among you.

■ He applieth the general proposition particular, always calling them back to this, to take away from them that false opinion of their own excellency, from whence all these mischiefs sprang.

A. D. 59. Now therefore there is altogether ⁶ infirmity in you, in that ye go to law one with another: why rather suffer ye not wrong? why rather sustain ye not harm?

8 Nay, ye yourselves do wrong, and do harm, and that to your brethren.

9 Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? ⁵ Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor wantons, nor buggers,

10 Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor railers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God.

11 And such were ⁶ some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified, in the ⁷ name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 ⁸ All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not profitable: I may do all things, but I will not be brought under the ⁹ power of any thing.

13 ¹⁰ Meats are ordained for the belly, and the belly for the meats: but God shall destroy both it and them. Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body.

14 And God hath also raised up the Lord, and shall raise us up by his power.

15 ¹¹ Know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 ¹² Do ye not know, that he which coupleth himself with an harlot, is one body? ¹³ for two, saith he, shall be one flesh.

17 But he that is joined unto the Lord, is one spirit.

18 ¹⁴ Flee fornication: every sin that a man doth, is without the body: but he that committeth fornication, sinneth against his own body.

19 ¹⁵ Know ye not, that ¹⁶ your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you, whom ye have of God? and ¹⁷ ye are not your own, 20 ¹⁸ For ye are bought for a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit: for they are God's.

CHAPTER VII.

Entreating here of marriage, which is a remedy against fornication, 10 and may not be broken, 18, 20 he willeth every man to live contented with his own lot. 25 He sheweth what the end of virginity should be, 35 and who ought to marry.

NOW ¹ concerning the things ² whereof ye wrote unto me, It ³ were ⁴ good for ⁵ man not to touch a woman.

2 Nevertheless, to avoid fornication, let every man

⁶ Now he goeth further also; and although by granting them private arbiters, out of the congregation of the faithful, he do not simply condemn, but rather establish private judgments, so that they be exercised without offence, yet he sheweth that if they were such as they ought to be, and as it were to be wished, they should not need to use that remedy neither.

⁸ This pertaineth chiefly to the other part of the reprehension, to wit, that they went to law even under infidels, whereas they should have rather suffered any loss, than to have given that offence. But yet this is generally true, that we ought rather ⁹ depart from our right, than try the uttermost of the law hastily, and upon an affection to revenge an injury. But yet the Corinthians cared for neither, and therefore he saith, that they must repent, unless they will be shut out from the inheritance of God.

¹⁰ Now he prepareth himself to pass over to the fourth treatise of this epistle, which concerneth matters indifferent, debating this matter first, how men may well use women or not: which question hath three branches, fornication, matrimony, and a single life. As for fornication, he utterly condemneth it. And marriage he commandeth to some, as a good and necessary remedy for them; to others he leaveth it free. And other some he dissuadeth from it, not as unlawful, but as discommodious, and that not without exception. As for the singleness of life (under which also I comprehend virginity) he enjoineth it to no man: yet he persuadeth men unto it, but not for itself, but for another respect, neither all men, nor without exception. And being about to speak against fornication, he beginneth with a general reprehension of those vices, wherewith that rich and riotous city most abounded: warning and teaching them earnestly, that repentance is inseparably joined with forgiveness of sins, and sanctification with justification.

¹¹ In Jesus.

Secondly, he sheweth that the Corinthians do simply offend in matters indifferent: First, because they abused them: next, because they used indifferent things, without any discretion, seeing the use of them ought to be brought to the rule of charity: and that he doth not use them aright, which immoderately abuseth them, and so becometh ¹² slave unto them.

¹³ Whatsoever: but this general word must be restrained to things that are indifferent.

which is a flattering kind of slavery under ¹⁵ colour of liberty, which seizeth upon such men.

¹⁶ Secondly, because they counted many things for indifferent, which were of themselves unlawful, as fornication, which they numbered amongst mere natural and lawful desires, ¹⁷ well as meat and drink. Therefore the apostle sheweth, that they ¹⁸ utterly unlike: for meats, saith he, ¹⁹ were made for the necessary use of man's life, which is not perpetual: For both meats, and all this manner of nourishing, are quickly abolished. But we must not so think of the uncleanness of fornication, for which the body is not made, but on the contrary side is ordained to pureness, as appeareth by this, that it is consecrated to Christ, even as Christ also is given ²⁰ of his Father, to quicken our bodies with that virtue, wherewith he also rose again.

²¹ A declaration of the former argument by contraries, and the applying of it.

²⁴ Moses doth not speak these words of fornication, but of marriage: but seeing that fornication is the corrupting of marriage, and both of them is ²⁵ carnal and fleshly copulation, ²⁶ cannot say that the apostle abuseth his testimony. Again, Moses hath not this word (two) but it is very well expressed both here and in Matt. 19. 5. because he speaketh only but of man and wife: whereupon the opinion of them that vouch it to be lawful to have many wives, is beaten down: for he that companieth with many, is sundered as it were into many parts.

²⁷ Another argument why fornication is to be eschewed, because it defileth the body with a peculiar kind of filthiness.

²⁸ The third argument. Because ²⁹ fornicator is sacrilegious, for that our bodies ³⁰ consecrate ³¹ God.

³² The fourth argument. Because ³³ we ³⁴ are not our own men, to give ourselves ³⁵ any other, much less to Satan and the flesh, seeing that God himself hath bought us, and that with ³⁶ great price, ³⁷ the end that both in body and soul we should serve to his glory.

³⁸ He teacheth concerning marriage, that although a single life hath his commodities, which he will declare afterwards, yet that marriage is necessary for avoiding of fornication: but so that neither one man may have many wives, ³⁹ any wife many husbands.

⁴⁰ Touching those matters whereof you wrote unto me. ⁴¹ Commodious, and (as we say) expedient. For marriage bringeth many griefs with it, and that by reason of the corruption of our first estate.

A. D. 59. man have his wife, and let every woman have her own husband.

3 * 2 Let the husband give unto the wife due benevolence, and likewise also the wife unto the husband.

4 3 The wife hath not the power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not the power of his own body, but the wife,

5 Defraud not one another, 4 except it be with consent for a time, that ye may 4 give yourselves to fasting and prayer, and again come together, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency.

6 5 But I speak this by permission, not by commandment.

7 For I 6 would that all men were even as I myself am: but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that.

8 6 Therefore I say unto the 6 unmarried, and unto the widows, It is good for them if they abide even as I do.

9 But if they cannot abstain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to 6 burn.

10 * 7 And unto the married I command, not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her husband.

11 But and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled unto her husband, and let not the husband put away his wife.

12 8 But to the remnant I speak, and not the Lord, If any brother have a wife, that believeth not, if she be content to dwell with him, let him not forsake her.

13 And the woman which hath an husband that believeth not, if he be content to dwell with her, let her not forsake him, A. D. 59.

14 9 For the unbelieving husband is 9 sanctified 9 the 9 wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified to the 9 husband, else were your children unclean: but now are they 9 holy.

15 10 But if the unbelieving depart, let him depart: 9 brother or a sister is not in subjection in 9 such things: 10 but God hath called us in peace.

16 For what knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thine husband? Or what knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife?

17 12 But 12 God hath distributed to every man, as the Lord hath 12 called every one, so let him walk: and so ordain I in all churches.

18 13 Is any man called being circumcised? let him not 13 gather his 13 uncircumcision: is any called uncircumcised? let him not be circumcised.

19 Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God.

20 * Let every man abide in the same vocation wherein he was called. * 1 Tim. 6. 2.

21 Art thou called being 21 servant? 21 care not for it: but yet if thou mayest be free, use it rather.

22 For he that is called in the 22 Lord, being a servant, is the Lord's free man: likewise also he that is called being free, is Christ's servant.

23 Ye

8 Secondly, he sheweth that the parties married must with singular affection, entirely love one the other.

9 This word (due) containeth all kind of benevolence, though he speak more of one sort than of the other, in that that followeth.

10 Thirdly, he warneth them, that they are each in other's power, as touching the body, so that they may not defraud one another.

11 He addeth an exception, unless the one abstain from the other by mutual consent, that they may the better give themselves to prayer, wherein notwithstanding, he warneth them to consider what is expedient, lest by this long breaking off, as it were from marriage, they be stirred up to incontinency.

12 Do nothing else.

13 Fifthly, he teacheth that marriage is not simply necessary for all men, but for them which have not the gift of continency, and this gift is by 13 peculiar grace of God.

14 I wish.

15 Sixthly, he giveth the self-same admonition touching the second marriage, to wit, that a single life is to be allowed but for such 15 have the gift of continency; otherwise they ought to marry again, that their conscience may be at peace.

16 This whole place is flat against them which condemn second marriages.

17 So to burn with lust, that either the will yieldeth 17 the temptation, or else 17 cannot call upon God with a quiet conscience.

18 Seventhly, he forbiddeth contentions, and publishing of divorces, (for he speaketh not here of the fault of whoredom, which was then death even by the law of the Romans also) whereby he affirmeth that the band of marriage is 18 dissolved, and that from Christ's mouth.

19 Eighthly, he affirmeth that those marriages which 19 already contracted between a faithful, and an unfaithful, or infidel, are firm: so that the faithful may not forsake the unfaithful.

20 He answereth an objection: but the faithful is defiled by the society of the unfaithful. The apostle denieth that, and proveth, that the faithful man with good conscience may use the vessel of his unfaithful wife, by this, that their children which are born of them, are accounted holy (that is, contained within the promise) for it is said to all the faithful, I will be thy God, and the God of thy seed.

12 The godliness of the wife is of more force, to cause their coupling together to be accounted holy, than the infidelity of the husband is, to prophane the marriage.

13 The infidel is not sanctified or made holy in his 13 person, but in respect of his wife he is sanctified 13 her.

14 To the faithful husband.

15 This place destroyeth the opinion of them, that would not have children to be baptized, and their opinion also, that make baptism the very cause of salvation. For the children of the faithful 15 holy, by virtue of the covenant, even before baptism, and baptism is added 15 the seal of that holiness.

16 He answereth 16 a question: What if the unfaithful forsake the faithful? then is the faithful free, saith he, because he is forsaken of the unfaithful.

17 When any such thing falleth out.

18 Lest any 18 upon pretence of this liberty should give 18 occasion to the unfaithful 18 depart, he giveth to understand, that marriage contracted with 18 infidel, ought peaceably to be kept, that if it be possible, the infidel may be won to the faith.

19 Taking occasion by that which he said of the bondage and liberty of matrimony, he digresseth 19 a general doctrine concerning the outward state and condition of man's life, as circumcision and uncircumcision, servitude and liberty: warning every man to generally live with a contented mind in the Lord, what state or condition soever he be in, because that those outward things, 19 be circumcised or uncircumcised, to be bond 19 free, are not of the substance (as they term it) of the kingdom of heaven.

20 Hath bound him to a certain kind of life.

21 Notwithstanding he giveth 21 to understand, that in these examples all 21 not of like sort: because that circumcision not simply of itself is to be desired, but such as are bound may desire to be free. Therefore herein only they are equal, that the kingdom of God consisteth not in them; and therefore these 21 no hinderances 21 obey God.

22 He is said to gather his uncircumcision, who by the help of a chirurgion, recovereth 22 upper skin: which is done by drawing the skin with 22 instrument, to make it to cover the nut. Celsus in his 7th book and 25 chap.

23 As though this calling were too unworthy a calling for Christ.

24 He that is in state of 24 servant, and is called to be a Christian.

A. D. 23 ⁵⁹ Ye are bought with a price: be not the servants of men.

24 ⁵⁹ Brethren, let every man, wherein he was called, therein abide with ⁵⁹ God.

25 ⁵⁹ Now concerning virgins, I have no commandment of the Lord: but I give mine ⁵⁹ advice as ⁵⁹ one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be faithful.

26 I suppose then ⁵⁹ this to be good for the present necessity: I mean that it is good for a man so to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed: art thou loosed from a wife? seek not a wife.

28 But if thou takest ⁵⁹ a wife, thou sinnest not: and if a virgin marry, she sinneth not: nevertheless, such shall have trouble in the ⁵⁹ flesh: but I ⁵⁹ spare you.

29 And this I say, brethren, because the time is ⁵⁹ short, hereafter, that both they which have wives, be as though they had none:

30 And they that weep, as though they wept not: and they that rejoice, ⁵⁹ though they rejoiced not: and they that buy, as though they possessed not:

31 And they that use this ⁵⁹ world, as though they used it not: for the ⁵⁹ fashion of this world goeth away.

32 And I would have you without care. The unmarried careth for the things of the Lord, how he may please the Lord:

33 But he that is married, ⁵⁹ careth for the things of the world, how he may please his wife.

34 There is difference also between a virgin and a wife: the unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy, both in body, and in ⁵⁹ spirit: but she that is married, careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband.

35 And this I speak for your own ⁵⁹ commodity, not to tangle you in a snare, but that ye follow that which is honest, and that ye may cleave fast unto the Lord without separation.

36 ⁵⁹ But if any man think that it is uncomely for his virgin, if she pass the flower of her age, and need so require, let him do what he will, he ⁵⁹ sinneth not: let them be married.

37 Nevertheless, he that standeth firm in his ⁵⁹ heart, that he hath no ⁵⁹ need, but hath power over his own will, and hath so decreed in his heart, that ⁵⁹ he will keep his virgin, he doeth well.

38 So then he that giveth her to marriage, doeth well: but he that giveth her not to marriage, doeth ⁵⁹ better.

39 ⁵⁹ The wife is bound by the ⁵⁹ law, as long as her husband ⁵⁹ liveth: but if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to marry with whom she will, only in the ⁵⁹ Lord.

40 But she is more blessed, if she so abide, in my judgment: ⁵⁹ and I think that I have also ⁵⁹ the Spirit of God.

C H A P. VIII.

¹ From this place unto the end of the tenth chapter, he willeth them not to be at the Gentiles prophane banquets. ¹⁰ He restraineth the abuse of christian liberty, ¹¹ and sheweth that knowledge must be tempered with charity.

AND ¹ as touching things sacrificed unto idols: we know that we ¹ all have knowledge:

²⁴ He sheweth the reason of the unlikeness, because that he that desireth to be circumcised, maketh himself subject to man's tradition, and not to God. And this may be much more understood of superstitions, which some do foolishly account for things indifferent.

²⁵ A repetition of the general doctrine.

²⁶ So purely and from the heart, that your doings may be approved before God.

²⁷ He enjoineth virginity to no man, yet he persuadeth and praieth it for another respect, to wit, both for the necessity of the present time, because the faithful could scarce abide in any place, and use the commodities of this present life, and therefore such as were not troubled with families, might be the readier, and also for the cares of this life, which marriage draweth with it of necessity, so that they cannot but have their minds distracted: and this hath place in women especially.

²⁸ The circumstances considered, this I counsel you.

²⁹ It is I that speak this which I am minded to speak: and the truth is, I am a man, but yet worthy credit, for I have obtained of the Lord to be such ²⁹ one.

³⁰ To remain a virgin.

³¹ For the necessity which the saints ³¹ daily subject unto, who are continually tossed up and down, so that their estate may seem most unfit for marriage, were it not that the weakness of the flesh enforced them ³¹ it.

³² By the (Flesh) he understandeth what things soever belong to this present life, for marriage bringeth with it many discommodities: so that he bendeth more to ³² sole life, not because it is ³² service more agreeable to God than marriage is, but for those discommodities, which (if it were possible) he would wish all men ³² be void of, that they might give themselves to God only.

³³ I would your weakness were provided for.

³⁴ For we are now in the latter end of the world.

³⁵ By weeping, the Hebrews understand all adversity; and by joy, all prosperity.

³⁶ Those things which God giveth ³⁶ here.

³⁷ The guise, and shape, and fashion: whereby he sheweth us, that there is nothing in this world that continueth.

³⁸ They that are married, have their wits drawn hither and thither, and therefore if any man have the gift of continency, it is more commodious for him to live alone: but they that are married may care for the things of the Lord also. Clem. Strom. 3.

(Mind.

³⁹ He meaneth that he will enforce ³⁹ man, either to marry or not to marry, but to shew them barely what kind of life is most commodious.

⁴⁰ Now he turneth himself to the parents, in whose power and authority their children are, warning them, that according to the former doctrine, they consider what is meet and convenient for their children, that they neither deprive them of the necessary remedy against incontinency, nor constrain them to marriage, whereas neither their will doth lead them, nor any necessity argueth them. And again he praiseth virginity, but of itself, and not in all.

⁴¹ He doth well: for so he expoundeth it, ver. 38.

⁴² Resolveth with himself.

⁴³ That the weakness of his daughter inforceth him not, or any other matter, but that he may safely keep her a virgin still.

⁴⁴ Provideth more commodiously for his children, and that not simply, but by reason of such conditions ⁴⁴ are before-mentioned.

⁴⁵ That which he spake of a widower, he speaketh ⁴⁵ of ⁴⁵ widow, to wit, that she may marry again, so that she do it in the fear of God: and yet he dissembleth not, but saith, that if she remain still a widow, she shall be void of many cares.

⁴⁶ By the law of marriage.

⁴⁷ Religiously, and in the fear of God.

⁴⁸ He entereth ⁴⁸ intreat of another kind of things indifferent, to wit, of things offered ⁴⁸ idols, or the use of flesh so offered and sacrificed. And first of all he removeth all those things which the Corinthians pretended in using things offered to idols without any respect. First of all, they affirmed, that this difference of meats was for the unskilful men, but as for them they knew well enough the benefit of Christ, which causeth all these things ⁴⁸ be clean to them that ⁴⁸ clean. Be it so, saith Paul: be it that we are all sufficiently instructed in the knowledge of Christ; I say, notwithstanding that, we must not simply rest in this knowledge. The reason is, that unless our knowledge be tempered with charity, it doth not only not avail, but also doth much hurt, because it is the mistress of pride: nay, it doth not so much ⁴⁸ deserve the ⁴⁸ of godly knowledge, if it be separate from the love of God, and therefore from the love of our neighbour.

⁴⁹ This general word is to be abridged, as appeareth. ver. 7. for there is a kind of taunt in it, as we may perceive by the next verse.

A. D. ledge: knowledge puffeth up, but love edifieth.

2 Now if any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know.

3 But if any man love God, the same is known of him.

4 Concerning therefore the eating of things sacrificed unto idols, we know that an idol is nothing in the world, and that there is none other God but one.

5 For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven, or in earth (as there be many gods, and many lords)

6 Yet unto us there is but one God, which is that Father, of whom are all things, and we in him: and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him.

7 But every man hath not that knowledge: for many having conscience of the idol, until this hour, eat as thing sacrificed unto the idol, and so their conscience, being weak, is defiled.

8 But meat maketh us not acceptable to God: for neither if we eat, we have the more: neither if we eat not, have we the less.

9 But take heed, lest by any means this power of yours be an occasion of falling, to them that are weak.

John 13. 13. Ca. 12. 3.

Ministereth occasion of vanity and pride: because it is void of charity.

Instructeth our neighbour.

The application of that answer to things offered to idols: I grant, saith he, that an idol is indeed a vain imagination, and that there is but one God and Lord, and therefore that meat cannot be made either holy or profane by the idol: but it followeth not therefore that man may without respect use those meats as any other.

This Word (Idol) in this place is taken for an image which is made to represent some godhead, that worship might be given unto it: wherupon came the word (Idolatry) that is to say, Image service.

It is vain dream.

When the Father is distinguished from the Son, he is named the beginning of all things.

We have our being in him.

But as the Father is called Lord, so is the Son, God: therefore this word (One) doth not respect the persons, but the nature.

This word (By) doth not signify the instrumental cause, but the efficient: for the Father and the Son work together, which is not so to be taken, that we make two causes, seeing they have both but one nature, though they be distinct persons.

The reason why that followeth not is this: because there are many which do not know that which you know. Now the judgment of outward things depends not only upon your conscience, but upon the conscience of them that behold you, and therefore your actions must be applied not only your knowledge, but also to the ignorance of your brethren.

An applying of the reason: there are many which cannot eat of things offered to idols, but with a wavering conscience, because they think them to be unclean: therefore if by thy example they enterprize to do that which inwardly they think displeaseth God, their conscience is defiled with their eating, and thou hast been the occasion of this mischief.

By conscience of the idol, he meaneth the secret judgment that they had within themselves, whereby they thought all things unclean that were offered to idols, and therefore they could not use them with good conscience. For this force hath conscience, that if it be good, it maketh things indifferent good; and if it be evil, it maketh them evil.

A preventing of objection: Why then, shall therefore be deprived of our liberty? Nay, saith the apostle, you shall lose no part of christianity although you abstain for your brethren's sake; as also if ye receive the meat it maketh you no whit the holy for our commendation before God consisteth not in meats: but to use our liberty with offence of our brethren, is an abuse of liberty, the true use thereof is clean contrary, to wit, so use it, as in 10 For if any man see thee which hast knowledge, sit at meat in the idol's temple, shall not the conscience of him which is weak, be boldened to eat those things which are sacrificed to idols?

11 And through thy knowledge shall the weak brother perish, for whom Christ died.

12 Now when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ.

13 Wherefore if meat offend my brother, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, that I may not offend my brother.

CHAP. IX.

1 He declareth, that from the liberty which the Lord gave him, 15 he willingly abstained, 18, 22 left in things indifferent he should offend any. 24 He sheweth that our life is like unto race.

AM I not an apostle? Am I not free? Have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? Are ye not my work in the Lord?

2 If I be not an apostle unto other, yet doubtless I am unto you: for ye are the seal of mine apostleship in the Lord.

3 My defence to them that examine me, is this,

3 C

4 Have

using of it we have consideration of our weak brethren.

Another plain explication of the same reason, propounding the example of the sitting down at the table in the idol's temple, which thing the Corinthians did evil account of among things indifferent, because it is simply forbidden for the circumstance of the place, although offence do cease, as it shall be declared in his place.

An amplification of the argument taken both of comparison and contraries: Thou wretched man, saith he, pleasing thyself with thy knowledge, which indeed is none, (for if thou hadst true knowledge, thou wouldst not sit down to meat in idol's temple) wilt thou destroy thy brother, hardening his weak conscience by thine example to do evil, for whose salvation Christ himself hath died?

Another amplification: Such offending of our weak brethren, redoundeth unto Christ, and therefore let not these men think that they have to do only with their brethren.

The conclusion, which Paul conceiveth in his own person, that he might not seem to exact that of others, which he will not be first subject to himself: I had rather, (saith he) abstain for ever from all kind of flesh, than give occasion of sin to any of my brethren, much less would I refuse in any certain place or time for my brother's sake not to flesh offered to idols.

Before he proceedeth any further in his proposed matter of things offered to idols, he would shew the cause of all this mischief, and also take it away: to wit, that the Corinthians thought themselves not bound to depart from a jot of their liberty for any man's pleasure. Therefore he propoundeth himself for an example, and that in a matter most necessary. And yet he speaketh severally of both, but first of his own person. If (saith he) you alledge for yourselves, that you are free, and therefore will use your liberty, am not I also free, seeing I am an apostle?

He proveth his apostleship by the effects, in that he was appointed of Christ himself, and the authority of his function was sufficiently confirmed to him amongst them by their conversion. And all these things he setteth before their eyes, to make them ashamed, for that they would not, in the leastwise that might be, debase themselves for the weak's sake, whereas the apostle himself did all that he could to win them to God, when they were utterly reprobate and without God.

By the Lord.

As a seal, wherby it appeareth sufficiently that God is the author of mine apostleship.

He addeth this by the way, if he would say, So far it is off, that you may doubt of my apostleship, that I use them which call it into controversy, by opposing those things which the Lord hath done by me amongst you.

Which, like judges, examine and my doings.

A. D. 59.

Rom. 14. 15.

Rom. 14. 21.

A. D. 59. 4 Have we not power to eat and to drink?

5 Or have we not power to lead about a wife being a sister, as well as the rest of the apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power not to work?

7 Who goeth a warfare at any time at his own cost? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 Say I these things according to man? faith not the law the same also?

9 For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn: doth God take care for oxen?

10 Either faith he it not altogether for our sakes? For our sakes no doubt it is written, that he which eareth, should ear in hope: and that he that thresheth in hope, should be partaker of his hope.

11 If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we reap your carnal things?

12 If others with you be partakers of this power, are not we rather? nevertheless we have not used this power: but suffer all things, that we should not hinder the gospel of Christ.

13 Do ye not know that they which minister about the holy things, eat of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar, are partakers with the altar?

14 So also hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the gospel, should live of the gospel.

15 But I have used none of these things: neither wrote I these things, that it should be so done unto me: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my rejoicing vain.

16 For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to rejoice of: for necessity is laid upon me, and woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel.

17 For if I do it willingly, I have a reward: but if I do it against my will, notwithstanding the dispensation is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? verily that when I preach the gospel, I make the gospel of Christ free, that I abuse not my authority in the gospel.

19 For though I be free from all men, yet have I made myself servant unto all men, that I might win the more.

20 And unto the Jews, I become as a Jew, that I may win the Jews: to them that are under the law, as though I were under the law, that I may win them that are under the law:

21 To them that are without law, as though I were without law (when I am not without law as pertaining to God, but in the law through Christ), that I may win them that are without law:

22 To the weak I become as weak, that I may win the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some.

23 And this I do for the gospel's sake, that I might be partaker thereof with you.

24 Know ye not, that they which run in a race, run all, yet one receiveth the prize? so run that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that proveth masteries, abstaineth from all things: and they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we for an incorruptible.

26 I there-

Now touching the matter itself, he saith, Seeing that I am free, and truly an apostle, why may not I (I say not, eat of all things offered in idols, but) be maintained by my labours, yea, and keep my wife also, as the residue of the apostles lawfully do, as by name, John and James, the Lord's cousins, and Peter himself?

Upon the expence of the church.

One that is a Christian and true believer.

Not live by the works of our hands.

That he may not seem to burden the apostles, he sheweth that it is just that they do, by argument of comparison, seeing that soldiers live by their wages, and husbandmen by the fruits of their labours, and shepherds by that that cometh of their flocks.

Useth to go to warfare.

Secondly, he bringeth forth the authority of God's institution by an argument of comparison.

Have I no better ground than the common custom of men?

Was it God's proper drift to provide for oxen, when he made this law? for otherwise there is not the smallest thing in the world, but God hath a care of it.

An assumption of the arguments with an amplification, for neither in so doing do we require a reward meet for our deserts.

Another argument of great force: others are nourished amongst you, therefore it was lawful for me, yea, rather for me than any other: and yet I refused it, and had rather still suffer any discommodity, than the gospel of Christ should be hindered.

The word signifieth, a right and interest, whereby he giveth us to understand that the ministers of the word must of right and duty be sound of the church.

Last of all, he bringeth forth the express law concerning the nourishing of the Levites: which privilege notwithstanding he will not use.

This is spoken by the figure Metonymia, for, of those things that are offered in the temple.

Are partakers with the altar, in dividing the sacrifice.

Because they preach the gospel. It followeth by this place, that Paul gat no living, neither would have any other man get, by any commodities of masses, or any other such superstitious trumperies.

He taketh away occasion of suspicion by the way, that it might not be thought that he wrote this though he challenged his wages that was not paid him. Nay, saith he, I had rather die than not to continue in this purpose to preach the gospel freely. For I am bound to preach the gospel, seeing that the Lord hath enjoined me this office: but unless I do it willingly, and for the love of God, nothing is to be allowed that I do. If I had rather that the gospel should be evil spoken of, than that I should not require my wages, then would it appear that I took these pains not so much for the gospel's sake, as for my gains and advantages. But I say this were not use, but abuse my right and liberty: Therefore not only in this thing, but also in all other (as much as I could) I made all things to all men, that I might win them to Christ, and might together with them be won to Christ.

By taking nothing of them whom I preach it.

The word (Law) in this place, must be restrained to the ceremonial law.

In matters that are indifferent, which may be done or not done with a good conscience: if he said, I changed myself into all fashions, that by all means I might save some.

That both I and they to whom I preach the gospel, may receive fruit by the gospel.

He bringeth in another cause of this mischief, to wit, that they were given to gluttony, for there were solemn banquets of sacrifices, and the riot of the priests was always much celebrated and kept. Therefore it was hard for them which accustomed to riotousness, especially when they pretended the liberty of the gospel, to be restrained from these banquets: but contrariwise the apostle calleth them by a pleasant similitude, and also by his own example, to sobriety and mortification of the flesh, shewing that they cannot be fit to run a wrestle (as then the games of Isthmies were) which pamper up their bodies: and therefore affirming that they have no reward, unless they take another course and trade of life.

Useth a most exquisite diet.

A. D. 26 I therefore so run, not as uncertainly: for 59 fight I, not as one that beateth the air.
 27 But I beat down my body, and bring it into subjection, lest by any means after that I have preached to other, I myself should be reprov'd.

C H A P. X.

■ If God spared not the Jews, neither will he spare those who are of like condition, 3, 4 touching the outward signs of his grace. 14 That it is absurd, that such should be partakers of the table of the devils, who are partakers of the Lord's supper. 24
 To have consideration of our neighbour in things indifferent.

MOREOVER, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, that all our fathers were under that cloud, and all passed through that sea:

2 And were all baptized unto Moses, in that cloud, and in that sea.

3 And did all eat the same spiritual meat:

4 And did all drink the same spiritual drink (for they drank of the spiritual rock that followed them: and the rock was Christ)

5 But with many of them God was not pleased: for they were overthrown in the wildernesses.

6 Now these things are our ensamples, to the intent that we should not lust after evil things;
 as they also lusted.

7 Neither be ye idolaters, were some of them: as it is written, * The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.

■ Neither let us commit fornication, some of them committed fornication, and fell in one day three and twenty thousand.

9 Neither let us tempt Christ, some of them also tempted him, and were destroyed of serpents.

10 Neither murmur ye, as some of them also murmured, and were destroyed of the destroyer.

11 Now all these things came unto them for ensamples, and were written to admonish us, upon whom the ends of the world are come.

12 Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.

13 There hath no temptation taken you, but such as appertaineth to man: and God is faithful, which will not suffer you to be tempted above that you be able, but will even give the issue with the temptation, that ye may be able to bear it.

14 Wherefore, my beloved, flee from idolatry.

15 I speak unto them which have understanding: judge ye what I say.

16 The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ?
 The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?

17 For we that many, are one bread and one body, because we are all partakers of one bread.

18 Behold Israel, which is after the flesh:
 are not they which eat of the sacrifices, parta-kers of the altar?

1 The old man, which striveth against the Spirit.
 2 This word (Reprov'd) it not set contrary to the word (Elect) but as contrary to the word (Approved) when we see one by experience not to be such one as he ought to be.
 3 He setteth out that which he said, laying before them an example of the horrible judgment of God against them which had in effect the self-same pledges of the same adoption and salvation that we have: and yet notwithstanding when they gave themselves to idols feasts, perished in the wilderness, being horribly and manifoldly punished. Now, moreover and besides, that these things are fitly spoken against them which frequented idols feasts, the same also seem to be alledged to this end and purpose, because many men are thus minded, that those things are not of such great weight that God will be angry with them if they use them, so that they frequent Christian assemblies and be baptized, and receive the communion, and confess Christ.
 4 Paul speaketh this in respect of the covenant, and not in respect of the persons, saving in general.
 5 In effect, the sacraments of the old fathers were all one with ours, for they respected Christ only, who offered himself unto them in divers shadows.
 6 All of them were baptized with the outward sign, but not in deed, wherewith God cannot be charged, but they themselves.
 7 Moses being their guide.
 8 The same that we do.
 9 Manna, which was spiritual food to the believers, which in faith lay hold upon Christ, who is the true meat.
 10 Of the river and running rock, which followed the people.
 11 Did sacramentally signify Christ, so that together with the sign there was the thing signified, and the truth itself:
 for God doth offer a bare sign, but the thing signified by the sign, together with it, which is to be received by faith.
 12 An amplifying of the example against them which were carried away with their lusts beyond the bounds which God hath measured out. For this is the beginning of all evil, as of idolatry (which hath gluttony a companion unto it) fornication, rebelling against Christ, murmuring, and such like, which God punished most sharply in that old people, to the end that we which succeed them, and have the full declaration of the will of God, might by that means take better heed.

 13 Some read figure: which signified our sacraments, for circumcision was to the Jews a seal of righteousness, and to us a lively pattern of baptism, and so in the other sacraments.
 14 To tempt Christ, is to provoke him to combat, it were, which those do, who abuse the knowledge that he hath given them, and make it to serve for a cloak for their lusts and wickedness.
 15 This our age is called the end, for it is the shutting up of all ages.
 16 In conclusion, he descendeth to the Corinthians themselves, warning them that they please not themselves, but rather that they prevent the subtilties of Satan. Yet he useth insinuation, and comforteth them, that he may not seem to make them altogether like those wicked idolaters and contemners of Christ, which perished in the wilderness.
 17 Which cometh of weakness.
 18 He that would have you tempted for your profit's sake, will give you issue to escape out of the temptation.
 19 Now returning to those idols feasts, that he may not seem to dally at all, first he promiseth that he will use no other reasons than such as they knew very well themselves.
 And he useth an induction borrowed from the agreement that is in the things themselves. The holy banquets of the Christians are pledges, first of all, of the community that they have with Christ, and next, with another. The Israelites also do ratify in their sacrifices, their mutual conjunction in the self-same religion: therefore so do the idolaters also join themselves with their idols, or devils rather, (for idols nothing) in those solemn banquets, whereupon it followeth, that that table is a table of devils, and therefore you must eschew it: For you cannot be parta-kers of the Lord and of idols together, much less may such banquets be accounted for things indifferent. Will ye then strive with God? and if ye do, think you that you shall get the upper hand?
 20 Of thanksgiving: whereupon that holy banquet was called Eucharist, that is, thanksgiving.
 21 A most effectual pledge and note of our knitting together with Christ, and ingrafting him.
 22 That is, as yet observe their ceremonies.
 23 Are consenting and guilty both of that worship and sacrifice.

19 What say I then? that the idol is any thing? or that that which is sacrificed to idols, is any thing?

20 No, but that these things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils, and not unto God: and I would not that ye should have fellowship with the devils.

21 Ye cannot drink of the cup of the Lord, and the cup of the devils. Ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table of the devils.

22 Do we provoke the Lord to anger? are we stronger than he?

23 All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not.

24 Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth.

25 Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, eat ye, and ask no question for conscience sake.

26 For the earth is the Lord's, and all that therein is.

27 For if any of them which believe not, call you to a feast, and if ye will go, whatsoever is set before you, eat, asking no question for conscience sake.

28 But if any man say unto you, This is sacrificed unto idols, eat it not, because of him that shewed it, and for the conscience (for the earth is the Lord's, and all that therein is.)

29 And the conscience, I say, not thine, but of that other: for why should my liberty be condemned of another man's conscience?

30 For if I through God's benefit be partaker, why am I evil spoken of, for that wherefore I give thanks?

31 Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

Have any thing to do with the devils, or enter into that society which is begun in the devil's name.

The heathen and profane people were wont to shut up and make an end of their feasts which they kept to the honour of their gods, in offering meat-offerings and drink-offerings to them, with banquets and feasting.

Coming to another kind of things offered to idols, he repeateth that general rule, that in the use of things indifferent, we ought to have consideration not of ourselves only, but of our neighbours, and therefore there are many things which of themselves are lawful, which may be evil done of us, because of offence to our neighbour.

Look afore, chap. 6. 13.

An applying of the rule to the present matter: Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, you may indifferently buy it, as it were at the Lord's hand, and eat it either at home with the faithful, or being called home to the unfaithful, to wit, in a private banquet: but yet with this exception, unless any man be present which is weak, whose conscience may be offended by seeing meats offered to idols before them: for then you ought to have consideration of their weakness.

The flesh that was sacrificed, was used to be sold in the shambles, and the price returned to the priests.

All these things whereof is full.

A reason: For we must take heed that our liberty be not evil spoken of, and that the benefit of God which we ought to use with thanksgiving be not changed into impiety, and that through our fault, if we cause rather to offend the conscience of the weak, than to yield a little of our liberty in a matter of no importance, and so give occasion to the weak to judge in such sort of us, and of Christian liberty. And the apostle taketh these things upon his own person, that the Corinthians may have so much the less occasion to oppose any thing against him.

If I may, through God's benefit, eat this meat or that meat, why should I through my fault cause that benefit of God to turn to my blame?

The conclusion: We must order our lives in such sort, that we seek not ourselves, but God's glory, and so the salvation of as many as we may: wherein the apostle sticketh not to propound himself to the Corinthians (even his own flock) as an example, but so that he cauleth them back to himself, unto whom he himself hath regard.

The fifth treatise of this epistle concerning the right,

32 Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Grecians, nor to the church of God:

33 Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they might be saved.

CHAPTER XI.

He blameth the Corinthians, for that in their holy assemblies, 4 men do pray having their heads covered, 6 and women bare-headed: and because their meeting tended to evil, 21 who mingled profane banquets with the holy Supper of the Lord, 23 which he requireth to be celebrated according to Christ's institution.

BE ye followers of me, even as I am of Christ.

2 Now, brethren, I commend you, that ye remember all my things, and keep the ordinances, as I delivered them to you.

3 But I will that ye know, that Christ is the head of every man: and the man is the woman's head: and God is Christ's head.

4 Every man praying or prophesying having any thing on his head, dishonoureth his head.

5 But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth bare-headed, dishonoureth her head, for it is even one very thing though she were shaven.

6 Therefore if the woman be not covered, let her also be shorn: and if it be shame for a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be covered.

7 For a man ought not to cover his head: forasmuch as he is the image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of the man.

8 For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man.

9 For ordering of public assemblies, containing three points, to wit, of the comely apparel of men and women, of the order of the Lord's Supper, and of the right use of spiritual gifts. But going about to reprehend certain things, he beginneth notwithstanding with a general praise of them, calling those particular laws of comeliness and honesty, which belong to ecclesiastical policy, traditions: which afterward, they called Canons.

He setteth down God in Christ our Mediator, for the end and mark not only of the doctrine, but also of ecclesiastical comeliness. Then applying it to the question proposed, touching the comely apparel both of men and women in public assemblies, he declareth that the woman is one degree beneath the man by the ordinance of God; and that the man is so subject to Christ, that the glory of God ought to appear in him for the pre-eminence of the sex.

In that that Christ is our Mediator.

Hereof he gathereth, that if men do either pray or preach in public assemblies, having their heads covered (which was then a sign of subjection) they did, as it were, spoil themselves of their dignity against God's ordinance.

It appeareth, that this was a politic law, serving only for the circumstances of the time that Paul lived in, by this reason, because in these our days for a man to speak bare-headed in an assembly, is a sign of subjection.

And in like sort he concludeth, that women which shew themselves in public and ecclesiastical assemblies without the sign and token of their subjection, that is to say, uncovered, shame themselves.

The first argument taken from the common sense of man, for so much as nature teacheth women, that it is dishonest for them to come abroad bare-headed, seeing that the bath given them thick and long hair, which they do so diligently trim and deck, that they can in no wise abide to have it shaven.

The taking away of an objection: Have not men also hair given them? I grant it, saith the apostle, but there is another matter in it: for man was made to this end and purpose, that the glory of God should appear in his rule and authority: but the woman was made, that by profession of her obedience, she might more honour her husband.

He proveth the inequality of the woman, by that, that the man is the matter whereof woman was first made.

man's sake, but the woman for the man's sake.

10 9 Therefore ought the woman to have power on her head, because of the ¹⁰ angels.

11 11 Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man ^d in the Lord.

12 For as the woman is of the man, so is the man also by the woman: but all things are
of God.

13 12 Judge in yourselves, Is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered?

14 Doth not nature itself teach you, that if a man hath long hair, it is ■ shame unto him?

15 But if a woman have long hair, it is a praise unto her: for her hair is given her for a ^e covering.

16 13 But if any man lust to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of God.

17 ¶ 14 Now in this that I declare, I praise you not, that ye come together, not with profit, but with hurt.

18 15 For first of all, when ye come together in the church, I hear that there are dissensions among you: and I believe it to be true in some part.

19 16 For there must be heresies even among you, that they which are ^f approved among you might be known.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is ^g not to eat the Lord's supper.

21 For every man when they should eat, taketh his own supper ^h afore: and one is hungry, and another is drunken.

22 17 Have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? despise ye the church of God, and shame

^g Secondly, by that, that the woman was made for man, and not the man for the woman's sake.

■ The conclusion: women must be covered, to shew by this external sign, their subjection.

^c A covering, which is a token of subjection.

■ What this meaneth, I do not yet understand.

¹¹ A digression which the apostle useth, lest that which he spake of the superiority of men, and lower degree of women, in consideration of the policy of the church, should be so taken ■ though there were ■ measure of this inequality. Therefore he teacheth that men have in such sort the pre-eminence, that God made them not alone, but wo-
■ also: and ■ was so made of man, that men also ■ born by the ■ of women, and this ought ■ put them in mind to observe the degree of every sex in such sort, that mutual conjunction may be cherished.

^d By the Lord.

¹² He urgeth the argument taken from the common sense of nature.

^e To be ■ covering for her, and such a covering as should procure another.

¹³ Against such as are stubbornly contentious, we have to oppose this, that the churches of God are not contentious.

¹⁴ He passeth now to the next treatise, concerning the right administration of the Lord's Supper. And the apostle useth this sharper preface, that the Corinthians might understand, that whereas they observed generally the apostles commandments, yet they foully neglected them in ■ matter of greatest importance.

¹⁵ To celebrate the Lord's Supper aright, it is requisite that there be not only consent of doctrine, but also of affections, that it be not prophaned.

¹⁶ Although that schisms and heresies proceed from the devil, and ■ evil, yet they come not by chance, nor without cause, and they turn ■ the profit of the elect.

^f Whom experience hath taught ■ be of sound religion and godliness.

■ This is ■ usual kind of speech whereby the apostle denieth that stately, which many did not well.

¹⁷ The apostle thinketh it good ■ take away the love of feasts, for their abuse, although they had been a long time, and with commendation used in churches, and were appointed and instituted by the apostles.

¹⁸ We must take ■ true form of keeping the Lord's Supper, out of the institution of it, the parts whereof are these, touching the pastors, to shew forth the Lord's death by preaching his word: to bless the bread and the wine by calling upon the name of God, and together with prayers to declare the institution thereof: and finally, ■ deliver the bread broken to be eaten, and the cup received to be drunken

23 18 For I have received of the Lord, that which I also have delivered unto you, to wit, That the Lord Jesus, in the night when he was betrayed, took bread:

24 * And when he had given thanks, he brake ■ Matt. 26.
it, and said, Take, eat: This is my body, which 16.
is ⁱ broken for you: this do ye in remembrance 16.

25 After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup ■ the New Testament in my blood: this do, ■ oft
■ ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

26 For as often as ye shall eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye shew the Lord's death till he come.

27 19 Wherefore, whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink the cup of the Lord ^k unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

28 * 20 Let ^l every man therefore examine ■ 2 Cor. 13.
himself, and so let him eat of this bread, and 5.
drink of this cup.

29 For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh his own damnation, because he ^m discerneth not the Lord's body.

30 21 For this cause many are weak and sick among you, and many sleep.

31 For if we would ⁿ judge ourselves, we should not be judged.

32 But when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, because we should not be condemned with the world.

33 22 Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another.

per, out of the institution of it, the parts whereof are of ministering.

^l This word (Broken) noteth out unto us Christ's manner of death, for although his legs were not broken, as the thieves legs were, yet was his body very sore tormented, and torn, and bruised.

¹⁹ Whosoever contemn the holy sacraments, that is, use them ■ aright, are guilty not of the bread and wine, but of the thing itself, that is, of Christ, and shall be grievously punished for it.

^k Otherwise than meet is such mysteries should be handquired in the supper, and therefore they ought not ■ be admitted unto it, which cannot examine themselves: ■

Christian religion and other such like.

^l This place beateth down the faith of credit, ■ unwrap-ped faith, which the papists maintain.

^m He is said to discern the Lord's body, that hath consideration of the worthiness of it, and therefore cometh to eat of this meat with great reverence.

ⁿ The prophaning of the body and blood of the Lord in his mysteries, is sharply punished of him, and therefore such a mischief ought diligently to be prevented by judging and correcting of ■ man's self.

suppers.

A. D. 59. 34 ²³ And if any man be hungry, let him eat at home, that ye come not together unto condemnation. ²⁴ Other things will I set in order when I come.

C H A P. XII.

1 To draw away the Corinthians from contention and pride, he sheweth that spiritual gifts are therefore diversely bestowed, 7 that the same being jointly to each other employed, 12 we may grow up together into one body of Christ, in such equal proportion and measure, 20 as the members of man's body do.

NOW ¹ concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ² ignorant.

2 ¹ Ye know that ye were ² Gentiles, and were carried away unto the dumb idols, as ye were led.

3 ¹ Wherefore, I declare unto you, that no man ² speaking by the Spirit of God, calleth Jesus ³ execrable: also no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost.

4 ¹ Now there are diversities of gifts, but the ² same Spirit.

5 And there are diversities of administrations, but the same Lord.

6 And there are diversities of ⁷ operations, but God is the same, which worketh all in all.

7 But the manifestation of the Spirit is ⁸ given to every man, to ⁹ profit withal.

8 ¹ For to one is given by the Spirit the word

²³ The supper of the Lord was instituted not to feed the belly, but to feed the soul with the communion of Christ, and therefore it ought to be separated from common banquets.

¹ Now he entereth into the third part of this treatise, touching the right use of spiritual gifts, wherein he giveth the Corinthians plainly to understand that they abused them: for they that excelled, bragged ambitiously of them, and so robbed God of the praise of his gifts: and having no consideration of their brethren, abused them to a vain ostentation, and so robbed the church of the use of those gifts. On the other side, the inferior sort envied the better, and went about to make ² departure, so that all that body was as it were scattered and rent in pieces. So then going about to remedy these abuses, willet them first to consider diligently, that they have not these gifts of themselves, but from the free grace and liberality of God, to whose glory they ought to bestow them all.

² Ignorant to what purpose these gifts are given you.

³ He reproveth the same, by comparing their former state with that wherein they were at this time indued with those excellent gifts.

⁴ As touching God's service and the covenant, mere strangers.

⁵ The conclusion: Know you therefore that you cannot so much as move your lips to honour Christ withal, but by the grace of the Holy Ghost.

⁶ Dost curse him, or by any means whatsoever diminish his glory.

⁷ In the second place, he layeth another foundation, to wit, that these gifts are diverse as the functions also ⁸ diverse, and their offices diverse, but that one self-same Spirit, Lord and God, is the giver of all these gifts, and that to one end, to wit, for the profit of all.

¹ The Spirit is plainly distinguished from the gifts.

² So Paul calleth that inward force which cometh from the Holy Ghost, and maketh men fit to wonderful things.

³ The Holy Ghost openeth and sheweth himself freely in giving of these gifts.

⁴ To the use and benefit of the church.

⁵ He declareth this manifold diversity, and reckoneth up the chiefest gifts, beating that into their heads, which he said before, to wit, that all these things proceeded from one self-same Spirit.

⁶ Wisdom is ⁷ most excellent gift, very requisite, ⁸ only for them which teach, but also for them that exhort and comfort, which thing is proper to the pastor's office: as the word of knowledge agreeth to the doctor's.

of ⁹ wisdom: and to another, the word of knowledge, by the same Spirit:

9 And to another ¹⁰ is given faith, by the same Spirit: and to another, the gifts of healing, by the same Spirit:

10 And to another; the ¹¹ operations of great works: and to another, ¹² prophecy: and to another, the ¹³ discerning of spirits: and to another, diversities of tongues: and to another, the interpretation of tongues.

11 ¹⁴ And all these things work one and the self-same Spirit, distributing to every man severally ¹⁵ as he will.

12 ¹⁶ For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of the body which is one, though they be many, yet are ¹⁷ but one body: ¹⁸ even so is ¹⁹ Christ.

13 For by one Spirit are we all baptized into ²⁰ one body, whether ²¹ we be Jews or Grecians, whether ²² we be bond or free, and have been all made to ²³ drink into one Spirit.

14 ²⁴ For the body also is not one member, but many.

15 ²⁵ If the foot would say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body?

16 And if the ear would say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body?

17 ²⁶ If the whole body were an eye, where

¹ By operation he meaneth those great workings of God's mighty power, which pass and excel amongst his miracles, as the delivery of his people Israel by the hand of Moses: that which he did by Elias against the priests of Baal, in sending down fire from heaven to consume his sacrifice: and that which he did by Peter, in the matter of Ananias and Sapphira.

² Foretelling of things ³ come.

⁴ Whereby false prophets ⁵ known from true, wherein Peter passed Philip in discovering Simon Magus, Acts 8. 20.

⁶ He addeth moreover something else, to wit, that although that these gifts are unequal, yet they are most wisely divided, because the will of the Spirit of God is the rule of this distribution.

¹⁰ The applying of the similitude. So must we also think, saith he, of the mystical body of Christ: for all we that believe, whether we be Jews ¹¹ Gentiles, ¹² by one self-same baptism, joined together with our head, that by that means there may be framed one body, compact of many members: and ¹³ we have drunk one self-same Spirit, that is to say, ¹⁴ spiritual feeling, perception, and motion common to us all out of ¹⁵ one cup.

¹⁶ Christ joined together with his church.

¹⁷ To become one body with Christ.

¹⁸ By ¹⁹ quickening drink of the Lord's blood, we are made partakers of his only Spirit.

²⁰ He amplifieth that which followed of the similitude, ²¹ if he should say, The unity of the body is not only not let by this diversity of members, but also it could not be a body, if it did not consist of many, and those diverse members.

²² Now he buildeth his doctrine upon the foundations which he hath laid: and first of all he continueth in his purposed similitude, and afterward he goeth to the matter ²³ arily and simply. And first of all, he speaketh unto them which would have separated themselves from those whom they envied, because they had not such excellent gifts as they: now this is, saith he, ²⁴ if the foot should say, it were not of the body, because it is not the hand: or the ear, because it is ²⁵ the eye. Therefore all parts ought rather to defend the unity of the body, being coupled together ²⁶ serve ²⁷ another.

²⁸ Again speaking ²⁹ them, he sheweth them, that if that should ³⁰ pass which they desire, to wit, that all should be equal one ³¹ another, there would follow a destruction of the whole body, yea and of themselves: for it could

A. D. 59. were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?
 18 But now hath God disposed the members every one of them in the body at his own pleasure.
 19 For if they were all one member, where were the body?
 20 But now are there many members, yet but one body.
 21 ¹² And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor the head again to the feet, I have no need of you.
 22 Yea, much rather those members of the body, which seem to be more feeble, are necessary.
 23 And upon those members of the body, which we think most dishonest, put we more honesty on: and our uncomely parts have more comeliness on.
 24 For our comely parts need it not: but God hath tempered the body together, and hath given the more honour to that part which lacked.
 25 Lest there should be any division in the body: but that the members should have the same care one for another.
 26 ¹³ Therefore if one member suffer, all suffer with it: if one member be had in honour, all the members rejoice with it.
 27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members for your part.
 28 * And God hath ordained some in the church: as first apostles, secondly prophets, thirdly teachers, then them that do miracles: after that, the gifts of healing, helpers, governors, diversity of tongues.
 29 Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers?
 30 Are all doers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?

 31 ¹⁴ But desire you the best gifts; and I will yet shew you a more excellent way.

CHAP. XIII.

¹ He sheweth that there are no gifts so excellent, which in God's sight are not corrupt, if charity be away: 4 and therefore he digresseth unto the commendation of it.

THOUGH I speak with the tongues of men and angels, and have not love, I am as sounding brass, or tinkling cymbal.

2 And though I had the gift of prophecy, and knew all secrets, and all knowledge, yea, if I had all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and had not love, I were nothing.

3 And though I feed the poor with all my goods, and though I give my body that I be burned, and have not love, it profiteth nothing.

4 Love suffereth long: it is bountiful: love envieth not: love doth not boast itself: it is not puffed up:

5 It doeth no uncomely thing: it seeketh not her own things: it is not provoked to anger: it thinketh not evil:

6 It rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth:

7 It suffereth all things: it believeth all things: it hopeth all things: it endureth all things.

8 Love doth never fall away, though that prophecyings be abolished, or the tongues cease, or knowledge vanish away.

9 For we know in part, and we prophesy in part.

10 But

Eph. 4. 11.

A. D. 59.

Matt. 27.

could not be a body, unless it were made of many members knit together, and diverse one from the other. And that no man might find fault with this division unequal, he addeth, that God himself hath coupled all these together. Therefore all must remain coupled together, that the body may remain in safety.

¹² Now on the other side, he speaketh unto them which were indued with more excellent gifts, willing them not to despise the inferiors unprofitable, and as though they served in use: for God, saith he, hath in such sort tempered this inequality, that the more excellent and beautiful members can in no wise lack the more abject, and such as we are ashamed of, and that they should have more care to see unto them and to cover them: that by this means the necessity which is on both parts, might keep the whole body in peace and concord: that although if each part be considered apart, they are of divers degrees and conditions, yet because they are joined together, they have a community both in commodities and discommodities.

¹³ Of the smallest and vilest offices, and therefore small accounted of, of the rest.

We carefully cover them.
 Should bestow their operation and offices the profit and preservation of the whole body.

¹³ Now he applieth this same doctrine to the Corinthians, without any allegory, warning them, that seeing there diverse functions and diverse gifts, it is their duty not to offend one against another, either by envy or ambition, but rather that they being joined together in love and charity with another, every one of them bestow the profit of all, that which he hath received, according to his ministry doth require.

¹⁴ For all churches, wheresoever they are dispersed through the whole world, diverse members of one body.

The office of deacons.
 He setteth forth the order of elders, which were the maintainers of the church's discipline.

He teacheth them that are ambitious and envious, a certain holy ambition and envy, to wit, if they give themselves the best gifts, and such most profitable to the church, and so if they contend excel one another in love, which far passeth all other gifts.

¹ He reasoneth first of charity, the excellence whereof he first sheweth by this, that without it, all other gifts are nothing before God: which thing he proveth partly by induction, and partly also by argument taken of the end, wherefore those gifts are given. For to what purpose are those gifts but God's glory, and the profit of the church, as is before proved? so that those gifts without charity, have no right use.

A very earnest kind of amplifying matter, if he said, If there were any tongues of angels, and I had them, and did not use them to the benefit of my neighbour, it were nothing else but a vain and prattling kind of babbling.

That giveth a rude and certain sound.
 By faith, he meaneth the gift of doing miracles, and not that faith which justifieth, which cannot be void of charity, as the other may.

² He describeth the force and nature of charity, partly by comparison of contraries, and partly by the effects of itself: whereby the Corinthians may understand, both how profitable it is in the church, and how necessary: and also how far they are from it, and therefore how vainly and without cause they are proud.

Word for word, deferreth wrath.

It is not conumelious.

Rejoiceth at righteousness in the righteous. For the Hebrews mean by truth, righteousness.
³ Again he commendeth the excellency of charity in that, that it shall never be abolished in the saints; whereas the other gifts, which are necessary for the building up of the church, long as we live here, shall have place in the world to come.

The way to get knowledge by prophesying.

⁴ The reason is because we are now in that state that we have need to learn daily, and therefore we have need of those helps, to wit, of the gift of tongues, and knowledge, and also of them that teach them: But to what purpose serve they then, when we have obtained and gotten the full knowledge of God which serveth but for them which are imperfect, and go by degrees to perfection?

We learn imperfectly.

A. D. 59. 10 But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be abolished.

11 When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

12 For now we see through a glass darkly: but then shall we see face to face. Now I know in part: but then shall I know even as I am known.

13 And now abideth faith, hope, and love, these three: but the chiefest of these is love.

CHAPTER XIV.

1 He commendeth the gift of prophesying: 7 and by a similitude taken of the musical instruments, 12 he teacheth the true use of interpreting the scriptures: 17 He taketh away the abuse: 34 and forbideth women to speak in the congregation.

FOLLOW after love, and covet spiritual gifts, and rather that ye may prophesy.

2 For he that speaketh a strange tongue, speaketh not unto men, but unto God: for no man heareth him: howbeit in the Spirit he speaketh secret things.

3 But he that prophesieth, speaketh unto men to edifying, and to exhortation, and to comfort.

4 He that speaketh strange language, edifieth himself: but he that prophesieth, edifieth the church.

5 I would that ye all spake strange languages,

He setteth forth that, that he said, by an excellent similitude, comparing this life to our infancy or childhood, wherein we stagger and stammer rather than speak, and think and understand childish things, and therefore have need of such things as may form and frame our tongue and mind: but when we become men, to what purpose should we desire that stammering, those childish toys, and such like things, whereby our childhood is framed by little and little?

The applying of the similitude of our childhood to this present life, wherein we darkly behold heavenly things, according to the small measure of light which is given us, through the understanding of tongues, and hearing the teachers and ministers of the church: of our man's age and strength, to that heavenly and eternal life, wherein when we behold God himself present, and are lightened with his full and perfect light, to what purpose would we desire the voice of man, and those worldly things which are most imperfect? But yet then, shall all the saints be knit both with God, and between themselves, with most fervent love, and therefore charity shall not be abolished but perfected, although it shall not be shewed forth, and entertained by such manner of duties as peculiarly and only belong to the infirmity of this life.

All this must be understood by comparison.

The conclusion: as if the apostle should say, Such therefore shall be our condition then: but now we have three things, and they remain sure if we be Christ's, as without which, true religion cannot consist, to wit, faith, hope, and charity. And among these, charity is the chiefest, because it ceaseth not in the life to come as the rest do, but is perfected and accomplished. Foreseeing that faith and hope tend to things which are promised and are to come, when we have presently gotten them, to what purpose should we have faith and hope? but yet there at length shall we truly and perfectly love both God and one another.

He inferreth now of that he spake before: therefore being charity is the chiefest of all, before all things let it be before you as chief and principal: and so esteem those things as most excellent, which profit the greater part of men: (as prophesy, that is to say, the gift of teaching and applying the doctrine: which was contemned in respect of other gifts, although it be the chiefest and most necessary for the church) and not those which for a shew seem to be marvellous, as the gifts of tongues, when a man was suddenly indued with the knowledge of many tongues, which made men greatly amazed, and yet of itself was not greatly to any use, unless there were an interpreter.

What prophesy is, he sheweth in the third verse.

He reprehendeth their perverse judgment touching the gift of tongues. For why was it given: to wit, to the in-but rather that ye prophesied: for greater is he that prophesieth, than he that speaketh divers tongues, except he expound it, that the church may receive edification.

6 And now, brethren, if I come unto you, speaking divers tongues, what shall I profit you, except I speak to you either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by prophesying, or by doctrine?

7 Moreover things without life which give a sound, whether it be a pipe or an harp, except they make a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped?

8 And also if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to battle?

9 So likewise you, by the tongue, except ye utter words that have signification, how shall it be understood what is spoken? for ye shall speak in the air.

10 There are so many kinds of voices (as it cometh to pass) in the world, and none of them is dumb.

11 Except I know then the power of the voice, I shall be unto him that speaketh a barbarian, and he that speaketh, shall be a barbarian unto me.

12 Even so, forasmuch as ye covet spiritual gifts, seek that ye may excel unto the edifying of the church.

13 Wherefore, let him that speaketh a strange tongue, pray that he may interpret.

14 For if I pray in a strange tongue, my spirit tent that the mysteries of God might be the better known to a greater sort. Thereby it is evident that prophesy, whereunto the gift of tongues ought to serve, is better than this: and therefore the Corinthians did judge amiably, in that they made more account of the gift of tongues than of prophesying: because forsooth the gift of tongues was a thing more to be bragged of. And hereupon followed another abuse of the gift of tongues, in that the Corinthians used tongues in the congregation without an interpreter. Which thing altho' it might be done to some profit of him that spake them, yet he corrupted the right use of that gift, because there came thereby no profit to the hearers: and common assemblies were instituted and appointed not for any private man's commodity, but for the profit of the whole company.

A strange language which no man can understand without an interpreter.

By that inspiration which he hath received of the Spirit, which notwithstanding he abuseth, when he speaketh mysteries which none of the company can understand.

Which may further men in the study of godliness.

The company.

He setteth forth that which he said by a similitude, which he borroweth and taketh from instruments of music, which although they speak not perfectly, yet they are distinguished by their sounds, that they may be the better used.

That do fitly utter the matter itself.

He proveth that interpretation is necessarily to be joined with the gift of tongues, by the manifold variety of languages, inasmuch that if a man spake another without an interpreter, it is as if he spake not.

As the papists in all their sermons, and they that ambitiously pour out some Hebrew or Greek words in the pulpit before the unlearned people, thereby to get them a name of vain learning.

The conclusion: if they will excel in those spiritual gifts, as it is meet, they must seek the profit of the church, and therefore they must not use the gift of tongues, unless there be an interpreter to expound the strange and unknown tongue, whether it be himself that speaketh, or another interpreter.

Pray for the gift of interpretation.

A reason: because it is not sufficient for us to speak in the congregation, that we ourselves do worship God in spirit, that is, according to the gift which we have received; but we must also be understood of the company, lest that be unprofitable to other, which we have spoken.

If I pray, when the church is assembled together, in a strange tongue.

A. D. 59. Spirit prayeth: but mine understanding is without fruit.
 15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray with the understanding also: I will sing with the spirit, but I will sing with the understanding also.
 16 ⁷ Else, when thou blest with the spirit, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned, say Amen at thy giving of thanks, seeing he knoweth not what thou sayest?
 17 For thou verily givest thanks well, but the other is not edified.
 18 ⁸ I thank my God, I speak languages more than ye all.
 19 Yet had I rather in the church to speak five words with mine understanding, that I might also instruct others, than ten thousand words in a strange tongue.
 20 ⁹ Brethren, be not children in understanding, but as concerning maliciousness be children: but in understanding be of ripe age.
 21 In the law it is written, * By men of other tongues, and by other languages will I speak unto this people: yet so shall they not hear me, saith the Lord.
 22 ¹⁰ Wherefore strange tongues are for a sign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not: but prophesying serveth not for them that believe not, but for them which believe.
 23 ¹¹ If therefore, when the whole church is come together in one, and all speak strange tongues, there come in they that are unlearned, or they which believe not, will they not say, that ye are out of your wits?
 24 But if all prophesy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is rebuked of all men, and is judged of all:
 25 And so are the secrets of his heart made manifest, and so he will fall down on his face and worship God, and say plainly that God is in you indeed.
 26 ¹² What is to be done then, brethren? when ye come together, according as every one of you hath a psalm, or hath doctrine, or hath a tongue; or hath revelation, or hath interpretation, let all things be done unto edifying:

 27 ¹³ If any man speak strange tongue, let it be by two, or at the most by three, and that by course, and let one interpret.
 28 But if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the church, which speaketh languages, and let him speak to himself, and to God.
 29 ¹⁴ Let the prophets speak, two or three, and let the other judge.
 30 And if any thing be revealed to another that sitteth by, let the first hold his peace.
 31 For ye may all prophesy one by one, that all may learn, and all may have comfort.
 32 And the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets.
 33 For God is not the author of confusion; but of peace, which we see in all the churches of the saints.
 34 ¹⁵ * Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak: but they ought to be subject, also the law saith.
 35 And if they will learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is shame for a woman to speak in the church.
 36 ¹⁶ Came the word of God out from you? either came it unto you only?
 37 If any man think himself to be prophet, or spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you, are the commandments of the Lord.
 38 ¹⁷ And if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant.
 39 ¹⁸ Wherefore, brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak languages.
 40 Let all things be done honestly, and by order.

3 E CHAP.

* The gift and inspiration which the Spirit giveth me, doth his part, but only to myself.
¹ No fruit cometh to the church by my prayers.
^m So that I may be understood of others, and may instruct others.
⁷ Another reason: seeing that the whole congregation must agree to him that speaketh, and also witness this agreement, how shall they give their assent or agreement which know not what is spoken?
ⁿ Only, without all consideration of the hearers.
^o He that stretcheth as private man.
^p So then one uttered the prayers, and all the company answered, Amen.
^q He propoundeth himself for an example, both that they may be ashamed of their foolish ambition, and also that he may eschew all suspicion of envy.
^r A very few words.
⁹ Now he reproveth them freely for their childish folly, which see not how this gift of tongues, which was given to the profit of the church, is turned by their ambition into an instrument of cursing, seeing that the same also is contained among the punishments wherewith God punished the stubbornness of his people, that he dispersed them amongst strangers whose language they understood not.
^s By the law he understandeth all the whole scripture.
¹⁰ The conclusion: therefore the gift of tongues serveth to punish the unfaithful and unbelievers, unless it be referred to prophecy (that is to say, to the interpretation of scripture) and that, that which is spoken be by that understood of the hearers.
¹¹ Another argument: the gift of tongues without prophecy is not only unprofitable to the faithful, but also doth much hurt: as well to them as to the unfaithful, which should be won in the public assemblies. For by this means it cometh to pass, that the faithful seem to others to be mad, much less can the unfaithful be instructed thereby.

^u Look Acts 4. 13.
^v The conclusion. The edifying of the congregation is rule and square of the right use of all spiritual gifts.
¹³ The manner how use the gift of tongues. It may be lawful for one or two, or at the most for three, use the gift of tongues, one after another, in assembly, so that there be some expound the same: but if there be none to expound, let him that hath that gift speak himself alone.
¹⁴ The manner of prophesying: let two or three propound, and let the other judge of that that is propounded, whether it be agreeable to the word of God or no: if in this examination the Lord give any man aught to speak, let them give him leave to speak. Let every one be admitted to prophesy, severally, and in his order, so far forth as it is requisite for the edifying of the church: let them be content to be subject each to other's judgment.
¹⁵ The doctrine which the prophets bring; which inspired with God's Spirit.
¹⁶ Women are commanded to be silent in public assemblies, and they are commanded to ask of their husbands at home.
¹⁷ A general conclusion of the treatise of the right use of spiritual gifts in assemblies: with sharp reprehension, lest the Corinthians might alone seem themselves to be wise.
¹⁸ Skilful in knowing and judging spiritual things.
¹⁹ The church ought not to care for such as be stubbornly ignorant, and will not abide to be taught, but to go forward, notwithstanding, in those things which are right.
²⁰ Prophecy ought simply to be retained and kept in congregations: the gift of tongues is to be forbidden, but all things must be done orderly.

A. D.

CHAP. XV.

59. 1 The gospel that Paul preached. 3 The death and resurrection of Christ. 8 Paul saw Christ. 9 He had persecuted that church, whereof afterward he was made a minister. 12 Christ first rose again, and we all shall rise by him. 26 The last enemy, death. 29 To be baptized for the dead. 32 At Ephesus Paul fought with beasts. 35 How the dead are raised. 45 The first Adam. The last Adam. 47 The first and second man. 51 We shall all be changed, we shall not all sleep. 55 Death's sting. 57 Victory. 58 Constancy and steadfastness.

MOREOVER, ¹ brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which ye have also received, and wherein ye ² continue,

■ And whereby ye are saved, if ye keep in memory after what manner I preached it unto you, ³ except ye have believed in vain.

3 For first of all, I delivered unto you that which I received, how that Christ died for our sins, according to the ⁴ scriptures,

4 And that he was buried, and that he arose the third day, according to the ⁵ scriptures.

5 And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the ⁶ twelve.

6 After that, he was seen of more than five hundred brethren at ⁷ once: whereof many remain unto this present, and some also are asleep.

7 After that, he was seen of James: then of all the apostles.

8 And last of all, he was seen also of me, as of one born out of due time.

9 ¹⁰ For I am the least of the apostles, which am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.

■ The sixth treatise of this epistle, concerning the resurrection: and he useth a transition, or passing over from one matter to another, shewing first, that he bringeth a new thing, to the end that the Corinthians might understand that they had begun to swerve from the right course: and next, that he goeth not about to intreat of a trifling matter, but of another chief point of the gospel, which if it be taken away, their faith must needs come to nought. And so at the length he beginneth this treatise at Christ's resurrection, which is the ground and foundation of ours, and confirmeth it, first, by the testimony of the scriptures, and by the witness of the apostles, and of more than five hundred brethren, and last of all by his own.

¹ In the profession whereof you continue yet.

■ Which is very absurd, and cannot be but that they that believe must reap the fruit of faith.

² Of those twelve picked and chosen apostles, which were commonly called twelve, though Judas was put out of the number.

³ Not at several times, but together and ⁴ instant.

⁴ He maintaineth by the way, the authority of his apostleship, which was requisite to be in good credit among the Corinthians, that this epistle might be of force and weight amongst them. In the mean season he compareth himself in such sort after ⁵ certain divine art, with certain others, that he maketh himself inferior to them all.

⁵ The first argument, to prove that there is ⁶ resurrection from the dead: Christ ⁷ risen again, therefore the dead shall rise again.

■ The second, by an absurdity: if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is not Christ risen again.

⁸ The proof of that absurdity, by other absurdities: if Christ be not risen again, the preaching of the gospel is in vain, and the credit that you gave unto it, is vain, and we are liars.

⁹ He repeateth the same argument taken out of an absurdity, purposing to shew how faith is in vain, if the resurrection of Christ be taken away.

¹⁰ First, seeing death is the punishment of sin, in vain should we believe that our sins were forgiven us, if they remain: but they do remain, if Christ rose not from death.

■ They are yet in their sins, which are not sanctified, nor have obtained remission of their sins.

¹¹ Secondly, unless that this be certain that Christ rose again, all they which died in Christ are perished. So then what profit cometh of faith?

10 ¹² But by the grace of God, I am that I am: and his grace which is in me, was not in vain: but I laboured more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which is with me.

11 Wherefore, whether it were I, or they, so we preach, and so have ye believed.

12 ¶ ¹³ Now if it be preached, that Christ is risen from the dead, how say some among you, that there is no resurrection of the dead?

13 ¹⁴ For if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen:

14 ¹⁵ And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain:

15 And we are found also false witnesses of God: for we have testified of God, that he hath raised up Christ: whom he hath not raised up, if so be the dead be not raised.

16 ¹⁶ For if the dead be not raised, then is Christ not raised.

17 And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain: ¹⁷ ye are ¹⁸ yet in your sins.

18 ¹⁹ And so they which are asleep in Christ, are perished.

19 ²⁰ If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men the most miserable.

20 ²¹ But now is Christ risen from the dead, and was made the ²² first fruits of them that slept.

21 ²³ For since by man ²⁴ came death, by man ²⁵ came also the resurrection of the dead.

22 For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be ²⁶ made alive.

23 ²⁷ But every man in his ²⁸ own order: the ²⁹ first fruits ³⁰ is Christ: afterward, they that are of ³¹ Christ, at his coming ³² shall rise again.

24 ³³ Then ³⁴ shall be the ³⁵ end, when he hath deli-

■ The third argument, which is also taken from an absurdity: for unless there be another life, wherein such as trust and believe in Christ shall be blessed, they were the most miserable of all creatures, because in this life they are the most miserable.

¹⁰ A conclusion of the former argument: therefore Christ is risen again.

¹¹ He putteth the last conclusion for the first proposition of the argument that followeth. Christ is risen again: therefore shall we, the faithful (for of them he speaketh), rise again. Then followeth the first reason of this consequence: for Christ is set forth unto us to be considered of, not as ¹² private man apart and by himself, but as the first fruits: and he taketh that which was known to all men, to wit, that the whole heap is sanctified in the first-fruits.

¹³ He alludeth to the first-fruits of corn, the offering whereof sanctified the rest of the fruits.

¹⁴ Another confirmation of the same consequence: for Christ is ¹⁵ be considered as opposite ¹⁶ Adam, that as from one man, Adam, sin ¹⁷ over all, so from one man, Christ, life cometh unto all: that is ¹⁸ say, that all the faithful, as they die, because by nature they were born of Adam, so because in Christ they are made the children of God by grace, they ¹⁹ quickened and restored to life by him.

■ Shall rise by the virtue of Christ.

²¹ He doeth ²² things together: for he sheweth that the resurrection is in such sort ²³ Christ with all his members, that notwithstanding he far passeth them, both in time (for he was the first that rose again from the dead) and also in honour, because that from him and in him is all ²⁴ life and glory. Then by this occasion he passeth ²⁵ the next argument.

²⁶ The fourth argument, wherewith also he confirmeth the other, hath a most sure ground, ²⁷ wit, because that God must reign. And this is the manner of his reign, that the Father will be shewed to be King of his Son, who was made man, ²⁸ whom all things ²⁹ made subject (the promises only excepted) ³⁰ the end that the Father may afterward triumph in his Son the Conqueror. And he maketh two parts of this reign and dominion of the Son: wherein the Father's glory consisteth, ³¹ wit, the overcoming of his enemies (whereof some must be deprived of all power, as Satan and all the wicked, be they ³² so proud and mighty, and others must be utterly abolished, ³³ death) and a plain ³⁴ full delivery of the godly from all enemies, that by this means

A. D. 59. delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father, when he hath put down ⁱ all rule, and all authority and power.

25 For he must reign till he hath put all enemies ^k under his feet.

26 The ^l last enemy that shall be destroyed, is death, ri 8. 6. 11. 2. 3. 27 * For he hath put down all things under his feet. (And when he saith that all things are subdued to him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which did put down all things under him.)

28 And when all things shall be subdued unto him, ^m then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that did subdue all things under him, that ⁿ God may be all in all.

29 ^o Else what shall they do which are baptized ^p for dead? if the dead rise not at all, why are they then baptized for dead?

30 ^q Why are we also in jeopardy every hour?

31 By our ^r rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily.

10. 22. 32 ^s If I have fought with beasts at Ephesus ^t after the manner of men, what advantageth it me, if the dead be not raised up? * ^u let us ^v eat and drink: for to-morrow we shall die.

33 ^w Be not deceived: evil speakings corrupt good manners.

34 Awake to live righteously, and sin not:

for some have not the knowledge of God, I ^x speak this to your shame. A. D. 59.

35 ^y But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body come they forth?

36 ^z O fool, that which thou sowest, is not quickened, except it die.

37 And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare corn ^{aa} it falleth, of wheat, or of some other.

38 ^{ab} But God giveth it ^{ac} body at his pleasure, even to every seed his own body.

39 All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one flesh of men, and another flesh of beasts, and another of fishes, and another of birds.

40 There are also heavenly bodies, and earthly bodies: but the glory of the heavenly is one; and the glory of the earthly is another.

41 There is another glory of the sun, another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory.

42 ^{ad} So also is the resurrection of the dead. The body is ^{ae} sown in corruption, and is raised in incorruption.

43 It is sown in ^{af} dishonour, and is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness, and is raised in ^{ag} power.

44 ^{ah} It is sown ^{ai} natural body, and is raised ^{aj} spirimeans God may fully set forth in the body of the church cleaving fast to their head Christ, his kingdom and glory, as a King in his subjects. Moreover he putteth the first degree of this kingdom in the resurrection of his Son, who is the Head: and the perfection, in the full conjunction ^{ak} of the members with the head, which shall be in the latter day. Now all these tend ^{al} this purpose, to shew that unless the dead do rise again, neither the Father can be King above all, neither Christ be the Lord of all: for neither should the power of Satan and death be overcome, nor the glory of God be full in his Son, nor his Son's in his members.

^{am} The shutting up and finishing of all things.

^{an} All his enemies, which shall be spoiled of all the power they have. Psalm 110. 1. Acts 2. 34. Heb. 1. 13. and 10. 13.

^{ao} Christ is considered here ^{ap} he appeared in the form of a servant, in which respect he ruleth the church as head, and that because this power was given him of his Father.

^{aq} The shutting up of the argument, which is taken from the whole to the part: for if all his enemies shall be put under his feet, then must it needs be that death also shall be subdued under him.

^{ar} Not because the Son was not subject to his Father before, but because his body, that is to say, the church which is here in distress, and not yet wholly partaker of his glory, is not yet fully perfect, and also because the bodies of the saints which be in the graves, shall not be glorified until the resurrection: but Christ as he is God, hath us subject ^{as} in him as his Father hath, but ^{at} he is Priest, he is subject ^{au} his Father together with us. August. book 1. chap. 8. of the Trinity.

^{av} By this high kind of speech, is set forth an incomprehensible glory which floweth from God, and shall fill all of us, as we are joined together with our head, but yet so, that our head shall always reserve his pre-eminence.

^{aw} The fifth argument is taken of the end of baptism, to wit, because that they which ^{ax} baptized, ^{ay} baptized for dead: that is ^{az} say, that they may have ^{ba} remedy against death, because that baptism is a token of regeneration.

^{bb} They that are baptized ^{bc} this end and purpose, that death may be put out in them, or ^{bd} rise again from the dead, whereof baptism is a seal.

^{be} The sixth argument: unless there be ^{bf} resurrection of the dead, why should the apostles so daily cast themselves into danger of so many deaths?

^{bg} As though he said, I die daily, ^{bh} all the miseries I suffer ^{bi} can well witness, which I may truly boast of that I have suffered amongst you.

^{bj} The taking away of an objection: but thou Paul didst ambitiously, as commonly men ^{bk} went to do, when thou didst fight with beasts ^{bl} Ephesus. That ^{bm} very like, saith Paul: for what could that advantage me, were it ^{bn} for the glory of eternal life which I hope for?

^{bo} Not upon any godly motion, ^{bp} casting mine eyes upon God, but carried away with vain glory, ^{bq} a certain headiness.

^{br} The seventh argument, which dependeth upon the last: If there be no resurrection of the dead, why do we give ourselves ^{bs} any thing else, save to eating and drinking?

^{bt} These are speeches that epicures use.

^{bu} The conclusion with ^{bv} sharp exhortation, that they take heed of the naughty company of certain, from whence he sheweth that this mischief sprang: warning them ^{bw} be wise with sobriety unto righteousness.

^{bx} Now that he hath proved the resurrection, he discovereth their foolishness, in that they scoffingly demanded how it could be that the dead could rise again; and if they did rise again, they asked mockingly, what ^{by} of bodies they should have? Therefore he sendeth these fellows, which seemed to themselves to be marvellous wise and witty, ^{bz} be instructed of poor rude husbandmen.

^{ca} Thou mightest have learned either of these, saith Paul, by daily experience: for seeds are sown, and rot, and yet notwithstanding so far it is off that they perish, that contrariwise they grow up far more beautiful: and whereas they are sown naked and dry, they spring up green from death by the virtue of God: and doth it seem incredible ^{cb} thee that ^{cc} bodies should rise from corruption, and that indued with ^{cd} far ^{ce} excellent quality?

^{cd} We see a diversity both in one and the self-same thing which hath now ^{ce} form and then another, and yet keepeth its own kind: as it is evident in ^{cf} grain which is sown, bare, but springeth up far after another sort: and also in diverse kinds of ^{cg} self-same sort, ^{ch} amongst beasts: and also amongst things of diverse sorts, ^{ci} the heavenly bodies and the earthly bodies: which also differ very much one from another. Therefore there is no cause why we should reject either the resurrection of the bodies, ^{ck} the changing of them into ^{cl} better state, as ^{cm} thing impossible ^{cn} strange.

^{co} He maketh three manner of qualities of the bodies being raised: Incorruption, ^{cp} wit, because they shall be sound, and altogether of ^{cq} nature that cannot be corrupt: Glory, because they shall be adorned with beauty and honour: Power, because they shall continue everlasting, without ^{cr} meat, drink, and all other helps, without which this frail life ^{cs} keep itself from corruption.

^{ct} Is buried, and ^{cu} is hid as the seed in the ground.

^{cv} Void of honour, void of glory and beauty.

^{cw} Freed from the former weakness, whereas it is subject to such alteration and change, that it cannot maintain itself without ^{cx} and drink, and such other like helps.

^{cx} He sheweth perfectly in ^{cy} word this change of the quality of the body by the resurrection, when he saith, that

that

A. D. 59. a spiritual body: ²⁵ there is a natural body, and ²⁶ there is a spiritual body.

• Gen. 1. 7. 45 As it is also written, The ² first man ² Adam was made a living soul: and the last Adam was made a ⁷ quickening spirit.

46 ²⁵ Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural, and afterward that which is spiritual.

47 The first man is of the earth, ² earthly: the second man is the Lord from ² heaven.

48 ²⁷ As is the earthly, such are they that are earthly: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And as we have borne the ³ image of the earthly, so shall we bear the image of the heavenly.

50 ²⁸ This I say, brethren, that ⁶ flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.

51 ²⁹ Behold, I shew you a ⁴ secret thing, We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed,

• 1 Cor. 15. 51. 52.

52 In ⁶ a moment, in the twinkling of an eye at the last ⁸ trumpet: for the trumpet shall blow, and the dead shall be raised up incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.

54 So when this corruptible hath put on incorruption, and this mortal hath put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, ⁹ Death is swallowed up into victory.

• Heb. 2. 14.

55 O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

56 The sting of death is sin: and the strength of sin is the law.

• 1 John 5. 5.

57 ²⁶ But thanks be unto God, which hath given us victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 ²⁹ Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, abundant always in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the ⁷ Lord.

that of ¹ natural body, it shall become a spiritual body: which two qualities being clean different the one from the other, he straightway expoundeth, and setteth forth diligently.

²⁵ That is called a natural body which is quickened and maintained by a living soul only, such as Adam was, of whom all we are born naturally: and that is said to be a spiritual, which together with the soul is quickened with a far more excellent virtue, to wit, with the Spirit of God, which descendeth from Christ the second Adam unto us.

²⁶ Adam is called the first man: because he is the root, as it were, from whence ¹ spring, and Christ is the latter man: because he is the beginning of them that are spiritual, and in him we are all comprehended.

²⁷ Christ is called ¹ Spirit, by reason of that most excellent nature, that is to say, God who dwelleth in him bodily, as Adam is called a living soul, by reason of the soul which is the best part in him.

²⁸ Secondly, he willeth the order of this double state or quality to be observed, that the natural was first, Adam being created of the clay of the earth: and the spiritual followed and came upon it, to wit, when as the Lord being sent from heaven, endued our flesh, which was prepared and made fit for him, with the fulness of the Godhead.

²⁹ Wallowing in dirt, and wholly given to an earthly nature.

³⁰ The Lord is said ¹ come down from heaven by that kind of speech, whereby that which is proper to ¹ is vouched of another.

³¹ He applieth both the earthly naturalness of Adam (if I may so say) ¹ our bodies, so long as they are naturally conversant upon earth, to wit, in this life and in the grave: and also the spirituality of Christ to the same our bodies, after they ¹ risen again: and he saith that that goeth before, and this shall follow.

³² Not a vain and false image, but such ¹ one as had the truth with it indeed.

CHAP. XVI.

A. D. 59.

1 He exhorteth them to help the poor brethren of Jerusalem: 10 Then he commendeth Timothy, 13 and so, with a friendly exhortation, 19 and commendations, endeth the epistle.

Concerning ¹ the gathering for the saints, as I have ordained in the churches of Galatia, so do ye also.

2 Every ² first day of the week, let every one of you put aside by himself, and lay up as God hath ³ prospered him, that then there be no gatherings when I come.

3 And when I am come, whomsoever ye shall allow by ⁴ letters, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem.

4 ² And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

5 Now I will come unto you, after I have gone through Macedonia (for I will pass through Macedonia.)

6 And it may be that I will abide, yea, or winter with you, that ye may bring me on my way whithersoever I go.

7 For I will not see you now in my passage, but I trust to abide a while with you, if the Lord permit.

8 And I will tarry at Ephesus until Pentecost.

9 For a great door and ⁴ effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries.

10 ¶ Now if Timotheus come, see that he be ² without fear with you: for he worketh the work of the Lord, even as I do.

11 Let no man therefore despise him: but convey him forth ⁶ in peace, that he may come unto me: for I look for him with the brethren.

²⁵ The conclusion: We cannot be partakers of the glory of God, unless we put off all that gross and filthy nature of our bodies, subject to corruption, that the same body may be adorned with incorruptible glory.

⁶ Flesh and blood are taken here for a living body, which cannot attain to incorruption, unless it put off corruption.

²⁹ He goeth further, declaring that it shall come to pass, that they which shall be found alive in the latter day, shall not descend into that corruption of the grave, but shall be renewed with a sudden change, which change is very requisite: and that the certain enjoying of the benefit and victory of Christ, is deferred unto that latter time.

The Second Epistle of the Apostle PAUL to the CORINTHIANS.

C H A P. I.

1 He beginneth with the praise of affliction, 8 declaring what he hath suffered in Asia, 10 and how happily God assisted him. 17 He saith it was not upon any lightness that he came not according to his promise.

PAUL ¹ an apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, and our brother Timotheus, to the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the saints which are in all Achaia:

■ Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 * ² Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of ^b mercies, and the God of all comfort, 4 Which comforteth us in all our tribulation, ³ that we may be able to comfort them which are in any affliction, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God.

² He beginneth after this manner with thanksgiving, which notwithstanding (otherwise than he was wont) he applyeth to himself: beginning his epistle with the setting forth of the dignity of his apostleship, constrained (as it should seem) by their importunity which took [■] occasion to despise him, by reason of his miseries. But he answereth, that he is not so afflicted, but that his comforts do exceed his afflictions, shewing the ground of them, even the mercy of God the Father in Jesus Christ.

■ To him be praise and glory given.

^b Most merciful.

■ The Lord doth comfort us [■] this end and purpose, that [■] may so much the more surely comfort others.

■ The miseries which we suffer for Christ, or which Christ suffereth in us.

■ He denieth that either his afflictions, wherewith he was often afflicted, [■] the consolations which he received of 5 For as the ^c sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation aboundeth through Christ.

6 ⁴ And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, which is [■] wrought in the enduring of the same sufferings which we also suffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation.

7 And our hope is stedfast concerning you, in [■] much [■] we know, that as ye [■] partakers of the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the consolation.

8 ⁵ For brethren, we would not have you ignorant of our affliction, which came unto us in Asia, how [■] were pressed out of measure passing strength, so that we altogether ^c doubted even of life.

9 Yea, we received the sentence of death in ^c ourselves, because we should not trust in ourselves, but in God which raised the dead.

3 F

10 Who

God, may justly be despised, seeing that the Corinthians both ought and might take great occasion [■] be confirmed by either of them.

■ Although salvation be given [■] freely, yet because there is [■] way appointed us whereby [■] must come to it, which is, the race of an innocent and upright life, which [■] must run, therefore [■] said [■] work out our salvation, Phil. 2. 12. And because it is God only that of his free good will worketh all things in us, therefore is he said [■] work the salvation in [■] by these self-same things by which we must pass [■] everlasting life, after that we have once overcome all incumbrances.

■ He witnesseth that he is not only not ashamed of his afflictions, but that he desireth also to have all men know the greatness of them, and also his delivery from them, although it be not yet perfect.

■ I knew not at all what [■] do, neither did I see by man's help which way to save myself.

■ I was resolved within myself [■] die.

A. D. 60.

A. D. 60. 10 Who delivered us from so great a death, and doth deliver us: in whom we trust, that yet hereafter he will deliver us.

11 So that ye labour together in prayer for us, that for the gift bestowed upon us for many, thanks may be given by many persons for us.

12 For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly pureness, and not in fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world, and most of all to you-wards.

13 For we write none other things unto you, than that ye read, or else that ye acknowledge, and I trust ye shall acknowledge unto the end.

14 Even as ye have acknowledged us partly, that we are your rejoicing, even as ye are ours, in the day of our Lord Jesus.

15 And in this confidence was I minded first to come unto you, that ye might have had double grace:

16 And to pass by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia unto you, and to be led forth toward Judea of you.

17 When I therefore was thus minded, did I use lightness? or mind I those things which I mind, according to the flesh, that with me should be Yea, yea, and Nay, nay?

18 Yea, God is faithful, that our word toward you was not Yea, and Nay.

19 For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us, that is, by me, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, was not Yea, and Nay: but in him it was Yea.

20 For all the promises of God in him are Yea, and are in him Amen, unto the glory of God through us.

² From these great dangers.

¹ That he may not seem to boast himself, he attributeth all to God, and therewith also confesseth that he attributeth much to the prayers of the faithful.

⁷ The end of the afflictions of the saints, is the glory of God, and therefore they ought to be precious unto us.

⁵ Secondly, he putteth away another slander, to wit, that he was a light man, and such a one as was not likely to be credited, seeing that he promised to come unto them, and came not. And first he speaketh of the simplicity of his mind, and sincerity, which they knew both by his voice when he was present, and they ought to acknowledge it also in his letters, being absent: and moreover he protesteth that he will never be otherwise.

² With clearness, and holy and true plainness of mind, as God himself can witness.

¹ Trusting to that very wisdom which God of his free goodness hath given me from heaven.

⁴ He saith he writeth barely and simply: for he that writeth in coloured sort, is rightly said to write otherwise than we read: and this he saith the Corinthians shall truly know and like of very well.

² Paul's rejoicing in the Lord was, that he had won the Corinthians: and they themselves rejoiced that such an apostle was their instructor, and taught them so purely and sincerely.

² When he shall sit to judge.

² Another benefit.

⁵ He putteth away their slander and false report by denying it, and first of all, in that that divers went about to persuade the Corinthians, that in preaching of the gospel, Paul agreed not to himself: for this was the matter and the cause.

² As men do which will rashly promise any thing, and change their purpose at every turning of hand.

⁵ That I should say and unsay a thing?

¹² He calleth God to witness and for judge, of his constancy in preaching and teaching one self-same gospel.

¹ True, and of whose faithful witness it were horrible wickedness to doubt.

¹¹ He joineth also with himself, his fellows as witnesses, with whom he fully consented in teaching one self-same

21 And it is God which stablisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us.

22 Who hath also sealed us, and hath given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.

23 Now, I call God for a record unto my soul, that to spare you, I came not as yet unto Corinth.

24 Not that we have dominion over your faith, but we are helpers of your joy: for by faith ye stand.

CHAP. II.

1 He excuseth his not coming unto them, 2 and privily reprehendeth them. 4 He sheweth that such is his affection towards them; 5 that he never rejoiceth but when they are merry. 6 Perceiving the adulterer (whom he commanded to be delivered up to Satan) to repent, he requesteth that they forgive him. 13 He mentioneth his going into Macedonia.

BUT I determined thus in myself, that I would not come again to you in heaviness.

2 For if I make you sorry, who is he then that should make me glad, but the same which is made sorry by me?

3 And I wrote the same thing unto you, lest when I came, I should take heaviness of them, of whom I ought to rejoice: this confidence have I in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all:

4 For in great affliction, and anguish of heart, I wrote unto you with many tears: not that ye should be made sorry, but that ye might perceive the love which I have, especially unto you.

5 And if any hath caused sorrow, the same hath thing, to wit, one self-same Christ.

² Was not diverse and wavering.

¹ That is, in God.

¹² Last of all, he declareth the sum of his doctrine, to wit, that all the promises of salvation are sure and ratified in Christ.

⁴ Christ is set forth to exhibit and fulfil them, also most assuredly, and without all doubt.

² Through our ministry.

¹³ He attributeth the praise of this constancy, only to the grace of God, through the Holy Ghost, and therewithal concludeth, that they cannot doubt of his faith and his fellows, without doing injury to the Spirit of God, seeing that they themselves do know all this to be true.

⁷ An earnest, is what ever is given to confirm a promise.

¹⁴ Now coming to the matter, he sweareth that he did not only not lightly alter his purpose of coming to them, but rather that he came not unto them for this cause, that he might not be constrained, to deal more sharply with them being present, than he would.

² Against myself, and to the danger of mine own life.

¹⁵ He removeth all suspicion of arrogance, declaring that he speaketh not as lord unto them, but as a servant, appointed of God to comfort them.

² He setteth the joy and peace of conscience, which God is author of, against tyrannous fear, and therewithal sheweth the end of the gospel.

⁶ Causing grief amongst you, which he should have done, if he had come to them before they had repented them.

⁴ He passeth to another part of this epistle: which notwithstanding is put amongst the first, whereunto he returneth afterward: and he handleth the releasing and unloosing of the incestuous person, because he seemed to have given sufficient testimony of his repentance: shewing the true use of excommunication, to wit, that it proceed not of hatred, but of love, and so end, lest if we keep no measure, we serve Satan the devil.

A. D. 60. hath not made ^c me sorry, but ^d partly (lest I should more ^e charge him) you all.

6 It is sufficient unto the same man, that he was rebuked of many.

7 So that now contrariwise ye ought rather to ^f forgive him; and comfort him, lest the same should be swallowed up with overmuch heaviness.

8 Wherefore, I pray you, that you would ^g confirm your love towards him.

9 For this cause also did I write, that I might know the proof of you, whether ye would be obedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive also: for verily if I forgave any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your sakes forgave I it in the ^h sight of Christ, 11 Lest Satan should circumvent us: for we are not ignorant of his ⁱ enterprises.

12 ¶ ^j Furthermore, when I came to Troas to preach Christ's gospel, and ^k a door was opened unto me of the Lord, 13 I had no rest in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother, but took my leave of them, and went away into Macedonia.

14 Now thanks be unto God, which always maketh us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the ^l favour of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 ^m For we are unto God the sweet favour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them which perish.

16 To the one we are the favour of death, unto death; and to the other the favour of life, unto life: ⁿ and who is sufficient for these things?

17 ^o For we are not as many, which make ^p merchandize of the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God in the sight of God speak we in Christ.

^c As if he said, All that sorrow is so clean wiped away, as though he had never felt it.

^d As for me (saith Paul) I have ^q more to do with him.

^e Lest I should overcharge him, who is burdened enough of himself, which I would be glad were taken from him.

^f That whereas before you punished him sharply, you would now forgive him.

^g That at my intreaty, you would declare by the consent of the whole church, that you take him again for a brother.

^h Truly, and from the heart.

ⁱ Of his mischievous counsels and devilish will.

^j He returneth to the confirmation of his apostleship, and bringeth forth the testimonies, both of his labour, and also of God's blessing.

^k He alludeth to the anointing of the priests, and the incense of the sacrifices.

^l He denieth that ought should be taken away from the dignity of his apostleship, because they saw evidently that it was not received with like success in every place, nay rather very many rejected and detested him; seeing that he preached Christ not only as ^r Saviour of them that believe, but also as a judge of them that contemn him.

^m Again he putteth away all suspicion of arrogancy, attributing all things that he did to the virtue of God, whom he serveth sincerely, and without all dishonest affection: whereof he maketh them witnesses, even to the 6th verse of the next chapter.

ⁿ We do not handle it craftily and covetously, or less sincerely than we ought: and he useth a metaphor which is taken from hucksters, which use to play the false harlots with whatsoever cometh into their hands.

^o The apostle frameth his speech wisely, that by little and little, he may come from the commendation of the person, to the matter itself.

^p Which I took pains to write as it were.

C H A P. III.

A. D. 60.

1 He desireth no other commendation, ^z than their continuing in the faith. 6 He is a minister, not of the letter, but of the Spirit. 8 He sheweth the difference of the law, and the gospel. 13 That the brightness of the law doth rather dim the sight than lighten it: 18 but the gospel doth make manifest God's countenance unto us.

DO we begin to praise ourselves again? or need we, as some other, epistles of recommendations unto you, or letters of recommendations from you?

2 Ye are our epistle, written in our hearts, which is understood and read of all men:

3 In that ye are ^a manifest, to be the epistle of Christ, ^b ministered by us, and written, not with ink, but with the Spirit of the ^c living God: ^d not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart.

4 And such ^e trust have we through Christ to God:

5 Not that we are sufficient of ourselves, to think any thing as of ourselves: but our ^f sufficiency is of God,

6 ^g Who also hath made us able ministers of the New Testament, not of the ^h letter, but of the Spirit: for the letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life.

7 If then the ministration of death, written with letters ⁱ and ingraven in stones, was ^j glorious, so that the children of Israel could not behold the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenance (which glory is done away)

■ How shall not the ^k ministration of the Spirit be more glorious?

9 For if the ministry of condemnation was glorious, much more doth the ministration of ^l righteousness exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was glorified, was ^m not

^c By the way, he setteth the virtue of God against the ink wherewith epistles are commonly written; ⁿ shew that it was wrought by God.

^z He alludeth by the way to the comparison of the outward ministry of the priesthood of Levi, with the ministry of the gospel, and the apostolical ministry, which he handleth afterward more fully.

■ This boldness we shew, and thus gloriously may we boast of the worthiness and fruit of our ministry.

^e In that we are fit and meet to make other men partakers of so great a grace.

^g He amplifieth his ministry and his fellows: that is to say, the ministry of the gospel, comparing it with the ministry of the law, which he considereth in the person of Moses, by whom the law was given: against whom he setteth Christ the author of the gospel. Now this comparison is taken from the very substance of the ministry. The law is as it were ^o writing of itself dead, and without efficacy: but the gospel, or new covenant, is as it were the very virtue of God itself in renewing, justifying, and saving of men. The law propoundeth death, accusing all men of unrighteousness: the gospel offereth and giveth righteousness and life. The governance of the law served for a time to the promise: the gospel remaineth to the end of the world. Therefore what is the glory of that in comparison of the majesty of this?

^f Not of the law, but of the gospel.

^h Imprinted and ingraven: so that by this place we may plainly perceive, that the apostle speaketh not of the ceremonies of the law, but even of the ten commandments.

ⁱ This word, Glory, betokeneth a brightness, and a majesty which was bodily in Moses, but spiritually in Christ.

^j Whereby God offereth, yea, and giveth the Spirit, not as a dead thing, but ^p quickening spirit, working life.

^k To wit, of Christ, which being imputed to us as our own, we are not only not condemned, but also we are crowned as righteous.

A. D. 60. not glorified in this point, that is, as touching the exceeding glory.

11 For if that which should be ¹ abolished, was glorious, much more shall that which remaineth, be glorious:

12 ³ Seeing then that we have such trust, we use great boldness of speech.

Exod. 34. 34. 13 * + And we are not as Moses, which put a vail upon his face, that the children of Israel should not look unto the ² end of that which should be abolished.

14 Therefore their minds are hardened: for until this day remaineth the same covering undertaken away in the reading of the Old Testament, which vail in Christ is put away.

15 But even unto this day, when Moses is read, the vail is laid over their hearts.

16 Nevertheless, when their heart shall be turned to the Lord, the vail shall be taken away.

17 Now the ³ Lord is the * Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

18 ⁵ But we all behold as in a mirror the glory of the Lord with open face, and are changed into the same image, from glory to glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord.

C H A P. IV.

1 He sheweth that he hath so laboured in preaching the gospel, 4 that such are even blinded of Satan, who do not perceive the brightness thereof. 7 That the same is carried in earthen vessels, 10 who are subject to many miseries: 16 and therefore he exhorteth them by his own example to be courageous, 17 and contemn this present life.

¹ The law, yea, and the ten commandments themselves, together with Moses, is abolished, if we consider the ministry of Moses apart by itself.

² He sheweth wherein standeth this glory of the preaching of the gospel, to wit, in that that it setteth forth plainly and evidently, that which the law shewed darkly: for it sent them that heard it ³ be healed of Christ, which was to come, after that it had wounded them.

⁴ He expoundeth by the way the allegory of Moses's covering, which was ⁵ token of the darkness and weakness that is in men, which were rather dulled by the bright shining of the law than lightened: which covering was taken away by the coming ⁶ of Christ, who lighteneth the hearts, and turneth them to the Lord, that we may be brought from the slavery of this blindness, and set in the liberty of the light by the virtue of Christ's Spirit.

⁷ Into the very bottom of Moses's ministry.

⁸ Christ is that Spirit which taketh away that covering, by working in our hearts, whereunto also the law itself called us, though in vain, because it speaketh to dead men, until the Spirit quickeneth us.

⁹ Going forwards in the allegory of the covering, he compareth the gospel to ¹⁰ glass, which although it be most bright and sparkling, yet doth it not only not dazzle their eyes which look in it, as the law doth, but also transformeth them with its beams, so that they also be partakers of the glory and shining of it, to lighten others: as Christ said unto his, "You are the light of the world," whereas he himself was the only light. We are also commanded in another place to shine as candles before the world, because we are partakers of God's Spirit. But Paul speaketh here properly of the ministers of the gospel, as it appeareth by that that goeth before, and that that cometh after, and that setteth them his own example and his fellows.

¹¹ Now he plainly witnesseth that both he and his fellows (through the mercy of God) do their vocation and duty uprightly, and sincerely, neglecting all dangers.

¹² Though we are broken in pieces with miseries and calamities, yet we yield not.

¹³ Subtily and all kind of deceit which men hunt after, as it were dens and lurking holes to cover their shameless dealings withal.

T Herefore, ¹ seeing that we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we ² faint not:

2 But have cast from us the ³ cloaks of shame, and walk not in craftiness, neither handle we the word of God ⁴ deceitfully: but in declaration of the truth we approve ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

3 ² If our gospel be then hid, it is hid to them that are lost:

4 In whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds, that is, of the infidels, that the ⁵ light of the glorious gospel of Christ, which is the ⁶ image of God, should not shine unto them.

5 ³ For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ourselves your servants for ⁴ Jesus's sake.

6 For God ⁷ that commanded the light to shine out of darkness, is he which hath shined in our hearts, to give the ⁸ light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. ⁹ Gen. 1. 3.

7 ⁴ But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, ⁵ that the excellency of that power might be of God, and not of us.

8 We are afflicted on every side, yet are we not in distress: we are in doubt, but yet we despair not.

9 We are persecuted, but not forsaken: cast down, but we perish not.

10 ⁶ Every where we bear about in our body the ⁷ dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life of Jesus might be also made manifest in our bodies.

11 For we which ⁸ live are always delivered unto

¹ This is it that in the former chapter he called, making merchandise of the word of God.

² An objection: Many hear the gospel, and yet are no more lightened thereby, than by the preaching of the law. He answereth, The fault is in the men themselves, whose eyes Satan plucketh out, who ruleth in this world. And yet notwithstanding doth he and his fellows set forth the most clear light of the gospel to be seen and beholden, seeing that Christ whom only they preach, is he in whom only God will be known, and as it were, seen.

³ The light of plain and lightsome preaching, which telleth forth the glory of Christ.

⁴ In whom the Father setteth forth himself to be seen and beholden.

⁵ He removeth, according to his accustomed manner, all suspicion of ambition, avouching that he teacheth faithfully, but as ⁶ servant; and witnessing that all this light, which he and his fellows give to others, proceedeth from the Lord.

⁷ To preach this self-same Jesus to you.

⁸ Which made it only with his word.

⁹ That being lightened of God, we should in like sort give that light to others.

¹⁰ He taketh away ¹¹ stumbling-block, by which was darkened amongst some the bright shining of the ministry of the gospel, to wit, because the apostles were the most miserable of all men. Paul answereth, that he and his fellows are as it were earthen vessels, but yet there is in them a most precious treasure.

¹² He bringeth marvellous reasons why the Lord doth so afflict his chiefest servants, to the end, saith he, that all men may perceive that they stand not by any man's virtue, but by the singular virtue of God, in that they die a thousand times, but never perish.

¹³ An amplification of the former sentence, wherein he compareth his afflictions to a daily death, and the virtue of the Spirit of God in Christ, to life, which oppresseth that death.

¹⁴ So Paul calleth that miserable state and condition, that the faithful, but especially the ministers, are in.

¹⁵ Which live that life, to wit, by the Spirit of Christ, among so many and so great miseries.

a. D. 60. unto death for Jesus's sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh:

12 ⁷ So then death worketh in us, and life in you.

13 ⁸ And because we have the same ^m spirit of faith, according as it is written, * I believed, and therefore have I spoken: we also believe, and therefore speak.

14 Knowing that he which hath raised up the Lord Jesus, shall raise us up also by Jesus, and shall set us with you.

15 ⁹ For all things are for your sakes, ⁿ that that most plenteous grace by the thanksgiving of many, may redound to the praise of God, 16 Therefore we faint not: ¹⁰ but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is ^o renewed daily.

17 For our ^p light affliction which is but for a moment, causeth unto us ⁿ far more excellent and an eternal weight of ⁿ glory:

18 While we look not on the things which are seen, but on the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen, are temporal: but the things which are not seen, are eternal.

C H A P. V.

1 He continueth in the same argument, 6 touching the certain hope of salvation 8 through faith, 12 not to praise himself, 14 seeing he hath God and his church before his eyes, 17 and esteemeth nothing, but newness of life in Christ.

FOR ¹ we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle be destroyed, we have a ¹ Subject to that miserable condition.

⁷ A very cunning conclusion: as if he would say, Therefore to be short, we die that you may live by our death, for that they ventured into all those dangers for the building of the church's sake, and they ceased not to confirm all the faithful with the examples of their patience.

⁸ He declareth the former sentence, shewing that he and his fellows die in a sort, to purchase life to others, but yet notwithstanding they are partakers of the same life with them: because they themselves do first believe that which they propounded to others ⁿ believe, to wit, that they also shall be saved together with them in Christ.

ⁿ The same faith, by the inspiration of the same Spirit.

ⁿ He sheweth how this constancy is preserved in them, to wit, because they respect God's glory, and the salvation of the church committed unto them.

ⁿ When it shall please God to deliver me, and restore ⁿ to you, that exceeding benefit which shall be poured upon me, shall in like sort redound ⁿ the glory of God, by the thanksgiving of many.

¹⁰ He addeth as it were a triumphant song, how that he is outwardly afflicted, but inwardly he profiteth daily: and passeth not at all for all the miseries that may be sustained in this life, in comparison of that most constant and eternal glory.

^o Gathereth new strength, that the outward ⁿ be not overcome with the miseries which come freshly, ⁿ upon the neck of another, being maintained and upholden with the strength of the inward man.

^p Afflictions are not called light, as though they were light of themselves, but because they pass away quickly, when ⁿ indeed our whole life is of ⁿ great long continuance.

ⁿ Which remaineth for ever firm and stable, and ⁿ never be shaken.

¹ Taking occasion by the former comparison, he compareth this miserable body, ⁿ it is in this life, ⁿ frail and brittle tabernacle, against which he setteth the heavenly tabernacle, so terming that sure and everlasting condition of this same body glorified in heaven, insomuch, saith he, that we are not only not addicted to this tabernacle, but also do with sobs and sighs desire rather that tabernacle. And to this place also concerning the glory ⁿ come, is put within the treatise of the dignity of the ministry, ⁿ the other was, whereof we spake in the beginning of the second chapter.

ⁿ He calleth the glory of immortality, which we shall be building given of God, that is, an house not made with hands, but eternal in the heavens. A. D. 60.

2 For therefore we sigh, desiring to be ^a clothed with our house, which is from ^b heaven.

3 ^a Because that if we be clothed, we shall not be ^a found naked.

4 For indeed we that are in this tabernacle, ¹⁵ sigh and are burdened, because we would not be unclothed, but would be clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

5 And he that hath ^a created us for this thing is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit.

6 ^a Therefore we are alway ^d bold, though we know that while we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord.

7 (For we walk by ^a faith, and not by sight.)

8 Nevertheless, we are ^f bold, and love rather ⁿ remove out of the body, and to dwell with the Lord.

9 Wherefore also we ^z covet, that both dwelling at home, and removing from home, we may be acceptable to him.

10 ^a For we must all ^h appear before the judgment-seat of Christ, that every man may receive the things which are done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or evil. * Rom. 14: 10.

11 ⁵ Knowing therefore that ¹ terror of the Lord, we persuade men, and we are made manifest unto God, and I trust also that we are made manifest in your consciences.

3 G

12 For

as it were clothed with, ⁿ garment.

^b Heavenly, not that the substance of it is heavenly, but for the glory of it.

² An exposition of the former saying: We do not without cause desire to be clad with the heavenly house, that is, with that everlasting and immortal glory, as with a garment: for when ⁿ depart hence, we shall not remain naked, having once cast off the covering of this body, but we shall take our bodies again, which shall put ⁿ as it were another garment besides: and therefore we sigh not for the weariness of this life, but for the desire of ⁿ better life: Neither is this desire in vain, for we ⁿ made to that life, the pledge whereof we have, even the Spirit of adoption.

^c He meaneth that first creation, to give us to understand that ⁿ bodies were made to this end, that they should be clothed with heavenly immortality.

³ He inferreth upon that sentence that went next before, thus. Therefore seeing that we know by the Spirit, that ⁿ strangers so long as we ⁿ here, we patiently suffer this tarrance (for we ⁿ now so with God, that we behold him but by faith, and ⁿ therefore now absent from him) but so that we aspire and have ⁿ longing always ⁿ him: therefore also we behave ourselves so, that we may be acceptable to him, both while we live here, and when ⁿ go from hence ⁿ him.

^d He calleth them (bold) which are always resolved with ⁿ quiet and settled mind to suffer what danger soever, nothing doubting but their end shall be happy.

ⁿ Faith, of those things which we hope for, and not having God presently in ⁿ view.

^e And yet we are in such sort bold, and do so pass ⁿ our pilgrimage with a valiant and ⁿ quiet mind, that yet notwithstanding we had rather depart home ⁿ the Lord.

^z And seeing it is so, we strive to live so, that both in this ⁿ pilgrimage here, we may please him, and that at length ⁿ may be received home to him.

⁴ That no man might think it to pertain to all, which he spake of that heavenly glory, he addeth, that every one shall first render an account of his pilgrimage, after that he is departed from hence.

^h We must all appear personally, and enquiry shall be made of us, that all may see how we have lived.

ⁿ That terrible judgment.

A. D.
60.

12 ⁶ For we praise not ourselves again unto you, but give you ■ occasion to rejoice of us, that ye may have to answer against them which rejoice in the ^k face, and not in the heart.

13 ⁷ For whether we be out of our wit, we are it to God: or whether we be in our right mind, we are it unto you.

14 ⁸ For that love of Christ ¹ constraineth us.

15 Because we thus judge, that if ■ one be dead for all, then were all dead: and he died for all, that they which live, should not henceforth ■ live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again.

16 ⁹ Wherefore, henceforth know we no man after the flesh: ¹⁰ yea though we had known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

17 ¹¹ Therefore if any man be in Christ, let him be a ² new creature. ^{*} Old things are passed away: behold, all things are become new.

18 ¹² And all things are of God, which hath reconciled us unto himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given unto us the ministry of reconciliation.

19 For God was in Christ, and reconciled the world to himself, not imputing their sins unto them, and hath ² committed to us the word of reconciliation.

20 Now then are we ambassadors for Christ: as though God did beseech you through us, we pray you in Christ's stead, that ye be reconciled to God.

21 For he hath made him to be ⁹ sin for us, which ¹ knew no sin, that we should be made the ¹ righteousness of God in him.

⁶ He removeth all suspicion of pride, by a new reason, because it is behoveable, not for his part, but for theirs, that his apostleship be counted sincere against the vain ostentation of a few others.

^{*} In outward disguisings, and that coloured shew of man's wisdom and eloquence, and not in true godline's, which is sealed in the heart.

⁷ The meaning is: Even when I am mad (as some men think of me) whilst I seem ■ a fool to boast myself, I do it for your profit, no less than when I preach the gospel simply unto you.

⁸ He goeth forward in putting away all suspicion of desire of estimation and boasting: for the love of Christ, saith he, compelleth us herunto, that seeing he died for ■ all, which were dead when as we lived ■ ourselves (that is, while we were yet given to these earthly affections) we in like sort should consecrate our whole life, which we have received of him, to him (to wit) being indued with the Holy Ghost, to this end and purpose, that we should meditate upon nothing but that which is heavenly.

¹¹ An exhortation for every man which is renewed with the Spirit of Christ, to meditate heavenly things, and not earthly.

⁶ As a thing made ■ of God, for though ■ be not newly created when God giveth him the spirit of regeneration, but only his qualities are changed, yet notwithstanding it pleased the Holy Ghost to speak to, ■ teach us that ■ must attribute all things ■ the glory of God: ■ that we are stocks and blocks, but because that God createth in us, both the will ■ will well, and the power to do well.

1 Lest by overmuch urging them he should dismay their tender minds, 2 he proveth that all that he said, 4 proceeded of the great good will he bare unto them: and therefore they should not be offended that he made them sorry, 10 and brought them to repentance not to be repented of.

SEEING then we have these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, and finish our sanctification in the fear of God.

6 Going about to rebuke them, he saith first, that he dealeth with them sincerely, and with open and plain heart, and therewithal complaineth that they do not the like in loving again their father.

8 You are in my heart, as in my house, and that narrow or straight house, for I have opened my whole heart unto you, but you are inwardly strait-laced toward me.

9 After the manner of the Hebrews, he calleth those tender affections which rest in the heart and bowels.

10 Now he rebuketh them boldly, for that they became fellows with infidels in outward idolatry, as though it were a thing indifferent. And this is the fourth part of this epistle, the conclusion whereof is, that such as the Lord hath vouchsafed the name of his children, must keep themselves pure, not only in mind, but also in body, that they may wholly be holy unto the Lord.

5 For when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side, fightings without, and terrors within.

6 But God, that comforteth the abject, comforted us at the coming of Titus.

7 And not by his coming only, but also by the consolation wherewith he was comforted of you, when he told us your great desire, your mourning, your fervent mind toward me, so that I rejoiced much more.

8 For though I made you sorry with a letter, I repent not, though I did repent: for I perceive that the same epistle made you sorry, though it were but for season.

9 I now rejoice, not that ye were sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye sorrowed godly, so that in nothing ye were hurt by us.

10 For godly sorrow causeth repentance unto salvation, not to be repented of: but the worldly sorrow causeth death.

11 For behold, this thing that ye have been godly sorry, what great care it hath wrought in you: yea, what clearing of yourselves: yea, what indignation: yea, what fear: yea, how great desire: yea, what zeal: yea, what revenge: in all things ye have shewed yourselves, that ye are pure in this matter.

12 Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, I did it not for his cause that had done the wrong, neither for his cause that had the injury, but that our care toward you in the sight of God might appear unto you.

13 Therefore we were comforted, because ye were comforted: but rather we rejoiced much more for the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by you all.

14 For if that I have boasted any thing to him of you, I have not been ashamed: but I have spoken unto you all things in truth, even so our boasting unto Titus was true.

15 And his inward affection is more abundant toward you, when he remembereth the obedience of you all, and how with fear and trembling ye received him.

16 I

16 Let me have some place amongst you, that I may teach you.

17 To condemn you of unkindness and treachery.

18 Whose hearts are cast down, and very far spent.

19 With those things which Titus told me of you at his coming, to wit, how fruitfully you read over my letters, moreover, and besides that, I am exceedingly refreshed with his presence.

20 An objection. But thou hast handled us roughly: the apostle answereth that he used this roughness without grief. And he addeth moreover, that he is also glad now that he drove them to that sorrow, although it was against his will, since it was so profitable unto them: for there is a sorrow not only praise-worthy, but also necessary, to wit, whereby repentance groweth by certain degrees, for the which repentance he praiseth them highly. And this is the fifth part of this epistle.

21 Inasmuch that that sorrow did you much good towards the amending of your lewdness and sins.

22 Godly sorrow is when we are not terrified with the fear of punishment, but because we feel we have offended God, our most merciful Father. Contrary to this there is another sorrow, that only feareth punishment, or when we are vexed for the loss of some worldly goods: the fruit of the first is repentance, the fruit of the second is desperation, unless the Lord help speedily.

23 It was not coloured nor counterfeit, but such as I dare shew to before God.

A. D. 60. 16 I rejoice therefore that I may put my confidence in you in all things.

C H A P. VIII.

1 He exhorteth them by the example of the Macedonians, 9 and also even of Christ himself, 14 to be liberal towards the saints: 16 for which purpose he sheweth that Titus 18 and another brother came unto them.

WE do you also to wit, brethren, of the grace of God bestowed upon the churches of Macedonia,

2 Because in great trial of affliction their joy abounded, and their most extreme poverty abounded unto their rich liberality.

3 For to their power (I bear record) yea, and beyond their power, they were willing.

4 And prayed us with great instance, that we would receive the grace, and fellowship of the ministering which is toward the saints.

5 And this they did, not as we looked for: but gave their ownelves, first to the Lord, and after unto us by the will of God.

6 That we should exhort Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also accomplish the same grace among you also.

7 Therefore, as ye abound in every thing, in faith and word, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love towards us, even so see that ye abound in this grace also.

8 This say I not by commandment, but because of the diligence of others: therefore prove I the naturalness of your love.

9 For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that he being rich, for your sakes became poor, that ye through his poverty might be made rich.

10 And I shew my mind herein: for this is expedient for you, which have begun not to do only, but also to will, a year ago.

11 Now therefore perform to do it also, that as there was a readiness to will, even so ye may perform it of that which ye have.

12 For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

13 Neither is it that other men should be eased, and you grieved: but upon like condition, at this time your abundance supplieth their lack:

14 That also their abundance may be for your lack, that there may be equality:

15 As it is written, He that gathered much, had nothing over: and he that gathered little, had not the less.

16 And thanks be unto God, which hath put in the heart of Titus the same care for you.

17 Because he accepted the exhortation, yea, he was so careful, that of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have sent also with him the brother, whose praise is in the gospel throughout all the churches.

19 (And not so only, but is also chosen of the churches to be fellow in our journey, concerning this grace that is ministered by us unto the glory of the same Lord, and declaration of your prompt mind.)

20 Avoiding this, that no man should blame us in this abundance that is ministered by us.

21 Providing for honest things, not only before the Lord, but also before men.

22 And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have oft-times proved to be diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, for the great confidence which I have in you.

23 Whether any do inquire of Titus, he is my fellow and helper to you-ward: or of our brethren, they are messengers of the churches, and the glory of Christ.

24 Wherefore shew toward them, and before the churches, the proof of your love, and of the rejoicing that we have of you.

C H A P. IX.

1 Why, albeit he think well of their ready wills, 3 yet earnestly exhorteth them: 4 he yieldeth a reason. 6 He compareth alms to seed sowing, 13 which God doth repay with great gains.

FOR

1 The sixth part of this epistle, containing divers exhortations to stir up the Corinthians to liberality, wherewith the poverty of the church of Jerusalem might be helped in time convenient. And first of all, he setteth out before them the examples of the churches of Macedonia, which otherwise were brought by great misery and extreme poverty, to the end that they should follow them.

2 The benefit that God bestowed upon the churches.

3 For those manifold afflictions wherewith the Lord tried them, did not only not quell their joyful readiness, but also made it much more excellent and famous.

4 Of their own accord they were liberal.

5 He calleth that, Grace, that other men would have called a burden. And this verse is to be expounded by the sixth verse.

6 He applieth the forwardness of the Macedonians, in this, that they also desired Paul to stir up the Corinthians to accomplish the giving of alms, by sending again of Titus unto them.

7 Thirdly, he warneth them that they deceive not their expectation which they have conceived of them.

8 At the request of the Macedonians.

9 Then appeareth the naturalness of their love, when indeed, and that frankly and freely, they help their brethren even for Christ's sake.

10 The fourth argument, taken from the example of Christ.

11 He taketh good heed that he seem not to wrest it out of them by constraint, for unless it be voluntary, God doth not accept it.

2 Not only to do, but also to do willingly: for he noteth out their ready willingness, without any inforcement by any other men, much less their love of ambition and vain glory.

3 Against such use they excuse themselves because they are rich, as though it were only proper to rich men to help the poor.

4 Christian liberality is mutual, that proportion may be observed.

5 That like now in your abundance you help others, which were poor, with some part of your goods, so should others in like sort bestow some of theirs upon you.

6 He commendeth Titus and his two companions for many causes, both that their credit might not be suspected, though he had sent them silly men to spoil the churches, and also that they might be so much the readier to contribute.

7 In the preaching of the gospel.

8 These alms which were bestowed for the relief of the church of Jerusalem.

9 In this plentiful liberality of the churches, which is committed to their trust.

10 Titus's two companions.

11 By whom the glory of Christ is set forth.

12 All churches shall be witnesses of this your godly dealing, in whose presence you are, for so much as you see the messengers whom they have chosen by all their consents, and sent them unto you.

60. FOR touching the ministering to the faints, it is superfluous for me to write unto you.

2 For I know your readiness of mind, whereof I boast myself of you unto them of Macedonia, and say, that Achaia prepared a year ago, and your zeal hath provoked many.

3 Now have I sent the brethren, lest our rejoicing over you should be in vain in this behalf, that ye (as I have said) be ready.

4 Lest if they of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we (that we may say, you) should be ashamed in this my constant boasting.

5 Wherefore, I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren to come before unto you, and to finish your benevolence appointed afore, that it might be ready, and of benevolence, and not as of niggardliness.

6 This yet remember, that he which soweth sparingly, shall reap also sparingly: and he that soweth liberally, shall reap also liberally.

7 As every man wisheth in his heart, so let him give, not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth cheerful giver.

8 And God is able to make all grace to abound toward you, that ye always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound in every good work.

9 (* As it is written, He hath dispersed abroad and hath given to the poor: his benevolence remaineth for ever.

10 Also he that findeth seed to the sower, will minister likewise bread for food, and multiply your seed, and increase the fruits of your benevolence.)

11 That all parts ye may be made rich unto all liberality, which causeth through us thanksgiving unto God.

12 For the ministration of this service not only supplieth the necessities of the faints, but also abundantly causeth many to give thanks to God

13 (Which by the experiment of this ministration praise God for your voluntary submission to the gospel of Christ, and for your liberal distribution to them, and to all men), 14 And in their prayer for you, to long after you greatly, for the abundant grace of God in you.

15 Thanks therefore be unto God for his unspeakable gift.

CHAP. X.

1 I sheweth with what confidence, 4 with what weapons, 6 and with what revenge, he is armed against the cavillations of the wicked: 7 and that, when he is present, his deeds have no less power, 11 than his words have force, when he is absent.

NOW I Paul myself beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, which when I am present among you, am base, but bold toward you being absent:

2 And this I require you, that I need not be bold when I am present, with that same confidence, wherewith I think to be bold against some, which esteem us as though we walked according to the flesh:

3 Nevertheless, though we walk in the flesh, yet we do not war after the flesh.

4 (For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God, to cast down holds)

5 Casting down the imaginations, and every high thing that is exalted against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ.

6 And having ready the vengeance against all

1 Rom. 12. 8.
2 Eccl. 35.
3 Ps. 112. 9.

1 He wisely meeteth with the suspicion which the Corinthians might conceive: as though the apostle, in urging them so carefully, should doubt of their good will. Therefore he witnesseth that he doth it not to teach them that they ought to help the faints, seeing that he himself become surety for them to the Macedonians, but only to stir them up which were running of themselves, to the end that all things might both be in a better readiness, and also be more plentiful.

2 The word which he useth, signifieth such a stayedness and settledness of mind, as he was not moved with any terror or fear.

3 As from covetousness.

4 Alms must be given neither niggardly, nor with a loathful mind, or hardly: but a frank and free alms is compared to a sowing which hath a plentiful harvest of most abundant blessing following it:

5 Determineth and appointeth freely with himself.

6 With a sparing and niggardly heart.

7 Against his will, as loth to be evil reported of.

8 All God's bountiful liberality.

9 To help others by all means possible, in doing them good in their necessities.

10 Is everlasting: now David speaketh of him that feareth God, and loveth his neighbour, who shall never want (saith he) to give to others.

11 There is none so good an inheritance to the godly, as bountifulness is.

12 Another excellent and double fruit of liberality towards the faints, is this: that it giveth occasion to praise God, and that our faith also is thereby made manifest.

13 By this proof of your liberality in this helping and succouring of them.

14 In shewing with one consent, that you acknowledge that only gospel, which you have willingly submitted yourselves unto, declaring thereby, that you agree with the church of Jerusalem.

15 Left by this great commendation and praise, to be Corinthians should be puffed up, he shutteth up this exhortation with this exclamation.

1 He returneth to the defence of his apostleship, but so that he useth his authority therein: for he warneth them earnestly and gravely, using also terrible threatenings, to shew themselves such as are apt to be instructed. And he refelleth certain proud men which made no better account of him, than of a bragging Thrafo, in that he used to be sharp against them when he was absent, because they saw no great majesty in him after the manner of men, and besides had proved his lenity, notwithstanding that in his absence he had written to them sharply. Therefore, first of all, he professeth that he was gentle and moderate, but after the example of Christ: but if they continue to still despise his gentleness, he professeth unto them that he will shew indeed how far they are deceived, which make that he doth of the office of an apostle, that they do of worldly offices, that is, according to the outward appearance.

2 That man which is inclined to mercy, rather than to rigour of justice.

3 As though I had no other aid and help than that which outwardly I seem to have, and therefore Paul setteth his flesh, that is, his weak condition and his weakness against his spiritual and apostolic dignity.

4 Secondly, he witnesseth, that although he be like unto other men, yet he cometh furnished with that strength which no holds of man can match, whether they resist by craft and deceit, or by force and might, because he is furnished with divine weapons.

5 He is not such as men get their authority withal one of another, and do great acts.

6 Stand upon that infinite power of God.

7 An amplification of this spiritual virtue, which in such sort conquereth the enemies, be they never so crafty and mighty, that it bringeth some of them by repentance unto Christ, and justly revengeth others that are stubbornly obstinate, separating them from the others which suffer themselves to be ruled.

A. D. 60. disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled.

7 ⁺ Look ye on things after the ^c appearance? If any man trust in himself that he is Christ's, let him consider this again of ^c himself, that as he is Christ's, even so are we Christ's.

8 For though I should boast somewhat more of our authority, which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction, I should have no shame.

9 ⁺ For I say, that I may not seem as it were to fear you with letters.

10 For the letters, faith ^b he, are sore and strong, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech is of no value.

11 Let such one think this, that such as we are in word by letters, when we are absent, such will be also indeed, when we are present.

12 ⁺ For we ^b dare not make ourselves of the number, or to compare ourselves of them which praise themselves: but they understand not that they measure themselves with ^b themselves, and ^c compare themselves with themselves.

13 But we will not rejoice of things which are not within our ^c measure, ^{*} but according to the measure of the line whereof God hath distributed unto us a measure to attain even unto you.

14 For we stretch not ourselves beyond our measure, as though we had not attained unto you: for even to you also have we come in preaching the gospel of Christ,

15 Not boasting of things which are ⁺ without our measure: that is, of other men's labours: and we hope, when your faith shall increase, to be magnified by you, according to our line abundantly.

16 And to preach the gospel in those regions which are beyond you: not to rejoice in ⁺ another man's line, that is, in the things that are prepared already.

17 ⁺ But let him that rejoiceth, rejoice in the Lord.

18 For he that praiseth himself is not allowed, but he whom the Lord praiseth.

⁺ He beareth into their heads that same matter, with great weight of words and sentences.

^c Do ye judge of things according to the outward shew?

^f Not being told of it by me.

⁺ He noteth out some one that was the seeds-man of this speech.

Being constrained to reuel the foolish brags of certain ambitious men, he witnesseth that they are able to bring nothing, but that they falsely persuade themselves of themselves: and as for himself, although he brag of excellent things, yet he will not pass the bounds which God hath measured him out, according whereunto he came even unto them in preaching the gospel of Christ, and trusteth that he shall go further, when they have so promised that he shall not need to tarry any longer amongst them to instruct them. And hereunto is added an amplification, in that he never succeeded other men in their labours.

⁺ This is spoken after a taunting sort.

⁺ Upon a vain persuasion that they have of themselves, they take upon them they care not what.

⁺ They concern all other, and measure all their doings only by themselves.

^f Of those things which God hath not measured ⁺ me.

⁺ As though God had divided the whole world among the apostles to be husbanded.

In countries which other men have prepared and husbanded with the preaching of the gospel.

He list what mitigateth that which he spake of himself, and therewith also prepareth the Corinthians ⁺ hear other things, witnesseth that he seeketh nothing else, but ⁺ approve himself to God, whose glory he only seeketh.

He granteth that after a sort he playeth the fool in this vaunting of things, but he addeth that he doth it against

CHAPTER XI.

A. D. 60.

2 He testifieth, that for the great love's sake he beareth to the Corinthians, he is compelled ⁵ to utter his own praises: 9 and that he bestowed his labour on them without any reward, 13 that the false apostles should not surpass him in any thing, 22 whom he far excelled in those things which are praise-worthy indeed.

WOULD ⁺ to God, ye could suffer a little my foolishness, and indeed, ye suffer me:

2 For I am jealous over you with ⁺ godly jealousy: for I have prepared you for one husband, to ^b present you as ⁺ pure virgin to Christ:

3 But I fear lest as the ^{*} serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be ^c corrupt from the simplicity that is in ⁺ Christ:

4 ⁺ For if he that cometh, preacheth ^c another Jesus whom we have not preached: or if ye receive another spirit whom ye have not received: either another gospel, which ye have not received, ye might well have suffered him.

5 Verily I suppose that I was not inferior to the very chief apostles.

6 ⁺ And though I be ^c rude in speaking, yet I am not so in knowledge, but among you we have been made manifest to the uttermost, in all things.

7 ⁺ Have I committed an offence, because I abased myself, that ye might be exalted, and because I preached to you the gospel of God freely?

8 I robbed other churches, and took wages of them to do you service.

9 And when I was present with you, and had need, ⁺ I was not slothful to the hindrance of any man: for that which was lacking unto me, the brethren which came from Macedonia supplied, and in all things I kept ⁺ and will keep myself, that I should not be grievous to you.

10 The

his will for their profit, because he seeth them deceived by certain vain and crafty men, through the craft and subtilty of Satan.

⁺ He speaketh as a woer, but yet ⁺ one that seeketh them not for himself, but for God.

^b To marry you together.

^c This place is to be marked against them which loath that plain and pure simplicity of the scriptures, in comparison of the colours and paintings of man's eloquence.

^d Which is meet for them that are in Christ.

⁺ He sheweth that they deceive themselves, if they look to receive of any other man, either ⁺ more excellent gospel, or more excellent gifts of the Holy Ghost.

⁺ A more perfect doctrine of Jesus Christ.

⁺ He refuteth the slanders of those Thraoers. I grant, saith he, that I am not so eloquent an orator, but ye: they cannot take away the knowledge of the gospel from me, whereof you have had good proof, and that every manner of way.

^f Paul lacked not of that kind of eloquence which is meet for ⁺ man, and fit for the gospel, but he willingly wanted that painted kind of speech, which too many nowadays hunt after and follow.

⁺ Another slander, ⁺ wit, that he was a rascal, and lived by the labour of his own hands. But herein, saith the apostle, what can you lay against me, but that I was content to take any pains for your sakes, and when I lacked, to travail for my living with mine own hands in part, and partly also when poverty constrained me, I chose rather otherwise ⁺ seek my sustenance, than to be any burden ⁺ you, altho' I preached the gospel unto you?

⁺ An amplification: so far is he from being ashamed of this

A. D. 10 The ^s truth of Christ is in me; that this rejoicing shall not be ^h shut up against me in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? because I love you not? God knoweth.

12 But what I do, that will I do: that I may cut away occasion from them which desire occasion, that they may be found like unto us in that wherein they ⁱ rejoice.

13 ^o For such false apostles are deceitful workers, and transform themselves into the apostles of Christ.

14 And no marvel: for Satan himself is transformed into ^{an} angel of ^k light.

15 Therefore it is no great thing, though his ministers transform themselves, as though they were the ministers of righteousness, whose end shall be according to their works.

16 ⁷ I say again, Let no man think that I am foolish, or else take me even ^{an} ^{an} fool, that I also may boast myself ^a little.

17 That I speak, I speak it not after the Lord: but as it were foolishly in this my great boasting.

18 Seeing that many rejoice after the flesh, I will rejoice also.

19 For ye suffer fools gladly, because that ye are wise.

20 ^s For ye suffer, even as if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devour you, if a man take your goods, if ^a man exalt himself, if ^a man smite you on the face.

21 I speak as concerning the ⁱ reproach: as though that we had been ^m weak: but wherein any man is bold (I speak foolishly) I am bold also.

22 They are Hebrews, ^{*} so am I: they are Israelites, so am I: they are the seed of Abraham, so am I:

23 They are the ministers of Christ (I speak ^a fool) I am ⁿ more: in labours more abundant: in stripes above measure: in prison more plenteously: in ^o death oft.

24 Of the Jews ^p five times received I forty stripes save one. A. D. 60.

25 I was ^q thrice ^{} beaten with rods: I was ^{} once stoned: I suffered thrice ^{*} shipwreck: night and day have I been in the deep sea. * Acts 16. 23.
* Acts 14. 19.
* Acts 27. 14.

26 In journeying I was often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils of mine own nation, in perils among the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren.

27 In weariness and ^r painfulness, in watching often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and in nakedness.

28 [■] Beside the things which are outward, I am cumbered daily, and have the care of all the churches.

29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is offended, and I burn not?

30 [■] If I must needs rejoice, I will rejoice of mine infirmities.

31 The God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is blessed forevermore, knoweth that I lye not.

32 In ^{*} Damascus the governor of the people under king Aretas, laid watch in the city of the Damascenes, and would have caught me. * Acts 9. 24.

33 But at ^a window was I let down in a basket through the wall, and escaped his hands.

CHAP. XII.

1 He doth even unwillingly make rehearsal ³ of the heavenly visions, ⁴ that were revealed unto him, ⁶ for which, though he might indeed glory, yet he will not, ¹⁰ being privy of his own infirmities: ¹¹ but they drive him to this kind of folly; ²⁰ in that they give ear to certain vain-glorious persons, who draw them from Christ.

IT is not expedient for me no doubt to rejoice: for I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I know a man ^a in Christ above fourteen years

Phil. 3. 5.

this act, that he hath also resolved with himself to do no otherwi'e hereafter amongst them, to the intent that it may always be truly said, that he taught in Achaia for nothing not that he disdaineth the Corinthians, but that these Thraesoës may never find occasion which they have already sought for, and he in the mean season may set something before them to follow, that [■] length they may truly say, that they are like to Paul.

^s This is a form of [■] oath; [■] if he said, Let me [■] be thought to have any truth in me.

[■] Shall be always open to me.

ⁱ Paul's adversaries sought all occasions they could to be equal to him. And therefore seeing they had rather eat up the Corinthians, than preach [■] them for nothing, they sought another occasion, to wit, to make Paul [■] take something: which thing if he had done, then hoped they by that means [■] be equal to him: for they made such a shew of zeal and knowledge, and set it forth with such a glowing kind of eloquence, that some of them even despised Paul: but he sheweth that all this is nothing but colours and painting:

^o Now [■] length he painteth out these fellows in their colours, forewarning, that it will [■] to pass, that they will at length betray themselves, what countenance soever they make of the zeal that they have of God's glory.

^k By light is meant the heavenly glory, whereof the angels [■] partakers.

⁷ He goeth forward boldly, and using a vehement irony, or kind of taunting, desireth the Corinthians to pardon him, if for a time he contend as [■] fool before them being wise, with those jolly fellows touching those external things, to wit, touching his stock, his ancestors and valiant acts.

^s Before he cometh to the matter, he toucheth the Corinthians, who persuading themselves to be very wise men, did not mark, in the mean season, that those false apostles abused their simplicity for advantage.

ⁱ As if he said, In respect of that reproach which they do unto you (I speak it) which surely is as evil as if they did beat you.

^m Paul is called weak, in that he seemeth [■] the Corinthians a vile and abject man, [■] beggarly artificer, a most wretched and miserable idiot, whereas notwithstanding, therein God's mighty power was made manifest.

ⁿ Paul being honourable indeed, defendeth his ministry openly, not for his [■] sake, but because he saw his doctrine come into hazard.

^o In danger of present death.

^p He alludeth to that that is written, Deut. 25. 3. and moreover this place sheweth us, that Paul suffered many things which Luke passed over.

^q Of the Roman magistrates.

^r Painfulness is a troublesome sickness, [■] when a man is weary and would rest, he is constrained to fall [■] new labour.

^s He addeth this in conclusion further, that the Corinthians might be ashamed to despise him, upon whose care almost all churches depended; as it was plainly seen by experience.

^t He turneth that against the adversaries, which they objected against him: as if he should say; They alledged my calamities, to take away my authority from me: but if I would boast myself, I would take no better argument: and God himself is my witness that I devise and forge nothing.

^u He goeth forward in his purpose, and because those bragging mates boasted of revelations, he reckoneth up those things which lift him up above the common capacity of men: but he useth a preface, and excuseth himself advisedly.

^v I [■] this in Christ, [■] is, be it spoken without vain-glory, for I seek nothing but Christ Jesus only.

A. D. 60. years ago (whether be were in the body, I cannot tell, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth) which was taken up into the ^b third heaven.

3 And I know such a man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth)

4 How that he was taken up into ^c Paradise, and heard words which ^a cannot be spoken, which are not ^c possible for man ^a utter.

5 ^a Of such a man will I rejoice: of myself will I not rejoice, except it be of mine infirmities.

6 For though I would rejoice, I should not be a fool, for I will say the truth: but I refrain, lest any man should think of me above that he seeth in me, or that he heareth of me.

7 And lest I should be exalted out of measure through the abundance of revelations, there was given unto me a ^f prick in the flesh, the messenger of ^a Satan to buffet me, because I should not be exalted out of measure.

8 For this thing I besought the Lord ^b thrice that it might depart from me.

9 And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my power is made perfect through weakness. ^d Very gladly therefore will I rejoice rather in mine infirmities, that the power of Christ may ⁱ dwell in me.

10 Therefore I take ^b pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in anguish for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong.

11 I was a fool to boast myself: ye have compelled me: ^s for I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing was I inferior unto the very chief apostles, though I be nothing.

12 The ⁱ signs of an apostle were wrought among you with all patience, with signs, and wonders, and great works.

13 For what is it wherein ye were inferiors unto other churches, ^a except that I have not been ^a slothful to your hindrance? forgive me this wrong. A. D. 60. c. 11. 9 14 Behold, the third time I am ready to come unto you, and yet will I not be slothful to your hindrance: for I seek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the fathers, but the fathers for the children.

15 And I will most gladly bestow, and will be bestowed for your souls: though the more I love you, the less I am loved.

16 ^a But be it that I charged you not: yet forasmuch ^a I was crafty, I took you with guile.

17 Did I pill you by any of them whom I sent unto you?

18 I have desired Titus, and with him I have sent a brother: did Titus pill you of any thing? walked we not in the self-same spirit? walked we not in the same steps?

19 ^a Again, think ye that we excuse ourselves unto you? we speak before God in ^a Christ, but we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

20 ^a For I fear lest, when I come, I shall not find you such as I would: and that I shall be found unto you such ^a ye would not, and lest there be strife, envying, wrath, contentions, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, and discord.

21 I fear lest, when I come again, my God abase me among you, and I shall bewail many of them which have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanness and fornication, and wantonness, which they have committed.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Coming the third time, 2 he denounceth the sharper vengeance towards them, 5 who have a perfect trial of the power of Christ in his apostleship: 10 at length he prayeth for their repentance, 11 and wisheth them prosperity.

LO

^a Into the highest heaven: for we need not to dispute subtilly upon the word (Third) but yet this place is to be marked against them, which would have heaven ^a be every where.

^c So the Grecians name that, which ^a we call ^a Park, that is to say, a place where ^a we planted, and wild beasts kept, by which ^a we they that translated the Old Testament out of Hebrew into Greek, called the garden Eden, whereinto Adam was put straight after his creation, as ^a most delicate and pleasant place. And hereupon grew it, that that blessed seat of the glory of God is called by that name.

^a Which no man is able to utter.

^a Which the saints themselves ^a by any means able to express, because it is God himself. Thus doth Clemens Alexandrinus expound this place. Strom. 5.

^a To remove all suspicion of ambition he witnesseth that he braggeth not of those things, as of his own, but ^a out of himself, and yet notwithstanding feigneth nothing, lest by this occasion other ^a should attribute ^a him ^a than indeed he is: and therefore he had rather glory in ^a miseries.

^a An excellent doctrine: why God will ^a have his best servants ^a be vexed of Satan, and by all kind of temptations: to wit, lest they should be ^a much puffed up, and also that they may be made perfect by that ^a continual exercise.

^a He meaneth concupiscence, that sticketh ^a in us, ^a it were a prick, inasmuch as it constrained Paul himself being regenerate, ^a cry out, I do ^a that good that I would, &c. And he calleth that ^a prick, by a borrowed kind of speech taken from thorns, or stumps, which are very dangerous and hurtful for the feet, if a man walk through woods that are cut down.

^a Which setteth those lusts ^a fire.

^a Of.

^a He concludeth, that he will only set his miseries against the vain brags of the false apostles, and therewith also excuseth himself, for that by their importunity he was constrained ^a speak so much of those things ^a he did: to wit, because that if his apostleship were subverted, his doctrine must needs fall.

^a That I might feel the virtue of Christ ^a and more: for the weaker that our tabernacles are, the more doth Christ's virtue appear in them.

^a I do not only take them patiently, and with ^a good heart, but also I take great pleasure in them.

^a Again he maketh the Corinthians witnesses of those things whereby God had sealed his apostleship amongst them; and again, he declareth by certain arguments how far he is from all covetousness, and also how he is affectioned towards them.

^a The arguments whereby it may well appear, that I am indeed ^a apostle of Jesus Christ.

^a I was ^a slothful in getting my living with ^a hands, that I might ^a be burthenome ^a you.

^a He putteth away another most grievous slander, to wit, that he did subtilly, and by others, make his gain and profit of them.

^a He concludeth that he writeth ^a these things unto them, as though he needeth ^a defend himself, for he is guilty of nothing: but because it is behoveable for them ^a doubt nothing of his fidelity, who instructed them.

^a As it becometh him to speak truly and sincerely, that professeth himself to be in Christ, that is ^a say, ^a be a Christian.

^a Having confirmed his authority unto them, he rebuketh them sharply, and threateneth them also like ^a apostle, shewing that he will ^a spare them hereafter, unless they repent, seeing that this is the third time that he hath warned them.

A. D. 60. LO this is the third time that I come unto you. * In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word stand.

2 I told you before, and tell you before: as though I had been present the second time, so write I now being absent, to them which heretofore have sinned, and to all others, that if I come again, I will not spare,

3 ¹ Seeing that ye seek experience of Christ, that speaketh in me, which toward you is not weak, but is ² mighty in you.

4 For though he was crucified concerning ^b his infirmity, yet liveth he through the power of God. And we no doubt are weak in him, but we shall live with him, through the power of God toward you.

5 * ² Prove yourselves whether ye are in the faith: examine yourselves: know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?

6 ³ But I trust that ye shall know that we are not reprobates.

7 Now I pray unto God that ye do none evil, not that we should seem approved, but that ye should do that which is honest: though we be ^c reprobates.

¹ A most sharp reprehension, for that while they despise the apostles's admonitions, they tempt Christ's own patience: and also while they contemn him ² wretched and miserable, they lay nothing herein against him, which is not common to him with Christ.

² And will be most mighty to be revenged of you when need shall be.

³ As touching that base form of a servant which he took upon him when he abased himself.

⁴ He confirmeth that which he spake of the virtue of God appearing in his ministry, and he gathereth by the mutual relation between the people's faith, and the ministers preaching, that they must either reverence his apostleship, upon whose doctrine their faith is grounded, or they must condemn themselves of infidelity, and must confess them-

■ For we cannot do any thing against the truth, but for the truth. A. D. 60.

9 For we are glad when we are weak, and that ye are strong: this also we wish for, even your ^d perfection.

10 Therefore write I these things being absent, lest when I am present, I should use sharpness, according to the power which the Lord hath given me, to edification, and not to destruction.

11 ⁴ Finally, brethren, fare ye well: be perfect: be of good comfort: be of one mind: live in peace, and the God of love and peace shall be with you.

12 ⁵ Greet one another with an ^e holy kiss. * 1 Cor. 16:20. All the saints salute you.

13 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. Amen.

¶ The second epistle to the Corinthians, written from Philippi, a city in Macedonia; and sent by Titus and Lucas.

selfes not to be of Christ's body.

■ He mitigateth the sharpness, trusting that they will shew themselves toward their faithful apostles, apt and willing to be taught: adding this moreover, that he passeth not for his own fame and estimation, so that he may serve to their salvation, which is the only mark that he shooteth at.

^c In men's judgment.

^d That all things may be in good order amongst you, and the members of the church restored into their place, which have been shaken and out of place.

^e A brief exhortation, but yet such an one as comprehendeth all the parts of ^f christian man's life.

^f He saluteth them familiarly, and in conclusion wisheth well unto them.

The Epistle of the Apostle PAUL to the GALATIANS.

C H A P. I.

A. D. 58. I Straight after the salutation. 6 he reprehendeth the Galatians for revolting 9 from his gospel, 15 which he received from God, 17 before he had communicated with any of the apostles.

Tit. 1. 3. PAUL ¹ ² apostle (not ^a of men, neither by ³ man, * but by ⁴ Jesus Christ, and God the Father which hath raised him from the dead)

2 And all the brethren which are with me, unto the churches of Galatia:

¹ A salutation, comprehending in few words the sum of the apostle's doctrine, and also besides, straightway from the beginning, shewing the gravity meet for the authority of an apostle, which he had to maintain against the false apostles.

² He sheweth who is the author of the ministry generally: for herein the whole ministry agreeth, that whether they be apostles, or shepherds, ³ doctors, they ⁴ appointed of God.

^b He toucheth the instrumental cause: for this is a peculiar prerogative ^c the apostles, to be called immediately from Christ.

^c Christ no doubt is man, but he is God also, and ^d of the church, and in this respect ^e be exempted out of the number of men.

3 Grace be with you, and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ, A. D. 58.

4 ² Which gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us * from this present evil ³ world, according to the will of God even our Father. * Luke 1, 74r

5 To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

6 ¹ I marvel that ye are so soon ^e removed away unto another gospel, from him that had called you in the grace of Christ,

3 I

7 Which

■ The sum of the true gospel ² this, that Christ by his only offering saveth us, being chosen ³ from the world, by the free decree of God the Father.

■ Out of that most corrupt state which is without Christ.

³ The first part of the epistle, wherein he witnesseth that he is an apostle, nothing inferior to those chief disciples of Christ, and wholly agreeing with them, whose names the false apostles ⁴ abuse. And he beginneth with chiding, reproving them of lightness, for that they gave ear so easily unto them which perverted them and drew them away unto ⁵ new gospel.

■ ⁶ useth the passive voice to cast the fault upon the false apostles, and he useth the time that now is, to give them to understand, that it was not already done, but ⁷ doing.

A. D. 58. 7 * Which is not another gospel, save that there be some which trouble you, and intend to pervert the gospel of Christ.

8 But though that we, or an angel from heaven, preach unto you otherwise than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.

9 As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach unto you otherwise than that ye have received, let him be accursed.

10 * For now preach I ^h man's doctrine, or God's? or go I about to please men? for if I should yet please men, I were not the servant of Christ.

11 * Now I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me, was not after man.

12 For neither received I it of man, neither was I taught it but by the ^h revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 * For ye have heard of my conversation in time past, in the Jewish religion, how that * I persecuted the church of God extremely, and wasted it, 14 And profited in the Jewish religion above many of my companions of mine own nation, and was much more zealous of the ^h traditions of my fathers.

15 But when it pleased God (which had ^h separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace)

16 To reveal his Son ^h in me, that I should preach him * among the Gentiles, immediately I communicated not with ^h flesh and blood:

17 Neither came I again to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me, but I went unto Arabia, and turned again unto Damascus.

* He warneth them in time to remember that there are not many gospels, and therefore whatsoever these false apostles pretend which had the law, Moses, and the fathers, in their mouths, yet they are indeed so many corruptions of the true gospel, inasmuch that he himself, yea, and the very angels themselves (and therefore much more these false apostles) ought to be holden accursed, if they go about to change the least jot that may be in the gospel that he delivered to them before.

* For there is nothing more contrary to faith or free justification, than justification by the law, or by our deservings.

Look Rom. 9. 3.

* A confirmation taken both from the nature of the doctrine itself, and also from the manner which he used in teaching: for neither, saith he, did I teach those things which pleased men, as these men do, which put ^h part of salvation in external things, and works of the law, neither went I about to procure any man's favour: And therefore the matter itself sheweth that that doctrine which I delivered unto you, is heavenly.

* He rebuketh the false apostles, who had nothing but men in their mouths, and he, though he would derogate nothing from the apostles, preacheth God, and not ^h men.

* A second argument to prove that his doctrine is heavenly, because he had it from heaven, from Jesus Christ himself, without any man's help, wherein he excelleth them whom Christ taught here on earth, after the ^h manner of men.

* This place is to be understood of an extraordinary revelation, inasmuch as the Son alone revealed his gospel by his Spirit, although by the ministry of men, which Paul sheweth not here.

* He proveth that he was extraordinarily taught of Christ himself, by the history of his former life, which the Galatians themselves knew well enough: for, saith he, it is well known in what school I was brought up, even from a child, to wit, amongst the deadly enemies of the gospel. And that no man may cavil and say, That I was ^h scholar of the Pharisees in name only, and not in deed, no man is ignorant how that I excelled in Pharisaism, and was suddenly made of a Pharisee, an apostle of the Gentiles, so that I had no space to be instructed of men.

* He calleth them the traditions of his fathers, because he was not only a Pharisee himself, but also had a Pharisee

18 Then after three years I came again to Jerusalem to visit Peter, and abode with him fifteen days.

19 And none other of the apostles saw I, save James the Lord's brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you, behold, I witness ^h before God, that I lye not.

21 After that, I went into the coasts of Syria and Cilicia: for I was unknown by face unto the churches of Judea, which were in Christ.

22 But they had heard only some say, He which persecuted ^h in time past, now preacheth the ^h faith which before he destroyed.

23 And they glorified God for me.

C H A P. II.

1 That the apostles did nothing disagree from his gospel, 3 he declareth by the example of Titus being uncircumcised, 11 and also by his avouching the same against Peter's dissimulation: 17 and so he passeth to the handling of our free justification by Christ, &c.

THEN ^h fourteen years after, I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took with me Titus also.

2 And I went up by revelation, and declared unto them that gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but particularly to them that were the chief, lest by any means I should run, or had run ^h in vain:

3 But neither yet Titus which was with me, though he were ^h Grecian, was compelled to be circumcised,

4 To wit, for the ^h false brethren which were craftily to his father.

* He speaketh of God's everlasting predestination, whereby he appointed him to be an apostle, whereof he maketh three degrees; the everlasting counsel of God, his appointing from his mother's womb, and his calling: here is no mention at all, we see, of works foreseen.

* To me: and this is a kind of speech which the Hebrews use, whereby this is given ^h to understand, that this gift cometh from God.

* Because it might be objected, that indeed he was called of Christ in the way, but afterward was instructed of the apostles and others, whose ^h (as I said before) the false apostles abused to destroy his apostleship, though he delivered another gospel than the true apostles did, and though he ^h not of their number, which are to be credited without exception: therefore Paul answereth, that he began straightway after his calling to preach the gospel at Damascus and in Arabia, and was not from that time in Jerusalem but only fifteen days, where he saw only Peter and James, and afterwards he began to teach in Syria and Cilicia, with the consent and approbation of the churches of the Jews, which knew him only by name: so far off was it, that he was there instructed of men.

* With any ^h in the world.

* This is a kind of oath.

* The doctrine of faith.

* Now he sheweth how he agreeth with the apostles, with whom he granteth that he conferred touching his gospel which he taught among the Gentiles, fourteen years after his conversion, and they allowed it, in such sort, that they constrained not his fellow Titus ^h be circumcised, although some tormented themselves therein, which traiterously laid wait against him, but in vain: neither did they add the least jot that might be ^h the doctrine which he had preached, but contrariwise they gave to him and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, and acknowledged them as apostles appointed of the Lord to the Gentiles.

* Unfruitful, for ^h touching his doctrine, Paul doubteth not of it, but because there were certain reports cast abroad of him, that he was of another opinion than the rest of the apostles were, which thing might have hindered the course of the gospel, therefore he laboreth to remedy this fore.

* Which by deceit and counterfeit holiness crept ^h amongst the faithful.

A. D. 58. craftily sent in, and crept in privily to spy out our liberty, which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage:

5 To whom we gave not place by^a subjection for an hour, that the^d truth of the gospel might continue with^e you.

6 But by them which seemed to be great, I was not taught (whatsoever they were in time passed, I am nothing the better: * God accepteth no man's person) for they that are the chief, did add nothing to me above that I had.

7 But contrariwise, when they saw that the gospel over the^f uncircumcision was committed unto me, ■ the gospel over the circumcision was unto Peter:

■ (For he that was mighty by Peter in the apostleship over the circumcision, was also mighty by me toward the Gentiles)

9 And when James, and Cephas, and John, knew of the grace that was given unto me, which are[■] counted to be pillars, they gave to me and ■ Barnabas the right^b hands of fellowship, that we should preach unto the Gentiles, and they unto the circumcision, 10 Warning only that we should remember the poor: which thing also I was diligent to do.

11 ¶ And when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to his¹ face: for he was to be condemned.

12 ² For before that certain came from James, he ate with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision.

13 And the other Jews played the hypocrites likewise with him, insomuch that Barnabas was^k led away with them by that their hypocrisy.

14 But when I saw, that they went not the right way to the[■] truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter before all men, If thou being[■] Jew livest ■ the Gentiles, and not like the Jews, why^a constraineth thou the Gentiles to do like the Jews?

15 [■] We which are^o Jews by nature, and not^o sinners of the Gentiles, 16 Know that ■ man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith[■] of Jesus Christ, even we, I say, have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law, because that by the works of the law[■] no flesh shall be justified.

17 * ⁴ If then while[■] we seek to be made righteous by Christ, we ourselves are found sinners, is Christ therefore the minister of sin? God forbid.

18 For if I build again the things that I have destroyed, I make myself[■] trespasser.

19 For I through the law am dead to the law, that I might live unto God.

20 I am crucified with Christ: but I live, yet not[■] I any more, but Christ liveth in me: and in that that I now live in the[■] flesh, I live by the faith in the Son of God, who hath loved me, and given himself for me.

21 ⁵ I do not abrogate the grace of God: for if righteousness be by the law, then Christ died without[■] cause.

C H A P. III.

¹ He rebuketh them for suffering themselves to be drawn from the grace of free justification in Christ, most lively set out unto them. 6 He bringeth in Abraham's example, 10 declaring the effect 21 and causes of the giving of the law.

O Foolish

^a By submitting ourselves to them, and betraying our own liberty.

^d The true and sincere doctrine of the gospel, which remained safe from being corrupt with any of those men's false doctrines.

^e Under the Galatians name, he understandeth all nations.

^f Among the Gentiles, as Peter had to preach it among the Jews.

^g Whom alone and only, these men count for pillars of the church, and whose name they abuse to deceive you.

^h They gave us their hand, in token that we agreed wholly ■ the doctrine of the gospel.

ⁱ Before all men.

^j Another most vehement proof of his apostleship, and also of that doctrine which he had delivered concerning free justification by faith only, because for that this thing only he reprehended Peter ■ Antioch, who offended herein, in that for ■ few Jews sakes which came from Jerusalem he played the Jew, and offended the Gentiles which had believed.

^k By example rather than by judgment.

^l Word for word, with a right foot, which he setteth against halting and dissembling, which is backward.

^m He calleth the truth of the gospel, both the doctrine itself, and also the use of the doctrine, which we call the practice.

ⁿ He saith they were constrained, which played the Jews by Peter's example.

^o The second part of this epistle, the state whereof is this: ■ are justified by faith in Christ Jesus, without the works of the law. Which thing he propoundeth in such sort, that first of all he meeteth with ■ objection (for I also, saith he, am a Jew, that no man may say against me, that I ■ enemy ■ the law), and afterward he confirmeth it by the express witness of David.

^p Although we be Jews, yet we preach justification by faith, because we know undoubtedly, that ■ man ■ be justified by the law.

^q So the Jews called the Gentiles, because they were strangers from God's covenant.

[■] In Jesus Christ.

[■] No man, and in this word (flesh) there is ■ great vehemency, whereby is meant that the nature of man is utterly corrupt.

[■] Before he goeth any further, he meeteth with their objection, which abhorred this doctrine of free justification by faith, because they say, men are by this means withdrawn from the study of good works. And in this sort is the objection: If sinners should be justified through Christ by faith without the law, Christ should approve sinners, and should as it were exhort them thereunto by his ministry. Paul answereth, that this consequence is false, because that Christ destroyeth sin in the believers: For so, saith he, do men flee unto Christ through the terror and fear of the law, that being quit from the curse of the law, and justified, they may be saved by him, that together therewithal, he beginneth in them by little and little that strength and power of his, which destroyeth sin: to the end that this old man being abolished by ■ virtue of Christ crucified, Christ may live in them, and they may consecrate themselves to God. Therefore if any ■ give himself ■ sin after he hath received the gospel, let him not accuse Christ nor the gospel, but himself, for that he destroyeth the work of God in himself.

[■] He goeth from justification to sanctification, which is another benefit we receive by Christ, if we lay hold on him by faith.

[■] The law that terrifieth the conscience, bringeth us to Christ, and he only causeth ■ to die to the law indeed, because that by making us righteous, he taketh away from ■ the terror of conscience; and by sanctifying us, causeth, through the mortifying of lust in us, that it cannot take such occasion ■ sin by the restraint which the law maketh, as it did before, Rom. 7. 10, 11.

[■] The same that I was before.

[■] In this mortal body.

[■] The second argument taken of ■ absurdity: If men may be justified by the law, then was it ■ necessary for Christ to die.

[■] For there was no cause why he should do so.

58.

O Foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, to whom Jesus Christ before was described in your sight, and among you crucified?

2 This only would I learn of you, Received ye the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith preached?

3 Are ye so foolish, that after ye have begun in the Spirit, ye would now be made perfect by the flesh?

4 Have ye suffered so many things in vain? if so be it be even in vain.

5 He therefore that ministereth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doth he it through the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith preached?

6 Yes, rather as Abraham believed God, and it was imputed to him for righteousness.

7 Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

8 For the scripture foreseeing, that God would justify the Gentiles through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all the Gentiles be blessed.

9 So then they which be of faith, are blessed with faithful Abraham.

10 For as many as are of the works of the law, are under the curse: for it is written, Cursed is every man that continueth not in all things, which are written in the book of the law, to do them.

11 And that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, it is evident: for the just shall live by faith.

12 And the law is not of faith: but the man that shall do these things, shall live in them.

13 Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us, for it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree.

14 That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Christ Jesus, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brethren, I speak as men do: though it be but a man's covenant, when it is confirmed, yet no man doth abrogate it, or addeth any thing thereto.

16 Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to the seeds, as

¹ The third reason, or argument, taken of the gifts of the Holy Ghost, wherewith they were endued from heaven after they had heard and believed the gospel by Paul's ministry: which seeing they were so evident to all men's eyes, that they were, as it were, lively images, wherein they might behold the truth of the doctrine of the gospel, no less than if they had beheld with their eyes Christ himself crucified, in whose only death they ought to have their trust, he marvelleth how it could be that they could be so bewitched by the false apostles.

² Christ was laid before you so notably and so plainly, that you had his lively image, as it were, represented before your eyes, as if he had been crucified before you.

³ Those spiritual graces and gifts which were real, as it were, to the Galatians, that the gospel which was preached to them was true.

⁴ Of the doctrine of faith.

⁵ The fourth argument mixed with the former: and it is double. If the law be to be joined with faith, this were not to go forward, but backward, seeing that those spiritual gifts which were bestowed upon you are more excellent than any that could proceed from your elves. And moreover, it should follow, that the law is better than Christ, because it should perfect and bring to an end that which Christ began only.

⁶ By the (flesh) he meaneth the ceremonies of the law, against which he setteth the Spirit, that is, the spiritual working of the gospel.

⁷ An exhortation by manner of upbraiding, that they do not in vain suffer so many conflicts.

⁸ He repeateth the third argument, which was taken of the effects, because he had interlaced certain other arguments by the way.

⁹ The first argument, which is of great force, and hath three grounds. The first, that Abraham was justified by faith, to wit, by free imputation of righteousness according to the promise apprehended by faith, as Moses doth most plainly witness.

¹⁰ Look Romans 4.

¹¹ The second, that the sons of Abraham must be esteemed and accounted of by faith.

¹² The third, that all people that believe, are without exception comprehended in the promise of the blessing.

¹³ A proof of the first and second ground, out of the words of Moses.

¹⁴ Blessing, in this place, signifieth the free promise by faith.

¹⁵ The conclusion of the fifth argument: Therefore as Abraham is blessed by faith, so are all his children (that is to say, all the Gentiles that believe) blessed, that is to say, freely justified.

¹⁶ With faithful Abraham, and not by faithful Abraham, to give us to understand that the blessing cometh from Abraham, but from him by whom Abraham and all his posterity are blessed.

¹⁷ The sixth argument, the conclusion whereof is also in the former verse taken of contraries, thus: They are accursed which are of the works of the law, that is to say, which value their righteousness by the performance of the law. Therefore they are blessed which are of faith, that is, they which have righteousness by faith.

¹⁸ A proof of the former sentence or proposition, and the proposition of this argument is this: Cursed is he that fulfilleth not the whole law.

²⁰ Here is a reason shewed of the former consequence: Because the law promiseth life to all that keep it, and therefore if it be kept, it justifieth and giveth life. But the scripture attributing righteousness and life to faith, taketh it from the law, seeing that faith justifieth by imputation, and the law by the performing of the work.

²¹ A preventing of an objection: How then can they be blessed, whom the law pronounceth to be accursed? Because Christ sustained the curse which the law laid upon us, that we might be quit from it.

²² A proof of the answer by the testimony of Moses.

²³ Christ was accursed for us, because he bare the curse that was due to us, to make us partakers of his righteousness.

²⁴ A conclusion of all that was said before in the handling of the fifth and sixth reasons, to wit, that both the Gentiles made partakers of the free blessing of Abraham in Christ, and also that the Jews themselves, of whose number the apostle counteth himself he, cannot obtain that promised grace of the gospel, which he calleth the Spirit, but only by faith. And the apostle doth severally apply the conclusion, both to the one and to the other, preparing himself a way to the next argument, whereby he declareth that that only seed of Abraham, which is made of all people, can no otherwise be joined and grow up together but by faith in Christ.

²⁵ He putteth forth two general rules before the next argument, which is the seventh in order: The one is, that it is not lawful to break covenants and contracts which are justly made, and according to law, among men, neither may any thing be added to them: the other is, that God did so make a covenant with Abraham, that he would gather together his children which consist both of Jews and Gentiles into one body (as appeareth by that which hath been said before). For he did not say, that he would be the God of Abraham and of his seeds, (which thing notwithstanding should have been said, if he had many and divers seeds, as the Gentiles apart, and the Jews apart) but that he would be the God of Abraham, and of his seed, as of one.

²⁶ I will use an example which is common among you, that you may be ashamed that you give not so much to God's covenant as you do to man's.

²⁷ Authentical, as we call it.

A. D. 58. as speaking of many: but, And to thy seed, as of one, ¹⁸ which is ¹ Christ.

17 ¹⁹ And this I say, that the covenant that was confirmed afore of God ^m in respect of Christ, the ²⁰ law which was four hundred and thirty years after cannot disanul, that it should make the promise of none effect.

18 ²¹ For if the ^a inheritance be of the law, it is no more by the promise, but God gave it freely unto Abraham by promise.

19 ²² Wherefore then serveth the law? It was added because of the ^b transgressions, ^p till the seed came, unto the which the promise was made: ²¹ and it was ^q ordained by ^r angels in the hand of ^s mediator.

20 Now a mediator is not a mediator of one: ²⁴ but God is one.

21 ²⁵ Is the law then against the promises of God? God forbid: For if there had been a law given which could have given life, surely righteousness should have been by the law.

Rom. 5. 9. 22 But the ^t scripture hath ^u concluded ^v all under sin, that the ^w promise by the faith of Jesus Christ should be given to them that believe.

23 ²⁶ But before faith came, we were kept

¹⁸ He putteth forth the sum of the seventh argument, to wit, that both the Jews and the Gentiles grow together in [■] body of the seed of Abraham, in Christ only, so that all are one in Christ, [■] it is afterward declared, ver. 28.

¹ Paul speaketh not of Christ's person, but of two peoples, which grew together in one, in Christ.

¹⁹ The eighth argument taken of comparison, thus: If a man's covenant (being authentical) be firm and strong, much more God's covenant. Therefore the law was not given to abrogate the promise made to Abraham, which had respect to Christ, that is to say, the end whereof did hang on Christ.

²⁰ Which tended to Christ.

[■] An enlarging of that argument, thus: Moreover and besides that the promise is of itself firm and strong, it was also confirmed with the prescription of long time, to wit, of four hundred and thirty years, so that it could in no wise be broken.

²¹ An objection: We grant that the promise was not abrogated by the covenant of the law, and therefore we join the law with the promise. Nay, saith the apostle, these two cannot stand together, to wit, that the inheritance should both be given by the law and also by promise, for the promise is free: whereby it followeth that the law was not given to justify, for by that means the promise should be broken.

ⁿ By this word (inheritance) is meant the right of the seed, which is, that God should be our God, that is to say, that by virtue of the covenant that was made with faithful Abraham, we that be faithful, might by that [■] be blessed of God [■] well as he.

²² An objection which riseth from the former answer: If the inheritance be not by the law (at least in part) then why was the law given after that the promise was made? therefore saith the apostle, to reprove [■] of sin, and to teach them to look unto Christ, in whom [■] length that promise of saving all people together should be fulfilled, and not that the law was given to justify men.

^o That men might understand, by discovering of their sins, that they are saved by the only grace of God, which he revealed to Abraham, and that in Christ.

[■] Until the partition wall was broken down, and that full seed sprang up, framed of two peoples, both of Jews and Gentiles: for by this word Seed, we may not understand Christ alone by himself, but coupled and joined together with his body.

²³ A confirmation of the former answer taken from the manner and form of giving the law: for it [■] given by angels, striking [■] great terror into all, and by Moses, a mediator, coming between. Now they that are one, need no mediator, but they that [■] twain, at the least, and that are at variance one with another. Therefore the law itself, and the mediator, were witnesses of the wrath of God, and not that God would by this means reconcile men [■] himself, and abolish the promise, [■] add the law unto the promise.

under the law; as under a garison, and shut up unto ^x that faith, which should afterward be revealed. A. D. 58.

24 Wherefore the law was our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ, that we might be made righteous by faith.

25 But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster.

26 ²⁷ For ye are all the sons of God by faith, in Christ Jesus.

27 ²⁸ For all ye that are ^y baptized into Christ, have ^z put on Christ.

28 There is neither Jew nor Grecian: there is neither bond nor free: there is neither male nor female: for ye are all ^a one in Christ Jesus.

29 And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs by promise.

C H A P. IV.

1 Being delivered from the bondage of the law, 4 by Christ's coming, who is the end thereof, 9 it is very absurd to slide back to beggarly ceremonies: 13 he calleth them again therefore to the purity of the doctrine of the gospel, 21 confirming his discourse with a fine allegory.

THEN

^r By the service and ministry.

²⁵ The conclusion uttered by [■] manner of asking [■] question, and it is that same that was uttered before, ver. 17, but proceeding of another rule: so that the argument is new, and is this: God is always like unto himself: therefore the law was not given to abolish the promises. But it should abolish them if it gave life, for by that means it should justify, and therefore it should abolish that justification, which was promised to Abraham and to his seed by faith. Nay, it was rather given to bring to light the guiltiness of all men, to the end that all believers seeing to Christ promised, might be freely justified in him.

[■] By this word Scripture, he meaneth the law.

[■] All men, and whatsoever cometh from man.

[■] In every one of these words there lieth an argument against the merit of works: for all these words, promise; faith, Christ, might be given to believers, [■] against merits, and not one of them can stand with deserving works.

²⁶ Now there followeth another handling of the second part of this epistle: the state whereof was this: Although the law, (that is, the whole government of God's house according to the law) do not justify, is it therefore to be abolished, seeing that Abraham himself was circumcised, and his posterity held still the use of Moses's law? Paul affirmeth that it ought to be abolished, because it was instituted for that end and purpose, that it should be, as it were; a schoolmaster and keeper to the people of God, until the promise appeared in deed; that is to say, Christ, and the gospel manifestly published with great efficacy of the Spirit.

²⁷ Because age changeth not the condition of servants; he addeth that we [■] free by condition, and therefore, seeing we are out of our childhood, we have [■] more need of a keeper and schoolmaster.

²⁸ Using [■] general particle, lest the Jews at the least should not think themselves bound with the band of the law, he pronounceth that baptism is common to all believers, because it is [■] pledge of our deliverance in Christ, as well to the Jews [■] to the Grecians, that by this means all may be truly one in Christ, that is [■] say, that promised seed [■] Abraham, and inheritors of eternal life.

⁷ He setteth baptism secretly against circumcision, which the false apostles so much bragged of.

² The church must put on Christ, [■] it were a garment, and be covered with him, that it may be thoroughly holy and without blame.

^a You are all as one: and so is this great knot and conjunction signified.

A. D. 58. THEN I say, that the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be Lord of all.

2 But is under tutors and governors, until the time appointed of the father.

3 Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage under the rudiments of the world.

4 But when the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son made of a woman, and made under the law :

5 That he might redeem them which were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of the sons.

6 And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, which crieth, Abba, Father.

7 Wherefore, thou art no more a servant, but a son: now if thou be a son, thou art also the heir of God through Christ.

8 But even then, when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them which by nature are not gods :

9 But now seeing ye know God, yea, rather are known of God, how turn ye again unto impotent and beggarly rudiments, whereunto as from the beginning ye will be in bondage again ?

10 Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years.

11 I am in fear of you, lest I have bestowed on you labour in vain.

12 Be ye as I (for I am even as you) brethren, I beseech you: ye have not hurt me at all.

13 And ye know, how through infirmity of the flesh, I preached the gospel unto you at the first.

14 And the trial of me, which was in my flesh, ye despised not, neither abhorred: but ye received me as an angel of God, yea as Christ Jesus.

15 What was then your felicity? for I bear you record, that if it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them unto me.

16 Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?

17 They are jealous over you amiss: yea they would exclude you, that ye should altogether love them.

18 But it is a good thing to love earnestly always in a good thing, and not only when I am present with you.

19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again, until Christ be formed in you.

20 And I would I were with you now, that I might change my voice: for I am in doubt of you.

21 Tell me, ye that would be under the law, do ye not hear the law?

22 For it is written, that Abraham had two sons,

1 He declareth that by another double similitude, which he said before concerning the keeper and schoolmaster. For he saith that the law, (that is, the whole government of God's house according to the law) was as it were a tutor or overseer appointed for a time, until such time as that protection and overseeing, which was but for a time, being ended, we should at length come to be at our own liberty, and should live as children, and not as servants. Moreover, he sheweth by the way, that that governance of the law was as it were an A B C, and as certain principles, in comparison of the doctrine of the gospel.

2 This is added, because he that is always under a tutor or governor, may hardly be counted a freeman.

3 The law is called rudiments, because that by the law God instructed his church as it were by rudiments, and afterward poured out his Holy Spirit most plentifully in the time of the gospel.

4 He uttereth and declareth many things at once, to wit, that this tutorship was ended at his time: that curious men may leave to ask, why that schoolmasterhip lasted so long. And moreover, that we are not sons by nature, but by adoption, and that in that Son of God, who therefore took upon him our flesh, that we might be made his brethren.

5 The time is said to be full, when all parts of it are past and ended, and therefore Christ could not have come either sooner or later.

6 He calleth Mary a woman, in respect of the sex, and not as the word is used in a contrary sense to a virgin, for she remained a virgin still.

7 The adoption of the sons of God is from everlasting, but is revealed and shewed in the time appointed for it.

8 He sheweth that we are in such sort free and set at liberty, that in the mean season we must be governed by the Spirit of Christ, which reigning in our hearts, may teach us the true service of the Father. But this is not to serve, but rather to enjoy true liberty, in it cometh sons and heirs.

9 By that that followeth, he gathereth that that went before: for if we have his Spirit, we are his sons; and if we are his sons, then are we free.

10 The Holy Ghost, who is both of the Father, and of the Son: but there is a peculiar reason why he is called the Spirit of the Son, to wit, because the Holy Ghost sealth up our adoption in Christ, and maketh us full assurance of it.

11 The word, servant, is not taken here for one that liveth in sin, which is proper in the infidels, but for one that is yet under the ceremonies of the law, which is proper to the Jews.

12 Partaker of his blessings.

4 He applieth the former doctrine to the Galatians, with a peculiar reprehension: for in comparison of them, the Jews might have pretended some excuse as men that were born and brought up in that service of the law. But seeing that the Galatians were taken and called out of idolatry to Christian liberty, what pretence might they have to go back to those impotent and beggarly rudiments?

5 They are called impotent and beggarly ceremonies, being considered apart by themselves without Christ: and again, for that by that means they gave good testimony that they were beggars in Christ, whenas notwithstanding, for men to fall back from Christ to ceremonies, is nothing else but to cast away riches, and to follow beggary.

6 By going backward.

7 He mitigateth and qualifyeth those things, wherein he might have seemed to have spoken somewhat sharply, very artificially and divinely, declaring his good will toward them in such sort, that the Galatians could not but either be utterly desperate when they read these things, or acknowledge their own lightness with tears, and desire pardon.

8 Many afflictions.

9 Those daily troubles wherewith the Lord tried me amongst you.

10 For my ministry's sake.

11 What a talk was there abroad in the world amongst men, how happy you were?

12 For they are jealous over you for their own commodity.

13 That they may convey all your love from me, to themselves.

14 He setteth his own true and good love, which was earnestly bent toward them, against the naughty vicious love of the false apostles.

15 Use other words among you.

16 Because the false apostles urged this, that unless the Gentiles were circumcised, Christ could profit them nothing at all, and this dissension of them which believed of the circumcision, against them which believed of the uncircumcision, was full of offence: the apostle, after divers arguments, whereby he hath refuted their error, bringeth forth an allegory, wherein he saith, The Holy Ghost did shadow out unto us, all these mysteries: to wit, that it should come to pass, that such sorts of sons should have Abraham a father common to them both: but not with like success, for as Abraham begat Ishmael, by the common course of nature, of Agar his bond-maid, and a stranger, and begat Isaac of Sarah, a free woman, by the virtue of the promise, and by grace only; and the first was not only, not heir, but also persecuted

A. D. 58.

A. D. 58. Ions, * one by a servant, and * one by a free woman.

23 But he which was of the servant, was born after the * flesh: and he which was of the free woman, was born by * promise:

24 By the which things another thing is meant: for * these mothers are the * two testaments, the one which is Agar of mount ^b Sinai, which gendereth unto bondage,

25 (For Agar, or Sinai, is a mountain in Arabia, and it ^c answereth to Jerusalem which now is) and ^d she is in bondage with her children:

26 But Jerusalem, which is ^e above, is free: which is the mother of us all.

27 ^f For it is written, * Rejoice, thou barren that bearest no children: break forth, and cry, thou that travailest not: for the ^g desolate hath many more children than she which hath an husband.

28 * Therefore, brethren, we are, after the ^h manner of Isaac, children of the ⁱ promise.

29 But as then he that was born after the ^j flesh, persecuted him that was born after the ^k Spirit, even so, it is now.

30 But what saith the scripture? * Put out the servant and her son: for the son of the servant shall not be heir with the son of the free woman.

31 * Then, brethren, we are not children of the servant, but of the free woman.

cuted the heir: so there are two covenants, and as it were, two sons born to Abraham of those two covenants, as it were of two mothers. The one was made in Sinai, without the land of promise, according to which covenant Abraham's children, according to the flesh, were begotten: to wit, the Jews, which seek righteousness by that covenant, that is, by the law: but they are not heirs, nay they shall at length be cast out of the house, as they that persecute the true heirs. The other was made in that high Jerusalem, or in Sion (to wit, by the sacrifice of Christ) which begetteth children of promise, to wit, believers by the virtue of the Holy Ghost, which children, (as Abraham) do rest themselves in the free promise, and they only by the right of children shall be partakers of the father's inheritance, and those servants shall be shut out.

^u That desire so greatly.

^v As all men are, and by the common course of nature.

^w By virtue of the promise, which Abraham laid hold on for himself and his true seed, for otherwise Abraham and Sarah were past begetting and bearing of children.

^x These do represent and shadow forth.

^y They are called two covenants, one of the Old Testament, and another of the New: which were not two indeed, but in respect of the times, and the diversity of the government.

^z He maketh mention of Sinai, because that covenant was made in that mountain, of which mountain Agar was a shadow.

^{aa} Look how the case standeth between Agar and her children, even so standeth it between Jerusalem and hers.

^{ab} That is, Sinai.

^{ac} Which is excellent and of great account.

^{ad} He sheweth that in this allegory, he hath followed the steps of Isaiah, who foretold that the church should be made and consist of the children of barren Sarah, that is to say, of them which only spiritually should be made Abraham's children by faith, rather than of fruitful Agar, even then foreshewing the casting off of the Jews, and calling of the Gentiles.

^{ae} She that is destroyed and wasted.

^{af} After the manner of Isaac, who is the first begotten of the heavenly Jerusalem, as Ishmael is of the slavish synagogue.

^{ag} That seed unto which the promise belongeth.

^{ah} By the common course of nature.

^{ai} By the virtue of God's promise, and after a spiritual manner.

^{aj} The conclusion of the former allegory, that we by ^{ak} means procure and call back again the slavery of the law, seeing that the children of the bondmaid shall not be

C H A P. V.

A. D. 58.

Having declared that we came of the free woman; he sheweth the price of that freedom, 13 and how we should use the same, 16 that we may obey the Spirit, 19 and resist the flesh.

STAND fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not intangled again with the yoke of bondage.

2 * Behold, I Paul say unto you, that if ye be ^a circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing.

3 For I testify again to every man which is circumcised, that he is bound to keep the whole law.

4 Ye are ^b abolished from Christ, whosoever are ^c justified by the law: ye are fallen from grace:

5 ^d For we through the ^e Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness through faith.

6 ^f For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, neither ^g uncircumcision, ^h but ⁱ faith which worketh by love.

7 ^j Ye did run well: who did let you, that ye did not obey the truth?

^k It is not the persuasion of ^l him that calleth you.

9 * A little leaven doth leaven the whole lump. 10 I have heirs.

^m Another obtestation, wherein he plainly witnesseth that justification of works, and justification of faith, cannot stand together, because no man can be justified by the law, but he that doth fully and perfectly fulfil it. And he taketh the example of circumcision, because it was the ground of all the service of the law, and was chiefly urged of the false apostles.

ⁿ Circumcision is in other places called the seal of righteousness, but here we must have consideration of the circumstance of the time, for now had baptism come in the place of circumcision. And moreover Paul reasoneth according to the opinion that his enemies had of it, which made circumcision a piece of their salvation.

^o That is, as he himself expoundeth it afterward; Ye are fallen from grace.

^p That is, seek to be justified by the law, for indeed no man is justified by the law.

^q He privily compareth the new people with the old: for it is certain that they also did ground all their hope of justification and life in faith, and not in circumcision, but so, that their faith was wrapped in the external and ceremonial worship: but our faith is bare, and content with spiritual worship.

^r Through the Spirit which engendereth faith.

^s He addeth a reason; for that now circumcision is abolished, seeing that Christ is exhibited unto ^t with full plenty of spiritual circumcision.

^u He maketh mention also of uncircumcision, lest the Gentiles should please themselves in it, as the Jews do in circumcision:

^v The taking away of an objection: If all that worship the law be taken away, wherein then shall we exercise ourselves? In charity, saith Paul: for faith, whereof we speak, cannot be idle, nay it bringeth forth daily fruits of charity.

^w So is true faith distinguished from counterfeit faith: for charity is not joined with faith, ^x a fellow cause, ^y help forward our justification with faith.

^z Again he chideth the Galatians, but with ^{aa} admiration, and therewithal ^{ab} praise of their former race, to the end that he may make them more ashamed.

^{ac} He playeth the part of an apostle with them, and useth his authority; denying that that doctrine can come from God, which is contrary to his.

^{ad} Of God.

^{ae} He addeth this, that they may not seem to contend upon a trifle, warning them diligently (by ^{af} similitude, which he borroweth of leaven, as Christ himself also did) not to suffer the purity of the apostolical doctrine to be infected with the least corruption that may be.

A. D. 10 * I have trust in you through the Lord, 52 that ye will be none otherwise minded: but he that troubleth you, shall bear his condemnation, whosoever he be.

11 * And, brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why do I yet suffer persecution? Then is the slander of the cross abolished.

12 * Would to God they were even cut off which do^e disquiet you.

13 For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty: ¹² only use not your liberty as an occasion unto the flesh, but by love serve one another.

14 * For^e all the law is fulfilled in one word, which is this, * Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

15 * If ye bite and devour one another, take heed lest ye be consumed one of another.

16 * Then I say, * Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lusts of the flesh.

17 For the^e flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary one to another, so that ye cannot do the same things that ye would.

18 And if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the law,

19 ¹⁹ Moreover the works of the flesh are manifest, which are adultery, fornication, unclea-ness, wantonness,

20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, debate,

resies,

21 Envy, murders, drunkenness, gluttony, and such like, whereof I tell you before, as I also have told you before, that they which do such things, shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

there is no law.

24 For they that are Christ's, have crucified the flesh, with the affections and the lusts.

25 If we^e live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

26 ¹³ Let us not be desirous of vain glory,

CHAP. VI.

1 Now he entreateth particularly of charity toward such as offend, 6 toward the ministers of the word, 10 and those that are of the household of faith: 11
Not like unto such who have a counterfeit zeal of the law, 13 glorying in the mangling of the flesh, 14 and not in the cross of Christ.

Brethren, ¹ if a man be ² suddenly taken in any offence, ye which are ³ spiritual, ⁴ restore such one with the ⁵ spirit of meekness, ⁶ considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.

2 ³ Bear ye one another's burden, and so fulfil the ⁴ law of Christ.

3 For if any man seem to himself that he^e is somewhat, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself in his imagination.

4 But let every man prove his own work: and then shall he have rejoicing in himself only, and not in another.

5 ⁶ For every man shall bear his own burden. 1 Cor. 9. 7.

6 ⁵ Let him that is taught in the word, make him that hath taught him partaker of ⁶ all his ⁷ goods. 1 Cor. 9. 7.

7 ⁶ Be not deceived: God is not mocked:
for

⁹ He mitigateth the former reprehension, casting the fault upon the false apostles, against whom he denounceth the horrible judgments of God.

¹⁰ He willeth them to consider how that he seeketh not his own profit in this matter, seeing that he could eschew the hatred of men, if he would join Judaism with Christianity.

¹¹ An example of a true pastor: inflamed with the zeal of God, and love of his flock.

¹² They that preach the law, cause men's consciences always to tremble.

¹³ The third part of this epistle, shewing that the right use of Christian liberty consisteth in this, that being delivered and set at liberty from the slavery of sin, and the flesh, and being obedient to the Spirit, we should serve unto one another's salvation through love.

¹⁴ He propoundeth the love of our neighbour, as a mark whereunto all Christians ought to refer all their actions, and thereunto he citeth the testimony of the law.

¹⁵ This particle (All) must be restrained to the second table.

¹⁶ An exhortation to the duties of charity, by the profit that cometh thereof, because that no men provide worse for themselves than they that hate one another.

¹⁷ He acknowledgeth the great weakness of the godly, for that they are but in part regenerate: but he willeth them to remember that they are endued with the Spirit of God, which hath delivered them from the slavery of sin, and is of the law, so far forth ¹⁸ it is the virtue of sin, that they should not give themselves to lusts.

¹⁹ For the flesh dwelleth even in the regenerate man, but the Spirit reigneth, although not without great strife, as is largely set forth, Rom. 7.

²⁰ He setteth out that particularly, which he spake generally, reckoning up some chief effects of the flesh, and opposing them to the fruits of the Spirit, that no ²¹ may pretend ignorance.

²² Therefore they are not the fruits of free will, but so far forth as our will is made free by grace.

²³ I tell that any man should object that Paul playeth the doublet, as one who urging the Spirit, urgeth nothing but that which the law commandeth, he sheweth that he requireth, not that literal and outward obedience, but spiritual, which proceedeth not from the law, but from the Spirit of Christ, which doth beget us again, and must and ought to be the ruler and guider of our life.

¹ If we be indeed endued with the quickening Spirit, which causeth us to die to sin, and live to God, let us shew it in our deeds, that is, by holiness of life.

² He addeth peculiar exhortations, according as he knew the Galatians subject to divers vices: and first of all, he warneth them to take heed of ambition, which vice hath two fellows, backbiting and envy, out of which two it cannot be but many contentions must needs arise.

³ He condemneth importunate rigour, because that brotherly reprehensions ought to be moderated and tempered by the spirit of meekness.

⁴ Through the malice of the flesh, and the devil.
⁵ Which are upholden by the virtue of God's Spirit.

⁶ Labour ⁷ fill up that that is wanting in him.
⁸ This is ⁹ kind of speech which the Hebrews use, giving to understand thereby, that all good gifts come from God.

¹⁰ He toucheth the fore: for they commonly are most severe judges which forget their own infirmities.

¹¹ He sheweth that this is the end of reprehensions, to raise up our brother which is fallen, and not proudly to express him. Therefore every ¹² must seek to have commendation of his own life by approving of himself, and not by reprehending others.

¹³ Christ, in plain and flat words, calleth the commandment of charity his commandment.

¹⁴ A reason wherefore men ought to have the greatest eye upon themselves, because that every man shall be judged before God, according to his own life, and not by comparing himself with other men.

¹⁵ It is meet that masters should be found by their scholars so far forth as they are able.

¹⁶ Of whatsoever he hath, according to his ability.

¹⁷ He commendeth liberality towards the poor, and first of all chideth them which were not ashamed to pretend themselves

A. D. 58. for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

8 For he that soweth to his flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption: but he that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting.

9 * 7 Let us not therefore be weary of well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

10 While we have therefore time, let us do good unto all men, but specially unto them which are of the household of faith.

11 ¶ Ye see how large a letter I have written unto you with mine own hand.

12 As many as desire to make a fair shew in the flesh, they constrain you to be circumcised, only because they would not suffer persecution for the cross of Christ.

13 For they themselves which are circumcised keep the law, but desire to have you circumcised, that they might rejoice in your flesh.

14 But God forbid that I should rejoice, but in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, whereby the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

15 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but new creature.

16 And as many as walk according to this rule, peace shall be upon them, and mercy, and upon the Israel of God.

17 From henceforth let no man put me to business: for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus.

18 Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

¶ Unto the Galatians, written from Rome.

this and that, and all because they would not help their neighbours, as though they could deceive God: and afterward compareth alms spiritual sowing which shall have a most plentiful harvest, so that it shall be very profitable: and compareth covetous niggardliness a carnal sowing, whereof nothing can be gathered but such things fade away, and perish by and by.

To the commodities of this present life.

Against such as liberal at the beginning, but continue not, because the harvest seemeth to be deferred very long, as though the seed time and the harvest were one instant.

They that are of the household of faith, that is, such as are joined with us in the profession of one self-same religion, ought to be preferred before all other, yet so notwithstanding that our liberality extend to all.

The fourth and last part of the epistle, wherein he returneth to his principal end and purpose, to wit, that the Galatians should not suffer themselves to be led out of the way by the false apostles: and he painteth out those false apostles in their colours, reproving them of ambition, as men that do not that which they do, for any affection or zeal they have to the law, but only for this purpose, that they may purchase themselves favour amongst their own sort, by the circumcision of the Galatians.

He setteth a fair shew against the truth.

In keeping of ceremonies.

For the preaching of him that was crucified.

That they have entangled you in Judaism, and yet he harpeth the form of circumcision.

He sticketh not to compare himself with them, shewing, that, the contrary part, he rejoiceth in those afflictions which he suffereth for Christ's sake, and he is despised of the world, so doth he in like sort esteem the world as nought: which is the true circumcision of true Israelite.

When Paul useth this word in good sense, part, it signifieth rest man's self wholly in thing, and to content himself therewith.

Upon the true Israel, whose praise is of God, and not of man, Rom. 2. 19.

Continuing still in the same metaphor, he opposeth his miseries and the marks of those stripes which he bare for Christ's sake, against the scar of the outward circumcision, as a true mark of his apostleship.

Marks which are burnt into a man's flesh, as they used in old time to mark their servants that had run away from them.

For it importeth much, whose marks we bear: for the cause maketh the martyr, and not the punishment.

Taking his farewell of them, he wisheth them grace, and the Spirit, against the deceits of the false apostles, which laboured to beat those outward things into their brains.

With your minds and hearts.

The Epistle of PAUL to the EPHESIANS.

CHAP. I.

A. D. 64. 1 After the salutation, 4 he entreateth of the free election of God, 5 and adoption, 7, 13 from whence man's salvation floweth, as from the true and natural fountain: and because so high a mystery cannot be understood, 16 he prayeth that the full 20 knowledge of Christ may by God be revealed unto the Ephesians.

The inscription and salutation, whereof we have spoken in the former epistles.

This is the definition of the saints, shewing what they are.

The first part of the epistle, wherein he handleth the parts of our salvation, propounding the example of the Ephesians, and using divers exhortations, and beginning after his manner with thanksgiving.

The efficient cause of our salvation is God, not considered confusedly and generally, but the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

PAUL an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to the saints which are at Ephesus, and to the faithful in Christ Jesus.

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Blessed be God, and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which hath blessed us with all spiritual blessing in heavenly things in Christ:

3 L

4 As

The next final cause, and in respect of us, is salvation, all things being bestowed upon which necessary to our salvation, which kind of blessing is heavenly, and proper to the elect.

With all kind of gracious and bountiful goodness, which is heavenly indeed, and from God only.

Which God our Father gave from his high throne from above: because the saints have those gifts bestowed on them, which belong properly to the citizens of heaven.

The matter of our salvation is Christ, in whom only we are endued with spiritual blessing and unto salvation.

A. D. 64.

1 Cor. 1. 2.

1 Cor. 1. 5.

1 Pet. 1. 3.

A. D. 4⁴ As he hath chosen us in ⁴him, before the foundation of the world, ⁷that we ⁶should ⁵be holy, and without blame ²before him in love:

5⁵ Who hath predestinate us to be adopted through Jesus Christ ⁵in himself, according to the good pleasure of his will,

6⁷ To the ¹praise of the glory of his grace ², wherewith he hath made ¹¹freely accepted in ¹²his Beloved:

7¹¹ By whom we have redemption through his blood, ⁷even the forgiveness of sins according to his rich grace:

8¹² Whereby he hath been abundant toward us in ¹all wisdom and understanding,

9 And hath opened unto us the ¹¹mystery of his will ¹¹according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in him,

10¹⁴ That in the dispensation of the fulness of the times, he might ²gather together in one all things, both which are in heaven, and which are in earth, ⁷even in Christ:

11¹⁵ In whom also we are chosen when we were predestinate, according to the purpose of him which worketh ¹⁰all things after the counsel of his own will,

12 That we, which ⁷first trusted in Christ, should be unto the praise of his glory:

¹¹ He declareth the efficient cause, or by what means God the Father saveth us in his Son: Because, saith he, he chose us from everlasting in his Son.

⁴ To be adopted in him.

⁷ He expoundeth the next final cause, which he maketh double, to wit, sanctification and justification, whereof he will speak hereafter. And hereby also two things are to be noted, to wit, that holiness of life cannot be separate from the grace of election: and again, what pureness soever is in us, is the gift of God, who hath freely of his mercy chosen us.

⁶ Then God did not chuse us, because we were, or otherwise should have been holy, but ¹¹the end ¹¹should be holy.

⁵ Being clothed with Christ's righteousness.

² Truly and sincerely.

² Another plainer exposition of the efficient cause, and also of eternal election, whereby God is said to have chosen us in Christ, to wit, because it pleased him to appoint us out when we were not yet born, whom he would make to be his children by Jesus Christ: so that there is no reason here of our election to be sought, but in the free mercy of God; neither is faith which God foresaw, the cause of our predestination, but the effect.

¹¹ God respecteth nothing, either that present is, or that is to come, but himself only.

⁹ The uttermost and chiefest final cause is the glory of God the Father, who saveth us freely in his Son.

¹ That ¹¹his bountiful goodness deserveth all praise, so also it should be set forth and published.

¹⁰ Another final cause ¹¹¹¹near is our justification, while that he freely accounteth us for just in his Son.

¹¹ An expounding of the material cause, how we are made acceptable to God in Christ, for it is he only whose sacrifice by the mercy of God is imputed unto us, for forgiveness of sins.

¹² Now he cometh at length to the formal cause, that is to say, to vocation or preaching of the gospel, whereby God executeth that eternal counsel of our free reconciliation and salvation in Christ, and putting in place of the gospel all wisdom and understanding, he sheweth how excellent it is.

¹¹ By which gracious goodness and bountifulness.

² For unless the Lord had opened unto ¹¹that mystery, we could never have so much ¹¹dreamed of it ourselves.

¹¹ Not only the election, but also the vocation proceedeth of meer grace.

¹⁴ The Father exhibited and gave Christ, who is the head of all the elect, unto the world, ¹¹that time which was convenient, according ¹¹he most wisely disposed all times from everlasting. And Christ is he, in whom all the elect from the beginning of the world, (otherwise wandering and separated from God) are gathered together: of which some were then in heaven, when he ¹¹¹¹¹into the earth, (to wit, such ¹¹by faith in him ¹¹come, ¹¹¹¹gathered together) and other being found upon the earth,

13¹⁶ In whom also ye ¹¹have trusted, after that ye heard the ¹word of truth, ⁷even the gospel of your salvation: wherein also after that ye believed; ye were ⁷sealed with the holy ¹Spirit of promise, 14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance, for the ¹redemption of that liberty purchased unto the praise of his glory.

15¹⁷ Therefore also after that I heard of the faith which ye have in the Lord Jesus, and love toward all the saints,

16 I cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers,

17¹⁸ That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, that Father of ¹⁰glory, might give unto you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation through the ¹⁰acknowledging of him,

18 That the eyes of your understanding may be lightened, that ye may know what the ⁷hope is of his calling, and what the riches of his glorious inheritance ¹¹is in the saints,

19¹⁹ And what is the exceeding greatness of his power toward us which believe, ¹⁰according to the working of his mighty power,

20²⁰ Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised were gathered together of him, and the rest are daily gathered together.

¹¹ The faithful are said to be gathered together in Christ, because they are joined together with him through faith, and become as it were one man.

¹⁵ He applieth severally the benefit of vocation to the believing Jews, going back to the very fountain, that even they also may not attribute their salvation, neither to themselves, nor to their stock, nor any other thing, but to the only grace and mercy of God, both because they were called, and also because they were first called.

¹⁰ All things are attributed ¹¹the grace of God without exception, and yet for all that, we ¹¹¹not stocks, for he giveth us grace both to will, and ¹¹be able ¹¹do those things that ¹¹¹good, Phil. 2. 13.

⁷ He speaketh of the Jews.

¹⁶ Now he maketh the Ephesians (or rather all the Gentile:) equal to the Jews, because that notwithstanding they came last, yet being called by the same gospel, they embraced it by faith, and were sealed up with the same Spirit, which is the pledge of election, until the inheritance itself be seen, that in them also the glory of God might shine forth and be manifested.

⁹ That word which is truth indeed, because it cometh from God.

⁶ This is a borrowed kind of speech taken of a seal, which being put to any thing, maketh difference between those things that are authentic, and others that are not.

⁷ With that Spirit, which bringeth not the law, but the promise of free adoption.

¹⁷ He returneth to the former gratulation, concluding two things together of those things that went before: the first is, that all good things come to us from God the Father in Christ, and by Christ, that for them he may be praised of us. The second is, that all those things (which he bringeth to two heads, to wit, faith and charity) are increased in ¹¹by certain degrees, so that we must desire increase of his grace, from whom we have the beginning, and of whom ¹¹¹hope for the end.

¹¹ The causes of faith, are God the Father lightening our minds with his Holy Spirit, that we may embrace Christ opened unto us in the gospel, to the obtaining of everlasting life, and the setting forth of God's glory.

¹⁰ Full of majesty.

¹¹ For it is not enough for us to have known God once, but we must know him every day more and more.

⁷ What blessings they are which he calleth you ¹¹hope for, whom he calleth to Christ.

¹⁹ The excellency of faith is declared by the effects, because the mighty power of God is set forth and shewed therein.

²⁰ The apostle willeth ¹¹¹¹behold in our most glorious Christ, with the eyes of faith, that most excellent power and glory of God, whereof all the faithful are partakers, although it be as yet very dark in us, by reason of the ignominy of the cross, and the weakness of the flesh.

A. D. 64. raised him from the dead, and set him at his right hand in the heavenly places, 21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and domination; and every name that is named, not in this world only, but also in that that is to come 22 And hath made all things subject under his feet, and hath given him over all things to be the head to the church, 23 Which is his body, even the fulness of him that filleth all in all things.

CHAP. II.

The better to set out the grace of Christ, he useth a comparison, calling them to mind, 5, 12 that they were altogether cast-aways and aliens: that they are saved by grace, 13 and brought near, 16 by reconciliation through Christ, 17 published by the gospel.

Coloss. 2. 11. AND * you hath be quickened, that were dead in trespasses and sins, wherein, in times past, ye walked, according to the course of this world, and after the prince that ruleth in the air, even the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience,
 3 Among whom we also had our conversation in times past in the lusts of our flesh, in fulfilling the will of the flesh, and of the mind, and were by nature the children of wrath, as well as others.

A. D. 64. 4 But God which is rich in mercy, through his great love wherewith he loved us,
 5 Even when we were dead by sins, hath quickened us together in Christ, by whose grace ye are saved,
 6 And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus.
 7 That he might shew in the ages to come the exceeding riches of his grace, through his kindness toward us in Christ Jesus.
 For by his grace we are saved through faith, and that not of ourselves: it is the gift of God:
 9 Not of works, lest any man should boast himself:
 10 For we are his workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath ordained, that we should walk in them.
 11 Wherefore remember that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, and called uncircumcision, of them which are called circumcision in the flesh, made with hands
 12 That ye were, I say, at that time without Christ, and were aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and were strangers from the covenants of promise, and had no hope, and were without God in the world.
 13 But now in Christ Jesus, ye which once were far off, are made near by the blood of Christ.
 14 For

Rom. 9. 4.

14 For

To be set on God's right hand, is to be partaker of the sovereignty which he hath over all creatures.
 Every thing whatsoever it be, above all things, be they of never so much power or excellency.
 That we should not think that that excellent glory of Christ is a thing wherewith we have nought to do, he witnesseth, that he was appointed of God the Father, head of all the church, and therefore the body must be joined to this head, which otherwise would be a maimed thing without the members: which notwithstanding is not of necessity (seeing that the church is rather quickened and sustained by the only virtue of Christ, so far off is it, that he needeth the fulness thereof) but of the infinite good will and pleasure of God, who vouchsafeth to join us to his Son.
 Inasmuch that there is nothing but is subject unto him.
 For the love of Christ is so great towards the church, that though he do fully satisfy all with all things, yet he esteemeth himself but a maimed and imperfect head, unless he have the church joined to him his body.
 He declareth again the greatness of God's good will by comparing that miserable state wherein we are born, with that dignity whereunto we are advanced by God the Father in Christ. So that he describeth that condition in such sort, that he saith, that touching spiritual motions we are not only born half dead, but wholly and altogether dead.
 Look Rom. 6. 2. So then he calleth them dead, which are not regenerate: for the immortality of them which are damned is no life, so this knitting together of body and soul, is properly no life but death in them which are not ruled by the Spirit of God.
 He sheweth the cause of death, to wit, sins.
 He proverth, by the effects, that all are spiritually dead.
 He proverth this evil to be universal, inasmuch as all are slaves of Satan.
 At the pleasure of the prince.
 Men are therefore slaves to Satan, because they are willingly rebellious against God.
 They are called the children of disobedience, which are given to disobedience.
 After that he hath severally condemned the Gentiles, he confesseth that the Jews, amongst whom he numbereth himself, are not whit better.
 By the name of flesh, in the first place, he meaneth the whole man, which he divideth into two parts: into the flesh, which is the part that the philosophers term without reason; and into the thought, which they call reasonable: so that he leaveth nothing in man half dead, but concludeth that the whole of us is of nature the son of wrath.

 The conclusion: All were born subject to the wrath and curse of God.
 Men are said to be the children of wrath passively, that is to say, guilty of everlasting death, by the judgment of God, who is angry with them.
 Prophane people which knew not God.
 Now hereof followeth another member of the comparison, declaring our excellency, to wit, that by the virtue of Christ we are delivered from that death, and made partakers of eternal life, to the end that at length we may reign with him. And by divers and sundry things he beatech this into their heads, that the efficient cause of this benefit is the free mercy of God: and Christ himself is the material cause: and faith is the instrument, which also is the free gift of God: and the end is God's glory.
 To wit, as he addeth afterwards, in Christ, for as yet this is not fulfilled in us, but only in our head, by whose Spirit we have begun to die to sin, and live to God, until that work be fully brought to its end: but yet the hope is certain, for we are as sure of that we look for, as we are of that we have received already.
 So then, grace, that is to say, the gift of God, and faith, do stand one with another, to which two, these are contrary, To be saved by ourselves, or by our works. Therefore what mean they which would join together things of contrary nature?
 He taketh away expressly, and namely from our works, the praise of justification, seeing that the good works themselves are the effects of grace in us.
 He speaketh here of grace, and not of nature: therefore be the works so good, look what they are, it is of grace.
 Applying the former doctrine to the Gentiles, he sheweth that they are not only the Jews by nature, but also after an especial sort, strangers and without God: therefore, they ought so much the rather remember that same so great benefit of God.
 You were called no otherwise than Gentiles, that all the world might witness of your uncleanness.
 Of the Jews which were known from you by the mark of circumcision, the mark of the covenant.
 He beginneth first with Christ, who was the end of all the promises.
 You had no right title to the commonwealth of Israel.
 Christ is the only bond of the Jews and Gentiles; whereby they be reconciled to God.

A. D. 64. 14 For he is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath broken the stop of the partition wall, 15 In abrogating through his flesh the hatred, that is, the law of commandments which standeth in ordinances, for to make of twain one new man in himself, so making peace:
 16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by his cross, and so lay hatred thereby:
 17 And came, and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were near.
 18 For through him we have both an entrance unto the Father by one Spirit.
 19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners: but citizens with the saints, and of the household of God,
 20 And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone, 21 In whom all the building coupled together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord:
 22 In whom ye also are built together to be the habitation of God by the Spirit.

CHAP. III.

1 He desireth that therefore he suffered many things of the Jews, 3 because he preached the mystery touching the salvation of the Gentiles, 8 at God's commandment. 13 After, he desired the Ephesians not to faint for his afflictions: 14 and for this cause he purgeth unto God, 18 that they may understand the great love of Christ.

FOR this cause, I Paul am the prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles,
 2 If ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God, which is given me to you-ward,
 3 That is, that God by revelation hath shewed this mystery unto me (as I wrote above in few words,

4 Whereby when ye read, ye may know mine understanding in the mystery of Christ) A. D. 64.
 5 Which in other ages was not opened unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit,
 6 That the Gentiles should be inheritors also, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel,
 7 Whereof I am made minister by the gift of the grace of God given unto me through the effectual working of his power:
 8 Even unto me the least of all saints is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ,
 9 And to make clear unto all men what the fellowship of the mystery is, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who hath created all things by Jesus Christ,
 10 To the intent that now unto principalities and powers in heavenly places, might be known by the church the manifold wisdom of God,
 11 According to the eternal purpose which he wrought in Christ Jesus our Lord:
 12 By whom we have boldness and entrance with confidence, by faith in him.
 13 Wherefore I desire that ye faint not at my tribulations for your sakes, which is your glory.
 14 For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, 15 (Of whom is named the whole family in heaven and in earth)
 16 That he might grant you according to the riches of his glory, that ye may be strengthened by his Spirit in the inner man,
 17 That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith:
 18 That ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height:
 19 And

14 As by the ceremonies and worship appointed by the law, the Jews were divided from the Gentiles, so now Christ, having broken down the partition wall, joineth them both together, both in himself, and betwixt themselves, and to God. Whereby it followeth, that whosoever establisheth the ceremonies of the law, maketh the grace of Christ void, and of none effect.
 15 He alludeth to the sacrifices of the law, which represented that true and only sacrifice.
 16 For he destroyed death by death, and fastened it, in it were, to the cross.
 17 The preaching of the gospel, is effectual instrument of this grace, common as well to the Jews, as to the Gentiles.
 18 Christ is the gate, as it were, by whom we come to the Father, and the Holy Ghost, is in it were, our loadstone who leadeth us.
 19 The conclusion: The Gentiles are taken into the fellowship of salvation, and he describeth the excellency of the church, calling it the city and house of God.
 20 The Lord committed the doctrine of salvation, first to the prophets, and then to the apostles, the end whereof, and matter, as it were, and substance, is Christ. Therefore that is indeed the true and catholic church, which is builded upon Christ by the prophets and apostles, in spiritual temple consecrated to God.
 21 That is, the head of the building, for the foundations are, as it were, the heads of the building.
 22 So that God is the workman not only of the foundations, but also of the whole building.
 23 He maintaineth his apostleship against the offence of the cross, whereon also he taketh an argument to confirm himself, affirming that he was not only appointed an apostle by the mercy of God, but was also particularly appointed to the Gentiles to call them on every side to salvation, because God had so determined it from the beginning, although he deferred a great while the manifestation of that his counsel.

 24 These words, the prisoner of Jesus Christ, are taken passively, that is to say, I Paul am cast into prison for maintaining the glory of Christ.
 25 He meaneth not that some knew the calling of the Gentiles before, but because very few knew of it, and they that did know of it, as the prophets, had it revealed unto them very darkly and under figures.
 26 The unlooked-for calling of the Gentiles, was as it were a glass to the heavenly angels, wherein they might behold the marvellous wisdom of God.
 27 God never had but one way only to save men by: but it had divers fashions and forms.
 28 Which was before all beginnings.
 29 He teacheth by his own example, that the efficacy of the doctrine dependeth upon the grace of God, and therefore we ought to join prayers with the preaching and hearing of the word: which is needful not only to them which are younglings in religion, but even to the oldest also, that they growing up more and more by faith in Christ, being confirmed with all spiritual gifts, may be grounded and rooted in the knowledge of that immeasurable love wherewith God the Father hath loved us in Christ, seeing that the whole family, whereof part is already received into heaven, and part is yet here on earth, dependeth upon that adoption of the heavenly Father, in his only Son.
 30 All that whole people which had but one household-Father, and that is the church, which is adopted in Christ.
 31 According to the greatness of his mercy.
 32 Look Rom. 7. 22.
 33 Wherewith God loveth us, which is the root of our election.
 34 How perfect that work of Christ is in every part.

A. D.
64.

19 And to know the ^k love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled with all ^m fulness of God.

20 ⁺ Unto him therefore that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, 21 Be praise in the church by Christ Jesus, throughout all generations for ever. Amen.

C H A P. IV.

These three last chapters contain precepts of manners.

1 He exhorteth them to mutual love. 7 Sundry gifts are therefore bestowed of God, 16 that the church may be built up. 18 He calleth them from the vanity of the infidels, 25 from lying, 29 and from filthy talking.

I Therefore, ¹ being prisoner in the Lord, pray you that ye walk worthy of the ² vocation whereunto ye are called :

2 ² With all humbleness of mind and meekness, with ^b long suffering, supporting one another through love,

3 ³ Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

4 ⁴ There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your vocation.

5 There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism,

6 One God and Father of all, which is ^c above all, and ^d through all, and ^e in you all.

■ Which God hath shewed us in Christ.

¹ Which passeth all the capacity of man's wit to comprehend it fully in his mind : for otherwise who so hath the Spirit of God, perceiveth so much (according to the measure that God hath given him) as is sufficient to salvation.

^m So that we have abundantly in us, whatsoever things are requisite to make us perfect with God.

⁺ He breaketh forth into a thanksgiving, whereby the Ephesians also may be confirmed to hope for any thing of God.

¹ Another part of the epistle, containing precepts of Christian life, the sum whereof is this, that every man behave himself as it is meet for so excellent grace of God.

■ By this is meant the general calling of the faithful, which is this, to be holy, ■ our God is holy.

² Secondly, he commendeth meekness of the mind, which is shewed forth by bearing one with another.

^b Look Matt. 28. 25.

³ Thirdly, he requireth perfect agreement, but yet such as is knit with the band of the Holy Ghost.

⁺ An argument of great weight, for an earnest entertaining of brotherly love and charity ■■ with another, because we are made ■■ body, ■ it were, of ■■ God and Father, by one Spirit, worshipping one Lord with one faith, and consecrated ■ him with one baptism, and hope of one self-same glory, whereunto we are called. Therefore who so ever breaketh charity, breaketh all these things asunder.

■ Who only hath the chief authority over the church.

■ Who only poureth forth his providence, through all the members of the church.

^c Who only is joined together with us in Christ.

⁵ He teacheth us, that ■■ indeed ■■ all ■■ body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who reigneth ■■ heaven, having mightily conquered all his enemies (from whence he heapeth all gifts upon his church) : but yet notwithstanding these gifts ■■ diversly and sundry ways divided according to his will and pleasure, and therefore every man ought to be content with that measure that God hath given him, and ■ bestow it ■ the common profit of the whole body.

^f Which Christ hath given.

■ A multitude of captives.

^h Down to the earth, which is the lowest part of the world.

■ Fill with his gifts.

■ The church.

⁶ First of all he reckoneth up the ecclesiastical functions, which are partly extraordinary and for ■ season, ■ apostles, prophets, evangelists, and partly ordinary and perpetual, as pastors and doctors.

7 ⁵ But unto every one of us is given grace, according to the measure of the ^f gift of Christ. A. D. 64.

8 Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led ² captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men

9 (Now, in that he ascended, what is it but that he had also descended first into the ^h lowest parts of the earth?

10 He that descended, is even the same that ascended, far above all heavens, that he might ¹ fill ^k all things).

11 ⁶ He therefore gave some to be ¹ apostles, and some ^m prophets, and some ⁿ evangelists, and some ^o pastors and teachers :

12 ⁷ For the repairing of the saints, for the work of the ministry, and for the edification of the ^p body of Christ,

13 ⁸ Till we all meet together (in the ¹ unity of faith, and that acknowledging of the Son of God) unto ¹ perfect man, and unto the measure of the ^r age of the fulness of Christ :

14 ⁹ That we henceforth be no more children, ¹⁰ wavering and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the ¹ deceit of men, and ¹ with craftiness, whereby they lay in wait to deceive.

15 ¹¹ But let us follow the truth in love, and in all things grow up into him which is the head, that is, Christ :

16 By whom all the body being coupled and knit together by every joint, for the furniture

¹ The apostles were those twelve, unto whom Paul ■■ afterward added, whose office ■■ to plant churches throughout all the world.

■ The prophet's office was one of the chiefest, which were ■■ of ■■ marvellous wisdom, and some of them could foretel things to come.

ⁿ These the apostles used ■■ fellows in the execution of their office, being not able to answer all places themselves.

^o Pastors are they which govern the church, and teachers are they which govern the schools.

⁷ He sheweth the end of ecclesiastical functions, to wit, that by the ministry of men all the saints may so grow up together, that they may make one mystical body of Christ.

■ The church.

■ The use of this ministry is perpetual, so long ■■ we ■■ in this world, that is, until that time that having put off the flesh, and thoroughly and perfectly agreeing betwixt ourselves, we shall be joined with Christ our head. Which thing is done by that knowledge of the Son of God increasing in us, and he himself by little and little growing up in us, until we come ■■ be ■■ perfect man, which shall be in the world to come, when God shall be all in all.

■ In that most near conjunction which is knit and fastened together by faith.

■ Christ is said ■■ grow up to full age, not in himself, but in us.

■ Betwixt ■■ childhood (that is to say, ■ very weak state, while as yet ■■ do altogether waver) and our perfect age, which ■■ shall have ■■ length in another world, there is a mean, ■ wit, our youth, and steady going forward to perfection.

¹⁰ He compareth them, which rest not themselves upon the word of God, ■ little boats which ■■ tossed hither and thither with the doctrines of men, as it were, with contrary winds, and therewithal forewarneth them that it cometh ■■ pass not only by the lightness of man's brain, but also by the craftiness of certain, which make as it ■■ an art of it.

■ With those uncertain chances which toss men to and fro.

■ By the deceit of those men which are very well practised in deceiving of others.

■ By earnest affection of the truth and love, ■■ grow up into Christ: for he (being effectual by the ministry of his word, which as the vital spirit doth so quicken the whole body, that it nourisheth all the limbs thereof according to the measure and proportion of each one) quickeneth and cherisheth his church, which consisteth of divers functions, as of divers members, and preserveth the proportion of every ■■. And therefore it followeth that neither this body can live without Christ, neither can any man grow up spiritually, which separateth himself from the other members.

A. D. 64. ¹⁴ part according to the ² effectual power which is in the measure of every part, receiveth ² increase of the body, unto the edifying of itself in love.

17 ² This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as ² other Gentiles walk, in ² vanity of their mind,

18 Having their understanding darkened, and being strangers from the ² life of God, through the ignorance that is in them, because of the hardness of their heart:

19 Which being ² past feeling, have given themselves unto wantonness, to work all uncleanness, even with ² greediness.

20 ² But ye have not so learned Christ,

21 If so be ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, ² as the truth is in Jesus,

22 ² That is, that ye cast off concerning the conversation in time past, ² that old man, which is corrupt through the deceivable lusts,

23 And be renewed in the ² spirit of your mind,

24 And put on the new man, which ² after God is created ² unto righteousness, and ² true holiness.

25 ² Wherefore cast off lying, and speak every man truth unto his neighbour: for we are members one of another.

26 ² Be ² angry, but sin not: let not the sun go down ² upon your wrath, 27 Neither give place to the devil.

28 ² Let him that stole, steal no more: but let him rather labour, and work with his hands, the thing which is ² good, that he may have to give unto him that needeth.

29 ² Let no ² corrupt communication proceed out of your mouths: but that which ² is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister ² grace unto the hearers:

30 ² And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, by whom ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.

31 Let all bitterness, and anger, and wrath, crying, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all maliciousness.

32 Be ye courteous one to another, and tender-hearted, freely forgiving one another, even as God, for Christ's sake, freely forgave you.

CHAPTER V.

3 Left in these vices which he reprehended, they should set light by his admonitions, 5 he terrifieth them by denouncing severe judgments, 8 and stirreth them forward. 15 Then he descendeth from general lessons of manners, 21 to the particular duties of wives, 25 and husbands.

BE ye therefore followers of God, as dear children,

2 ² And walk in love, even as Christ hath ² loved us, and hath given himself for us, to be ² an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling ² savour to God.

3 ² But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as it becometh saints,

4 Neither filthiness, neither foolish talking, neither ² jesting, which are things not comely, but rather giving of thanks.

5 ² For this ye know, that no whoremonger, neither unclean person, nor covetous person, which ² Of Christ, who in manner of the soul, quickeneth all the members.

² Such increase as is meet the body should have.

² Charity is the knitting of the limbs together.

² He descendeth to the fruits of Christian doctrine, and reasoneth first upon the principles of manners and actions, setting down ² most grave comparison between the children of God, and them which are not regenerate: For in these men, all the powers of the mind are corrupted, and their mind is given to vanity, and their senses are darkened with most gross mistiness, and their affections are so accustomed by little and little to wickedness, that at length they run headlong into all uncleanness, being utterly destitute of all judgment.

² If the noblest parts of the soul be corrupted, what is man but corruption only?

² Whereby God liveth in them.

² Void of all judgment.

² They strove to pais one another, as though there had been some gain to be gotten by it.

² Here followeth the contrary part, touching men which are regenerate by the true and lively knowledge of Christ, which have other principles of their doings far different, ² wit, holy and honest desires, and ² mind clean changed by the virtue of the Holy Ghost, from whence proceed also like effects, as a just and holy life indeed.

² As they have learned, which acknowledge Christ indeed, and in good earnest.

² Yourselves.

² Where there ought to have been the greatest force of reason, there is the greatest corruption of all which wasteth all things.

² After the image of God.

² The effect and end of the new creation.

² Not feigned nor counterfeit.

² He commendeth severally certain peculiar Christian virtues, and first of all, he requireth truth, (that is to say, sincere manners) condemning all deceit and dissembling, because we are born ² for another.

² He teacheth us how to bridle our anger, in such sort, that although it be hot, yet that it break ² out, and that it be straightways quenched before ² sleep, lest Satan taking occasion to give us evil counsel, through that wicked counsellor, destroy us.

² If it so fall out that ye be angry, yet sin not: that is, bridle your anger, and do not wickedly put that in execution, which you have wickedly conceived.

² Let not the night come upon you in your anger, that is, make an atonement quickly for all matters.

² He descendeth from the heart to the hands, condemning their: and because the men which give themselves to this wickedness, use to pretend poverty, he sheweth that labour is a good remedy against poverty, which God blesteth in such sort, that they which labour have always some overplus to help other, so far is it from this, that they are constrained to steal other men's goods.

² By labouring in things that are holy, and profitable to his neighbour.

² He bridleth the tongue also, teaching us so to temper our talk, that our hearers minds be not only not destroyed, but also instructed.

² Word for word, rotten.

² By grace, he meaneth that whereby men may profit to the going ² forward in godliness and love.

² A general precept against all excess of affections which dwell in that part of the mind, which they call, angry, and he setteth against them the contrary means. And useth a most vehement preface, how we ought to take heed that we grieve not the Holy Spirit of God through our immoderateness and intemperancy, who dwelleth in us, to this end, to moderate all ² affections.

² An argument taken from the example of Christ, most grave and vehement, both for pardoning of those injuries which have been done unto us by our greatest enemies, and much more for having consideration of the miserable, and using moderation and gentle behaviour towards all men.

² Now he cometh ² another kind of affections, which is in that part of the mind, which ² call covetous or desirous: and he reprehendeth fornication, covetousness and jesting, very sharply.

² Jest which men cast one at another: that no lightness be seen, nor evil example given, nor any offence moved by evil words or backbiting.

² Because these sins ² such, that the most part of men count them not for sins, he awaketh the godly to the end they should so much the more take heed to themselves from them, as most hurtful plagues.

6 * Let no man deceive you with vain words: for, for such things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience.

7 ¹ Be not therefore companions with them:

8 For ye were once darkness, but are now ^c light in the Lord: walk as children of light

12 For it is shame even to speak of the things which are done of them in secret.

13 But all things when they are reprov'd of the light, are manifest: for it is light that maketh all things manifest.

14 Wherefore ^f he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and stand up from the ^g dead, and Christ shall give thee light.

15 ^h Take heed therefore that ye walk cir- cumspectly, not as fools, but as ⁱ wise, 16 ^j Redeeming the season: for the ^k days are evil.

^b A bondslave to idolatry, for the covetous thinketh that his life standeth in his goods.

^c Because we are not so ready to any thing, as to follow evil examples, therefore the apostle warneth the godly remember always, that the other are, but as it were darkness, and that they themselves are as it were light. And therefore the others commit all villainies (as men are wont in the dark) but they ought not only not to follow their examples, but also (as the property of the light is) reprove their darkness, and to walk so, having Christ that true light going before them, as it becometh wise men.

^d The faithful called light, both because they have the true light in them which lighteneth them, and also because they give light to others, insomuch that their honest conversation reproveth the life of wicked men.

^e By whose force we were made light in the Lord.

^f Make them open to all the world, by your good life.

^g The scriptures, or God in the scripture.

^h He speaketh of the death of sin.

ⁱ The worse and more corrupt that the manner of this world are, the more watchful ought we to be against all occasions, and respect nothing but the will of God.

^j This is a metaphor taken from the merchants: who prefer the least profit that may be before all their pleasures.

^k The times troublesome and sharp.

^l He setteth the sober and holy assemblies of the faithful, against the dissolute banquets of the unfaithful, in which the praises of the only Lord must ring, be it in prosperity or adversity.

^m All kind of riot, joined with all manner of filthiness and shamefulness.

ⁿ With earnest affection of the heart, and not with the tongue only.

^o A short repetition of the end whereunto all things ought to be referred, to serve another for God's sake.

^p Now he descendeth to a family, dividing orderly all the parts of a family. And he saith, that the duty of wives consisteth herein, to be obedient to their husbands.

^q The first argument, for they cannot be disobedient to their husbands, but they must resist God also, who is the author of this subjection.

^r A declaration of the former saying: because God hath made the man head of the woman in matrimony, as Christ is the head of the church.

^s Another argument: because the good estate of the wife dependeth of the man, so that this submission is not only just, but also very profitable: also the salvation of the church is of Christ, although far otherwise.

^t The conclusion of the wives duty towards their husbands.

^u The husbands duty towards their wives, is to love them as themselves, of which love, the love of Christ toward his church is a lively pattern.

^v Because many pretend the infirmities of their wives to excuse their hardness and cruelty, the apostle will- eth us to mark what of church Christ gat, when he joined it to himself, and how he doth not only loath all her filth, and uncleannesse, but ceaseth not to wipe the same away with his cleanness, until he wholly purged it.

^w Make it holy.

^x Through the promise of free justification and sanctifi- cation in Christ, received by faith.

^y The church, as it is considered in itself, shall not be without wrinkle, before it come to the mark it shooteth at: for while it is in this life, it runneth in a race: but if it be considered in Christ, it is clean and without wrinkle.

^z Another argument: Every man loveth himself, even of nature, therefore he striveth against nature that loveth his wife: he proveth the consequence, first, by the my- tical knitting of Christ and the church together, and then by the ordinance of God, who saith that man and wife shall be one, that is, not to be divided.

^{aa} His own body.

^{ab} He alludeth to the making of the woman, which sig- nifieth our coupling together with Christ, which is wrought by faith, but is sealed by the sacrament of the supper.

^{ac} Look Matt. 15. 5.

^{ad} That might dream of natural conjunction, or knitting of Christ and his church together (such the husbands and the wives is) he sheweth that it is secret, to wit, spiritual, and such far differeth from the common capacity of as which consisteth by the virtue of the Spirit, and of the flesh, by faith and by no natural band.

^{ae} The conclusion both of the husband's duty towards his wife, and of the wife's towards her husband.

64. 1 He sheweth the duties of children, 5 servants, 9 and masters. 10 Then he speaketh of the fierce battle that the faithful have, 12 and what weapons we may use in the same. 21 In the end he commendeth Tychicus.

Children, ¹ obey your parents ² in the Lord: ³ for this is right.

2 ⁴ Honour thy father and mother (which is the first commandment with ⁵ promise)

3 That it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest live long on earth.

4 ⁶ And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in instruction and ⁷ information of the Lord.

5 ⁸ Servants, be obedient unto them that are your masters, ⁹ according to the flesh, with ¹⁰ fear and trembling, ¹¹ in singleness of your hearts, as unto Christ:

6 Not with service to the eye, as men pleasers, but as the servants of Christ, ⁷ doing the will of God from the heart,

7 With good will, serving the ⁸ Lord, and not men.

8 ⁹ And know ye, that whatsoever good thing any man doth, that same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.

9 ¹⁰ And ye masters, do the same things unto them, putting away threatening: and know that even your master also is in heaven, neither is there ¹¹ respect of person with him.

10 ¹² Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the assaults of the devil.

12 ¹³ For we wrestle not against flesh and ¹⁴ blood, but against ¹⁵ principalities, against powers, and against the worldly governors, the princes of the darkness of this world, against

¹ He cometh to another part of a family, and sheweth that the duty of the children toward their parents, consisteth in obedience unto them.

² The first argument: because God hath so appointed: whereupon it followeth also that children are so far forth bound to obey their parents, ³ they may not swerve from the true worship of God.

⁴ For the Lord is author of all fatherhood, and therefore we must yield such obedience as he will have us.

⁵ The second argument: Because this obedience is most just.

⁶ A proof of the first argument.

⁷ The third argument: taken of the profit that ensueth thereby: Because the Lord vouchsafed this commandment amongst all the rest, of a special blessing.

⁸ With a special promise: for otherwise the second commandment hath a promise of mercy to a thousand generations, but that promise is general.

⁹ It is the duty of fathers to use their fatherly authority moderately and to God's glory.

¹⁰ Such information and precepts as, being taken out of God's book, are holy and acceptable in him.

¹¹ Now he descendeth to the third part of a family, ¹² wit, to the duty both of the masters and of the servants. And he sheweth that the duty of servants consisteth in a hearty love and reverence to their masters.

¹³ He mitigateth the sharpness of service, in that they are spiritually free notwithstanding the same, and yet that spiritual freedom taketh not away corporal service: inasmuch that they cannot be Christ's, unless they serve their masters willingly and faithfully, so far forth ¹⁴ they may with safe conscience.

¹⁵ With careful reverence, for slavish fear is ¹⁶ allowable, much less in Christian servants.

¹⁷ To cut off occasion of all pretences, he teacheth us that it is God's will, that some are either born or made servants, and therefore they must respect God's will, although their service be never so hard.

¹⁸ Being moved with a reverence to God-ward, ¹⁹ though ye served God himself.

²⁰ Although they serve unkind and cruel masters, yet spiritual wickednesses, which are in the high ²¹ places. A. D. 64.

13 ²² For this cause take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to resist in the ²³ evil day, and having finished all things, stand fast.

14 Stand therefore, and your loins girded about with verity, and having on the breast-plate of righteousness,

15 And your feet shod with the ¹⁶ preparation of the gospel of peace:

16 Above all, take the shield of faith, wherewith ye may quench all the fiery darts of the wicked, 17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

18 And pray always with all manner prayer and supplication in the ¹⁹ Spirit: and watch thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints,

19 And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly to publish the secret of the gospel, 20 Whereof I am the ambassador in bonds, that therein I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.

21 ¶ ²¹ But that ye may also know mine affairs, and what I do, Tychicus my dear brother and faithful minister in the Lord, shall shew you of all things, 22 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that ye might know mine affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be with the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Grace be with all them which love our Lord Jesus Christ to their immortality. Amen.

¶ Written from Rome unto the Ephesians, and sent by Tychicus. The the obedience of servants is no less acceptable to God, than the obedience of them that are free.

²² It is the duty of masters, to use the authority that they have over their servants modestly and holily, seeing that they in another respect have a ²³ master, which is in heaven, who will judge both the bond and the free.

²⁴ Either of freedom or bondage.

²⁵ He concludeth the other part of this epistle, with a grave exhortation, that all be ready and fight constantly, truiting to spiritual weapons, until their enemies be clean put to flight. And first of all, he warneth us to take the armour of God, wherewith only our enemy may be dispatched.

²⁶ Secondly, he declareth that our chiefest and mightiest enemies ²⁷ invisible, that we may not think that our chiefest conflict is with men.

²⁸ Against men, which ²⁹ are of a frail and brittle nature, against which are set spiritual subtilties, more mighty than the other by a thousand parts.

³⁰ He giveth the ³¹ names of the evil angels, by reason of the effects which they work: not that they are able to do the same of themselves, but because God giveth them the bridle.

³² He sheweth that these enemies are put to flight with the only armour of God, ³³ wit, with uprightnes of conscience, ³⁴ godly and holy life, knowledge of the gospel, faith, and ³⁵ be short, with the word of God, and using daily earnest prayer for the health of the church, and especially for the constancy of the true, godly, and valiant ministers of the word.

³⁶ Look chap. 5. 16.

³⁷ That the preparation of the gospel may be as it were shoes to you: and it is very fitly called the gospel of peace, for that, seeing we have ³⁸ go in God through most dangerous ranks of enemies, this may encourage ³⁹ us to go on manfully, in that we know by the doctrine of the gospel, that we may take our journey in God who is at peace with us.

⁴⁰ That holy prayers may proceed from the holy Spirit.

⁴¹ A familiar and very amiable declaration of his state, together with a solemn prayer, wherewith Paul is wont to end his epistles.

The Epistle of PAUL to the PHILIPPIANS.

CHAP. I.

A. D.
64.

3 Having testified his godly and tender affection towards the Philippians, 12 he intreateth of himself, and his bonds: 22 And pricketh them forward by his own example, 27 and exhorteth them to unity, 28 and patience.

PAUL¹ and Timotheus, the servants of Jesus Christ, to all the saints in Christ Jesus, which are at Philippi, with the² bishops and deacons:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thank my God, having you in perfect memory

4 (Always in all my prayers for all you, praying with gladness),

5 Because of the³ fellowship which ye have in the gospel, from the⁴ first day unto now.

6 And I am persuaded of this same thing, that he that hath begun this good work in you, will perform it until the⁵ day of Jesus Christ:

7 As it becometh me so to judge of you all, because I have you in remembrance, that both in my⁶ bands, and in my defence and confirmation of the gospel, you all were partakers of my⁷ grace.

8⁸ For God is my record, how I long after you all from the very heart root in Jesus Christ.

9⁹ And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge, and in all judgment,

10 That ye may allow those things which are best: that ye may be pure, and without offence, until the day of Christ, 11 Filled with the¹⁰ fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God.

12 ¶¹¹ I would ye understood, brethren, that the things which have come unto me, are turned rather to the furthering of the gospel,

13 So that my bands¹¹ in Christ are famous throughout all the¹² judgment-hall, and in all other places, 14 Insomuch that many of the brethren in the Lord are boldened through my bands, and dare more frankly speak the¹³ word.

15 Some preach Christ even through envy and strife, and some also of good will.

16 The one part preacheth Christ of contention and not¹⁴ purely, supposing to add more afflictions to my bands:

17 But the others of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel.

18¹⁵ What then? yet Christ is preached all manner of ways, whether it be under a¹⁵ pretence, or sincerely: and I therein joy: yea, and will joy.

19 For I know that this shall turn to my salvation through your prayer, and by the help of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, 20¹⁶ As I fervently look for, and hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but that with all confidence, as always, so now, Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death.

21 For Christ is to me both in life, and in death advantage.

22¹⁷ And whether to live in the¹⁶ flesh were profitable for me, and what to chuse I know not.

23 For I am distressed between both, desiring to be loosed, and to be with Christ, which is best of all.

24 Nevertheless, to abide in the flesh, is more needful for you.

25 And this am I sure of, that I shall abide, and with you all continue, for your furtherance and joy of your faith, 26 That ye may more abundantly rejoice in Jesus Christ for me, by my coming to you again.

A. D.
64.

¹ The mark whereat he shootheth in this epistle, is to confirm the Philippians, by all means possible, not only not to faint, but also to go forward. And first of all, he commendeth their former doings, to exhort them to go forward: which thing he saith, he hopeth fully they will do, and that by the testimony of their lively charity, but in the mean season he referreth all things to the grace of God.

² By the bishops ■■■ meant both the pastors, which have the dispensation of the word, and the elders that govern: and by deacons, are meant those that were stewards of the treasury of the church, and had to look unto the poor.

³ Because that you also are made partakers of the gospel.

⁴ Ever since I knew you.

⁵ The Spirit of God will not forsake you unto the very latter end, until your mortal bodies shall appear before the judgment of Christ ■ be glorified.

⁶ A true proof of a true knitting together with Christ.

⁷ He calleth his bands grace, as though he had received some singular benefit.

⁸ He declareth his good will towards them, therewithal shewing by what means chiefly they may be confirmed, ■ wit, by continual prayer.

⁹ He sheweth what thing we ought chiefly desire, ■ wit, first of all that we may increase in the true knowledge of God, (so that we may be able to discern things that differ one from another) and also in charity, that even to the end we may give ourselves to good works indeed, to the glory of God by Jesus Christ.

¹⁰ If righteousness be the tree, and good works the fruits, then must the Papists needs be deceived, when they say that works are the cause of righteousness.

¹¹ He preventeth the offence that might come by his persecution, whereby divers took occasion to disgrace his apostleship. To whom he answereth, that God hath blessed his imprisonment in such wise, that he is by that means become more famous, and the dignity of the gospel, by this occasion, is greatly enlarged, although not with like affection in all men, yet in deed.

¹² For Christ's sake.

¹³ In the emperor's-court.

¹⁴ The gospel is called the word, to set forth the excellency of it.

¹⁵ Not with ■ pure mind, for otherwise their doctrine was pure.

¹⁶ He sheweth, by setting forth his own example, that the end of our afflictions is true joy, and that through the virtue of the Spirit of Christ, which he giveth ■ them that ask it.

¹⁷ Under ■ godly colour and shew: for they made Christ a colour for their ambition and envy.

¹⁸ We must continue ■■ to the end, with great confidence, having nothing before ■■ eyes but Christ's glory only, whether we live ■ die.

¹⁹ An example of ■ true shepherd, who maketh more account how he may profit his sheep, than he doth of any commodity of his own whatsoever.

²⁰ To live in this mortal body.

27 Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ, that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your matters, that ye continue in one spirit, and in one mind, fighting together through the faith of the gospel.

28 And in nothing fear your adversaries, which is to them a token of perdition, and to you of salvation, and that of God.

29 For unto you it is given for Christ, that not only ye should believe in him, but also suffer for his sake, 30 Having the same fight which ye saw in me, and now hear to be in me.

CHAP. II.

He exhorteth them above all things to humility, 6 and that by the example of Christ. 19 He promiseth to send Timotheus shortly unto them, 26 and excuseth the long tarrying of Epaphroditus.

If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any compassion and mercy,

2 Fulfil my joy, that ye be like minded, having the same love, being of one accord, and of one judgment,

3 That nothing be done through contention or vain glory, but that in meekness of mind every man esteem other better than himself.

4 Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of other men.

5 Let the same mind be in you that was even in Christ Jesus,

6 Who being in the form of God, thought it no robbery to be equal with God:

7 But he made himself of no reputation, and took on him the form of a servant, and was made like unto men, and was found in shape as a man.

8 He humbled himself, and became obedient unto the death, even the death of the cross.

9 Wherefore God hath also highly exalted him, and given him a name above every name,

10 That at the name of Jesus should every knee bow, both of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth, 11 And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is the Lord, unto the glory of God the Father.

12 Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed me, not as in my presence only, but now much more in mine absence: so make an end of your own salvation with fear and trembling.

13 For it is God which worketh in you both the will and the deed, even of his good pleasure.

14 Do all things without murmuring and reasonings,

15 That ye may be blameless, and pure, and the sons of God, without rebuke in the midst of a naughty and crooked nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world,

16 Holding forth the word of life, that I may rejoice in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, neither have laboured in vain.

17 Yea and though I be offered up upon the sacrifice and service of your faith, I am glad and rejoice with you all.

18 For the same cause also be ye glad, and rejoice with me.

19 And

Having set down those things before in manner of a preface, he descendeth now to exhortations, warning them first of all, to consent both in doctrine and mind, and afterwards, that being thus knit together with those common bands, they continue through the strength of faith to bear all adversity in such sort, that they admit nothing unworthy the profession of the gospel.

The word signifieth to stand fast, and it is proper to wrestlers, that stand fast and shrink not a foot.

We ought not to be discouraged, but rather encouraged by the persecutions which the enemies of the gospel imagine and practise against us: seeing that they are certain witnesses from God himself, both of our salvation, and of the destruction of the wicked.

He proveth that his saying, that persecution is a token of our salvation, because it is a gift of God to suffer for Christ, which gift he bestoweth upon his own, as he doth the gift of faith.

Now he sheweth for what purpose he made mention of his afflictions.

A most earnest request to remove all those things whereby that great and special consent and agreement is commonly broken, to wit, contention and pride, whereby it cometh to pass that they separate themselves from another.

- Any Christian comfort.
If any feeling of inward love.
Like love.

He setteth before them a most perfect example of modesty and sweet conversation, Christ Jesus, whom we ought to follow with all our might: who abased himself so far for our sakes, although he be above all, that he took upon him the form of a servant, wit, our flesh, willingly subject to all infirmities, and the death of the cross.

Such God himself is, and therefore God, for there is in all parts like God, but God himself.

Christ that glorious and everlasting God knew that he might rightfully and lawfully appear in the base flesh of man, but remain with majesty for God: yet he chose rather to debase himself.

If the Son be equal with the Father, then is there of necessity equality, which Arius that heretic denieth: and if the Son be compared to the Father, then is there distinction of persons, which Sabellius that heretic denieth.

He brought himself from all things, as it were to nothing.

By taking our manhood upon him.

He sheweth the most glorious event of Christ's submission, to teach us that modesty is the true way to praise and glory.

Dignity and renown, and the matter with it.
All creatures shall at length be subject to Christ.

Every nation.

The conclusion: We must go on to salvation with humility and submission, by the way of our vocation.

He is said to make an end of his salvation, which runneth in the stream of righteousness.

A most sure and grounded argument against pride, for that we have nothing in us praiseworthy, but it cometh of the free gift of God, and is without us; for we have no ability or power, so much as to will well, (much less do well) but only of the free mercy of God.

Why then? stocks, but yet we do not will well of nature, but only because God hath made of our naughty will a good will.

He describeth modesty by the contrary effects of pride, teaching us, that it is far both from all malicious and close inward hatred, and also from open contentions and brawlings.

To be short, he requireth a life without fault, and pure, that being lightened with the word of God, they may shine in the darkness of this world.

The gospel is called the word of life, because of the effects which it worketh.

Again he pricketh them forward, setting before them his true apostolic care that he had of them: comforting them moreover, in the end they should not be sorry for the greatness of his afflictions, although he should die to make perfect their oblation with his blood, as it were with a drink-offering.

As if he said, I brought you Philippians to Christ, my desire is that you present yourselves lively sacrifice to him, and then shall it not grieve me to be offered up a drink-offering, to accomplish this your spiritual offering.

A. D. 64. 15 Let us therefore as many as be perfect, be thus minded: and if ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even the same unto you.

16 Nevertheless, in that whereunto we are come, let us proceed by one rule, that we may mind one thing.

17 Brethren, be followers of me, and look on them which walk so, as ye have us for an example.

R. m. 15. 18 For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ:

19 Whose end is damnation, whose god is their belly, and whose glory is to their shame, which mind earthly things.

1 Cor. 1. 20 But our conversation is in heaven, from whence also we look for the Saviour, even the Lord Jesus Christ, 21 Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working, whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.

CHAP. IV.

1 From particular exhortations, 4 he cometh to general. 10 He saith that he took such joy in their readiness to liberality, 12 that he will patiently bear the want.

Therefore, my brethren, beloved and longed for, my joy and my crown, so continue in the Lord, ye beloved.

2 I pray Euodias, and beseech Syntyche, that they be of one accord in the Lord.

3 Yea, and I beseech thee, faithful yoke-fellow; help those women which laboured with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and with other my fellow-labourers, whose names are in the book of life.

4 Rejoice in the Lord always, again I say, Rejoice.

The conclusion of his exhortation standing upon three members: The one is, that such as have profited in the truth of this doctrine, should continue in it. The second is, that if there be any which are yet ignorant, and understand not the things, and doubt of the abolishing of the law, they should cause no trouble, and should be gently borne withal, until they also be instructed of the Lord. The third is, that they esteem the false apostles by their fruits: wherein he doubteth not to set forth himself for an example.

He said before that he was not perfect. So that in this place he calleth them perfect, which have somewhat profited in the knowledge of Christ and the gospel, whom he setteth against the rude and ignorant, as he expoundeth himself in the next verse following.

He painteth out the false apostles in their colours, not upon malice or ambition, but with sorrow and tears, to wit, because that being enemies of the gospel (for that is joined with affliction) they regard nothing else, but the commodities of this life: that is to say, that flowing in peace and quietness, and all worldly pleasures, they may live in great estimation amongst men, whose miserable end he forewarned them of.

Reward.

Which they hunt after at men's hands.

He setteth against these fellows; true passions which neglect earthly things, and aspire to heaven only, where they know, that even in their bodies they shall be clothed with that eternal glory, by the virtue of God.

A rehearsal of the conclusion: That they manfully continue until they have gotten the victory, trusting to the Lord's strength.

Mine honour.

In that concord, whereof the Lord is the band.

He also calleth on some by name, partly because they needed private exhortation, and partly also to stir up others to be more prompt and ready.

God is said, after the manner of men, to have a book wherein the names of his elect are written, to whom he will give everlasting life, Ezekiel calleth it the writing of the house of Israel, and the secret of the Lord, chap. 13. 9.

He addeth particular exhortations: the first is, that the joy of the Philippians be not hindered by any afflictions that the wicked imagine and work against them.

5 Let your patient mind be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand.

6 Be nothing careful, but in all things let your requests be shewed unto God in prayer and supplication, with giving of thanks.

7 And the peace of God which passeth all understanding, shall preserve your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

8 Furthermore, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are worthy love, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, or if there be any praise, think of these things,

9 Which ye have both learned and received, and heard, and seen in me: those things do, and the gospel of peace shall be with you.

10 Now I rejoice also in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care for me springeth afresh, wherein notwithstanding ye were careful, but yet lacked opportunity.

11 I speak not because of want: for I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content.

12 And I can be abased; and I can abound: every where in all things I am instructed, both to be full, and to be hungry, and to abound, and to have want.

13 I am able to do all things through the help of Christ, which strengtheneth me.

14 Notwithstanding ye have well done, that ye did communicate to mine affliction.

15 And ye Philippians, know also, that in the beginning of the gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no church communicated with me, concerning the matter of giving and receiving, but ye only.

16 For

So is the joy of the Lord distinguished from our joy.

The second is, that taking all things in good part, they behave themselves moderately with all men.

Your quiet and settled mind.

The taking away an objection: We must not be disquieted through impatience, seeing that God is at hand to give us remedy in time against all our miseries.

The third is, that we be not too careful for any thing, but with sure confidence give God thanks, and crave of him whatsoever we have need of, that with quiet conscience we may wholly and with all our hearts submit ourselves to him.

So David began very often with tears, but ended with thanksgiving.

That great quietness of mind which God only giveth in Christ.

He divideth the mind into the heart, that is, into that part which is the seat of the will and affections, and into the higher part whereby we understand and reason of matters.

A general conclusion, that they have been taught both in word and example, so they frame their lives the rule of all holiness and righteousness.

Whatsoever things are such as do beautify and set you out with a holy gravity.

He witnesseth that their liberality was acceptable to him, wherewith they did help him in his extreme poverty: but yet so moderating his words, that he might declare himself void of all suspicion of dishonesty, and that he hath a mind contented both with prosperity and adversity, and to be short, that he reposeth himself in the only will of God.

As though I passed for my want.

He useth a general word, and yet he speaketh but of one kind of cross, which is poverty, for commonly poverty bringeth all kinds of discommodity with it.

This is a metaphor taken from holy things, or sacrifices, for our life is like a sacrifice.

He witnesseth that he remembereth also their former benefits, and again putteth away sinister suspicion of immoderate desire, in that that he received nought of any else.

At the beginning, when I preached the gospel amongst you.

A. D. 64. 16 For even when I was in Thessalonica, ye sent once and afterward again for my necessity:

17 ¹⁰ Not that I desire a gift: but I desire the fruit which may further your reckoning:

18 Now I have received all, and have plenty: I was even filled, after that I had received of Epaphroditus that which came from you, an odour that smelleth sweet, ■ sacrifice acceptable and pleasant to God.

19 And my God shall fulfil all your necessities, through his riches, with glory in Jesus Christ.

■ He witnesseth again, that he alloweth well of their benefit, not so much for his own sake, ■ for theirs, because they gave it not so much to him, as they offered it to God ■ sacrifice, whereof the Lord himself will not be forget-

20 Unto God even our Father be praise for evermore. Amen. A. D. 64.

23 If ye continue grounded and stablished in the faith, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel, whereof ye have heard, and which hath been preached to every creature which is under the heaven, whereof I Paul am a minister.

24 Now rejoice I in my sufferings for you, and fulfil the rest of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh for his body's sake, which is the church:

25 Whereof I am a minister, according to the dispensation of God which is given me unto you-ward, to fulfil the word of God,

26 Which is the mystery hid since the world began, and from all ages, but now is made manifest unto his saints,

27 To whom God would make known what is the riches of his glorious mystery among the Gentiles, which riches is Christ in you, the hope of glory.

28 Whom we preach, admonishing every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus.

29 Whereunto I also labour and strive, according to his working which worketh in me mightily.

CHAP. II.

He condemneth, as vain, whatsoever is without Christ, 11 intreating specially of circumcision, 16 of abstinence from meats, 18 and of worshiping of angels. 20 That we are delivered from the traditions of the law through Christ.

FOR I would ye knew what great fighting I have for your sakes, and for them of Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my person in the flesh;

2 That their hearts might be comforted, and they knit together in love, and in all riches of the full assurance of understanding, to know the mystery of God, even the Father, and of Christ:

3 In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

4 And this I say, lest any man should beguile you with enticing words.

5 For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, rejoicing and beholding your order, and your steadfast faith in Christ.

6 As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in him,

7 Rooted and built in him, and stablished in the Having gloriously declared the excellent dignity of the person of Christ, he describeth his office and function, to wit, that he is that same to the church, that the head is to the body, that is to say, the prince and governor of it, and the very beginning of true life, as who rising first from death is the author of eternal life, so that he is above all, in whom only there is most plentiful abundance of all good things, which is poured out upon the church.

Who so rose again that he should die no more, and who raiseth others from death to life by his power.

Most plentiful abundance of all things pertaining to God.

Now he teacheth how Christ executed that office which his Father enjoined him, to wit, by suffering the death of the cross (which was joined with the curse of God) according to his decree, that by this sacrifice he might reconcile to his Father all men, well them which believed in him to come, and were already under this hope gathered into heaven, as them which should upon the earth believe in him afterward. And thus is justification described of the apostle, which is one and the chiefest part of the benefit of Christ.

The whole church.

Sanctification is another work of God in us by Christ, in that that he restored us (which hated God extremely, and were wholly and willingly given to sin) to his gracious favour in such sort, that he therewithal purifieth us with his Holy Spirit, and consecrateth us to righteousness.

The Son.

In that fleshly body, to give us to understand that his body was not fantastical body, but a true body.

The second treatise of this part of the epistle, wherein he exhorteth the Colossians not to suffer themselves by any means to be moved from this doctrine, shewing and declaring that there is where any other true gospel.

To all men: whereby we learn that the gospel was not shut up within the corners of Judea alone.

He purchaseth authority to this doctrine by his apostleship, and taketh most sure proof thereof, of his afflictions, which he suffereth for Christ's name, to instruct the churches with these examples of patience

For your profit and commodity.

The afflictions of the church are said to be Christ's afflictions, by reason of that fellowship and knitting together that the body and the head have, the one with the other: not that there is any more need to have the church redeemed, but that Christ sheweth his power in the daily weakness of his, and that for the comfort of the whole body.

He bringeth another proof of his apostleship, to wit, that God is the author of it, by whom also he was appointed peculiarly apostle of the Gentiles, to the end that by this means, that the same might be fulfilled by him, which the prophets foretold by the calling of the Gentiles.

Whom he chose to sanctify unto himself in Christ: moreover he saith, that the mystery of our redemption was hidden since the world began, except it were revealed unto a few, who also were taught it extraordinarily.

Thus Paul bridleth the curiosity of men.

He protesteth that he doth faithfully execute his apostleship in every place, bringing men unto Christ only through the Lord's plentiful blessing of his labours.

Perfect and sound wisdom, which is perfect in itself, and shall in the end make them perfect that follow it.

The taking away of an objection. In that that he visited not the Colossians, nor the Laodiceans, he did it not of any negligence, but is so much the more careful for them.

Me present in body.

He concludeth shortly the sum of the former doctrine, to wit, that the whole sum of true wisdom, and most secret knowledge of God, consisteth in Christ only, and that this is the use of it touching men, that they being knit together in love, rest themselves happily in the knowledge of so great a goodness, until they come fully to enjoy it.

Whom he never saw.

Of that understanding, which bringeth forth a certain and undoubted persuasion in our minds.

There is no true wisdom without Christ.

A passing over to the treatise following, against the corruptions of Christianity.

With a framed kind of talk made to persuade.

The manner of your ecclesiastical discipline.

Doctrine.

So then Christ hangeth not upon men's traditions.

the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving.

8 Beware lest there be any man that spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, through the traditions of men, according to the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ.

9 For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily.

10 And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power.

11 In whom also ye are circumcised with circumcision made without hands, by putting off the sinful body of the flesh through the circumcision of Christ;

12 In that ye are buried with him through baptism, in whom ye are also raised up together through the faith of the operation of God, which raised him from the dead.

13 And you which were dead in sins, and in the uncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickened together with him, forgiving you all your trespasses;

Rom. 2. 29.

Rom. 6. 4. Eph. 1. 19.

Eph. 2. 1.

He bringeth all corruptions to three kinds. The first is, that which ariseth of vain and curious speculations, and yet beareth a shew of a certain subtil wisdom.

This is a word of war, and it is as much as to drive or carry away a spoil or booty.

The second, which is manifestly superstitious and vain, and standeth only upon custom and feigned inspirations.

The third kind was of them which joined the rudiments of the world (that is to say, the ceremonies of the law) with the gospel.

Principles and rules, wherewith God ruled his church, as it were under a schoolmaster.

A general confutation of all corruption is this, that that must needs be a false religion, which addeth any thing to Christ.

A reason: Because only Christ, God and man, is most perfect, and passeth far above all things, so that whosoever hath him, may require nothing more.

By these words is shewed a distinction of the natures.

This word (dwelleth) noteth out unto us the joining together of those natures, so that of God and man is one Christ.

These words set down most perfect Godhead to be in Christ.

The knitting together of God and man is substantial and essential.

Now he dealeth precisely against the third kind, that is to say, against them which urged the Jewish religion and first of all, he denieth that we have need of the circumcision of the flesh, seeing that without it, we are circumcised within by the virtue of Christ.

These many words are used to shew what the old man is, whom Paul in other places calleth the body of sin.

Look Rom. 6. 4.

The taking away of objection: We need not so much as the external sign which our fathers had, seeing that our baptism is a most effectual pledge and witness of that inward restoring and renewing.

So then all the force of the matter cometh not from the very deed done, that is to say, it is not the dipping of us into the water by minister, that maketh us to be buried with Christ, as the Papists say, that even for the very sake we become verily Christians, but it cometh from the virtue of Christ, for the apostle addeth the resurrection of Christ, and faith.

One end of baptism is the death and burial of the old man, and that by the mighty power of God only, whose virtue we lay hold on by faith, in the death and resurrection of Christ.

Through faith which cometh from God.

Another end of baptism is, that we which were dead in sin, might obtain free remission of sins and eternal life through faith in Christ who died for us.

A new argument which lieth in these few words, and it is thus: Uncircumcision was no hindrance to you, why you being justified in Christ should not obtain life, therefore you need not circumcision to the attainment of salvation.

He speaketh now more generally against the whole service of the law, and sheweth by two reasons, that it is abolished. First, to what purpose should he that hath obtained remission of all his sins in Christ, require those helps 14 And putting out the hand writing of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, he even took it out of the way, and fastened it upon the cross,

A. D. 64. Eph. 1. 15.

15 And hath spoiled the principalities and powers, and hath made shew of them openly, and hath triumphed over them in the same cross.

16 Let no man therefore condemn you in meat or drink, or in respect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days,

17 Which are but shadow of things to come: but the body is in Christ.

18 Let no man at his pleasure bear rule over you by humbleness of mind, and worshipping of angels, advancing himself in those things which he never saw, rashly puff up with his fleshly mind, 19 And holdeth not the head, whereof all the body furnished and knit together by joints and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

20 Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from of the law? Secondly, because, that if a man do rightly consider those rites, he shall find that they were so many testimonies of our guiltiness, wherby manifestly witnessed as it were by our own hand writing, that we deserved damnation. Therefore did Christ put out that hand writing by his coming, and fastening it to the cross, triumphed over all our enemies, were they never so mighty. Therefore to what end and purpose should we now use the ceremonies, as though we were still guilty of sin, and subject to the tyranny of our enemies?

Abolishing the rites and ceremonies.

Satan and his angels.

As a conqueror made he a shew of those captives, and put them to shame.

The cross was a chariot of triumph. No conqueror could have triumphed so gloriously in his chariot, as Christ did upon the cross.

The conclusion: wherein also he nameth three kinds, as the difference of days, and meats, and proveth by a new argument, that we are not bound unto them; to wit, because those things were shadows of Christ to come, but we possess him now exhibited unto us.

The body, as a thing of substance and flesh, he setteth against shadows.

He disputeth against the first kind of corruptions, and setteth down the worshipping of angels for an example: which kind of false religion he confutech, first, this way: because that they which bring in such a worship, attribute that unto themselves which is proper only to God, to wit, authority to bind men's consciences with religion; although they seem to bring in these words by humbleness of mind.

By foolish humbleness of mind: for otherwise humbleness is a virtue. For these angel-worshippers blamed such of pride as would go straight to God; and use no other under means beside Christ.

Secondly, because they rashly trust upon them for oracles those things which they neither saw nor heard, but devised of themselves.

Thirdly, because these things have no other ground whereupon they are built, but only the opinion of men, which please themselves without all measure in their own devices.

Without reason.

The fourth argument, which is of great weight: because they spoil Christ of his dignity, who only is sufficient both to nourish and also to increase his whole body.

Christ.

With the increasing which cometh from God.

Now last of all, he fighteth against the second kind of corruptions, that is to say, against mere superstitions, invented of men, which partly receive the simplicity of some with their craftiness, and partly with very foolish superstitions, and to be laughed at: as when godliness, remission of sins, or any such like virtue, is put in some certain kind of meat, and such like things, which the inventors of such rites themselves understand not, because indeed it is not. And he useth an argument of comparison. If by the death of Christ, who established a new covenant with his blood, you be delivered from those external rites wherewith it pleased the Lord to prepare the world, as it were by certain rudiments;

A. D. 64. the ordinances of the world, why, as though ye lived in the world, are ye burdened with traditions?

21 ²¹ As touch not, taste not, handle not,

22 ²² Which all perish with the using, ²² and after the commandments and doctrines of men:

23 ²³ Which things have indeed a shew of wisdom, in ²³ voluntary religion and humbleness of mind, and in ²³ not sparing the body, which are things of no value, for they pertain to the filling of the flesh.

CHAP. III.

1 Against earthly exercises, which the false apostles urged, 2 be setteth heavenly: 5 and beginneth with the mortifying of the flesh, 8 whence he draweth particular exhortations, 18 and particular duties which depend in each man's calling.

IF ye then ¹ be ¹ risen with Christ, ¹ seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God.

■ Set your affections on things which are above, and not on things which are on the earth.

3 ³ For ye are dead, ³ and your life is hid with Christ in God.

4 When Christ which is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.

rudiments, to that full knowledge of true religion, why would ye be burdened with traditions, I wot not what, as though ye were citizens of this world, that is to say, as though ye depended upon this life, and earthly things? Now this is the cause why before verse 8. he followed another order than he doth in the confutation: because he sheweth there by what degrees false religions ~~came~~ into the world, to wit, beginning ~~first~~ by ~~vain~~ speculations of the wise, after which in process of time succeeded gross superstition; against which mischiefs, the Lord set ~~in~~ length that service of the law, which some abused in like sort: but in the confutation he began with the abolishing of the law service, that he might ~~show~~ by comparison, that those false services ought much more ~~to~~ be taken away.

■ As though your felicity stood in these earthly things, and the kingdom of God ~~was~~ not rather spiritual.

■ An imitation in the person of these superstitious men, rightly expressing their nature and use of speech.

²² Another argument: The spiritual and inward kingdom of God cannot consist in these outward things, and such as perish with the using.

²¹ The third argument: Because God is not the author of these traditions, and therefore they did not bind the consciences.

²¹ Which seem indeed to be some exquisite thing, and so wise devices, as though they came from heaven.

²² Hence sprang the works of supererogation, as the Papists ~~do~~ them, that is to say, needless works, as though ~~they~~ performed more than is commanded them: which was the beginning and the very ground whereon monks merits were brought in.

²³ A lively description of monkery.

¹ Seeing they stand in meat and drink, wherein the kingdom of God doth not stand.

² Another part of this epistle, wherein he taketh occasion by reason of those vain exercises, ~~to~~ shew the duty of a Christian life: which is an ordinary thing with him, after he hath once set down the doctrine itself.

³ Our renewing or new birth, which is wrought in us by being partakers of the resurrection of Christ, is the fountain of all holiness, out of which sundry ~~are~~ or rivers do afterwards flow.

⁴ For if ~~we~~ be partakers of Christ, ~~we~~ are carried ~~in~~ it were into another life, where ~~we~~ shall neither need ~~eat~~ or drink, for we shall be like unto the angels.

5 ⁵ Mortify therefore your ⁵ members which are on the earth, fornication, uncleanness, the inordinate affection, evil concupiscence, and covetousness which is idolatry:

6 For the which things sake the wrath of God cometh on the children of disobedience.

7 Wherein ye also walked once, when ye lived in them.

8 But now put ye away even all these things, wrath, anger, malicioufness, cursed speaking, filthy speaking, out of your mouth.

9 Lye not one to another, ⁹ seeing that ye have put off the old man with his works,

10 And have put on the new, ¹⁰ which is renewed in ¹⁰ knowledge after the image of him that created him, 11 ¹¹ Where is neither Grecian nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond, free: But Christ is all, and in all things.

12 Now therefore as the elect of God, holy and beloved, ¹² put on the ¹² bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long-suffering:

13 Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have ~~in~~ quarrel to another: even ~~as~~ Christ forgave, even so do ye.

14 And above all these things put on love, which is the ¹⁴ bond of perfectness.

15 And

³ The end and mark which all the duties of Christian life shoot at, is to enter into the kingdom of heaven, and to give ourselves to those things which lead us thither, that is, to true godliness, and not to these outward and corporal things.

■ So he calleth that shew of religion which he spake of in the former chapter.

■ A reason taken of the efficient causes, and others: you are dead as touching the flesh, that is, touching the old nature which seeketh after all transitory things; and on the other side, you have begun to live according to the Spirit, therefore give yourselves to spiritual and heavenly, and not to carnal and earthly things.

⁵ The taking away of an objection: while we are yet in his world, we are subject to many miseries of this life, so that the life that is in us, is as it were hidden: yet notwithstanding we have the beginnings of life and glory, the accomplishment whereof which lieth now in Christ's and in God's hand, shall be assuredly and manifestly performed in that glorious coming of the Lord.

■ Let not your dead nature be any more effectual in you, but let your living nature be effectual. Now the force of nature is known by the motions. Therefore let the affections of the world die in you, and let the contrary motions which are spiritual, live. And he reckoneth up ~~a~~ great long scroll of vices, and their contrary virtues.

⁶ The motions and lusts that are in us, are in this place very properly called members, because that the reason and will of man corrupted, doth use them as the body doth his members.

⁷ Ufeth to come.

⁸ A definition of our new birth taken of the parts thereof, which are the putting off of the old man, that is to say, of the wickedness which is in ~~us~~ by nature, and the restoring, and repairing of the new man, that is to say, of pureness, which is given us by grace: but both of them ~~are~~ but begun in us in this present life, and by certain degrees finished, the one dying in us by little and little, and the other coming to the perfection of another life, by little and little.

¹⁰ Newness of life consisteth in knowledge which transformeth man to the image of God his maker, that is ~~to~~ say, to the sincerity and pureness of the whole soul.

¹¹ He speaketh of an effectual knowledge.

¹² He telleth them again that the gospel doth not respect those external things, but true justification and sanctification in Christ only, which have many fruits, ~~to~~ he reckoneth them up here: But commendeth two things especially, to wit, godly concord and continual study of God's word.

¹⁴ So put on, that ye never put off.

¹⁵ Those most tender affections of exceeding compassion. ■ Which bendeth and knitteth together all the duties that pass from ~~man~~ to man.

CHAP. I.

■ He therefore beginneth with thanksgiving, ⁴ to put them in mind that whatsoever was praise-worthy in them, ¹¹ it came of God's goodness: ⁸ and that they are ensamples unto others.

PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Thessalonians, which is in God our Father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ: Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

² We give God thanks always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers,

³ Without ceasing, remembering your effectual faith, and diligent love, and the patience of your hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God, even our Father:

⁴ Knowing, beloved brethren, that ye are elect of God.

⁵ For our gospel was not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance, as ye know after what manner we were among you for your sakes.

⁶ And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, and received the word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Ghost,

⁷ So that ye were as ensamples to all that believe in Macedonia, and in Achaia:

■ For from you sounded out the word of the Lord, not in Macedonia and Achaia only: but your faith also which is toward God, spread abroad in all quarters, that we need not to speak any thing:

⁹ For they themselves shew of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, ⁵ and how ye turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God,

¹⁰ And to look for his Son from heaven,

¹ An example of right Christian rejoicing, whereby also we learn, that such have great gifts in them, in two sorts bridled, to wit, if they consider that they have received all from God, and that continuance must be desired at his hands, whereunto also the whole epistle exhorteth the Thessalonians.

² He commendeth them for three special gifts, effectual faith, continual love, and patient hope: to the end they might be ashamed, being indued with such excellent gifts, not to continue in God's election.

⁴ Word for word, that your election is of God.

■ Another reason, why they ought in no wise to start back, but continue to the end, because they cannot doubt of this doctrine which hath been so many ways confirmed unto them even from heaven, as they themselves did well know.

■ Paul sheweth by two things that there followed very great fruit of his preaching, to wit, by these gifts of the Holy Ghost, and that certain assurance which was thoroughly settled in their minds, appeared by their willing bearing of the cross.

■ Another reason, because that day they embraced the gospel with great cheerfulness, insomuch that they were an example to all their neighbours: so that it should be more shame to them to faint in the mid race.

■ With joy which cometh from the Holy Ghost.

^c All the believers.

⁵ It is no true conversion to forsake idols, unless a man therewithal worship the true and living God, in Christ the only Redeemer.

whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus which delivereth us from that wrath to come. A. D. 54.

CHAP. II.

¹ He declareth how faithfully he preached the gospel unto them, ⁵ seeking neither gain, ⁶ nor praise of men: ¹⁰ and he proveth the same by their own testimony: ¹⁴ that they did courageously bear persecutions of their countrymen: ¹⁷ that he desireth very much to see them.

FOR ye yourselves know, brethren, that our entrance in unto you was not in vain,

² But even after that we had suffered before, and were shamefully entreated at Philippi (as ye know) we were bold in our God, to speak unto you the gospel of God, with much striving. ¹²

³ For our exhortation was not by deceit, nor by uncleanness, nor by guile.

⁴ But as we were allowed of God, that the gospel should be committed unto us, so we speak, not as they that please men, but God, which approveth our hearts.

⁵ Neither yet did we ever use flattering words, as ye know, nor coloured covetousness, God is record.

⁶ Neither sought we praise of men, neither of you, nor of others, when we might have been chargeable, as the apostles of Christ.

⁷ But we were gentle among you, even as a nurse cherisheth her children.

⁸ Thus being affectioned toward you, our good will was to have dealt unto you, not the gospel of God only, but also our own souls, because ye were dear unto us.

⁹ For ye remember, brethren, our labour and ¹² wrath.

¹ That which he touched before shortly concerning his apostlehip, he handleth now at large, and to that end and purpose which he spake of.

² The virtues of a true pastor are, freely without fear to preach the gospel, even in the midst of dangers.

^a Through God's gracious help.

^b To teach pure doctrine faithfully and with pure heart.

^c By any wicked and naughty kind of dealing.

^d To approve his conscience to God, being free from all flattery and covetousness.

^e Seeing there is this difference between the judgments of God, and the judgments of men, that when men chuse, they respect the qualities of those things which stand before them, but God findeth the reason of his counsel only in himself, it followeth, that seeing men are not able to think good thought, that whomsoever he first chuseth to those callings, he maketh them able, and doth not find them able. And therefore in that we were allowed of God, it hangeth upon his mercy.

^f Which liketh and alloweth of them.

⁵ To submit himself even to the basest, to win them, and to eschew all pride.

^c When I might lawfully have lived upon the expences of the church.

^f We were not rough, but easy and gentle as a nurse, that is neither ambitious nor covetous, but taketh all pains patiently as if she were a mother.

⁶ To have the flock that is committed unto him in more estimation than his own life.

^g To depart with his own right rather than to be chargeable to his sheep.

A. D. 54. and travail: for we laboured day and night, because we would not be chargeable unto any of you, and preached unto you the gospel of God.

10 ⁸ Ye are witnesses, and God also, how honestly and justly, and unblameably we behaved ourselves among you that believe:

11 ⁹ As ye know how that we exhorted you, and comforted, and besought every one of you, (as a father his children)

¹⁰ That ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory.

¹¹ For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, that when ye received the word of God, which ye heard of us, ye received it not the word of men, but as it is indeed the word of God, which also worketh in you that believe.

14 ¹² For, brethren, ye are become followers of the churches of God, which in Judea are in Christ Jesus, because ye have also suffered the same things of your own countrymen, even as they have of the Jews,

15 ¹³ Who both killed the Lord Jesus and their own prophets, and have persecuted us away, and God they please not, and are contrary to all men,

16 And forbid us to preach unto the Gentiles, that they might be saved, to fulfil their sins always: for the wrath of God is come on them to the utmost.

17 ¹⁴ Forasmuch, brethren, as we were kept from you for a season, concerning fight, but not in the heart, we enforced the more to see your face with great desire.

18 Therefore we would have come unto you (I Paul, at least once or twice) but Satan hindered us.

19 For what is our hope or joy, or crown of rejoicing? are not even you in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?

20 Yes, ye are our glory and joy.

⁸ To excel others in example of a godly life.

⁹ To exhort and comfort with a fatherly mind and affection.

¹⁰ To exhort all men diligently and earnestly to lead a godly life.

¹¹ Having approved his ministry, he commendeth again (to that end and purpose I spake of) the cheerfulness of the Thessalonians, which was answerable to his diligence in preaching, and their manly patience.

¹² He confirmeth them in their afflictions which they suffered of their people, because they were afflicted of their own countrymen: which well (saith he) the churches of the Jews, them: and therefore they ought to take it in good part.

¹³ Which Christ hath gathered together.

¹⁴ Even of them which were of the same country, and the same town that you are of.

¹⁵ He preventeth offence which might be taken, for that the Jews especially, above all others, persecuted the gospel. That is no thing, saith he, seeing they slew Christ himself, and his prophets, and have banished me also.

¹⁶ He foretelleth the utter destruction of the Jews, lest any should be moved by their rebellion.

¹⁷ For the Jews would neither enter into the kingdom of God themselves, suffer others to enter in.

¹⁸ Until that wickedness of theirs which they have by inheritance, it were, of their fathers, be grown so great, that the measure of their iniquity being filled, God may come forth to wrath.

¹⁹ The judgment of God being angry, which indeed appeared shortly after in the destruction of the city of Jeru-

C H A P. III.

A. D. 54.

1 To shew his affection toward them, he sendeth Timothy unto them: 6 he is so moved by the report of their prosperous state, 9 that he cannot give sufficient thanks, 11 and therefore he breaketh out into prayer.

Wherefore since we could no longer forbear, we thought it good to remain at Athens alone.

2 * And have sent Timotheus our brother and minister of God, and our labour-fellow in the gospel of Christ, to stablish you, and to comfort you touching your faith, ^{Act: 16. 1.}

3 That no man should be moved with these afflictions: for ye yourselves know, that we are appointed thereunto.

4 For verily when we were with you, we told you before that we should suffer tribulations, even as it came to pass, and ye know it.

5 Even for this cause, when I could no longer forbear, I sent him that I might know of your faith, lest the tempter had tempted you in any sort, and that our labour had been in vain.

6 ² But now lately when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought good tidings of your faith and love, and that ye have good remembrance of us always, desiring to see us, as we also do you;

7 Therefore, brethren, we had consolation in you, in all our affliction and necessity through your faith.

8 For now are we alive, if ye stand fast in the Lord.

9 For what thanks can we recompense to God again for you, for all the joy wherewith we rejoice for your sakes before our God,

10 Night and day, * praying exceedingly that we might see your face; and might accomplish that which is lacking in your faith. ^{Rom. 1. 10. and 15. 23.}

11 Now God himself, even our Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ; guide our journey unto you.

12 ³ And the Lord increase you, and make you salem, whither many resorted even of divers provinces when it was besieged.

¹⁵ He meeteth with an objection, why he came not to them straightways being in so great misery: I desired oftentimes (saith he) and it lay in me, but Satan hindered my endeavours, and therefore I sent Timothy my faithful companion unto you, because you are most dear.

¹⁶ Were kept asunder from you, and as it were orphans.

¹⁷ The will of God, who calleth his, this condition, to bring them to glory by affliction, is a most sure remedy against all afflictions.

¹⁸ Because they have hitherto gone so well forward, he exhorteth them again to make end of the rest of the journey, seeing that therein also they shall do him, their apostle, a great pleasure.

¹⁹ For now you cannot otherwise think me safe and in good case, unless you go forward in religion and faith.

²⁰ Paul was constrained, through the importunate dealing of the enemies, to leave the building which he had scarce begun: and for that cause he had left Silas and Timotheus in Macedonia, and when Timothy came to Athens to him, he sent him back again straightway. So that he desireth to see the Thessalonians, that he may thoroughly accomplish their faith and religion, that was as yet imperfect.

²¹ Another part of the epistle, wherein he speaketh of the duties of a Christian life. And he sheweth that the perfection of a Christian life consisteth in three things, in wit, in charity toward all men, and inward purity of the heart, the accomplishment whereof notwithstanding is deferred to the coming of Christ, who will then perfect his work by the same grace wherewith he began it in us.

A. D. 54. you abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you, 13 To make your hearts stable and unblameable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints.

C H A P. IV.

1 He exhorteth them 3 to holiness, 9 and brotherly love. 13 He forbiddeth them to sorrow after the manner of heathens. 15 He setteth out the history of our resurrection.

AND furthermore we beseech you, brethren, and exhort you in the Lord Jesus, that ye increase more and more, as ye have received of us, how ye ought to walk and to please God.

2 For ye know what commandments we gave you by the Lord Jesus.

3 For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, and that ye should abstain from fornication,

4 That every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in holiness and honour,

5 And not in the lust of concupiscence, even as the Gentiles which know not God:

6 That no man oppress or defraud his brother in any matter: for the Lord is avenger of all such things, as we also have told you beforetime and testified.

7 For God hath not called unto uncleanness, but unto holiness.

8 He therefore that despiseth these things, despiseth not man, but God, who hath even given you his holy Spirit.

9 But as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you: for ye are taught of God to love one another.

10 Yea, and that thing verily ye do unto all the brethren, which are throughout all Macedonia: but we beseech you, brethren, that ye increase more and more:

11 And that ye study to be quiet, and to meddle with your own business; and to work with your own hands, as we commanded you. A. D. 54.

12 That ye may behave yourselves honestly toward them that are without, and that nothing be lacking unto you.

13 ¶ I would not, brethren, have you ignorant concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope.

14 For if we believe that Jesus is dead, and is risen, even so them which sleep in Jesus, will God bring with him.

15 For this say we unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which live, and are remaining in the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which sleep:

16 For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, and with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: ^{1 Cor. 15. 52.}

17 Then shall we which live and remain, be caught up with them also in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

18 Wherefore, comfort yourselves one another with these words.

C H A P. V.

1 Condemning the curious searching for the seasons of Christ coming, 6 he warneth them to be ready daily to receive him: 11 And so giveth them sundry good lessons.

BUT of the times and seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you:

2 For ye yourselves know perfectly, that the day of the Lord shall come, even as a thief in the night.

3 For when they shall say, Peace and safety, then shall come upon them sudden destruction, as the travail upon a woman with child, and they shall not escape.

4 But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that

¹ Divers exhortations, the ground whereof is this, to be mindful of those things which they have heard of the apostle.

² That ye labour to excel more and more, and daily pass yourselves.

³ This is the sum of those things which he delivered them, to dedicate themselves wholly to God. And he condemneth plainly all filthiness through lust, because it is altogether contrary to the will of God.

⁴ Look John 17. 17.

⁵ Another reason, because it defileth the body.

⁶ The third, because the saints are discerned from them which know not God by honesty and purity.

⁷ Secondly, he reprehendeth all violent oppression, and immoderate desire; and sheweth most severely, as the prophet of God, that God will revenge such wickedness.

⁸ The 3 commandments which I gave you.

⁹ Thirdly, he requireth a ready mind to all manner of loving kindness, and exhorteth them to profit more and more in that virtue.

¹⁰ He condemneth unquiet brains, and such as are curious in matters which appertain not unto them.

¹¹ He rebuketh idleness and slothfulness, which vices whatsoever are given unto, fall into other wickedness, to the great offence of the church.

¹² The third part of the epistle, which is interlaced among the former exhortations (which he returneth unto afterward) wherein he speaketh of the mourning for the dead, and of the manner of the resurrection, and of the latter day.

¹³ We must take heed that we do not immoderately bewail the dead, that is, they use to do which think that they are utterly perished.

¹⁴ A confirmation: for death is but a sleep of the body (for he speaketh of the faithful) until the Lord cometh.

¹⁵ A reason of the confirmation: for seeing that the head is risen, the members also shall rise, and that by the virtue of God.

¹⁶ They die in Christ, which continue in faith whereby they are grafted into Christ, even to the last gasp.

¹⁷ Will call their bodies out of their graves, and join their souls to them again.

¹⁸ The manner of the resurrection shall be thus: The bodies of the dead shall be as it were raised out of sleep at the sound of the trumpet of God: Christ himself shall descend from heaven. The saints (for he speaketh properly of them) which shall then be found alive, together with the dead which shall rise, shall be taken up into the clouds to meet the Lord, and shall be in perpetual glory with him.

²¹ The word which the apostle useth here, signifieth properly that encouragement which mainers use one to another, when they altogether with one shout put forth their oars and row together.

²² Suddenly, and in the twinkling of an eye.

²³ The day that God hath appointed for this judgment, we know not: but this is sure, that it shall come upon men when they look for nothing less.

²⁴ Look Acts 1. 7.

²⁵ Returning to exhortations, he warneth us which are lightened with the knowledge of God, that it is our duty not to live securely in delicioussness, lest we be suddenly taken in a dead sleep in pleasures: but contrariwise to have an eye to the Lord, and not suffer ourselves to be oppressed with the cares of this world, for that is meet for the darkness of the night, and ill for the light.

A. D. 64. that day shall come on you, as it were a thief.

5 Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, neither of darkness.

6 Therefore let us not sleep as do others, but let us watch and be sober.

7 For they that sleep, sleep in the night: and they that be drunken, are drunken in the night.

8 But let us which are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love, and the hope of salvation for an helmet:

9 For God hath not appointed us unto wrath, but to obtain salvation by the means of our Lord Jesus Christ,

10 Which died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him.

11 Wherefore exhort one another, and edify one another, even as ye do.

12 Now we beseech you, brethren, that ye acknowledge them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you, 13 That ye have them in singular love for their works sake. Be at peace among yourselves.

14 We desire you, brethren, admonish them that are out of order: comfort the feeble-minded: bear with the weak: be patient toward all men.

3 We must fight with faith and hope, much less ought we lie carelessly snoring.

4 He pricketh us forwards by setting most certain hope of victory before us.

5 The death of Christ is a pledge of our victory, for therefore he died, that we might be partakers of his life or virtue, yea even whilst we live here.

6 We must not only watch ourselves, but we are also bound to stir up and confirm one another.

7 We must have great consideration of them which are appointed to the ministry of the word, and government of the church by God, and do their duty.

8 That you acknowledge and take them for such as they are, that is to say, men worthy to be greatly accounted of among you.

9 In those things which pertain to God's service: so is the ecclesiastical function distinguished from civil authority, and true shepherds from wolves.

10 So then, where this cause ceaseth, there must the honour cease.

11 The maintenance of mutual concord, is especially to be looked unto.

12 We must have consideration of every man, and as the disease is, so must the remedy be used.

13 That keep not their rank or standing.

14 Charity ought not to be overcome with any injuries.

15 A quiet and appeased mind, is nourished with continual prayers, respecting the will of God.

15 See that none recompense evil for evil unto any man: but ever follow that which is good, both toward yourselves, and toward all men.

16 Rejoice evermore.

17 Pray continually.

18 In all things, give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus toward you.

19 Quench not the Spirit.

20 Despise not prophesying.

21 Try all things, and keep that which is good.

22 Abstain from all appearance of evil.

23 Now the very God of peace sanctify you throughout: and I pray God that your whole spirit and soul and body may be kept blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Faithful is he which calleth you, which will also do it.

25 Brethren, pray for us.

26 Greet all the brethren with an holy kiss.

27 I charge you in the Lord, that this epistle be read unto all the brethren the saints.

28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

The first epistle unto the Thessalonians, written from Athens.

1 An acceptable thing to God, and such as he liketh well of.

2 The sparks of the Spirit of God that are kindled in us, are nourished with daily hearing the word of God: but true doctrine must be diligently distinguished from false.

3 The expounding of the word of God.

4 A general conclusion, that we waiting for the coming of Christ, do give ourselves to pureness, both in mind, will and body, through the grace and strength of the Spirit of God.

5 Whatsoever hath but the very shew of evil, abstain from it.

6 Separate you from the world, and make you holy to himself through his Spirit in Christ, in whom only you shall attain unto that true peace.

7 The good will and power of God is a sure confirmation against all difficulties, whereof we have a sure witness in our vocation.

8 Always one and the same like himself, who performeth indeed whatsoever he promiseth: and an effectual calling is nothing else but a right declaring and true setting forth of God's will: and therefore the salvation of the elect is sure and sure.

9 Who will also make you perfect.

10 The last part of the epistle, wherein with most weighty charge he commendeth both himself and this epistle unto them.

The Second Epistle of PAUL to the THESSALONIANS.

C H A P. I.

A. D. 54. 3. He commendeth the increase of faith, and charity, 4 and the patience of the Thessalonians: 6 and describing God's vengeance against such as oppress the godly, 10 he teacheth the godly to wait for the last judgment.

PAUL and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Thessalonians, which is in God our Father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ:

Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Q

3 We

A. D. 54. We ought to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the love of every one of you toward another, aboundeth,

So that we ourselves rejoice of you in the churches of God, because of your patience and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye suffer:

Which is a manifest token of the righteous judgment of God, that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, for the which ye also suffer.

For it is a righteous thing with God, to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you.

And to you, which are troubled, rest with us, when the Lord shall shew himself from heaven with his mighty angels,

In flaming fire, rendering vengeance unto them that do not know God, and which obey not unto the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ,

Which shall be punished with everlasting perdition from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power,

When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be made marvellous in all them that believe (because our testimony toward you was believed) in that day.

Wherefore, we also pray always for you, that our God may make you worthy of this calling, and fulfil all the good pleasure of his goodness, and the work of faith with power,

That the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you, and ye in him, according to the grace of our God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ.

CHAP. II.

He sheweth that the day of the Lord shall not come, till there be a departure from the faith, and that Antichrist be revealed, whose destruction he setteth out: 15 and thereupon exhorteth to constancy.

NOW we beseech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by our assembling unto him,

That ye be not suddenly moved from your mind, nor troubled, neither by spirit, nor by word, nor by letter, as if it were from us, as though the day of Christ were at hand.

Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a departing first, and that that man of sin be disclosed, even the son of perdition,

Which is an adversary, and exalteth himself against all that is called God, or that is worshipped: so that he doth sit as God in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God.

Remember ye not, that when I was yet with you, I told you these things?

And now ye know what withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time.

For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he which now withholdeth, shall let till he be taken out of the way.

And then shall that wicked man be revealed,

The first part of the epistle, wherein he rejoiceth that through the grace of God, they have manfully sustained all the assaults of their enemies, wherein he confirmeth them: moreover shewing with what gifts they must chiefly fight, to wit, with faith and charity, which must daily increase.

That whereas it grew up before, it doth also receive some increase every day, and more.

He openeth the fountain of all true comfort, to wit, that in afflictions which we suffer of the wicked for righteousness sake, we may behold as it were in a glass the testimony of that judgment to come, and the end thereof most acceptable to us, and most sharp to his enemies.

A proof: God is just, therefore he will worthily punish the unjust, and will do away the miseries of his people.

He confirmeth them also by the way, by this means, that the condition both of this present state and the state to come, is common to him with them.

A most glorious description of the second coming of Christ, to be set against all the miseries of the godly, and the triumphs of the wicked.

There is no knowledge of God unto salvation, without the gospel of Christ.

The children of God shall be counted by the faith which they have in the gospel, which is preached unto them by the apostles.

Seeing that we have the mark set before us, it remaineth that we go unto it. And we go to it, by certain degrees of causes: first by the free love and good pleasure of God by virtue whereof all other inferior causes work: from thence proceedeth the free calling to Christ, and from calling, faith, whereupon followeth both the glorifying of Christ in us, and us in Christ.

By (calling) he meaneth not the very act of calling, but that self-same thing whereunto we are called, which is the glory of that heavenly kingdom.

Which he determined long since, only upon his gracious and merciful goodness towards you.

So then, faith is an excellent work of God in us: and we see here plainly that the apostle leaveth nothing to free-will, to make it check-mate with God's working therein, as the Papists dream.

The second part of the epistle, containing an excellent prophecy of the state of the church, which shall be from the apostles time unto the latter day of judgment.

If we think earnestly upon that unmeasurable glory, which we shall be partakers of with Christ, it will be an excellent remedy for us against wavering and impatience, so that neither the glittering of the world shall allure us, nor the dreadful sight of the cross dismay us.

We must take heed of false prophets, especially in this matter, which go about to deceive, and that for the most part, after three sorts: for either they brag of feigned prophetic revelations, or they bring conjectures and reasons of their own, or use counterfeit writings.

By dreams and fables, which men pretend to be spiritual revelations.

Either by word of mouth, or by books written.

Either by forged letter, or falsely glossed upon.

The apostle foretelleth that before the coming of the Lord, there shall be a throne set up clean contrary to Christ's glory, wherein that wicked man shall sit, and transfer all things that appertain to God, to himself, and many shall fall away from God to him.

By speaking of one, he pointeth out the body of the tyrannous and persecuting church.

All men know who he is that saith he can shut up heaven and open it at his pleasure, and took upon him to be Lord and Master, above all kings and princes, before whom kings and princes fall down and worship, honoring that Antichrist a god.

He foretelleth that Antichrist (that is, whosoever he be that shall occupy that seat that falleth away from God) shall not reign without the church, but in the very bosom of the church.

This prophecy was continually declared to the ancient church, but it was neglected of them that followed.

What hindereth and stayeth.

Even in the apostle's time the first foundations of the apostatic all-feat were laid, but yet so that they deceived men.

He foretelleth that when the empire of Rome is taken away, the seat that falleth away from God shall succeed and hold his place, as the old writers, Tertullian, Chrysostom and Hierom, do expound it.

He which is now in authority, and ruleth all, to wit, the Roman empire.

That wickedness shall at length be detected by the word of the Lord, and shall utterly be abolished by Christ's coming.

Word for word, that lawless fellow, that is to say, he that shall tread God's law clean under foot.

A. D. 54. 11. 4. vealed, * whom the Lord shall ^k consume with the ^l Spirit of his mouth, and shall abolish with the brightness of his coming:

9 ^o Even him whose coming is by the effectual working of Satan, with all power, and signs, and ^m lying wonders,

10 And in all deceivableness of unrighteousness among them that perish, because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved.

11 And therefore God shall send them ⁿ strong delusion, that they should believe lyes, 12 That all they might be damned which believed not the truth, but ^o had pleasure in unrighteousness.

13 ^o But we ought to give thanks alway to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, because that God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation, through ^p sanctification of the Spirit, and the ^q faith of truth, 14 Whereunto he called you by our ^r gospel, to obtain the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

15 ^o Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and keep the instructions, which ye have been taught, either by word, or by our epistle.

16 Now the same Jesus Christ our Lord, and our God, even the Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting consolation and good hope through grace, 17 Comfort your hearts, and stablish you in every word and good work.

C H A P. III.

1 He desireth them to further the preaching of the gospel with their prayers, 6 and to withdraw themselves from those, who through idleness 11 and curiosity, pervert good order: whom he excludeth from the company of the faithful.

Furthermore, ^r brethren, * pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free passage and be glorified, even as it is with you,

■ Bring to nought.

^r With his word, for the true ministers of the word are as a mouth, whereby the Lord breatheth out that mighty and everlasting word, which shall break his enemies in funder, as it were ^m iron rod.

■ He foretelleth that Satan will bestow all his might and power, and use all false miracles that he can to establish that seat, and that with great success, because the wickedness of the world doth so deserve it: yet so, that only the unfaithful shall perish through his deceit.

■ Which are partly false, and partly wrought to establish ^m falsehood.

■ A most mighty working to deceive them.

■ They liked lyes so well, that they had pleasure in them, which is the greatest madness that may be.

^o The elect shall stand stedfast and safe from all their mischiefs. Now election is known by these testimonies: faith is gathered by sanctification: faith, by that we accord unto the truth: truth, by calling, through the preaching of the gospel: from whence we come at length to a certain hope of glorification.

■ To sanctify you.

■ Faith which layeth hold not upon lyes, but upon the truth of God, which is the gospel.

^r By our preaching.

^o The conclusion: It remaineth then that we continue in the doctrine which was delivered unto us by the mouth and writings of the apostles, through that free good will of God, which comforteth us with an invincible hope, and also in all godliness our whole life long.

^r He addeth now consequently according to his manner, divers admonitions: the first of them is, that they make prayers for the increase and free passage of the gospel, and for the safety of the faithful ministers of the same.

■ Which have no care of their duty.

■ It is no marvel that the gospel is hated of so many, seeing that faith is a rare gift of God. Notwithstanding the church shall never be destroyed by the multitude of the

2 And that we may be delivered from ^a unreasonable and evil men: ^b for all men have not faith.

3 But the Lord is faithful, which will stablish you, and keep you from ^b evil.

4 ^o And we are persuaded of you through the Lord, that ye both do, and will do the things which we warn you of.

5 ^o And the Lord guide your hearts to the love of God, and the waiting for of Christ.

6 ^o We warn you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh inordinately, and not after the instruction which he received of us:

7 ^o For ye yourselves know, ^m how ye ought ⁿ to follow us: * for we behaved not ourselves inordinately among you, * 1 Cor. 12. 1. * 1 Thes. 4: 11.

■ Neither took we bread of any man for nought: but we wrought with labour and travail night and day, because we would not be chargeable to any of you.

9 Not because we have not authority, but that we might make ourselves an example unto you to follow us.

10 For even when we were with you, this we warned you of, that if there were any which would not work, that he should ^c not eat.

11 For we hear, that there are some which walk among ^d you inordinately, and work not at all, ^e but are busy bodies.

12 ^o Therefore them that are such, we warn and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that they work with quietness, and eat their own bread.

13 ^o And ye, brethren, be not weary in well doing.

14 ^o If any man obey not this our saying in this wicked, because it is grounded and stayed upon the faithful promise of God.

■ From Satan's snares, ^m from evil.

^o The second admonition is, that they follow always the doctrine of the apostles as ^m rule for their life.

^o Thirdly, he diligently and earnestly admonisheth them of two things which ^m given us by the only grace of God, to wit, of charity, and ^m watchful mind to the coming of Christ.

^o Fourthly, he saith, that idle and lazy persons ought not to be relieved of the church, nay, that they are not to be suffered.

^o Lest he might seem to deal hardly with them, he setteth forth himself for an example, who besides his travail in preaching, laboured with his hands, which he saith he was not simply bound to do.

^o What shall we do then with those idle bellied monks, and sacrificing priests? A monk (saith Socrates, book 8. of the Tripartite history) which worketh not with his hands; is like a thief.

^o How great ^m fault idleness is, he declareth by that, that God created no man in vain, or to ^m purpose, neither is there any to whom he hath not allotted, as it were, a certain standing and room. Whereupon it followeth, that the order which God hath appointed, is troubled by the idle, yea broken, which is great sin and wickedness.

^o He reprehendeth a vice, which is joined with the former, whereupon follow an infinite sort of mischiefs: to wit, that there are none more busy in other men's matters, than they which neglect their own.

^o The Lord commandeth and the apostles pray in the name of Christ, first, that ^m man be idle, and next, that every ^m do quietly and carefully see to do his duty in that office and calling wherein the Lord hath placed him.

■ We must take heed, that some men's unworthiness cause ^m to be slack in well doing.

■ Excommunication is ^m punishment for the obstinate:

A. D. 64. this letter, note him, and have no company with him. ¹² that he may be ashamed:
¹⁵ Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother.
¹⁶ Now the Lord himself of peace give you peace always by all means. The Lord be with you all.
¹⁷ The salutation of me Paul, with mine own hand, which is the token in every epistle: so I write. A. D. 65.

¹⁸ The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.
 ¶ The second epistle to the Thessalonians, written from Athens.

¹² We must have no familiarity nor fellowship with the excommunicate.
¹³ The end of excommunication is not the destruction, but the salvation of the sinner, that at least through shame he may be driven to repentance.
¹⁴ We must so eschew familiarity with the excommuni-cate, that we diligently seek all occasions and means that may be, to bring them again into the right way.

¹⁵ Prayers are the seals of all exhortations.
¹⁶ The apostle subscribeth his letter with his own hand, that false letters might not be brought and put in place of true.

The First Epistle of PAUL to TIMOTHY.

CHAP. I.

A. D. 65. Setting forth a perfect pattern of a true pastor, whose office especially consisteth in teaching, & he warneth him that vain questions set apart, he teach those things, which further charity and faith: 12 and that his authority be not condemned, 14 he sheweth what an one he is made through the grace of God.

⁶ From the which things some have erred, and have turned unto vain-jangling. A. D. 65.
⁷ They would be doctors of the law, and yet understand not what they speak, neither whereof they affirm.
⁸ And we know, that the law is good, if a man use it lawfully.
⁹ Knowing this, that the law is not given unto a righteous man, but unto the lawless and disobedient, to the ungodly and to sinners, to the unholy and to the prophane, to murderers of fathers and mothers, to man-slayers,
¹⁰ To whoremongers, to buggers, to men-stealers, to lyars, to the perjured, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to wholesome doctrine,
¹¹ Which is according to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which is committed unto me.
¹² Therefore I thank him which hath made me strong, that is, Christ Jesus our Lord: for he counted me faithful, and put me in his service:
¹³ When before I was a blasphemour, and a persecutor,

PAUL an apostle of Jesus Christ, by the commandment of God our Saviour, and of our Lord Jesus Christ our hope,
² Unto Timothy my natural son in the faith: Grace, mercy, and peace from God our Father, and from Christ Jesus our Lord.
³ As I besought thee to abide still in Ephesus, when I departed into Macedonia, so do, that thou mayest warn some, that they teach none other doctrine,
⁴ Neither that they give heed to fables and genealogies which are endless, which breed questions rather than godly edifying which is by faith.
⁵ For the end of the commandment is love out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned:

¹ First of all, he avoucheth his own free vocation and also Timothy's, that the same might be confirmed by the other: and therewithal he declareth the sum of the apostolical doctrine, to wit, the mercy of God in Christ Jesus, apprehended by faith, the end whereof is yet hoped for.
² There is as much difference betwixt mercy and grace, as is betwixt the effect and the cause: for grace is that free good will of God, whereby he chose us in Christ, and mercy is that free justification which followeth it.
³ This whole epistle consisteth in admonitions, wherein all the duties of a faithful pastor are lively set out: and the first admonition is this, that no innovation be either made in the apostles doctrine itself, or in the manner of teaching it.
⁴ The doctrine is corrupted not only by false opinions, but also by vain and curious speculations: the declaration and utterance whereof can nothing help our faith.
⁵ He noteth out one kind of vain questions.
⁶ The second admonition is, that the right use and practice of the doctrine must be joined with the doctrine. And that consisteth in pure charity, and a good conscience, and true faith.
⁷ Of the law.
⁸ There is neither love without a good conscience, nor a good conscience without faith, nor faith without the word of God.
⁹ That which he spoke before generally of vain and curious controversies, he applieth to them which, pretending zeal of the law, dwelled upon outward things, and never made an end of babbling of foolish trifles.
¹⁰ There are none more unlearned, and impudent in usurping the name of holiness, than foolish sophistical babblers.

⁷ The taking away of objection: He condemneth not the law, but requireth the right use and practice of it.
⁸ He indeed escapeth the curse of the law, and therefore doth not abhor it, who fleeing and eschewing those things which the law condemneth, giveth himself with all his heart, to observe it: and not he that maketh vain babbling of outward and curious matters.
⁹ And such a one is he, whom the Lord hath endued with true doctrine, and with the Holy Ghost.
¹⁰ To such as make an art, as it were, of sinning.
¹¹ He setteth against fond and vain babbling, not only the law, but the gospel also, which condemneth not, but greatly commendeth the wholesome doctrine contained in the commandments of God, and therefore he calleth it a glorious gospel, and the gospel of the blessed God, the virtue whereof these babblers knew not.
¹² A reason why neither any other gospel is to be taught than he hath taught in the church, neither after any other sort, because there is no other gospel beside that which God committed to him.
¹³ He maintaineth of necessity his apostleship against some that did carp at his former life, debasing himself even to hell, to advance Christ's only mercy, wherewith he abolished all those his former doings.
 ■ Which gave me strength, not only when I had no will to do well, but also when I was wholly given to evil.
¹⁴ These are the preparative works which Paul braggeth of.

A. D. 65. persecutor, and an oppressor: but I was received to mercy: for I did it ignorantly through unbelief.

14 But the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant¹² with faith and love, which is in Christ Jesus.

15¹³ This is a true saying, and by all means worthy to be received, that¹⁴ Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief.

16 Notwithstanding for this cause was I received to mercy, that Jesus Christ should first shew on me all long suffering, unto the ensample of them which shall in time to come believe in him unto eternal life.

17¹⁴ Now unto the King everlasting, immortal, invincible, unto God¹⁵ only wise, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

18¹⁵ This commandment commit I unto thee, son Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before upon thee, that thou¹⁶ by them shouldest fight a good fight.

19 Having faith¹⁷ and a good conscience, which some have put away, and as concerning faith have made shipwreck.

20 Of whom is Hymeneus, and Alexander,¹⁸ whom I have delivered unto Satan, that they might¹⁹ learn not to blaspheme.

C H A P. II.

1 He exhorteth them to make public prayers for all men, 4, 5 and that for two causes: 8 And therefore he willet all men in all places to pray. 9 And declareth in what apparel, 11 and with what

¹² He proveth this change by the effects, for that, that he that was a profane man, is become a believer: and he that did most outrageously persecute Christ, burneth now in love toward him.

He turneth the reprobach of the adversaries upon their own head, shewing that this singular example of the goodness of God, redoundeth to the commodity of the whole church.

¹⁴ He breaketh out into an exclamation, even for very zeal of mind, for that he cannot satisfy himself in amplifying the grace of God.

Look John 17. 3.

¹⁵ The conclusion of both the former fatherly admonitions, to wit, that Timothy striving manfully against all lets, being called to the ministry according to many prophecies which went before of him, should both maintain the doctrine which he had received, and keep also a good conscience.

Wholsome and sound doctrine.

Whosoever keep not a good conscience, do lose also by little and little the gift of understanding: which he proveth by two most lamentable examples.

¹⁷ Such fall from God and his religion, are not to be suffered in the church, but rather ought to be excommunicated.

Cast out of the church, and so delivered them to Satan.

That by their smart they might learn what it is to blaspheme.

¹ Having dispatched those things which pertain to doctrine, he speaketh now in the second place of the other part of the ministry of the word, to wit, of public prayers. And first of all, declaring this question, for whom we ought to pray: he teacheth that we must pray for all men, and especially for all manner of magistrates, which thing was at that time somewhat doubted of, seeing that kings, yea, and the most part of magistrates, were at that time enemies of the church.

An argument taken of the end: to wit, because that magistrates are appointed to this end, that men might peaceably and quietly live in all godliness and honesty, and therefore must we commend them especially to God, that they may faithfully execute so necessary an office.

This word containeth all kind of duty, which is to be modesty, women ought to behave themselves in holy assemblies. A. D. 65.

¹ Exhort therefore, that first of all supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men,

² For kings, and for all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and a peaceable life, in all godliness and honesty:

³ For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour, ⁴ Who will that all men shall be saved, and come unto the acknowledging of the truth.

⁵ For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and man, which is the man Christ Jesus, ⁶ Who gave himself a ransom for all men, to be that testimony in due time.

⁷ Whereunto I am ordained a preacher and an apostle (I speak the truth in Christ, and lye not) even a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and verity.

⁸ I will therefore that the men pray, every where lifting up pure hands without wrath, or doubting.

⁹ Likewise also the women, that they array themselves in comely apparel, with shamefacedness and modesty, not with broided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly apparel;

¹⁰ But (as becometh women that profess the fear of God) with good works.

¹¹ Let the women learn in silence with all subjection.

¹² I permit not a woman to teach, neither to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence: 3 R 13 For used amongst men in all their affairs.

³ Another argument, why churches or congregations ought to pray for all men, without any difference of nation, kind, age, or order: to wit, because the Lord by calling of all sorts, yea sometimes those that are greatest enemies to the gospel, will have his church gathered together after this sort, and therefore prayers to be made for all.

⁴ God should not else be manifested to be the only God of all men, unless he should shew his goodness in saving of all sorts of men: neither should Christ be seen to be the only Mediator between God and all sorts of men, by having taken upon him that nature of man which is common to all men, unless he had satisfied for all sorts of men, and made intercession for all.

^b Christ Jesus which was made man.

A confirmation, because that even to the Gentiles is the secret of salvation now opened and made manifest, the apostle himself being appointed properly to this office, which he doth faithfully and sincerely execute.

Faithfully and sincerely: and by faith, he meaneth wholsome and sound doctrine; and by truth, an upright and sincere handling of it.

⁶ He hath spoken of the persons for whom we must pray: and now he teacheth that the difference of places is taken away: for in times past, only nation, and in one certain place, came together to public service: but now churches or congregations are gathered together every where (orderly and decently), and men come together to serve God publicly with common prayer; neither must we strive for the nation, or for the purification of the body, or for the place, but for the mind, to have it clean from all offence, and full of sure trust and confidence.

^d He putteth the sign for the thing itself, the lifting up of hands for the calling upon God.

Without those griefs and offences of the mind, which hinder us from calling upon God with a good conscience.

Doubting, which is against faith, James. 1. 6.

Thirdly, he appointeth women to learn in the public assemblies with silence and modesty, being comely apparelled, without any riot or excess in their apparel.

⁸ The first argument, why it is not lawful for women to teach in the congregation, because by this means, they should be placed above men, for they should be their masters: which is against God's ordinance.

A. D. 65. Gen. 1. 27. Gen. 3. 6. 13 For Adam was first formed, then Eve.
14 And Adam was not deceived, but the woman was deceived, and was in the transgression.

15 Notwithstanding, through bearing of children she shall be saved, if they continue in faith, and love, and holiness with modesty.

C H A P. III.

He setteth out bishops, & and Christian deacons, with their wives, 12 children and family: 15 he calleth the church the house of God.

THIS is a true saying, If any man desire the office of a bishop, he desireth a worthy work.

2 A bishop therefore must be unreprouvable, the husband of one wife, watching, temperate, modest, harbourous, apt to teach,

3 Not given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre, but gentle, no fighter, not covetous,

4 One that can rule his own house honestly, having children under obedience with all honesty:

5 For if any cannot rule his own house, how shall he care for the church of God?

6 He may not be a young scholar, lest he being puffed up fall into the condemnation of the devil.

7 He must also be well reported of, even of them, which are without, lest he fall into rebuke, and the snare of the devil.

8 Likewise must deacons be grave, not double tongued, not given unto much wine, neither to filthy lucre:

2 He proveth this ordinance of God, whereby the woman is subject to man, first by that that God made the woman after man, for man's sake.

3 Then, because that after sin, God enjoined the woman this punishment, for that the man was deceived by her.

4 Adam was deceived, but through his wife's means, and therefore she is worthy for this cause subject to her husband, and ought to be.

5 He addeth a comfort by the way, that their subjection hindereth not us that women may be saved as well as men if they behave themselves in those burdens of marriage holily and modestly, with faith and charity.

6 Having dispatched the treatise, well of doctrine and of the manner of handling of it, as also of public prayer, he now in the third place cometh to the persons themselves, speaking first of pastors, and afterward of deacons, and he useth a preface, that the church may know that there be certain and sure rules.

7 A bishoprick, or the ministry of the word, is not an idle dignity, but a work, and that an excellent work, and therefore a bishop must be furnished with many virtues both at home and abroad. Wherefore it is requisite, before he be chosen, to examine well his learning, his gifts, and abilities, and his life.

8 He speaketh not here of ambitious seeking, than that which there cannot be a worse fault in the church, but generally of the mind and disposition of man, framed and disposed to help and edify the church of God, when and wheresoever it shall please the Lord.

9 Therefore he that shutteth out married men from the office of bishops, only because they are married, is Antichrist.

10 A common tippler, and one that will fit by it.

11 Lest by reason that he is advanced to that degree, he take occasion to be proud, which will undo him, and so he fall into the same condemnation that the devil himself is fallen into.

12 Likewise the deacons must first be proved, that there may be a good trial of their honesty, truth, sobriety, mind void of covetousness, that they be well instructed in the doctrine of faith, and be short, of their good conscience and integrity.

13 These are they that had to see to the poor.

14 The doctrine of the gospel, which is a mystery in-

9 Having the mystery of the faith in pure conscience.

10 And let them first be proved: then let them minister, if they be found blameless.

11 Likewise their wives must be honest, not evil speakers, but sober, and faithful in all things.

12 Let the deacons be the husbands of one wife, and such as can rule their children well, and their own households.

13 For they that have ministered well, get themselves a good degree, and great liberty in the faith which is in Christ Jesus.

14 These things write I unto thee, trusting to come very shortly unto thee.

15 But if I tarry long, that thou mayest yet now how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of truth,

16 And without controversy, great is the mystery of godliness, which is, God is manifested in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, and received up in glory.

C H A P. IV.

He condemneth as well false doctrines of marriage and the choice of meats, 7 as also prophane fables: 8 and commendeth the godly exercise, 13 and the daily reading of the scripture.

NOW the Spirit speaketh evidently, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, and shall give heed unto spirits of error, and doctrines of devils:

2 Which speak lyes through hypocrisy, and have ced: for flesh and blood do not reveal it.

3 Regard must be had also to the pastors and deacons wives.

4 They that have more wives than one at one time, must neither be called to be ministers, nor to be deacons.

5 Honour and estimation.

6 Bold and assured confidence without fear.

7 Paul purposing to add many peculiar things pertaining to the daily office of a pastor, speaketh first a word or two concerning his coming to Timothy, that he should be so much the more careful, lest at his coming he might be reproved of negligence.

8 The pastor hath always to think, how that he is occupied in the house of the living God, wherein the treasure of the truth is kept

9 To wit, in respect of men: for the church resteth upon that corner stone, Christ, and is the preserver of the truth, not the mother.

10 There is nothing more excellent than this truth, whereof the church is the keeper and preserver here among men, the ministry of the word being appointed to that end and purpose: for it teacheth us the greatest matters that may be thought of, to wit, that God is become visible in the person of Christ, by taking our nature upon him, whose majesty, notwithstanding in so great weakness, was manifested many ways, in omuch that the sight of it pierced the very angels, and to conclude, he being preached unto the Gentiles, was received of them, and is now placed above in glory unpeakable.

11 The power of the Godhead shewed itself so marvellously in that weak flesh of Christ, that though he were a weak man, yet all the world knoweth he was and is God.

12 He setteth against that true doctrine, false opinions, which he foretelleth, that certain which shall fall away from God and his religion, shall bring in by the suggestion of Satan, and so that a great number shall give ear to them.

13 From the true doctrine of God.

14 Although heretics counterfeit holiness never so much, yet have they no conscience.

15 For they will, if it were, practise the art of disguised persons and players, that we may not think they will lie lurking in some one corner, or keep any resemblance of shamefacedness.

A. D. 65. have their ^a consciences burned with an-hot iron, 3 ^b Forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats ^c which God hath created to be received ^d with giving thanks of them which believe and know the truth.

4 ^e For every creature of God is good, and nothing ought to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving.

5 ^f For it is ^g sanctified by the ^h word of God, and prayer.

6 ⁱ If thou put the brethren in remembrance of these things, thou shalt be a good minister of Jesus Christ, which hast been nourished up in the words of faith, and of good doctrine, which thou hast continually ^j followed.

7 ^k But cast away prophane and old wives fables, ^l and exercise thyself unto ^m godlinefs.

8 ⁿ For bodily exercise profiteth little: but godliness is profitable unto all things, which hath the promise of the life present, and of that that is to come.

9 ^o This is a true saying, and by all means worthy to be received.

10 For therefore we labour and are rebuked, because we trust in the living God, which is the Saviour of all men, specially of those that believe.

11 These things warn and teach.

12 ^p Let no man despise thy youth, but be unto them that believe, an ensample, in word, in conversation, in love, in spirit, in faith and in pureness.

13 ^q Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, and to doctrine.

^a Whose conscience waxed so hard, that there grew ■ hard fleshiness over it, and so became to have a canker in it, and now at length required of very necessity to be burned with a hot iron.

^b He setteth down two kinds of this false doctrine, to wit, the law of sole life, and difference of meats.

^c He proveth that he justly called such doctrines devilish, first, because the teachers of them make laws of things which are not their own: for have they created the meats?

^d Secondly, because they overthrow, with their decrees, the end whereof they were created of God, to wit, that we should use them.

^e Thirdly, for that by this means they rob God of his glory, who will be honoured in the use of them. And herewithal, the apostle declaieth, that we must use the liberality of God, soberly, and with a good conscience.

^f He setteth an apostolical rule, for raking away the difference of meats, against that false doctrine.

^g He useth God's benefits rightly, which acknowledgeth the giver of them by his word, and calleth upon him.

^h It is so made pure and holy in respect of us, so that we may use it with ■ good conscience, ■ received ■ the Lord's hands.

ⁱ We confess and acknowledge that God is the maker and giver of those creatures which ■ use. Secondly, that we are of the number of those, who through Christ's benefit have recovered that right over all creatures, which Adam lost by his fall. Thirdly, by our prayers ■ crave of the Lord that we may use those meats with ■ good conscience, which we receive at his hands. Fourthly, we make an end of our eating and drinking with thanksgiving and prayer:
 and so are our meats sanctified ■ us.

^j The conclusion, with an exhortation ■ Timothy, ■ propound these things diligently ■ the churches, which he had sucked of the apostle, even in ■ from the text.

^k Never departing from the side of it.

^l He setteth again true doctrine, ■ only against that false and apostolical doctrine, but also against all vain and curious subtilties,

^m It is not only requisite that the minister of the word be sound in doctrine, but also that his life be godly and religio **■.

ⁿ In the true serving of God.

^o Godliness consisteth in spiritual exercise, and ■ in outward austerities of life, which though it be something to be accounted of, if it be rightly used, yet it is in

14. Despise not the gift that is in thee, which A. D.
 was given thee by prophecy with the laying 65.
 on of the hands of the company of the eldership.

15 These things exercise, and give thyself unto them, that it may be seen how thou profit-est among all men.

16 Take heed unto thyself, and unto learning: continue therein: for in doing this thou shalt both ^b save thyself, and them that hear thee.

CHAP. V.

■ Having set down a manner how to rebuke all degrees, 5 he intreateth of widows, who then were chosen for the service of the church: 17 then he cometh to elders, 23 and speaketh somewhat touching the health of the body.

REBUKE ^a not an elder, but exhort him as ^b father, and the younger men as brethren,

2 The elder women as mothers, the younger as sisters, with all pureness.

3 ^c Honour widows, which are widows indeed.

4 ^d But if any widow have children, or nephews, let them learn first to shew godliness ^e toward their own house, and ^f to recompense their kindred: ^g for that is an honest thing, and acceptable before God.

5 ^h And she that is a widow indeed, and left alone, trusteth in God, and continueth in sup-plications and prayers night and day.

6 ⁱ But she that liveth in pleasure, is dead while she liveth.

7 These

■ wise comparable with godliness, for it profiteth not of itself, but through the benefit of another; but this hath the promise both of the life present, and of that that is to come.

^a He goeth a little from his matter, and sheweth that they which give themselves to godliness, although they are afflicted and reproached, are notwithstanding not to be accounted miserable, as other men are, because they are not afflicted for that cause that other men are, and the end of them both is far different ■ from the other. For how can God forsake his, which is bountiful, even toward his enemies? And he willet that this doctrine be well beaten into their heads.

^b Now he returneth to that exhortation, shewing which
■ the true virtues of ■ pastor, whereby he may come to be revered, although he be but young, to wit, such speech and life as are witnesses of charity, zeal, faith, and purity:
 but here is ■ mention made of the crozier staff, ring, clock, and such other foolish and childish toys.

^c The private exercise of pastors is continual reading of the scriptures, whereout they may draw water of whol-some doctrine and exhortation, both ■ themselves and ■ others.

^d Faith is by hearing, and hearing by preaching: and therefore the ministers of the word are so said to save themselves and others, for that in them the Lord hath put the word of reconciliation.

^e Of keeping measure in private reprehensions, according to the degrees of ages and kinds.

^f The apostle giveth these rules touching the care of widows.

^g Have care of those widows which have need of help.
^h Widows children and nephews must take care for their parents according ■ their ability.

ⁱ The first reason, because that that which they bestow upon theirs, they bestow it upon themselves.

^j Another, because nature itself teacheth ■ to recompense our parents.

^k The third: because this dutifulness pleaseth God.

^l The second rule. Let the church have care of such as are widows indeed, that is to say, such as ■ poor and destitute of help of their own friends, and live godly and religiously.

^m The third rule: Let widows that live in pleasure, and neglect the care of their own family, be holden and accounted as fallers away from God and his religion, and worse than very infidels.

A. D. 65. 7 These things therefore warn them of, that they may be blameless.

8 If there be any that provideth not for his own, and namely for them of his household, he denieth the faith, and is worse than an infidel.

9 Let not a widow be taken into the number under threescore years old, that hath been the wife of one husband,

10 And well reported of for good works: if she have nourished her children, if she have lodged the strangers, if she have washed the saints feet, if she have ministered unto them which were in adversity, if she were continually given unto every good work.

11 But refuse the younger widows: for when they have begun to wax wanton against Christ, they will marry, 12 Having damnation, because they have broken the first faith.

13 And likewise also being idle, they learn to go about from house to house: yea, they are not only idle, but also prattlers and busy-bodies, speaking things which are not comely.

14 I will therefore that the younger women marry, and bear children, and govern the house, and give none occasion to the adversary to speak evil.

15 For certain are already turned back after Satan.

16 If any faithful man or faithful woman have widows, let them minister unto them, and let not the church be charged, that there may be sufficient for them that are widows in deed.

17 ¶ The elders that rule well, let them be had in double honour, especially they which labour in the word and doctrine.

18 For the scripture saith, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn: and, The labourer is worthy of his wages.

19 ¶ Against an elder receive none accusation, but under two or three witnesses

20 ¶ Them that sin, rebuke openly, that the rest also may fear.

21 ¶ I charge thee before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect angels, that thou observe these things, without preferring one before another, and do nothing partially.

22 Lay hands suddenly on no man, neither be partaker of other men's sins: keep thyself pure.

23 Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake, and thine often infirmities.

24 Some men's sins are open beforehand, and go before unto judgment: but some men's follow after.

25 Likewise also the good works are manifest beforehand, and they that are otherwise, cannot be hid.

C H A P. VI.

¶ He sheweth the duty of servants: 10 and what a mischievous evil covetousness is: 13 and having spoken somewhat of rich men, he once again forbiddeth Timothy 20 to cumber himself with vain babblings.

LET as many servants as are under the yoke, count their masters worthy of all honour, that the name of God, and his doctrine, be not evil spoken of.

2 And they which have believing masters let them not despise them, because they are brethren: but rather do service, because they are faithful, and beloved, and partakers of the benefit. ¶ These things teach and exhort.

3 If

¶ The fourth rule; Let none under threescore years old, be taken into the number of widows, to serve the congregations or churches, and such as are free from all reproach of unchastity, and are well reported of, for their diligence, charity, and integrity.

¶ That hath had no more husbands, but one at one time.

¶ This is spoken in respect of the manners of those countries.

¶ The first reason, why younger widows are not to be admitted to this ministry, is this, because for the lightness of their age, they will at length shake off the burden that Christ had laid upon them, and think rather upon marrying again: and so will forsake the ministry whereunto they had bound themselves.

¶ Take them not into the college of widows.

¶ Another reason: because they are for the most part prattlers and busy-bodies and gadders up and down, neglecting their charge and duty.

¶ The fifth rule: Let younger widows marry, and govern their houses godly.

¶ The sixth rule: Let the faithful help their widows at their own charges as much as they can, and let not the congregation be burdened with these expences.

¶ Now he giveth rules, and sheweth how he ought to behave himself with the elders, that is to say, with the pastors, and such as have the governance in the discipline of the church, which is president of their company. The first rule: Let the church or congregation see unto this especially, as God himself hath commanded that the elders should do their duty well, be honestly maintained.

¶ We must be more careful for them than for the rest.

¶ There were two kinds of elders, the one attended upon the government only, and looked to the manners of the congregation, the other did beside that attend upon preaching and prayers, to and for the congregation.

¶ The second rule: Let no accusation be admitted against an elder, but under two or three witnesses.

¶ The third rule: Let the elders so convicted, be rebuked openly, that they may be an example to others.

¶ The fourth rule: Let sincerity be used without any prejudice or respect of persons in ecclesiastical proceedings (especially against the elders) because God himself is there present, and the Lord Jesus Christ with a multitude of angels.

¶ The fifth rule: Let the minister lay hands suddenly on no man. Let him not be faulty herein, either by favouring any man's folly, or perverse affection: if aught be done otherwise than well of his fellows, let him keep his conscience pure.

¶ As much as in thee lieth, do not rashly admit any whatsoever to any ecclesiastical function.

¶ The sixth rule: Let the elders have indifferent consideration of their health, in the manner of their diet.

¶ Because hypocrites sometimes creep into the ministry, although there be never so great diligence used, the apostle willeth the pastors not to be troubled therefore, or slack any whit of their diligence in trying and examining, because the Lord hath appointed a time to discover the faults of such men, and it is our parts to take heed that we offend not therein.

¶ Another comfort belonging to them, which sometimes are slandered and misreported of.

¶ He addeth also rules for the servants duty towards their masters: whereupon no doubt there were many questions then moved by them, which took occasion by the gospel to trouble the common state. And this is the first rule: Let servants that are come to the faith, and have infidels to their masters, serve them notwithstanding with great fidelity.

¶ The reason, lest God should seem by the doctrine of the gospel to stir up men to rebellion and all wickedness.

¶ The second rule: Let not servants that are come to the faith, and have also masters of the same profession and religion, abuse the name of brotherhood, but let them so much the rather obey them.

¶ Let this be sufficient, that touching those things which pertain to everlasting life, they are partakers of the same good will and love of God, as their masters themselves are.

¶ A general conclusion, that these things ought not only to be simply taught, but must with exhortations be diligently beaten into their heads.

A. D. 65. 3 If any man teach otherwise, and consenteth not to the wholesome words of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the doctrine which is according to godliness,
 4 He is put up and knoweth nothing, but doteth about questions and^b strife of words, whereof cometh envy, strife, railings, evil surmising,
 5 Froward^a disputations of men of corrupt minds and destitute of the truth, which think that gain is godliness: from such separate thyself.
 6^c But godliness is great gain, if a man be content with that he hath.
 7^d For we brought nothing into the world, and it is certain, that we can carry nothing out.
 8 Therefore when we have food and raiment, let us therewith be content.
 9^e For they that will be rich, fall into temptation and snares, and into many foolish and noisome lusts, which drown men in perdition and destruction.
 10 For the desire of money is the root of all evil, which while some lusted after, they erred from the faith, and^d pierced themselves through with many sorrows.
 11^f But thou, O^e man of God, flee these things, and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, and meekness.
 12 Fight the good fight of faith: lay hold of eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.
 13^g I charge thee in the sight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Jesus Christ, which under Pontius Pilate^e witnessed^h good confession, 14 That thou keep this commandment without spot, and unrebukeable, until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ,

 15 Which in due time he shall shew, that isⁱ ^h blessed and Prince only, the King of kings and Lord of lords:
 16 Who only hath immortality, and dwelleth in the light that none can attain unto, ^h whom never man saw, neither can see, unto whom be honour and power everlasting. Amen.
 17^j Charge them that are rich in^k this world, that they be not high minded, and that they^k trust not in uncertain riches, but in the^h living God (which giveth us abundantly all things to enjoy):
 18 That they do good, and be rich in good works, and be ready to distribute and communicate.
 19^l Laying up in store for themselves^h good foundation against the time to come, that they may obtain eternal life.
 20^m O Timothy, keep that which is committed unto thee, and avoid prophane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called,
 21 Which while someⁿ profess, they have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee. Amen.

¶ The first epistle to Timothy, written from Laodicea, which is the chiefest city of Phrygia Pacatiana.

Ch. 5. 21.

^a He condemneth severely, and excommunicateth or casteth out of the church as proud men, such as content not themselves with Christ's doctrine (that is to say the doctrine of godliness) but weary both themselves and others in vain questions, (for all other things are vain) because they content not themselves in Christ's doctrine: and as lying deceivers, because they favour or sound of nothing but vanity: as madmen, because they trouble themselves so much in matters of nothing: as mischievous plagues, for that they cause great contentions, and corrupt men's minds and judgment: to be short, as prophane and wicked, because they abuse the precious name of godliness and religion, to filthy lucre.
^b Striving about words, and not about matter: and by words he meaneth all those things which have not pith in them, and whereby we can reap no profit.
^c Such as we see in those shameless schools of popery, which are nothing else but vain babbling and prattling.
^d He turneth away fitly the name of gain and lucre, confessing that godliness is great gain, but far after another sort, to wit, because it bringeth true sufficiency.
^e He mocketh their folly, which do so greedily gape after frail things, that they can in no wise be satisfied, and yet notwithstanding they cannot enjoy that excess.
^f He frayeth Timothy from covetousness after another sort, to wit, because it draweth with it an infinite sort of lusts, and those very hurtful, wherewith covetous men do torment themselves so far forth, that in the end they cast away from them their faith and salvation.
^g Sorrow and grief do as it were pierce through the mind of man, and are the harvest and true fruits of covetousness.
^h A peculiar exhortation to divers virtues, wherewith it becometh the pastors especially to be furnished.

^e Whom the Spirit of God ruleth.
^h A most earnest request and charge to observe and keep all the promises faithfully, with our eyes set upon the coming of Jesus Christ, whose glory we have to set against the vain glittering of this world, and his power against all the terrors of the wicked.
ⁱ He heapeth many words together, to one purpose: whereby he voucheth the power of God, which if we stick fast unto, we shall not be moved out of our standing.
^j He addeth for an overplus, as it were, a sharp admonition to the rich, that they chiefly take heed of two mischiefs, to wit, of pride, and deceitful hope, against which he setteth three excellent virtues, hope in the living God, liberality towards their neighbour, and gentle conditions.
^k In things pertaining to this life, with whom those men are compared which are rich in good works.
^l Who only is, and that everlasting: for he setteth the nature of riches against God.
^m The praise of liberality, by the effects thereof: because it is a sure testimony of the Spirit of God which dwelleth in us, and therefore of the salvation that shall be given us.
ⁿ He rehearseth the chiefest of all the former exhortations, which ought to be deeply imprinted in the minds of all ministers of the word, to wit, that they eschew all vain babblings of sophistry, and continue in the simplicity of sincere doctrine.
^o Not only in word, but also in countenance and gesture: to be short, whilst their behaviour was such, that even when they held their peace, they would make men believe their heads were occupied about nothing but high and weighty matters, even then they erred concerning the faith.

The Second Epistle of PAUL to TIMOTHY.

CHAP. I.

A. D. 66. 5 He commends Timothy's faith, 6 and exhorteth him to go on faithfully in the charge committed unto him: 8 and that neither for his bonds, 15 nor the reviling of others, he faint. 11 He triumpheth of his apostleship. 14 He willeth him to have care of the thing committed unto him, 16 and praiseth Onesiphorus.

PAUL an apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, according to the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus.

2 To Timothy my beloved son: Grace, mercy and peace from God the Father, and from Jesus Christ our Lord.

3 I thank God, whom I serve from mine elders with pure conscience, that without ceasing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day,

4 Desiring to see thee, mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy:

5 When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice, and am assured that it dwelleth in thee also.

6 Wherefore I put thee in remembrance that thou stir up the gift of God which is in thee, by the putting on of mine hands.

7 For God hath not given to us the Spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.

8 Be not therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, neither of me his prisoner: but be partaker of the afflictions of the gospel, according to the power of God,

9 Who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given to us through Christ Jesus before the world was,

10 But is now made manifest by that appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality unto light through the gospel, 11 Whereunto I am appointed preacher, and apostle, and teacher of the Gentiles.

12 For the which cause I also suffer these things, but I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed to him against that day.

13 Keep the true pattern of the wholesome words which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.

14 That worthy thing, which was committed to thee, keep through the Holy Ghost, which dwelleth in us.

15 This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia, be turned from me: of which sort are Phygellus and Hermogenes.

16 The Lord give mercy unto the house of Onesiphorus: for he oft refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chain, 17 But when he was at Rome, he sought me out very diligently, and found me.

18 The Lord grant unto him, that he may find mercy with the Lord at that day, and in how many things he hath ministered unto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

CHAP.

¹ Sent of God to preach that life, which he promised in Christ Jesus.

² The chiefest mark that he shooteth at in this epistle, is to confirm Timothy to continue constantly, and manfully even to the end, setting first before him, the great good will he beareth him, and then reckoning up the excellent gift which God would as it were have to be by inheritance in Timothy, and his ancestors, which might so much the more make him bound to God.

³ From Abraham, Isaac and Jacob: for he speaketh of Pharisaism, but of Christianism.

⁴ He warneth us to set the invincible power of the Spirit which God hath given us, against those storms which may and do come upon us.

⁵ The gift of God is as it were a certain lively flame kindled in our hearts, which the flesh and the devil get about to put out: and therefore we, on the contrary side must labour as much as we can to foster and keep it burning.

⁶ To pierce us through, and terrify us, as men whom the Lord will destroy.

⁷ He proveth that the ignominy or shame of the cross is not only not to be ashamed of, but also that it is glorious and most honourable: first because the gospel, wherefore the godly are afflicted, is the testimony of Christ: and secondly, because at length the great virtue and power of God appeareth in them.

⁸ For his sake.

⁹ The gospel after that sort is said to be afflicted in them that preach it.

¹⁰ Through the power of God.

¹¹ He sheweth with how great benefits God hath bound us, to maintain boldly and constantly his glory which is joined with our salvation, and reckoneth up the causes of our salvation, to wit, that free and eternal purpose of God, to save in Christ, which was to come, whereby it should come to pass, that we should at length be freely called of God by the preaching of the gospel, Christ the destroyer of death and author of immortality.

² He saith, that that grace was given us from everlasting into which we were predestinate from everlasting. So that the doctrine of foreseen faith and foreseen works, is clean contrary to the doctrine which preacheth and teacheth the grace of God.

³ Before that course of years which hath run on, ever since the beginning of the world.

⁴ Hath caused life and immortality to appear.

⁵ That is, the gospel which the apostle preached.

⁶ He confirmeth his apostleship by a strange argument, to wit, because the world could not abide it, and therefore it persecuted him that preached it.

⁷ By setting his own example before us, he sheweth how it may be that we shall not be ashamed of the cross of Christ, to wit, if we be sure that God both can and will keep the salvation which he hath, it were, laid up in store by himself for against that day.

⁸ He sheweth wherein he ought to be most constant, to wit, both in the doctrine itself, the abridgment whereof is faith and charity, and next in the manner of teaching it, a lively pattern and shape whereof Timothy knew in the apostle.

⁹ An amplification taken of the dignity of so great a benefit committed to the ministers.

¹⁰ The taking away of an objection. It is a hard thing to do it, but the Spirit of God is mighty, who hath inwardly endued us with his virtue.

¹¹ He preventeth an offence which arose by the means of certain that fell from God, and the religion, and uttereth also their names, that they might be known of all men. But he setteth against them the singular faith of one man, that one only good example might counterpoise and weigh down all evil examples.

C H A P. II.

2 The better to set out perseverance in the Christian warfare, 3 he taketh similitudes 4 from soldiers; 6 and from husbandmen. 10 He sheweth that his bonds are for the profit of the saints: 15 Then he warneth Timothy to divide the word of truth aright, 17 to beware of the examples of the wicked, 22 and to do all things modestly.

THOU therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus.

2 And what things thou hast heard of me, by many witnesses, the same deliver to faithful men, which shall be able to teach others also.

3 Thou therefore suffer affliction as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

4 No man that warreth, entangleth himself with the affairs of this life, because he would please him that hath chosen him to be a soldier.

5 And if any man also strive for mastery, he is not crowned, except he strive as he ought to do.

6 The husbandman must labour before he receive the fruits.

7 Consider what I say: and the Lord give thee understanding in all things.

8 Remember that Jesus Christ, made of the seed of David, was raised again from the dead according to my gospel, 9 Wherein I suffer troubles as an evil doer, even unto bonds: but the word of God is not bound.

10 Therefore I suffer all things for the elect's sake, that they might also obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus, with eternal glory.

11 It is a true saying, For if we be dead

¹ The conclusion of the former exhortation, which hath also added unto it a declaration, how that they do not keep that worthy thing that is committed unto them, which keep it to themselves, but they rather, which do most freely communicate it with others, to the end that many may be partakers of it, without any man's loss or hindrance.

² When many were by, which can bear witness of these things.

³ Another admonition: That the ministry of the word is a spiritual warfare, which no man can so travail in, that he may please his captain, unless he forego and part with all hindrances which might draw him away from it.

⁴ With affairs of household, or other things that belong to other ordinary businesses.

⁵ The third admonition: The ministry is like to a game or jousting, wherein men strive for the victory, and no man is crowned, unless he strive according to the laws which are prescribed, be they never so hard and painful.

⁶ Another similitude, tending to the same end: no man may look for the harvest, unless he first take pains to plow and sow his ground.

⁷ All these things cannot be understood, and much less practised, unless we ask of God, and he give us understanding.

⁸ He confirmeth plainly two principles of our faith, which are always assaulted of heretics, the one whereof (to wit, that Christ is the true Messiah, made man of the seed of David) is the ground of our salvation: and the other is the highest part of it, to wit, that he is risen again from the dead.

⁹ The taking away of an objection: Truth it is, that he is kept in prison as an evil doer, yet there is a cause, why therefore some should go about to derogate credit from his gospel, seeing that notwithstanding God did bless his ministry, nay rather, that example of this his captivity and patience did sundry ways confirm the church in the hope of a better life.

¹⁰ The fourth admonition: We ought not to contend upon words and questions, which are not only unprofitable, but also for the most part hurtful: but rather upon this, how we may frame ourselves to all manner of patience, and to die also with Christ (that is to say, for Christ's name) because that is the plain way to the most glorious life: as contrariwise, the falling away of men can diminish no part of the truth of God, although by such means they procure together with him, we shall also live together with him. A. D. 66.

12 If we suffer, we shall also reign together with him: if we deny him, he also will deny us.

13 If we believe not, yet abideth he faithful: he cannot deny himself.

14 Of these things put them in remembrance, and protest before the Lord, that they strive not about words, which is to no profit, but to the perverting of the hearers.

15 Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, dividing the word of truth aright.

16 Stay prophane and vain babblings: for they shall increase unto more ungodliness.

17 And their word shall fret as a canker: of which sort is Hymeneus and Philetus, 18 Which as concerning the truth have erred from the mark, saying that the resurrection is past already, and do destroy the faith of certain.

19 But the foundation of God remaineth sure, and hath this seal, The Lord knoweth who are his: and, Let every one that calleth on the name of Christ, depart from iniquity.

20 Notwithstanding, in a great house are not only vessels of gold and of silver, but also of wood and of earth, and some for honour, and some unto dishonour.

21 If any man therefore purge himself from these, he shall be a vessel unto honour, sanctified, and meet for the Lord, and prepared unto every good work.

22 Flee also from the lusts of youth, and follow after righteousness, faith, love, and peace, with them that call on the Lord with a pure heart, most certain destruction to themselves.

23 And

¹ If we be afflicted with Christ, and for Christ's sake.

² Call God to witness, or as a judge: as Moses, Joshua, Samuel, and Paul himself did, Acts 20.

³ The fifth admonition: A minister must not be an idle disputer, but a faithful steward, in dividing aright the word of truth, insonmuch that he must stop the mouths of other vain babblers.

⁴ By adding nothing to it, neither over-slipping any thing, neither mangling it, nor renting it in tunder, nor wresting of it: but marking diligently what his hearers are able to hear, and what is fit to edifying.

⁵ Mark and watch, and see they creep not on further.

⁶ He discovereth the subtilty of Satan, who beginning with these principles, draweth us by little and little to ungodliness through the means of that wicked and prophane babbling, still creeping on: which he proveth by the horrible example of them that taught, that the resurrection was already past.

⁷ A digression, wherein he saith that offence that rose by their falling away: shewing first, that the elect are out of all danger of any such falling away: secondly, that they are known to God, and not to us: and therefore it is no marvel if we count hypocrites oftentimes for the true brethren: but we must take heed that we be not like them, but rather that we be indeed such as we are said to be.

⁸ That serveth and worshippeth him, and is as it were named of him, a faithful man, or Christian.

⁹ The taking away of an objection: It is no dishonour to the good man of the house, that he hath not in a great house all vessels of one sort and for one service, but we must look to this, that we be found vessels prepared to honour.

¹⁰ By these words is meant the execution of the matter, and the cause: for in that we purge ourselves, it is not to be attributed to any free will that is in us, but to God, who freely and wholly worketh in us a good and an effectual will.

¹¹ Returning to the matter from whence he digressed, ver. 16. he warneth him to exercise himself in weighty matters, and such pertain to godliness.

¹² The sixth admonition: We must above all things eschew all bitterness of mind, both in teaching all men, and also in calling them back which have gone out of the way.

A. D. 64. 23 * And put away foolish and unlearned questions, knowing that they engender strife.
 24 But the servant of the Lord must not strive, but must be gentle toward all men, apt to teach, ¹ suffering the evil,
 25 Instructing them with meekness that are ¹ contrary minded, proving if God at any time will give them repentance, that they may acknowledge the truth, 26 And come to amendment out of the snare of the devil, of whom they are taken prisoners, to do his will.

CHAPTER III.

¶ He foretelleth the dangerous times that are to ensue, 9 but with the certain hope of victory, 10 he encourageth him to the combat, setting out especially the trial of sound doctrine.

THIS ¹ know also, that in the ² last days shall come perilous times:

2 For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, cursed speakers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, ³ unholy,

3 Without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, intemperate, fierce, no lovers at all of them which are good,

4 Traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God,

5 Having a shew of godliness, but have denied the power thereof: ⁶ turn away therefore from such:

6 For of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive simple women laden with sins, and led with divers lusts,

7 Which women are ever learning, and are never able to come to the acknowledging of the truth.

8 * And as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, so do these also resist the truth, men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith.

9 ¹ But they shall prevail no longer: for their madness shall be evident unto all men, as theirs also was.

10 ¶ ² But thou hast ³ fully known my doctrine, manner of living, purpose, faith, long-suffering, love, patience,

11 Persecutions, and afflictions which came unto me at ⁴ Antioch, at Iconium, and at Lystra, which persecutions I suffered: but from them all the Lord delivered me: A. D. 64.

12 Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus, shall suffer persecution.

13 But the evil men and deceivers shall wax ¹ worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived.

14 But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned, and which are committed unto thee, knowing of whom thou hast learned them:

15 And that thou hast known the holy scriptures of a child, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through the faith which is in Christ Jesus.

16 * ⁵ For the whole scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable to teach, to convince, to correct, and to instruct in righteousness, 17 That the ⁶ man of God may be absolute, being made perfect unto all good works.

CHAPTER IV.

¶ He chargeth him to preach the gospel with all diligence, 3 in that so miserable a time: 6 That his death is hard at hand, ⁷ yet so, that as a conqueror, he maketh haste to a glorious triumph. 10 He sheweth the cause why he sendeth for Timothy, 11 even by reason of his present state.

I charge thee therefore before God, and before the Lord Jesus Christ, which shall judge the quick and dead at that his appearing, and in his kingdom,

2 Preach the word: be instant, in season and out of season: reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine.

3 ¹ For the time will come when they will not suffer wholesome doctrine: but having their ears itching, shall after their own lusts get them an heap of teachers,

4 And shall turn their ears from the truth, and shall be given unto ² fables.

5 ³ But watch thou in all things: suffer adversity: do the work of an evangelist: ⁴ cause thy ministry to be thoroughly liked of.

6 * For I am now ready to be ⁵ offered, and the time of my departing is at hand.

7 I have have perfectly delivered unto us whatsoever pertaineth either to discern, know, and establish true opinions, and to confute false: and furthermore to correct evil manners, and to frame good.

¶ The prophets and expounders of God's will, are properly and peculiarly called, Men of God.

¶ The principal and chief of all admonitions being therefore proposed with a most earnest charge, is this: that the word of God be propounded with a certain holy importunity, as necessity requireth: but so, that a good and true ground of the doctrine be laid, and the vehemency be tempered with all holy meekness.

¶ Faithful pastors, in times past, took all occasions they could, because ¹ were very prompt and ready to return to their fables.

¶ To false and unprofitable doctrines which the world is now so bewitched withal, that it had rather the open light of the truth were utterly put out, than it would come out of darkness.

¶ The wickedness and falling away of the world ought to cause faithful ministers to be so much the more careful.

¶ Prove and shew by good and substantial proof, that thou art the true minister of God.

¶ He foretelleth his death to be ¹ hand, and setteth before them an excellent example, both of invincible constancy, and sure hope.

¶ To be offered for a drink-offering: and he alludeth to the pouring out of blood or wine, which was used in sacrifices.

• 1 Tim. 1. 4. and 2. 7. Tit. 2. 9.

• Exod. 7. 11.

¹ To win them through our patient bearing with them. but not to please them, or excuse them in their wickedness.

² He meaneth such ³ do not yet see the truth.

⁴ The seventh admonition: We may not hope for any church in this world without corruption: but there shall be rather great abundance of most wicked men, even in the very bosom of the church, which notwithstanding shall make a shew and countenance of great holiness and charity.

⁵ Which make no account, either of right or honesty.

⁶ We must not dally with such ⁷ resist the truth, not of simple ignorance, but of ⁸ perverse mind, (which thing appeareth by their fruits, which he painteth out here lively) but we must rather turn away from them.

⁹ He addeth a comfort: the Lord will at length pluck off all their vizards.

¹⁰ That we be not deceived by such hypocrites, we must set before us the virtues of the holy servants of God. and we must not be afraid of persecution, which they suffered willingly, and which always followeth true godliness. But we must especially hold fast the doctrine of the apostles, the sum whereof is this, that we ¹¹ saved through faith in Christ Jesus.

¹² Thou knowest thoroughly not only what I taught and did, but also how I was minded and disposed.

¹³ Which is in Pindia.

¹⁴ Their wickedness shall daily increase.

¹⁵ The eighth admonition, which is most precious: A pastor must be wise by the word of God only: wherein we

■ The second epistle written from Rome unto Timothy, the first bishop elected of the church of Ephesus, when Paul presented the second time before the emperor Nero:

* Of Nero.

† Preserve me pure from committing any thing unworthy my apostleship.

‡ To make me partaker of his kingdom.

The Epistle of PAUL to TITUS.

C H A P. I.

A. D. 65. 6 He sheweth what kind of men ought to be chosen ministers: 12 how vain babblers mouths should be stopped: 12 And through this occasion he toucheth the nature of the Cretians, 14 and the Jews who put holiness in outward things.

PAUL is a servant of God, and an apostle of Jesus Christ, according to the faith of God's elect, and the acknowledging of the truth which is according unto godliness,

■ Unto the hope of eternal life, which God that cannot lye, hath promised before the world began:

* Rom. 16. 25. Eph. 3. 9. Col. 1. 26. † Tim. 1. 9. ‡ Pet. 1. 20. § Gal. 1. 1. 3 But hath made his word manifest in due time through the preaching which is committed unto me, according to the commandment of God our Saviour.

1 He voucheth his apostleship (not for Titus, but for the Cretians sake) both by the testimony of his outward calling, and by his consent, wherein he agreeth with all the elect from the beginning of the world.

2 A minister; as Christ himself, in that that is a minister and head of the prophets, is called a servant, Isa. 43. 10.

3 Of those whom God hath chosen.

4 The faith wherein all the elect consent, is the true and sincere knowledge of God, tending to this end, that worshipping God aright, they may at length obtain life everlasting according to the promise of God, who is true, which promise was exhibited in Christ in due time according to his eternal purpose.

5 Hope is the end of faith.

6 Freely, and of his mere liberality.

7 Look in Tim. 1. 9.

8 This truth is no other where to be sought, but in the preaching of the apostles.

A. D. 65. 4 To Titus my natural son according to the faith, Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ our Saviour.

5 For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest continue to redress the things that remain, and shouldest ordain elders in every city, as I appointed thee;

6 * If any be unrepensible; the husband of one wife; having faithful children, which are not slandered of riot, neither are disobedient. * 1 Tim. 3. 2.

7 For a bishop must be unrepensible; God's steward, not froward, not angry, not given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre;

8 But harbourous; one that loveth goodness, wife, righteous, holy, temperate,

3 T Holding

1 This word (Saviour) doth not only signify preserver of life, but also giver of life.

2 The apostle moveth the Cretians to hear Titus, by setting forth his consent and agreement with him in the faith, and therewithal sheweth by what special ways we may distinguish true ministers from false.

3 There is but one way of salvation, common both to the pastor and the flock.

4 The first admonition, to ordain elders in every city.

5 This word proper horses and oxen, which will not abide the yoke.

6 The second admonition: What faults pastors (whom he comprehended afore under the word elders) ought to be void of, and what virtues they ought to have.

7 Whom the Lord hath appointed steward of his gifts,

8 Not hard conditioned, and evil to please.

9 Circumspect, and of a sound judgment, and of a singular example of moderation.

A. D. 65. 9 Holding fast that faithful word according to doctrine, that he also may be able to exhort with wholesome doctrine, and convince them that say against it :

10 For there are many disobedient and vain talkers and deceivers of minds, chiefly they of the circumcision, 11 Whose mouths must be stopped, which subvert whole houses, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake.

12 One of themselves, even one of their own prophets said, The Cretians are always liars, wild beasts, slow bellies.

13 This witness is true : wherefore convince them sharply, that they may be found in the faith,

14 And not taking heed to Jewish fables, and commandments of men, that turn away from the truth.

15 Unto the pure are all things pure : but unto them that are defiled, and unbelieving, is nothing pure, but even their minds and consciences are defiled.

16 They profess that they know God, but by works they deny him, and are abominable and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.

C H A P. II.

1 He desireth that all generally persons and states, should be brought to Christ in manners. 11 He draweth an argument from the end of our redemption, 12 which is, that we live godly and uprightly.

BUT speak thou the things which become wholesome doctrine,

2 That the elder men be watchful, grave, temperate, sound in the faith, in love, and in patience.

3 The elder women likewise, that they be in such behaviour as becometh holiness, not false accusers, nor subject to much wine, but teachers of honest things,

4 That they may instruct the young women to be sober minded, that they love their husbands, that they love their children,

5 The third admonition : The pastor must hold fast that doctrine which the apostles delivered, and pertaineth to salvation, leaving all curious and vain matters.

6 The fourth admonition : To apply the knowledge of true doctrine unto use, which consisteth in two things, to wit, in governing them which shew themselves apt to learn, and confuting the obstinate.

7 An applying of the general proposition to a particular. The Cretians above all other need sharp reprehensions : both because their minds naturally given to lyes and falsehoods, and also because of certain covetous Jews, which under a colour of godliness, joined partly certain vain traditions, and partly old ceremonies with the gospel.

8 Of the Jews, or rather of those Jews which went about to join Christ and the law together.

9 Epimenides, who was counted a prophet amongst them. Look upon Laerius, and Cicero in his first book of divination.

10 Roughly and plainly, and go not about the bush with them.

11 He sheweth in few words, that purity consisteth not in any external worship, and that that is according to the old law (as in difference of meats and washings, and other such things which are abolished) but in the mind and conscience : and whosoever teach otherwise, know what is true religion indeed, and also nothing less than that they would seem to be.

12 If our minds and consciences be unclean, what cleanliness is there in us before regeneration ?

13 The fifth admonition : The doctrine must not only be generally pure, but also be applied to all ages and orders of 5 That they be temperate, chaste, keeping at home, good and subject unto their husbands, that the word of God be not evil spoken of.

6 Exhort young likewise, that they be sober minded.

7 In all things shew thyself an example of good works with uncorrupt doctrine, with gravity, integrity,

8 And with the wholesome word, which cannot be condemned, that he which withstandeth, may be ashamed, having nothing concerning you to speak evil of.

9 Let servants be subject to their masters, and please them in all things, not answering again,

10 Neither pickers, but that they shew all good faithfulness, that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

11 For that grace of God, that bringeth salvation unto all men, hath appeared,

12 And teacheth us, that we should deny ungodliness and worldly lusts, and that we should live soberly and righteously; and godly in this present world,

13 Looking for that blessed hope, and appearing of that glory of that mighty God, and of our Saviour Jesus Christ, 14 Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purge us, to be a peculiar people unto himself, zealous of good works.

15 These things speak and exhort, and convince with all authority. See that no man despise thee.

C H A P. III.

1 He willetb that all generally be put in mind to reverence such as be in authority : That they remember their former life, and attribute all justification unto grace. 9 And if any brawler withstand these things, 10 he willetb that he be rejected.

P U T them in remembrance that they be subject to the principalities and powers, and that they be obedient, and ready to every good work, men, according to the diversity of circumstances.

2 That

3 What are the chiefest virtues for old and young, both men and women, and how they ought be stirred up unto them continually.

4 No gadders up and down.

5 The sixth admonition : That both the pastor's life and doctrine must be sound.

6 Not such gravity as may drive men from coming to the minister, but such as may cause them to come in most reverent and honest sort.

7 The seventh admonition, of servants duty toward their masters.

8 Which may be done without offence to God.

9 The eighth admonition, belonging to all the godly : that seeing God calleth all to the gospel, and Christ hath justified us, that he hath also sanctified us, we must all of us give our selves true godliness, and righteousness, setting before us a sure hope of that immeasurable glory : which thing must in such sort be beaten into their heads, that the gain sayers also must be reprov'd, by the authority of the mighty God.

10 Lusts of the flesh, which belong to the present state of this life and world.

11 Christ is here most plainly called that mighty God, and his appearance and coming is called by the figure Metonymy, our hope.

12 As it were a thing peculiarly laid up for himself.

13 With all authority possible.

14 He declareth particularly and severally that which he said before generally, noting out certain chief and principal duties, which men owe to men, and especially subjects to their magistrates.

The Epistle of PAUL to PHILEMON.

1 Paul handling a base and small matter, yet according to his manner mounteth aloft unto God. 8 Sending again to Philemon his vagabond and thievish servant, he entreateth pardon for him, and very gravely preacheth of Christian equity.

PAUL ■ prisoner of Jesus Christ, and our brother Timothy, unto Philemon our dear friend, and fellow-helper:

2 And to our dear sister Apphia, and to Archippus our fellow soldier, and to the church that is in thine house:

^c Good brother, let me obtain this benefit at thine hand,

The Epistle to the HEBREWS.

The drift and end of this epistle is, to shew that Jesus Christ the Son of God, both God and man, is that true, eternal and only prophet, king, and high priest, that was shadowed by the figures of the old law, and is now indeed exhibited: of whom the whole church ought to be taught, governed, and sanctified.

CHAP. I.

A. D.
64.

1 To shew that the doctrine which Christ brought, is most excellent, in that it is the knitting up of all prophecies, and he advanced him above the angels.

10 And proveth by divers testimonies of the scripture, that he far passeth all other.

AT sundry times and in divers manners God spake in the old time to our fathers by the prophets: in these last days he hath spoken unto us by his Son,

2 Whom he hath made heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds,

Col. 1. 15.

3 Who being the brightness of the glory, and the ingrav'd form of his person, and bearing up all things by his mighty word, hath by himself purged our sins, and sitteth on the right hand of the majesty in the highest places,

4 And is made so much more excellent than the angels, inasmuch he hath obtained a more excellent name than they:

^a The first part of the general proposition of this epistle. The Son of God is indeed that prophet or teacher, which hath actually now performed that, that God after sort, and in shadows, signified by his prophets, and hath fully opened his Father's will to the world.

^b So that the former declaration made by the prophet was not full, and nothing must be added to this later.

Which one Son is God and man.

^c The second part of the same proposition: The same Son is appointed of the Father to be our King and Lord, by whom also he made all things: and in whom only he setteth forth his glory, yea, and himself also to be beholden of us, who beareth up and sustaineth all things by his will and pleasure.

^d Possessor and equal partner of all things with the Father.

^e That is, whatsoever hath been any time, is, or shall be.

^f He in whom that glory and majesty of the Father shineth, who is otherwise infinite, and cannot be beholden.

His Father's person.

Sustaineth, defendeth, and cherisheth.

^g The third part of the same proposition: The same Son executed the office of the high priest in offering up himself, and is our only and most mighty Mediator in heaven.

^h This sheweth that the favour of that his sacrifice is not only most acceptable to the Father, but also is everlasting, and furthermore, how far this high priest passeth

5 For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, this day begat I thee? and again, I will be his Father, and he shall be my Son?

6 And again, when he bringeth in his first begotten Son into the world, he saith, And let all the angels of God worship him.

7 And of the angels he saith, He maketh the spirits his messengers, and his ministers a flame of fire.

¶ But unto the Son he saith, O God, thy throne is for ever and ever: the scepter of thy kingdom is a scepter of righteousness.

9 Thou hast loved righteousness and hated iniquity: wherefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

10 And, Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast established the earth, and the heavens are the works of thine hand.

11 They

the other high priests.

^a Before he cometh to declare the office of Christ, he setteth forth the excellency of his person, and first of all he sheweth him to be man, that therewithal he is God also.

^b Dignity and honour.

^c He proveth and confirmeth the dignity of Christ manifested in the flesh, by these six evident testimonies, whereby it appeareth that he far passeth all angels, inasmuch that he is called both Son, and God, in verses 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 13.

^d The Father begat the Son from everlasting, but that everlasting generation was made manifest and represented to the world in his time, and therefore he addeth this word (To-day).

^e The Lord was not content to have spoken it once, but he repeateth it in another place.

Cherub, Psalm 18. 11.

Seraph, Isa. 6. 2.

The throne is proper to princes, and not to servants.

For everlasting, for this doubling of the word increaseth the signification of it beyond all measure.

The government of thy kingdom is righteous.

This kind of rehearsing, which the Jews use by contraries, hath great force in it.

In that, that the word became flesh, by pouring the Holy Ghost upon him without measure.

For he is the head, and are his members.

Made the earth firm and sure.

13 ¹⁰ Unto which also of the angels said he at any time, * Sit ¹¹ my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool?

14 Are they not all ¹² ministering spirits, sent forth to minister, for their sakes which shall be heirs of salvation?

C H A P. II.

¹ Therefore ² be inferreth that good heed must be given to Christ's doctrine: ³ And he setteth him out unto us even as our brother in our flesh, that we may with ⁴ good will yield up ourselves wholly unto him.

Wherefore ¹ we ought diligently ² give heed to the things which ³ we have heard, lest at any time we ⁴ run out.

² For if the ³ word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompence of reward,

³ How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation, ⁴ which at the first began to be preached by the Lord, and ⁵ afterward ⁶ confirmed unto us by ⁷ them that heard him,

⁸ * God bearing witness thereto, both with ⁹ signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and ¹⁰ By that name, by which we commonly call princes messengers, he here calleth the spirits.

¹¹ Now as it were pausing with himself, and shewing to what end and purpose all these things were spoken, to wit, to understand by the excellency of Christ, above all creatures, that his doctrine, majesty, and priesthood, is most perfect, he useth an exhortation taken from a comparison.

¹² He maketh himself an hearer. ¹³ They are said to let the word run out, which hold it not fast when they have heard it.

¹⁴ The law which appointed punishment for the offenders: and which Paul saith was given by angels, Gal. 3. 19. and Stephen, Acts 7. 53.

¹⁵ If the breach and transgression of the word spoken by angels was not suffered unpunished, much less shall it be lawful for us ¹⁶ neglect the gospel which the Lord of angels preached, and was confirmed by the voice of the apostles, and with so many signs and wonders from heaven, and especially with so great and mighty working of the Holy Ghost.

¹⁷ By the apostles.

¹⁸ This is the true end of miracles. Now they ¹⁹ called signs, because they appear one thing, and represent another: and they are called wonders, because they represent some strange and unaccustomed thing: and virtues, because they give us a glimpse of God's mighty power.

²⁰ If it were an heinous matter ²¹ to contemn the angels which are but servants, much more heinous is it ²² contemn that most mighty King of the restored world.

²³ The world ²⁴ come, whereof Christ is Father, Isa. 9. 6. or the church, which, as a ²⁵ world, ²⁶ to be gathered together by the gospel.

²⁷ He sheweth that the use of this kingly dignity consisteth herein, that men might not only in Christ recover that dignity which they have lost, but also might be through him advanced above all things, which dignity of ²⁸ David describeth most excellently.

²⁹ What is there in man that thou shouldest have so great regard of him, and do him that honour?

³⁰ He calleth all the citizens of that heavenly kingdom, as they are considered in themselves, before that God giveth them the liberty of that city in Christ, man, and the Son of man.

³¹ This is the first honour of the citizens of the world ³² come, that they are next the angels.

³³ For they shall be in very great honour when they shall be partakers of the kingdom. And he speaketh of the thing that shall be, as though it ³⁴ already, because it ³⁵ so certain.

³⁶ An objection: But where is this so great rule and dominion?

³⁷ The answer: This is already fulfilled in Jesus Christ our head, who ³⁸ for a time for our sakes inferior to the angels, being made man: but ³⁹ is advanced into most gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own ⁴⁰ will? A. D. 64.

⁴¹ For he hath ⁴² not put in subjection unto the angels the ⁴³ world to come, whereof we speak:

⁴⁴ But ⁴⁵ one in a certain place witnessed, saying, ⁴⁶ What is man, that thou shouldest be mindful of him? or the ⁴⁷ son of man, that thou wouldest consider him? ⁴⁸ Pl. 8. 6.

⁴⁹ Thou ⁵⁰ madest him a little inferior to the angels: thou crownest him with ⁵¹ glory and honour, and hast set him above the works of thine hands.

⁵² Thou hast put all things in subjection ⁵³ under his feet: And in that he hath put all things in subjection under him, he left nothing that should not be subject unto him. ⁵⁴ But we yet see not all things subdued unto him, ⁵⁵ Cor. 15. 27.

⁵⁶ But we ⁵⁷ see Jesus crowned with glory and honour, ⁵⁸ which was made little ⁵⁹ inferior ⁶⁰ Phil. 2. 8. to the angels, ⁶¹ through the ⁶² suffering of death, that by God's grace he might ⁶³ taste death for ⁶⁴ all men.

⁶⁵ For it became ⁶⁶ him, for whom ⁶⁷ are all these things, and by whom ⁶⁸ are all these things, ⁶⁹ seeing that he brought many children unto glory, ⁷⁰ that he should consecrate the ⁷¹ Prince or their salvation through afflictions.

⁷² For he that ⁷³ sanctifieth, and they which

3 U are high glory.

⁷⁴ By his virtue and power, which appeareth manifestly in the church.

⁷⁵ Who abased himself for ⁷⁶ season, and took upon him the shape of ⁷⁷ servant.

⁷⁸ He sheweth the cause of this subjection, ⁷⁹ wit, to taste of death for ⁸⁰ sakes, that so doing the part of a Redeemer, he might not only be our prophet and king, but also our high priest.

⁸¹ That he might die.

⁸² Feel death.

⁸³ Herein consisteth the force of the argument: for we could ⁸⁴ at length be glorified with him, unless he had been abased for us, even all the faithful. And by this occasion the apostle cometh ⁸⁵ the other part of the declaration of Christ's person, wherein he proveth him to be in such sort God, that he is also man.

⁸⁶ He proveth ⁸⁷ by other arguments, why it behoved the Son of God, who is ⁸⁸ God (as he proved a little before) to become man notwithstanding, subject ⁸⁹ all miseries, sin only except.

⁹⁰ God.

⁹¹ First of all, because the Father, to whose glory all things are to be referred, purposed to bring many sons unto ⁹² glory. And how could he have men for his sons, unless ⁹³ his only begotten Son had become brother to men?

⁹⁴ Secondly, the Father determined to bring those sons to glory, to wit, out of that ignominy wherein they lay before. Therefore the Son should not have been seen plainly to be made man, unless he had been made like unto other men, that he might come to glory by the self-same way, by the which he should bring others: yea rather, it became him which was Prince of the salvation of others, ⁹⁵ he consecrated above others, through those afflictions, Prophet, King, and Priest, which are the parts of that principality for the salvation of others.

⁹⁶ The chieftain, who as he is chiefest in dignity, ⁹⁷ is he the ⁹⁸ begotten from among the dead, amongst many brethren.

⁹⁹ The ground of both the former arguments: for neither should we be sons through him, neither could he be consecrated through afflictions, unless he had been made man like unto us. But because his Sonhood dependeth not upon nature only, for no man is accounted the son of God, unless that, besides that he is a son of man, he be also Christ's brother, (which is by sanctification, that is, by becoming ¹⁰⁰ with Christ, who sanctifieth us through faith) therefore the apostle maketh mention of the sanctifier, ¹⁰¹ wit, of Christ, and of them that are sanctified, to wit, of all ¹⁰² faithful; whom therefore Christ vouchsafeth to call brethren.

¹⁰³ He useth the time that now is, to shew us that we are yet still going on, and increasing in this sanctification: and by

A. D. are sanctified, are all of one: wherefore he is not ashamed to call them brethren, 12¹³ Saying, I will declare thy name unto my brethren: in the midst of the church will sing praises to thee.
 13¹⁴ And again, I will put my trust in him. And again, Behold here am I, and the children which God hath given me.
 14 Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part with them, that he might destroy through death, him that had the power of death, that is, the devil,
 15 And that he might deliver all them, which for fear of death were all their life time subject to bondage:
 16 For he in no sort took on him the angels nature, but he took on him the seed of Abraham.
 17 Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be merciful, and a faithful high priest in things concerning God, that he might make reconciliation for the sins of the people:
 18 For in that he suffered, and was tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.

C H A P. III.

Now he sheweth how far inferior Moses is to Christ, 5, 6 even so much as the servant to the master: and so he bringeth in certain exhortations and threatenings taken out of David, 8 against such as either stubbornly resist, 12 or else are very slow to obey.

by far sanctification he meaneth our separation from the rest of the world, our cleansing from sin, and our dedication wholly unto God, all which Christ alone worketh in us.
 1 Ore, of one self-same nature of man.
 2 That which he taught before of the incarnation of the Sanctifier, he applieth to the prophetic office.
 3 He applieth the same to the king's power of Christ, in delivering him from the power of the devil and death.
 4 I will commit myself to him, and to his defence.
 5 This Isaiah speaketh of him self and his disciples, but betokening thereby all ministers, as also his disciples signify the whole church. And therefore seeing Christ is the head of the prophets and ministers, these words more rightly verified of him, than of Isaiah.
 6 Are made of flesh and blood, which is a frail and brittle nature.
 7 The devil is said to have the power of death, because he is the author of sin: and from sin cometh death, and for this cause he beggeth us daily to sin.
 8 He speaketh of one of the prince, joining to him secretly all his angels.
 9 By (death) thou must understand here, that death which is joined with the wrath of God, as it must needs be, if it be without Christ, than the which there can be nothing devised more miserable.
 10 He expoundeth those words of flesh and blood, shewing that Christ is true man, and that not by turning his divine nature, but by taking of man's nature. And he nameth Abraham, respecting the promises made Abraham in his behalf.
 11 The nature of angels.
 12 The very nature of man.
 13 He applieth the same to the priesthood, for which he should not have been fit, unless he had become man, and that like unto in all things, sin only except.
 14 Not only as touching nature, but qualities also.
 15 That he might be truly touched with the feeling of our miseries.
 16 Doing his office sincerely.
 17 Was tried and egged to wickedness by the devil.
 18 Having laid the foundation, that is to say, declared and proved both the natures of one self-same Christ, he giveth him three offices, to wit, the office of a prophet, king, and priest, and as touching the office of teaching and governing, compareth him with Moses and Joshua, unto

Therefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly vocation, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Christ Jesus:
 2 Who was faithful to him that hath appointed him, even as Moses was in all his house.
 3 For this man is counted worthy of more glory than Moses, insomuch as he which hath builded the house, hath more honour than the house.
 4 For every house is builded of some man, and he that hath built all things, is God.
 5 Now Moses verily was faithful in all his house, servant, for witness of the things which should be spoken after:
 6 But Christ is the Son, over his own house, whose house we are, if we hold fast that confidence and that rejoicing of that hope unto the end.
 7 Wherefore, as the Holy Ghost saith, To-day if ye shall hear his voice,
 8 Harden not your hearts, in the provocation, according to the day of the temptation in the wilderness,
 9 Where your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works forty years long.
 10 Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and said, They err ever in their heart, neither have they known my ways.
 11 Therefore I swear in my wrath, If they shall enter into my rest.
 12 Take heed, brethren, lest at any time there be in any of you an evil heart, and unfaithful, to depart away from the living God.
 13 But the fourteenth verse of the next chapter, and with Aaron touching the priesthood. And he propoundeth that which he purposed to speak of, with most grave exhortation, that all our faith may tend to Christ, as to the only everlasting teacher, governor, and high priest.
 1 The ambassador or messenger, as Rom. 15. he is called the minister of circumcision.
 2 Of the doctrine of the gospel which we profess.
 3 He confirmeth his exhortation with two reasons, first of all, because Christ Jesus was appointed such an one of God: secondly, because he thoroughly executed the offices that his Father enjoined him.
 4 Apostle and high priest.
 5 Now he cometh to the comparison with Moses, and he maketh them like one to the other in this, that they were both appointed rulers over God's house, and executed faithfully their offices: but by and by after he sheweth that there is great unlikeliness in that same similitude.
 6 The first comparison: The builder of the house is better than the house itself, therefore is Christ better than Moses. The reason of the consequent is this: because the builder of this house is God, which cannot be attributed to Moses: and therefore Moses was not properly the builder, but a part of the house: but Christ Lord and God made all this house.
 7 Another comparison: Moses was a faithful servant in this house, that is, in the church, serving the Lord that was to come, but Christ ruleth and governeth his house Lord.
 8 He applieth the former doctrine to his end, exhorting all men by the words of David to hear the Son himself speak, and to give full credit to his words, seeing that otherwise they cannot enter into that eternal rest.
 9 To wit, Christ's.
 10 He calleth that excellent effect of faith (whereby we cry Abba, that is, Father) confidence, and in confidence he joineth hope.
 11 So that God will speak again after Moses.
 12 In the day that they vexed the Lord, or strove with him.
 13 They are brutish and mad.
 14 Now weighing the words of David, he sheweth first by this word, To-day, that we must not neglect the occasion while we have it: for that word is not to be restrained to David's time, but it comprehendeth all that time wherein God calleth us.

A. D. 64.

Num. 12.

Pf. 95. l. Ch. 4. 7.

A. D. 64. 13 But exhort one another daily, ¹ while it is called to day, lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin:

14 ¹ For we are made partakers of Christ, ² if we keep sure unto the end that ³ beginning wherewith we are upholden, 15 ¹ So long as it is said, To-day if ye hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation.

16 For some when they heard, provoked him to anger: howbeit, not all that came out of Egypt by Moses.

17 But with whom was he displeased forty years? Was he not displeased with them that sinned, * whose carcases fell in the wilderness?
 * Num. 14. 37.

18 And to whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but unto them that obeyed not?

19 So we see that they could not enter in, because of unbelief.

C H A P. IV.

1 He joineth exhortation with threatening, lest they, even as their fathers were, be deprived of the rest offered unto them, 11 but that they endeavour to enter into it. 14 And so he beginneth to intreat of Christ's priesthood.

LET us fear therefore, lest at any time by forsaking the promise of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to be deprived:

2 ¹ For unto us was the gospel preached as also unto them: but the word that they heard, profited not them, because it was not ² mixed with faith in those that heard it.

3 ² For we which have believed, do enter in to the rest, as he said to the other, * As I have sworn in my wrath, If they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.

4 For he spake in a certain place of the se-

¹ While to-day lasteth, that is to say, so long as the gospel is offered to us.

² Now he considereth these words, ² If you hear his voice, &c. shewing that they are spoken and meant of the hearing of faith, against which he setteth hardening through unbelief.

³ That beginning of trust and confidence: and after the manner of the Hebrews, he calleth that, beginning, which is chiefest.

¹ So long as this voice soundeth out.

² By these words, ² His voice, he sheweth that David meant the preaching of Christ, who was then also preached, for Moses and the prophets respected none other.

³ He compareth the preaching of the gospel in drink, which being drunk, that is to say, heard, profiteth nothing, unless it be tempered with faith.

² Lest any man should object that those words were meant of the land of Canaan, and of Moses's doctrine, and therefore cannot be well drawn to Christ, and to eternal life; the apostle sheweth that there are two manner of rests spoken of in the scriptures: the one of the seventh day, wherein God is said to have rested from all his works: another is said to be that same, whereunto Joshua led the people: but this rest is not the last rest whereunto ² are called: and that he proveth by two reasons. For seeing that David so long time after, speaking to the people which were then placed in the land of Canaan, useth these words, To-day, and threateneth them still that they shall ² enter into the rest of God, which refused then the voice of God that sounded in their ears, we must needs say that he meant another ² than the time of Moses, and another rest than the rest of the land of Canaan; and that is, that everlasting rest, wherein we begin ² live ² God, after that the ² of this life ceaseth: as God rested the seventh day from those his works, that is ² say, from making the world. Moreover the apostle therewithal signifieth that the way ² this rest, which Moses and the land of Canaan, and all that order of the venth day on this wise, ² And God did rest the seventh day from all his works.

5 And in this place again, If they shall enter into my rest.

6 Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter thereinto, and they to whom it was first preached, entered not therein for unbelief's sake:

7 Again he appointed in David a certain day, by To-day, after so long ² time, saying, as it is said, * This day, If ye hear his voice, harden not ² your hearts.
 * Ch. 3. 7.

8 For if ² Jesus had given them rest, then would he not after this have spoken of another day:

9 There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God.

10 ² For he that is entered into his rest, hath also ceased from his own works, ² God did from his.

11 ² Let us study therefore to enter into that rest, lest ² any man fall after the same ensample of disobedience.

12 ² For the ² word of God is ² lively, and mighty in operation, and sharper than any two-edged sword, and entereth through, even unto the dividing asunder of the ² soul and the ² spirit, and of the joints and the marrow, and is a ² discerner of the thoughts and the intents of the heart.

13 Neither is there any creature; which is not manifest in ² his sight: but all things are naked and open unto his eyes, with whom we have to do.

14 ² Seeing then that we have a great High Priest, which is entered into heaven, even Jesus the Son of God, let us ² hold fast our profession:

15 ² For we have not an High Priest, which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all things tempted in like sort, yet without sin.

law did shadow, is opened in the gospel only.

² He speaketh of Joshua the son of Nun: and as the land of Canaan was ² figure of our true rest, so was Joshua a figure of Christ.

² As God rested the seventh day, so must we rest from our works, that is, from such ² proceed from our corrupt nature.

² He returneth to an exhortation.

² Lest any man become ² like example of infidelity.

² An amplification taken from the nature of the word of God, the power wherof is such, that it entereth even to the deepest and most inward and secret parts of the heart, wounding them deadly that are stubborn, and plainly quickening the believers.

² The doctrine of God which is preached both in the law and in the gospel.

² He calleth the word of God lively, by reason of the effects it worketh in them to whom it is preached.

² He calleth that the soul which hath the affections resident in it.

² By the spirit, he meaneth that noblest part which is called the mind.

² In God's sight.

² Now he entereth into the comparison of Christ's priesthood with Aaron's, and declareth even in the very beginning the marvellous excellency of this priesthood, calling him the Son of God, and placing him in the seat of God in heaven, plainly and evidently setting him against Aaron's priests, and the transitory tabernacle, which compares he setteth forth afterward ² large.

² And let it not ² of our hands.

² Lest he might ² by this great glory of our High Priest, ² stay and stop ² from going unto him, he addeth straightways after, that he is notwithstanding our brother indeed, (as he proved it also before) and that he accounteth all ² mieries his ², to call ² boldly ² him.

A. D. 64. 10 Let us therefore go boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy, and find grace to help in the time of need.

C H A P. V.

1 First he sheweth the duty of the high priest: 5 Secondly, that Christ is appointed of God to be our high Priest, 7 and that he hath fulfilled all things belonging therunto.

FOR every high priest is taken from among men, and is ordained for men, in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins,

2 Which is able sufficiently to have compassion on them that are ignorant, and that are out of the way, because that he is also compassed with infirmity,

3 And for the same's sake he is bound to offer for sins, as well for his own part, as for the people's.

• 1 Chron. 13. 12. and 23. 13. 4 * 3 And no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

• Ps. 2. 7. Ch. 1. 5. Heb. 1. 4. Ch. 7. 17. Ch. 7. 15. 5 So likewise Christ took not to himself this honour, to be made the high priest: but he that said unto him, * Thou art my Son, this day began I thee, gave it him.

6 As he also in another place speaketh, * Thou art a priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedek:

7 4 Who in the days of his flesh did offer up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto him that was able to save him from death, and was also heard in that which he feared.

8 And though he were the Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered.

9 5 And being consecrate, was made the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him:

10 And is called of God an high priest after the order of Melchisedek:

* The first part of the first comparison of Christ's high priesthood with Aaron's: Other high priests are taken from among men, and are called after the order of men.

† The first part of the second comparison: Others as weak are made high priests, the end that feeling the same infirmity in themselves which is in all the rest of the people, they should in their own and the people's offer gifts and sacrifices, which are witnesses of common faith and repentance.

2 Offering of things without life.

3 Beasts which were killed, but especially in the sacrifices for sins and offences.

4 Fit and meet.

5 On them that are sinful: for in the Hebrew tongue, under ignorance and error is every sin meant, even that sin that is voluntary.

6 For that he himself beareth about with him nature subject to the same discommodities and vices.

7 The third comparison which is whole. The others are called of God, and so was Christ, but in another order than Aaron: for Christ is called the Son, begotten of God, and a Priest for ever after the order of Melchisedek.

8 After the likeness or manner as it is afterward declared.

9 The other part of the second comparison: Christ being exceedingly afflicted, and exceedingly merciful, asked not for his sins, for he had none, but for his fear, and obtained his request, and offered himself for all his.

10 While he lived here with us, in our weak and frail nature.

† To deliver him from death.

‡ He learned indeed what it is to have a Father, whom man must obey.

§ The other part of the first comparison. But Christ was consecrate of God the Father as the author of our salvation, and high priest for ever, and therefore he is so a man, that notwithstanding he is far above all men.

11 6 Of whom we have many things to say, which are hard to be uttered, because ye are dull of hearing.

12 7 For when as concerning the time ye ought to be teachers, yet have ye need again that we teach you what are the first principles of the word of God: and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat,

13 For every one that useth milk, is inexperienced in the word of righteousness: for he is a babe.

14 But strong meat belongeth to them that are of age, which through long custom have their wits exercised to discern both good and evil.

C H A P. VI.

1 He briefly toucheth the childish slothfulness of the Hebrews, 4 and terrifieth them with severe threatenings: 7 He stirreth them up to endeavour in time to go forward: 9 He hopeth well of them: 13 He alledgeth Abraham's example, 17 and compareth faith that taketh hold the word, 19 unto an anchor.

THEREFORE, leaving the doctrine of the beginnings of Christ, let us be led forward unto perfection, not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God,

2 Of the doctrine of baptism, and laying on of hands, and of the resurrection from the dead, and of eternal judgment.

3 And this will we do if God permit:

4 * 2 For it is impossible that they which were once lightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost,

5 And have tasted of the good word of God, and of the powers of the world to come,

6 If they fall away, should be renewed again by repentance: seeing they crucify again to themselves the Son of God, and make a mock of him:

7 For

* Look chap. 2. 10.

† A digression until he come to the beginning of the seventh chapter: wherein he partly holdeth the Hebrews in the diligent consideration of those things which he hath said, and partly prepareth them to the understanding of those things whereof he will speak.

‡ An example of an apostolic chiding.

§ In the word which teacheth righteousness.

¶ All their power whereby they understand and judge.

‡ The first principles of Christian religion, which we do call the catechism.

§ Certain principles of catechism, which comprehend the sum of the doctrine of the gospel, were given in few words, and briefly to the rude and ignorant, to wit, the profession of repentance and faith in God: the articles of which doctrine, were demanded of them which were not as yet received members of the church, at the days appointed for baptism: and of the children of the faithful which were baptized in their infancy, when hands were laid upon them. And of those articles, two are by name recited: the resurrection of the flesh, and the eternal judgment.

¶ He addeth a vehemency to his exhortation, and a most sharp threatening of the certain destruction that shall come them which fall from God and his religion.

‡ He speaketh of a general backsliding, and such as do altogether fall away from the faith, and not of sins which are committed through the frailty of a man against the first and second table.

§ We must mark the force of this word, for it is one thing to believe Lydia did, whose heart God opened, Acts 16. 13. and another thing to have some taste.

¶ As men that hate Christ, and, though they crucified him again, make him mocking-stock to all the world, and that to their own destruction, Julian the apostate or backslider did.

A. D. 64. 7 For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing of God :

8 But that which beareth thorns and briers, is reprov'd, and is near unto cursing, whose end is to be burned.

9 + But beloved; we have perswaded ourselves better things of you, and such as accompany salvation; though we thus speak :

10 For God is not unrighteous that he should forget your work, and labour of love, which ye shewed toward his name, in that ye have ministered unto the faints, and yet minister.

11 And we desire that every one of you shew the same diligence; to the full assurance of hope unto the end :

12 That ye be not slothful, but followers of them which through faith and patience inherit the promises.

13 For when God made the promise to Abraham, because he had no greater to swear by, he swore by himself,

14 Saying, * Surely I will * abundantly bless thee, and multiply thee marvellously :

15 And so after that he had tarried patiently, he enjoyed the promise.

16 For men verily swear by him that is greater than themselves, and an oath for confirmation is among them an end of all strife.

17 So God; willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the stableness of his counsel, bound himself by an oath,

18 That by two immutable things; wherein it is impossible that God should lye, we might have strong consolation, which have our refuge to lay hold upon that hope that is set before us :

19 Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast, and it entereth into that which is within the veil,

20 Whither the forerunner is for us entered in, even Jesus, that is made an high priest: for ever after the order of Melchisedec. A. D. 64.

CHAP. VII.

He hath hitherto stirred them up, to mark diligently what things are to be considered in Melchisedec, 15 whereunto he is like unto Christ, 20 wherefore the law should give place to the gospel.

FOR this Melchisedec * was king of Salem, the priest of the most high God; who met Abraham, as he returned from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him: * Gen. 14. 18.

2. To whom also Abraham gave the tithe of all things: who first is by interpretation king of righteousness: after that he is also king of Salem, that is, king of peace:

3 Without father, without mother, without kindred, and hath neither beginning of his days, neither end of life: but is likened unto the Son of God, and continueth a priest for ever.

4 Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tithe of the spoils.

5 For verily they which are the children of Levi, which receive the office of the priesthood, have commandment to take, according to the law, tithes of the people (that is, of their brethren) though they came out of the loins of Abraham. * Num. 18. 21.

6 But he whose kindred is not counted among them, received titles of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises.

7 And without all contradiction the less is blessed of the greater.

8 And here men that die, receive tithes: but there he receiveth them, of whom it is witnessed, that he liveth.

9 And to say as the thing is, Levi also which receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham.

10 For he was yet in the loins of his father Abraham, when Melchisedec met him.

11 If therefore perfection had been by the

3 X

priest-

3 He setteth forth the former threatening with a similitude.

4 He mitigateth and assuageth all that sharpness, hoping better of them to whom he writeth.

5 He praiseth them for their charity, thereby encouraging them to go forward, and to hold out to the end.

6 He sheweth what virtues chiefly they have need of to go forward constantly, and also to profit: to wit, of charity, and patience: and lest any man should object and say, that these things are impossible to be done, he willeth them to set before themselves the examples of their ancestors, and to follow them.

7 Another prick; to prick them forward: Because the hope of the inheritance is certain, if we continue to the end, for God hath not only promised it, but also promised it with an oath.

I will heap up benefits most plentifully upon thee.

8 More than was needful, were it not for the wickedness of men which believe not God, no, though he swear;

9 He likeneth hope to an anchor: because that even as an anchor, being cast into the bottom of the sea, stayeth the whole ship, so doth hope also enter even into the very secret places of heaven. And he maketh mention of the sanctuary, alluding to the old tabernacle, and by this means returneth to the comparisons of the priesthood of Christ with the Levitical.

10 He repeateth David's words, wherein all those comparisons, whereof he hath before made mention, are signified, as he declareth in all the next chapter.

11 Declaring those words, according to the order of Melchisedec, whereupon that comparison standeth of the priesthood of Christ with the Levitical: first, Melchisedec himself is considered as the figure of Christ, and these the heads of that comparison: Melchisedec was a king and a priest, and such an one indeed is Christ alone. He was a king of peace and righteousness, such an one indeed is Christ alone.

With a solemn and priestly blessing.

Another figure: Melchisedec is set before us to be considered as one without beginning and without ending, for neither his father, nor his mother, nor his ancestors, nor his death, are written of: and such an one indeed is the Son of God, to wit, an everlasting Priest: as he is God, without mother wonderfully begotten; as he is man, without father wonderfully conceived.

3 Another figure: Melchisedec in consideration of his priesthood was above Abraham: for he took tenths of him, and blessed him as a priest: such a one indeed is Christ, upon whom dependeth even Abraham's sanctification, and all the believers, and whom all ought to worship and reverence as the author of all.

Were begotten of Abraham.

5 He speaketh of the public blessing which the priests used.

6 A double amplification: The first, that Melchisedec took the tenths as one immortal (to wit, in respect that he is the figure of Christ, for his death is in no place made mention of, and David setteth him forth as an everlasting priest) but the Levitical priests as mortal men, for they succeed one another: the second, that Levi himself was tithed in Abraham by Melchisedec. Therefore the priesthood of Melchisedec (that is, Christ's, who is pronounced to be an everlasting priest according to this order) is more excellent than the Levitical.

The third treatise of this epistle, wherein after he hath proved Christ to be a King, a Prophet and Priest, he now handleth distinctly the condition and excellency of all these offices, shewing that all these were but shadows in all others, but in Christ they are true and perfect. And he beginneth with the priesthood, wherewith also the former treatise ended, that by this means all the parts and members of the disputation may better hang together. And first of all he proveth that the Levitical priesthood was imperfect, because another priest is promised a long time after, and according to another order, that is to say, of another manner of rule and fashion.

If the priesthood of Levi could have made any man perfect.

A. D. 64. priesthood of the Levites (for under it the law was established to the people) what needed it furthermore that another priest should rise after the order of Melchisedec, and not to be called after the order of Aaron?

12^o For if the priesthood be changed, then of necessity must there be a change of the law.

13 For he of whom these things are spoken, pertaineth unto another tribe, whereof no man served at the altar:

14 For it is evident, that our Lord sprung out of Judah, concerning the which tribe Moses spake nothing touching the priesthood.

15 And it is yet a more evident thing, because that after the similitude of Melchisedec there is risen up another priest, 16 Which is not made priest after the law of the carnal commandment, but after the power of the endless life.

• Pl. 110. 4. • Ca. 5. 7. 17 For he testifieth thus, Thou art a priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedec.

18 For the commandment that went afore, is disannulled, because of the weakness thereof, and unprofitableness.

19 For the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope made perfect, whereby we draw near unto God.

20 And forasmuch as it is not without an oath (for these are made priests without an oath:

• Pl. 110. 4. 21 But this is made with an oath by him that said unto him, The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedec.)

22 By so much is Jesus made a surety of a better testament.

23 And among them many were made priests, because they were not suffered to endure, by the reason of death:

^o He sheweth how that by the institution of the new priesthood, not only the imperfection of the priesthood of Levi was declared, but also that it was changed for this: for these two cannot stand together, because that first appointment of the tribe of Levi did shut forth the tribe of Juda, and made it also inferior to Levi: and this latter doth place the priesthood in the tribe of Juda.

^o Of the institution of Aaron.

^o Had any thing to do about the altar.

^o Lest any man might object, that the priesthood indeed was translated from Levi to Juda, but yet notwithstanding the same remaineth still, he both weigheth and expoundeth those words of David, for ever according to the order of Melchisedec, whereby also a diverse institution of priesthood is well perceived.

^o He proveth the diversity and excellency of the institution of Melchisedec's priesthood, by this, that the priesthood of the law did stand upon an outward and bodily anointing: but the sacrifice of Melchisedec is set out to be everlasting and more spiritual.

^o Not after the ordination, which commandeth frail and transitory things, was done in Aaron's consecration, and all that whole priesthood.

^o Again, that no man might object that the last priesthood was added to make a perfect one, by the coupling of them both together, he proveth that the first was abrogated by the latter, as unprofitable, and that by the nature of them both. For how could those corporal and transitory things sanctify us, either of themselves, or being joined with another?

^o The ceremonial law.

^o Another argument, whereby he proveth that the priesthood of Christ is better than the priesthood of Levi, because his was established with an oath, but theirs not so.

^o Another argument tending to the same purpose. The Levitical priests (as mortal men) could not be everlasting; but Christ, as he is everlasting, so hath he also an everlasting priesthood, making most effectual intercession for them which by him come unto God.

^o Which cannot pass away.

^o He is fit and meet.

^o Another argument: There are required in high

24 But this man, because he endureth ever, hath a priesthood which cannot pass from one to another.

25 Wherefore, he is able also perfectly to save them that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.

26 For such an high priest it became us to have, which is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens:

27 Which needeth not daily, as those high priests, to offer up sacrifice, first for his own sins, and then for the people's: for that did he once, when he offered up himself.

28 For the law maketh men high priests, which have infirmity: but the word of the oath that was since the law, maketh the Son, who is consecrated for evermore.

C H A P. VIII.

1 To prove more certainly that the ceremonies of the law are abrogated, 5 he sheweth that they were appointed to serve the heavenly pattern: 8 he bringeth in the place of Jeremiab, 15 to prove the amendment of the old covenant.

NOW of the things which we have spoken, this is the sum, that we have such an high priest, that sitteth at the right hand of the throne of the majesty in heavens,

2 And is a minister of the sanctuary, and of that true tabernacle which the Lord pitched, and not man:

3 For every high priest is ordained to offer both gifts and sacrifices: wherefore it was of necessity that this man should have somewhat also to offer:

4 For he were not a priest, if he were on the priest, innocency and perfect pureness, which may separate him from sinners, for whom he offereth. But the Levitical high priests shall not be found to be such, for they offer first for their own sins: but Christ only is such a one, and therefore the true and only high Priest.

^o Another argument, which notwithstanding he handleth afterward: The Levitical priests offered sacrifice after sacrifice, first for themselves, and then for the people. But Christ offered not for himself, but for others; not sacrifices, but himself; not oftentimes, but once. And this ought not to seem strange, saith he, forasmuch as they are weak, but this man is consecrate an everlasting priest, and that by an oath.

^o That sacrifice which he offered.

^o It was so done, that it needeth not to be repeated or offered again any more.

^o The commandment of God, which was bound with an oath.

^o Another argument taken of the time: former things are taken away by the latter.

^o Exhibited.

^o He briefly repeateth that, whereunto all these things are to be referred, to wit, that we have a far other high priest than those Levitical high priests are, even such an one as sitteth at the right hand of the most high God in heaven.

^o They of Levi were high priests in an earthly sanctuary, but Christ is in the heavenly.

^o Of heaven.

^o They of Levi exercised their priesthood in a frail tabernacle, but Christ beareth about with him a far other tabernacle, to wit, his body, which God himself made to be everlasting, as it shall afterward be declared, chap. 9. 11.

^o Of his body.

^o He bringeth a reason, why it must needs be that Christ should have a body, which he calleth a Tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man) to wit, that he might have what to offer: for otherwise he could not be an high priest. And the self-same body is both the tabernacle and the sacrifice.

^o He giveth a reason, why he said that our high priest is in the heavenly sanctuary, and in the earthly: because,

A. D. 64. the earth, seeing there are priests that according to the law offer gifts,

5 Who serve unto the pattern and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was warned by God, when he was about to finish the tabernacle. * See, said he, that thou make all things according to the pattern shewed to thee in the mount.

6 But now our high priest hath obtained a more excellent office, inasmuch as he is the Mediator of a better testament, which is established upon better promises.

7 For if that first testament had been unblameable, no place should have been sought for the second.

8 For in rebuking them he saith, * Behold, the days will come, saith the Lord, when I shall make with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah, a new testament :

9 Not like the testament that I made with their fathers, in the day that I took them by the hand, to lead them out of the land of Egypt : for they continued not in my testament, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord.

10 For this is the testament that I will make with the house of Israel, After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws in their mind, and in their heart I will write them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people :

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord : for all shall know me, from the least of them to the greatest of them.

12 For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and I will remember their sins and their iniquities no more.

13 In that he saith, a new testament, he hath abrogated the old : now that which is disannulled and waxed old, is ready to vanish away.

C H A P IX.

2 Comparing the form of the tabernacle, 10 and the ceremonies of the law, 11 unto the truth set out in cause, saith he, if he were now on the earth, he could not minister in the earthly sanctuary, seeing there are yet Levitical priests which are appointed for him, that is to say, to be patterns of that perfect example. And what purpose should the patterns serve, when the true original example is present ?

6 He entereth into the comparison of the old and transitory testament or covenant, being but for a time, whereof the Levitical priests were mediators, with the new, the everlasting mediator whereof is Christ, and shew, that this is not only better than that in all respects, but also that that was abrogated by this.

7 He proveth by the testimony of Jeremiah, that there is a second testament or covenant, and therefore that the first was not perfect.

8 He calleth it a house, as it were one family of the whole kingdom : for whereas the kingdom of David was divided into two factions, the prophet giveth us to understand, that through the New Testament they shall be joined together again in one.

9 The conclusion therefore by the latter and the new, the first and old is taken away, for it could not be called new, if it differed from the old ; and again, that same is at length taken away, which is subject to corruption, and therefore imperfect.

10 A division of the first tabernacle, which he calleth worldly, that is to say, transitory, and earthly, into two parts, to wit, into the holy places, and the holiest of all.

11 An earthly and a sitting.

12 He calleth it the second vail, not because there were two vails, but because it was behind the sanctuary, as the first tabernacle.

13 The holiest sanctuary.

14 The Hebrews call the cover of the ark of the covenant, the mercy seat, whom both the Grecians and we follow.

15 Now he cometh to the sacrifices, which he divideth

Christ, 15 he concludeth that now there is no more need of another priest, 24 because Christ himself hath fulfilled these duties under the new covenant.

A. D. 67:

THEN the first testament had also ordinances of religion, and a worldly sanctuary.

2 For the first tabernacle was made, wherein was the candlestick, and the table, and the shewbread, which tabernacle is called the holy places.

3 And after the second vail was the tabernacle, which is called the holiest of all,

4 Which had the golden center, and the ark of the testament overlaid round about with gold, wherein the golden pot which had manna was, and Aaron's rod that had budded, and the tables of the testament.

5 And over the ark were the glorious cherubims, shadowing the mercy seat : of which things we will not now speak particularly.

6 Now when these things were thus ordained, the priests went always into the first tabernacle, and accomplished the service.

7 But into the second went the high priest alone, once every year, not without blood, which he offered for himself, and for the ignorances of the people.

8 Whereby the Holy Ghost this signified, that the way into the holiest of all was not yet opened, while yet the first tabernacle was standing,

9 Which was a figure for that present time, wherein were offered gifts and sacrifices that could not make holy, concerning the conscience, him that did the service,

10 Which only stood in meats and drinks, and divers washings, and carnal rites, which were enjoined, until the time of reformation.

11 But Christ being come an high priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is, no part of this building, into those daily sacrifices, and that yearly and solemn sacrifice, with the which the high priest only but once every year, entering into the holiest of all with blood, offered for himself and the people.

12 Nei-

13 For the sins, look chap. 5. 2.

14 Of that yearly rite and the ceremony, he gathereth that the way was not by such sacrifices opened into heaven, which was shadowed by the holiest of all : for why did the high priest alone enter in thither, shutting out all other, and that to offer sacrifices there both for himself, and for others, and after, did that the Holiest of all again ?

15 An objection : If the way were not opened into heaven by those sacrifices (that is to say, if the worshippers were not purged by them) why then were those ceremonies used ? To wit, that they might be called back to that spiritual example, that is to say, to Christ, who should correct all those things at his coming.

16 For that time that that figure had to last.

17 Another reason why they could not make clean the conscience of the worshippers, to wit, because they were outward and carnal, or corporal things.

18 For they were, as you would say, a burden, from which Christ delivered us.

19 Now he entereth into the declaration of the figures, and first of all comparing the Levitical high priest with Christ, (that is to say, the figure with the thing itself) he attributeth to Christ the administration of good things to come ; that is, everlasting, which those carnal things had respect unto.

20 Another comparison of the first corruptible tabernacle with the latter, (that is to say, with the human nature of Christ) which is the true incorruptible temple of God, whereinto the Son of God entered, as the Levitical high priests into the other, which was frail and transitory.

21 By a more excellent and better.

* Jer. 31. 31, 32, 33. 34. Rom. 11. 27. Ch. 10. 16.

* Num. 17. 10. * 1 Kings 8. * Iron. 5. 10. * Exod. 25. 22.

* Exod. 30. 16. Lev. 16. 2.

A. D. 67. 12 Neither by the blood of goats and calves: but by his own blood entered he once into the holy place, and obtained eternal redemption for us.

• Lev. 16. 13 For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer, sprinkling them that are unclean, sanctifieth as touching the purifying of the flesh,

1 Pet. 1. 14 How much more shall the blood of Christ, which through the eternal Spirit offered himself without fault to God, purge your conscience from dead works, to serve the living God?

• Rom. 5. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 24. 15 And for this cause he is the mediator of the new testament, that through death which was for the redemption of the transgressions that were in the former testament, they which were called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance.

16 For where a testament is, there must be the death of him that made the testament.

• Gal. 3. 17 For the testament is confirmed when men are dead: for it is yet of no force as long as he that made it, is alive.

18 Wherefore, neither was the first ordained without blood.

19 For when Moses had spoken every precept to the people, according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water and purple wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book, and all the people,

Another comparison of the blood of the sacrifices with Christ. The Levitical high priests entering by those their holy places into their sanctuary, offered corruptible blood for one year only: but Christ entering into that holy edifice of his, entered by it into heaven itself, offering his own most pure blood for an everlasting redemption. For one self same Christ answereth both to the high priest, and the tabernacle, and the sacrifices, and the offerings themselves, as the truth to the figures; so that Christ is both high priest, and tabernacle, and sacrifice, yea, all those both truly and for ever.

For in this yearly sacrifice of reconciliation, there were two kinds of sacrifices, the one a goat, the other a heifer, or calf.

If the outward sprinkling of blood and ashes of beasts was a true and effectual sign of purifying and cleansing, how much more shall the thing it self, and the truth of judgment, which in times past was shadowed by those external sacraments, that is to say, his blood, which is in such sort man's blood, that it is also the blood of the Son of God, and therefore hath an everlasting virtue of purifying and cleansing, do it?

He considereth the signs apart, being separate from the thing itself.

From sins, which proceed from death, and bring forth nothing but death.

The conclusion of the former argument: therefore seeing the blood of beasts did not purge sins, the New Testament, which was before time promised, whereunto those outward things had respect, is now indeed established, by the virtue whereof all transgressions might be taken away, and heaven indeed opened unto us: whereof it followeth, that Christ shed his blood also for the fathers, for he was shadowed by these old ceremonies; otherwise, unless they had served to represent him, they had been nothing at all profitable. Therefore this Testament is called the latter, not as concerning the virtue of it, (that is to say, remission of sins) but in respect of that time, wherein the thing itself was finished, that is to say, wherein Christ was indeed exhibited to the world, and fulfilled all things which were necessary to our salvation.

A reason why the Testament must be established by the death of the Mediator, because this Testament hath the condition of a Testament or gift, which is made effectual by death; and therefore that it might be effectual, it must needs be that he that made the Testament should die.

There must be a proportion between those things which purify, and those which are purified: Under the law all those figures were earthly: the tabernacle, the book, the vessels, the sacrifices, although they were the signs of heavenly things. Therefore it was requisite, that all those should be purified with some matter and ceremony of the same nature, to wit, with the blood of beasts, with 20 Saying, This is the blood of the testament, which God hath appointed unto you.

21 Moreover, he sprinkled likewise the tabernacle with blood also, and all the ministering vessels.

22 And almost all things are by the law purged with blood, and without shedding of blood is no remission.

23 It was then necessary, that the similitudes of heavenly things should be purified with such things: but the heavenly things themselves are purified with better sacrifices than are these:

24 For Christ is not entered into the holy places that are made with hands, which are similitudes of the true sanctuary: but is entered into very heaven, to appear now in the sight of God for us,

25 Not that he should offer himself often, as the high priest entered into the holy place every year with other blood, 26 (For then must he have often suffered since the foundation of the world) but now in the end of the world hath he been made manifest once, to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.

27 And it is appointed unto men that they shall once die, and after that cometh the judgment:

28 So Christ was once offered to take away the sins of many, and unto them that look for him, shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation.

CHAP.

water, wool, hyssop. But under Christ all things are heavenly, an heavenly tabernacle, an heavenly sacrifice, an heavenly people, an heavenly doctrine, and an heavenly life, offered before us for an everlasting habitation. Therefore all these things are sanctified in like sort, to wit, with that everlasting offering of the quickening blood of Christ.

As the Lord had commanded.

He used to sprinkle. The similitudes of heavenly things were earthly, and therefore they were to be set forth with earthly things, as with the blood of beasts, and wool, and hyssop. But under Christ all things are heavenly, and therefore they could not but be sanctified with the offering of his lively blood.

Another double comparison: The Levitical high priest entered into the sanctuary, which was made indeed by the commandment of God, but yet with men's hands, that it might be a pattern of another more excellent, to wit, of the heavenly palace. But Christ entered into heaven itself. Again, he appeared before the ark, but Christ before God the Father himself.

Another double comparison: The Levitical high priest offered other blood, but Christ offered his own: He every year once iterated his offering: Christ offering himself but once, abolished sin altogether, both of the former ages, and of the ages to come.

An argument to prove that Christ's offering ought not to be repeated: Seeing that sins were to be purged from the beginning of the world, and it is proved that sins cannot be purged but by the only blood of Christ: he must needs have died oftentimes, since the beginning of the world. But a man can die but once: therefore Christ's oblation, which was once done in the latter days, neither could nor can be repeated. Seeing then it is so, surely the virtue of it extendeth both to sins that were before, and to sins that are after his coming.

In the latter days.

That whole root of sin.

He speaketh of the natural state and condition of man: For as for Lazarus, and certain others that died twice, that was no usual thing, but extraordinary: and as for them that shall be changed, their changing is a kind of death,

1 Cor. 15. 51.

Thus the general promise is restrained to the elect only: and we have to seek the testimony of our election, not in the secret counsel of God, but in the effects that our faith worketh; and so we must climb up from the lowest step to the highest, there to find such comfort as is most certain, and shall never be moved.

Shortly by the way he setteth out Christ as a judge, partly to terrify them, which do not rest themselves in the only oblation of Christ once made, and partly to keep the faithful in their duty, that they go not back.

A. D. 64.

C H A P. X.

1 He proveth that the sacrifices of the law were imperfect, 2 because they were yearly renewed. 5 But that the sacrifice of Christ is one, and perpetual, 6 he proveth by David's testimony: 19 Then he addeth an exhortation, 29 and severely threateneth them that reject the grace of Christ. 36 In the end he praiseth patience, 38 that cometh of faith.

FOR the law having the shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices, which they offer year by year continually, sanctify the comers thereunto:

2 For would they not then have ceased to have been offered, because that the offerers once purged, should have no more conscience of sins?

3 But in those sacrifices there is a remembrance again of sins every year.

4 For it is impossible that the blood of bulls and goats should take away sins.

5 Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, * Sacrifice and offering thou wouldst not: but a body hast thou ordained me.

6 In burnt-offerings and sin-offerings thou hast had no pleasure.

7 Then I said, Lo, I come (In the beginning of the book it is written of me) that I should do thy will, O God.

8 Above when he said, Sacrifice and offering, and burnt-offerings, and sin-offerings thou wouldst not have, neither hadst pleasure therein (which are offered by the law)

9 Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God: he taketh away the first, that he may establish the second.

10 By the which will we are sanctified, even by the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once made. A. D. 64.

11 And every priest standeth daily ministering, and oft-times offereth one manner of offering, which can never take away sins.

12 But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins, sitteth for ever at the right hand of God, 13 And from henceforth tarrieth, till his enemies be made his footstool.

14 For with one offering hath he consecrated for ever them that are sanctified.

15 For the Holy Ghost also beareth us record: for after that he had said before,

16 * This is the testament that I will make unto them after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws in their heart; and in their minds I will write them, 17 And their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.

18 Now where remission of these things is, there is no more offering for sin.

19 Seeing therefore, brethren, that by the blood of Jesus we may be bold to enter into the holy place,

20 By the new and living way, which he hath prepared for us, through the vail, that is, his flesh:

21 And seeing we have an high priest, which is over the house of God,

22 Let us draw near with a true heart in assurance of faith, our hearts being pure from an evil conscience:

23 And washed in our bodies with pure water; let us keep the profession of our hope, without wavering, (for he is faithful that promised)

3 Y 24 And

* He preventeth privy objection. Why then were those sacrifices offered? The apostle answereth, first touching that yearly sacrifice which was the solemnest of all, wherein (saith he) there was made every year a remembrance again of all former sins. Therefore that sacrifice had no power to sanctify: for to what purpose should those sins which are purged be repeated again; and wherefore should new sins come to be repeated every year, if those sacrifices did abolish sin?

Of things which everlasting, which were promised to the fathers, and exhibited in Christ.

A conclusion following of those things that went before, and comprehending also the other sacrifices. Seeing that the sacrifices of the law could not do it, therefore Christ speaking of himself as of our high priest, manifested in the flesh, witnesseth evidently that God rested not in the sacrifices, but in the obedience of his Son, our high priest, in whose obedience he offered up himself once to his Father for us.

The Son of God is said to come into the world, when he was made man.

It word for word in the Hebrew text, Thou hast pierced mine ears through, that is, thou hast made me obedient, and willing to hear.

That is, the sacrifices, to establish the second, that is, the will of God.

A conclusion with the other part of the comparison: The Levitical high priest repeateth the same sacrifices daily in his sanctuary: whereupon it followeth, that neither those sacrifices, neither those offerings, neither those high priests, could take away sins. But Christ having offered one sacrifice once for the sins of all men, and having sanctified his own for ever, sitteth at the right hand of the Father, having all power in his hands.

At the altar.

He preventeth privy objection, to wit, that yet notwithstanding we are subject to sin and death: whereunto the apostle answereth, that the full efficacy of Christ's virtue hath not yet shewed itself, but shall at length appear, when he will at once put to flight all his enemies, with whom yet we strive.

Although there do yet remain in us reliques of sin, yet the work of our sanctification which is to be perfected; hangeth upon the self same sacrifice, which never shall be repeated: and that the apostle proveth by alledging again the testimony of Jeremy, thus: Sin is taken away by the New Testament, seeing the Lord saith, that it shall come to pass, that, according to the form of it, he will no more remember our sins: Therefore we need now no purging sacrifice to take away that which is already taken away; but we must rather take pains, that we may now through faith be partakers of that sacrifice.

Why then, where is the fire of purgatory, and that Popish distinction of the fault, and the punishment?

He said well, for sin: for there remaineth another offering, to wit; of thanksgiving.

The sum of the former treatise: We are not shut out of the holy place, the fathers were, but we have entrance into the true holy place (that is, into heaven) seeing that we are purged with the blood, not of beasts, but of Jesus. Neither, as in times past, doth the high priest shut us out, by setting the vail against us, but through the vail, which is his flesh, he hath brought us into heaven itself; being present with us, so that we have now truly an high priest, which is over the house of God.

So Christ's flesh sheweth us the godhead, it were under a vail. For otherwise we were not able to abide the brightness of it.

A most grave exhortation, wherein he sheweth how that sacrifice of Christ may be applied to us: to wit, by faith, which also he describeth by the consequences, to wit, by sanctification of the Spirit, which causeth us surely to hope in God, and to procure by all means possible one another's salvation, through the love that is in us one towards another.

With no double and counterfeit heart, but with such heart as is truly and indeed given to God.

This is it which the Lord saith, Be ye holy, for I am holy.

With the grace of the Holy Ghost.

¹ An excellent description of faith by the effects, because it representeth things which are but yet in hope, and setteth, ^m it were, before our eyes things that are invisible.

² He sheweth that the fathers ought ^m be accounted of by this virtue.

³ That is, those fathers of whom we came: and whose authority and example ought to move us very much.

⁴ He sheweth the property of faith, by setting out unto us most picked examples of such as from the beginning of the world excelled ^m the church.

ABRAHAM'S FAITH.

A. D. when she was past age, because she judged him faithful which had promised.

12 And therefore sprang there of one, even of one which was ^f dead, so many as the stars of the sky in multitude, and [■] the sand of the sea shore which is innumerable.

13 All these died in ^e faith, and received not the ^h promises, but saw them afar off, and believed them, and ⁱ received them thankfully, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth:

14 For they that saw such things declare plainly, that they seek a country.

15 And if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, they had leisure to have returned.

16 But now they desire [■] better, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed of them to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them [■] city.

[■] Exod. 1. 16. [■] Exod. 2. 11. 24 By faith ^{*} Moses, when he was come to age, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter,

25 And chose rather to suffer adversity with the people of God, than to enjoy the [■] pleasures of sins for [■] season, 26 Esteeming the rebuke of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompence of the reward.

27 By faith he forsook Egypt, and feared not the fierceness of the king: for he endured, as he that saw him which is invisible.

28 Through faith he ordained the ^{*} passover, and the effusion of blood, lest he that destroyed the first born should touch them. A. D. 64. Exod. 12. 22.

29 ^{} By faith they ^{} passed through the red sea, [■] by dry land, which when the Egyptians had assayed to do, they were swallowed up. Exod. 14. 22.

33 Which through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained the ^r promises, stopped the mouths of lions,

34 Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, of weak were made strong, waxed valiant in battle, turned to flight the armies of the aliens:

35 The ^l women received their dead raised to life: others also were ^u racked, and would not be delivered, that they might receive [■] better resurrection.

36 And others have been tried by mockings and scourgings; yea, moreover by bonds and imprisonment:

37 They were stoned, they were hewn asunder, they were tempted, they were slain with the sword, they wandered up and down in [■] sheeps skins, and in goats skins, being destitute, afflicted, and tormented:

38 Whom the world was not worthy of: they wandered in wildernesses, and mountains, and dens, and caves of the earth.

39 ^{*} And these all through faith obtained good report; and received ^v not the promise, 40 God providing [■] better thing for us, that they ^z without us should not be made perfect.

I. P. 1. 2. 1. 1.

Wherefore, let us also, seeing that we are compassed with so great a cloud of witnesses, cast away every thing that presseth down, and the sin that hangeth fast on: let us run with patience the race that is set before us,

2 Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, and despised the shame, and is set at the right hand of the throne of God.

3 Consider therefore him that endured such speaking against of sinners, lest ye should be wearied and faint in your minds.

4 Ye have not resisted yet unto blood, striving against sin.

5 And ye have forgotten the consolation, which speaketh unto you as unto children, My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord, neither faint when thou art rebuked of him.

6 For whom the Lord loveth, he chasteneth: and he scourgeth every son that he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chastening, God offereth himself unto you as unto sons: for what son is it whom the father chasteneth not?

8 If therefore ye be without correction, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons.

9 Moreover we have had the fathers of our bodies which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: should we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, that we might live?

10 For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure: but he chasteneth us for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness.

11 Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: but afterward it bringeth the quiet fruit of righteousness unto them which are thereby exercised.

12 Wherefore lift up your hands which hang down, and your weak knees, 13 And make straight steps unto your feet, lest that which is halting be turned out of the way, but let it rather be healed.

14 Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without the which no man shall see the Lord.

15 Take heed that no man fall away from the grace of God: let no root of bitterness spring up and trouble you, lest thereby many be defiled.

16 Let there be no fornicator, or prophane person as Esau, which for one portion of meat sold his birth-right:

17 For ye know how that afterward also, when he would have inherited the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no place to repentance, though he sought that blessing with tears.

18 For ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched, nor unto burning fire, nor to blackness and darkness, and tempest,

19 Neither unto the sound of a trumpet, and the voice of words, which they that heard it, excused themselves, that the word should not be spoken to them any more,

20 (For they were not able to abide that which was commanded, yea, though a beast touch the mountain, it shall be stoned, or thrust through with a dart:

21 And so terrible was the sight which appeared, that Moses said, I fear and quake)

22 But ye are come unto the mount Sion, and to the city of the living God, the celestial Jerusalem, and to the company of innumerable angels,

23 And to the assembly and congregation of the first born which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of just and perfect men, 24 And to Jesus the Mediator of the new testament, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel.

25 See that ye despise not him that speaketh: for if they escaped not which refused him that

1 An applying of the former examples, whereby we ought to be stirred up to run the whole race, casting away all stops and impediments.

2 For sin besetgeth us on all sides, so that we cannot escape out.

3 He setteth before us, as the mark of this race, Jesus himself our Captain, who willingly overcame all the roughness of the same way.

4 As it were upon the mark of our faith.

5 Whereas he had all kind of blessedness in his hand and power, yet suffered willingly the ignominy of the cross.

6 An amplification, taken of the circumstance of the persons and the things themselves, which he compareth between themselves: for how great is Jesus in comparison of us, and how far more grievous things did he suffer than we?

7 He taketh an argument of the profit which cometh us by God's chastisements, unless we be in fault. First of all, because sin, or that rebellious wickedness of our flesh, is by this means tamed.

8 Secondly, because they testimonies of his fatherly good will toward us, insomuch that they shew themselves to be bastards, who cannot abide to be chastened of God.

9 Thirdly, if all men yield this right to fathers, whom next after God we owe this life, that they may righteously correct their children; shall we not be much subject to that our Father, who is the author of the spiritual and everlasting life?

10 An amplification of the same argument: Those fathers have corrected us after their fancy, for some frail and transitory profit: but God chasteneth and instructeth for our singular profit, to make us partakers of his holiness: which thing although these our senses do not presently perceive, yet the end of the matter proveth it.

11 The conclusion, we must go forward courageously, and keep always right course, and (as far forth we may) without any staggering or stumbling.

12 The description of a man that is out of heart, and clean discouraged.

13 Keep right course, and so that you shew example of good life for others to follow.

14 We must live in peace and holiness with all men.

15 We must study to edify one another, both in doctrine and example of life.

16 That no herey or backsliding be offence.

17 We must eschew fornication, and a prophane mind, that is, such a mind as giveth not to God his due honour, which wickedness, how severely God will at length punish, the horrible example of Esau teacheth us.

18 There was no place left for his repentance: and it appeareth by the effects, what his repentance was; for when he was gone out of his father's sight, he threatened his brother to kill him.

19 Now he applieth the same exhortation to the prophetic and kingly office of Christ, compared with Moses, after this sort. If the majesty of the law was so great, how great think you that the glory of Christ and the gospel is? And this comparison he declareth also particularly.

20 Which might be touched with hands, which was of gro's and earthly matter.

21 The shape and form which he saw, which no counterfeit and forged shape, but a true one.

22 So he calleth them that are taken up into heaven, although one part of them doth still remain in the earth.

23 The applying of the former comparison: if it were lawful to contemn his word, which spake on the earth, how much less his voice which is from heaven?

A. D. 64. that spake on earth: much more shall we not escape, if we turn away from him that speaketh from heaven,

26 ¹⁴ Whose voice then shook the earth: and now hath declared, saying, *¹ Yet once more will I shake not the earth only, but also heaven

27 And this word, Yet once more, signifieth the removing of those things which are shaken, as of things which are made with hands, that the things which are not shaken, may remain.

28 ¹⁵ Wherefore seeing we receive a kingdom, which cannot be shaken, let us have grace whereby we may so serve God, that we may please him with ^m reverence and ⁿ fear.

29 For ^{*} even our God is a consuming fire.

to the benefit of Christ. ^h By this one kind, which concerneth the difference of clean and unclean meats, we have to understand all the ceremonial worship.

^c Which observed the difference of them superstitiously.

⁷ He refuteth their error by ⁱⁱⁱ apt and fit comparison. They which in times past served the tabernacle, did not eat of the sacrifices whose blood was brought for sin into the holy place by the high priest. Moreover, the ^e sacrifices did represent Christ our offering. Therefore they cannot be partakers of him which serve the tabernacle, that is, such as stand in the service of the law: but let ⁱⁱⁱ not be ashamed to follow him out of Jerusalem, from whence he was cast out, and suffered: for in this also Christ, who is the truth, answereth that figure, in that he suffered without the gate.

^f By the altar, he meaneth the offerings.

^h Whereof they cannot be partakers which stubbornly retain the rites of the law.

^h He goeth on further in this comparison, and sheweth that this also is signified unto us, that the godly followers of Christ must, as it were, go out of the world bearing his cross.

⁹ Now that those corporal sacrifices ⁱⁱⁱ taken away, he teacheth ⁱⁱⁱ that the true sacrifices of confession remain, which consist partly in giving of thanks, and partly in liberality, with which sacrifices indeed God is now delighted.

ⁱⁱⁱ We must obey the warnings and admonitions of our ministers and elders, which watch for the salvation of the souls which are committed unto them.

ⁱⁱⁱ The last part of this epistle, wherein he commendeth his ministry ⁱⁱⁱ the Hebrews, and wisheth them continuance and increase of graces from the Lord: and excuseth himself in that he hath used but few words to comfort them, having spent the epistle in disputing, and saluteth certain brethren familiarly and friendly.

The ^a General Epistle of JAMES.

CHAP. I.

A. D. 64. ^a He is ^b master of patience, 6 of faith, 10 and of love, 3 of mercy to rich men. 13 That temptation cometh out of God for our evil, 17 because he is the author of all good things. 21 In what manner the word of life may be received.

JAMES a servant of God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes, which are scattered abroad, salutation.

2 ^a My brethren, ^b count it exceeding joy, when ye fall into divers temptations;

3 ^a Knowing that the ^b trying of your faith bringeth forth patience,

4 ^a And let patience have ^b her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, lacking no thing.

5 ^a If any of you lack ^b wisdom, let him ask of God, which giveth to all men liberally, and reproacheth no man, and it shall be given him.

6 ^a But let him ask in faith, and ^b waver not: for he that wavereth, is like a wave of the sea, tost of the wind, and carried away.

^a That is, written to no one man, city, or country, but to all the Jews generally, being now dispersed.

^b To all the believing Jews, of what tribe soever they be, and are dispersed through the whole world.

^c The first place, or part touching comfort in affliction, wherein we ought not to be cast down and be faint hearted, but rather rejoice and be glad.

^d Seeing their condition was miserable in that scattering abroad, he doth well to begin as he doth.

^e The first argument, because our faith is tried through afflictions: which ought to be most pure, for so it is becomable for us.

The second, because patience, a far passing and most excellent virtue, is by this means ingendered in us.

^f That wherewith your faith is tried, to wit, those manifold temptations.

^g The third argument propounded in manner of an exhortation, that true and continual patience may be discerned from feigned, and for a time. The cross is, as it were, the instrument wherewith God doth polish and fine us. Therefore the work and effect of afflictions, is the perfecting of us in Christ.

^h An answer to a privy objection. It is easily said, but it is not so easily done. He answereth, that we need in this case ⁱ far other manner of wisdom, than the wisdom of man, to judge those things best for us, which are most contrary to the flesh: but yet we shall easily obtain this gift of wisdom, if we ask it rightly, that is, with ^j sure confidence of God, who is most bountiful and liberal.

^k By wisdom, he meaneth the knowledge of that doctrine whereof mention was made before, to wit, wherefore we are afflicted of God, and what fruit we have ^l reap of affliction.

^m Why then, what need other mediators?

ⁿ A digression or going aside from his matter, against prayers which are conceived with a doubting mind, where as we have a certain promise of God, and this is the second

7 Neither let that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord.

8 A double minded man ^a is unstable in ^b all his ways.

9 Let the brother of ^a low degree rejoice in that he is exalted:

10 ^a Again, he that is ^b rich, in that he is made low: ^c for as the flower of the grass, shall he ^d vanish away:

11 For ^a as when the sun riseth with heat, then the grass withereth, and his flower falleth away, and the goodly shape of it perisheth: even so shall the rich man wither away in ^b all his ^c ways.

12 ^a Blessed is the man that endureth ^b temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.

13 Let no man say when he is ^a tempted, I am tempted of God: ^b for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man.

14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away by his own concupiscence, and is enticed:

15 Then

part of the epistle.

^a In all his thoughts and his deeds.

^b He returneth to his purpose, repeating the proposition, which is, that we must rejoice in the cross, for it doth not press us down, but exalt us.

^c Who is afflicted with poverty, or contempt, or with any kind of calamity.

^d Before he concludeth, he giveth ^e doctrine contrary to the former: to wit, how we ought to use prosperity, which is plenty of all things: to wit, so that no man therefore please himself, but be so much the more void of pride.

^f Who hath all things ^g in his will.

^h An argument taken of the very nature of the thing themselves, for that they are most vain and uncertain.

ⁱ What soever he either purposeth in his mind, or doth.

^j The conclusion: therefore we must patiently bear the cross: and he addeth a fourth argument, which comprehendeth the sum of all the former, ^k to wit, because we come by this way to the crown of life, but yet of grace according to the promise.

^l Affliction, whereby the Lord trieth him.

^m The third part of this epistle, wherein he descendeth from outward temptations, that is, from afflictions whereby God trieth us, to inward, that is, to those lusts whereby we are stirred up to do evil. The sum is this: Every man is the author of these temptations to himself, and not God: for we bear ⁿ about in our bosoms that wicked corruption, which taketh occasion, by what means soever, to stir up evil motions in us, whence out at length proceed wicked doings, and in conclusion followeth death, the just reward of them.

^o When he is provoked to do evil.

^p Here is a reason shewed, why God cannot be the author of evil doing in us, because he desireth not evil

A. D. 64.

16. 20. 1 Pet. 1. 11.

1. 12. 1. 12.

A. D. 60. 15 Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin: and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death.

16 Err not, my dear brethren.

17 Every good giving, and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.

18 Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be as the first fruits of his creatures.

19 Wherefore, my dear brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath.

20 For the wrath of man doth not accomplish the righteousness of God.

21 Wherefore lay apart all filthiness, and superfluity of maliciousness, and receive with meekness the word that is grafted in you, which is able to save your souls.

22 And be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves.

23 For if any hear the word, and do it not, he is like unto man that beholdeth his natural face in a glass:

24 For when he hath considered himself, he goeth his way, and forgetteth immediately what manner of one he was.

25 But who so looketh in the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he not being a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, shall be blessed in his deed.

26 If any man among you seemeth religious, and refraineth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain.

27 Pure religion and undefiled before God, even the Father, is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their adversity, and to keep himself unspotted of the world.

A. D. 60.

C H A P. II.

He saith, that to have respect of persons is not agreeable to christian faith, 14 which to profess in words is not enough, unless 15 we shew it also in deeds of mercy and charity, 21 after the example of Abraham.

MY brethren, have not the faith of our glorious Lord Jesus Christ in respect of persons.

2 For if there come into your company a man with a gold ring, and in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment,

3 And ye have a respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou here in a goodly place, and say unto the poor, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool,

4 Are ye not partial in yourselves, and are become judges of evil thoughts?

5 Hearken, my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world that they should be rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he promised to them that love him?

6 But ye have despised the poor. Do not the rich oppress you by tyranny, and do not they draw you before the judgment-seats?

7 Do not they blaspheme the worthy name after which ye be named?

8 But if ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, which saith, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well.

9 But if ye regard the persons, ye commit sin, and are rebuked of the law, as transgressors.

10 For

Lev. 19. 15. Deut. 1. 17. and 16. 19. Prov. 24. 23.

Prov. 17. 27. 18. 13. 13.

By sin is meant in this place, actual sin.

11. Another reason taken of contraries: God is the author of all goodness, and so, that he is always like himself: how then can he be thought to be the author of evil?

From him who is the fountain and author of all goodness.

He goeth on in the metaphor: for the sun, by his manifold and sundry kinds of turning, maketh hours, days, months, years, light and darkness.

14 The fourth part, concerning the excellency and fruit of the word of God; the sum is this: we must hear the word of God most carefully and diligently, seeing it is the seed wherewith God of his free favour and love hath begotten us unto himself, picking us out of the number of his creatures. And the apostle condemneth two faults which do greatly trouble us in this matter, to wit, for that we so please ourselves, that we had rather speak ourselves, than hear God speaking: yea, we snuff and are angry when we are reprehended: against which faults he setteth a peaceable and quiet mind, and such an one as is desirous of purity.

This is it which Paul calleth gracious favour, and good-will, which is the fountain of our salvation.

As it were an holy kind of offering, taken out of the residue of men.

That which God appointeth.

By meekness, he meaneth modesty, and whatsoever is contrary to an haughty and proud stomach.

15 Another admonition: therefore is God's word heard, that we may frame our lives according to the prescript thereof.

16 He addeth reasons, and those most weighty: First, because they that do otherwise, do very much hurt themselves.

17 Secondly, because they lose the chiefest use of God's word, which correct not by it the faults that they know.

He alludeth to that natural spot, which is contrary that purity whereunto we are born again, the lively image whereof we behold in the law.

Behaving himself so: for works do shew faith.

18 The third admonition: the word of God prescribeth a rule not only to do well, but also to speak well.

17 The fountain of all babbling and cursed speaking, and fauciness, is this, that men know not themselves.

19 The fourth: the true service of God standeth in charity toward our neighbours (especially such as need others help, as the fatherless and widows) and purity of life.

20 To have care of them, and to help them as much as we can.

21 The fifth: charity which proceedeth from true faith, cannot stand with the accepting of persons: which he proveth plainly, by setting forth their example, who, with the reproach or disdain of the poor, honour the rich.

22 For if we knew what Christ's glory is, and esteemed it as we ought to do, there would not be such respect of persons as there is.

In a worshipful and honorable place.

Have ye not (which ye ought not to do) by this within yourselves judged one man to be preferred before another?

23 He sheweth, that they perverse and naughty judges, which prefer the rich before the poor; by that that God on the contrary side preferreth the poor, whom he hath enriched with true riches, before the rich.

24 The needy and wretched, and (if we measure it after the opinion of the world) the veriest abjects of all men.

25 Secondly, he proveth them to be mad men: for that the rich men rather be holden execrable and cursed, considering that they persecute the church, and blaspheme Christ: for he speaketh of wicked and profane rich men, such as the most part of them have been always, against whom he setteth the poor and abject.

Word for word, which is called upon of you.

26 The conclusion: Charity which God prescribeth cannot agree with the accepting of persons, seeing that we must walk in the king's highway.

27 The law is said to be royal, and like the king's highway: for that it is plain, and without turnings, and that the law calleth every one our neighbour without respect, whom we may help by any kind of duty.

A. D. 60. 10 For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet faileth in one point, he is guilty of all.

11 For he that said, Thou shalt not commit adultery, said also, Thou shalt not kill. Now though thou doest none adultery, yet if thou killest, thou art a transgressor of the law.

12 So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty.

13 For there shall be condemnation mercileſs to him that sheweth not ^h mercy, and mercy rejoiceth against condemnation.

14 What availeth it, my brethren, though ^h man faith, he hath faith, when he hath no works? can that faith save him?

15 For if a brother or a sister be naked and destitute of daily food,

16 And one of you say unto them, Depart in peace: warm yourselves, and fill your bellies, notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body, what helpeth it?

17 Even so the faith, if it have no works, is dead in itself.

18 But ^h some man might say, Thou hast the faith, and I have works: shew me thy faith out of thy works, and I will shew thee my faith by my works.

19 Thou believest that there is one God: thou doest well: the devils also believe it, and tremble.

20 But wilt thou understand, O thou vain man, that the faith which is without works, is dead?

Gen. 22. 21 Was not Abraham our father ^k justified through works? ^{*} when he offered Isaac his son upon the altar?

22 Seest thou not that the faith ^l wrought with his works? and through the works was the faith made ^m perfect.

23 And the Scripture was ⁿ fulfilled which saith, ^r Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness: and he was called the friend of God.

24 Ye see then how that of works ^h man is ^o justified, and not of ^h faith only.

25 Likewise also was not ^s Rahab the harlot justified through works, when she had received the messengers, and sent them out another way?

26 For as the body without the spirit is dead, even so the faith without works is dead.

C H A P. III.

3 To shew that a Christian man must govern his tongue with the bridle of faith and charity, 6 he declareth the commodities and mischiefs that ensue thereof: 15 and how much man's wisdom 17 differeth from heavenly.

MY brethren, be not many masters, ² knowing that we ² shall receive the greater condemnation.

2 For in many things we [†] sin all. ³ If any man sin not in word, he is a perfect man, and able to bridle all the body.

3 ⁺ Behold, we put bits into the horses mouths, that they should obey us, and we turn about all their body.

4 Behold also the ships, which though they be so great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very small rudder, whithersoever the governor listeth.

5 Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth of great things: ⁵ behold how great a thing a little fire kindleth! ⁶ And

⁵ A new argument to prove the same conclusion: They do not love their neighbours, which neglect some, and ambitiously honour others: for he doth not obey God, which cutteth off from the commandments of God, that that is not so commodious for him; nay, he is rather guilty generally of the breach of the whole law, although he observe the residue.

⁶ Not that all sins are equal, but because he that breaketh one tittle of the law, offendeth the majesty of the law giver.

⁷ A proof: because the law-maker is always one and the self-same, and the body of the law cannot be divided.

⁸ The conclusion of the whole is this: we are upon this condition delivered from the curse of the law by the mercy of God, that in like sort we should maintain and cherish charity and good-will one towards another, and whoſo doth not so, shall not taste of the grace of God.

⁹ He that is hard and curriſh against his neighbour, or else helpeth him not, he shall find God an hard and rough judge to himself-ward.

¹⁰ The sixth place, which hangeth very well with the former treatise, touching ^h true and lively faith. And the proposition of this place is this: Faith which bringeth not forth works, is not that faith whereby we are justified, but an image of faith: or else this; they are not justified by faith, which shew not the effects of faith.

¹¹ The first reason taken of a similitude: If a man say to one that is hungry, Fill thy belly, and yet giveth him nothing, this shall not be true charity: so if a man say, he believeth, and bringeth forth no works of his faith, this shall not be a true faith, but a certain dead thing set out with the name of faith, whereof no man hath to brag, unless he will openly incur reprehension, seeing that the cause is understood by the effect.

¹² Nay, thus may every man beat down thy pride.

¹³ Another reason taken of an absurdity: If such a faith were the true faith whereby we are justified, the devils should be justified, for they have that, but yet notwithstanding they tremble, and are not justified therefore, neither is that faith a true faith.

¹⁴ The third reason taken from the example of Abraham, who no doubt had a true faith: but he in offering his son, shewed himself to have that faith: which was not void of works, and therefore he received a true testimony, when it was said, that faith was imputed to him for righteousness.

¹⁵ Was he not by his works known and found to be justified? for he speaketh not here of the causes of justification, but by what effects we may know that a man is justified.

¹⁶ Was effectual and fruitful with good works.
¹⁷ That the faith was declared to be a true faith, and that by works.

¹⁸ Then was the scripture fulfilled, when it appeared plainly, how truly it was written of Abraham.

¹⁹ The conclusion: He is only justified that hath that faith which hath works following it.

²⁰ It is proved to be just.

²¹ Of that dead and fruitless faith which you boast of.

²² A fourth reason taken from a like example of Rahab the harlot, who also proved by her works that she was justified by a true faith.

²³ The conclusion repeated again: faith which bringeth not forth fruits and works, is not faith, but a dead carcass.

²⁴ The sixth part or place: Let no man usurp (as most men ambitiously do) authority ^h judge and censure others rigorously.

²⁵ A reason, because they provoke God's severity against themselves, which do so curiously and rigorously condemn others, being themselves guilty and faulty.

²⁶ Unless we surcease from this masterlike and proud finding fault with others.

²⁷ The seventh place, touching the bridling of the tongue joined with the former, so that it is manifest that there is no man which may not justly be found fault withal, seeing it is a rare virtue to bridle the tongue.

²⁸ He sheweth by two similitudes, the one taken from the bridles of horses, the other from the rudders of ships, how great matters may be brought ^h pass by the good moderation of the tongue.

²⁹ On the contrary part he sheweth how great discommodities arise by the intemperancy of the tongue throughout the whole world, ^h the end that men may so much the more diligently give themselves to moderate it.

A. D.
60.

6 And the tongue is a fire, yea, a world of wickedness: so is the tongue set among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature, and it is set on fire of hell.

7 For the whole nature of beasts, and of birds, and of creeping things, and things of the sea is tamed, and hath been tamed of the nature of man:

8 But the tongue can no man tame. It is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison.

9^o Therewith blese we God, even the Father: and therewith curse we men, which are made after the⁷ similitude of God.

10^o Out of one mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing: my brethren, these things ought not so to be.

11 Doth a fountain send forth at one place sweet water and bitter?

12 Can the fig-tree, my brethren, bring forth olives, either a vine figs? so can no fountain make both salt-water and sweet.

13^o Who is a wise man, and endued with knowledge among you? let him shew by good conversation his works in meekness of wisdom.

14 But if ye have bitter envying, and strife in your hearts, rejoice not, neither be lyars against the truth.

15 This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual and devilish.

16 For where envying and strife is, there is sedition, and all manner of evil works.

17 But the wisdom that is from above, is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be intreated, full of^d mercy and good fruits, without judging, and without hypocrisy.

18^o And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace, of them that make peace.

C H A P. IV.

1 He reckoneth up the mischiefs that proceed of the

■ An heap of all mischiefs.

° It is able to set the whole world on fire.

6 Amongst other faults of the tongue, the apostle chiefly reproveth backbiting and speaking evil of our neighbours, even in them especially which otherwise will seem godly and religious.

7 He denieth by two reasons, that God can be praised by that man that useth cursed speaking, or to backbite: first, because man is the image of God, which whosoever reve- renceth not, doth not honour God himself.

■ Secondly, because the order of nature which God hath set in things, will not suffer things that are so contrary the one to the other, to stand the one with the other.

8 The eighth part, which hangeth with the former, touching meekness of mind, against which he setteth envy and contentious mind. And in the beginning he stoppeth the mouth of the chief fountain of all these mischiefs, to wit, a false persuasion of wisdom, whereas notwithstanding there is no true wisdom but that is heavenly, and frameth our minds in all kind of true moderation and simplicity.

■ He setteth mercy against the fierce and cruel nature of man, and sheweth that heavenly wisdom bringeth forth good fruits; for he that is heavenly wise, referreth all things to God's glory, and the profit of his neighbours.

■ Because the world persuadeth itself that they are miserable which live peaceably and simply: on the contrary side, the apostle pronounceth that they shall in the length reape the harvest of peaceable righteousness.

9 He goeth on forward in the same argument, condemn- ing certain other causes of vices and contentions, to wit, unbridled pleasures and immoderate lusts, by their effects, forso much as the Lord doth worthily make them void, so that they bring nothing else to them in whom they are, but incurable torments.

■ He reprehendeth them by name, which are not ashaworks of the flesh. 7 He exhorteth to humility, and to purge the heart from pride, backbiting, and the forgetfulness of our infirmities.

A. D.
60.

FROM whence are wars and contention among you? are they not hence, even of your pleasures, that fight in your members?

■ Ye lust, and have not: ye envy, and de- fire immoderately, and cannot obtain: ye fight, and war, and get nothing, because ye ask not.

3 Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye might lay the same out on your pleasures.

4^o Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the amity of the world is the enmity of God? Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world, maketh himself the enemy of God.

5^o Do ye think that the scripture saith in vain, The spirit that dwelleth in us, lusteth af- ter envy?

6 But the scripture offereth more grace, and therefore saith, God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

7^o Submit yourselves to God: resist the devil, and he will flee from you.

8 Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners: and purge your hearts, ye double minded.

9^o Suffer afflictions, and sorrow ye, and weep: let your laughter be turned into mourn- ing, and your joy into heaviness.

10^o Cast down yourselves before the Lord, and he will lift you up.

11^o Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, or he that condemneth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and condemneth the law: and if thou con- demnest the law, thou art not an observer of the law, but a judge.

12 There is one Lawgiver which is able to save, and to destroy. Who art thou that judgest another man?

4 A

med to go about to make God the minister and helper of their lusts and pleasures, in asking things which either are of themselves unlawful, or being lawful ask them to wicked purposes and uses.

3 Another reason, why such unbridled lusts and pleasures are utterly to be condemned, is, because that he that giveth himself to the world, divorceth himself from God, and breaketh the band of that holy and spiritual marriage.

4 The taking away of this objection: Indeed our minds run headlong into these vices, but we ought so much the more diligently to take heed of them: which care and study shall not be in vain, seeing that God resisteth the stub- born, and giveth that grace to the modest and humble that surmounteth all those vices.

5 The conclusion: We must set the contrary virtues against those vices, and therefore whereas we obeyed the suggestions of the devil, we must submit our minds to God, and resist the devil, with a certain and assured hope of vic- tory. To be short, we must employ ourselves to come unto God by purity and sincerity of life.

6 He goeth on in the same comparison of contraries, and setteth against those profane joys an earnest sorrow of mind, and against pride and arrogance holy modesty.

■ By this word the Grecians mean heaviness joined with a shamefacedness, which is to be seen in a cast-down countenance, and settled as it were upon the ground.

■ He reprehendeth most sharply another double mischief of pride: the one is, in that the proud and arrogant will have other things to live according to their will and pleasure, and therefore they do most arrogantly condemn whatsoever pleaseth them not: which thing cannot be done without great injury to our only Law-maker, for by this means his laws are found fault withal, and not circumspectly enough written, and they challenge that unto themselves which properly belongeth to God alone, in that they lay a law upon men's consciences.

Prov. 3. 34.

1 Pet. 5. 6.

Rom. 14. 4.

A. D. 60. 13 ⁸ Go to now, ye that say, To-day or to-morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain, 14 (And yet ye cannot tell what shall be to-morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and afterward vanisheth away)

15 For that ye ought to say, * If the Lord will, and, If we live, we will do this or that.

16 But now ye rejoice in your boastings: all such rejoicing is evil.

17 ⁹ Therefore to him that knoweth how to do well, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

CHAP. V.

1 He threateneth the rich with God's severe judgment, for their pride, 7 that the poor bearing the miserable end of the rich, 8 may patiently bear afflictions, 11 as Job did, 14 even in their distresses.

GO to now, ye rich men: weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

2 Your riches are corrupt, and your garments are moth-eaten.

3 Your gold and silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh, as it were fire. Ye have heaped up treasure for the last days.

4 Behold, the hire of the labourers, which have reaped your fields (which is of you kept back by fraud) crieth, and the cries of them which have reaped, are entered into the ears of the Lord of hosts.

5 Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and in wantonness: ye have ² nourished your hearts, as in a ⁶ day of slaughter.

6 Ye have condemned, and have killed the just, and he hath not resisted you.

7 ³ Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the

⁸ The other fault is this: That men do so confidently determine upon these and those matters and businesses, as though that every moment of their life did not depend of God.

⁹ The conclusion of all the former treatise. The knowledge of the will of God doth not only nothing at all profit, unless the life be answerable unto it, but also maketh the sins far more grievous.

¹⁰ He denounceth utter destruction to the wicked and profane rich men, and such as are drowned in their riotousness, mocking at their foolish confidence, whenas there is nothing indeed more vain than such things.

¹¹ The Lord, who is more mighty than ye are, hath heard them.

¹² Ye have pampered up yourselves.

¹³ The Hebrews call a day that is appointed to solemn banquetting, a day of slaughter, or feasting.

¹⁴ He applicth that the poor which he spake against the rich, warning them to wait for the Lord's coming patiently, who will revenge the injuries which the rich men do them.

¹⁵ The taking away of an objection: although his coming seem to linger, yet at the least we must follow the husbandmen, who do patiently wait for the times that are proper for the fruits of the earth. And again, God will not defer the least jot of the time that he hath appointed.

¹⁶ He commendeth christian patience, for that whereas others through impatience use to accuse one another, the faithful on the contrary side complain not, although they receive injury.

¹⁷ By grudging he meaneth a certain inward complaining which betokeneth impatience.

¹⁸ The conclusion: the Lord is at the door; who will defend his own, and revenge his enemies, and therefore we need not to trouble ourselves.

¹⁹ Because most men would object, that it is good to repel injuries by what means soever. he saith against coming of the Lord. ²⁰ Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the former and the latter rain.

²¹ Be ye also patient therefore, and settle your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth near.

9 ²² Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: ²³ behold, the Judge standeth before the door.

10 ²⁴ Take, my brethren, the prophets for an ensample of suffering adversity, and of long patience, which have spoken in the name of the Lord.

11 Behold, we count them blessed which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have known what ²⁵ end the Lord made. For the Lord is very pitiful and merciful.

12 ²⁶ But before all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, nor by earth, nor by any other oath: but let ²⁷ your yea, be yea, and your nay, nay, lest ye fall into condemnation.

13 ²⁸ Is any among you afflicted? Let him pray. Is any merry? Let him sing.

14 ²⁹ Is any sick among you? Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray for him, and anoint him with ³⁰ oil in the name of the Lord.

15 And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up: and if he have committed ³¹ sins, they shall be forgiven him.

16 ³² Acknowledge your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed: ³³ for the prayer of a righteous man availeth much, if it be fervent.

17 ³⁴ Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are, and prayed earnestly that it might not rain, and it rained not on the earth for three years and six months.

18 And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.

19 Brethren, that the examples of the fathers, whose patience had a most happy end, because God, as a most bountiful Father, never forsaketh his.

²⁰ What end the Lord gave.

²¹ Because even the best men sometimes through impatience break out into oaths sometimes lesser, sometimes greater, the apostle warneth us to detest such wickedness, and to accustom our tongues to simple and true talk.

²² That that you have to say or affirm, speak or affirm it simply, and without any oath: and that that you will deny, deny it simply and flatly.

²³ He sheweth the best remedy against all afflictions, to wit, prayers, which have their place both in sorrow and joy.

²⁴ He sheweth peculiarly to what physicians especially we must go, when we are diseased, to wit, to the prayers of the elders, which then also could cure the body (for so much as the gift of healing was then in force) and take away the chiefest cause of sicknesses and diseases, by obtaining for the sick, through their prayers and exhortation, remission of sins.

²⁵ This was a sign of the gift of healing: and now seeing we have the gift no more, the sign is no longer necessary.

²⁶ By calling on the name of the Lord.

²⁷ He hath reason in making mention of sins, for diseases are for the most part sent because of sins.

²⁸ Because God pardoneth their sins which confess and acknowledge them, and not theirs which justify themselves; therefore the apostle addeth, that we ought freely to confer with another touching those inward diseases, that we may help one another with our prayers.

²⁹ He commendeth prayers by the effects that come of them, that all men may understand that there is nothing more effectual than they are, so that they proceed from a pure mind.

A. D. 60. ¹⁹ Brethren, * if any of you hath erred from the truth, and some man hath converted him, ²⁰ Let him know, that he which hath converted the sinner from going astray out of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins.

A. D. 60.

¹² The taking away of an objection: All reprehensions are not condemned, seeing that on the contrary part there is nothing more acceptable to God than to call into the way, a brother that was wandering out of the way. Hath called him back from his way.

The First Epistle General of P E T E R.

CHAP. I.

A. D. 60. ¹ He extolletb God's mercy shewed in Christ, which we lay hold on by faith, and possess through hope: ¹⁰ Whereof the prophets foretold. ¹³ He exhorteth ¹⁵ to renounce the world, ²³ and their former life, and so wholly yield themselves to God.

PETER an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the strangers that dwell here and there throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, ² Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father unto sanctification of the Spirit, through obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace and peace be multiplied unto you.

³ Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,

⁴ To an inheritance immortal and undefiled, and that withereth not, reserved in heaven for us,

⁵ Which are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, which is prepared to be shewed in the last time:

⁶ Wherein ye rejoice, though now for a season (if need require) ye are in heaviness, through manifold temptations,

⁷ Peter purposing to speak of the duties of a Christian life, reasoneth first of the principles and beginnings of all Christian actions, rising far higher than nature, and carrying us also far above the same. For he sheweth that we which are otherwise of nature sinners, were, through the free mercy of God the Father, first chosen from everlasting: then according to that everlasting decree, were by a certain second creation made his sons in Christ, his only begotten, by whose Spirit we are inwardly changed, and by whose blood we are also reconciled, the end that, Christ himself rose again from the dead, we also might be received into that same heavenly and everlasting glory.

^a Or, according to the purpose of God, who never altereth nor changeth the same.

^b That being set apart from the rest of this wicked world, through the working of the Holy Ghost, they should be consecrated to God, Ephes. 1. 5.

^c Everlasting hope.

² Now he sheweth by what way we come to that glory, to wit, through all kind of afflictions, wherein notwithstanding faith maketh so secure, that we are not only not overcome with sorrow, but also through the beholding of God himself (who otherwise is invisible) with the eyes of faith, are unspeakably joyful: because all such things, as they are but for a time, so they are applied unto us to destroy us, but as it is by fire to purge us, and to make us perfect, that at the length we may obtain salvation.

³ This is that time which Daniel calleth the time of the end, whenas that great restoring of all things shall be, which all creatures look for, Rom. 8. 19.

^e He speaketh of the second coming of Christ.

³ He putteth a difference between true faith, that is to say, that faith which only hath an eye to the doctrine of the prophets and apostles, and false faith: Afterward he maketh two degrees of the same and the self-same faith, accord-

⁷ That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than gold that perisheth (though it be tried with fire) might be found unto your praise, and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ:

A. D. 60.

⁸ Whom ye have not seen, and yet love him: in whom now, though ye see him not, yet do you believe, and rejoice with joy unspeakable and glorious,

⁹ Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls. Or, reward.

¹⁰ Of the which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched, which prophesied of the grace that should come unto you,

¹¹ Searching when or what time the Spirit which testified before of Christ which was in them, should declare the sufferings that should come unto Christ, and the glory that should follow:

¹² Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they should minister the things which are now shewed unto you by them which have preached unto you the gospel by the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, the which things the angels desire to behold.

¹³ Wherefore, gird up the loins of your mind: be sober, and trust perfectly on that grace that is brought unto you, in the revelation of Jesus Christ, ing to the manner of divers revelations, whenas indeed it is but only faith. Thirdly, he saith, that the preaching of the apostles is the fulfilling of the preaching of the prophets, although the latter end of it be yet looked for of the very angels.

14 As

^f He alludeth to the prophecy of Joel, which was exhibited upon the day of Pentecost, in the apostles, it were in the first-fruits of the Holy Ghost, which this same our Peter declareth, Acts 2. 6.

⁴ He goeth from faith to hope, which is indeed a companion that cannot be sundered from faith: and he useth an argument taken of comparison: We ought not to be wearied in looking for so excellent a thing, which the very angels wait for with great desire.

⁵ This is borrowed speech, taken of a common usage amongst them: for by reason that they wore long garments, they could not travel, unless they girded up themselves: and hence it is that Christ said, Let your loins be girded up.

⁵ He setteth forth very briefly what manner of hope ours ought to be, to wit, continual, until we enjoy the thing we hope for: then, what we have to hope for, wit, grace (that is, free salvation) revealed in the gospel, and not that that men do rashly and fondly promise themselves.

^h Soundly and sincerely.

⁶ An argument to stir up our minds, seeing that God doth wait till we seek him, but causeth so great benefit to be brought even unto us.

⁷ He setteth out the end of faith, lest any should promise himself, either sooner or later, that full salvation, wit, the latter coming of Christ, and therewithal warneth us, not to measure the dignity of the gospel according to the present estate, seeing that that which we are now, is not yet revealed.

A. D. 14 As obedient children, not fashioning yourselves unto the former lusts of your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation, 16 Because it is written, Be ye holy, for I am holy.

17 And if ye call him Father, which without respect of person judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your dwelling here in fear,

18 Knowing that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation, received by the traditions of the fathers,

19 But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb undefiled, and without spot:

20 Which was ordained before the foundation of the world, but was declared in the last times for your sakes,

21 Which by his means do believe in God that raised him from the dead, and gave him glory, that your faith and hope might be in God,

22 Having purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit, to love brotherly without feigning: love one another with a pure heart fervently, 23 Being born anew not of mortal seed, but of immortal, by the word of God, who liveth and endureth for ever.

24 For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man is as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower falleth away, 25 But the word of the Lord endureth for ever: and this is the word which is preached among you.

C H A P. II.

1 He exhorteth the new born in faith, to lead their lives answerable to the same: 6 And lest their faith should stagger, he bringeth in that which was foretold touching Christ. 11 Then he willet them to be obedient to magistrates, 19 and that they patiently bear adversity, after Christ's example.

Wherefore laying aside all malice, and envy, and all evil speaking,

2 As new-born babes desire that sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby,

3 Because ye have tasted that the Lord is bountiful.

4 To whom coming unto a living stone, disallowed of men, but chosen of God, and precious,

5 Ye also as lively stones, be made a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.

6 Wherefore also it is contained in the scripture, Behold, I put in Sion chief corner stone, elect and precious: and he that believeth therein, shall not be ashamed.

7 Unto you therefore which believe, it is precious:

there is no other word of the Lord to be looked for, than this which is preached, in which only we must rest.

2 Having laid for the foundation the Spirit of God, effectually working by the word, and having built thereupon three virtues which are the grounds of all christian actions, to wit, faith, hope, and charity: now he proceedeth to a general exhortation, the first member whereof is, that we flee all shew, both of secret and also open malice.

2 The second is, that being newly begotten and born of the new seed of the uncorrupt word, drawing and sucking greedily the same word as milk, we should more and more as it were grow up in that spiritual life. And he calleth it sincere, not only because it is the most pure thing, but also that we should take heed of them which corrupt it.

2 As it becometh new men.

3 He commendeth that spiritual nourishment for the sweetness and profit of it.

4 He goeth on forward in the same exhortation, but useth another kind of borrowed speech, alluding to the temple. Therefore he saith, that the company of the faithful is, as it were, a certain holy and spiritual building, built of the lively stones, the foundation whereof is Christ, as a lively stone sustaining all that are joined unto him with his living virtue, and knitting them together with himself, although this so great treasure be neglected of men.

5 Going forward in the same similitude, he compareth us now to priests, placed to this end in that spiritual temple, that we should serve him with a spiritual worship, that is, with holiness and righteousness: but as the temple, so is the priesthood built upon Christ, in whom only all our spiritual offerings are accepted.

6 He proveth it by the testimony of the prophet Isaiah.

7 By setting the most blessed condition of the believers, and the most miserable of the rebellious, one against the other, he pricketh forward the believers, and triumpheth over the other: and also preventeth an offence which ariseth hereof, that none do more resist this doctrine of the gospel, than they which are chiefest amongst the people of God, as were, at that time that Peter wrote these things, the priests, and elders, and scribes. Therefore he answereth first of all, that there is no cause why any man should be astonished at this their stubbornness, though it were a strange matter, seeing we have been forewarned so long before, that it should so come to pass: and moreover, that it pleased God to create and make certain to this self-same purpose, that the Son of God might be glorified in their just condemnation. Thirdly, for that the glory of Christ is hereby set forth greatly, whereas notwithstanding Christ remaineth the sure head of his church, and they that stumble at him, call down

1 He passeth from faith and hope, to the fruits of them both, which are understood in the name of obedience: And it consisteth in two things, in renouncing our lusts, and living godly: which lusts have their beginning of that blindness wherein all men are born: but holiness proceedeth from the grace and favour of God which adopteth us, and therefore regenerateth us, that the father and the children may be of one disposition.

2 He sheweth that sanctification doth necessarily follow adoption.

3 As before he distinguished true faith and hope from false, so doth he now obedience, setting the quick and sharp sight of God against an outward mark, and earnest reverence against vain severity.

4 If you will be called the sons of that Father.

5 An exhortation, wherein he setteth forth the excellency and greatness of the benefit of God the Father in sanctifying us by the death of his own Son. And he partly setteth the purging of the law against the thing itself, that is, against the blood of Christ, and partly also men's traditions, which he condemneth as utterly vain and superstitious, because they never so old and ancient.

6 The taking away of an objection: what was done to the world, before that Christ was sent into the world: was there no holiness before, and was there no church? The apostle answereth, that Christ was ordained and appointed to redeem and deliver mankind, before that mankind was: much less was there any church without him before his coming in the flesh: yet we are happiest above the rest, to whom Christ was exhibited in deed, in this that he having suffered and overcome death for us, doth now most effectually work in us by the virtue of his Spirit, to create in us faith, hope, and charity.

7 From everlasting.

8 He commendeth the practice of obedience, that is charity: earnestly beating into their heads again, that he speaketh not of any common charity, and such as proceedeth from that our corrupt nature, but of that whose beginning is the Spirit of God: which purifieth our souls through the word laid hold on by faith, and ingendereth also in us a spiritual and everlasting life, as God himself is most pure and truly living.

9 A reason why we have need of this heavenly generation, to wit, because that men, be their glory never so great, are of nature void of all true and sound goodness.

10 The word (flesh) sheweth the weakness of our nature, which is chiefly to be considered in the flesh itself.

11 Again, lest any should seek that spiritual force and virtue in feigned imaginations, the apostle calleth back to the word of God; teaching us furthermore, that precious: but unto them which be disobedient, the ⁸ stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner, ⁸ And a ⁹ stone to stumble at, and a rock of offence, even to them which stumble at the word, being disobedient, unto the which thing they were even ordained.

⁹ But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a people set at liberty, that ye should shew forth the virtues of him that hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light:

¹⁰ Which in time past were not a people, yet are now the people of God: which in time past were not under mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

¹¹ Dearly beloved, ¹⁰ I beseech you, as strangers and pilgrims, ¹¹ abstain from fleshly lusts, which fight against the soul, ¹² And have your conversation honest among the Gentiles, that they which speak evil of you as of evil doers, ¹⁴ may by your good works which they shall see, glorify God in the day of visitation.

¹³ Therefore submit yourselves unto ¹⁵ all manner ordinance of man, ¹⁶ for the Lord's sake, ¹⁷ whether it be unto the king, as unto the superior,

⁹ The contrary member; to wit, he describeth the singular excellency of the elect: and also lest any man should doubt whether he be chosen or not, the apostle calleth us back to the effectual calling, that is, to the voice of the gospel sounding both in our ears and minds, by the outward preaching and sacraments, whereby we may certainly understand that everlasting decree of our salvation, (which otherwise is most secret and hidden) and that through the only mercy of God, who freely chuseth and calleth us. Therefore this only remaineth, saith he, that by all means possible we set forth so great goodness of the most mighty God.

⁸ He returneth to that general exhortation.

¹² A reason why we ought to live holily, to wit, because we are citizens of heaven, and therefore we ought to live according to the laws not of this world, which is most corrupt, but of the heavenly city, although we be strangers in the world.

¹¹ Another argument: The children of God live not according to the flesh, that is, according to that corrupt nature, but according to the Spirit. Therefore fleshly motions ought not to bear rule in us.

¹² The third argument: For although those lusts flatter us, yet they cease not to fight against our salvation.

¹³ The fourth argument, taken of the profit of so doing: for by this means also we provide for our good name and estimation, whilst we compel them at length to change their minds, which speak evil of us.

¹⁴ The fifth argument, which also is of great force: Because the glory of God is greatly set forth by that means, whilst by example of our honest life, even the most profane men are brought unto God, and submit themselves unto him.

⁸ When God shall have mercy on them.

¹⁵ That which he spake generally, he now expoundeth by parts, describing severally every man's duty. And first of all he speaketh of obedience, which is due both to the laws, and also to the magistrates both higher and lower.

⁹ By ordinance, is meant the framing and ordering of civil government, which he calleth ordinance of man, because man invented it, but because it is proper to men.

¹⁶ The first argument: Because the Lord is the author and revenger of this policy of men, that is, which is set amongst men: and therefore the true servants of the Lord must above all others be diligent observers of this order.

sent of him, ¹⁸ for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well. A. D. 60.

¹⁵ For so is the will of God, that by well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of the foolish men:

¹⁶ As free, and not as having the liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God.

¹⁷ Honour all men: and love brotherly fellowship: fear God: honour the king. Ch. 1. 22. Rom. 12. 10.

¹⁸ Servants, be subject to your masters, with all fear, not only to the good and courteous, but also to the froward. Ephes. 5. 6. Col. 3. 22.

¹⁹ For this is thank worthy, if a man for conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongfully: 2 Cor. 7. 10.

²⁰ For what praise is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye take it patiently? but and if when ye do well, ye suffer wrong and take it patiently, this is acceptable to God.

²¹ For hereunto ye are called: for Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an ensample that ye should follow his steps, ²² Who did no sin, neither was there guile found in his mouth. Isa. 53. 9. 1 John 3. 5.

²³ Who when he was reviled, reviled not again: when he suffered, he threatened not, but committed it to him that judgeth righteously. 4 B 24 Who

¹⁹ He declareth the first argument more amply, shewing that Christian liberty doth amongst all things least, or not at all, consist herein, to wit, to cast off the bridle of laws, (as at that time some altogether unskilful in the kingdom of God reported) but rather in this, that living holily according to the will of God, we should make manifest to all men, that the gospel is not a cloak for sin and wickedness, seeing we are in such sort free, that yet we are still the servants of God, and not of sin.

²⁰ He divideth the civil life of man, by occasion of those things which he spake, into two general parts, to wit, into those duties which private men owe to private men, and especially the faithful to the faithful, and into that subjection whereby inferiors are bound to their superiors: but so, that kings be not made equal to God: seeing that fear is due to God, and honour to kings.

⁴ Be charitable and dutiful towards all men.

⁹ The assembly and fellowship of the brethren, as Zech. 11. 12.

¹⁵ The taking away of an objection. Indeed the condition of servants is hard, especially if they have froward masters: but this their subjection shall be so much the more acceptable to God, if his will prevail more with servants, than the master's injuries.

¹⁷ Because he maketh a conscience of it, to offend God, by whose good will and appointment he knoweth this burden is laid upon him.

²¹ He mitigateth the grievousness of servitude, while he sheweth plainly that Christ died also for servants, that they should bear so much the more patiently this inequality betwixt them and their masters, which is of the self-same nature: moreover setting before them Christ that Lord of lords for an ensample, he signifieth that they cannot but seem too delicate, which shew themselves more grieved in bearing of injuries, than Christ himself, who was most just, and most sharply of all afflicted, yet was most patient.

⁸ A borrowed kind of speech, taken of painters and schoolmasters.

²⁴ He sheweth them a remedy against injuries, to wit, that they commend their cause to God, by the example of Christ.

²⁵ He seemeth now to turn his speech to masters, which have also themselves a matter and judge in heaven, who will justly revenge the injuries done to servants, without any respect of persons.

A. D. 24. Who his ownself bare our sins in his body on the tree, that we being dead to sin, should live in righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed.

25 For ye were sheep going astray: but are now returned unto the shepherd and bishop of your souls.

C H A P. III.

That Christian women should not contemn their husbands, though they be infidels, 5 he bringeth in examples of godly women. 8 General exhortations, 14 patiently to bear persecutions, 15 and boldly to yield a reason of their faith. 18 Christ's example.

Likewise let the wives be subject to their husbands, that even they which obey not the word, may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives,

2 While they behold your pure conversation, which is with fear.

3 Whose apparelling, let it not be that outward, with braided hair, and gold put about, or in putting on of apparel:

4 But let it be the hid man of the heart, which consisteth in the incorruption of a meek and quiet spirit, which is before God a thing much set by.

5 For even after this manner in time past did the holy women, which trusted in God, tire themselves, and were subject to their husbands,

6 As Sarah obeyed Abraham, and called him Sir: whose daughters ye are, while ye do well, not being afraid of any terror.

7 Likewise, ye husbands, dwell with them men of knowledge, giving honour unto the woman, unto the weaker vessel, even as they which are heirs together of the grace of life, that your prayers be not interrupted.

8 Finally, be ye all of one mind: one suffer with another: love brethren: be pitiful: be courteous, 9 Not rendering evil for evil, neither rebuke for rebuke: but contrariwise blessing, knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should be heirs of blessing.

10 For if any man long after life, and to see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile:

11 Let him eschew evil, and do good: let him seek peace, and follow after it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: and the face of the Lord is against them that do evil.

13 And who is it that will harm you, if ye follow that which is good?

14 Notwithstanding blessed are ye, if ye suffer for righteousness sake. Yea, fear not their fear, neither be troubled.

15 But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every 6 Gen. 18. 22.

He calleth the servants back from the consideration of the injuries which they are constrained bear, to think upon the greatness and the end of the benefit received of Christ.

In the third place, he setteth forth the wives duties to their husbands, commanding them to be obedient.

He speaketh, namely, of them which had husbands that were not Christians, which ought so much the more be subject to their husbands, that by their honest and chaste conversation they may gain them to the Lord.

He condemneth the riot and excess of women, and setteth forth their true apparelling, such as is precious before God, to wit, the inward and incorruptible, which consisteth in meek and quiet spirit.

Who hath his seat fastened in the heart: so that the hidden man is set against the outward decking of the body.

Precious in deed, and so taken of God.

An argument taken out of the example of women, and especially of Sarah, which was the mother of all believers.

Because women are of nature fearful, he giveth them to understand, that he requireth of them that subjection, which is not wrang out of them either by force or fear.

He teacheth husbands also their duties, to wit, that the more understanding and wisdom they have, the more wisely and circumspectly they behave themselves.

Do all the duties of wedlock.

The more wisdom the husband hath, the more circumspectly he must behave himself in bearing those discommodities which through the woman's weakness oft-times cause trouble both to the husband and the wife.

The second argument: because the wife, notwithstanding that she is weaker by nature than the man, is an excellent instrument of the man, made far more excellent uses: whereupon it followeth, that she is not therefore to be neglected, because she is weak, but on the contrary part she ought to be so much the more cared for.

Having honest care of her.

The woman is called a vessel after the manner of the Hebrews, because the husband useth her as his fellow and helper, to live faithfully before God.

The third argument: for that they are equal in that which is the chiefest (that is to say, in the benefit of eternal life) which otherwise unequal touching the governance and conversation at home, and therefore they not to be despised, although they be weak.

Of that gracious and free benefit whereby we have everlasting life given us.

The fourth argument: All brawlings and chidings must be eschewed, because they hinder prayers, and the whole service of God, whereunto both the husband and wife are equally called.

He returneth to the exhortations, and commandeth concord, and whatsoever things pertain to the maintenance of peace and mutual love.

We must not only not recompense injury for injury, but we must also recompense them with benefits.

An argument taken of comparison: Seeing that we ourselves are called of God, whom we offend so often, to so great benefit, (so far is he from revenging the injuries which we do him) shall we rather make ourselves unworthy of so great bountifulness, than forgive another's faults? And from this verse the end of the chapter there is a digression or going from the matter he is in hand with, to exhort us valiantly to bear afflictions.

A secret objection: But this patience shall be nothing else but a fleshing and hardening of the wicked in their wickedness, make them set upon more boldly, and destroy us. Nay, (saith the apostle by the words of David) to live without doing hurt, and follow after peace when it flieth away, is the way that happy and quiet peace. And if so be any man be afflicted for doing justly, the Lord marketh all things, and will in his time deliver the godly, which cry unto him, and will destroy the wicked.

Lead blessed and happy life.

This word (Face) after the of the Hebrews, is taken for (anger.)

The second argument: when the wicked are provoked, they wayward: therefore they must rather be overcome with good turns. And if they cannot be gotten by that also, yet notwithstanding we shall be blessed, if we suffer for righteousness sake.

A most certain counsel in afflictions: be they never so terrible, be of a constant mind, and to stand fast. But how shall we attain unto it? If we sanctify God in our minds and hearts, that is to say, if we rest upon him as that is Almighty, that loveth mankind, that good and true indeed.

Be dismayed they are.

Give him all praise and glory, and hang only on him.

He will have us, when we are afflicted for righteousness sake, to be careful not for redeeming of our life, either with denying or renouncing the truth, or with like violence, or any such means: but rather to give account of our faith boldly, and yet with a meek spirit: and full of godly reverence, that the enemies may not have any thing justly object, but may rather be ashamed of themselves.

• Rom. 5. 6. Heb. 9. 15. 18 * 18 For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, ¹⁹ the just for the unjust, ■ that he might bring us to God: ²¹ and was put to death concerning the ■ flesh, but was quickened by the Spirit.

¹⁷ A reason which standeth upon two general rules of Christianity, which notwithstanding all men allow not of. The ■■ is, if we must needs suffer afflictions, it is better to suffer wrongfully than rightfully: the other is this, because we ■■ so afflicted ■■ by hap, but by the will of our God.

■ A proof of either of the rules, by the example of Christ himself our chief pattern, who ■■ afflicted ■■ for his own sins (which were none) but for ours, and that according ■ his Father's decree.

¹⁹ An argument taken of comparison: Christ the just, suffered for ■■ that are unjust, and shall it grieve us which are unjust to suffer for the just's cause?

■ Another argument, being partly taken of things coupled together, to wit, because Christ bringeth us ■ his Father that same way that he ■■ himself, and partly from the cause efficient: ■ wit, because that Christ is ■■ only set before us for an example to follow, but also he holdeth ■ up by his virtue in all the difficulties of this life, until he bring ■■ his Father.

Yes (saith the apostle) for Christ hath shewed forth his virtue in all ages both ■ the preservation of the godly, ■■ they never so few and miserable, and to revenge the rebellion of his enemies, as it appeareth by the history of the flood: for Christ is he which in those days (when God through his patience appointed ■ time of repentance ■ the world) ■■ present, ■■ in corporal presence, but by his divine virtue, preaching repentance, even by the mouth of Noah himself, who then prepared the ark, ■ those disobedient spirits which ■■ in prison, waiting for the full recompence of their rebellion, and saved those few, (that is, only eight persons) in the water.

1 He bringeth in Christ's example, and applieth it 6 to the mortifying of the flesh, especially commending charity: 12 And so entreateth of patience. 17 That it is necessary that correction begin at the church.

■ A proportional applying of the former example to the time which followed the coming of Christ: for that preservation of Noah in the waters ■■ figure of our baptism: ■■ as though the material water of baptism saveth us, as those waters which bore up the ark saved Noah, but because Christ, with his inward virtue, which the outward baptism shadoweth, preserveth ■ being washed, so that we may call upon God with a good conscience.

■ That self-same virtue, whereby Christ rose again, and ■■ being carried up into heaven, hath received all power, doth at this day defend and preserve us.

² Having ended his digression, and sliding from his matter, now he returneth to the exhortation which he brake off, taking occasion by that which he said touching the death and resurrection of Christ, so defining our sanctification, that ■ be sanctified, is all one as ■ suffer in the flesh, that is ■ say, ■ leave off from our wickedness and viciousness: and to rise again ■ God, that is ■ say, to be renewed by the virtue of the Holy Ghost; that we may lead the rest of ■ life which remaineth after the will of God.

² That ■ be ■■ moved with the enemies perverse and slanderous judgments of us, we have ■ let against them that last judgment of God which remaineth for them: for none, whether they be then found living, ■ were dead before, shall escape it.

■ They think it a new and strange matter.

⁴ A digression: because he made mention of the last general judgment. And he preventeth an objection, that seeing Christ ■■ very lately, they may seem ■ be excused which died before. But this the apostle denieth: for (saith he) this self-same gospel was preached unto them ■■ (for he speaketh unto the Jews) and that to the same end that I ■■ preach it unto you, ■ wit, that the flesh being abolished, and put away (that is ■ say, that wicked and naughty corruption which reigneth in men) they should ■■ themselves ■ be governed by the virtue of the Spirit of God.

A. D. 60. 7 Now the end of all things is at hand. Be ye therefore sober, and watching in prayer.

8 But above all things have fervent love among you: for love shall cover the multitude of sins.

9 Be ye harbourous one to another, without grudging.

10 Let every man as he hath received the gift, minister the same one to another, as good disposers of the manifold grace of God.

11 If any man speak, let him speak as the words of God. If any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God ministereth, that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom is praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

12 Dearly beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial, which is among you to prove you, as though some strange thing were come unto you.

13 But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings, that when his glory shall appear, ye may be glad and rejoice.

14 If ye be railed upon for the name of Christ, blessed are ye: for the Spirit of glory and of God reiteth upon you: which on their part is evil spoken of, but on your part is glorified.

15 But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or an evil doer, or as a busy-body in other men's matters.

16 But if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed: but let him glorify God in this behalf:

17 For the time is come, that judgment must begin at the house of God. If it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them which obey not the gospel of God?

18 And if the righteous be scarcely saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?

19 Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God, commit their souls to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creator.

C H A P. V.

1 He warneth the elders not to usurp authority over the church, 5 willing the younger sort to be willing to be taught, and to be modest, 8 to be sober, and watchful to resist the cruel adversary.

TH E elders which are among you, I beseech, which am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed:

2 Feed the flock of God, which dependeth upon you, caring for it not by constraint, but willingly: not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind:

3 Not as though ye were lords over God's heritage, but that ye may be ensamples to the flock:

4 And when that chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive an incorruptible crown of glory. 5 Like-

He returneth to his purpose, using an argument taken from the circumstance of the time. Because the last end is at hand, and therefore we must so much the more diligently watch and pray with true sobriety of mind.

He commendeth charity of one towards another, because it doth, as it were, bury a multitude of sins, and therefore preserveth and maintaineth peace and concord for they that love one another, do easily forgive one another their offences.

Of all the duties of charity, he commendeth one, namely, which was at that time most necessary, to wit, hospitality, which he will have to be voluntary, and most courteous and beautiful.

He sheweth the use of charity, to wit, that every man bestow that gift, which he hath received, to the profit of his neighbour.

A reason: Because that whatsoever gift we have, we have received it of God upon this condition, to be his disposers and stewards.

He reckoneth up two kinds of these gifts as chief, to wit, the gift of the word to the church, and the other ecclesiastical gifts. In these two things especially are to be observed: first, that the pure word of God be taught, and secondly, that it is done, be referred to the glory of God the Father, and to the proper mark.

Because the cross is joined with the sincere profession of religion, the apostle fitly repeateth that which he touched before, warning us not to be troubled at persecutions and afflictions, as at a new and strange thing.

As though some new thing had befallen you, which you never thought of before.

The first reason: Because the Lord meaneth not to consume us with this fire (as it were) but to purge us of our dross, and make us perfect.

Another reason: Because the afflictions of the godly and the wicked differ very much, and chiefly in three points. First, because the godly communicate with Christ in their afflictions, and therefore shall in their time be partakers also of his glory.

Secondly, because that although the infidels think far otherwise, who in afflicting the godly, blaspheme God; yet the godly, in that they are so railed upon, are honoured of God with the true spiritual glory, and their adoption is sealed to them by the Spirit of God.

By spirit, he meaneth the gifts of the Spirit.

The third difference: for the godly are not afflicted for their evil doings, but for righteousness sake as Christians: whereby it cometh to pass that the cross, seeing it is a testimony unto them of faith and righteousness, ministereth to them not an occasion of sorrow, but of unspeakable joy:

now the apostle propoundeth this third difference under the form of an exhortation.

The third reason: because the Lord of all the world being especially careful for them of his household, doth therefore chastize them first of all, yet so that he keepeth a measure in his greatest severity. And as he hath always used to do heretofore; so doth he now, especially whenas he exhibited himself in person to his church.

Lest the godly should be offended and stumble at that vain shadow or felicity of the wicked, as though God were not the governor of the world, for that the wicked are in good case, and the godly in evil, the apostle teacheth by an argument of a comparison of them together, that God spareth not his own, but nurtureth them under the cross, will at length in his time handle the rebellious and wicked far otherwise, whom he hath appointed to utter destruction.

The conclusion: Seeing the godly are not afflicted by chance, but by the will of God, they ought not to despair, but go forward notwithstanding in the way of holiness and well doing, commending themselves to God their faithful Creator, that is to say, their Father.

He describeth peculiarly the office of the elders, that is to say, of them that have the care of the church.

He useth a preface touching the circumstance of his own person: to wit, that he as their companion communiceth with them not of matters which he knoweth not, but wherein he is as well experienced as any, and propoundeth unto them no other condition but that which he himself hath sustained before them, and doth still take the same pains, and also hath one self-same hope together with them.

The first rule: He that is a shepherd, let him feed the flock.

He saith not, offer for the quick and the dead, and sing patched shreds in a strange tongue, but (feed.)

The second: Let the shepherd consider, that the flock is not his, but God's.

The third: Let not the shepherds invade other men's flocks, but let them feed that which God hath committed unto them.

Let the shepherd govern the church with the word, and example of godly and unblameable life; not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; not as lords over God's portion and heritage, but as his ministers.

Which is the Christian people.

That the shepherds minds be not overcome with either the wickedness of men, or their cruelty, warneth them to cast their eyes continually upon that chief Shepherd, and the crown which is laid up for them in heaven.

⁸ He commendeth many peculiar Christian virtues, and especially modesty: which admonition all of [■] stand in need of, but especially the younger sort, by reason of the untowardness and pride of that age.

⁹ Because pride seemeth to many to be the way unto the glory of this life, the apostle witnesseth [■] the contrary side, that ignominy and shame is the reward of pride, and glory the reward of modesty.

¹⁰ Because those proud and lofty spirits threaten the modest and humble, the apostle warneth us to set the power of God against the vanity of proud men, and to hang wholly upon his providence.

¹¹ The cruelty of Satan, who seeketh by all means to devour us, is overcome by watchfulness and faith.

¹² The persecutions which Satan stirreth up, are neither new nor proper [■] any one man, but from old and ancient time common [■] the whole church, and therefore we must suffer that patiently; wherein we have such and so many fellows of our conflicts and combats:

¹³ Amongst your brethren which [■] dispersed throughout the world.

¹⁴ He sealeth up as it were with a seal the former exhortation, with a solemn prayer, again willing them to ask increase of strength at his hands, of whom they had the beginning, and hope to have the accomplishment: [■] wit, of God the Father in Christ Jesus, in whom we are sure of the glory of eternal life.

¹⁵ Continuance and perseverance in the doctrine of the apostles, is the only ground and foundation of Christian strength: now the sum of the apostles doctrine, is salvation freely given of God.

¹⁶ Familiar salutations.

¹⁷ In that famous city of Assyria, where Peter the apostle of the circumcision then was:

The Second Epistle General of P E T E R.

C H A P. I.

A. D. 66. 3 Having spoken of the bountifulness of God, 5 and of the virtues of faith, 6 he exhorteth them to holiness of life. 12 And that his counsel may be the more effectual, 14 he sheweth that his death is at hand, 16 and that himself did see the power of Christ which he opened unto them.

SIMON Peter, [■] servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to you which have obtained like precious faith with us by the [■] righteousness of our God and Saviour Jesus Christ:

2 Grace and peace be multiplied unto you, through the acknowledging of God, and of Jesus our Lord,

3 According as his ^b divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto ^a life and godliness, through the ^d acknowledging of him that hath called us unto glory and virtue.

4 Whereby most great and precious promises are given unto us, that by them ye should be partakers of the ^e divine nature, in that ye flee the corruption which is in the ^f world through ^g lust.

5 Therefore give even all diligence thereunto: ^h join moreover virtue with your faith: and with virtue, knowledge:

6 And with knowledge, temperance: and with temperance, patience: and with patience, godliness:

7 And with godliness, brotherly kindness: and with brotherly kindness, love.

A. D. 66.

¹ A salutation, wherein he giveth them to understand, that he dealeth with them as Christ's ambassador: and otherwise agreeth with them in [■] self-same faith, which is grounded upon the righteousness of Jesus Christ, our God and Saviour.

² In that that God standing to his promises, shewed himself faithful, and therefore just unto us.

³ Faith is the acknowledging of God and Christ; from whence all our blessedness issueth and floweth.

⁴ Christ setteth forth himself unto [■] plainly, in the gospel, and that by his only power, and giveth us all things which are requisite both to eternal life, wherein he hath appointed to glorify us, and also [■] godliness; in that he doth furnish [■] with true virtue.

⁵ He speaketh of Christ, whom he maketh God; and the only Saviour.

⁶ Unto salvation.

⁷ This is the sum of true religion, to be led by Christ to the Father, as it were by the hand.

⁸ An explication of the former sentence, declaring the causes of so great benefits, to wit, God and his free promise, from whence all these benefits proceed; I say, the most excellent benefits, whereby we are delivered from the corruption of the world, (that is, from the wicked lusts which we carry about us) and are made after a sort, like unto God himself.

⁹ By the divine nature he meaneth not the substance of the godhead, but the partaking of those qualities, whereby the image of God is restored in us.

¹⁰ In men.

¹¹ For lust is the seat of corruption; and hath his place [■] in our very bowels, and inmost parts.

¹² Having laid the foundation, (that is, having declared the causes of our salvation, and especially of our sanctification) now he beginneth to exhort [■] to give our minds wholly to the true use of this grace. And he beginneth with faith; without which nothing can please God, and he warneth us [■] have it full fraught with virtue (that is [■] say, with good and godly manners), being joined with the knowledge of God's will, without which there is neither faith, neither any true virtue.

¹³ Supply also, and support or aid.

¹⁴ He reckoneth up certain other principal virtues; whereof some pertain to the first table of the law, others to the last.

A. D.
65.

7 For if these things be among you, and abound, they will make you that ye neither shall be idle, nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ:

9 For he that hath not these things, is blind, and cannot see far off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

10 Wherefore, brethren, give rather diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall.

11 For by this means an entering shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

12 Wherefore, I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though that ye have knowledge, and be stablished in the present truth.

13 For I think it meet, long I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance, 14 Seeing I know that the time is at hand that I must lay down this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath shewed me.

15 I will endeavour therefore always, that ye also may be able to have remembrance of these things after my departing:

16 For we followed not deceivable fables when we opened unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but with our eyes we saw his majesty:

17 For he received of God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from that excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

18 And this voice we heard when it came from heaven, being with him in the holy mount.

19 We have also a most sure word of the prophets, to the which ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts.

7 As those fruits do spring from the true knowledge of Christ, so is like sort the knowledg: itself is fostered, and groweth, by bringing forth such fruits, insomuch that he that is unfruitful, did either never know the true light, or hath forgotten the gift of sanctification, which he hath received.

8 He that hath not an effectual knowledge of God in him, is blind as touching the kingdom of God, so he cannot see things that are afar off, that is to say, heavenly things.

9 The conclusion: Therefore seeing our calling and election is approved by those fruits, and is confirmed in us: and moreover seeing this is the only way to the everlasting kingdom of Christ, it remaineth that we cast our minds wholly that way.

10 An amplifying of the conclusion joined with modest excuse, wherein he declareth his love towards them, and foretelleth them of his death, which is in hand.

11 In this body.

12 Another amplification, taken both of the great certainty and also excellency of his doctrine, whereof our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is author, whose glory the apostle himself both saw and heard.

13 The truth of the gospel is hereby also manifest, in that it agreeth wholly with the foretellings of the prophets.

14 The doctrine of the apostles doth not shut out the doctrine of the prophets, for they confirm each other by each others testimonies; but the prophets were as candles which gave light unto the blind, until the brightness of the gospel began to shine.

A more full and open knowledge than was under the shadows of the law.

15 That clearer doctrine of the gospel.

16 The prophets are to be read, but so, that we ask of God the gift of interpretation: for he that is the author of the writings of the prophets, is also the interpreter of them.

17 He joineth the scripture and prophecy together, and distinguish true prophecies from false.

20 So that ye first know this, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation:

21 For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake they were moved by the Holy Ghost.

C H A P. II.

1 He foretelleth them of false teachers, 3 whose wicked sleights and destruction he declareth. 12 He compareth them to brute beasts, 17 and to wells without water, 20 because they seek to withdraw men from God to their old filthiness.

BUT there were false prophets also among the people, even there shall be false teachers among you: which privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that hath bought them, and bring upon themselves swift damnation.

2 And many shall follow their destructions, by whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of:

3 And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandize of you: whose condemnation long since resteth not, and their destruction slumbereth not.

4 For if God spared not the angels that had sinned, but cast them down into hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be kept unto damnation:

5 Neither hath spared the old world, but saved Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, and brought in the flood upon the world of the ungodly:

6 And turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them, and overthrew them, and made them an ensample unto them that after should live ungodly:

7 And delivered just Lot, vexed with the uncleanly conversation of the wicked:

8 (For he being righteous, and dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, vexed his

For all interpretation cometh from God.

The godly interpreters and messengers.

9 Inspired of God: and these their motions were in very good order, and not such as were the motions of the prophane soothsayers, and foretellers of things to come.

10 As in times past there were two kinds of prophets, the one true, the other false, so Peter foretelleth them, that there shall be some true and some false teachers in the church, insomuch that Christ himself shall be denied of some, which notwithstanding shall call him Redeemer.

11 Under the law, while the state and policy of the Jews was yet standing.

12 There shall not only be heresies, but also many followers of them.

13 Covetousness for the most part is companion of heresy, and maketh merchandise even of souls.

14 They will abuse you, and sell you, as they sell cattle in fair.

15 A comfort for the godly: God, who cast the angels, that fell away from him, headlong into the darkness of hell, at length shall be judged: and who destroyed the old world with the flood, and preserved Noah, the eighth person: and who burned Sodom, and saved Lot: will deliver his elect from these errors, and will utterly destroy those unrighteous.

16 So the Grecians called the deep dungeons under the earth, which should be appointed to torment the souls of the wicked in.

17 Bound them with darkness, as it were with chains: and by darkness he meaneth that most miserable state of life, that is full of horror.

18 Which was before the flood: that God made a new world, but because the world seemed new.

19 For he ceased not the space of an hundred and twenty years the wicked, both by word and deed, what wrath of God hanged over their heads.

20 Which way soever he looked, and turned his ears.

21 He had a troubled soul, and being vehemently grieved, lived a painful life.

9 The Lord knoweth to deliver the godly out of temptation, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment under punishment:

10 And chiefly them that walk after the flesh, in the lust of uncleanness, and despise government, which are bold, and stand in their own conceit, and fear not to speak evil of them that are in dignity.

11 Whereas the angels, which are greater both in power and might, give not railing judgment against them before the Lord.

12 But these, natural brute beasts, led with sensuality, and made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of those things which they know not, and shall perish through their own corruption,

13 And shall receive the wages of unrighteousness, as they which count it pleasure daily to live deliciously. Spots they are and blots, delighting themselves in their deceivings, in feasting with you,

14 Having eyes full of adultery, and that cannot cease to sin, beguiling unstable souls: they have hearts exercised with covetousness, they are the children of curse:

15 Which forsaking the right way, have gone astray, following the way of Balaam, the son of Bofor, which loved the wages of unrighteousness:

16 But he was rebuked for his iniquity: for the dumb beast, speaking with man's voice, forbade the foolishness of the prophet.

17 These are wells without water, and clouds carried about with a tempest, to whom the black darkness is reserved for ever.

18 For in speaking swelling words of vanity, they beguile with wantonness, through the lusts of the flesh, them that were clean escaped from them which are wrapped in error:

19 Promising unto them liberty, and are themselves the servants of corruption: for of whomsoever a man is overcome, even unto the same is he in bondage.

C H A P. III.

He sheweth that he writeth the same things again, because they must often be stirred up, because dangers hang over their heads through certain mockers. Therefore he warneth the godly that they do not, after the judgment of the flesh, appoint the day of the Lord, but that they think it always at hand: in which doctrine he sheweth that Paul agreeth with him.

THIS second epistle I now write unto you, beloved, wherewith I stir up and warn your pure minds,

2 To call to remembrance the words which were told before of the holy prophets, and also the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour.

3 This first understand, that there shall come in the last days, mockers, which will walk after their lusts,

4 And say, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers died, all things continue alike from the beginning of the creation.

5 For this they willingly know not, that the heavens were of old, and the earth that was of the water and by the water, by the word of God.

6 Where-

Another note, whereby they may be well known what of they are, because they have inwardly nothing but either utterly vain or very hurtful, although they make shew of some great goodness, but they shall not escape unpunished for it, because under pretence of false liberty, they draw men into most miserable slavery of sin.

Which boast of knowledge, and have nothing in them.

They are in gross darkness.

They deceive with vain and swelling words.

They take them as fishes taken with the hook.

Unfeignedly and indeed, clean departed from idolatry.

It were better have never known the way of righteousness, than turn back from it to the old filthiness: and men that do so compared dogs and swine.

The remedy against those wicked enemies, both of true doctrine and holiness, is to be sought for by the continual meditation of the writings of the prophets and apostles.

He voucheth the second coming of Christ against the Epicures by monstrous men, who would seem wise by their contempt of God, and wicked boldness.

The reason which these mockers pretend, because the course of nature is all one as it was from the beginning, therefore the world from everlasting, and shall be for ever.

He setteth against them the creation of heaven and earth by the word of God, which these men are willingly ignorant of.

Which appeared, when the waters were gathered together into place.

Hath been long practised in saving and delivering the righteous.

He goeth to another sort of corrupt men, which notwithstanding within the bosom of the church, which are wickedly given, and do seditiously speak evil of the authority of magistrates (which the angels themselves that minister before God, do not dispraise). A true and lively description of the Romish clergy (as they call it.)

Princes and great men, be they never so high in authority.

A lively painting out of the same persons, wherein they compared to beasts which made to snare themselves to destruction, while they give themselves fill their bellies: for there is no greater ignorance than is in these men; although they most impudently find fault with those things which they know not, and it shall pass that they shall destroy themselves as beasts with those pleasures wherewith they delighted, and dishonour and defile the company of the godly.

Made to this end be prey to others: So do these men willingly cast themselves into Satan's snares.

Their own wicked manners shall bring them destruction.

When by being amongst the Christians in the holy banquets which the church keepeth, they would seem by that means to be true members of the church, yet they are indeed but blots of the Church.

He condemneth those men, shewing, in their behaviour and countenance, unmeasurable lust, as making merchandise of the souls of light persons, exercised in all the crafts of covetousness; be short, as men that sell themselves for money, curse the sons of God after Balaam's example, whom the dumb beast reproved.

1 T. Jude 18.

A. D. 66. 6⁵ Wherefore the world that then was, perished, overflowed with the⁶ water.

7⁶ But the heavens and the earth, which now, are kept by the same word in store, and reserved unto fire against the day of condemnation, and of the destruction of ungodly men.

8⁷ Dearly beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord⁸ as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.

9⁸ The Lord of that promise is not slack (as some men count slackness)⁹ but is patient toward us, and¹⁰ would have¹¹ us¹² perish, but would all men to come to repentance.

10⁹ But the¹⁰ day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall pass away with a¹¹ noise, and the elements shall melt with heat, and the earth with the works that are therein, shall be burnt up.

11¹⁰ Seeing therefore that all these things must be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in holy conversation and godliness!

12 Looking for, and¹² hastening unto the coming of that day of God, by which the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with heat.

⁵ Secondly, he setteth against them the universal flood which was the destruction, as it were, of the whole world.

⁶ For the waters returning into their former place, raised the world, that is to say, this beauty of the earth which we see, and all living creatures which live upon the earth, perished.

⁷ Thirdly, he pronounceth that it shall not be harder for God to burn heaven and earth with fire, in that day which is appointed for the destruction of the wicked (which thing he will also do) than it was for him in times past to make them with his only word, and afterward to overwhelm them with water.

⁸ The raising away of⁸ objection: In that he seemeth to defer this judgment a long season, in respect of⁹ it is true, but not before God, with whom there is no time either long or short.

⁹ The Lord will surely come, because he hath promised: and that neither sooner nor later than he hath promised.

¹⁰ A reason why the latter day cometh not out of hand, because God doth patiently wait till the elect be brought to repentance, that none of them may perish.

¹¹ A very short description of the last destruction of the world, but in such sort¹² nothing could be spoken more sparingly.

¹² With the violence as it were of¹³ hissing storm.

¹³ An exhortation of purity of life, setting before¹⁴ that 13: But we look for¹³ new heavens, and a new earth, according to his promise, wherein¹⁴ dwelleth righteousness.

14 Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in¹⁵ peace, without spot and blameless.

15 And suppose that the long suffering of our Lord is salvation,¹⁶ even as our beloved brother Paul, according to the wisdom given unto him, wrote unto you,

16 As one that in all his epistles speaketh of these things: ¹⁷ among the¹⁸ which, some things are hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable, wrest, as they do also other scriptures, unto their own destruction.

17 Ye therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye be also plucked away with the error of the wicked, and fall from your own steadfastness.

18 But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ: to him be glory both now and evermore. Amen.

horrible judgment of God, both to bridle our wantonness and also to comfort us, so that we be found watching, and ready to meet him at his coming.

¹³ He requireth patience of us, yet such patience as is not slothful.

¹⁴ In which heavens.

¹⁵ That you may try to your profit, how gentle and peaceable he is.

¹⁶ Paul's epistles are allowed by the express testimony of Peter.

¹⁷ There be certain of these things obscure and dark, whereof the unlearned take occasion to overthrow some men that stand not fast, wresting the testimonies of the scripture unto their own destruction. But this is the remedy against such deceit, to labour that we may daily more and more grow up and increase in the knowledge of Christ.

¹⁸ That is to say, among the which things: for he disputeth not here whether Paul's epistles be plain or dark, but saith, that amongst those things which Paul hath written of in his epistles: and Peter himself in these two of his owns, there are some things which cannot be so easily understood, and therefore¹⁹ of some drawn to their own destruction: and this he saith to make us more attentive and diligent, and not to remove²⁰ from the reading of holy things, for to what end should they have written vain speculations?

The First Epistle General of J O H N.

C H A P. I.

A. D. 90. 1 He testifieth that he bringeth the eternal Word wherein is life, and light. 9 God will be merciful unto the faithful, if groaning under the burden of their sins, they learn to flee unto his mercy.

THAT¹ which was from the beginning, which we have² heard, which we have seen with these our eyes, which we have looked upon, and these hands of ours have handled of that³ Word of life,

¹ He beginneth with the description of the person of Christ, whom he maketh one, and not two: and him both God from everlasting (for he² with the Father from the beginning, and is that eternal life) and also made true man, whom John himself and his companions, both heard, and beheld, and handled.

² I heard him speak, I saw him myself with mine eyes, I handled with mine hands him that is very God, being made very man; and not³ alone, but others also that were with me.

2 (For that life was made manifest, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and³ shew unto you that eternal life which was with the Father, and was manifest unto us)

3 That, I say, which we have seen and heard, declare we unto you, that ye may also have fellowship with us, and that our fellowship also may be with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.

4 And

¹ That same everlasting Word by whom all things are made, and in whom only there is life.

² Being sent by him: and that doctrine is rightly said to be shewed, for³ man could so much as have thought of it, if it had not been thus shewed.

³ The use of this doctrine is this, that all of⁴ being conpled and joined together with Christ by faith, might become the sons of God: In which thing only consisteth all happiness.

A. D. 90. 4 And these things write we unto you, that your joy may be full.

5 This then is the message which we have heard of him and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him no darkness.

6 If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lye, and do not truly.

7 But if we walk in the light he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.

8 If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and truth is not in us.

9 If we acknowledge our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

10 If we say we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word not in us.

CHAP. II.

1 He declareth that Christ is our mediator and advocate, 3 and sheweth that the knowledge of God consisteth in holiness of life, 12 which appertaineth to all sorts, 14 that depend on Christ alone. 15 Then having exhorted them to contemn the world, 18 he giveth warning that antichrists be avoided, 24 and that the known truth be stood unto.

MY little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not: and if any 1 Now he entereth into a question, whereby we may understand that we are joined together with Christ, to wit, if we be governed with his light, which is perceived by the ordering of our life. And thus he reasoneth: God is in himself most pure light, therefore he agreeth well with them which are lightfome, but with them that are darkfome he hath fellowship.

2 God is said to be light of his own nature, and to be in light, that is to say, in that everlasting infinite blessedness: and we are said to walk in light, in that the beams of that light do shine unto us in the word.

3 A digression, or going from the matter he is in hand with, to the remission of sins: for this our sanctification which walk in the light, is a testimony of our joining and knitting together with Christ: but because this our light is very dark, we must needs obtain another benefit in Christ, to wit, that our sins may be forgiven us being sprinkled with his blood: and this in conclusion is the prop and stay of our salvation.

4 There is none but needeth this benefit, because there is none that is not a sinner.

5 This place doth fully refute that perfectness and works of supererogation, which the Papists dream of.

6 So then, John speaketh not thus for modesty's sake, some say, but because it is so indeed.

7 Therefore the beginning of salvation is to acknowledge our wickedness, and to require pardon of him, who freely forgiveth all sins, because he hath promised so to do, and he is faithful and just.

8 So then our salvation hangeth upon the free promises of God, who because he is faithful and just, will perform that which he hath promised.

9 Where then our merits? for this is our felicity.

10 A rehearsal of the former sentence, wherein he damned all of sin without exception: insomuch that if any man persuade himself otherwise, he doth as much in himself lieth make the word of God himself vain, and no purpose, yea, he maketh God a liar: for what end, either in times past, needed sacrifices, now Christ and the gospel, if we be not sinners?

11 They do not only deceive themselves, but blasphemous against God.

12 His doctrine shall have no place in us: that is, in our hearts.

13 It followeth not hercof, that we must give wicked nature the bridle, sin so much the more freely, because our sins are clean ed away by the blood of Christ, but we must rather so much the more diligently resist sin. And yet we must not despair because of our weakness, for we have an advo-man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Just.

2 And he is the reconciliation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world.

3 And hereby we are sure that we know him, if we keep his commandments.

4 He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

5 But he that keepeth his word, in him is the love of God perfect indeed: hereby we know that we are in him.

6 He that saith he remaineth in him, ought even so to walk as he hath walked.

7 Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you: but an old commandment, which ye have had from the beginning: this old commandment is that word, which ye have heard from the beginning.

8 Again, a new commandment I write unto you, that which is true in him, and also in you: for the darkness is past, and that true light now shineth.

9 He that saith that he is in that light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness until this time.

10 He that loveth his brother, abideth in that light, and there is none occasion of evil in him.

11 But he that hateth his brother, is in darkness, cate and purger, Christ Jesus the just, and therefore acceptable unto his Father.

2 In that he nameth Christ, he shutteth forth all other.

3 Reconciliation and intercession go together, to give us to understand that he is both advocate and high priest.

4 For of all sorts, of all ages, and all places, so that this benefit belongeth not to the Jews only, of whom he speaketh, as appeareth, ver. 7. but also to other nations.

5 He returneth to the testimony of our conjunction with God, to wit, to sanctification, declaring what it is to walk in the light, to wit, to keep God's commandments. Whereby it followeth that holiness doth not consist in those things which men have devised, neither in vain profession of the gospel.

6 This must be understood of such knowledge as hath faith with it, and not of a knowledge.

7 For the tree is known by the fruit.

8 Holiness, that is, a life ordered according to the precept of God's commandments, how weak soever we be, is of necessity joined with faith, that is, with the true knowledge of the Father in the Son.

9 He that keepeth God's commandments, loveth God indeed: He that loveth God, is in God, or is joined together with God. Therefore he that keepeth his commandments, is in him.

10 Wherewith we love God.

11 He meaneth our conjunction with Christ.

12 He that is with Christ, must needs live his life, that is, must walk in his steps.

13 The apostle going about to expound the commandment of charity towards another, telleth first, that when he urgeth holiness, he bringeth no new trade of life (as they use to do which devise tradition one after another) but putteth them in mind of that same law which God gave in the beginning, to wit, by Moses, at that time that God began to make laws to his people.

14 He addeth, that the doctrine indeed is old, but it is now after a sort new, both in respect of Christ, and also of us, in whom he, through the gospel, engraveth his law effectually, not in tables of stone, but in our minds.

15 Which thing, (to wit, that the doctrine is which I write unto you) is in him, and in you.

16 Now he cometh to the second table, that is, charity one towards another, and denieth that that man hath true light in him, or is indeed regenerate, and the son of God, which hateth his brother: and such an one wandereth miserably in darkness, brag he of never so great knowledge of God, for that wittingly and willingly he catterh himself headlong into hell.

A. D. 90. ⁹ nefs, and walketh in darknefs, and knoweth not whether he goeth, because that darknefs hath blinded his eyes.

¹² Little children, ¹ I write unto you, because your fins are forgiven you for his ² name's sake.

¹³ I write unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. ¹¹ I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome that wicked one. ¹² I write unto you, little children, because ye have known the Father.

¹⁴ I have written unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome that wicked one.

¹⁵ Love not this ¹ world, neither the things that are in this world. If any man love this world, the ² love of the Father is not in him.

¹⁶ For all that is in this world (as the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life) is not of the Father, but is of this world.

¹⁷ And this world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that fulfilleth the will of God, abideth for ever.

¹⁸ Little children, ¹⁷ it is the last time: ¹⁵ and as ye have heard that Antichrist shall come, even now there are many Antichrists:

whereby we know that it is the last time. A. D. 90.

¹⁹ They went out from us, but they were not of us: for if they had been of us, ⁹ they should have continued with us. ²⁰ But this cometh to pass, that it might appear, that they are not all of us.

²⁰ But ye have an ² ointment from that ¹ Holy one, and know all things.

²¹ I have not written unto you, because ye know not the truth: but because ye know it, and that no lye is of the truth.

²² Who is a liar, but he that denieth that Jesus is ¹ that Christ? the same is that Antichrist that denieth the Father and the Son.

²³ Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father.

²⁴ Let therefore abide in you that same which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning, shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son, and in the Father.

²⁵ And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even that eternal life.

²⁶ These things have I written unto you, concerning them that deceive you.

²⁷ But that ¹ anointing which ye received of him, dwelleth in you: and ye ² need not that any man teach you: but as the same ² anointing teacheth

⁹ He returneth again from sanctification to remission of sins, because that free reconciliation in Christ is the ground of our salvation, whereupon afterwards sanctification must be built as upon a foundation.

¹ Therefore I write unto you, because you are of their number whom God hath reconciled to himself.

■ For his own sake: And in that he nameth Christ, he shutteth out all other, whether they be in heaven ■ earth.

■ He sheweth, that this doctrine agreeth to all ages: and first of all speaking to old men, he sheweth, that Christ and his doctrine are passing ancient, and therefore if they be delighted with old things, nothing ought ■ be more acceptable unto them.

¹¹ He advertiseth young men, if they be desirous to shew their strength, that they have a most glorious combat set here before them, ■ wit, Satan, the worst enemy, who must be overcome: willing them ■ be ■ sure of the victory as if they had already gotten it.

¹² Finally, he sheweth to children, that that true Father, from whom they have ■ look for all good things, is set forth unto them in the gospel.

¹³ He addeth afterward in like order ■ many exhortations: as if he should say, Remember, you fathers, as I wrote even now, that the everlasting Son of God is revealed to us. Remember, ye young men, that that strength whereby I said that you put Satan to flight, is given you by the word of God which dwelleth in you.

¹⁴ The world, which is full of wicked desires, lusts, or pleasures, and pride, is utterly hated of our heavenly Father. Therefore the Father and the world cannot be loved together: and this admonition is very necessary for green and flourishing youth.

¹⁵ He speaketh of the world, as it agreeth ■ with the will of God, for otherwise God is said ■ love the world with an infinite love, John 3. 16. that is ■ say, those whom he chose out of the world.

■ Wherewith the Father is loved.

¹⁶ He sheweth how much better it is to obey the Father's will, than the lusts of the world, by both their natures and unlike event.

¹⁷ Now he turneth himself to little children, which notwithstanding are well instructed in the sum of religion, and willeth them by divers reasons ■ shake off slothfulness, which is too familiar with that age.

¹⁸ He useth this word (Little): not because he speaketh to children, but to allure them the ■ by using such sweet words.

¹⁷ First, because the last time is at hand, so that the matter suffereth ■ delay.

¹⁸ Secondly, because Antichrists, that is, such as fall from God, ■ already come, ■ they heard that they should come. And it was very requisite to warn that un-needy and wariless age of that danger.

¹⁹ A digression against certain offences and stumbling-blocks wh. rear that rude age especially might stumble and be shaken. Therefore that they should not be terrified with the soul falling back of certain, first he maketh plain unto them, that although such as fall from God and his religion had place in the church, yet they were never of the church: because the church is the company of the elect, which cannot perish, and therefore cannot fall from Christ.

° So then the elect can never fall from grace.

■ Secondly, he sheweth, that these things fall out to the profit of the church, that hypocrites may be plainly known.

²² Thirdly, he comforteth them, to make them stand fast, inasmuch as they are anointed of the Holy Ghost with the true knowledge of salvation.

■ The grace of the Holy Ghost, and this is a borrowed kind of speech, taken from the ointings used in the law.

° From Christ, who is peculiarly called holy.

²⁰ The taking-away of an objection. He wrote not these things as to men which are ignorant of religion, but rather as to them which do well know the truth, yea, so far forth, that they are able to discern truth from falsehood.

²³ He sheweth now plainly that false doctrine of the Antichrists, to wit, that either they fight against the person of Christ, or his office, or both together, and at once. And they that do so, do in vain boast and brag of God, for that in denying the Son, the Father is also denied.

° Is the true Messias.

° They then are deceived themselves, and also deceive others, which say that the Turks and other infidels worship the same God that we do.

²⁴ The whole preaching of the prophets and apostles is contrary to that doctrine. Therefore it is utterly to be cast away, and this wholly to be holden, and kept, which leadeth us to seek eternal life in the free promise, that is ■ say, in Christ alone, who is given us of the Father.

²⁵ The same Spirit which endueth the elect with the knowledge of the truth, and sanctifieth them, giveth them therewithal the gift of perseverance, to continue to the end.

° The Spirit which you have received of Christ, and which hath led you into all truth.

²⁶ You are not ignorant of those things, and therefore I teach them not as things that were never heard of, but call them to your remembrance ■ things which you do know.

° He commendeth both the doctrine which they had embraced, and also highly praiseeth their faith, and the diligence of such as taught them, yet so, that he taketh nothing from the honour due to the Holy Ghost.

A. D. 90. teacheth you of all things, and it is true and is not lying, and as it taught you, ye shall abide in him.

28 ²⁶ And now, little children, abide in him, that when he shall appear, we may be bold, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

29 ²⁷ If ye know that he is righteous, know ye that he which doth righteously, is born of him.

C H A P. III.

1 Setting down the inestimable glory of this, that we are God's sons, 7 he sheweth that newness of life must be testified by good works, whereof charity is a manifest token 19 of faith, 22 and praying unto God.

BEHOLD, ¹ what love the Father hath given to us, that we should be ^b called the sons of God! ^a for this cause this world knoweth you not, because it knoweth not him.

2 ³ Dearly beloved, now are we the sons of God, but yet it is not made manifest what we shall be: and we know that when he shall be made manifest, we shall be ^c like him: for we shall see him ^d as he is.

3 ⁴ And every man that hath this hope in him, purgeth himself, even ^e as he is pure.

4 ⁵ Whosoever ^f committeth sin, transgresseth also the law: for ^g sin is the transgression of the law.

5 ⁶ And ye know that he was made manifest,

²⁶ The conclusion both of the whole exhortation, and also of the former treatise.

²⁷ A passing over to the treatise following, which tendeth to the same purpose, but yet is more ample, and handleth the same matter after another order, for before he taught us to go up from the effects to the cause, and in this that followeth, he goeth down from the causes to the effects: And this is the sum of this argument, God is the fountain of all righteousness, and therefore they that give themselves to righteousness, are known to be born of him, because they resemble God the Father.

¹ He beginneth to declare this agreement of the Father and the Son, at the highest cause, to wit, at that free love of God towards us, wherewith he so loveth us, that also he adopteth us to be his children.

^a What gift, of how great love?

^b That we should be the sons of God, and so that all the world may perceive we are so.

² Before he declareth this adoption, he saith two things: the one, that this is so great a dignity, is not to be esteemed according to the judgment of the flesh; because it is unknown to the world, for the world knoweth not God the Father himself.

³ The other, this dignity is not fully made manifest to ourselves, much less to strangers; but we are sure of the accomplishment of it, inasmuch that we shall be like unto the Son of God himself, and shall enjoy his sight indeed; such as he is now, but yet notwithstanding this is deferred until his next coming.

^c Like, but not equal.

^d For now we see in glass, 1 Cor. 13. 12.

⁴ Now he describeth this adoption, (the glory whereof yet consisteth in hope) by the effect, to wit, because that whosoever is made the Son of God, endeavoureth to resemble the Father in purity.

^e This word signifieth a likeness, but not an equality.

⁵ The rule of this purity can from no whence else be taken but from the law of God; the transgression whereof is that which is called sin.

^f Giveth not himself to pureness.

^g A short definition of sin.

⁶ An argument taken from the material cause of our salvation: Christ in himself is most pure, and he came to take away our sins by sanctifying us with the Holy Ghost. Therefore whosoever is truly partaker of Christ, doth not give himself to sin; and contrarywise he that giveth himself to sin, knoweth not Christ.

⁷ He is said to sin, that giveth not himself to pureness, that he might ^a take away our sins, and in him, A. D. is no sin.

6 Whosoever abideth in him, sinneth not: whosoever ^b sinneth, hath not seen him, neither hath known him.

7 ⁷ Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doth righteousness, is righteous, as he is righteous.

⁸ He that ^c committeth sin, is of the ^d devil: for the devil ^e sinneth from the ^f beginning: for this purpose was made manifest that Son of God, that he might loose the works of the devil.

9 Whosoever is born of God, sinneth not: for his ^g seed remaineth in him, neither can he sin, because he is born of God.

10 ⁹ In this are the children of God known, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness, is not of God, ^h neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 ¹¹ For this is the message that ye heard from the beginning, that ⁱ we should love one another.

12 ¹² Not as ^j Cain which was of that wicked one, and slew his brother: ^k and wherefore slew he him? because his own works were evil, and his brother's good.

13 Marvel not, my brethren, through this world hate you.

14 ¹⁴ We ^l know that we are translated from death unto life, because we love the brethren: ^m he that loveth not his brother, abideth in death.

15 Who-

and in him sin reigneth: but sin is said to dwell in the faithful, and not to reign in them.

⁷ Another argument of things coupled together: He that liveth justly, is just, and resembleth Christ that is just, and by that is known to be the Son of God.

⁸ An argument taken of contraries: the devil is the author of sin, and therefore he is of the devil, or is ruled by the inspiration of the devil, that serveth sin: and if he be the devil's son, then is he not God's son: for the devil and God are so contrary the one to the other, that even the Son of God was sent to destroy the works of the devil. Therefore on the contrary side, whosoever resisteth sin is the son of God, being born again of his Spirit as of new seed, inasmuch that of necessity he is now delivered from the slavery of sin.

² He saith not, sinned, but sinneth, for he doth nothing else but sin.

³ From the very beginning of the world.

⁴ The Holy Ghost is so called of the effect he worketh, because by his virtue and mighty working, as it were by seed, we are made new men.

⁵ The conclusion: By ^o wicked life they are known, which are governed by the spirit of the devil: and by a pure life, which are God's children.

⁶ He beginneth to commend charity towards the brethren, as another mark of the sons of God.

⁷ The first reason taken of the authority of God, which giveth the commandment.

⁸ An amplification taken of the contrary example of Cain, which slew his brother.

⁹ He bringeth forth ^p very fit and very old example, wherein we may behold both the nature of the sons of God, and the sons of the devil, and what state and condition remaineth for us in this world, and what shall be the end of both at length.

¹⁰ A short digression: Let us not marvel that we are hated of the world for doing our duty, for such was the condition of Abel, who was a just person: and who would not rather be like him than Cain?

¹¹ The second reason: because charity is ^q testimony that we are translated from death to life: and therefore hatred towards the brethren is ^r testimony of death: and whosoever nourisheth it, doth as it were foster death in his bosom.

¹² Love is ^s token that we are translated from death to life, forasmuch as by the effects the cause is known.

 truth.

19 " For thereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall before him assure our hearts.

 greater than our heart, and knoweth all things.

21 " Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we boldness toward God.

• Matt. 22. 22 " And whatsoever we ask, we receive of we believe in the name of his Son Jesus mandment.

 which he hath given us.

C H A P. IV.

Having spoken somewhat touching the trying of spi-

15 A confirmation: Whosoever is a murderer, is in eternal death: who so hateth his brother, is a murderer, therefore is in death. And thereupon followeth the contrary: He that loveth his brother, hath passed to life, for indeed we are born dead.

16 Now he sheweth how far christian charity extendeth, even so far, that according to the example of Christ, every man forget himself, to provide for, and help his brethren.

17 He reasoneth by comparison: for if we are bound even to give our life for our neighbours, how much more are we bound to help our brother's necessity with our goods and substance?

18 Wherewith this life is sustained.

19 Openeth not his heart to him, nor helpeth him willingly and cheerfully.

20 Christian charity standeth not in words, but in deed, and proceedeth from a sincere affection.

21 He commendeth charity by a triple effect: for first of all, by it we know that we are indeed the sons of God, as he shewed before.

22 Therefore it cometh that we have a quiet conscience: as on the contrary side, he that thinketh that he hath God for a judge, because he is guilty to himself, either he is never, or else very rarely quiet, for God hath a far quicker sight than we, and judgeth more severely.

23 If an evil conscience convinceth us, much more ought the judgment of God to condemn us, who knoweth our hearts better than we ourselves do.

24 A third effect also riseth out of the former, that in these miseries we are sure to be heard, because we are the sons of God: as we understand by the grace of sanctification, which is proper to the elect.

25 The conclusion. That faith in Christ, and love towards another, are things joined together, and therefore the outward testimonies of sanctification must, and do, answer that inward testimony of the Spirit given unto us.

26 He meaneth the Spirit of sanctification, whereby we are born anew, and live unto God.

27 Taking occasion left, by the of the Spirit, love and charity should be separated from the worship of God, which chiefly dependeth on his true knowledge, he returneth to that which he spake of in the second chapter, touching the taking heed of Antichrists. And he will have us here to take heed of two things, the one is, that, seeing there be many false prophets, we do not lightly give credit to every man: the other is, that because many men teach false things, we should not therefore believe any. We must then observe a mean, that we may be able to discern the Spirit of God, which is altogether to be followed, from impure spirits, which are to be eschewed.

28 This is spoken by the figure Metonymy, and it is, as if he had said, Believe not every one that saith, that he hath the gift of the Holy Ghost to do the office of a prophet.

29 He giveth a certain and perpetual rule to know the doctrine of Antichrist by, to wit, if either the divine or human nature of Christ, or the true uniting of them together, be denied: or if the least jot that may be, be derogated from his office, who is our only King, Prophet, and everlasting high Priest.

30 He speaketh simply of the doctrine, and not of the person.

31 The true Messias.

32 Is true Man.

33 He comforteth the elect with a most sure hope of victory: but yet so, that he teacheth them that they fight not with their own virtue, but with the virtue and power of God.

34 He bringeth a reason why the world receiveth these teachers more willingly than the true: to wit, because they breathe out nothing but that which is worldly: which is another note also to know the doctrine of Antichrist by.

35 He testifieth them, that his doctrine, and the doctrine of his fellows, is the assured word of God, which of necessity have boldly set against all the mouths of the whole world, and thereby discern the truth from falsehood.

36 The true prophets, against whom are set false prophets, that is, such err themselves, and lead others into error.

37 He returneth to the commending of brotherly love and charity.

38 The first reason: Because it is a very divine thing, and therefore very meet for the sons of God: so that whosoever is void of it, cannot be said know God aright.

39 A confirmation: for it is the true nature of God to love men, whereof we have most manifest proof above all others, in that, that of his only free and infinite good will towards his enemies, he delivered unto death, not a common man, but that his own Son, yea his only begotten Son, to the end that we, being reconciled through his blood, might be made partakers of his everlasting glory.

40 In that he calleth God Love, he saith more than if he had said, that he loveth us infinitely.

DEARLY beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: for many false prophets are gone out into this world.

2 Hereby shall ye know the Spirit of God: Every spirit which confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God.

3 And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God: but this is the spirit of Antichrist, of whom ye have heard, how that he should come, and now already he is in this world.

4 Little children, ye are of God, and have overcome them: for greater is he that is in you, than he that is in this world.

5 They are of this world, therefore speak they of this world, and this world heareth them.

6 We are of God: he that knoweth God, heareth us: he that is not of God, heareth us not. Hereby know we the Spirit of truth, and the spirit of error.

7 Beloved, let us love one another: for love cometh of God, and every one that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God.

8 He that loveth not, knoweth not God: for God is love.

9 Herein was that love of God made manifest amongst us, because God sent that his only begotten

10 Herein is that love: not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be a reconciliation for our sins.

11 Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.

12 * 10 No man hath seen God at any time.

• John 1. 18. 1 Tim. 6. 16. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfect in us.

13 Hereby know we, that we dwell in him, and he in us: because he hath given us of his Spirit.

14 And we have seen, and do testify, that the Father sent that Son to be the Saviour of the world.

15 Whosoever confesseth that Jesus is the Son of God, in him dwelleth God, and he in God.

16 And we have known, and believed the love that God hath in us. God is love, and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him.

17 Herein is that love perfect in us, that we should have boldness in the day of judgment: for as he is, even so are we in this world.

18 There is no fear in love, but perfect love casteth out fear: for fear hath painfulness: and he that feareth, is not perfect in love.

19 We love him, because he loved us first.

20 If any man say, I love God, and hate

Another reason by comparison: if God so loved us, shall not we his children love one another?

20 A third reason: Because God is invisible, therefore by this effect of his Spirit, to wit, by charity, he is understood, yea, and to be not out of us, but joined with us, and in us, in whom he is so effectually working.

Is surely in us in deed and in truth.

21 He underlayeth this charity with another foundation, to wit, faith in Jesus, which joined us indeed with him, even charity witnesseth that we are joined with him. Furthermore, he testifieth of Christ, as who had seen him with his eyes.

With such a confession as cometh from true faith, and is accompanied with love, so that there be an agreement of all things.

22 A fourth reason: God is the fountain and well-spring of charity; yea, charity itself: therefore whosoever abideth in it, hath God with him.

23 Again (as a little before) he commendeth love: for that, seeing that by our agreement with God in this thing, we have certain testimony of our adoption, it cometh thereby to pass, that without fear we look for that latter day of judgment, so that trembling, and that torment of conscience, is cast out by this love.

This signifieth likeness, not an equality.

24 If we understand by love, that we are in God, and God in us; that we are sons, and that we know God, and that everlasting life is in us: he concludeth aright, that we may well gather peace and quietness thereby.

25 Left any man should think, that that peace of conscience proceedeth from our love, from the cause, he goeth back to the fountain, to wit, to the free love wherewith God loveth us, although we deserved and do deserve his wrath. And hereof springeth another double charity, which both are tokens and witnesses of that first, to wit, that therewithal we love God, who loved us first, and then for his sake our neighbours also.

26 As he shewed that the love of our neighbour cannot be separate from the love wherewith God loveth us, because this last engendereth the other: so he denieth that the other kind of love wherewith we love God can be separate from the love of our neighbour: whereof it followeth, that they lye impudently which say they worship God, and yet regard not their neighbours.

27 The first reason taken of comparison, why we hate our neighbour, and love God, to wit, because that he that cannot love his brother, whom he seeth, how can he love God, whom he seeth not?

28 A second reason, why God cannot be hated, and our neighbour loved, because the self-same law maker commandeth both to love him and our neighbour.

his brother, he is a liar: for how can he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, love God whom he hath not seen?

21 * 17 And this commandment have we of him, that he that loveth God, should love his brother also.

CHAP. V.

1 He sheweth that brotherly love and faith, are things inseparable. 10 And that there is no faith towards God, but by believing in Christ. 14 Hence proceedeth calling upon God with assurance, 16 and also that our prayers be available for our brethren.

Whosoever believeth that Jesus is that Christ, is born of God: and every one that loveth him which begat, loveth him also which is begotten of him:

2 In this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his commandments.

3 For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments are not burdensome.

4 For all that is born of God, overcometh this world: and this is the victory that hath overcome this world, even our faith.

5 * 7 Who is it that overcometh this world, but he which believeth that Jesus is that Son of God?

6 This is that Jesus Christ that came by water

1 He goeth on forward to the same argument, shewing how both these loves come into us, from that love wherewith God loveth us, to wit, by Jesus, our Mediator, laid hold on by faith, in whom we are made the children of God, and do love the Father, of whom we are to be begotten, and also our brethren, which are begotten with us.

Is the true Messias.

By one he meaneth all the faithful.

2 The love of our neighbour doth so hang upon the love wherewith we love God, that this last must needs go before the first: whereof it followeth, that that is not to be called love, when men agree together to do evil, neither that, when as in loving our neighbours, we respect not God's commandment.

There is no love where there is no true doctrine.

3 The reason: for to love God, is to keep his commandments, which being so and seeing that both the loves are commanded of one and the self-same Law-maker, (as he taught before) it followeth also, that we do not love our neighbours, when we break God's commandments.

4 Because experience teacheth us, that there is no ability in our flesh, neither yet will to perform God's commandments; therefore lest the apostle should seem, by often putting them in mind of the commandments of God, to require things that impossible, he pronounceth that the commandments of God are not such hurt grievous or burdensome, that we can be oppressed with the burden of them.

To them that be regenerate, that is to say, born anew, which are led by the Spirit of God, and are through grace delivered from the curse of the law.

5 A reason: Because by regeneration we have gotten strength to overcome the world, that is to say, whatsoever striveth against the commandments of God.

He declareth what that strength is, to wit, faith.

6 He ureth the time that is past, to give to understand, that although we be in the battle, yet undoubtedly we shall be conquerors, and are most certain of the victory.

7 Which is the instrumental cause, and as a mean and hand whereby we lay hold on him, who indeed doth perform this, that is, hath and doth overcome the world, even Christ Jesus.

8 Moreover, he declareth two things, the one, what true faith is, to wit, that which resteth upon Jesus Christ the Son of God alone: whereupon followeth the other, to wit, that this strength is not proper to faith, but by faith, as an instrument, is drawn from Jesus Christ the Son of God.

9 He proveth the excellency of Christ, in whom only all things are given us, by six witnesses, three heavenly, and three earthly, which wholly and fully agree together. The heavenly witnesses are, the Father, who sent the Son,

A. D. 90. water and blood: not by water only, but by water and blood: and it is that Spirit that beareth witness: for that Spirit is truth.

7 For there are three which bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one.

8 And there are three which bear record in the earth, the spirit, and the water, and the blood: and these three agree in one.

9 If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this is the witness of God, which he testified of his Son.

10 He that believeth in that Son of God, hath the witness in himself: he that believeth not God, hath made him a liar, because he believed not the record that God witnessed of that his Son.

11 And this is that record, to wit, that God hath given unto us eternal life, and this life is in that his Son.

12 He that hath that Son, hath that life: and he that hath not that Son of God, hath not that life.

13 These things have I written unto you that believe in the name of that Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe in the name of that Son of God.

the Word itself, which became flesh, and the Holy Ghost. The earthly witnesses are water, (that is, our sanctification) blood, (that is, our justification) the Spirit, (that is, acknowledging of God the Father in Christ by faith through the testimony of the Holy Ghost.)

He warneth us not to separate water from blood (that is, sanctification from justification, or righteousness begun, from righteousness imputed) for we stand not upon sanctification, but so far forth as it is witness of Christ's righteousness imputed unto us: and although this imputation of Christ's righteousness be never separated from sanctification, yet is it the only matter of our salvation.

Our spirit, which is the third witness, testifieth, that the Holy Ghost is truth, that is to say, that that is true which he telleth us, to wit, that we are the sons of God.

Look John 8. 14.

Agree in one.

He sheweth by an argument of comparison, of what great weight the heavenly testimony is that the Father hath given of the Son, unto whom agreeth both the Son himself and the Holy Ghost.

I conclude thus aright: for that testimony which I said is given in heaven, cometh from God, who setteth forth his Son.

He proveth the sureness of the earthly witness by every man's conscience, having that testimony in itself, which conscience, he saith, cannot be deceived, because it consenteth to the heavenly testimony which the Father giveth of the Son: for otherwise the Father must needs be a liar, if the conscience which accordeth and assenteth to the Father, should lye.

Now at length he sheweth what this testimony is, that is confirmed with so many witnesses: to wit, that life, or everlasting felicity, is the mere and only gift of God, which is in the Son, and proceedeth from him unto us, which by faith are joined with him, so that without him, life is nowhere to be found.

The conclusion of the epistle, wherein he sheweth first of all, that they which already believe, do stand in 14 And this is that assurance that we have in him, that if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us.

15 And if we know that he heareth us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we have desired of him.

16 If any man see his brother sin a sin that is not unto death, let him ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death.

There is a sin unto death: I say not that thou shouldest pray for it.

17 All unrighteousness is sin, but there is a sin not unto death.

18 We know that whosoever is born of God, sinneth not: but he that is begotten of God, keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

19 We know that we are of God, and this whole world lieth in wickedness.

20 But we know that that Son of God is come, and hath given us a mind to know him which is true: and we are in him that is true, that is, in that his Son Jesus Christ: this same is that very God and that eternal life.

21 Little children, keep yourselves from idols. Amen.

need of this doctrine, to the end that they may grow more and more in faith: that is to say, to the end that they may be daily more and more certified of their salvation in Christ through faith.

Because we do not yet in effect obtain that which we hope for, the apostle joineth invocation or prayer with faith, which he will have to proceed from faith, and moreover to be conceived in such sort, that nothing be asked but that which is agreeable to the will of God: and such prayers cannot be vain.

We are to make prayers not only for ourselves, but also for our brethren which do sin, that their sins be not unto them, to death: and yet he excepteth that sin which is never forgiven, or the sin against the Holy Ghost, that is to say, an universal and wilful falling away from the known truth of the gospel.

This is as much as if he said, Let him desire the Lord to forgive him, and he will forgive him, being so desired.

The taking away of an objection: Indeed all iniquity is comprehended under the name of sin: but yet we must not despair therefore, because every sin is not deadly, and without hope of remedy.

A reason why not all; nay rather why sin is mortal to some: to wit, because they be born of God, that is to say, made the sons of God in Christ, and being endued with his Spirit, they do not serve sin, neither are they deadly wounded of Satan.

Every man must particularly apply to himself the general promises, that we may certainly persuade our selves, that whereas all the world is by nature lost, we are freely made the sons of God, by the sending of Jesus Christ his son unto us, of whom we are lightened with the knowledge of the true God and everlasting life.

The divinity of Christ is most plainly proved by this place.

He expresseth a plain precept of taking heed of idols: which he setteth against the only God, that with this seal as it were he might seal up all the former doctrine.

The Second Epistle of J O H N.

A. D.
90.

*This epistle is written to a woman of great renown,
4 who brought up her children in the fear of God.
6 He exhorteth her to continue in Christian charity, 7 that she accompany not with antichrists, 10 but avoid them.*

THE elder to the² elect¹ lady, and her children,¹ whom I love in the truth, and not I only, but also all that have known the truth,

² For the truth's sake which dwelleth in us, and shall be with us for ever:

³ Grace be with you, mercy and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ the Son of the Father, with⁴ truth and love.

⁴ I rejoiced greatly, that I found of thy children walking in⁴ truth, as we have received a commandment of the Father.

⁵ And now beseech I thee, lady, (not as writing¹ new commandment unto thee, but that same which we had from the beginning) that we¹ love one another.

⁶ And this is that love, that we should walk after his commandments. This commandment is, that¹ ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it.

¹ This is no proper name, but to be taken¹ the word sounceth, that is to say, to the worthy and noble lady.

² Excellent and honourable dame.

³ The Lord of Christian conjunction, or linking together, is the true and constant profession of the truth.

⁴ With true knowledge, which hath always love joined with it, and following it.

⁵ This true profession consisteth both in love one towards another, which the Lord hath commanded, and also especially in wholesome and sound doctrine, which also is delivered unto us: for the commandment of God is¹ sound

⁸ Look to yourselves, that we lose not the things which¹ we have done, but that¹ we may receive¹ full reward.

⁹ Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that continueth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.

¹⁰ If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not to house,¹ neither bid him God speed:¹ Rom. 16. 17.

¹¹ For he that biddeth him God speed, is partaker of his evil deeds. Although I had many things to write unto you, yet I would not write with paper and ink: but I trust to come unto you, and speak mouth to mouth, that our joy may be full.

¹² The sons of thine elect sister greet thee. Amen.

and sure foundation, both of the rule of manners, and of doctrine, and these cannot be separated the one from the other.

¹ According as the truth directeth them.

² Antichrists, fighting against the person and office of Christ, were already crept into the church, in the time of the apostles.

⁴ He that maketh shipwreck of doctrine, loseth all.

⁵ Beware, and take good heed.

⁶ We ought to have nothing to do with them that defend perverse doctrine.

The Third Epistle of J O H N.

A. D.
90.

He commendeth Gaius for hospitality, 9 and reprehendeth Diotrephes for vain glory. 10 He exhorteth Gaius to continue in well doing, 12 and in the end commendeth Demetrius.

THE elder unto the beloved Gaius, whom I love in the truth.

² Beloved, I wish chiefly that thou prosperedst and farest well, as thy soul prospereth.

³ For¹ I rejoiced greatly when the brethren came, and testified of the truth that is in thee, how thou walkest in the truth.

⁴ I have no greater joy than¹ these; that is, to hear that my sons walk in verity.

⁵ Beloved, thou doest¹ faithfully, whatsoever thou doest to the brethren, and to strangers,¹ A. D. 90.

⁶ Which bare witness of thy love before the churches. Whom if thou¹ bringest on their journey as it becometh, according to God, thou shalt do well, ⁷ Because that for his name's sake they went forth, and took nothing of the Gentiles.

⁸ We therefore ought to receive such, that we might be⁴ helpers to the truth.

⁹ I wrote unto the church: but Diotrephes, which loveth to have the pre-eminence among them, receiveth us not:

which had like business.

⁴ That¹ ourselves may help somewhat¹ the preaching of the truth.

⁵ Ambition and covetousness, two pestilent plagues (especially in them which have any ecclesiastical function) are condemned in Diotrephes' person.

A. D. 99. 10 Wherefore if I come, I will call to your remembrance the deeds which he doth, prating against us with malicious words, and not there-with content, neither he himself receiveth the brethren, but forbiddeth them that would, and thrusteth them out of the church.

11 Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good: he that doth well, is of God: but he that doth evil, hath not^e seen God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the truth itself: yea, and we ourselves bear record, and ye know that our record is true. A. D. 99.

13 I have many things to write: but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee:

14 For I trust I shall shortly see thee, and we shall speak mouth to mouth. Peace be with thee. The friends salute thee. Greet the friends by name.

^e Hath not known God.

The General Epistle of JUDE.

A. D. 101. 3 He warneth the godly to take heed of such men, 4 that make the grace of God a cloak for their wantonness, 5 and that they shall not escape unpunished, for the contempt of that grace, 6, 7 he proceedeth by three examples, 12 and alledgeth the prophecy of Enoch. 20 Finally, he sheweth the godly mean to overthrow all the snares of these deceivers.

JUDE a servant of Jesus Christ, and^a brother of James, to them which are called and sanctified^b of God the Father, and^c reserved to Jesus Christ:

2 Mercy unto you, and peace and love be multiplied.

3^d Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the^e common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you to exhort you, that ye should^f earnestly contend for the maintenance of the faith which was^g once given unto the saints.

4^h For there are certain men crept in, which were before of old ordained to this condemnation: ungodly men they are, which turn the grace of God into wantonness, andⁱ deny God the only Lord, and our Lord Jesus Christ.

5^j I will therefore put you in remembrance, forasmuch as ye once knew this, how that the Lord, after that he had delivered the people out of Egypt, ^k destroyed them afterward which believed not. A. D. 66. Num. 14. 37.

6^l The^m angels also which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day. 2 Pet. 2. 4.

7 Asⁿ Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them, which, in like manner as they did, committed fornication, and followed^o strange flesh, are set forth for an ensample, and suffer the vengeance of eternal fire. Gen. 19. 24.

8 Likewise notwithstanding, these^p sleepers also defile the flesh, ^q and despise^r government, and speak evil of them that are in authority.

9^s Yet Michael the archangel, when he strove against the devil, and disputed about the body of Moses, durst not blame him with cursed speaking, but said, The Lord rebuke thee.

10^t But these speak evil of those things which they know not: and whatsoever things they know naturally as beasts, which are without reason, in those things they corrupt themselves.

11^u Wo be unto them: for they have followed

^a This is put to make a difference between him and Judas Iscariot.

^b By God the Father.

^c Set apart by the everlasting counsel of God, to be delivered to Christ to be kept.

^d The end and mark whereat he shooteth in this epistle, is that he confirme the godly against certain wicked men, both in what doctrine and good manners.

^e Of those things that pertain to the salvation of all or ^f That we should defend the faith by all the might you can, both by true doctrine and good example of life.

^g Which was once so given, that it may never be changed.

^h It is by God's providence, and not by chance, that many wicked men creep into the church.

ⁱ He condemneth this first in them, that they take^j pretext or occasion to wax wanton, by the grace of God: which cannot be, but the chief empire of Christ must be derogated, in that such men give up themselves to Satan, as at this day the sect of Anabaptists doth, which they call Libertines.

^j He setteth forth the horrible punishment of them which have abused the grace of God^k follow their own lusts.

^k The fall of the angels was most severely punished, how much more then will the Lord punish wicked and faithles men?

^l Following the steps of Sodom and Gomorrah.

^m Thus he covertly setteth forth their horrible and monstrous lusts.

ⁿ Which are so blockish and void of reason, as if all their senses and wits were in^o most dead sleep.

^o Another most pernicious doctrine of theirs, in that they take away the authority of magistrates, and speak evil of them, as at this day the Anabaptists do.

^p It is^q greater matter to despise government than the governors, that is to say, the matter itself, than the persons.

^r An argument of comparison: Michael, one of the chiefest angels, was content to deliver Satan, although a most cruel enemy, to the judgment of God to be punished: and these perverse men are not ashamed to speak evil of the powers which are ordained of God.

^s The conclusion: These men are in^t double fault, to wit, both for their rash folly in condemning some, and for their impudent and shameless contempt of that knowledge, which when they had gotten, yet notwithstanding they lived as brut: beasts, serving their bellies.

^u He foretelleth their destruction, because they resemble or shew forth Cain's shameless malice, Balaam's filthy covetousness, and, to be short, Korah's seditious and ambitious head.

A. D. 66. lowed the way of Cain, and are cast away by deceit of Balaam's wages, and perish in the gainfaying* of Core.

12¹⁰ These are rocks in your¹ feasts of charity when they feast with you, without² all fear, feeding themselves: clouds they are without water, carried about of winds, corrupt trees and without fruit; twice dead, and plucked up by the roots.

13 They are the raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame: they are wandering stars, to whom is reserved the³ blackness of darkness for ever.

14 And Enoch also the seventh from Adam prophesied of such, saying, * Behold, the Lord⁴ cometh with thousands of his saints, 15 To give judgment against all men, and to rebuke all the ungodly among them of all their wicked deeds, which they have ungodly committed, and of all their cruel speakings, which wicked sinners have spoken against him.

16 These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts: * whose mouths speak proud things, having mens persons in admiration, because of advantage.

¹⁰ He rebuketh most sharply, with many other ~~marks~~ and marks, both their dishonesty or filthiness, and their sauciness, but especially their vain bravery of words, and most vain pride, joining therewithal a most grave and heavy threatening out of a most ancient prophecy of Enoch touching the judgment to come.

¹ The feasts of charity were certain banquets, which the brethren, which were members of the church, kept all together, as Tertullian setteth them forth in his Apology, chap. 39.

² Impudently, without all reverence either in God in man.

³ Most gross darkness.

⁴ The present time, for the time to come.

¹¹ The rising up of such monsters was spoken of before; that we should not be troubled at the newness of the matter.

¹² It is the property of Antichrists to separate themselves from the godly, because they are not governed by the Spirit

17¹¹ But ye, beloved, remember the words which were spoken before of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ:

18 How that they told you that there should be mockers⁵ in the last time, which should walk after their own ungodly lusts.

19¹² These ~~men~~ they that separate themselves from other, natural, having not the Spirit.

20 But ye, beloved, edify yourselves in your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghost, 21 And keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, unto eternal life.

22¹³ And have compassion of some, in putting difference:

23 And other save with⁶ fear, pulling them out of the fire, and hate even that⁷ garment which is spotted by the flesh.

24¹⁴ Now unto him that is able to keep you, that ye fall not, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with joy, 25 That is, to God only wise, our Saviour, be glory, and majesty, and dominion, and power, both now and for ever. Amen.

of God: and contrarywise, it is the property of Christians to edify ~~one~~ another through godly prayers, both in faith, and also in love, until the mercy of Christ appear ~~in~~ their full salvation.

¹³ Amongst them which wander and go astray, the godly have to use this choice, that they handle some of them gently, and that other some, being even in the very flame, they endeavour to save with severe and sharp instruction of the present danger: yet so, that they do in such sort abhor the wicked and dishonest, that they eschew ~~the~~ the least contagion that may be.

⁶ By fearing them, and holding them back with godly severity.

⁷ An amplification, taken from the forbidden things of the law, which did defile.

¹⁴ He commendeth them in the grace of God, declaring sufficiently, that it is God only that can give us that constancy which he requireth of us.

Exod. 3.
14.

¹ This chapter hath two principal parts; the title or inscription, which standeth instead of an exordium: and ² narration going before the whole prophecy of this book.
The inscription is double, general and particular. The general containeth the kind of prophecy, the author, end, matter, instruments, and manner of communicating the same, in the first ver. e: the most religious faithfulness of the apostle as ³ public witness, verse 2. And the use of communicating the same, taken from the promise of God, and from the circumstance of the time, ver. 3.

² An opening of ⁴ hid and secret thing.

³ Which the Son opened ⁵ us out of his Father's bosom by angels.

⁴ This is the particular or singular inscription, wherein salvation is written unto certain churches by name, which represent the church catholic: and the certainty and truth of the same is declared, from the author thereof, unto the eighth verse.

⁵ That is, from God the Father, eternal, immortal, immutable: whose unchangeableness Saint John declareth by ⁶ form of speech which ⁷ undeclined. For there is ⁸ incongruity in this place, where, of necessity, the words must be attempted unto the mysteries, and not the mysteries corrupted or impaired by the words.

⁶ By these three times, is, was, and shall be, is signified this word Jehovah, which is the proper name of God.

⁷ That is, from the Holy Ghost, which proceedeth from the Father and the Son. This Spirit is one in person according to his substance: but in communication of his virtue, and in demonstration of his divine works in those seven churches, doth so perfectly manifest himself, as if there were so many spirits, every ⁹ perfectly working in his own church. Wherefore after, chapter 5, 6. they are called the seven horns, and seven eyes of the Lamb, ¹⁰ much ¹¹ say, ¹² his most absolute power and wisdom: and chapter 3. 1. Christ is said to have those seven spirits of God: and chapter 4. 5. it is said, that seven lamps do burn before his throne, which also ¹³ those seven Spirits of God. That this place ought to be so understood, it is thus proved. For first, grace and peace is asked by prayer of this Spirit, which is ¹⁴ divine work, and an action incommunicable in respect of the most high Deity. Secondly, he is placed between the Father and the Son, as set in the same degree of dignity and operation with them; besides, he is before the throne, as of the same substance with the Father and the Son: as the seven eyes; and the seven horns come, and from ¹⁵ the ¹⁶ seven spirits which are before his throne, A. D.

96.

5 And from Jesus Christ, ¹⁷ which is that ¹⁸ faithful witness, and ¹⁹ that first begotten of the dead, and that Prince of the kings of the earth, unto him that loved us; and washed ²⁰ from our sins in his ²¹ blood;

6 And made us ²² kings and priests unto God even his Father, to him, I say, be glory and dominion for evermore. Amen.

7 Behold, he cometh with ²³ clouds, and every ²⁴ eye shall see him: yea, even they which pierced him through: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail before him. Even so. Amen.

²⁵ I ²⁶ am ²⁷ Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending; saith the Lord, Which is,
and which was, and which is to come, even the Almighty. Ch. 21. 6:
and 22. 13.

9 ²⁸ I John, even your brother and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of

of the Lamb. Moreover, these spirits are never said to adore God, as all other things are. Finally, that it is the power whereby the Lamb openeth the book, and loosed the seven seals thereof, when none could be found amongst all creatures by whom the book might be opened, chap. 5. Of these things long ago Master John Luide of Oxford wrote-learnedly unto me. Now the Holy Ghost is set in order of words before Christ, because there was in that which followeth a long process of speech to be used concerning Christ.

²⁹ These are the seven spirits, which are afterwards, chap.
5. ver. 6. called the horns and eyes of the Lamb, and are now made ³⁰ guard waiting upon God.

³¹ A most ample and grave commendation of Christ, first, from his offices, the priesthood and kingdom: secondly, from his benefits, as his love towards us, and washing ³² with his blood, in this verse, and communication of his kingdom and priesthood with us: thirdly, from his eternal glory and power, which is always ³³ be celebrated of us, verse 6. Finally, from the accomplishment of all things once to be effected by him, at his second coming, what time he shall openly destroy the wicked, and shall comfort the godly in the truth, verse 7.

³⁴ All

³⁵ A confirmation of the salutation foregoing, taken from the words of God himself: in which he avoucheth his operation in every singular creature, the immutable eternity that is in himself, and his omnipotency in all things: and concludeth in the Unity of his own essence, that Trinity of person which was before spoken of.

³⁶ I ³⁷ he before whom there is nothing; yea, by whom every thing that is made, was made, and shall remain, tho' all they should perish.

³⁸ The narration, opening the way to the declaring of the authority and calling of Saint John the Evangelist in this singular Revelation, and to procure faith and credit ³⁹ this prophecy. This is the second part of this chapter, consisting of ⁴⁰ proposition, and ⁴¹ exposition. The proposition sheweth; first, who ⁴² called unto this Revelation, in what place, and how occupied, verse 9. Then at what time, and by what means, namely by the Spirit, and the word, and that, on the Lord's day, which day, ever since the resurrection of Christ, ⁴³ consecrated for Christians ⁴⁴ the religion of the sabbath: that is ⁴⁵ say, ⁴⁶ be ⁴⁷ day of rest, verse 10. Thirdly, who is the author that calleth him, and what is the sum of his calling.

A. D. 95. or Jesus Christ, was in the Isle ⁸ called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the witnessing of Jesus Christ:

10 And I was ravished in ⁹ spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as it had been ¹⁰ trumpet, 11 Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, that first and that last: and that which thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia, unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamus, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea.

12 ¹¹ Then I turned back to ¹² see the voice that spake unto me: ¹³ and when I was turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks, 13 And in the midst of the seven candlesticks, one like unto the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the feet, and girded about the paps with ¹⁴ golden girdle.

14 His head and hairs were white as white wool, and as snow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire, 15 And his feet like fine brass burning as in a furnace: and his voice as the sound of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand seven stars: and out of his mouth went a sharp two-edged sword: and his face shone as the sun shineth in his strength.

17 ¹⁶ And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead: ¹⁷ then he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not: ¹⁸ I am the ¹⁹ first and the last,

18 And am alive, but I was dead: and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen: and I have the keys of hell and of death.

19 ²⁰ Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall come hereafter.

20 ²¹ The mystery of the seven stars which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks, is this, The seven stars are the ²² angels of the seven churches: and the seven candlesticks which thou sawest, are the seven churches.

C H A P. II.

1 John is commanded to write those things which the Lord knew necessary, to the churches of Ephesus, of the Smyrnians, 12 of Pergamus, 18 and of Thyatira, 25 that they keep those things which they received of the apostles.

U N T O ¹ the angel of the church of Ephesus write, ² These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, and walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks,

2 ³ I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear with them which are evil, and hast examined them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars.

3 And thou wast burdened, and hast patience, and for my name's sake hast laboured, and hast not fainted.

4 Nevertheless, I have somewhat ⁵ against thee, because thou hast left thy first love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent and do the first works: or else I will come against thee shortly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou amend.

6 But this thou hast, that thou hatest the works of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.

7 ⁸ Let him that hath an ear, hear what the ⁸ Patmos is one of the isles of Sporades, whither John was banished, as some write.

⁹ This is that holy ravishment expressed, wherewith the prophets were ravished, and being as it were carried out of the world, were conversant with God: and ¹⁰ Ezekiel saith often, that he was carried from place to place of the Lord's Spirit: and that the Spirit of the Lord fell upon him.

¹¹ He calleth it the Lord's day, which Paul calleth the first day of the week, 1 Cor. 16. 2.

¹² The exposition declaring the third and last point of the proposition (for the other points are evident of themselves) wherein is spoken, first, of the author of his calling, unto the seventeenth verse; secondly, of the calling itself, unto the end of the chapter. And first of all the occasion is noted in this verse, in that St. John turned himself towards the vision: after is set down the description of the author, in the 13, 14, 15 and 16th verses following.

¹³ To see him whose voice I had heard.

¹⁴ The description of the author, which is Christ: by the candlesticks that stand about him, that is, the churches that stand before him, and depend upon his direction, in this verse: by his properties, that he is one furnished with wisdom and dexterity to be attaining of great things, verse 13, with ancient gravity and most excellent sight of the eye, ver. 14, with strength invincible, and with a mighty word, ver. 15. By his operations, that he ruleth the ministry of his servants in the church, giveth effect thereunto by the sword of his word, and enlightening all things by his countenance, doth most mightily provide for every one by his divine providence, ver. 16.

¹⁷ A religious fear that goeth before the calling of the saints, and thir full confirmation to take upon them the vocation of God.

¹⁸ A divine confirmation of this calling, partly by signs, and partly by word of power.

¹⁹ A most elegant description of this calling contained in three things, which ²⁰ necessary unto a just vocation: First, the authority of him that calleth, for that he is the beginning and end of all things, in this verse; for that he is eternal and omnipotent, ver. 18. Secondly, the sum of this prophetic calling and revelation, ver. 19. Lastly, a declaration of those persons unto whom this prophecy is, by the commandment of God, directed in the description thereof, ver. 20.

²¹ The sum of this prophecy, that the apostle must write whatsoever he should see, adding nothing, nor taking away any thing, ver. 2. Hereof there are two parts: one is a narration of those things which are, that is, which then were at that time contained in the second and third chapters: the other part is of those things which were to come, contained in the rest of this book.

²² That is, the thing which was mystical, signified by the particulars of the vision before going.

²³ By angels he meaneth the ministers of the church.

²⁴ The former part of this book is comprised in a narration of those things which then were, as St. John taught us, chap. 1. 19. it belongeth wholly unto instruction, and in these two next chapters, containeth seven places, according ²⁵ the number and condition of those churches which were named before, chap. 1. 11. figured verse 12, and distributed most aptly into their pastors and flocks, verse 20. which verse of that chapter is ²⁶ it were a page unto the first part. Every ²⁷ of these seven places hath three principal numbers: an exordium taken from the person of the author: ²⁸ proposition, in which is praise and commendation of that which is good, reprehension of that which is evil: and instruction, containing either an exhortation alone, or withal a dissuasion opposite unto it, and a conclusion stirring up unto attention, by divine promises. And this first place is unto the pastors of the church of Ephesus.

²⁹ The exordium, wherein are contained the special praises of Christ Jesus the author of this prophecy, out of the 6th and 13th verses of the first chapter.

³⁰ The proposition, first commending the pastor of this church, verse 2, 3; then reproving him, verse 4; after informing him, and withal threatening that he will translate the church to another place, verse 5. This commination or threat, Christ mitigateth by a kind of correction, calling ³¹ mind the particular virtue and piety of that church, which God never leaveth without recompense, verse 6. Concerning the Nicolaitans, see after upon the 15th verse.

³² To deal with thee for.

³³ The conclusion, containing a commandment of attention, and a promise of everlasting life, shadowed out in a figure, of which Gen. 2. 9.

A. D. 96. the Spirit saith unto the churches: To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in the midst of the Paradise of God.

8 ¶ And unto the angel of the church of the Smyrnians, write, These things saith he that is first and last, which was dead and is alive:

9 I know thy works and tribulation, and poverty (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews, and are not, but are the synagogue of Satan.

10 Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, it shall come to pass, that the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried, and ye shall have tribulation ten days: be thou faithful unto the death, and I will give thee the crown of life.

11 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. He that overcometh, shall not be hurt of the second death.

12 And to the angel of the church which is at Pergamus, write, This saith he which hath that sharp sword with two edges:

13 I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's throne is, and thou keepest my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in those days when Antipas my faithful martyr was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

14 But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that maintain the doctrine of Balaam, which taught Balac to put a stumbling-block before the children of Israel, that they should eat of things sacrificed unto idols, and commit fornication.

15 Even so hast thou them that maintain the doctrine of the Nicolaitans, which thing I hate.

A. D. 96. 16 Repent thyself, or else I will come unto thee shortly, and will fight against thee with the sword of my mouth.

17 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. To him that overcometh, will I give to eat of the Manna that is hid, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it.

18 ¶ And unto the angel of the church which is at Thyatira, write, These things saith the Son of God, which hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet like fine brass:

19 I know thy works and thy love, and service, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works, and that they were at the last, than the first.

20 Notwithstanding, I have a few things against thee, that thou sufferest the woman Jezebel, which calleth herself a prophetess, to teach and to deceive my servants, to make them commit fornication, and to sacrifice unto idols:

21 And I gave her space to repent of her fornication, but she repented not.

22 Behold, I will cast her into a bed, and them that commit fornication with her, into great affliction, except they repent them of their works.

23 And I will kill her children with death: and all the churches shall know that I am he which search the reins and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according unto your works.

24 And unto you I say, the rest of them of Thyatira, As many as have not this learning, neither have known the deepness of Satan (as they speak) I will put upon you none other burden,

4 G

25 But

⁵ That is, in Paradise, after the manner of Hebrew phrase.

⁶ This Christ speaketh as he is Mediator.

⁷ The second place is unto the pastors of the church of the Smyrnians. The exordium is taken out of the 17th and 18th verses of the first chapter.

⁸ Smyrna was one of the cities of Ionia in Asia.

⁹ The proposition of praise is in this verse, and of exhortation joined with promise, is in the next verse.

¹⁰ That is, of ten years. For so commonly both in this book and in Daniel, years are signified by the name of days, that God thereby might declare, that the space of time is appointed by him, and the same very short. Now because Saint John wrote this book in the end of Domitian the emperor's reign, as Justinus and Irenæus do witness, it is altogether necessary that this should be referred unto that persecution which was done by the authority of the emperor Trajan, who began to make havock of the Christian churches in the tenth year of his reign, as the historiographers do write: and his bloody persecution continued until Adrian the emperor succeeded in his place: the space of which time is precisely ten years, which are here mentioned.

¹¹ The conclusion, ver. 7.

¹² See chap. 20. 6.

¹³ The third place is unto the pastors of Pergamus. The exordium is taken out of the sixteenth verse of the first chapter.

¹⁴ Pergamus was the name of a famous city in old time in Asia, where the kings of the Attalians were always resident.

¹⁵ The proposition of praise, is in this verse, of reprehension in the two following, and of exhortation joined with a conditional threat, ver. 16. Now this Antipas was the angel or minister of the church of Pergamus, as Aretas writeth.

¹⁶ The faith of them of Pergamus is so much the more highly commended, because they remained constant even in the very heat of persecution.

¹⁷ That which is here spoken of things offered to idols, is of the same kind which Paul speaketh of, 1 Cor. 10. 14.

¹⁸ Which follow the footsteps of Balaam, and such as are abandoned to all filthiness, as he shewed in the verse foregoing, and is here signified by a note of similitude. And thus also must the sixth verse be understood. For this matter especially, Irenæus must be consulted withal.

¹⁹ The conclusion, standing of exhortation as before, and of promise.

²⁰ The bread of life, invisible, spiritual, and heavenly, which is kept secretly with God, from before all eternity.

²¹ He alludeth to that sermon which we read of, John 6. and to the place find, Psalm 105. 40.

²² Aretas writeth, that such a stone was wont to be given to wrestlers in games, else that such stones did in old time witness the acquitting of a man.

²³ Which is a sign and witness of forgiveness and remission of sins, of righteousness and true holiness, and of purity incorrupted, after that the old man is killed.

²⁵ The fourth place is unto the pastors of Thyatira. The exordium is taken out of the fourteenth and fifteenth verses of the first chapter.

²⁶ The proposition of praise is in this verse of reprehension, for that they tolerated with them the doctrine of unrighteousness and ungodliness, is ver. 20. the authors whereof, though they were called back of God, yet repented not, ver. 21. whereunto is added a most heavy threatening, ver. 22. and 23. of a conditional promise, and of exhortation to hold the truth, in the three verses following.

²⁷ So he calleth those offices of charity which are done in the saints.

²⁸ By fornication, is idolatry, oftentimes in the scripture, meant.

²⁹ He pointeth out the bragging of certain men, which boasted of their deep, that is, plentiful and common knowledge, which notwithstanding is devilish.

³⁰ I will speak no worse thing against you, being content to have shewed you what I require to be in you.

A. D. 96. 25 But that which ye have already, hold fast till I come.

26 ²⁵ For he that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over nations.

• Ps. 2. 9. 27 ²⁶ And he shall rule them with a rod of iron: and as the vessels of a potter, shall they be broken.

28 Even as I received of my Father, so will I give him the ²² morning star.

29 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith to the churches.

C H A P. III.

1 The fifth epistle sent to the pastors of the church of Sardis, 7 of Philadelphia, 14 and of the Laodiceans; 16 that they be not lukewarm, 20 but endeavour to further God's glory.

AND ¹ write unto the angel of the church which is at ² Sardis, These things saith he that hath the seven spirits of God, and the seven stars, ³ I know thy works: for thou hast a ⁴ name that thou livest, but thou art dead.

■ Be awake, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ⁵ ready to die: for I have not found thy works perfect before God.

• Ch. 16. 15. 1 Thee. 5. 2. Pet. 3. 10. 3 Remember therefore, how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast: and repent. ⁶ If therefore thou wilt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know what hour I will come upon thee.

4 Notwithstanding thou hast a few names yet in Sardis, ⁷ which have not defiled their garments: and they shall walk with me in ⁸ white: ⁹ for they are ¹⁰ worthy.

• Ch. 20. 12. 5 He that overcometh, shall be clothed in white array, and I will not put out of the ¹¹ book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

6 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

7 ¹² And write unto the angel of the church which is of Philadelphia, These things saith he that is holy, and true, which hath the ¹³ key of David: which openeth, and no man shutteth: and shutteth, and no man openeth.

8 ¹⁴ I know thy works: behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it: for thou hast ¹⁵ little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name.

9 Behold, I will make them ¹⁶ of the synagogue of Satan, which call themselves Jews, and are not, but do lye: behold, I say, I will make them that they shall come ¹⁷ and worship before thy feet, and shall know that I have loved thee.

10 Because thou hast ¹⁸ kept the word of my patience, therefore I will deliver thee from the hour of temptation, which will come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth.

11 Behold, I come shortly: hold that which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.

12 ¹⁹ Him that overcometh, will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: ²⁰ and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is the new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God, and I will write upon him my new name.

13 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

14 ²¹ And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write, These things saith ²² Amen, the faithful and true witness, that ²³ beginning of the creatures of God.

15 ²⁴ I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou werest cold or hot.

16 Therefore, because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, it will come to pass, that I shall spue thee out of my mouth.

17 For thou sayest, I am rich and increased with goods, and have need of nothing, and knowest not how thou art wretched and miserable, ²⁵ and poor, and blind, and naked.

18 I

²² The conclusion, when in Christ assureth unto his servants the communion of his kingdom and glory in this verse, and that following: and commandeth an holy attention in the last verse.

²¹ That is, I will make him a king, by communion with me, and my fellow heir, as it is promised, Matt. 19. 28. and 23. 34. Rom. 8. 17. and 1 Cor. 6. 3. Eph. 2. 6. and 2 Tim. 2. 12. and Apoc. 3. 21. and 44.

²³ The first place is unto the pastors of Sardis. The exordium is taken out of the 4. and 16 verses of the first chapter.

²⁴ Sardis is the name of a most flourishing and famous city, where the kings of Lydia kept their courts.

²⁵ The proposition of the proof is in this verse: of exhortation joined with threatening in the two verses that follow, and of qualification by way of correction, and the comfort of the good which yet remaineth there, verse 4.

■ Thou art said ²⁶ live, but art dead indeed.

²⁷ Other things, whose state is such, that they are now going, and unless they be confirmed, will perish forthwith.

²⁸ That is, who have with all religion guarded themselves from sin and contagion, even from the very shew of evil, as Saint Jude exhorteth, verse 23.

• Pure from all spot, and shining with glory. So it is to be understood always hereafter, ²⁹ in the next verse.

³⁰ The conclusion standing upon ³¹ promise and a ³² commandment, ³³ b. fore.

³⁴ They are meet and fit, to wit, because they ³⁵ justified in Christ, as they have truly shewed it: for he is righteous that worketh righteousness: but so as the tree bringeth forth the fruit, look Rom. 8. 13.

³⁶ The sixth place is unto the pastors of Philadelphia. The exordium is taken out of the 18 verse of the first

³⁷ All power of rule in commanding and forbidding, in delivering and punishing. And the house of David is the church, and the continual promise of David's kingdom belongeth to Christ.

³⁸ The proposition of praise is in this verse: of promises, to bring home again them that wander, verse 9. and ³⁹ preserve the godly, verse 10. and of exhortation, verse 11.

⁴⁰ I will bring them to that ca. e.

⁴¹ That is, fall down and worship, either thee civilly, or Christ religiously ⁴² thy feet (and thus ⁴³ had rather take it) whether here in the church (which seemeth more proper ⁴⁴ the argument of this place) or there in the world to come. For Christ verily shall fulfil his word.

■ Because thou hast been patient and constant, as I would my servants should be.

⁴⁵ The conclusion, which containeth ⁴⁶ promise and ⁴⁷ commandment.

⁴⁸ That is, the ⁴⁹ man shall be termed after his father, mother, and head, Christ.

⁵⁰ The seventh place is unto the pastors of the church of Laodicea. The exordium is taken out of the 15 verse of the first chapter.

⁵¹ Amen, soundeth as much in the Hebrew tongue, as truly, or truth itself.

⁵² Of whom all things that are made, have their beginning.

⁵³ The proposition of reproof is in this verse, whereunto is adjoined ⁵⁴ threatening, verse 16, with ⁵⁵ confirmation declaring the same, verse 17, and of exhortation unto faith and repentance, vers. 18, 19, whereunto is adjoined ⁵⁶ conditional promise, verse 20.

⁵⁷ The spiritual misery of ⁵⁸ is metaphorically expressed in three points: unto which are matched, ⁵⁹ correspondent, those remedies which are offered, verse 18.

A. D. 96. 18 I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried by the fire, that thou mayest be made rich: and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that thy filthy nakedness do not appear: and anoint thine eyes with eye salve, that thou mayest see.

19 As many as I love, * I rebuke and chasten: be ^h zealous therefore and amend.

20 Behold, I stand at the door, and knock. ¹⁴ If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in unto him, and will sup with him, and he with me.

21 ¹⁵ To him that overcometh, will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even ^h I overcame, and sit with my Father in his throne.

22 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.

C H A P. IV.

1 Another vision, containing the glory of God's majesty: 8 which is magnified of the four beasts, 10 and the four and twenty elders.

AFTER ¹ this I looked, and behold, a door was open in heaven, and the first voice which I heard, was ^h it were of a trumpet talking with me, saying, Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which must be done hereafter.

2 And ² immediately I ^h was ravished ² in the spirit, ³ and behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat upon the throne.

3 ⁴ And he that sat, was to look upon, like unto a jasper stone, and ^h sardine, and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like to an emerald.

^k Zeal is set against them which are neither hot nor cold.

¹⁴ This must be taken after the manner of ^h allegory. ^h John 14. 23.

¹⁵ The conclusion, consisting of ^h promise, ^h chap. 2. verse 26. and of ^h exhortation. Hitherto hath been the first part of the book of the Apocalypse.

¹ Hereafter followeth the second part of this book, altogether propheticall, foretelling those things which were to come, as was said before, chap. 1. 19. This is divided into two histories: one common unto the whole world, unto the ninth chapter: and another singular of the church of God, thence unto the 22d chapter, and these histories are said to be described in several books, chapter 5. 1. and 10. 2. Now this first verse is, as it were, a passage from the former part unto the second: where it is said, that the heaven was opened, that is, that heavenly things were unlocked, and that the voice of ^h trumpet sounded in heaven, to stir up the apostle, and call him ^h the understanding of things to come. The first history hath two parts: one of the causes of things done, and of this whole Revelation, in this and the next chapter. Another of the acts done in the next four chapters. The principal causes according to the distinction of persons in the unity of the divine essence, and according to the oeconomy or dispensation thereof, ^h two: one the beginning, which none shall approach unto, that is, God the Father, of whom is spoken in this chapter. The other the Son, who is the mean cause, easy to be approached unto, in respect that he is God and man in one person, of whom, chapter 5.

² The manner of Revelation, ^h before. 1. 10.

³ Look chapter 1. 10.

⁴ A description of God the Father, and of his glory in the heavens, framed unto the manner of ^h by his office, nature, company, attending, effect, instruments, and events, that follow afterwards. In this verse he is presented in office a judge, as Abraham said, Gen. 18. which is declared by his throne, as an ensign of judgment, and his sitting thereupon.

⁴ By his nature, in that he is the Father, most glorious in his own person, and with his glory overshadowing all other things.

⁵ By the company attending about him, in that, as that most high judge, he is accompanied with the most hon ur-

A. D. 96. 4 ⁵ And round about the throne were four and twenty seats, and upon the seats I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment, and had on their heads crowns of gold.

5 ⁶ And out of the throne proceeded lightnings, and thunderings, and voices, and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God.

6 ⁷ And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto chrystal: and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four beasts full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calf, and the third beast had a face as ^h man, and the fourth beast was like ^h flying eagle.

8 And the ^b four beasts had each one of them six wings about him, and they were full of eyes within; and they ceased not ³ day nor night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and which is, and which is to come.

9 And when those beasts ^c gave glory, and honour, and thanks to him that sat on the throne, which liveth for ever and ever,

10 ^h The four and twenty elders fell down before him that sat on the throne, and worshipped him that liveth for evermore, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying,

11 ¹⁰ Thou art ^h worthy, O Lord, ^h to receive glory, and honour, and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy will's sake they are, and have been created. ^h Ch. 5. 12.

C H A P. V.

1 The book sealed with seven seals, 3 which could open, 6 that Lamb of God is thought worthy to open, 12 even by the consent of all the company of heaven.

AND I saw in the right hand of him that sat upon the throne, a book written within, and on the backside sealed with seven seals.

2 And I saw a strong angel which preached with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof?

3 And a man in heaven nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

4 Then I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open and to read the book, neither to look thereon.

5 And one of the elders said unto me, Weep not: behold, that lion which is of the tribe of Judah, that root of David, hath obtained to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof.

6 Then I beheld, and lo, in the midst of the throne, and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders, stood a lamb, as though he had been killed, which had seven horns, and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God, sent into all the world.

7 And he came, and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

8 And when he had taken the book, the four beasts, and the four and twenty elders, fell down before the Lamb, having every one harps and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of the saints, A. D. 96.

9 And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof, because thou wast killed, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation,

10 And hast made us unto our God kings, and priests, and we shall reign on the earth. Ch. 1. 6. 2 Pet. 2. 9.

11 Then I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne, and about the beasts and the elders, and there were ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands:

12 Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was killed, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and praise.

13 And all the creatures which are in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I, saying, Praise, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for evermore. Dan. 7. 10.

14 And the four beasts said, Amen, and the four and twenty elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for evermore.

C H A P. VI.

1 The Lamb openeth the first seal of the book, 3 the second, 5 the third, 7 the fourth, 9 the fifth, 12 and the sixth, and then arise murders, famine, pestilence, outcries of saints, earthquakes, and divers strange sights in heaven.

AFTER

A passing unto the second principal cause, which is the Sea of God and man, the mediator of all, as the eternal Word of God the Father, manifested in the flesh. This chapter hath two parts: one that prepareth the way unto the Revelation, by rehearsal of the occasions that did occur in the first four verses. Another, the history of the Revelation of Christ: thence unto the end of the chapter.

That is, in the very right hand of God.

Here are shewed the occasions for which this principal cause, and this Revelation was also necessary: the same are three; the first present vision of the book of the counsels of God, concerning the government of this whole world, which book is said he laid up with the Father as it were in his hand: but shut and unknown all creatures, in this verse. The second is religious desire of the angels of God to understand the mysteries of this book, verse 2. whereof see 1 Peter, 1. 12. The third is lamentation of Saint John and all the goodly, moved by the same desire, verse 4. when they saw that it was a thing impossible for any creature to effect: which is declared in verse 3.

Thus neither of them that are in heaven, nor of them which are in the earth, &c. And this I like better. Now this enumeration of parts is sufficient to the denying of the whole: For of the creatures, one sort is in heaven, above the earth: another in the earth, and another under the earth, in the sea, as is afterwards declared, verse 13.

The second part of this chapter, in which is set down the Revelation of the Son, as before was said. This part containeth first an history of the how God prepared Saint John to understand this Revelation, in this verse. Secondly, the Revelation of the Son himself, unto the 7th verse. Thirdly, the accidents of this Revelation, in the rest of the chapter. The manner how is here described in two sorts: one from without him, by speech, in this verse: another within, by opening the eyes of Saint John (which before were held) that he might see, in the verse following.

That is, the most mighty and most approved prince: according in the use of the Hebrew speech.

The fact of this Revelation: Christ the mediator taketh and openeth the book, verse 6, 7. Therefore in this Revelation is described the person of Christ, in this verse. His fact in the next verse. The person is thus described: Christ, the mediator between God, angels, and men, the eternal Word of God, and our redeemer: the Lamb of God, standing as slain, and making intercession for us by the virtue and merit of his everlasting sacrifice, is armed with the Spirit of God in his person, that is, with the power and wisdom of God effectually unto the government of this whole world.

The fact of Christ the mediator: that he cometh unto the throne of the Father, of which chap. 4. and taketh the book out of his hand to open it. For that he opened it, it is first expressed, chap. 6, 1, &c.

Now follow in the end the accidents of the Revelation last spoken of: that all the holy angels and men did sing unto him: both the chief, verse 9, 10, and the common order of angels, verse 11, 12. and of all things created, verse 13. the princes of both sorts agreeing thereunto, verse 14.

The symbols or signs of praise, sweet of savour, and acceptable unto God, see chap. 8. 3.

Look chap. 8. 3.

No common song.

That is, composed according to the present matter, the Lamb having received the book it were with his feet, and opened it with his horns, as it is said in the Canticles.

The song of the nobles or princes standing by the throne, consisting of a publication of the praise of Christ, and a confirmation of the same from his benefits, both which we have received of himself (as are the suffering of his death, our redemption upon the cross by his blood, in this verse: and our communion with him in kingdom and priesthood, which along ago he hath granted unto us with himself) and which we hereafter hope to obtain, as our kingdom to come, in Christ, in the verse following.

The consent of the common order of angels, answering in melody unto their princes that stood by the throne.

A number finite, but almost infinite, for one infinity indeed, as Daniel 7. 10.

By this is meant a great number.

To have all praise given to him to the mightiest and wisest, &c.

The consent of all the common multitude of the creatures.

A confirmation of the praise foregoing, from the contestation of the nobles, expressed in word and signs, as once or twice before this.

A. D.
96.

AFTER, I beheld when the Lamb had opened one of the seals, and I heard one of the four beasts say, as it were the noise of thunder, Come and see.

2 Therefore I beheld, and lo, there was a white horse, and he that sat on him had a bow, and a crown was given unto him, and he went forth conquering that he might overcome.

3 And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second beast say, Come and see.

4 And there went out another horse, that was red, and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another, and there was given unto him a great sword.

5 And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third beast say, Come and see. Then I beheld, and lo, a black horse, and he that sat on him had balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, A measure of wheat for a penny, and three measures of barley for a penny, and oil and wine hurt thou not.

7 And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth beast say, Come and see.

And I looked, and behold, a pale horse, and his name that sat on him was death, and hell followed him, and power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.

¹ This is the second part of this first history (which I said was common, and of the whole world) of the works of God in the government of all things. Of this there are generally three members: the fore-signifying the caution, and the execution of all the evils which God poureth out upon this world, which hath most hardly deserved of him. The fore-signifying is set down in this chapter, the caution for preserving the church is in the next chapter, and the execution is described, chap. 8. 9. In every part of the fore-signifying there are three branches: the several and express calling of Saint John to prepare himself to take knowledge of the things that were to be shewed unto him in the opening of the seals: the sign, and the word expounding the sign: and albeit the express calling of Saint John be used only in four of the signs, yet the same is also to be understood in the rest that follow. The author of the fore-signifyings is the Lamb, as that word of the Father made the mediator, opening the seals of the book. The instruments are the angels in most of the visions, who expound the sign and the words thereof. Now this first verse containeth an express calling of Saint John to mark the opening of the first seal, ² The first sign joined with declaration is, that God, for the sins and horrible rebellion of the world, will invade the same: and first of all will, afar off, with his darts of pestilence, most suddenly, mightily, and gloriously, beat down the same as judge, and triumph over it as conqueror.

⁶ I had rather distinguish and read the words thus: "And the wine and the oil thou shalt not deal unjustly." In this sense likewise the oil and the wine shall be sold a very little for a penny. Thou shalt not deal unjustly, namely, when thou shalt measure out a very little for a great price: so is the place evident: otherwise that is most true which the wise man saith, That who with-holdeth the

9 And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were killed for the word of God, and for the testimony which they maintained,

10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, Lord; which art holy and true! doest not thou judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?

11 And long white robes were given unto every one, and it was said unto them, that they should rest for a little season until their fellow servants and their brethren that should be killed even as they were, were fulfilled.

12 And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and lo, there was a great earthquake, and the sun was black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon was like blood.

13 And the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, as a fig-tree casteth her green figs, when it is shaken of a mighty wind.

14 And heaven departed away, as a scroll when it is rolled, and every mountain and isle were moved out of their places.

15 And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man, hid themselves in dens, and among the rocks of the mountains,

16 And said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the presence of him

4 H

him

* Isa. 2. 19.
Hib. 10. 8.
Luke 23. 30.

corn, shall be cursed of the people, Prov. 11. 26.

⁷ The fourth sign, joined with words of declaration, is, that God will addict the fourth part of the world indifferently, unto death and hell, or the grave, by all those means at once, by which before severally and in order he had recalled their minds unto amendment. Unto these are also added the wild and cruel beasts of the earth, out of Levit. 26. 22. Thus doth God, according to his wisdom, dispense the treasures of his power justly towards all, mercifully towards the good, and with patience or long-sufferance towards his enemies.

⁸ The fifth sign is, that the holy martyrs, which are under the altar, whereby they are sanctified, that is, received into the trust and tuition of Christ (into whose hands they are committed) shall cry out for the justice of God, in an holy zeal to advance his kingdom, and not of any private perturbation of the mind, in this and the next verse, and that God will, in deed, sign, and word, comfort them; verse 11.

⁹ As before, 3. 4.

¹⁰ Until their number be fulfilled.

¹¹ The sixth sign, the narration whereof hath two parts: the sign, and the event. The sign is, that the earth, heaven, and the things that are in them, for horror of the sins of the world upon those most heavy foretellings of God and complaint of the saints, shall be shaken most vehemently, trembling in horrible manner, and losing their light, in this verse: falling from on high, verse 13, withdrawing themselves, and flying away for the greatness of the trouble, verse 14. So holily do all creatures depend upon the will of God, and content themselves in his glory.

¹² So they called in old time those woven works that were of hair.

¹³ The event of the sign foregoing: that there is no man that shall not be astonished at that general commotion, flee away for fear, and hide himself, in this verse, and wish unto himself most bitter death, for exceeding horror of the wrath of God, and of the Lamb, at which before he was astonished. Now this perplexity is not of the godly, but of the wicked, whose portion is in this life, as the Psalmist speaketh, Psalm 17. 14. Not that sorrow which is according unto God, which worketh repentance and salvation, whereof man shall never repent him, but that worldly sorrow that bringeth death, 2 Cor. 7. 9. as their wishings do declare: for this history of the whole world, is severed from the history of the church, as I have shewed before, chap. 4. 1.

¹⁴ These are words of such as despair of their escape: of which despair there are two arguments, the presence of God and of the Lamb provoked to wrath against the world,

A. D. 96. him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb.

17 For the great day of his wrath is come, and who can stand?

C H A P. VII.

1 The angels coming to hurt the earth, 3 are stayed until the elect of the Lord 5 of all tribes were sealed. 13 such as suffered persecution for Christ's sake, 16 have great felicity 17 and joy.

AND after that, I saw four angels stand on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that the winds should not blow on the earth, neither on the sea, neither on any tree.

2 And I saw another angel come up from the east, which had the seal of the living God, and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels to whom power was given to hurt the earth, and the sea, saying,

3 Hurt ye not the earth, neither the sea, neither the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of them which were sealed, and there were sealed an hundred and four and forty thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel.

5 Of the tribe of Judah were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Reuben were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed twelve thousand.

6 Of the tribe of Aser were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Naphtali were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Manasses were sealed twelve thousand.

in this verse: and the conscience of their own weakness, where y men feel that they are no way able to stand in the day of the wrath of God, verse 17. as it is said, Isaiah 44. 27.

The second member of this part is a preventing of danger, as we distinguished the same before, chapter 6. 1. that is, of the caution which God took care beforehand, and provided for his, that after the example of the Israelites of old, Exod. 8. 23. the faithful might be exempted from the plagues of this wicked world. This whole place is a certain interlocation and bringing in for this whole chapter, by occasion of the prediction and argument of the next verse. For first that evil is prevented in the elect, unto the end of time. Then thanks are given by the elect for that cause, ver. 10, 11, 12. Lastly, the accomplishment of the things is set forth unto the end of the chapter. The first verse is a transition, speaking of the angels which keep the inferior parts from all evil until God do command. For (as it is excellently figured by Ezek. chap. 1. 11, 12.) their faces and their wings are reached upwards, continually waiting upon and beholding the countenance of God for their direction, and every of them goeth into that part that is right before his face: whithersoever the Spirit shall go, they go, they step not out of the way, that is, they depart not so much as a foot's breadth from the path commanded them of God.

On the four quarters or coasts of the earth.

That is, neither into the air, into which the tops of trees are advanced.

Now God provideth against the danger of his elect, by his commandment, verse 2 and 3, and by sign or figure, both for those of the nation of the Jews, thence unto the 8th verse, and also of the Gentiles, verse 9.

Not only another, or differing in number from the common angels of God: but also in essence, office, and operation, exceeding all angels: that is, Christ Jesus, the eternal angel or word of God, and mediator of the covenant. So hereafter, chapter 8. 3. and 10. 15.

That is, of the Jews, a number certain in itself before God, and such as may be numbered of us: for which cause also the same is here set down as certain. But of the elect which are of the Gentiles, the number indeed is in it self certain with God, but of us not possibly to be numbered, as God, Gen. 5. 5. and often elsewhere, and Isaiah figured in it excellently, chap. 49. and 60. This therefore 7 Of the tribe of Simeon were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Levi were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Issachar were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Zebulun were sealed twelve thousand.

8 Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed twelve thousand.

9 After these things I beheld, and lo a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with long white robes, and palms in their hands.

10 And they cried with loud voice, saying, Salvation cometh of our God, that sitteth upon the throne, and of the Lamb.

11 And all the angels stood round about the throne, and about the elders, and the four beasts, and they fell before the throne on their faces, and worshipped God, 12 Saying, Amen: Praise, and glory, and wisdom, and thanks, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for evermore. Amen.

13 And one of the elders spake, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in long white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I said unto him, Lord, thou knowest. And he said unto me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their long robes, and have made their long robes white in the blood of the Lamb.

15 Therefore are they in the presence of the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple, and he that sitteth on the throne will dwell among them.

16 They

is spoken with respect, when a certain number is put for an uncertain. Confer this with verse 9.

He skipped Dan, and reckoneth Levi.

Of Ephraim, who was Joseph's other son, and had the birthright given him, whereof he is called Joseph.

Here the tribe of Levi is reckoned up in common with the rest, because all the Israelites were equally made priests with them in Christ by his priesthood, chap. 1. 6. and 5. 10. and Rom. 12. 1. and 1 Pet. 2. 9. The name of Dan is not mentioned, because the Danites long before forsaking the worship of God, were fallen away from the fellowship of God's people unto the part of the Gentiles, which evil many ages before Jacob foresaw, Gen. 49. 17. for which cause also there is mention made of this tribe in the first book of the Chronicles.

See before upon the 4th verse.

As priests, kings, and glorious conquerors by martyrdom: which things noted by their proper signs in this verse.

The praise of God celebrated first by the holy men in this verse, then by the heavenly angels in the two verses following.

A passage over unto the expounding of the vision, of which the angel enquireth of Saint John, to stir him up withal, in this verse; and John in the form of speech both acknowledgeth his ignorance, attributing knowledge unto the angel, and also in most modest manner requesteth he expounding of the vision.

The exposition of the vision, wherein the angel telleth, first, the acts of the saints, that is, their sufferings and work of faith in Christ Jesus, in this verse. Secondly, their glory: both present, which consisteth in two things; that they minister unto God, and that God protecteth them, verse 15. and to come in their perfect deliverance from all annoyances, verse 16. and in participation of all good things which even the memory of former evils shall never be able to diminish, verse 17. The cause efficient, and which containeth all these things, is only one, even the Lamb of God, the Lord, the Mediator, and the Saviour Jesus Christ.

He alludeth to the Levites, which served day and night, for else there is no night in heaven.

Or, upon them whereby is meant God's defence and protection, as it were toward them, who as safe as men in the Lord's tents.

C H A P. VIII.

■ After the opening of the seventh seal, 3 the saints prayers are offered up with odours. 6 The seven angels come forth with trumpets. 7 The four first blow, and fire falleth on the earth, 8 the sea is turned into blood, 10, 11 the waters wax bitter, 12 and the stars are darkened.

AND when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven about half an hour.

2 ■ And I saw the seven angels which ■ stood before God, and to them were given seven trumpets.

3 ■ Then another angel came and stood before the altar having ■ golden censer, and much odours was given unto him, that he should offer with the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar; which is before the throne.

4 And the smoke of the odours, with the prayers of the saints, ■ went up before God, out of the angel's hand.

5 And the angel took the censer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and cast it into the earth, and there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and earthquake.

6 * Then the seven angels, which had the seven trumpets, prepared themselves to blow the trumpets.

1 He returneth to the history of the seals of the book which the Lamb opened. The seventh seal is the next fore-signification, and ■ precise commandment of the execution of the most heavy judgments of God upon this wicked world, which fore-signification being understood by the seal, all things in heaven are silent, and in horror through admiration, until commandment of execution be severally given of God unto the ministers of his wrath. So he passeth unto the third member, of which I spake before in chap. 6. verse 1. which is of the execution of those evils wherewith God most justly determined to afflict the world.

2 Now followeth the third branch of the common history, as even ■ I said: which is the execution of the judgments of God upon the world. This is first generally prepared unto the 6th verse: then by several parts expounded according to the order of those that administered the same, unto the end of the chapter following. Unto the preparation of this execution, ■ declared these things: first who are the administrators and instruments thereof in this verse. Secondly, what is the work both of the prince and angels, giving order for this execution, thence ■ the 5th verse, and of his administrators in the 6th verse. The administrators of the execution ■ said ■ be seven angels: their instruments, trumpets, whereby they should, as it were, sound the alarm ■ the commandment of God. They are propounded seven in number; because it pleased God not at once ■ pour out his wrath upon the rebellious world, but ■ divers times; and by piece-meal, and in slow order, and ■ with an unwilling mind ■ exercise his judgments upon his creatures, so long called upon both by word and figures, if happily they had learned ■ repent:

2 Which appeareth before him ■ his ministers:

3 This is that great Emperor the Lord Jesus Christ, ■ King and Saviour, who both maketh intercession ■ God the Father for the saints, filling the heavenly sanctuary with most sweet odour, and offering up their prayers, as the calves and burnt sacrifices of their lips, in this verse: in such sort as every one of them (so powerful is that sweet favour of Christ, and the efficacy of his sacrifice) ■ held in reconciliation with God, and themselves made most acceptable unto him, verse 4. And then also out of his treasury, and from the same sanctuary, poureth forth upon the world the fire of his wrath, adding also divine tokens thereunto. and by that means (as of old the heralds of Rome were 7 ■ So the first angel blew the trumpet, and there was hail and fire mingled with blood, and they were cast into the earth, and the third part of trees was burnt; and all green grass was burnt.

8 6 And the second angel blew the trumpet, and ■ it were ■ great mountain, burning with fire, was cast into the sea, and the third part of the sea became blood.

9 And the third part of the creatures, which were in the sea, and had life, died, and the third part of the ships were destroyed.

10 7 There the third angel blew his trumpet, and there fell ■ great star from heaven, burning like ■ torch, and it fell into the third part of the rivers, and into the fountains of waters.

11 And the name of the star is called ■ wormwood: therefore the third part of the waters became wormwood, and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter.

12 ■ And the fourth angel blew the trumpet, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars, so that the third part of them was darkened: and the day was ■ smitten, that the third part of it could not shine, and likewise the night.

13 And I beheld, and heard one angel flying through the midst of heaven, saying with ■ loud voice, 10 Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth, because of the sounds to come of the trumpet of the three angels, which were yet to blow the trumpets.

went to do) he proclaimeth war against the rebellious world.

1 Our prayers are nothing worth unless that true and sweet favour of that only oblation be especially and before all things with them, that is to say, unless we being first of all justified through faith in his Son; be acceptable unto him.

4 This is the work of the administrators. The angels the administrators of Christ, only by sounding trumpet and voice (for they are only as heralds) do effectually call forth the instruments of the wrath of God, through his power. Hitherto have been things general. Now followeth the narration of things particular, which the angels six in number wrought in their order, set out in the 10th verse of the ■ chapter, and is concluded with the declaration of the event which followed upon these things done in the world's end, in the 10th and 11th chapters.

1 The first execution at the sound of the first angel, upon the earth, that is, the inhabitants of the earth (by metonymy) and upon all the fruits thereof: ■ the comparing of this verse with the second member of the 9th verse doth not obscurely declare.

2 The second execution upon the sea, in this verse; and all things that are therein, in the next verse.

3 The third execution upon the floods and fountains, that is, upon all fresh waters, in this verse: the effect whereof is, that many ■ destroyed with the bitterness of waters, in the verse following.

4 This is spoken by a metaphor, of the name of ■ most bitter herb, and commonly known: unless perhaps ■ following those that note the derivation of words had rather expound it adjectively; for that which by reason of bitterness cannot be drunk, or which maketh the liquor into which it is poured more bitter than that any man can drink the same:

5 The fourth execution upon these lightsome bodies of heaven, which administer unto this inferior world.

6 A lamentable prediction or foretelling of those parts of the divine execution which are yet behind, which also is a passage unto the argument of the next chapter. Of all these things in ■ manner, Christ himself expressly foretold in the 21st chapter St. Luke, ver 24, &c. and they are common plagues generally denounced, without particular note ■ time.

C H A P IX.

1 The fifth angel bloweth his trumpet, 3 and spoiling locusts come out. 13 The sixth angel bloweth, 16 and bringeth forth horsemen, 20 to destroy mankind.

AND the fifth angel blew the trumpet, and I saw a star fall from heaven unto the earth, and to him was given the key of the bottomless pit.

2 And he opened the bottomless pit, and there arose the smoke of the pit, as the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened by the smoke of the pit.

3 And there came out of the smoke locusts upon the earth, and unto them was given power, as the scorpions of the earth have power.

4 And it was commanded them that they should not hurt the grass of the earth, neither any green thing, neither any tree: but only those men which have not the seal of God in their foreheads.

The fifth execution upon the wicked men inhabiting the earth (as a little before the angel said) wrought by the infernal powers, is declared in this place unto verse 11. and after the sixth execution thence unto verse 19. And lastly, is shewed the common event that followed the former execution in the world, in the two last verses.

That is, that the angel of God glittering with glory, as a star fell down from heaven. Whether thou take him for Christ, who hath the keys of hell of himself, and by princely authority, chap. 1. verse 18. or whether for some inferior angel, who hath the same key permitted unto him, and occupies it ministerially, or by office of his ministry here, and chap. 21. to the word, falling, is taken, Gen. 14. 10. and 24. 46. and Heb. 6. 6.

The key was given to this star. For those powers of wickedness are thrust down into hell, and bound with chains of darkness: and are there kept unto damnation, unless God for a time do let them loose, 2 Pet. 2. 4. Jude 6. and of this book, chap. 20. 21. the history of which chapters hath agreement of time with this present chapter.

By the bottomless pit, he meaneth the deepest darkness of hell.

Unto this is added, the smoke of the hellish and infernal spirits, all dark, and darkening all things in heaven and in earth. The spiritual darkneses are the causes of all disorder and confusion. For the devil at a certain time (whereof verse the fifth) sent these darkneses into his kingdom, that he might at once and with one impression overthrow all things, and pervert, if it were possible, the elect themselves. By this darkness, all spiritual light, both active as of the sun, and passive, of the air which is lightened by the sun, is taken away: and this is that which goeth before the spirits: it followeth of the spirits themselves.

A description of the malignant spirits invading the world, taken from their nature, power, form, and order. From their nature, for that they like unto certain locusts, in quickness, subtilty, hurtfulness, number, and such like, in this verse. From their power, for that they are as the scorpions of the earth, of secret force to do hurt: for our battle is not here with flesh and blood, but with powers, &c. Ephes. 6. 12. This place of the power of the devils generally noted in this verse, is particularly declared afterwards in the three next verses.

Here that power of the devils is particularly described according to their actions and the effects of the same. Their actions are said to be bounded by the counsel of God: both because they hurt not all men, but only the reprobate (for the godly and elect, in whom there is any part of better life, God guardeth by his decree) whom Christ shall have sealed in this verse: and also because they neither had all power, nor at all times, nor not over those that are their own, but limited in manner and time, by the prescript of God, verse 5. So their power to afflict the godly is none, and for the wicked it is limited in act and in effect by the will of God: for the manner was prescribed unto them that they should not slay, but torment the wretched world. The time is for five months, or for hundred and fifty days, that is for so many years, in which the devils have indeed mightily perverted all things in the world: and yet without that public and unpunished licence of killing, which

5 And to them was commanded that they should not kill them, but that they should be vexed five months, and that their pain should be as the pain that cometh of a scorpion, when he hath stung a man.

6 Therefore in those days shall men seek death, and shall not find it, and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them.

7 And the form of the locusts was like unto horses prepared unto battle, and on their heads were as it were crowns, like unto gold, and their faces were like the faces of men.

8 And they had hair the hair of women, and their teeth were as the teeth of lions.

9 And they had habergeons like unto habergeons of iron, and the sound of their wings was like the sound of chariots, when many horses run unto battle.

10 And they had tails like unto scorpions, and there were stings in their tails, and their power was to hurt five months.

11 And afterwards they usurped, when the sixth angel had blown his trumpet, as shall be said upon verse 13. Now this space is to be accounted from the end of that thousand years mentioned chap. 20. 3. and that is from the popedom of that Gregory the VIIth. a most monstrous necromancer, who before was called Hildebrandus Senensis: for this man being made altogether of impiety and wickedness, as a slave of the devil, whom he served, was the most wicked firebrand of the world: he excommunicated the emperor Henry the IVth. went about by all manner of treachery to set up and put down empires and kingdoms as liked himself, and doubted not to set Rodolph the Swede over the empire instead of Henry before named, sending unto him a crown, with this verse annexed unto it:

“ Petra dedit Petro, Petrus diadema Rodolpho:”

That is,

The Rock to Peter gave the crown,
And Peter Rodolph doth renown.

Finally, he so finely bestirred himself in his affairs, as he miserably set all Christendom on fire, and conveyed over unto his successors the burning brand of the same: who, enraged with like ambition, never ceased to nourish that flame, and to enkindle it more and more: whereby cities, commonweals, and whole kingdoms, set together by the ears amongst themselves by most expert cut-throats, came to ruin, whilst they miserably wounded one another. This term of an hundred and fifty years, taketh end in the time of Gregory the IXth. or Hugolinus Anaguiensis, (as he was before called) who caused to be compiled by one Raymond his chaplain and confessor, the body of decretals, and by sufferance of the kings and princes, to be published in the Christian world, and established for a law: for by this sleight at length the popes arrogated unto themselves licence to kill whom they would, whilst others were unaware: and without fear established a butchery out of many of the wicked members of the decretals, which the trumpet of the fifth angel had expressly forbidden, and had hindered until this time. The effects of these bloody actions are declared upon the sixth verse: that the miserable world languishing in so great calamities, should willingly run together unto death, and prefer the same before life, by reason of the grievousness of the miseries that oppressed them.

The form of these hellish spirits and administrators is shadowed out by signs and visible figures in this sort: that they are very expert and swift: that wheresoever they are in the world, the kingdom is theirs: that they manage all their affairs with cunning and skill in this verse: that making shew of mildness and tender affection draw on men withal, they most impudently rage in all mischief: that they are most mighty do hurt, verse 8. that they are freed from being hurt of any man, armed with the colour of religion and sacred authority of privilege: that they fill all things with horror, verse 9. that they are fraudulent: that they are venomous and extremely noisome, though their power be limited, verse 10. All which things are properly in the infernal powers, and communicated by them unto their ministers and vassals.

11 And they have a king over them, which is the angel of the bottomless pit, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek he is named Apollyon, that is, destroying.

12 One woe is past, and behold, yet two woes come after this,

13 ¶ Then the sixth angel blew the trumpet, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar, which is before God,

14 Saying to the sixth angel, which had the trumpet, Loose the four angels, which are bound in the great river Euphrates.

15 And the four angels were loosed, which were prepared at an hour, at a day, at a month, and at a year, to slay the third part of men.

16 And the number of horsemen of war were twenty thousand times ten thousand: for I heard the number of them.

17 And thus I saw the horses in a vision, and them that sat on them, having fiery habergeons, and of jacinth, and of brimstone, and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions: and out of their mouths went forth fire, and smoke, and brimstone.

18 Of these three was the third part of men killed, that is, of the fire, and of the smoke, and

^a The order of powers of maliciousness: that they are subject to an infernal king, whom thou mayest call in English, The Destroyer: who driveth the whole world both Jews and Gentiles into the destruction that belongeth unto himself. And I cannot tell whether this name have respect unto the etymological interpretation of Hildebrand, by a figure often used in the holy scripture, which albeit it may otherwise be turned of the Germans (as the sense of compound words is commonly ambiguous) yet in very deed it signifieth as much as if thou shouldst call him, The fire-brand, that is, he that setteth on fire those that be faithful unto him.

^b A passage unto the next point and the history of the time following.

¹⁰ The sixth execution done upon the world by the tyrannical powers thereof, working in the four parts of the earth, that is, in most cruel manner executing their tyrannous dominion through the whole world: and killing the miserable people without punishment, which before was not lawful for them to do in that sort, I shewed upon the fourth verse. This narration hath two parts: a commandment from God, in the 14th verse, and an execution of the commandment, in the verse following.

¹¹ The commandment given by Christ himself, who is governor over all.

^b He alludeth the altar of incense, which stood in the court which the priests were in, over-against the ark of the covenant, having a veil betwixt them.

¹² As if he should have said, these hitherto have been so bound by the power of God, that they should not freely run upon all men themselves lusted, but were stayed and restrained at that great flood of Euphrates, that is, in their spiritual Babylon (for this is a periphrasis of the spiritual Babylon, by the limits of the visible Babylon long since overthrown) that they might not commit those horrible slaughters, which they long breathed after. Now, go to, let loose those four angels, that is, administrators of the wrath of God, in that number that is convenient for the slaughtering of the four quarters of the world: stir them up, and give them the bridle, that, rushing of that Babylon of theirs, which is the seat of the wicked ones, they may see upon all the world: therein rage, and most licentiously to practise their tyranny, as God hath ordained. This was done when Gregory the Ninth, by public authority, stablished for law his decretals, by which he might freely lay trains for the life of simple men. For who is it that seeth that the laws decretal most of them are snares catch souls withal? Since that time (O good God) how great slaughters have been! how great massacres! All histories are full of them: and this age aboundeth with most horrible and monstrous examples of the same.

¹³ The execution of the commandment is in two points: one, that those butchers let loose, that out of their tower of the spiritual Babylon they might with fury abroad through all the world, well the chief of that crew which are most prompt in all affairs, in this verse, their multitudes both most copious, of which a number of the brimstone, which came out of their mouths. A. D. 96.

19 For their power is in their mouths, and in their tails: for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads wherewith they hurt.

20 And the remnant of the men which were not killed by the plagues, repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship devils, and idols of gold, and of silver, and of brass, and of stone, and of wood, which neither can see, neither hear nor go. * Pl. 115. 4. and 135. 15.

21 Also they repented not of their murder, and of their sorcery, neither of their fornication, nor of their theft.

C H A P. X.

1 Another angel appeareth clothed with a cloud, 2 holding a book, 3 and crieth out. 8 A voice from heaven commandeth John to take the book. 10 He eateth it.

AND I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud, and the rainbow upon his head, and his face was as the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire.

4 I

And

certain is named for a number infinite, verse 16. and in themselves by all fully furnished to hide and to hurt, verse 17. being armed with fire, smoke, and brimstone, appeareth in the colour of this armour, which dazzleth the eyes of all men, and have the strength of lions hurt withal, from which (as out of their mouth) the fire, smoke, and stinking darts of the Pope, are shot out, verse 18. The other point is, that these butchers have effected the commandment of God by fraud and violence, in the two verses following.

¹⁵ Now remaineth the event (as I said in the first verse) which followed of so many and so grievous judgments in the most wicked world, namely, an impenitent confirmation of the ungodly in their impiety and unrighteousness, though they feel themselves most vehemently pressed with the hand of God: for their obstinate ungodliness is shewed in this verse: and their unrighteousness in the verse following. Hitherto hath been the general history of things to be done universally in the whole world: which, because it doth so much belong to the church of Christ, is therefore not so expressly distinguished by certainty of time and other circumstances, but is woven, they say, with a slight hand. Also there is another cause why the history of the seventh angel is passed in this place, than for that the same properly appertaineth to the history of the church. But this is more diligently set out according to the time thereof, chap. 11 and 16. as shall appear upon those places.

Now Saint John passeth the other propheticall history, which is of the church of God, as I shewed, that this book should be distinguished, chapter 4, 1. This story reacheth hence unto the two and twentieth chapter. And this whole chapter is but a transition from the common history of the world unto that which is particular of the church. There in this transition or passage, preparations, as it were, unto the church story comprised in this whole chapter. One is the authority of Christ, revealing his mysteries, and calling his servant, unto the 7th verse. The other is Saint John's calling, proper to this place, and repeated from before unto the end of this chapter. Authority is given unto this Revelation by these things: first, by the appearing from heaven in this habit and countenance, strong, ready, glorious, surveying all things by his providence, and governing them by his omnipotence, verse 1. Secondly, that he brought not by chance, but of a book, this open Revelation, set forth unto the eye, signify the same unto the sea, and land, as the Lord over all, verse 2. Thirdly, that he offered the same not whispering or muttering in a corner (as false prophets do) but crying out with a loud voice them which sleep, and with a lionish and terrible noise roused up the secure: the very thunders themselves giving testimony thereunto, verse 3. Lastly, for that he confirmed by an oath, verse 5, 6, 7.

* Christ Jesus, see chapter 7. verse 2.

A. D. 96. 2 And he had in his hand a little book open, and he put his right foot upon the sea, and his left on the earth.

3 And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders uttered their voices.

4 And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: but I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, "Seal up those things which the seven thunders have spoken, and write them not.

5 And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea, and upon the earth, "lift up his hand to heaven,

6 And swore by him that liveth for evermore, which created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things that therein are, "that "time should be no more.

7 But in the days of the "voices of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to blow the trumpet, even the mystery of God shall be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets.

8 And the voice which I heard from heaven, spake unto me again, and said, Go, and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel, which standeth upon the sea and upon the earth.

¹ Namely, a special book of the affairs of God's church: For the book that containeth things belonging unto the whole world is said to be kept with the Creator, chapter 5, verse 1. but the book of the church with the Redeemer: and out of this book is taken the rest of the history of this Apocalypse.

² A godly care is laudable, but must be joined with knowledge. Therefore nothing is to be taken in hand but by calling, which must be expected and waited for of the godly.

³ Keep them close.

⁴ This was a gesture used of one that sweareth, which men do now-a-days use.

⁵ Neither time itself, nor the things that are in time: but that the world to come is at hand, which is altogether of eternity, and beyond all times.

⁶ There shall never be any more time.

⁷ Whereof chap. 11. 15. and 16. 17.

⁹ A simple and plain declaration of the sign foregoing, witnessing the divine calling of Saint John, and laying upon him the necessity thereof.

¹⁰ The authority of the intended Revelation being declared, together with the necessity of that calling, which was particularly imposed upon Saint John: hereafter followeth the history of the estate of Christ his church, both conflicting or warfaring, and overcoming in Christ. For both the true church of Christ is said to fight against that which is falsely so called, over the which Antichrist ruleth, Christ Jesus overthrowing Antichrist by the spirit of his mouth: and Christ is said to overcome most gloriously until he shall slay the Antichrist by the appearance of his coming, as the apostle excellently teacheth, 2 Thess. 2. 8. So this history hath two parts: one of the state of the church conflicting with the temptations, unto the sixteenth chapter, the other of the state of the same church obtaining victory, thence unto the 20th chapter. The first part hath two members most conveniently distributed into their times, whereof the first containeth an history of the christian church for 1260 years, what time the gospel of Christ was as it were taken up from amongst the people into heaven: the second containeth an history of the same church unto 9 So I went unto the angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, Take it, and eat it up, and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth as sweet as honey.

10 Then I took the little book out of the angel's hand, and ate it up, and it was in my mouth as sweet as honey: but when I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

11 And he said unto me, Thou must prophesy again among the people and nations, and tongues, and to many kings.

C H A P. XI.

1 The temple is commanded to be measured. 3 The Lord stirreth up two witnesses, 7 whom the beast murdereth, 9 and no man burieth them. 11 God raiseth them to life, 12 and calleth them up to heaven. 13 The wicked are terrified, 15 by the trumpet of the seventh angel: the resurrection, 18 and judgment is described.

THEN was given me a reed like unto a rod, and the angel stood by, saying, Rise and meet the temple of God, and the altar, and them that worship therein.

2 But the court which is without the temple, the victory perfected. And these two members are briefly, though distinctly, propounded in this chapter; but are both of them more at large discoursed after in due order. For we understand the state of the church conflicting, out of chapters 12 and 13. and of the same growing out of afflictions, out of the 14th, 15th, and 16th chapters. Neither did Saint John at unawares join together the history of these two times in this chapter, because here is spoken of prophecy, which all confesse to be but one just and immutable in the church, and which Christ commanded to be continual. The history of the former time reacheth unto the 14th verse: the latter is set down in the rest of this chapter. In the former are shewed these things: the calling of the servants of God in four verses: the conflicts which the faithful must undergo in their calling for Christ and his church, thence unto the tenth verse: and their resurrection, and receiving up into heaven, unto the fourteenth verse. In the calling of the servants of God are mentioned two things: the begetting and settling of the church, in two verses, and the education thereof, in two verses. The begetting of the church is here commended unto Saint John by sign and by speech: the sign is measuring rod, and the speech is commandment to measure the temple of God, that is, to reduce the same unto a new form: because the Gentiles were already entered into the temple of Jerusalem, and shall shortly defile and overthrow the same utterly.

² Either that of Jerusalem, which was a figure of the church of Christ, or that heavenly exemplar, whereof verse 19. but the first liketh better, and the things following do all agree thereunto. The sense thereof is, Thou seekest all things in God's house, almost from the passion of Christ, to be disordered: and that not only the city of Jerusalem, but also the court of the temple, is trampled under foot of the nations, and of prophane men, whether Jews or strangers: and that only the temple, that is, the body of the temple, with the altar, and a small company of good men which truly worship God, do remain, whom God doth sanctify and confirm by his presence. Measure therefore this, this church, or rather the true type of the true church, omitting the rest, and so describe all things from me, that the true church of Christ may be as it were a little center, and the church of Antichrist as the circle of the center, every way in length and breadth compassing about the same, that by way of prophecy thou mayest so declare openly, that the state of the temple of God, and the faithful which worship him, that is, of the church, is much straighter than the church of Antichrist.

³ As if he should say, It belongeth nothing unto thee, judge those which are without, 1 Corinth. 5. 12. which be innumerable: look unto those of the household only, or unto the house of the living God.

⁴ He speaketh of the outer court; which was called the people's court, because all men might come into that.

A. D. 96. temple, ^b cast out, and meet it not: for it is given unto the ⁴ Gentiles, and the holy city shall they tread under foot, ⁵ two and forty months.

3 But ⁶ I will give power unto my two witnesses, and they shall ⁷ prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days clothed in sackcloth.

4 These ⁸ are two olive trees, and two candlesticks, standing before the God of the earth.

5 ⁹ And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouths, and devoureth their enemies: for if any man will hurt them, thus must he be killed.

6 These have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophesying, and have power over waters to turn them into blood, to smite the earth with all manner of plagues, as often as they will.

■ That is, counted ■ be cast out, which in measuring is refused ■ prophane.

⁴ To prophane persons, wicked and unbelievers, adversaries unto the church.

⁵ Or a thousand two hundred and threescore days, as is said in the next verse: that is, a thousand two hundred and threescore years, ■ day for a year, ■ often in Ezek. and Daniel, which thing I noted before, 2. 10. The beginning of these thousand two hundred and three score years we account from the passion of Christ, whereby (the partition-wall being broken down) we were made of two, one, Ephes. 2. 14. I say, one flock, under one shepherd. John 10. 16. and the end of these years precisely falleth into the popedom of Boniface the eighth, who ■ little before the end of the year of Christ one thousand two hundred ninety-four, entered the popedom of Rome, in the feast of Saint Lucia (as Bergomensis saith) having put in prison his predecessor Coelestinus, whom by fraud, under colour of oracle, he deceived: for which cause that was well said of him, "Intravit ut vulpes, regnavit ut leo, mortuus est ut canis." That is, "He entered like a fox, reigned like a lion, and died like a dog." For if from ■ thousand two hundred ninety four years thou shalt take the age of Christ which he lived on the earth, thou shalt find there remaineth just one thousand two hundred and threescore years, which ■ mentioned in this place and many others.

⁶ I had rather translate it "illud" than "illam"; "the temple," than "the city:" for God saith, I will give that temple, and commit it unto my two witnesses, that is, unto the ministers of the word, who ■ few indeed, weak and contemptible: but yet two, that is, of such ■ number as ■ of them may help another, and one confirm the testimony of another unto all men, that from the mouth of two ■ three witnesses every word may be made good amongst men, 2 Cor. 13. 1.

⁷ They shall exercise their office enjoined by me, by the space of those thousand two hundred and sixty years, in the midst of afflictions, though never so lamentable, which is figuratively shewed by the mourning garment.

⁹ The power and efficacy of the holy ministry, and which is truly evangelical, is declared both in earth and in heaven, protecting the administrators thereof, and destroying the enemies, in this verse, virtue indeed divine, most mightily shewing itself forth in heaven, earth, and the sea, verse 6, as it is described, ■ Corinthians, 10. 4. according to the promise of Christ, Mark 16. 17. And this is the ■ second place (as I said before) of the combats which the servants of God must needs undergo in the executing of their calling, and of the things that follow the same combats. In the combats or conflicts are these things, to overcome, in these two verses: to be ■ and killed, verse 7. After the slaughter follow these things, that the carcases of the godly are laid abroad, verse ■ being unburied, ■ made a ■ of scorn, together of cursing and bitter execrations, verse 9. and that therefore gratulations ■ publicly and privately made, verse 10.

¹⁰ That is, when they have spent those thousand two hundred and sixty years, mentioned verse 2 and 3. in publishing their testimony according ■ their office.

¹¹ When they have done their message.

¹² Of which, after chap. 13. &c. that beast is the Roman empire, made long ago of civil, ecclesiastical: the chief

7 ¹⁰ And when they have finished their ⁶ testimony, ¹¹ the beast that cometh out of the bottomless pit, shall make war against them, and shall ■ overcome them, and kill them.

8 And their corpses shall lie in the ¹³ streets of the great city, which ⁴ spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, ¹⁴ where our Lord also was crucified

9 And they of the people, and kindreds, and tongues, and Gentiles shall, see their corpses ¹⁵ three days and ■ half, and shall not suffer their carcases to be put in graves.

10 And they that dwell upon the earth, ¹⁶ shall rejoice over them and be glad, and shall send gifts one to another: for these two prophets ¹⁷ vexed them that dwelt on the earth.

11 But

head whereof was then Boniface the eighth, ■ I said before: who lifted up himself in so great arrogance (saith the author of, Fasciculus temporum) that he called himself, Lord of the whole world, ■ well in temporary causes, ■ in spiritual: there is an extant of that matter, written by the same Boniface most arrogantly, shall I say or most wickedly; "Cap. ■ sancta, extra de majoritate & obedientia." And in the sixth of the decretals (which is from the same author) many things ■ found of the same argument.

¹² He shall persecute most cruelly the holy men, and put them to death, and shall wound and pierce through with cursings both their ■ and writings. And that this was done ■ very many godly men, by Boniface, and others, the histories do declare, especially, since the time that the odious and condemned ■ amongst the multitude, first, of the brethren Waldenses or Lugdunenses, then also of the Fraticles, was pretended, that good men might with ■ approbation be massacred.

¹³ That is, openly at Rome, where ■ that time was a most great concourse of people, the year of Jubilee being then first ordained by Boniface unto the same end, in the year of Christ 1300. example whereof is read, chap. 1. "Extra, de poenitentis & remissionibus." So by one act he committed double injury against Christ, both abolishing his truth by the restoring of the type of the Jubilee, and triumphing over his members by most wicked superstition. O religious heart! Now, that we should understand the things of Rome, Saint John himself is the author, both after in the 17th chapter, almost throughout, and also in the circumscription, ■ next following, when he saith, it is that great city (as chap. 17, 18. he calleth it) and is spiritually termed Sodom and Egypt: and that spiritually (for that must here again be repeated from before) Christ was there crucified. For the two first appellations signify spiritual wickedness: the latter signifieth the shew and pretence of good, that is, of christian and sound religion. Sodom signifieth most licentious impiety and injustice. Egypt, most cruel persecution of the people of God: and Jerusalem signifieth the most confident glorying of that city, ■ it were in true religion, being yet full of falshood and ungodliness. Now who is ignorant that these things do rather and more agree unto Rome than any other city. The commendations of the city of Rome, for many years past, are publicly notorious, which ■ not for ■ gather together. This only I will say, that he long since did very well see what Rome is, who taking his leave thereof, used these verses:

"Roma, vale, vidi, satis ■ vidisse: revertar,

"Quam leno, meretrix, scurra, cinodus ero."

Now farewell, Rome, I have thee seen, it was enough to see. I will return when as I mean, bawd, harlot, knave to be.

¹⁴ After a more secret kind of meaning and understanding.

¹⁵ Namely, in his members, as also he said unto Saul, Acts 9. 5.

¹⁶ That is, for three years and ■ half: for so many years Boniface lived after his Jubilee, as Bergomensis witnesseth.

¹⁷ So much the more shall they by this occasion exercise the jollity of their Jubilee.

¹⁸ The gospel of Christ is the affliction of the world, and the ministry thereof a favour of death unto death to those that perish, 1 Cor. 2. 16.

A. D. 96. 11 ¹⁵ But after ¹⁹ three days and an half, ²² the spirit of life coming from God, shall enter into them, and they ²¹ shall stand up upon their feet: and great fear shall come upon them which saw them.

12 And they shall hear a great voice from heaven, saying unto them, ²² Come up hither. And they shall ascend up to heaven in a cloud, ²³ and their enemies shall see them.

13 ²⁴ And the same hour shall there be a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city shall fall, and in the earthquake shall be slain in number seven thousand: and the remnant were fore feared, ²⁵ and ^c gave glory to the God of heaven.

14 ²⁵ The second woe is past, and behold, the third woe will come anon.

15 ²⁷ And the seventh angel blew the trumpet, and there were great voices in heaven, saying, ²⁸ The kingdoms of the world are our Lord's, and his Christ's, and he shall reign for evermore.

16 ²⁹ Then the four and twenty elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, 17 Saying, We give thee thanks, Lord God Almighty, which art, and which wast, and which art to come: for thou hast received thy great might, and hast obtained thy kingdom.

18 ³² And the Gentiles were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and to them that fear thy name, to small and great, and shouldst destroy them which destroy the earth.

19 Then the temple of God was ³¹ opened in heaven, and there was seen in his temple the ark of his covenant: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and earthquake, and much hail.

CHAP. XII.

A woman 2 appeareth travailing with child, 4 whose child the dragon would devour, 7 but Michael overcometh him, 9 and casteth him out, 13 and the more he is cast down and vanquished, the more fiercely he exerciseth his subtilties.

AND there appeared a great wonder in heaven: ¹ a woman clothed with the sun, and

The third place, as I noted before, is of the rising again of the prophets from the dead, and their carrying up into heaven. For their resurrection is shewed in this verse: their calling and lifting up into heaven, in the verse following.

²⁹ That is, what time God shall destroy that wicked Boniface.

²⁹ That is, the prophets of God shall in a sort rise again, not the same in person (as they say) but in spirit: that is, in the power and efficacy of their ministry, which St. John expressed before, verses 5 and 6. And of the prophecy that is spoken of Elias, is interpreted by the angel to be understood of John the Baptist, Luke 1: 17. For the same Boniface himself, who sought to kill and destroy them, was by the fire of God's mouth (which the holy ministry sheweth and exhibiteth) devoured and died miserably in prison, by the endeavour of Sarra Columnensis, and Nogaretus a French knight, whom Philip the fair, king of France, sent into Italy, but with a very small power.

²² They were called by God into heaven, and taken out of this malignant world, into the heavenly church, which also lieth hidden here in the earth, to exercise their calling secretly: as of whom this wretched world was unworthy. Heb. 11: 38. For the church of the wicked is by comparison called the earth, or the world: and the church of the godly, heaven: So in ancient times amongst the godly Israelites so amongst the Jews, in the days of Manasses and other kings, when the earth refused the heirs of heaven. we read that they lay hidden in heaven in the earth.

²¹ Yet could they not hinder the secret ones of the Lord (as the Psalmist called them, Psalm 83: 4.) but they that went on forward in his work.

²⁵ They were indeed broken with present astonishment of mind, but did not earnestly repent: they ought to have done.

^c Glorified God by confessing his name.

²² He passeth unto the second history, which is the second part of this chapter. St. John calleth these the second and third woe, having respect unto Chap. 9: 12.

²⁹ As before, 7: 11. This giving of thanks is altogether of the same content with the words going before.

²² This is the confirmation of the next prophecy foregoing, by signs exhibited in heaven, and that of two sorts, whereof some are visible, as the passing away of the heaven, the opening of the temple, the ark of the covenant appearing in the temple, and testifying the glorious presence of God, and the lightnings: others apprehended by ear and such dull sense, which bear witness in heaven and earth to the truth of the judgments of God.

Hitherto hath been the general prophecy, comprehended in two parts, as I shewed upon chap. 11. Now shall be declared the first part of this prophecy, in this and the next chapter, and the latter part in the 14th, 15th, and 16th chapter. Unto the first part, which is of the conflicting militant church, belong two things. The beginning and the progress of the same in conflicts and Christian combats. Of which two, the beginning or uprising of the church is described in this chapter, and the progress thereof in the chapter following. The beginning of the Christian church may be defined to be from the first moment of the conception of Christ, until that time wherein this church may be weaned and taken away from the breast of milk of her mother: which is the time when the church of the Jews with their city and temple was overthrown by the judgment of God. So may we have in this chapter the story of 69 years and upwards. The parts of this chapter are three. The first, is the history of the conception and bearing in womb, in four verses. The second, is the history of the birth, from the 5th verse unto the 12th. The third is of the woman that had brought forth, unto the end of the chapter. And these several parts have every one their conflicts. Therefore in that first part are two things contained, one, the conception and bearing in womb, in two verses: and another of the laying in wait of the dragon against that should be brought forth, in the next two verses. In the first point of these things, the description of the mother, verse 1. and the dolours of childbirth, verse 2. all shewed unto John from heaven.

² A type of the true holy church which then was in the nation of the Jews. This church (as is the state of the holy church catholic) did in itself shine about with glory given of God, trod under feet mutability and changeableness, and possessed the kingdom of heaven in the heirs thereof.

A. D. 96. and the moon was under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars.

¶ And she was with child, and cried travailling in birth, and was pained ready to be delivered.

3 And there appeared another wonder in heaven: 4 for behold a great red dragon having seven heads, and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads:

4 7 And his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and cast them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, to devour her child, when she had brought it forth.

5 10 So she brought forth a man child, which should rule all nations with a rod of iron, and that her child was taken up unto God and to his throne.

6 12 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and threescore days.

7 And there was a battle in heaven, 14 Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels.

8 15 But they prevailed not, neither was their place found any more in heaven.

9 And the great dragon, that old serpent, called the devil and Satan, was cast out, which deceiveth all the world: he was even cast out to the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

10 Then I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, 11 Now is salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night.

11 But they overcame him by that blood of the lamb, and by that word of their testimony, and they loved not their lives unto the death.

12 Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabitants of the earth, and of the sea: for the devil is come down unto you, which hath great wrath, knowing that he had but a short time.

13 And when the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which had brought forth the man child.

14 18 But to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the presence of the serpent.

4 K

15 And

A. D. 96.

3 For this is that barren woman that brought not forth, of which Sarah 45. 1. and Gal. 4. 27. she cried out for a dead cause, and was tormented at that time, when in the judgement of all men she was near unto death, and in manner ready to give up the ghost, by reason of her weakness and poverty.

4 That is, the devil or Satan (as is declared verse 9.) mighty angry, and full of wrath.

5 Thereby to withstand those seven churches spoken of, that is, the catholic church, and that with kingly furniture and tyrannical magnificence: signified by the crowns set upon his heads, as if the same without controversy belonged unto him by the proper right: as also he boasted unto Christ, Matt. 4. 9. See after upon chap. 13. 1.

6 More than are the horns of the lamb, or than the churches are: so well furnished doth the tyrant brag himself to be unto all manner of mischief.

7 After the description of Satan followeth this action, that is, his battle offered unto the church, partly to that which is visible, wherein the wheat is mingled with the chaff, and the good fish with that which is evil; a good part thereof, though in appearance it shined like the stars shine in heaven, he is said to be thrust down out of heaven, and to pervert: for if it were possible he would pervert even the elect, Matt. 24. 24. and partly, to the elect members of the holy catholic church, the second part of this verse. Many therefore of the members of this visible church, saith Saint John, he overthrew, and triumphed upon them.

8 He withstood that elect church of the Jews, which was now ready to bring forth the Christian church, and watched for that she should bring forth. For the whole church and whole body is compared unto a woman: and a part of the church unto that which is brought forth, as we have noted at large upon Cant. 7. 6.

¶ Christ mystical (as they call him) that is, the whole church, consisteth of the person of Christ the head, and of the body united therunto by the Spirit, so is the name of Christ taken, 1 Cor. 12. 12.

10 The second history of this church delivered of a child: in which first the consideration of the child born, and of the mother, is described in two verses: secondly, the battle of the dragon against the young child, and the victory obtained against him in three verses following: last of all sung a song of victory, unto the twelfth verse. Now Saint John, in consideration of the child born, noteth two things: for he describeth him, and his station or place in this verse.

11 That is Christ the head of the church joined with his church (the beginning root and foundation whereof is the same Christ) endowed with kingly power, and taken up into heaven out of the jaws of Satan (who is a serpent did bite him upon the cross) that, sitting upon the celestial throne, he might reign over all.

12 The church of Christ which was of the Jews, after his assumption into heaven, hid itself in the world as in a wilderness, trusting in the only defence of God, as witnesseth Saint Luke in the Acts of the Apostles.

13 Namely, the apostles and servants of God ordained to feed with the word of life the church collected both of the Jews and Gentiles, unless that any man will take the word "alerent" impersonally, after the use of the Hebrews, instead of "aleretur:" but I like the first better. For he hath respect unto those two prophets, of whom, chap. 11. 3. As for the meaning of the 1260 days, look the same place.

14 Christ is the prince of angels, and the head of the church, who beareth that iron rod, verse 5. See the notes upon Daniel, chapter 12. 1. In this verse a description of the battle, and of the victory in the two verses following. The Psalmist had respect unto this battle, Psalm 68. 19. and Paul, Eph. 4. 8. and Col. 2. 15.

15 The description of the victory, by denying of one thing in this verse, and by affirming the contrary in the next verse. As that Satan gained nothing in heaven, but was by the power of God thrown down into the world whereof he is the prince, Christ himself and his elect members standing still by the throne of God.

¶ They were cast out so, that they were never seen any more in heaven.

16 The song of victory or triumph, containing, first, a proposition of the glory of God, and of Christ, shewed in that victory. Secondly, it containeth a reason of the same proposition, taken from the effects, that the enemy is overcome in battle, in this verse, and that the godly made conquerors (and more than conquerors, Rom. 8. 37.) verse 11. Thirdly, a conclusion, wherein is an exhortation unto the angels, and to the saints: and fourthly, the world a prophecy of great misery, and of destruction, procured by the devil against mankind, lest himself should shortly be miserable alone, verse 12.

¶ He is said, in the Hebrew tongue, to love his life, that esteemeth nothing more precious than his life: and on the other side, he is said not to love his life, who doubteth not to hazard it, wheresoever need requireth.

17 The third part: an history of the woman delivered consisting of two members, the present battle of Satan against the church of the Jewish nation, in four verses: and the battle intended against the seed thereof, that is, against the church of the Gentiles, which is called holy, by reason of the gospel of Christ, in the two last verses.

¶ That is, being strengthened with divine power: and taught by oracle, she fled swiftly from the assault of the devil, and from the destruction of Jerusalem, and went into a solitary city beyond Jordan, called Pella, as Eusebius telleth in the fifth chapter of the third book of his ecclesiastical history: which place God had commanded her by revelation.

¶ Into that place which God had appointed for her.

¶ That is, for three years and an half: so the same speech is taken, Dan. 7. 25. This space of time is reckoned in from that last and most grievous rebellion of the Jews, and the destruction of the city and temple,

A. D.

15² And the serpent cast out of his mouth water after the woman, like a flood, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood.

16² But the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon had cast out of his mouth.

17²² Then the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went and made war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ.

18²³ And I stood on the sea land.

CHAPTER XIII.

1 The beast with many heads is destroyed, 12 which draweth the most part of the world to idolatry. 13 for their defection or falling away, began in the twelfth year of Nero, before the beginning whereof many fore- signs and predictions were shewed from heaven, as Josephus writeth, lib. 7. cap. 12. and Hieronymus, lib. 5. cap. 41. amongst which this is very memorable, that in the feast of Pentecost not only a great sound and noise was heard in the temple, but also a great voice was heard of many out of the sanctuary, which cried out unto all, Let us depart hence. Now three years and a half after this defection was begun of the Jews and those wonders happened, the city was taken by force, the temple overthrowed, and the place forsaken of God: and this compass of time St. John noted in this place.

25 That is, he inflamed the Romans and nations, that they persecuting the Jewish people with cruel arms, might by the same occasion invade the church of Christ, now departed from Jerusalem, and out of Judea. For it is an usual thing in scripture, that the raging tumults of the nations should be compared unto waters.

26 That is, there was offered in their place other Jews, unto the Romans and nations raging against that people; and it came to pass thereby, that the church of God was saved whole from that violence, that most raging flood of persecution, which the dragon vomited out, being altogether spent in the destruction of these other Jews.

27 Being set on fire by this means, he began to be more mad, and because he perceived that his purpose against the Christian church of the Jews remnant was come to nought, he resolved to fall upon her seed, that is, the church gathered also by God of the Gentiles, and the holy members of the same. And this is that other branch, as I said upon the thirteenth verse, in which the purpose of Satan is shewed, verse 17. and his attempt, verse 18.

28 That is, a most mighty tempest that he rushed upon the whole world (whose prince he is) to raise the floods, and provoke the nations, that they might with their furious billows toss up and down, drive here and there, and finally destroy the church of Christ, with the holy members of the same. But the providence of God resisted his attempts, that he might favour the church of the Gentiles, yet tender, and as it were green. The rest of this story of the dragon is excellently prosecuted by Saint John hereafter in the 20th chapter. For here the dragon endeavouring to do mischief, was by God cast into prison.

The apostle having declared the springing up of the Christian church, and the estate of the church from which ours taketh her beginning, doth now pass unto the story of the progress thereof, as I shewed in the entrance of the former chapter. And this history of the progress of the church, and the battles thereof, is set down in this chapter, but distinctly in two parts, one is of the civil Roman empire, unto verse 10. another of the body ecclesiastical or prophetic, thence unto the end of the chapter. In the former part are shewed these things: First, the state of that empire, in four verses: then the acts thereof, in three verses: after the effect, which is exceeding great glory, verse 8. And last of all is commended the use, and the instruction of the godly against the evils that shall come from the same, verse 9, 10. The history of the state containeth a most ample description of the beast, first intire, verse 1, 2. and then restored after hurt, verse 3, 4.

2 On the sand whereon stood the devil, practising his temptations against the church, in the verse next beforegoing: what time the empire of Rome was endangered by domestic dissensions, and was mightily tossed, having ever and anon new heads and new emperors. See in the 17th chapter, and verse 8.

3 Having the same instruments of power, providence, and most expert government, which the dragon is said to

The other beast rising out of the earth, 15 giveth power unto him. A. D. 96.

AND I saw a beast rise out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns were ten crowns, and upon his head the name of blasphemy.

2 And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet like bear's, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power and his throne, and great authority.

3 And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death, but his deadly wound was healed, and all the world wondered and followed the beast.

4 And have had in the 12th chapter, and the 4th verse.

4 We read in the twelfth chapter, and third verse, that the dragon had seven crowns set upon seven heads, to denote the thief avoucheth himself to be proper Lord and Prince of the world, but this beast is said to have ten crowns set upon several, not heads, but horns: because the beast is beholden for all unto the dragon, verse 2. and doth not otherwise reign than by law of subjection given by him, namely, that he employ his horns against the church of God. The speech is taken from the ancient custom and form of dealing in such case: by which they that were absolute kings, did wear the diadem upon their heads: but their vassals, and such as reigned by grace from them, wore the same upon their hoods: for so they might commodiously lay down their diadems, when they came into the pretence of their sovereigns: as also the elders are said when they adored God which sat upon the throne, to have cast down their crowns before him, chap. 4. ver. 10.

5 Contrary to that which God of old commanded should be written in the head-piece of the high priest, that is, "Sanctitas Jehovah," "Holiness unto the Lord." The name of blasphemy imposed by the dragon, is, (as I think) that which Saint Paul saith in the second chapter of his second Epistle to the Thessalonians, the fourth verse: "He sitteth as God, and boasteth himself to be God." For this name of blasphemy both the Roman emperors did then challenge unto themselves, as Suetonius and Dion do report of Caligula and Domitian: and after them the Popes of Rome did with full mouth profess the same of themselves, when they challenged unto themselves sovereignty in holy things: of which kind of sayings the sixth book of the Decretals, the Clementines, and the Extravagants, are very full. For these were not content with that which Anglicus wrote in his Poetria, (the beginning whereof is, "Papa stupor mundi," "The Pope is the wonder of the world.") "Nec Deus es, nec homo, sed neuter es inter utrumque:" "Thou art not God, nor art thou man, but neuter mixt of both:" the gloss witnesseth upon the sixth book: But they were bold to take to themselves the very name of God: and accept it given of others: according as almost hundred and twenty years since, there was made for Sixtus the fourth, when he should first enter into Rome in his dignity papal, a pageant of triumph, and cunningly fixed upon the gate of the city he should enter at, having written upon it this blasphemous verse:

Oraculo vocis mundi moderaris habenas,
Et merito in terris crederis esse Deus."

That is,

By oracle of thine own voice, the world thou govern'st all;
And worthily a God on earth think and do thee call.

These and six hundred the like, who can impute unto that modesty whereby good men of old would have themselves called the servants of the servants of God? Verily either this is a name of blasphemy, or there is none at all.

6 Swift as the leopard; easily clasping all things, as the bear doth with his foot; and tearing and devouring all things with the mouth, as doth the lion.

7 That is, he lent the same unto the beast to use, when he perceived that himself could not escape, but must needs be taken by the hand of the angel, and cast into the bottomless pit, chapter 20. yet did not he abandon the same utterly from himself, but that he might use it as long as he could.

8 This is the other place that appertaineth to the description of the beast of Rome: that, besides that natural dignity,

A. D. 96. 4 And they worshipped the dragon which gave the power unto the beast: and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast! who is able to war with him!

5 ⁹ And there was given unto him a mouth, that spake great things and blasphemies, and power was given unto him, ¹⁰ to do two and forty months.

6 And he opened his mouth unto blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, ¹¹ and his tabernacle, ¹² and them that dwell in heaven.

7 And it was given to him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them, and power was given him over every kindred, and tongue, and nation.

8 Therefore all that dwell upon the earth, shall worship him, ¹³ whose names are not written in the book of life of that Lamb which was slain from the beginning of the world.

A. D. 96.

9 ¹⁴ If any man have an ear, let him hear.

10 If any lead into captivity, he shall go into captivity: * if any kill with a sword, he must be killed by a sword: here is the patience and the faith of the saints.

Gen. 9. 6. Matt. 26. 52.

11 ¹⁵ And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth, ¹⁶ which had two horns like the lamb, but he spake like the dragon.

12 ¹⁷ And he did all that the first beast could do before him, and he caused the earth, and them which dwell therein, ¹⁸ to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed.

13 ¹⁹ And he did great wonders, so that he made dignity, and amplitude of the Roman empire, which was shadowed in the two former verses, there was added this also as miraculous, that one head was wounded, as it were, unto death, and was healed again, as from heaven, in the sight of all men. This head was Nero the emperor, in whom the race of the Cæsars fell from the imperial dignity, and the government of the commonwealth was translated unto others: in whose hands the empire was so cured, and recovered unto health, as it seemed unto all so much the more deeply rooted and grounded fast than ever before. And hence followed those effects which are next spoken of: First, an admiration of certain power, as it were sacred and divine, sustaining the empire, and governing it: Secondly, the obedience and submission of the whole earth, in this verse: Thirdly, the adoration of the dragon, and most wicked worshipping of devils, confirmed by the Roman emperors: Lastly, the adoration of the beast himself, which grew into so great estimation, as that both the name and worship of a god was given unto him, verse the fourth. Now there were two causes which brought in the minds of men this religion: the shew of excellency, which bringeth with it reverence: and the shew of power invincible, which bringeth fear. Who is like (say they) unto the beast! Who shall be able to fight with him!

⁹ The second member, containing an history of the acts of the beast, as I said verse 1. The history of them is concluded in two points: the beginning, and the manner of them. The beginning is the gift of the dragon, who put and inspired into the beast both his impiety against God, and his immanity and injustice against all men, especially against the godly, and those that were of the household of faith, verse the fifth. The manner of the acts or actions done, is of two sorts, both impious in mind, and blasphemous in speech against God, his church, and the godly, verse the sixth: and also most cruel and injurious in deeds even such as were done of most raging enemies, and of most insolent and proud conquerors, verse the 7th.

¹¹ That is, the holy church, the true house of the living God.

¹² That is, the godly, in several, who hid themselves from his cruelty. For this bloody beast surcharged those holy souls most falsely with those innumerable accusations for the name of Christ, as we read in Justin Martyr, Tertullian, Arnobius, Minutius, Eusebius, Augustine, and others: which examples the latter times followed most diligently, in destroying the flock of Christ: and we in our own memory have found by experience, as our incredible grief. Concerning heaven, see in the eleventh chapter, and in the twelfth verse.

¹³ That is, such as are not from everlasting elected in Christ Jesus. For this is that Lamb slain, of which chapter the fifth, verse the sixth. These words I do, with Aretz, distinguish in this manner: "Whose names are not written from the laying of the foundation of the world, in the book of life of the Lamb slain." And this distinction is confirmed by a like place hereafter, chapter 17. 8.

¹⁴ The conclusion of this speech of the first beast, consisting of two parts. An exhortation to attentive audience, in this verse: and foretelling, which partly containeth threatenings against the wicked, and partly comforts for those which in patience and faith shall wait for that glorious coming of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, verse the tenth.

¹⁵ The second member of the vision, concerning the ecclesiastical dominion, which in Rome succeeded that which was politic, and is in the power of the corporation of false prophets, and of the forgers of false doctrine. Wherefore the same beast, and the same body or corporation, is called by Saint John by the name of false prophet, chapter 16. verse 13 and 19. verse 20. The form of this beast is first described in this verse, then his acts in the verses following: and the whole speech is concluded in the last verse. This beast is by his breed a son of the earth (as they say) obscurely born, and by little and little creeping up out of his abject state.

¹⁶ That is, in shew he resembled the Lamb (for what is more mild or more humble than to be the servant of the servants of God?) but indeed he played the part of the dragon, and of the wolf, Matt. 7. 15. For even Satan changeth himself into an angel of light, 1 Cor. 11. 14. and what should his honest disciples and servants do?

¹⁷ The history of the acts of this beast containeth in sum three things, hypocrisy, the witness of miracles, and tyranny: of which the first is noted in this verse, the second in the three verses following, the third in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses. His hypocrisy is most full of leasing, whereby he abuseth both the former beast and the whole world: in that albeit he hath by his cunning, and as it were by lime, made of the former beast a most miserable skeleton, or anatomy, usurped all his authority unto himself, and most impudently exerciseth the same in the sight and view of him: yet he carrieth himself so, as if he honoured him with most high honour, and did in very good truth cause him to be revered of all men.

¹⁸ For unto this beast of Rome, which of a civil empire is made an ecclesiastical hierarchy, are given divine honours, and divine authority so far, as he is believed to be above the scriptures, which the gloss upon the decretals declareth by this devilish verse:

"Articulos solvit, synodumque facit generalem."

That is,

He changeth the articles of Faith, and giveth authority to general councils.

Which is spoken of the Papal power. So the beast is by birth, foundation, seat, and finally substance, one: only the pope hath altered the form and manner thereof, being himself the head both of that tyrannical empire, and also of the false prophets: for the empire hath he taken unto himself, and thereunto hath added this cunning device. Now these words, "whose deadly wound was cured," are put here for distinction sake, as also sometimes afterwards: that even at that time the godly readers of this prophecy might by this sign be brought to see the things present: as if it were said, that they might adore this very empire that now is, whose head we have seen in our own memory to have been cut off, and to be cured again.

¹⁹ The second point of the things done by the beast, is the credit of great wonders or miracles, and pertaining to the strengthening of this impiety: of which signs some were given from above, as it is said, that fire was sent down from heaven by false sorcery, in this verse. Others were shewed here below in the sight of the beast, as establish idolatry, and deceive souls: which part St. John setteth forth, beginning (as they say) that which is last, in this manner: First, his effect is declared in these words: "He deceiveth the inhabitants of the earth." Secondly, the common manner of working, in two sorts: one of miracles, "For the signs which were given him to do in the presence of the beast:" the other of the words added in the signs, and teaching the idolatry by those signs, "Saying unto the inhabitants of the earth, that they should make an image unto the

A. D. 96. made fire to come down from heaven on the earth, in the sight of men, 12 And deceived them that dwell on the earth by the signs which were permitted him to do in the sight of the beast, saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make the ²² image of the ²¹ beast which had the wound of a sword, and did live.

13 ²² And it was permitted to him to give a ²² spirit unto the image of the beast, so that the image of the beast should speak, and should cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast, should be killed.

14 ²³ And he made all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive ²⁴ a ²³ mark in their right hand or in their foreheads :

15 And that no man might ²⁵ buy or sell, save he that had the ²⁵ mark or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

18 ²⁷ Here is wisdom. Let him that hath wit, count the number of the beast : for it is the ²⁸ number of ²⁸ man, and his number is six hundred threescore and six.

C H A P. XIV.

1 The Lamb standeth on mount Sion, 4 with his chiefe worshippers. 6 One angel preacheth the gospel, 8 another foretelleth the fall of Babylon: 9 the third warneth that the beast be avoided. 13 A voice from heaven pronounceth them happy who die in the Lord. 16 The Lord's sickle is thrust into the harvest, 18 and into the vintage.

THEN I looked, and lo, ¹ Lamb ¹ stood on mount Sion, and with him ¹ an hundred forty the beast, which, &c." Thirdly, a special manner is declared. "That it is given unto him to put life unto the image of the beast:" and that such a kind of quickening, that the same both speaketh by answer unto those that ask counsel of it, and also pronounceth death against all those that do not obey nor worship it: all which things oftentimes by false miracles, through the procurement and inspiration of the devil, have been effected and wrought in images. The histories of the Papists are full of examples of such miracles, the most of them reigned, many also done by the devil in images, as of old in the serpent, Gen. 3. 1. By which examples is confirmed not the authority of the beast, but the truth of God and these prophecies.

²² That is, images, by enallage or change of the number: for the worship of them ever since the second council of Nice, hath been ordained in the church by public credit and authority, contrary to the law of God.

²³ In the Greek, the word is of the dative case, as much to say, as unto the worship, honour and obeying of the beast, for by this maintenance of images, this pseudopropheticall beast doth mightily profit the beast of Rome, or whom long ago he received them. Wherefore the ²³ am is hereafter very fitly called the image of the beast, for that images have their beginning from the beast, and have their form or manner from the will of the beast, and have their end and use fixed in the profit and commodity of the beast.

²⁴ And of this miracle of the images of the beast, (that is, which the beast hath ordained to establish idolatry) which miraculously speak, and give judgment, or rather marvellously, by the fraud of the false prophets, the Papists books are full fraughted.

²⁵ To give life, as Jannes and Jambres imitated the wonders that Moses wrought.

²⁶ The third place is a most wicked and most insolent tyranny, as was said before, usurped over the persons of men, in this verse: and over their goods and actions, in the next verse. For he is said both to bring upon all persons a tyrannous servitude, so that as bond-slaves they might serve the beast: and also to exercise over all their goods and actions a pedlar like abuse of indulgences and dispensations (as they term them) amongst their friends, and against others, to use most violent interdictions, and to shoot out curings, even in natural and civil, private and public contracts, wherein all good faith ought to have place.

²⁷ That is, their Chrism, by which in the sacrament (as they call it) of confirmation, they make servile unto themselves, the persons and doings of men, signing them in their forehead and hands, and as for the sign left by Christ (of which chap. 7. 3.) and the holy sacrament of baptism, they make as void. For whom Christ hath joined unto himself by baptism, this beast maketh challenge unto them by his greasy chrism, which he doubteth not to prefer before baptism, both in authority and in efficacy.

²⁸ The mark of the name of the beast.

²⁹ That is, have any traffic or intercourse with men, but they only which have this anointing and consecrating of clericaly tonsure, as they call it. Read Gratian "De consecratione, distinctione tertia, c. 5. omnes spiritus, &c." of these matters.

pontifical knowledge, and of the law (as they call it) canonical, and hath not as it were made up in account and cast the number of the mysteries thereof: for in these things consisteth the number of that name of the beast. And this is excellently set forth in the next verse.

²⁷ That is, in this number of the beast consisteth that popish wisdom, which unto them seemeth the greatest of all others. In these words St. John expoundeth that saying, which went before of the number of the beast, what it hath above his mark or cognifance and his name. These things, saith St. John, the mark and the name of the beast, do easily happen unto any man, but to have the number of the beast, is wisdom: that is, only the wise and such as have understanding, can come by that number: for they must be most illuminate doctors that attain thereunto, as the words following do declare.

²⁸ How great and of what denomination this number of the beast is, by the which the beast accounteth his wisdom, St. John declareth in these words, Dost thou demand how great it is? it is so great, that it occupieth the whole man: he is alway learning, and never cometh to the knowledge thereof: he must be a man indeed that doth attain unto it. Askest thou of what denomination it is? verily it standeth of six throughout, and perfectly riseth of all the parts thereof in their several denominations (as they term them:) it standeth of six by units, tens, hundreds, &c. so as there is no one part in the learning and order pontifical, which is not either referred unto the head, and, as it were, the top thereof, or contained in the same: so fitly do all things in this hierarchy agree one with another, and with their head. Therefore that cruel beast Boniface the VIIIth. doth commend by the number of six, those decretals which he perfected, in the proem of the sixth book: "Which book (saith he) being to be added to five other books of the same volume of decretals, we thought good to name Sextum, the sixth: that the same volume, by addition thereof, containing a senary, or the number of six books (which is a number perfect) may yield a perfect form of managing all things, and perfect discipline of behaviour." Here therefore is the number of the beast, who poureth from himself all his parts, and bringeth them all back again unto himself by his discipline in most wise and cunning manner. If any man desire more of this, let him read the gloss upon that place, I am not ignorant that other interpretations ³¹ brought upon this place: but I thought it my duty, with the good favour of all, and without the offence of any, to propound my opinion in this point. And for this cause especially, for that it seemed unto me neither profitable, nor like ³¹ be true, that the number of the beast, or of the name of the beast, should be taken ³¹ the common sort of interpreters do take it. For this number of the beast teacheth, giveth out, imprinteth, as ³¹ public mark of such as be his, and esteemeth that mark above all others, as the mark of tho ³¹ whom he loveth best. Now those other expositions seem rather to be far removed from this property and condition of that number: whether you respect the name Latinus, or Titan, ³¹ any other. For these the beast doth ³¹ teach, nor give forth, nor imprint, but most diligently forbiddeth ³¹ be taught, and audaciously denieth: he approveth not these, but reproveth them, and hateth them that think so of this number, with ³¹ hatred greater than that of Vatinius.

³¹ The history of the church of Christ being finished for ³¹ than a thousand and three hundred years, at which time Boniface VIII. lived, as before hath been said: there remaineth the rest of the history of the conflicting or militant

A. D. 96. forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voice from heaven as the sound of many waters, and as the sound of great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers, harping with their harps.

3 And they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and the elders: and no man could learn that song, but the hundred forty and four thousand which were bought from the earth.

4 These are they which are not defiled with women, for they are virgins: these follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth: these are bought from men, being the first fruits unto God, and to the Lamb.

5 And in their mouths was found no guile: for they are without spot before the throne of God.

6 ¶ Then I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having an everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people,

7 ¶ Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him: for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters.

¶ And there followed another angel, saying: A. D. 96. It. 21. 9. Jer. 51. 8. Ch. 8. 2. Babylon that great city is fallen; it is fallen: for she made all nations to drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.

9 ¶ And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or on his hand,

10 The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, yea, of the pure wine which is poured into the cup of his wrath, and he shall be tormented in fire and brimstone before the holy angels, and before the Lamb.

11 And the smoke of their torment shall ascend evermore: and they shall have no rest day nor night, which worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the print of his name.

12 ¶ Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus.

13 Then I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, Write, The dead which die in the Lord, are fully blessed. Even so saith the Spirit: for they rest from their labours; and their works follow them.

14 ¶ And I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sitting like unto 4 L the

tant church, from thence unto the time of the last victory, in three chapters. For first of all, as the foundation of the whole history is described, the standing of the Lamb with his army and retinue in five verses, after his worthy acts which he hath done, and yet doth in most mighty manner, whilst he overthroweth Antichrist with the spirit of his mouth, in the rest of this chapter, and in the two following. Unto the description of the Lamb, propounded three things, his situation, place and attendance: for the rest are expounded in the former visions, especially upon the fifth chapter.

¶ As ready girt to do his office (as Acts 7. 56.) in the midst of the church, which aforetime mount Zion did prefigure.

¶ As before; 7. 2. This retinue of the Lamb is described first by divine mark (as before 7. 2.) in this verse. Then by divine occupation, in that all and every one in his retinue most vehemently and sweetly (verse 2.) do glorify the Lamb with a special song before God and his elect angels: which song flesh and blood cannot hear, nor understand, ver. 3. Lastly, by their deeds done before, and their sanctification in that they were virgins pure from spiritual and bodily fornication, that is, from impiety and unrighteousness, that they followed the Lamb as a guide unto all goodness, and cleaved unto him: that they are holy unto him, as of grace redeemed by him: that in truth and simplicity of Christ they have exercised all these things, sanctimony of life, the direction of the Lamb, thankful remembrance of redemption by him: finally (to conclude in a word) that they were blameless before the Lord, ver. 4, 5.

¶ The other part (as I said on the first verse) is of the acts of the Lamb, the manner whereof is delivered in two sorts, of his speech and of his facts. His speeches are set forth unto the 13th verse of this chapter, and his facts unto the sixteenth chapter. In the speech of the Lamb, which is the word of the gospel, taught in this place these things: The service of the godly, consisting inwardly of reverence towards God; and outwardly of the glorifying of him: the visible sign of which is adoration, ver. 7. The overthrowing of wicked Babylon, ver. 8. and the fall of every one of the ungodly which worship the beast, ver. 9, 10, 11. Finally, the state of the holy servants of God, both present, ver. 11. and to come, most blessed, according to the promise of God, ver. 13.

¶ This angel is a type or figure of the good and faithful servants of God, whom God especially from that time of Boniface VIII. hath raised up to the publishing of the gospel of Christ, both by preaching and by writing. So God first, near unto the time of the same Boniface, used Peter Callidorus an Italian; after Arnold, de Villa Nova, a Frenchman, then Occam, Dante, Petrarch, after that, Johannes de Rupe Cesa, a Franciscan: after again, John Wickliffe Englishman, and so continually one or another unto the restoring of the truth, and enlarging of his church.

¶ That is, Babylon is destroyed by the sentence and judgment of God: the execution whereof St. John describeth; chap. 18. And this voice of the ministers of Christ hath continued since the time that Babylon (which is Rome) hath by deliberate counsel and manifest malice oppugned the light of the gospel offered from God:

¶ Of her fornication, whereby God was provoked to wrath.

¶ That is, shall not worship God alone, but shall transfer his divine honour unto this beast, whether he do it with his heart, or counterfeiting in shew. For he (saith Christ) that denieth me before men, him will I deny before my Father and his angels, Matt. 10. 32. And this is that voice of the holy ministry, which at this time is very much used of the holy and faithful servants of God. For having now sufficiently found out the public obstinacy of Babylon, they labour not any longer to thunder against the same: but to save some particular members by terror (as St. Jude speaketh) and to pluck them out of the public flame: or else by vehement commiseration of their estate lead them away; they set before them eternal death, into which they rush unawares, unless in good time they return unto God: but the godly which are of their own flock, they exhort unto patience, obedience, and faith in the Lord Jesus, and charge them to give light by their good example, of good life unto others.

¶ The patience, sanctification, and justification, by faith: the consequence whereof is rest, felicity, and glory eternal in the heavenly fellowship of God and his angels.

¶ That is, for the Lord.

¶ By works, is meant the reward which followeth good works.

¶ The second part of this chapter, as I said verse 1. Of the acts and doings of Christ, in overthrowing of Antichrist and his church by the Spirit of his divine mouth: seeing that having been called back by word both publicly and privately unto his duty, and admonished of his most certain ruin, he yet ceaseth not to maintain and protect his own adherents, that they may do him service; and to afflict the godly with most barbarous persecutions. Of those things which Christ doth there are two kinds; one common or general in the rest of this chapter, another particular against that savage and rebellious beast and his worshippers, chapter 15, 16. That common kind is the calamity of wars, spread abroad through the whole earth; and filling all things with blood, and that without respect of any person. This is figured or shadowed out in two types of the harvest and vintage. Since the time that the light of the gospel began to shine out, and since prophecy or preaching by the grace of God was raised up again, how horrible

A. D. 96. the Son of man, ¹¹ having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a ¹² sharp sickle.

¹⁵ ¹³ And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, * Thrust in thy sickle and reap: for the time is come to reap: for the harvest of the earth is ripe.

¹⁶ And he that sat on the cloud, thrust in his sickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

¹⁷ ¹⁴ Then another angel came out of the temple, which is in heaven, having also ¹⁵ sharp sickle.

¹⁹ And the angel thrust in his sharp sickle on the earth, and cut down the vines of the vineyard of the earth, and cast them into that great wine-press of the wrath of God.

²⁰ And the wine-press was trodden without the city, ²¹ and blood came out of the wine-press unto the horse bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.

CHAP. XV.

¹ The seven angels having the seven last plagues. ³ They that conquered the beast, praise God. ⁶ To the seven angels, ⁷ seven vials full of God's wrath are delivered.

horrible wars have been kindled in the world! how much human flesh hath been thrown to the earth by this divine reaping! how much blood (alas for woe) hath overflowed for these hundred years! almost! all histories do cry out, and this our age (if ever before) is now in horror by reason of the rage of that sickle which Antichrist calleth for. In this place is the first type that is of the harvest.

¹² Declaring his merceness by his colour, like unto that which is in the white or milky circle of heaven.

¹³ As one that shall reign from God, and occupy the place of Christ in this miserable execution.

¹⁵ That is, ¹⁶ most fit and commodious instrument of execution, destroying all by hewing and thrusting through: for who may stand against God?

¹⁷ Christ giveth a commandment in this verse, and the angel executeth it in the next verse.

¹⁴ The other type (as I said verse 14.) is the vintage: the manner whereof is one with that which went before; if thou except this, that the grape-gathering is more exact in seeking out every thing than is the harvest labour. This is therefore a more grievous judgment, both because it succeedeth the other, and because it is understood to be executed with great diligence.

¹⁵ That is, overflowed very deep, and very far and wide: the speech is hyperbolic or excessive, to signify the greatness of the slaughter. And these be those pleasant fruits forsooth of the contempt of Christ, and desiring of Antichrist rather than him, which the miserable, mad, and blind world doth at this time reap.

² Of which chapter 8, 9. in pouring forth the plagues of the world: for even these plagues do for the most part agree with those.

⁴ This part of the vision alludeth unto the sea, or large vessel of brass, in which the priests washed themselves in the entrance of the temple: for in the entrance of the heavenly temple (as it is called verse 5.) is said to have

A. D. 96. AND I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven ⁴ angels, having the seven last plagues: for by them is fulfilled the wrath of God.

² And I saw ⁴ as it were ⁵ glassy sea, mingled with fire, and ⁶ them that had gotten victory of the beast, and of his image, and of his mark, and of the number of his name, ⁷ stand at the glassy sea, having the harps of God.

³ And they sung ⁷ the song of Moses the ⁸ servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, ⁹ Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty: ¹⁰ just and true are thy ¹¹ ways, King of saints.

⁴ * Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name! for thou only art holy, and all nations shall come and worship before thee: for thy judgments are made manifest.

⁵ ⁹ And after that, I looked, and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of testimony was open in heaven.

⁶ And the seven angels came out of the temple, which had the ¹⁰ seven plagues, clothed in ¹¹ pure and bright linen, and having their breasts ¹² girded with golden girdles.

⁷ And one of the ¹³ four beasts gave unto the seven angels seven golden vials full of the wrath of God, which liveth for evermore.

⁸ And the temple was full of the smoke of the glory of God and of his power, ¹⁴ and no man was able to enter into the temple, till the seven plagues of the seven angels were fulfilled.

been a sea of glass, most lightome and clear unto the commodity of choice mixed with fire, that is, ¹¹ containing the treasury of the judgments of God, which he bringeth forth and dispenseth according to his own pleasure: for out of the former the priests were cleansed of old: and out of this the ungodly are destroyed now, chap. 46.

⁵ That is, the godly martyrs of Christ, who shall not give place even in miracles unto that beast: of these see before, chap. 13. 17. and 14. 9, 10.

⁶ Glorifying God, from the particular observation of the weapons and instruments of God's wrath, floating in the sea of glass.

⁷ That song of triumph, which is in Exod. 15. 2.

⁸ So is Moses called for honour's sake, ¹¹ it is set forth, Deut. 34. 10.

⁹ This song hath two parts: one ¹⁰ confession, both particular, in this verse, and general, in the beginning of the next verse: another, a narration of causes belonging to the confession, whereof one kind is eternal in itself, and most present unto the godly, in that God is both holy, and alone God: another kind is future, and to come, in that the elect taken out of the Gentiles (that is, out of the wicked ones and unbelieving, as chap. 11. 2.) were to be brought unto the same state of happiness, by the magnificency of the judgment of God, in the next verse.

¹¹ Thy doings.

² The second part of the narration (as was noted verse 2.) wherein first the authority of the whole argument and matter thereof is figured, by ³ fore-running type of ⁴ temple opened in heaven, as chap. 11. 19. namely, that all those things are divine and of God, that proceed from thence, in this verse. Secondly, the administrators ⁵ executors come forth out of the temple, verse 6. Thirdly, they are furnished with instruments of the judgments of God, and weapons fit for the manner of the same judgments, ver. 7. Finally, they ⁶ confirmed by testimony of the visible glory of God, in the last verse. A like testimony whereunto was exhibited of old in the law, Exod. 40. 34.

¹⁰ That is, commandments to inflict those seven plagues. Here is the figure called Metonymia.

¹¹ Which was in old time a sign of the kingly or princely dignity.

¹² This girding was ¹³ sign of diligence, and the girdle of gold was a sign of sincerity and trustiness, in taking in charge the commandments of God.

¹³ Of these before, chap. 4. 7.

¹⁴ None of those seven angels might return, till he had performed fully the charge committed unto him, according to the decree of God.

2 and 17 The angels pour out the seven vials of God's wrath given unto them, and so divers plagues arise in the world, 18 to terrify the wicked, 19 and the inhabitants of the great city.

AND I heard a great voice out of the temple, saying to the seven angels, Go your ways, and pour out the seven vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.

2 And the first went and poured out his vial upon the earth: and there fell a noisome and a grievous sore upon the men which had the mark of the beast, and upon them which worshipped his image.

3 And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea, and it became as the blood of a dead man: and every living thing died in the sea.

4 And the third angel poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of waters, and they became blood.

5 And I heard the angel of the waters say, Lord, Thou art just, which art, and which wast: and holy, because thou hast judged these things.

6 For they shed the blood of the saints and prophets, and therefore hast thou given them blood to drink: for they are worthy.

7 And I heard another out of the sanctuary say, Even so, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments. A. D. 96.

8 And the fourth angel poured out his vial on the sun, and it was given to him to torment men with the heat of fire,

9 And men boiled in great heat, and blasphemed the name of God, which hath power over these plagues, and they repented not to give him glory.

10 And the fifth angel poured out his vial upon the throne of the beast, and his kingdom waxed dark, and they gnawed their tongues for sorrow, 11 And blasphemed the God of heaven for their pains, and for their sores, and repented not of their works.

12 And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates, and the water thereof dried up, that the way of the kings of the East should be prepared.

13 And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of that dragon, and out of the mouth of that beast, and out of the mouth of that false prophet.

14 For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, to go unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.

15 (* Behold, I come a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk nakedly, and men see his filthiness)

16 And

* Ch. 3. 3.
Matt. 24. 44.
Luke 12. 39.

5. In the former chapter was set down the preparation unto the work of God: here is delivered the execution thereof. And in this discourse of the execution is a general commandment in this verse; then a particular recital in order of the execution done by every of the seven angels; in the rest of the chapter. This special execution against Antichrist and his crew doth in manner agree unto that which was generally done upon the whole world, chap. 8. and 9, and belongeth (if my conjecture fail me not) unto the same time. Yet herein they do differ one from another, that this was particularly effected upon the princes and ring-leaders of the wickedness of the world; the other generally against the whole world being wicked. And therefore these judgments are figured more grievous than those.

2 The history of the first angel, whose plague upon the earth is described almost in the same words with that sixth plague of the Egyptians, Exod. 9. 9. But it doth signify a spiritual ulcer, and that torture or butchery of conscience; seared with an hot iron, which accuseth the ungodly within, and both by truth of the word (the light whereof God hath so long shewed forth) and by bitterness stirreth up and forceth out the sword of God's wrath.

3 See chap. 13. 16.

4 The history of the second angel, who troubleth and molesteth the seas, that he may stir up the conscience of sleeping in their wickedness, see chap. 8. 8.

5 It was turned into rotten and filthy blood, such as is in dead bodies.

6 The story of the third angel striking the rivers in this verse, who proclaiming the justice of God, commendeth the same by a most grave comparison of the sins of men with the punishment of God: which is common to this place, and that which went before. Wherefore also this praising is attributed to the angel of the waters, a name common to the second and third angels, according both of them are said to be sent against the waters, albeit the one of the sea, the other of the rivers, in two verses.

7 A confirmation of the praise foregoing, out of the sanctuary of God, whether immediately by Christ, or by some one of his angels, for Christ also is called another angel, chap. 7. 2, 3, 8. and 12. 1.

8 The story of the fourth angel who throweth the plague upon the heaven and upon the sun, of which, Luke 21. 26. the effects whereof are noted two: the peculiar, that it shall scorch with heat in this verse; the other proceeding accidentally from the former, that their fury shall so much the more be enraged against God in the next verse, when yet (O wonderful mercy and patience of God!)

all other creatures are first stricken often and grievously by the hand of God before mankind, by whom he is provoked: as the things foregoing do declare.

9 The story of the fifth angel, who striketh the kingdom of the beast with two plagues, abroad with darkness, within with bites and dolours most grievous, throughout his whole kingdom, that thereby he might wound the conscience of the wicked, and punish that most perverse obstinacy of the idolaters: whereof arose perturbation, and thence a furious indignation and desperate madness, raging against God and hurtful unto itself.

10 The story of the sixth angel, divided into his act, and the event thereof. The act is, that the angel did cast out of his mouth the plague of a most glowing heat, wherewith even the greatest floods, and which most were wont to swell and overflow (as Euphrates) were dried up, by the counsel of God in this verse. The event is, that the madness wherewith the wicked are enraged, that they may scorn the judgments of God, and abuse them furiously to serve their own turn, and to the executing of their own wicked outrage.

11 The bond of the spiritual Babylon, and to the fortress of the same, chap. 9. 14.

12 So the church of the ungodly, and kingdom of the beast, is said to be left naked, all the defences thereof in which they put their trust, being taken away from it.

13 That is, that even they which dwell further off, may with more commodity make haste unto that sacrifice which the Lord hath appointed.

14 That is, every of them bent their whole force, and conspired that by wonders, word, and work, they might bring into the same destruction, all kings, princes, and potentates of the world, cursedly bewitched of them by their spirits, and teachers of the vanity and impurity of the beast that committed fornication with the kings of the earth. And this is a right description of our times.

15 Croaking with all importunity, and continually day and night provoking and calling forth to arms, as the trumpets and furies of war, as is declared in the next verse.

16 That is, the devil, chap. 11. 5.

17 Whereof chap. 13. 1.

18 That is, of that other beast, of which chap. 13. 11. for is he called also, chap. 19. 20. and 20. 10.

19 A parenthesis for admonition, in which God warneth his holy servants, who rest in the expectation of Christ, always to address their minds unto his coming, and to look unto themselves; that they be shamefully made naked and circumvented of these unclean spirits, and so they be miserably unprepared at the coming of the Lord, so Matt. 4. 29. and 25. 13.

A. D. 5-- 16 And they gathered them together into a place called in Hebrew, ²² Armageddon.

17 ⁶ And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the ²² air: and there came a loud voice out of the temple of heaven from ²² the throne, saying, ²² It is done.

18 ⁶ And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings, and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, even so mighty an earthquake.

19 And the great city was divided into three parts: and the cities ²² of the nations fell: and that great ²² Babylon came in remembrance before God, ²² to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath.

20 And every isle fled away, and the mountains ²² were not ²² found.

21 And there fell ²² great hail, like ²² talents, out of heaven upon the men, and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail: for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

CHAP. XVII.

1 That great whore is described, 2 with whom the ²² Namely, the angel, who holily, according to the commandment of God, was to do sacrifice: notwithstanding that the impure spirits do the same wickedly, as servants, not unto God, but unto the beast that hath seven heads.

²² That is (to say nothing of other expositions) the mountain itself, or mountain places of Megiddon. Now it is certain by the holy scriptures, that Megiddon is a city and territory in the tribe of Manasse, bordering upon Issachar and Acher, and was made famous by that lamentable overthrow of king Josias, whereof ²² Kings 22. 30. and 2 Chron. 35. 22. and Zach. 12. 11. In this mountain country God saith by figure, or type, that the kings of the people which serve the beast, shall meet together: because the Gentiles did always cast that lamentable overthrow in the teeth of the church of the Jews, unto their great reproach: and therefore were persuaded that that place should be most fortunate unto them (as they speak) and unfortunate unto the godly. But God here pronounceth, that the reproach of the church, and confidence of the ungodly, shall by himself be taken away, in the self-same place where the nations persuaded themselves they should mightily exult and triumph against God and his church.

²² The story of the seventh angel unto the end of the chapter, in which first is shewed, by sign and speech, the argument of this plague, in this verse, and then is declared the execution thereof in the verses following.

²² From whence he might move the heaven above, and the earth beneath.

²² That is, from him that sitteth on the throne, by the figure called Meronymia.

²² That is, Babylon is undone, as is shewed verse 19. and in the chapters following. For the first onset (as I might say) of this denunciation is described in this chapter: and the last, containing a perfect victory, is described in those that follow.

²² Now is declared the execution (as is said in verse 27.) and the thing that shall last come to pass in heaven and in earth, before the overthrow of the beast of Babylon: both generally, verse 18. and particularly in the cursed city, and such as have any familiarity therewith, in the three last verses.

²² The seat or standing place of Antichrist.

²² Of all such as cleave unto Antichrist, and fight against Christ.

²² That harlot, of whom in the next chapter following. Now this phrase, ²² to come into remembrance, ²² is, after the common use of the Hebrew speech, borrowed from men, and attributed unto God.

²² That is, were seen no more, or were ²² more extant. A borrowed Hebraism.

²² Appeared not, which the Hebrews utter after this sort, were not, Gen 5. 24.

²² The manner of the particular execution, most evidently testifying the wrath of God by the original and greatness thereof: the event thereof is the same with that which is in chap. 9. 13. and that which hath been mentioned in this chapter, from the execution of the fourth angel of the earth committed fornication. 6 She is drunken with the blood of saints. 7 The mystery of the woman, and the beast that carried her, expounded. 11 Their destruction. 14 The Lamb's victory.

A. D. 56.

THEN there came one of the seven angels which had the seven vials, and talked with me, saying unto me, Come: I will shew thee the damnation of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters,

2 With whom have committed fornication the kings of the earth, and the inhabitants of the earth are drunken with the wine of her fornication.

3 So he carried me away into the wilderness in the Spirit, and I saw a woman sit upon a scarlet-coloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, which had seven heads and ten horns.

4 And the woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious stones, and pearls, and had a cup of gold in her hand full of abomination, and filthiness of her fornication.

5 And hitherto, that is to say, an incorrigible pertinacy of the world in their rebellion, and an heart that cannot repent, verse 9 and 11.

²² The state of the church militant being declared, now followeth the state of the church overcoming, and getting victory, as I shewed before in the beginning of the tenth chapter. This state is set forth in four chapters. As in the place foregoing I noted, that in that history the order of time was not always exactly observed, so the same is ²² be understood in this history, that it is distinguished according to the persons of which it treateth, and that in the several stories of the persons is severally observed in the time thereof. For first is delivered the story of Babylon destroyed in this and the next chapter (for this Babylon, out of all doubt, shall perish before the two beasts and the dragon.) Secondly, is delivered the destruction of both the two beasts, chap. 19. And lastly of the dragon, chap. 18. In the story of the spiritual Babylon are distinctly set forth the state thereof in this chapter, and the overthrow done from God, chap. 18. In this verse, and that which followeth, is a transition or passage unto the first argument, consisting of the particular calling of the prophet (as often heretofore) and ²² general proposition.

²² That is, that damnable harlot, by a figure, called hyppalage. For Saint John as yet had not seen her. Although another interpretation may be borne, yet I like this better.

²² The sentence that is pronounced against this harlot.

²² Henceforth is propounded the type of Babylon, and the state thereof, in four verses. After, ²² declaration of the type, in the rest of this chapter. In the type are described two things: the beast (of whom chapter 13) in the third verse, and the woman that sitteth upon the beast, ver.

4. 5. 6. The beast in process of time hath gotten somewhat more than was expressed in the former vision. First, in that it is not read before, that he ²² apparelled in scarlet, a robe imperial, and of triumph. Secondly, in that that this is full of ²² of blasphemy: the other carried the name of blasphemy only in his heads. So God did teach that this beast is much increased in impiety and injustice, and doth in this last age triumph in both these more insolently and proudly than ever before.

⁶ A scarlet colour, that is, with a red and purple garment: and surely it was not without cause that the Romish clergy were so much delighted with this colour.

²² That harlot, the spiritual Babylon, which ²² Rome. She is described by her attire, profession, and deeds.

⁶ In attire most glorious, triumphant, most rich, and most gorgeous.

⁶ In profession, the nourisher of all, in this verse, and teaching her mysteries unto all, verse 5. setting forth all things most magnificently: but indeed most perniciously besotting miserable men with her cup, and bringing upon them ²² deadly giddiness.

5 ⁷ And in her forehead was a name written, A mystery, ⁸ that great Babylon, that mother of whoredoms and abominations of the earth.

6 ⁹ And I saw the woman drunken with the blood of saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus, ¹⁰ and when I saw her, I wondered with great marvel.

7 ¹¹ Then the angel said unto me, Wherefore marvellest thou? I will shew thee the mystery of that woman, and of that beast that beareth her, which hath seven heads and ten horns.

8 ¹² The beast that thou hast seen, ¹³ was, and is not, and ¹⁴ shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and shall go into perdition, and they that dwell on the earth shall wonder (whose names

⁷ Deceiving with the title of religion, and publick inscription of mystery: which the beast in times past did not bear.

⁸ An exposition, in which Saint John declareth what manner of woman this is.

⁹ In manner of deeds: She is red with blood, and sheddeth it most licentiously, and therefore is coloured with the blood of the saints: as, on the contrary part, Christ is set forth imbrued with the blood of his enemies, Isa. 63. 1.

¹⁰ A passage unto the second part of this chapter, by occasion given of Saint John, as the words of the angel do shew in the next verse.

¹¹ The second part or place, as I said, verse 1. The narration of the vision promised in the verse following. Now there is delivered first an narration of the beast and his story, unto the 14th verse. After, of the harlot, unto the end of the chapter.

¹² The story of the beast hath a triple description of him. The first is a distinction of this beast from all that ever have been at any time: which distinction is contained in this verse. The second is a delineation or a painting out of the beast by things present, by which he might even at that time be known of the godly: and this delineation is according to his heads, verse 12, 13, 14. This beast is that empire of Rome, of which I spake chap. 13. 11. according to the mutations and changes whereof, which then had already happened, the Holy Ghost hath distinguished and set out the same. The apostle distinguisheth this beast from all others in these words: "The beast which thou sawest, was, and is not." For so I expound the words of the apostle for the evidency sake, as I will further declare in the notes following.

¹³ The meaning is, that beast which thou sawest before, (chap. 13. 1.) and which yet thou hast now seen, was (was, I say) even from Julius Cæsar in respect of beginning, rising up, station, glory, dominion, manner, and stock: from the house of Julius: and yet is not now the same, if they look unto the house and stock: for the dominion of this family was translated unto another, after the death of Nero; from that other unto a third; from a third unto a fourth; and so forth, was varied and altered by innumerable changes. Finally, the empire is one, as it were one beast: but exceedingly varied by kindreds, families, and persons. It was therefore, saith Saint John, in the kindred or house of Julius: and now it is not in that kindred, but translated unto another.

¹⁴ As if he should say, Also this same that is, shall shortly not be: but shall ascend out of the depth, or out of the sea (as was said, chap. 13. 1.) that is, shall be a new stock from amongst the nations without difference, and shall in the same state go unto destruction, or run and perish: and so shall successively new princes or emperors come and go, arise and fall, the body of the beast remaining still, but tossed with so many and often alterations as no man can but marvel that this beast was able to stand and hold it out, in so many mutations; verily, no empire that ever was tossed with so many changes, and it were with so many tempests of the sea, ever continued so long.

¹⁵ That is, as many have not learned the providence of God, according to the faith of the saints, shall marvel at these grievous and often changes: when they shall consider the self same beast, which is the Roman empire, have been, and not be, and be, and still molested with perpetual mutation, and yet in the same to stand and continue. This, in mine opinion, is the most simple exposition of this place confirmed by the event of the things themselves. Although the last change also, by which the empire, that before was civil, became ecclesiastical, is not obscurely signified in these words, of which two, the first exercised cruelty upon the bodies of the saints: the other also upon their souls: the first by human order and policy, the other under the colour of the law of God, and of religion, ragged and imbrued itself with the blood of the godly.

are not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world) ¹⁵ when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is.

9 ¹⁶ Here is the mind that hath wisdom. The seven heads ¹⁷ are seven mountains, whereon the woman sitteth: ¹⁸ they are also seven kings.

10 ¹⁹ Five are fallen, ²⁰ and one is, ²¹ and another is not yet come: and when he cometh, he must continue a short space.

11 ²² And the beast that was, and is not, is even ²³ the eighth, and is ²⁴ one of the seven, ²⁵ and shall go into destruction.

4 M

12 And

¹⁶ An exhortation, preparing unto audience by the same argument, with that of Christ: "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear." Wherefore for mine own part, I had rather read in this place, "Let there be here a mind, &c." So the angel passeth fully unto the second place of this description.

¹⁷ Very children know what the seven-hilled city is, which is so much spoken of, and whereof Virgil thus reporteth; "And compasseth seven towers in one wall:" that city it is, that when John wrote these things, had rule over the kings of the earth. It was and is not, and yet it remaineth to this day, but it is declining unto destruction.

¹⁸ This is the painting-out of the beast by things present (as I said before) whereby St. John endeavoured to describe the same, that he might be both known of the godly in that age, and be further observed and marked of the posterity afterwards. This delineation hath one type, that is, his heads, but a double description or application of the type: one permanent, from the nature itself, the other changeable, by the working of men. The description permanent, is by the seven hills, in this verse, the other that flecteth, is from the seven kings, verse 10, 11. And here it is worthy to be observed, that one type hath sometimes two or more applications, seemeth good to the Holy Ghost to express, either one thing by divers types, or divers things by one type. So I noted before of the seven spirits, chap. 1. 4. Now this woman that sitteth upon seven hills, is the city of Rome, called in times past of the Grecians, ἑπτὰ ὄρη, i. e. of seven tops or crests, and of Varro septiceps, i. e. of her seven heads (as here) or seven heads, and of others, septemcollis, i. e. standing upon seven hills.

¹⁹ The beginning of these kings or emperors, is almost the same with the beginning of the church of Christ, which I shewed before, chap. 11. 1. Namely, from the year 25. after the passion of Christ, what time the temple and church of the Jews was overthrown. In which year it came to pass, by the providence of God, that that saying, "The beast was, and is not," was fulfilled before the destruction of the Jews, immediately following, came to pass. That was the year from the building of the city of Rome 809, from which year Saint John both numbered the emperors which hitherto had been, when he wrote these things, and foretelleth of two others next to come: and that with this purpose, that when this particular prediction or foretelling of things to come should take effect, the truth of all other predictions in the church might be the more confirmed. Which sign God of old mentioned in the law, Deut. 18. and Jeremiah confirmeth, chap. 28. 8.

²⁰ Whose names are these: the first, Servius Sulpitius Galba, who was the seventh emperor of the people of Rome; the second, Marcus Salvius Otho; the third, Aulus Vitellius; the fourth, Titus Flavius Vespasianus; the fifth, Titus Vespasianus, his son, of his own name.

Flavius Domitian, son of the first Vespasian. For in the latter end of his days Saint John wrote these things, witnesseth Irenæus, lib. 5. adversus hæreses.

²¹ Nerva: the empire being translated from the family of Flavius. This man reigned only one year, four months, and nine days, the history writers do tell.

²² This is spoken by the figure Synecdochæ, much as to say, that head of the beast, which was, and is not, because it is cut off, and Nerva in so short time extinguished. How many heads there were, so many beasts there seemed to be in one. See the like speech in the third verse of the thirteenth chapter.

²³ Nerva Trajanus, who himself in divers respects is called here the seventh and the eighth.

²⁴ Though in number and order of succession he be the eighth, yet he is reckoned together with one of these heads, because Nerva and he were one head. For this man obtained authority together with Nerva, and was consul with him, when Nerva left his life.

²⁵ Namely,

A. D. 96. 12 ²² And the ten horns, which thou sawest, are ²³ ten kings, which yet have not received a kingdom, but shall receive power, as kings, ²⁴ at one hour, with the beast.

13 ²⁵ These have one mind, and shall give their power and authority unto the beast.

14 These shall fight with the ²⁶ Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: ²⁷ for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are on his side, called, and chosen, and faithful.

15 ²⁸ And he said unto me, The waters which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, ²⁹ are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues.

16 And the ten ³⁰ horns which thou sawest upon the beast, are they that shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire.

17 ³¹ For God hath put in their hearts to fulfil his will, and to do with one consent for to give their kingdom unto the beast, until the words of God be fulfilled.

18 And that woman which thou sawest, is that ³² great city which reigneth over the kings of the earth.

C H A P. XVIII.

2 The terrible destruction of Babylon is set out. 11.

¹ Namely, to molest with persecutions the churches of Christ, as the histories do accord, and I have briefly noted chap. 2. 10.

² The third place of this description, as I said verse 8 is a prophetic prediction of things to come, which the beast should do, as in the words following Saint John doth not obscurely signify, saying, "Which have not yet received the kingdom, &c." For there is an Antithesis or opposition between the ten kings and those that went before. And first, the persons are described in this verse, then their deeds in the two verses following.

³ That is, arising with their kingdoms out of the Roman heath: at such times as that political empire began by the craft of the Popes greatly to fall.

⁴ Namely, with that second beast, whom we called before a false prophet, which beast, ascending out of the earth, got unto himself all the authority and power of the first beast, and exerciseth the same before his face, as was said, chapter 14. 11, 12. For when the political empire of the West began to grow downwards, these both arose: those ten kings, and the second beast took the opportunity offered, to usurp unto himself all the power of the former beast. These kings long ago many have numbered, and described to be ten, and a great part of the events plainly testifyeth the same in this our age.

⁵ That is, by consent and agreement, that they may conspire with the beast, and depend upon his beck. Their story is divided into three parts, counsels, acts, and events. The counsels some of them consist in communicating judgments and afflictions: and some in communicating of power, which they are said to have given unto this beast, in this verse.

⁶ With Christ and his church, the reason following doth declare, and here are mentioned the facts and events, which followed for Christ his sake, and for the grace of God the Father towards those that are called elect, and his faithful ones in Christ.

⁷ This is the other member of the narration, as I said, verse 7. belonging unto the harlot, shewed in the vision, verse 3. In this history of the harlot these three things are distinctly propounded: what is her magnificency, in this verse, what is her fall, and by whom it shall happen unto her, in the two verses following: and lastly, who that harlot is, in the last verse. This place, which by order of nature should have been the first, is therefore made the last, because it was more fit to be joined with the next chapter.

⁸ That is, unconstant and variable as are the waters. Upon this foundation sitteth this harlot as queen; a vain person, upon that which is vain.

¹⁰ A reason rendered from the chief efficient cause, which is the providence of God, by which alone Saint John by inversion of order affirmeth to have come to pass, both that 16, 18 The merchants of the earth, who were enriched with the pomp and luxuriousness of it, weep and wail: 20 But all the elect rejoice for that just vengeance of God.

A. D. 96.

AND ¹ after these things, I saw another ² angel come down from heaven, having great power, so that the earth was lightened with his glory.

2 And he cried out mightily with a loud voice, ³ saying, * It is fallen, it is fallen, Babylon ⁴ that great city, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of all foul spirits, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird.

3 For all nations have drunken of ⁵ wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich of the abundance of her pleasures.

4 ⁶ And I heard another voice from heaven say, ⁷ Go out of her, my people, that ye ⁸ be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues.

5 For her sins are ⁹ come up into heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities.

6 Reward

the kings should execute upon the harlot that which pleased God, and which he declared in the verse next before going: and also that by one consent and counsel, they should give their kingdom unto the beast, &c. verse 13, 14. for as these being blinded have before depended upon the beck of the beast that listeth up the harlot, so it is said, that afterward it shall come to pass, that they shall turn back, and shall fall away from her, when their hearts shall be turned into better state by the grace and mercy of God.

¹⁰ That is, Rome, that great city, or only city (as Justinian calleth it) the king and head whereof was then the Emperor, but now the Pope, since that the condition of the beast was changed.

¹¹ The second place (as I said before, chap. 17. 1.) of the history of Babylon, is of the woful fall and ruin of that whore of Babylon. This historical prediction concerning her is threefold. The first a plain and simple foretelling of her ruin, in three verses. The second a figurative prediction by the circumstances, thence unto the 20th verse. The third a confirmation of the same by sign or wonder, unto the end of the chapter.

¹² Either Christ, the eternal word of God the Father (as often elsewhere) or a created angel, and one deputed unto this service, but thoroughly furnished with greatness of power, and with light of glory, the ensign of power.

¹⁵ Two circumstances going before the ruin, are commanded in this place: the first is, that the godly depart out of Babylon: as I mentioned, chap. 12. to have been done in time past, before the destruction of Jerusalem: this charge is given here, and in the next verse. The other is, that every one of them occupy themselves in their own place in executing the judgment of God, as it was commanded the Levites of old, Exod. 32. 27. and that they sanctify their hands unto the Lord, verse 6, 7, 8.

¹⁶ Of this commandment there are two causes: to avoid the contagion of sin, and to shun the participation of those punishments that belong thereunto.

¹⁷ He useth a word which signifieth the following of sins one after another, and rising one of another in such sort, that they grew at length to such an heap, that they came up even to heaven.

6 ⁷ Reward her, even ■ she hath rewarded you, and give her double according to her works: and in the cup that she hath filled to you, fill her the double.

7 Inasmuch ■ she glorified herself, and lived in pleasure, so much give ye to her torment and sorrow: for she saith ■ in her heart, I sit being a queen, and am ^c no widow, and shall ^d see no mourning.

■ Therefore shall her plagues come at ^e one day, death, and sorrow, and famine, and she shall be burnt with fire: for that God which condemneth her, is a strong Lord.

9 And ■ the kings of the earth shall bewail her, and lament for her, which have committed fornication, and lived in pleasure with her, when they shall see that smoke of that her burning.

10 And shall stand afar off for fear of her torment, saying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city: for in one hour is thy judgment come.

11 ■ And the merchants of the earth shall weep and wail over her: for no man buyeth their ware any more.

12 The ware of gold, and silver, and of precious stones, and of pearls, and of fine linen, and of purple, and of silk, and of scarlet, and of all manner of thyne wood, and of all vessels of ivory, and of all vessels of most precious wood, and of brass, and of iron, and of marble,

13 And of cinnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and chariots, and servants, and souls of men.

14 (¹⁰ And the ^f apples that thy soul lusted after, are departed from thee, and all things which were fat and excellent, are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more)

15 The merchants of these things which were waxed rich, shall stand afar off from her, for fear of her torment, weeping and wailing,

16 And saying, Alas, alas, that great city that was clothed in fine linen and purple and scarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious stones, and pearls.

17 ¹¹ For in one hour so great riches are come

⁷ The provocation of the godly, and the commandment of executing the judgments of God, stand upon three causes, which are here expressed: the unjust wickedness of the whore of Babylon, in this verse; her cursed pride, opposing itself against God, which is the fountain of all evil actions, verse 7. and her most just damnation by the sentence of God, verse 8.

■ With herself.

■ I ■ full of people, and mighty.

^c I shall taste of none.

■ Shortly, and at ■ instant.

⁸ The circumstances following the fall of Babylon, or the consequent thereof (as I distinguished them verse 4.) are two: namely, the lamentation of the wicked, ■ the 19th verse, and the rejoicing of the godly, verse 20. This most sorrowful lamentation, according ■ the persons of them that lament, hath three members: the first whereof is, the mourning of the kings and mighty ■ of the earth, in two verses: the second is, the lamentation of the merchants that traffick by land, unto the 19th verse: The third is, the wailing of those that merchandise by sea, verse 16, 17, 18. In every of those the cause and ■ of their mourning is described in order, according to the condition of those that mourn, with observation of that which best agreeth unto them.

■ The lamentation of those that trade by land, ■ I distinguished immediately before.

¹⁰ An apostrophe, or turning of the speech by imitation: used for more vehemence, as if those merchants, after the manner of mourners, should in passionate speech speak unto Babylon, though now utterly fallen and over-to desolation. And every ship-master, and all the people that occupy ships, and ship-men, and whosoever traffick on the sea, shall stand afar off, 18 And cry, when they see that smoke of that her burning, saying, What city was like unto this great city!

19 And they shall cast dust on their heads, and cry, weeping, and wailing, and say, Alas, alas, that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships on the sea by her costliness: for in one hour she is made desolate.

20 ¹² O heaven, rejoice of her, and ye holy apostles and prophets: for God hath punished her, to be revenged on her for your sakes.

21 ¹³ Then the mighty angel took up ■ stone like ■ great millstone, ^{*} and cast it into the sea, ^{Jer. 51.63.} saying, With such violence shall that great city Babylon be cast, and shall be found no more.

22 ¹⁴ And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters, shall be heard no more in thee: and no craftsman, of whatsoever craft be he, shall be found any more in thee: and the sound of ■ millstone shall be heard no more in thee.

23 And the light of a candle shall shine no more in thee: and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth, and with thine enchantment were deceived all nations.

24 And in her was found the ¹⁵ blood of the prophets, ¹⁶ and of the saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth.

C H A P. XIX.

¹ The heavenly company praise God for avenging the blood of his servants on the whore. ⁹ They are written blessed, that are called to the Lamb's supper. ¹⁰ The angel will not be worshipped. ¹¹ The mighty King of kings appeareth from heaven. ¹⁹ The battle, ²⁰ wherein the beast is taken, ²¹ and cast into the burning lake.

AND ¹ after these things I heard ■ great voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying, thrown. So Isaiah 12. 9. and in many other places.

^f By this is meant that season which is next before the fall of the leaf, at what season fruits ripen, and the word signifieth such fruits as are longed for.

¹¹ The manner of mourning used by them that trade by sea.

¹² The other consequent upon the other ruin of Babylon, is the exultation or rejoicing of the godly in heaven and in earth, as was noted verse 9.

¹³ The third prediction, as I said verse 1. standing of a sign, and the interpretation thereof: the interpretation thereof is in two sorts, first, by a simple propounding of the thing itself, in this verse, and then by declaration of the events, in the verses following.

¹⁴ The events ■ two: the ■ of them opposite unto the other, for amplification sake. There shall be, saith he, in Babylon, no mirth nor joy ■ all, in this and the next verse, but all heavy and lamentable things, from the bloody slaughters of the righteous, and the vengeance of God coming upon it for the same.

¹⁵ That is shed by bloody massacres, and calling for vengeance.

¹⁶ That is, proved and found out, ■ if God had appointed a just inquiry concerning ■ the impiety, unnaturalness, and injustice of these men.

¹⁷ This chapter hath in sum ■ parts: ■ transitory, or of passage unto the things that follow, unto the tenth verse: another historical, of the victory of Christ gotten against both the beasts, unto the end of the chapter: which I said was the second history of this argument, chap. 17. 1.

² For true and righteous ³ are his judgments: for he hath condemned that great whore which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his servants, ⁴ sent by her hand.

³ And again they said, ⁵ Hallelujah: and that her smoke rose up for evermore.

⁴ And the four and twenty elders, and the four beasts fell down, and worshipped God that sat on the throne, saying, Amen, Hallelujah.

⁵ ⁶ Then a voice came out of the ⁷ throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his servants, and ye that fear him, both small and great.

⁶ And I heard ⁸ like a voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of strong thunderings, saying, Hallelujah: for the Lord that God that Almighty one, ⁹ had reigned.

⁷ Let us be glad and rejoice, and give glory to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath ¹⁰ made herself ready.

⁸ And to her was granted, that she should be arrayed with ¹¹ pure fine linen and shining: for the fine ¹² linen is the ¹³ righteousness of saints.

⁹ ¹⁴ Then he said unto me, Write, ¹⁵ Blessed are they which are called unto the Lamb's supper. And he said unto me, Their words of God are true.

¹⁰ ¹⁶ And I fell before his feet, ¹⁷ to worship him: but he said unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow servant, and one of thy brethren,

*Ps. 2. 9.

*Ch. 19. 14. 2 Tim. 6. 17.

The transition hath two places, one of praising God for the overthrow done unto Babylon, in four verses: and another likewise of praise and prophetic, for the coming of Christ unto his kingdom, and his most royal marriage with his church, thence unto the tenth verse. The former praise hath three branches, distinguished after the ancient manner of those that sing psalms, that is, an invitation or provocation, in two verses: responses, a response or answer in the third verse: and verses, a close or joining together in harmony: all which I thought good of purpose to distinguish in this place, lest any man should with Porphyrius, or other like dogs, object unto Saint John, or the heavenly church, a childish and idle repetition of speech.

- Praise the Lord.
- ² The proposition of praise, with exhortation, in this verse, and the cause thereof, in the next verse.
- ³ The song of the anaphora or response, containing an amplification of the praise of God, from the perpetual and most certain testimony of his divine judgment, as was done at Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen. 19.
- ⁴ The second place of praise, as I said, verse 1. which first is commanded from God in this verse: and then is in more ample manner pronounced of the creatures, both because they see that kingdom of Christ to come, which most they desire, verse 6. also because they see that the church is called thence to be brought home into the house of her husband by holy marriage, unto the fellowship of his kingdom, verse 7. 8. Wherefore Saint John is commanded to write in a book the Epiphonema, or acclamation joined with a divine testimony, verse 9.
- ⁵ Out of the temple from God, 11. 19.
- ⁶ Without the temple ⁷ heaven.
- ⁷ Namely, unto that holy marriage, both herself in person in this verse, and also furnished of her spouse with marriage-gifts princely and divine, is adorned and prepared in the next verse.
- ⁸ As an ensign of kingly and priestly dignity: which dignity Christ bestoweth upon us, chap. 1. 6.
- ⁹ This is a gift given by the husband for marriage sake, and a most choice ornament which Christ bestoweth upon us, as upon his spouse.
- ¹⁰ Good works, which are lively testimonies of faith.
- ¹¹ Namely, the angel, as appeareth by the next verse.
- ¹² The particular history of this verse is brought in by occasion, and as it were besides the purpose, that St. John might make a public example of his own infirmity, and of the modest sanctimony of the angel, who both renounced for himself the divine honours, and recalled all the servants of God unto the worship of him alone: as also 22. 8.

- ² Which are commanded to bear witness of Jesus.
- ³ For Jesus is the mark that all the prophecies shoot at.
- ⁴ The second place of this chapter (as I said verse 1.) is of the victory gotten by Christ against both the beasts: in which first, Christ is described 11 one ready to fight, unto the sixteenth verse; then is shewed the battle to be begun, thence unto the eighteenth verse. Lastly, is set forth the victory, unto the end of the chapter. In this place do shine forth most excellent properties of Christ as our heavenly judge and revenger, according to his person, company, effects and names.
- ⁵ Properties belonging to his person, that he is heavenly, judge, faithful, true, just, in this verse, searching out all things, ruling over all, to be-searched out of none, verse 12. the triumpier, and the very essential word of God, verse 13.
- ⁶ The company or retinue of Christ, holy, innumerable, heavenly, judicial, royal, and pure.
- ⁷ The effects of Christ prepared unto battle, that with his mouth he striketh the Gentiles, ruleth and destroyeth.
- ⁸ The name agreeing unto Christ, according to the former properties, expressed after the manner of the Hebrews.
- ⁹ The second member, as I said verse 11. A reproachful calling forth of his enemies unto battle: in which not themselves (for why should they be called for h of the King of the world, or provoked being his subjects? for that were not comely) but in their hearing the birds of the air are called to eat their carcases.
- ¹⁰ That is, openly, and in sight of all, as Num. 25. 4. and 2 Sam. 12. 11.
- ¹¹ That is, through this inferior heaven, and which is nearer unto us: an Hebrew phrase.
- ¹² The third member (as was said verse 11.) of the victory obtained by Christ. Unto this appertaineth two things: his buckling with the least and his forces, in this verse: and the event most magnificent, described after the manner of men, in the verses following. All these things are plain.

A. D. 96. the earth, and their hosts gathered together to make battle against him that sat on the horse, and against his army.

20 But the beast ²¹ was taken, and with him that false prophet that wrought miracles before him, whereby he deceived them that received the beast's ²² mark, and them that worshipped his image. These both were alive cast into a lake of fire burning with brimstone.

21 And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sitteth upon the horse, which cometh out of his mouth, and all the fowls were filled full with their flesh,

C H A P. XX.

1 The angel 2 bindeth Satan for a thousand years. 8 Being loosed, he stirreth up Gog and Magog, that is, prey and open enemies against the saints, 11 but the vengeance of the Lord cutteth off their infidelity. 12 The books are opened, by which the dead are judged.

AND I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key ² of the bottomless pit, and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he took the dragon, that old serpent, which is the devil and Satan, and he bound him ³ a thousand years:

3 And cast him into the bottomless pit, and he shut him up, and sealed the door upon him, that he should deceive the people ⁴ no more, till the thousand years were fulfilled: for after that he must be loosed for ⁵ a little season.

²¹ Namely, that beast with seven heads, of which before chap. 13. 1. and 17. 3.

²² That is, that beast with two heads, of which 13. 11. Look more, chap. 16. 14.

¹ Now followeth the third place of the propheticall history, which is of the victory whereby Christ overcame the dragon, as I noted, chap. 7. 1. This place must necessarily be joined with the end of the twelfth chapter, and be applied unto the just understanding thereof. This chapter hath two parts, one of the dragon overcome, unto the tenth verse: the other of the resurrection and last judgment, unto the end of the chapter. The story of the dragon is double: First, of the first victory, after which he was bound by Christ, unto the sixth verse. The second is of the last victory, whereby he was thrown down into everlasting punishment, thence unto the sixteenth verse. This first history happened in the first time of the Christian church, when the dragon, thrown down from heaven by Christ, went about to molest the new birth of the church in the earth, chap. 12. 17, 18. For which cause I gave warning, that this story of the dragon must be annexed unto that place.

² That is, of hell, whither God threw down the angels which had sinned, and bound them in chains of darkness to be kept unto damnation, 1 Pet. 2. 4. Jude 6.

³ The first whereof (continuing this history with the end of the twelfth chapter) in the thirty-sixth year from the passion of Christ, when the church of the Jews being overthrown, Satan assayed to invade the Christian church gathered of the Gentiles, and to destroy part of her seed, chap. 12. 17. The thousandth year falleth precisely upon the times of that wicked Hildebrand, who was called Gregory VII. a most damnable necromancer and forcerer, whom Satan used as an instrument when he was loosed out of bonds, thenceforth to annoy the saints of God with most cruel persecutions, and the whole world with dissensions and most bloody wars: as Benno the cardinal reporteth at large. And this is the first victory gotten over the dragon in the earth.

⁴ Namely, with that public and violent deceit which he attempted before, chap. 12. and which after a thousand years (alack for woe!) he most mightily procured in the Christian world.

Which being once expired, the second battle and victory shall be, of which, ver. 7, 8.

A description of the common state of the church of Christ in earth, in that space of a thousand years, for which the devil was in bonds: in which first, the authority, life, and common honour of the godly is declared, ver. 4. Secondly, newness of life is preached unto others by the gospel, after that space, ver. 5. Finally, he concludeth with 4 ⁶ And I saw ^a seats: and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them, and I saw the souls of them that were ^b beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which ^c did not worship the beast, neither his image, neither had taken his mark upon their foreheads or on their hands: and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.

5 ¹² But the rest of the dead men ¹¹ shall not live again, until the thousand years be finished: this is the first resurrection.

6 Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: for on such the ¹² second death hath no power: but they shall be the priests of God and of Christ, ¹³ and shall reign with him a thousand years.

7 ¹⁴ And when the ¹⁵ thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison,

8 ¹⁶ And shall go out to deceive the people, which are in the four quarters of the earth: even ¹⁷ Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle, whose number is as the sand of the sea.

9 And they went up into the ^b plain of the earth, and they compassed the tents of the saints about, and the beloved city: but ¹⁷ fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

10 ¹³ And the devil that deceived them, was cast into a lake of fire and brimstone, where that beast and that false prophet are, and shall be tormented even day and night for evermore.

11 ¹⁹ And I saw a great ²² white throne, and pit. and, ver. 7.

^a For judgment was committed to them, as to members joined to the head: not that Christ's office was given over to them.

^b This was a type of the authority of the good and faithful servants of God in the church, taken from the manner of men.

^c Of the martyrs which suffered in those first times.

Of the martyrs which suffered after both the heats were now risen up, chap. 15. for there these things are expounded.

¹⁰ Who'ever shall lie dead in sin, and not know the truth of God.

¹¹ They shall not be renewed with that newness of the life by the enlightening of the gospel of the glory of Christ. For this is the first resurrection, by which the souls of the dead do rise from their death, in the second resurrection their bodies shall rise again.

¹² That whereby both body and soul, that is, the whole man, is added and delivered unto eternal death, see chap. 2. 11.

¹³ A return unto the intended history, by resuming the words which are in the end of the fourth verse.

¹⁴ The second history, of the latter victory of Christ, as was said ver. 1. In which are summarily described the work, overthrow, and eternal punishment of Satan.

¹⁵ Of which I spake, ver. 2. Then therefore shall be given unto him liberty to rage against the church, and to molest the saints for the sins of men: unto whom the faithful shall have associated themselves more than was meet, tasting with them of their impurity of doctrine and life.

¹⁶ The work, or act of Satan (which is the first member, as I distinguished in the verse foregoing) to deceive the whole world, even unto the uttermost nations thereof: to arm them against the people of God, in this verse; and to besiege and oppress the church, with his whole strength, in the verse following.

^b As if he said, Inasmuch that the whole face of the earth, how great soever it is, was filled.

¹⁷ The wrath of God, consuming the adversaries, and overthrowing their enterprises, Heb. 10. 27. And this is the second member mentioned ver. 7. the overthrow of Satan.

¹⁸ The third member, eternal destruction against those that are overcome: as I noted in the same place.

¹⁹ The second part of this chapter, in which is described the judge, in this verse, and the last judgment in the verse following.

²² That is, a tribunal-seat most prince-like and glorious: for so doth the Greek word also signify.

* Ezek. 39. 2.

10 And the sea and the earth, from whose face fled away both the earth and heaven, and their place was no more found.

11 And I saw the dead, both great and small, stand before God: and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged of these things which were written in the books, according to their works.

12 And the sea gave up her dead which were in her, and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.

13 And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire: this is the second death:

14 And whosoever was not found written in the book of life, was cast into the lake of fire.

CHAPTER XXI.

2 He describeth New Jerusalem descending from heaven. 9 The bride the Lamb's wife, 12 and the glorious building of the city, 19 garnished with precious stones, 22 whose temple the Lamb is.

AND I saw a new heaven, and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea.

2 And I John saw the holy city New Jerusalem come down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride trimmed for her husband.

3 And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them: and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and God himself shall be with them.

² That is, Christ, before whom, when he cometh unto judgment, heaven and earth shall perish for the greatness of his majesty. 2 Pet. 3. 7, 10, &c.

³ That is, Christ the judge, 2 Cor. 5. 10.

⁴ As it were his books of reckoning or accounts, that is, the testimony of our conscience, and of our works, which by no means can be avoided. This is spoken after the manner of men.

⁵ The book of the eternal decree of God, in which God the Father hath elected in Christ, according to the good pleasure of his will, those that shall be heirs of life. This also is spoken according to the manner of men.

⁶ This is a prevention, or an answer to an objection: for happily some man will say, But they are dead, whom the sea, death, and the grave, hath consumed, how shall they appear before the Judge? Saint John answereth, By resurrection from death, whereunto all things (howsoever repugnant) shall minister and serve at the commandment of God, as Dan. 12.

⁷ The last enemy which is death shall be abolished by Christ (that he may no more make any attempt against us) 1 Cor. 15. 16. and death shall feed upon the reprobate in hell for evermore, according to the righteous judgment of God, in the next verse.

⁸ Now followeth the second part of the history prophetic (as I said chapter 1. and 11. 1.) of the future estate of the church in heaven, after the last judgment, unto the fifth verse of the next chapter. In this are two things briefly declared: the situation, seat, or place thereof, verse 1. Then her state and condition, in the verses following. Before the state of the church described, is set down the state of the whole world, that there shall be a new heaven, and a new earth, as Isaiah 65. 7. and 66. 12. and 2 Peter 3. 13. and this is the seat or place of the church, in which righteousness shall dwell.

⁹ The state of this glorious church is first described generally unto the eighth verse, and then specially, and by parts, in the verses following. The general description consisteth in a vision, shewed afar off, verse 2, and in speech spoken from heaven. In the general these things are common, that the church is holy, new, the workmanship of God, heavenly, most glorious: the spouse of Christ, and partaker of his glory, in this verse.

¹⁰ The church is described by speech, first of an angel, in two verses, then of God himself, in four verses. The angel's speech describeth the glory of the church, by a most

4 And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes: and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, neither crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the first things are passed.

5 And he that sat upon the throne, said, Behold, I make all things new: and he said unto me, Write: for these words are faithful and true.

6 And he said unto me, It is done, I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end: I will give to him that is athirst, of the well of the water of life freely.

7 He that overcometh, shall inherit all things: and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

8 But the fearful, and the unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death.

9 And there came unto me one of the seven angels, which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come: I will shew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife.

10 And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and he shewed me that great city, that holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God,

11 Having the glory of God: and her shining was like unto a stone most precious, as a jasper stone, clear as chrystal,

12 And had a great wall and high, and had twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and the names written which are the twelve tribes of the children of Israel:

13 On familiar habitation of God therewith, by communication of all manner of good things according to the covenant, in this verse: and by removing or putting far away of all evil things, in the verse following.

⁴ In the speech of God himself describing the church, is, first, an exordium, or entrance, verse 5. Then followeth a magnificent description of the church, by the present and future good things of the same, in three verses following. In the exordium, God challengeth unto himself the restoring of all the creatures, of which verse 1. and witnesseth the calling of Saint John unto the writing of these things, in this verse.

⁵ The description of the church is of three sorts, by abolishing of old things, by the being of present things in God, that is, of things eternal: and by the communication of all good things with the godly, verse 6. If so be they shall strive manfully, verse 7. But the reprobate are excluded from thence, verse 8.

⁶ Their lot and inheritance, as it were.

⁷ A transition unto the particular describing of the heavenly church, by the express calling of Saint John, in this verse; and his rapt up by the Spirit, in confirmation of the truth of God, in the verse following.

⁸ He meaneth the place and stately seat of the church, shadowed out in a mountain.

⁹ A type of that church which is one ample, or catholic, holy, celestial, built of God, in this verse: and glorious, in the verse following. This type, propounded generally, is after particularly declared, verse 12, &c.

¹¹ According to the number of the tribes, of which, chapter 7. For here the outward part is attributed unto the Old Testament, and the foundation to the New Testament.

¹² He meaneth the prophets, who are the messengers of God, and watchmen of the church.

A. D. 96. 13 On the East part there were three gates, and on the North side three gates, on the South side three gates, and on the West side three gates.

14 And the wall of the city had ¹² twelve foundations, and in them the names of the Lamb's twelve apostles.

15 ¹³ And he that talked with me, had a golden reed, to measure the city withal, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof.

16 ¹⁴ And the city lay ⁴ four square, and the length is as large as the breadth of it: and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs: and the length, and the breadth, and the height of it are equal.

17 And he measured the wall thereof, an hundred forty and four cubits, by the measure of man, that is, of the ^c angel.

18 ¹⁵ And the building of the wall of it was of jasper: and the city was pure gold, like unto clear gla's.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the city were garnished with all manner of precious stones: the first foundation was jasper: the second of sapphire: the third of a chalcedony: the fourth of an emerald:

20 The fifth of a sardonix: the sixth of a sardius: the seventh of [■] chrysolite: the eighth of a beril: the ninth of [■] topaz: the tenth of a chrysoloprasus: the eleventh of a jacinth: the twelfth an amethyst.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls, and every gate is of one pearl, and the ^d street of the city is pure gold, as shining gla's.

22 And I saw no temple therein: for the Lord God almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it.

• Isa. 60. 19. 23 ^{*} ¹⁶ And the city hath no need of the sun, neither of the moon to shine in it: for the glory of God did light it: and the Lamb is the light of it.

• Isa. 60. 3. 24 ^{*} And the people which are saved, shall walk in the light of it: and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory and honour unto it.

• Isa. 60. 11. 25 ^{*} And the gates of it shall not be shut by day: for there shall be no night there.

¹² That is, foundation stones, according to the number of the gates, as is shewed, verse 19.

¹³ A transition unto [■] more exquisite description of the parts of the church, by finding out of the measure of the same, by the angel that measured them.

¹⁴ The measure and form most equal, in two verses.

^b A four-square figure hath equal sides, and outright corners, and therefore the Grecians call by this name those things that are steady, and of continuance, and perfect.

[■] He addeth this, because the angel had the shape of a man.

¹⁵ The matter most precious and glittering, which the presence of God maketh most glorious.

^d By street, he meaneth the broadest place of the city.

¹⁶ The second form of particular description (as I said, verse 12.) from foreign and outward accidents, which are these. Light from God himself, in this verse: glory from men, verse 24. perfect security from all harm, verse 25. Finally, such truth and incorruption of glory, verse 26. [■] can bear and abide with it: nothing that is inglorious, verse the last.

¹ Here is absolved and finished the description of the celestial church (as I shewed before, chap. 21. 12.) by the effects in five verses, and then this book is concluded in the rest of the chapter. The effects proceeding from God, who dwelleth in the church, are these: the everlasting grace of God, in this verse, the eternal living of the godly, as chap. 2. 7. the eternal fruits which the godly bring forth unto God, themselves and others, verse 2. freedom and immunity from all evil, God himself taking pleasure in his servants, and they likewise in their God, verse 3. The beholding and sight of God, and feeling of the faith-

26 And the glory and honour of the Gentiles shall be brought unto it. A. D. 96.

27 And there shall enter into it none unclean thing, neither whatsoever worketh abomination or lyes: but they which are written in the Lamb's ^{*} book of life.

C H A P. XXII.

• Ch. 3. 5. and 20. 12. Phil. 4. 3.

1 The river of the water of life is shewed, 2 and the tree of life: 6, 7 Then followeth the conclusion of this prophecy, 8 where John declareth, that the things herein contained, are most true. 13 And now the third time repeateth these words, All things come from him who is the beginning and the end.

AND he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as chrystal, proceeding out of the throne of God, and of the Lamb.

2 In the midst of the street of it, and of either side of the river, was the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and gave fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree serv'd to heal the nations with.

3 And there shall be no more curse, but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him.

4 And they shall see his face, and his name shall be on their foreheads.

5 ^{*} And there shall be no night there, and they need no candle, neither light of the sun: for the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reign for evermore. • Isa. 60. 19.

6 ² And he said unto me, These words are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the holy prophets sent his angel to shew unto his servants the things which must shortly be fulfilled.

7 Behold, I come shortly. Blessed is he that keepeth the words of the prophecy of this book.

8 And I am John, which saw and heard these things: and when I had heard and seen, ^{*} I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which shewed me these things. • Ch. 19.

9 But he said unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the words of this book: worship God.

10 ³ And he said unto me, ⁺ Seal not the words ful from all eternity, vers: 4. the light of God, and an everlasting kingdom and glory, verse 5.

[■] This whole book is concluded and made up by a confirmation and [■] salutation. The confirmation hath three places: the words of the angel unto the 15th verse; the words of Christ, verse 16, 17. and the obtestation made by St. John from divine authority, thence unto the 20th verse. By the speech of the angel this prophecy is confirmed unto the 8th verse, and then he speaketh of the use of this book in the verses following. The prophecy is first confirmed by the angel from the nature thereof, that it is faithful and true: Secondly, from the nature of the efficient cause: both principal, which is God; and instrumental, which is the angel in this verse. Thirdly, from the promises of God concerning his coming to effect all these things, and concerning our salvation, verse 7. Fourthly, from the testification of St. John himself, verse 8. The rest of the speech of the angel tending to the same end. St. John interrupted or broken off by his unadvised act of worshipping him, in the same verse which the angel forbidding, teacheth him that adoration must be given not to him, but only [■] God: as for himself, that he is of such [■] and office, [■] he may not be adored: which thing also was in like manner done, chap. 16. verse 10.

[■] The angel returneth to his former speech: in which he teacheth the use of this book both towards ourselves, in this and the [■] verse: and in respect of God for declaration of his truth, thence unto the 15th verse.

[■] That is, propound this prophecy openly unto all, and conceal [■] part of it: The contrary whereunto is commanded, Isa. 8. 6. and Dan. 8. 26.

A. D. words of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand.

11 ⁵ He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he that is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.

12 ⁶ And behold, I come shortly, and my reward is with me, ^{*} to give to every man according as his work shall be.

13 I am ² Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last.

14 Blessed are they that do his commandments, that their right may be in the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.

15 For without shall be dogs, and enchanters, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth or maketh lies.

16 ¹ I Jesus have sent mine angel, to testify unto you these things in the churches: I am the root and the generation of David, and the bright morning star.

⁵ An objection prevented. But there will be some that will abuse this occasion unto evil, and will wrest this scripture unto their own destruction, as Peter saith. What then saith the angel? the mysteries of God must not therefore be concealed, which it hath pleased him to communicate unto us. Let them be hurtful unto others, let such be more and more vile in themselves whom this scripture doth not please: yet others shall be further confirmed thereby unto righteousness, and true holiness. The care and reformation of these may not be neglected, because of the voluntary and malicious offence of others.

¹ The second place belonging unto the use of this book, as I said verse 10. Also (saith God by the angel) though there should be no use of this book unto men: yet it shall be of this use unto me, that it is a witness of my truth unto my glory, who will come shortly, to give and execute just judgment in this verse: who have taught that all these things have their being in me, in the 13th verse, and have denounced blessedness unto my servants in the church, verse 14. and reprobation unto the ungodly, v. rse 15.

⁷ The blessedness of the godly set down by their title and interest thereunto, and their fruit in the same.

⁸ The second place of confirmation (as I said verse 6.) is the speech of Christ ratifying the vocation of St. John, and the authority of his calling and testimony, both from the 17 And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. A. D. And let him that heareth say, Come: and let him that is athirst, come: and ^{*} let whosoever will, take of the water of life freely. 96. 16. 55. 1.

18 ⁹ For I protest unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book:

19 And if any man shall diminish of the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from those things which are written in this book.

20 ¹⁰ He which testifieth these things, saith, Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

21 ¹¹ The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

condition of his own person, being God and man, in whom all the promises of God are Yea and Amen, 2 Cor. 1. 20. and also from the testification of other persons, by the acclamation of the Holy Ghost, who here is, ■ it were, an honourable assistant of the marriage of the church as the spouse, and of every of the godly ■ members: and finally, from the thing present, that of their own knowledge and accord, they are called forth unto the participation of the good things of God, verse 17.

⁹ The obtestation of St. John (which is the third place of the confirmation, ■ was noted verse 6.) joined with a curse of execration to preserve the truth of this book intire and uncorrupted in two verses.

¹⁰ A divine confirmation or sealing of the obtestation, first, from Christ avouching the same, and denouncing his coming against all those that shall put their sacrilegious hands hereunto: then from St. John himself, who by a most holy prayer calleth Christ ■ take vengeance of them.

¹¹ The salutation apostolical, which is the other place of the conclusion, as I said verse 6. and is the end almost of every epistle: which we wish unto the church, and to all the holy and elect members thereof, in Christ Jesus our Lord, until his coming to judgment. Come, Lord Jesus, and do it. Amen, again Amen.

A BRIEF TABLE of the Interpretation of the Proper Names which are chiefly found in the Old Testament, wherein the First Number signifieth the Chapter, the Second the Verse.

Whereas the wickedness of time, and the blindness of the former age hath been such, that all things altogether have been abused and corrupted, so that the very right ■ of divers of the holy ■ named in the scriptures have been forgotten, and now seem strange ■ us; and the names of infants, that should ever have some godly advertisements in them, and should be memorials and marks of the children of God received into his household, have been hereby also changed and made the signs and badges of idolatry and heathenish impiety: we have now set forth this table of the ■ that be most used in the Old Testament, with their interpretations, as the Hebrew importeth, partly ■ call back the godly from that abuse, when they shall know the true names of the godly fathers; and what they signify, that their children ■ named after them, may have testimonies by their very names, that they are within that faithful family that in all their doings had ■ God before their eyes, and that they ■ bound by these their names ■ serve God from their infancy, and have occasion to praise him for his works wrought in them, and their fathers; but chiefly to restore the names ■ their integrity, whereby many places of the scriptures, and secret mysteries of the Holy Ghost, shall better be understood. We have meddled rarely with the Greek names, because their interpretation is uncertain, and many of them are corrupted from their original: as we may also see these Hebrew names, set in the margin of this table, which have been corrupted by the Grecians. Now for the other Hebrew names that ■ not here interpreted, let not the diligent reader be careful: for he shall find them in places most convenient amongst the annotations; ■ least so many ■ may seem to make for any edification, and understanding of the scriptures.
